

THE HOLY BIBLE,

ACCORDING TO THE AUTHORIZED VERSION;

WITH NOTES, EXPLANATORY AND PRACTICAL;

TAKEN PRINCIPALLY FROM THE MOST EMINENT WRITERS OF THE UNITED CHURCH OF ENGLAND AND IRELAND:

TOGETHER WITH APPROPRIATE
INTRODUCTIONS, TABLES, INDEXES, MAPS, AND PLANS:

PREPARED AND ARRANGED BY THE REV. GEORGE D'OYLY, B.D.

AND
THE REV. RICHARD MANT, D.D.
DOMESTICK CHAPLAINS TO HIS GRACE THE LORD ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

For the Use of Families.

VOL. I.

OXFORD,
PRINTED FOR THE SOCIETY AT THE CLARENDON PRESS,
BY BENSLEY, COOKE, AND COLLINGWOOD, PRINTERS TO THE UNIVERSITY;
SOLD BY F. C. AND J. RIVINGTON, BOOKSELLERS TO THE SOCIETY, ST. PAUL'S CHURCH-YARD; AND BY ALL OTHER BOOKSELLERS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.

1817.

Cum Privilegio.

TO
THE MOST REVEREND FATHER IN GOD, CHARLES,
BY DIVINE PROVIDENCE,
LORD ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY, PRIMATE OF ALL ENGLAND AND METROPOLITAN;
THIS EDITION
OF
The Holy Bible,
WITH NOTES AND ILLUSTRATIONS, IS,
WITH HIS GRACE'S PERMISSION, MOST RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED BY
THE SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

BARTLETT'S BUILDINGS,
JANUARY 1, 1817.

1104309

GENERAL INTRODUCTION

TO

T H E B I B L E.

THE BIBLE is the only authentick source, from which we can derive instruction concerning the various dispensations of God to mankind, and the duties required of men by their Creator. The word 'Bible' literally signifies book; and the word 'Scriptures,' writings: but these words are now, by way of eminence and distinction, applied exclusively to those sacred compositions, which contain the revealed will of God. The words 'Scriptures' and 'Scripture' occur in this sense in the Gospels, Acts, and Epistles; whence it is evident, that, in the time of our Saviour, they denoted the books received by the Jews as the rule of their faith. To these books have been added the writings of the Apostles and Evangelists, which complete the collection of books, acknowledged by Christians to be divinely inspired. The Bible, or the Book, the book of books, was used in its present sense by the early Christians, as we learn from St. Chrysostom.

The Bible is divided into two parts, the Old and the New Testament. The Apostle St. Paul, at 2 Cor. iii. 6 and 14, calls the dispensation of Moses "the Old Testament," and the dispensation of Christ "the New Testament;" and these distinguishing appellations were applied by the early ecclesiastical authors to the writings which contain these dispensations. The Greek word, translated 'testament,' occurs in Scripture both in the sense of a testament or will, and in that of a covenant, Heb. ix. 16; Gal. iii. 15. It seems less properly applied to the ancient Scriptures in the former sense, since the death of Moses had no concern whatever in the establishment or efficacy of the Jewish religion; but, in the latter sense, it very properly signifies the covenant between God and His chosen people. The same word, when applied in the sense of a testament to the books which contain the Christian dispensation, may refer to the death of Christ, which forms an essential part of His religion; but even in this case it would perhaps have been better translated by the word 'covenant,' as referring to the conditions on which God is pleased to offer salvation to His sinful creatures, through the mediation of His only Son, Jesus Christ. Bp. Tomline.

The books of the Old Testament were originally written in Hebrew, those of the New Testament in Greek.

The principal translation of the Old Testament into the Greek language, is that which is called the Septuagint. This name is derived from the Latin word Septuaginta, Seventy, the version being related to have been made by seventy or seventy-two interpreters. It is recorded that, about the year Before Christ 277, Ptolemy Philadelphus, being intent on forming a great library at Alexandria in Egypt, sent to Eleazar the high priest of the Jews, to request a copy of the Law of Moses; and, as he was ignorant of the Hebrew tongue, he further desired that some men of sufficient capacity might be sent to translate it into Greek. The messengers, who went upon this errand, and carried with them many rich presents for the temple, were received with great honour and respect, both by the high priest, and all the people; and having received a copy of the Law of Moses, and six elders having been assigned out of each tribe (seventy-two in all) to translate it, returned to Alexandria. Upon their arrival, the elders betook themselves to the work, and first translated the Pentateuch, afterwards the rest of the Old Testament, into Greek. Whatever may be thought of the truth of this story, it is certain that the translation, called the Septuagint, was held in esteem and veneration almost equal to the original, and was not only used by the Jews in their dispersion through the Grecian cities, but approved by the great Sanhedrim at Jerusalem, and quoted and referred to by our blessed Saviour and His Apostles.

The Latin translations of the Bible were, in early times, extremely numerous, but they were chiefly made from the Septuagint, and not from the original Hebrew, until St. Jerome, who was well versed in the Hebrew language, observing the errors of the many Latin translations, and their frequent disagreement with the original, undertook an entirely new translation, and with great care and exactness translated from the Hebrew all the Old Testament, except the Psalms. This translation of St. Jerome was not universally received in the Church; and at length another, which was composed of this and some former translations, and which is called by the Romanists The Ancient Vulgate, came into general use. The Romanists pretend that this Vulgate translation is the very same with St. Jerome's, and that, whatever variations may be found, they were occasioned by the negligence of transcribers. However this may be, it cannot be denied that it has considerable faults, that it abounds with barbarous words, and that in many passages the sense of the original is corrupted, and in some entirely lost. Still the Council of Trent thought fit to declare that "the same ancient and vulgate Version, which has been approved and used in the Church for many ages past, shall be considered as the authentick Version in all publick lectures, sermons, and expositions, which no one shall presume to reject, under any pretence whatever."

GENERAL INTRODUCTION TO THE BIBLE.

It is impossible to ascertain with any exactness how soon there was a translation of the Holy Scriptures into the language of the inhabitants of Britain. The earliest, of which we have any account, is a translation of the Psalms into the Saxon tongue by Adhelm, the first bishop of Sherborne, about the year 706. Egbert, bishop of Lindisfern, who died in the year 721, made a Saxon version of the four Gospels; and not long after, Bede translated the whole Bible into that language. There were other Saxon versions of the whole or parts of the Bible of a later date; and it appears indeed, that new translations were made, from time to time, as the language of the country varied; but when the popes of Rome had established their spiritual tyranny in this as well as in other countries of Europe, they forbade the reading of these translations; and in the fourteenth century the common people had been so long deprived of the use of the Scriptures, that the latest of the translations were become unintelligible. Wickliff therefore, who was a strenuous opposer of the corruptions and usurpations of the church of Rome, and from whom we are to date the dawn of the Reformation in this kingdom, published a translation of the whole Bible in the English language then spoken; but not being sufficiently acquainted with the Hebrew and Greek languages to translate from the originals, he made his translation from the Latin Bibles, which were at that time read in the churches. So offensive was this translation of the Bible to those who were for taking away the key of knowledge, and means of better information, that a bill, we are told, was brought into the House of Lords, in the 13th year of Richard the Second, and in the year of our Lord 1390, for the purpose of suppressing it; on which the Duke of Lancaster, the king's uncle, is reported to have spoken to this effect: 'We will not be the dregs of all, seeing other nations have the law of God, which is the law of our faith, written in their own language.' At the same time he declared, in a very solemn manner, 'That he would maintain our having this law in our own tongue against those, whoever they should be, who brought in this bill.' The bill, through the influence of the Duke, was rejected; and this success gave encouragement to some of Wickliff's followers to publish another, and more correct, translation of the Bible. But in the year 1408, in a convocation held at Oxford by Archbishop Arundel, it was decreed by a constitution, "That no one should thereafter translate any text of holy Scripture into English, by way of a book, or little book, or tract; and that no book of this kind should be read, that was composed lately in the time of John Wickliff, or since his death." This constitution led the way to great persecution; and many persons were punished severely, and some even with death, for reading the Scriptures in English.

In the reign of Henry the Eighth, William Tyndal, a favourer of the reformed doctrines, which were then making a rapid progress, was compelled by the Romish priests to leave England. After travelling for some time in Germany, where he became acquainted with Luther and other learned men, he settled at Antwerp; and with the assistance of John Fry or Fryth and William Roye, he translated the New Testament from the original Greek, and printed it, with some short glosses, or comments, without a name, at Hamburgh, or Antwerp, about the year 1526. This was the first printed edition of any part of the Holy Scriptures in the English language. The impression was sent over to England; and the eagerness, which was generally shewn by the people, to read the Gospel in the vulgar tongue, quickly excited alarm among those who were devoted to the Romish church. Sir Thomas More, Lord Chancellor, and Tonstall, Bishop of London, caused all the copies they could purchase or procure, to be burnt at St. Paul's Cross; and the selling or dispersion of them was prohibited under heavy penalties. In the meantime Tyndal, with the assistance of Miles Coverdale, undertook the translation of the Old Testament, and published the Pentateuch at Hamburgh, in the year 1530, with prefaces reflecting upon the English bishops and clergy; and in the same year he published a more correct translation of the New Testament. In 1531, he published an English version of the Prophet Jonah. He was proceeding in the translation of the other books, when he was seized and imprisoned by the Emperour, through the influence of King Henry the Eighth and his ministers; and in the year 1536, he was put to death at Villefont near Brussels, in consequence of a decree made in an assembly at Augsburg.

In the year 1531, George Joye, an English refugee, published at Strasburg a translation of Isaiah; and in the year 1534, he published at Antwerp a translation of the prophecies of Jeremiah, and of the Psalms, and of the Song of Moses.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION TO THE BIBLE.

In the year 1535, Miles Coverdale published in folio the first English translation of the whole Bible, and dedicated it to King Henry the Eighth: It was probably printed at Zurich; and though it passed under the name of Coverdale only, it is generally supposed that great part of the work was performed by Tyndal, before he was imprisoned, and that his name was not mentioned because he was then under confinement.

Those, who were adverse to any translation of the Scriptures, not daring openly to avow their principles, complained of the inaccuracy of Wickliff's and Tyndal's translations; and on that ground objected to the use of them: but, on the other hand, it was contended by the friends of the Reformation, that, if these translations were erroneous, care should be taken to publish one more faithful. In the year 1535, Cranmer, who had been advanced to the see of Canterbury two years before, and whose endeavours to promote the cause of the Reformation were unremitted, had sufficient interest to procure a petition from both houses of convocation to the King, requesting that he would allow a new translation of the Scriptures to be made. Henry consented; and Cranmer, dividing an old English translation of the New Testament into nine or ten parts, distributed them among the most learned bishops and others, requiring that they should return their respective portions, corrected and amended, by a certain day. Every one sent his part at the time appointed, except Stokesly, Bishop of London, and his positive refusal to have any concern in the business seems to have put a stop to the work for the present. However, early in the year 1536, Lord Cromwell, Keeper of the Privy Seal, and the King's Vicar-general, and Vicegerent in Ecclesiastical Matters, published injunctions to the clergy, by the King's authority, of which the seventh was, "that every parson or proprietary of any parish church within the realm, before August the first, should provide a book of the whole Bible, both in Latin, and also in English, and lay it in the choir, for every man that would to look and read therein; and should discourage no man from reading any part of the Bible, either in Latin or English, but rather comfort, exhort, and admonish every man to read it as the very word of God, and the spiritual food of man's soul."

In the year 1537, a folio edition of the Bible was printed by Grafton and Whitchurch, at Hamburg or at Paris, more probably at Hamburg: it varied but little from Tyndal's and Coverdale's translation; and the few emendations and additions it contained were supplied by John Rogers, who superintended the publication, and assumed the name of Matthews: hence this is always called Matthews's Bible. A copy of this book was presented by Cranmer to Lord Cromwell, with a request that he would obtain the King's permission for the free use of it among his subjects; and it appears that the royal licence was granted through the application of Cromwell.

In the year 1538, an injunction was published by the Vicar-general, "ordering the clergy to provide, before a certain festival, one book of the whole Bible of the largest volume in English, and to set it up in some convenient place within their churches, where their parishioners might most commodiously resort and read it;" and in the same year a royal declaration was also published, which the curates were commanded to read in their several churches, informing the people, "that it had pleased the King's Majesty to permit and command the Bible, being translated into their mother tongue, to be sincerely taught by them, and to be openly laid forth in every parish church." "It was wonderful," says Strype, "to see with what joy this book of God was received, not only among the more learned, and those who were noted lovers of the Reformation, but generally all over England, among all the common people, and with what greediness God's word was read, and what resort there was to the places appointed for reading it. Every one, that could, bought the book, and busily read it, or heard it read; and many elderly persons learned to read on purpose."

In 1538, Grafton obtained leave from Francis the First, king of France, through the intercession of Henry the Eighth, to print an English Bible at Paris, on account of the superior skill of the workmen, and the comparative goodness and cheapness of the paper. But this royal permission did not prevent the inquisitors from summoning before them the French printers, the English employers, and Coverdale, who superintended the work; and the whole impression, consisting of 2,500 copies, was seized, and condemned to the flames. Some few copies only were saved; but the English proprietors of this undertaking found means to carry with them to London the presses, types, and printers.

In 1539, Grafton and Whitchurch printed, at London, the Bible in large folio, under the direction of Coverdale and patronage of Cranmer, containing some improvement of Matthews's translation; this is generally called the Great Bible, and it is supposed to be the same which Grafton obtained leave to print at Paris. There were several editions of it, and particularly one in 1540, for which Cranmer wrote a preface, shewing, that "Scripture should be had and read of the lay and vulgar people;" hence this edition of 1540 is called Cranmer's Bible. In this year the curates and parishioners of every parish were required, by royal proclamation, to provide themselves with the Bible of the largest size, before the feast of All Saints, under a penalty of forty shillings a month; and all ordinaries were charged to see that this proclamation was obeyed. A brief or declaration was published to the same effect in the year 1541; but after that time the influence of the popish party increased both in parliament and with the King, and Cranmer's exertions were frustrated by the opposition of Gardiner and other popish bishops. In the year 1542, it was enacted by the authority of parliament, "That all manner of books of the Old and New Testament, of the crafty, false, and untrue translation of Tyndal, be forthwith abolished, and forbidden to be used and kept; and also that all other Bibles, not being of Tyndal's translation, in which were found any preambles or annotations, other than the quotations or summary of the chapters, should be purged of the said preambles or annotations, either by cutting them out, or blotting them in such wise that they might not be perceived or read; and, finally, that the Bible be not read openly in any church, but by the leave of the King, or of the ordinary of the place; nor privately by any women, artificers, apprentices, journeymen, husbandmen, labourers, or by any of the servants of yeomen or under;" but, through the interest of Cranmer, a clause was inserted, allowing, "that every nobleman and gentleman might have the Bible read in their houses, and that noble ladies, gentlewomen, and merchants, might read it themselves, but no man or woman under those degrees;" which was all the Archbishop could obtain. In the same year Cranmer proposed in convocation, that there should be a revision of the translations of the Bible; but so many difficulties were started by Gardiner, and the proposal was so feebly supported by the other bishops, that he was unable to accomplish his object, and desisted from the attempt. In the year 1546, the last of his reign, Henry issued a proclamation, prohibiting the having and reading of Wickliff's, Tyndal's, and Coverdale's translations, and forbidding the use of any other not allowed by parliament.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION TO THE BIBLE.

Though in the reign of Edward the Sixth the reading of the Scriptures was encouraged by royal proclamations, acts of parliament, and by all other means, and there were many impressions of the English Bible, it does not appear that there was any new translation of the Bible, or even any considerable correction of the old ones, during the seven years and an half that excellent prince sat upon the throne; but it was ordered, that the Epistles and Gospels, and the Lessons, both from the Old and New Testament, should be read in English in the churches, in the manner they now are.

The terrors of persecution, in the reign of Queen Mary, drove many of our principal Reformers out of the kingdom; several went to Geneva, and there employed themselves in making a new translation of the Bible. The New Testament was published in 1557, and the remainder of the work in 1560. This is called the Geneva Bible. It was accompanied with annotations, which were, as might be expected from the place where they were written, of a Calvinistical cast; and therefore this translation was held in high esteem by the Puritans.

Soon after the accession of Queen Elizabeth, a new translation of the Bible was undertaken by royal command, and under the direction of Archbishop Parker. Distinct portions, fifteen at least, were allotted to as many persons, eminent for their learning and abilities; they all performed the work assigned to them, and the whole was afterwards revised with great care by other critics. This translation was published in 1568, with a preface written by the Archbishop; and it is generally called the Bishops' Bible, because eight of the persons originally concerned in it were bishops.

Since the Protestants had now made translations of the Bible into the languages of several countries, that the people might read the Holy Scriptures, the Romanists also, finding it impossible to keep the Bible out of the hands of the common people, made new translations into most of the languages of Europe, to oppose those of the hereticks, (as they termed them,) and to keep the faithful (as they called those of their own communion) from reading translations made by Protestants. But there is this difference of principle in translations made by Papists and those made by Protestants, that the Papists have translated from the Latin Vulgate, as deeming it better, not only than all other Latin translations, but than the Greek of the New Testament itself, in those places where they disagree; whereas the Protestants, in their translations of the Holy Bible, have always had recourse to the original Greek and Hebrew. Thus, when the Papists could not altogether suppress the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, whereby their errors are discovered, they thought it the next way for their purpose, by their partial translation, as much as they could, to obscure them, and by their heretical annotations to pervert them. Hence, in the year 1582, came forth the Rhemish translation of the New Testament into English, in which the Papists retained many Eastern, Greek, and Latin words, and introduced so many difficult expressions, that they contrived to render it unintelligible to the common people. A translation of the Old Testament was afterwards published by them at Douay, in two volumes; the former in 1609, the latter in 1610.

In the conference held at Hampton Court in 1603, before King James the First, between the Episcopalians and Puritans, Dr. Reynolds, the speaker of the Puritans, requested his Majesty that a new translation of the Bible might be made, alleging that those which had been allowed in former reigns were incorrect. Accordingly, his Majesty formed the resolution of causing a new and more faithful translation to be made, and commissioned for that purpose fifty-four of the most learned men in the Universities and other places. At the same time, he required the bishops to inform themselves of all learned men within their several dioceses, who had acquired especial skill in the Hebrew and Greek tongues, and had taken pains in their private studies of the Scriptures, for the clearing up of obscurities either in the Hebrew or the Greek, or for the correction of any mistakes in the former English translations, and to charge them to communicate their observations to the persons employed, that so the intended translation might have the help and furtherance of all the principal learned men in the kingdom.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION TO THE BIBLE.

Before the work was begun, seven of the persons nominated for it either were dead or declined to engage in the task. The remaining forty-seven were ranged under six divisions, and several parcels of the Bible were assigned to them, according to the several places where they were to meet, confer, and consult together. Every one of the company was to translate the whole parcel; then they were each to compare their translations together, and when any company had finished their part, they were to communicate it to the other companies, that so nothing might pass without general consent. If any company, upon the review of the book so sent, doubted or differed upon any place, they were to note the place, and send back the reasons for their disagreement. If they happened to differ about the amendments, the difference was to be referred to a general committee, consisting of the chief persons of each company, at the end of the work. When any passage was found remarkably obscure, letters were to be directed by authority to any learned persons in the land for their judgment thereupon.

The names of the persons, and places where they met, together with the portions of Scripture assigned to each company, were as follows:

1st, Dr. Lancelot Andrewes, first Fellow, then Master, of Pembroke Hall in Cambridge, at this time Dean of Westminster, afterwards Bishop of Ely, then of Winchester. 2dly, Dr. John Overall, Fellow of Trinity College, Master of Catharine Hall in Cambridge, at this time Dean of St. Paul's, afterwards Bishop, first of Coventry and Litchfield, then of Norwich. 3dly, Dr. Adrian Saravia, a native of Artois, who cast himself upon the protection of the Church of England, and was preferred to Prebends of Canterbury and Westminster. 4thly, Dr. Layfield, Fellow of Trinity College Cambridge, Rector of St. Clement's Danes; as he was skilled in architecture, his judgment was much relied upon for the fabrick of the tabernacle and temple. 5th, Dr. Clerk, Fellow of Christ College in Cambridge, Preacher in Canterbury. 6th, Dr. Leigh, Archdeacon of Middlesex, Rector of Allhallows, Barking. 7th, Dr. Burgley. 8th, Mr. King. 9th, Mr. Thomson. 10th, Mr. Bedwell, sometime Fellow of St. John's College Cambridge, and Vicar of Tottenham. These ten met at Westminster, and to them were assigned the Pentateuch, and the history from Joshua to the first book of Chronicles exclusively.

2nd, To meet at Cambridge, were chosen eight; namely, 1st, Mr. Lively, the King's Hebrew Reader in Cambridge. 2nd, Mr. John Richardson, Fellow of Emanuel College, afterwards Doctor in Divinity, Master, first of Peterhouse, then of Trinity College. 3rd, Mr. Chadderton, afterwards Doctor in Divinity, first Fellow of Christ College, then Master of Emanuel College. 4th, Mr. Dillingham, Fellow of Christ College. 5th, Mr. Andrews, afterwards Doctor of Divinity, and Master of Jesus College. 6th, Mr. Harrison, Vice-master of Trinity College. 7th, Mr. Spalding, Fellow of St. John's, and Hebrew Reader in that College. 8th, Mr. Bing, Fellow of Peterhouse, and Hebrew Reader therein. To these were allotted the books from the first of the Chronicles, with the rest of the history; and the Hagiographa, namely, Job, Psalms, Proverbs, Canticles, Ecclesiastes.

3rd, To meet at Oxford were chosen seven; namely, 1st, Dr. John Harding, President of Magdalen College. 2nd, Dr. John Reynolds, President of Corpus Christi College, who died soon after engaging in the work. 3rd, Dr. Thomas Holland, Rector of Exeter College, and the King's Professor of Divinity. 4th, Dr. Richard Kilby, Rector of Lincoln College, and Hebrew Professor. 5th, Mr. Miles Smith, afterwards Doctor in Divinity, and Bishop of Gloucester. He wrote the Preface to the translation, and was one of the revisers of the whole work, when finished. 6th, Dr. Richard Brett, Rector of Quainton in Buckinghamshire. 7th, Mr. Fairclowe. These had for their task the four greater Prophets, with the Lamentations, and the twelve lesser Prophets.

4th, For the Prayer of Manasseh and the rest of the Apocrypha, seven were appointed at Cambridge. 1st, Dr. Duport, Prebendary of Ely, and Master of Jesus College. 2nd, Dr. Brainthwaite, first Fellow of Emanuel, then Master of Gonvil and Caius College. 3rd, Dr. Radcliffe, Fellow of Trinity College. 4th, Mr. Ward of Emanuel, afterwards Doctor in Divinity, Master of Sidney College, and Margaret Professor. 5th, Mr. Downs, Fellow of St. John's College, and Greek Professor. 6th, Mr. Boyse, Fellow of St. John's College, Prebendary of Ely, and Rector of Boxworth in Cambridgeshire. 7th, Mr. Ward, Fellow of King's College, afterwards Doctor in Divinity, Prebendary of Chichester, and Rector of Bishop Waltham in Hampshire.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION TO THE BIBLE.

5th, For the New Testament, the four Gospels, the Acts, and Revelations, were assigned to eight at Oxford; namely, 1st, Dr. Thomas Ravis, Dean of Christ Church, afterwards Bishop of London. 2nd, Dr. George Abbot, Master of University College, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury. 3rd, Dr. Eedes. 4th, Mr. Tomison, afterwards Bishop of Gloucester. 5th, Mr. Savil. 6th, Dr. Perin, Canon of Christ Church. 7th, Dr. Ravens. 8th, Mr. Harmer.

6th, The Epistles of St. Paul, and the other Canonical Epistles, were assigned to seven at Westminster; namely, 1st, Dr. William Barlow, of Trinity Hall in Cambridge, Dean of Chester, afterwards Bishop of Lincoln. 2nd, Dr. Hutchenson. 3rd, Dr. Spenser. 4th, Mr. Fenton. 5th, Mr. Rabbet. 6th, Mr. Sanderson. 7th, Mr. Dakins.

The work was begun in the spring of 1607, and prosecuted with all due care and deliberation. It was about three years before it was finished. Two persons selected from the Cambridge translators, two from those at Oxford, and two from those at Westminster, then met at Stationers' Hall, and read over and corrected the whole. After long expectation and great desire of the nation, this translation came forth, in the year 1611, the divines employed having taken the greatest pains in conducting the work, not only examining translations with the original, which was absolutely necessary, but also comparing together all the existing translations in the Italian, Spanish, French, and other languages.

This is the translation of the Holy Scriptures now in common use amongst us; and since that time there has been no authorized version of any part of the sacred volume. The excellency of it is such as might be expected from the judicious care with which it was conducted, and the joint labours of the many distinguished men employed upon it. It is, says Dr. Gray, a most wonderful and incomparable work, equally remarkable for the general fidelity of its construction, and the magnificent simplicity of its language.

Happy has our English nation been, since God has given us learned translators, to express in our mother tongue the heavenly mysteries of His holy Word, delivered to His Church in the Hebrew and Greek languages; who, although they may have been deceived and mistaken, as men, in some matters of no importance to salvation, yet have faithfully delivered the whole substance of the heavenly doctrine, contained in the Holy Scriptures, without any heretical translations, or wilful corruptions. With what reverence, joy, and gladness then, ought we to receive this blessing! Let us read the Scriptures with a modest, humble, and teachable disposition, with a willingness to embrace all truths which are plainly delivered there, how contrary soever to our own opinions and prejudices, and in matters of difficulty readily hearken to the judgment of our teachers, and those that are set over us in the Lord; and check every presumptuous thought or reasoning which exalts itself against any of those mysterious truths therein revealed. If we thus search after the truth in the love of it, we shall not miss of finding that knowledge, which will "make us wise unto salvation, through faith which is in Christ Jesus." Bp. Tomline, Stackhouse, Johnson's History of English Translations of the Bible.

The division of the Holy Scriptures into chapters and verses, as we now have them, is not of very ancient date. About the year of our Lord 1240, Hugo de Sancto Caro, commonly called Cardinal Hugo, making an index or concordance to the Latin Bible, found it necessary to divide it into the parts which we call chapters; and further divided each chapter into sections, by placing the letters of the alphabet at certain distances in the margin. The subdivision into verses came afterwards from the Jews; for, about the year 1430, Rabbi Nathan, an eminent Jew, publishing a concordance to the Hebrew Bible, adopted the division into chapters made by Cardinal Hugo, and divided the chapters by affixing numeral letters in the margin. About one hundred years after this, Vatablus, a Frenchman and eminent Hebrew scholar, taking his pattern from him, published a Latin Bible with chapters and verses, numbered with figures; and this example has been followed in all subsequent editions, in all languages, published in the western parts of Christendom. The present division of the New Testament into verses was made by Robert Stephens, an eminent printer at Paris, who introduced it into his edition of 1551. Dean Prideaux.

The Bible comprehends, in the grandest and most magnificent order, the various dispensations of God to mankind from the forming of this earth to the consummation of all things. It begins with the groundwork of natural religion, the creation of the universe by one holy and good and wise Being; relating distinctly how all those parts of it, to which the heathens paid divine worship, were in truth the work of God's hands. It proceeds to the origin of the Patriarchal, Jewish, and Christian religion, the introduction of sin by the fall of our first parents, of which we experience the wretched effects. It goes on to that amazing punishment of sin, the universal deluge, proved to be as certain, as it was wonderful, by the remaining traces of it throughout the globe. It then recites the second peopling of the world, the relapse of mankind into wickedness, the choice of one family and people to preserve the knowledge of God, and to be as a light shining in a dark place, for the benefit of all about them, that would turn their eyes and feet to the way of peace. It lays before us the laws given to this people; it recounts their history chiefly with regard to their moral and religious behaviour, and dwells on the character and actions of their most remarkable persons. It supplies us with admirable patterns of genuine piety in the Psalms, most virtuous instructions for the prudent conduct of life in the book of Proverbs, for bearing afflictions in that of Job, for thinking justly of wealth, honour, pleasure, science, in Ecclesiastes. Then, in the Prophetical books, it gives us, together with the sublimest and worthiest ideas of God, and our duties towards Him, the most affecting denunciations of that private and publick misery and ruin which will ever attend sin, whether cloaked by superstition or displayed in profaneness. And, along with all these things, it unfolds a series of predictions, reaching from the beginning of the Old Testament to the end; and growing, from obscure and general, continually clearer and more determinate, concerning the appearance of a Divine Person on earth, for the recovery of fallen man, and for the revival and propagation of true religion throughout the world. The books of the New Testament open to us the execution of this great design. The Gospels record His supernatural birth, His unspotted and exemplary life, His astonishing and gracious miracles, His pure and benevolent doctrine, His dying for our offences, and rising again for our justification; His mission of fit persons endued with the gifts of the Holy Spirit to teach all nations, His own ascension into heaven, and sitting at the right hand of God, till He shall come to judge the quick and the dead. The Acts of the Apostles represent the wonderful success of their preaching, and the original foundation of the Catholick Church. The Epistles contain their admirable directions to clergy and laity; and the Revelation concludes with foretelling the state of Christianity, primitive, degenerate, and reformed, to the last ages. A grander, a more comprehensive, and more useful scheme of instruction than this, cannot possibly be conceived.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION TO THE BIBLE.

In reading the Holy Scriptures, our business is to apply to those parts first, and to dwell on them most, which have the closest connexion with our future happiness. As right practice is the end of faith, the practical passages of Scripture ought certainly to have our principal regard, ever comprehending those which express the obligations of Christian piety and moral self-government, as well as justice and mercy. We shall indeed do well, besides occasionally reading particular chapters, to peruse both Testaments in their order: only it will be advisable to go oftenest through the New, as exhibiting more fully what we are to believe and to do, and without such a mixture, as there is in the Old, of things belonging solely to the former dispensation. But the regularity of this course ought not to hinder us from selecting chiefly, and perusing most frequently, those parts of both, which place before us, in the most influencing manner, the common doctrines, and common duties, of our holy profession. Still, even in respect of these parts of Scripture, and much more therefore of other parts, it is requisite that we proceed with some judgment and care; that we make use of the same rules for understanding our Bibles, which we do for understanding other books, and such also, as the peculiar nature of this book points out; that we never interpret any text in a sense contrary to the dictates of reason, or to other texts more clear or more numerous, or to the visible design and drift of the whole passage; that we always keep in view what goes before and what follows after; for the connexion is often very strong, where it is not extremely obvious; that we suppose not every verse to be a separate sentence of itself, nor every chapter to have a separate subject that begins and ends with it, for these divisions are entirely human, and sometimes not discreetly made; also that we apply the sayings of the holy penmen, only to the things of which they are treating, not to others which perhaps were far from their thoughts, unless a just argument can be drawn from the former to the latter. We should also be careful to take both single words, and phrases comprehending several, not always in the meaning which they bear in our daily conversation, but in such as other places of Scripture require or permit; understanding them literally where we can, but figuratively where we must. Again, we should make such abatements from strong expressions, such restrictions and exceptions to general expressions, and such allowances for the whole manner of speaking, as we perceive the nature of the thing, together with the usage and custom of the sacred writers, demands. Without such equity as this, a large proportion of the compositions which appear in the world would be made to abound with absurdities; and, if the Bible needs it more than later books of nearer countries, it also deserves it infinitely better, and it would be both perverse and impious to refuse it. These easy cautions will enable persons of almost the lowest capacity and improvements, who either can read Scripture, or have the means of hearing it read, to acquire so competent a knowledge of what is most needful to be known, as will fully justify the Psalmist's encomium, that "the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple."

Even the learned do not act with humility and prudence, and much less do the unlearned, if in reading the Holy Scriptures they rely wholly on their own judgment unassisted. For God hath made the help of others extremely necessary to our understanding of His word, as well as His works. Men of great abilities and attainments, by trusting to themselves, have involved themselves in error: and men of no other advantages, than a teachable disposition, have arrived at a most beneficial acquaintance with religious truths. For God “hides things from the wise and prudent” in their own opinion, which He “reveals unto babes :” “resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble.” Nor let it be imagined, that such must therefore depend altogether in every thing on the authority of their spiritual guides. For as in matters of science, or common business, what a man doth not see of himself, he may have shewn to him by others, and then may see it as truly and fully, as if it had been his own original discovery : so in matters of revelation, one who would otherwise have made small progress, or, it may be, committed great mistakes, yet having the main articles of it methodically explained to him, in discourses on his Catechism, and occasionally inculcated in Sermons, or in answers to the questions which he asks in private, may by comparing what he is thus taught, with what he reads in his Bible, come by degrees, not to believe implicitly, but to discern evidently, the genuine sense of its fundamental doctrines and precepts. In which case, his faith rests no longer on the word of man, but on that of God, whether we can answer all the specious objections against it or not: which few people can do in any thing that they believe of any kind. We should therefore conscientiously take all fit opportunities of learning instruction from those who are set apart to give it. For the priest’s lips are appointed to keep knowledge; and the people to seek the law at his mouth : not with a blind submission to whatever he shall affirm, but with so much regard at least, as in other professions the more ignorant pay to the more skilful. Nor are we confined to respect only the sentiments of the particular teachers, whom we stately attend, but we ought to have much greater deference for the general persuasion of Christ’s Church, particularly our own branch of it, and a proportionable one for that of every knowing and good person ; always entertaining some distrust of ourselves, when we differ from these. The exercise of our best judgment, and a modest attention to that of others, are the joint means which our Maker hath instituted for the understanding of His will, natural and revealed. They who use them uprightly, and they alone, may hope for pardon of their ignorance and errors. And, were any one to continue so ignorant to the last, as to believe the truths contained in Holy Writ, only because those about him told him they were such ; yet might he have the happiness of acquiring, even by the means of this most implicit faith, dispositions of piety and virtue unattainable otherwise, and sufficient to qualify him for eternal happiness.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION TO THE BIBLE.

It is to be acknowledged that many passages in the Bible are abstruse, and not easy to be understood. Yet we are not to omit reading the abstruser texts, which have any appearance of relating to us ; but should follow the example of the blessed Virgin, who understood not several of our Saviour’s sayings, yet kept them all in her heart. Were we only to learn humility thus, it would be enough ; but we shall come by degrees to apprehend far more than we expected, if we diligently compare spiritual things with spiritual, darker expressions with clearer, that are like or opposite to them ; for contraries illustrate one another. But, with whatever success we may increase our knowledge of Scripture, that alone is insufficient. We must not think we have done with a passage as soon as we have understood it. If we had understood it instantly, our principal work was to come yet ; and they are strangely wrong, who apply so closely to study difficult places, that they forget to make due reflections on the plain. The Word of God was written to give us not merely a speculative apprehension, but an experimental sense and feeling, of holy things, comfortable or terrifying as our spiritual state requires. Too many, alas, have no conception of this efficacy in Scripture : and no wonder, for they have never seriously endeavoured to have any. But let them try in earnest, and they will infallibly succeed, if they use proper means. We read of some, what will be true of all in the same condition, that the Word did not profit them, not being mixed with faith. God indeed can operate according to His own pleasure : but humanly speaking, persons will not be influenced by what they disbelieve ; and not much by what they believe but faintly. Nay, should they labour to make the strongest impressions on their own souls, without applying to Him, whose gift saving faith is, their efforts would be vain. But let any one jointly strive and pray for a deep conviction, that the Bible is the appointed instrument of His religious proficiency : then let him read it, not as performing a task, he knows not why, from which he had rather be excused ; not to outshine others in readiness of quotation, or plausibility of interpreting, or oppositions of science falsely so called ; not to furnish himself with weapons for debate and controversy, much less for uncharitableness and abuse ; but to amend his inward state towards God : that, as the excellent Collect in our Liturgy directs, by patience in well doing, and comfort in virtuous suffering, which we learn of His holy Word, we may embrace and ever hold fast the blessed hope of everlasting life. Let him accordingly stop on fit occasions and think : What consolation doth this passage administer to me ? What acknowledgements to Heaven doth this declaration require from me ? What fear for myself doth this threatening call for ? What duty doth this precept or pattern point out to me ? Of what sin doth it convince me ? Against what dangers doth it warn me ? Is my character and behaviour suitable to this command or exhortation, this description or good example ? or do I see myself here, under another’s name, reprov’d, condemn’d, stigmatized ? Have I acquired that sense of my own sinfulness and weakness, of God's holiness and justice, of my need of the merits of Christ, and the grace of the Divine Spirit, which the whole tenour of Scripture inculcates, or am I still inclined to stand or fall by my own righteousness? Faithful pains, taken for some time in such home questions, without forcing unnatural uses out of any text, but only dwelling on those that fairly present themselves, will make us experience a Divine virtue in the sacred writings, piercing first, and healing afterwards; which, provided we are not satisfied with being piously moved at the time, and then relapsing into what we were before, but continue the inquiry steadily, and carry on every feeling into practice, will assuredly transform us into what we ought to be. Possibly, indeed, we may not all at once or very soon receive a sensible benefit. But surely we have no title to be impatient under the hands of our heavenly Physician; perfect recovery will be at length the certain consequence of His treatment of us; and every single ingredient in the great remedy, His holy Word, and every direction for the use of it, will contribute its share to our cure. Let us therefore conscientiously observe all His commands, each in its due place, and let us entreat His blessing on our humble endeavours, that, receiving the seed of the Word into a good and honest heart, we may "bring forth fruit with patience." Abp. Secker.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION TO THE BIBLE.

IT may be proper to state, that the marginal references, printed in this Edition of the Bible, are the same which were originally furnished by the framers of the authorized Version. Other marginal references have been added in later times, and have been inserted in many editions of the Bible: but it has been deemed expedient to omit them in this Edition, inasmuch as they do not rest on the same authority, as the references of the Translators. Also, the summaries of the contents of each chapter, and the marginal readings and explanations, are those of the authorized Translators.

The chronological dates in the margin, as well as the Chronological Index at the end, were added by Dr. William Lloyd, who died Bishop of Worcester in 1717.

The unlearned reader may find it useful to be informed, that, wherever words occur in the text of the English Bible, printed in the Italick character, he is to understand that these words have none corresponding to them in the original Hebrew or Greek text, but that the sense is implied; and that the words are added in the English to complete, or make clearer, the sense.

LIST OF THE MAPS AND PLATES IN THE FAMILY BIBLE,

With Directions to the Binder for placing them.

MAPS.

I.	The world as known to the ancients, shewing the dispersion and settling of nations by the descendants of Noah,	At the beginning of Genesis.
II.	Mesopotamia, &c. adapted to the histories of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob,	At Gen. xii. 1.
III.	The journeyings and encampments of the Israelites in the wilderness,	To face Exod. xiii. 1.
IV.	Canaan, illustrating the books of Joshua and Judges,	At Joshua i.
V.	The dominions of David and Solomon,	To face 1 Kings iv. 21—24.
VI.	The kingdoms of Judah and Israel,	At 1 Kings xii. 1.
VII.	Palestine, illustrating the New Testament,	At the beginning of the New Testament.
VIII.	The places mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles, illustrating St. Paul's travels,	At the beginning of the Acts.

PLATES.

	By whom Painted.
1 Adam and Eve driven out of Paradise,	Raphael d'Urbino,	Gen. iii. 24.
2 Abel murdered by his brother Cain,	Vanderwerf,	— iv. 8.
3 Noah's sacrifice,	Nicholas Poussin,	— viii. 20.
4 Abraham offering up Isaac,	Theodore Rombouts,	— xxii. 9.
5 Joseph sold by his brethren,	Silvio Manaigo,	— xxxvii. 28.
6 The finding of Moses,	Nicholas Poussin,	Exod. ii. 6.
7 The passage of the Red sea,	Nicholas Poussin,	Exod. xiv. 27.
8 The striking of the rock,	Nicholas Poussin,	— xvii. 6.
9 The tabernacle of the wilderness, altar of burnt offerings, &c.		— xxv. 10, &c.
10 The table of shewbread, the altar of incense, &c.		— xxviii. 4.
11 The high-priest in his robes,	Raphael d'Urbino,	— xxxiv. 29.
12 The delivery of the Law,	Lebrun,	Numb. xxi. 8.
13 The brazen serpent,	W. Hamilton,	Judg. xiii. 19.
14 Manoah's sacrifice,	J. S. Copley,	1 Sam. iii. 18.
15 Samuel telling his vision to Eli,	Carlo Maratti,	— xvii. 54.
16 David with the head of Goliath,	A. Coypel,	1 Kings iii. 16.
17 The judgment of Solomon,		— vi.
18 Plan of the temple of Solomon,	J. Northcote,	— xiii. 28.
19 The disobedient Prophet,	Benjamin West,	2 Kings iv. 37.
20 Elisha raising the Shunammite's son,		Ezra iii. 12.
21 The rebuilding of the temple,	Vandyke,	Isaiah vii. 14.
22 Immanuel,		— liii. 3.
23 The man of sorrows,	Benjamin West,	Daniel v. 25.
24 Daniel interpreting the writing on the wall,	Guido,	Malachi iii. 1.
25 The messenger of Christ,	Agostino Caracci,	Tobit xi.
26 Tobias anoints his father's eyes,	Raphael,	2 Mace. iii. 25.
27 Heliodorus stricken in the temple,		At the beginning of the New Test.
28 Jerusalem with the neighbouring country,	Nicholas Poussin,	Matt. ii. 16.
29 The murder of the innocents,	Salvator Rosa,	— iii. 1.
30 John the Baptist preaching in the wilderness,	Schiavoni,	— xxi. 7.
31 Christ's entry into Jerusalem,	Lebrun,	— xxvii. 50.
32 The crucifixion,	Annibal Caracci,	— xxviii. 6.
33 The angel declaring that the Lord is risen,	Benjamin West,	Mark x. 13.
34 Young children brought to Christ,	Raphael,	— xiv. 18.
35 The last supper,	Raphael Mengs,	— xvi. 9.
36 Christ appearing to Mary Magdalene,	Peter Mignard,	Luke i. 41.
37 The salutation of Mary and Elizabeth,	Sir Joshua Reynolds,	— ii. 16.
38 The adoration of the shepherds,	Raphael,	— v. 8.
39 The miraculous draught of fishes,	Le Sueur,	— x. 38.
40 Martha and Mary before Christ,	P. P. Rubens,	— xi. 44.
41 The raising of Lazarus,	Coreggio,	— xxii. 41.
42 Christ's agony in the garden,	Annibal Caracci,	— xxiii. 55.
43 The women from Galilee weeping over the body of Christ,	Titian,	— xxiv. 30.
44 Jesus with the two disciples at Emmaus,	Annibal Caracci,	John iv. 7.
45 Christ discoursing with the woman of Samaria,	J. Restout,	— v. 2.
46 Christ at the pool of Bethesda,	Agostino Caracci,	— viii. 3.
47 The woman taken in adultery,	Daniel de Volterra,	— xix. 38.
48 The body of Christ taken from the cross,		Acts i. 9.
49 The Ascension,
50 St. Peter and St. John healing the lame man at the beautiful gate of the temple,	Raphael,	— iii. 7.
51 Death of Ananias,	Raphael,	— v. 5.
52 Elymas the Sorcerer struck blind,	Raphael,	— xiii. 11.
53 St. Paul and St. Barnabas at Lystra,	Raphael,	— xiv. 13.
54 St. Paul preaching at Athens,	Raphael,	— xvii. 22.
55 St. Paul shaking the viper from his hand,	Sir James Thornhill,	— xxviii. 5.
56 The institution of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper,	Carlo Dolce,	1 Cor. xi. 23.

INTRODUCTION

TO THE

OLD TESTAMENT.

THE Old Testament contains those sacred books which were composed, previously to the birth of our Saviour, by the successive Prophets and inspired writers, whom it pleased God to raise up from time to time, through a period of more than a thousand years. These books are written in Hebrew, and they are the only writings now extant in that language. The Old Testament, according to our Bibles, consists of thirty-nine books; but among the Jews they formed only twenty-two, which was also the number of letters in their alphabet. They divided these twenty-two books into three classes: the first class consisted of five books, namely, Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy, which they called the Law: the second class consisted of thirteen books, namely, Joshua, Judges and Ruth in one book, the two books of Samuel, of Kings, and of Chronicles, respectively, in single books, Ezra and Nehemiah in one book, Esther, Job, Isaiah, the two books of Jeremiah in one, Ezekiel, Daniel, and the twelve Minor Prophets in one book; these thirteen books they called the Prophets: the third class consisted of the four remaining books, namely, Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Solomon, which four books the Jews call Chetubim, and the Greeks Hagiographa; this class was also called the Psalms from the name of the first book in it. This threefold division was naturally suggested by the books themselves; it was used merely for convenience, and did not proceed from any opinion of difference in the authority of the books of the several classes. In like manner, the Minor Prophets were so called, from the brevity of their works, and not from any supposed inferiority to the other Prophets. The books are not, in all instances, arranged in our Bibles according to the order of time in which they were written; but the book of Genesis was the earliest composition contained in the sacred volume, except, as some think, the book of Job; and the book of Malachi was certainly the latest book of the Old Testament.

The five first books of the Bible, generally known by the name of the Pentateuch, are frequently cited both in the Old and the New Testament under the name of the Law. It appears from Deuteronomy, (ch. xxxi. 26,) that the book of the Law, that is, the whole Pentateuch, written by the hand of Moses, was, by his command, deposited in the tabernacle, not long before his death. It was kept there not only while the Israelites remained in the wilderness, but afterwards, when they were settled in the land of Canaan. To the same sanctuary were consigned, as they were successively produced, the other sacred books, which were written before the building of the temple at Jerusalem. And when Solomon had finished the temple, he directed that these books should be removed into it; and also, that the future compositions of inspired men should be secured in the same holy place. We may therefore conclude, that the respective works of Jonah, Amos, Hosea, Joel, Micah, Nahum, Zephaniah, Jeremiah, Habakkuk, and Obadiah, all of whom flourished before the Babylonian captivity, were regularly deposited in the temple. Whether these manuscripts perished in the flames, when the temple was burnt by Nebuchadnezzar, we are not informed. But as the burning of the Scriptures is not lamented by any of the contemporary or succeeding Prophets, and as the other treasures of the temple were preserved and set apart as sacred by Nebuchadnezzar, it is probable that these original manuscripts also were saved; and more especially, as it does not appear that Nebuchadnezzar had any particular enmity against the religion of the Jews. If however the original books were destroyed with the temple, it is certain that there were at that time numerous copies of them; and we cannot doubt but some of them were carried by the Jews to Babylon, and that others were left in Judea. The Holy Scriptures were too much revered, and too much dispersed, to make it credible that all the copies were lost or destroyed; and indeed we find Daniel, when in captivity, (ch. ix. 11, 13,) referring to the book of the Law as then existing; and soon after the captivity, (Neh. viii.) Ezra not only read and explained the Law to the people, but he restored the publick worship and the sacrifices according to the Mosaic ritual; and therefore there must have been, at that time, at least a correct copy of the Law; for it is impossible to believe that he would have attempted the reestablishment of a church, in which the most minute observance of the rites and ceremonies prescribed by Moses was not only absolutely necessary for the acceptable performance of Divine worship, but the slightest deviation from which was considered as sacrilege or abomination, unless he had been in actual possession either of the original manuscript of the Law, or of a copy so well authenticated as to leave no doubt of its accuracy in the minds of the people.

There is an uncontradicted tradition in the Jewish church, that about fifty years after the temple was rebuilt, Ezra, in conjunction with the great synagogue, made a collection of the sacred writings, which had been increased, since the Jews were carried into captivity, by the Lamentations of Jeremiah, and the Prophecies of Ezekiel, of Daniel, Haggai, and Zechariah; and as Ezra was himself inspired, we may rest assured, that whatever received his sanction, was authentick. To this genuine collection, which, according to former custom, was placed in the temple, were afterwards annexed the sacred compositions of Ezra himself, as well as those of Nehemiah and Malachi, which were written after the death of Ezra. This addition, which was probably made by Simon the Just, the last of the great synagogue, completed the Canon of the Old Testament; for after

INTRODUCTION TO THE OLD TESTAMENT.

Malachi no Prophet arose till the time of John the Baptist, who, as it were, connected the two covenants, and of whom Malachi foretold, (ch. iv. 5,) that he should precede "the great day of the Lord," that is, the coming of the Messiah. It cannot now be ascertained, whether Ezra's copy of the Scriptures was destroyed by Antiochus Epiphanes, when he pillaged the temple; nor is it material, since we know that Judas Maccabeus repaired the temple, and replaced every thing requisite for the performance of Divine worship, which included a correct, if not Ezra's own, copy of the Scriptures. This copy, whether Ezra's or not, remained in the temple till Jerusalem was taken by Titus, and it was then carried in triumph to Rome, and laid up with the purple vail in the royal palace of Vespasian.

Thus, while the Jewish polity continued, and nearly 500 years after the time of Ezra, a complete and faultless copy of the Hebrew canon was kept in the temple at Jerusalem, with which all others might be compared. And it ought to be observed, that although Christ frequently reprov'd the rulers and teachers of the Jews for their erroneous and false doctrines, yet he never accused them of any corruption in their written Law, or other sacred books: and St. Paul reckons among the privileges of the Jews, "that unto them were committed the oracles of God," (Rom. iii. 2,) without insinuating that they had been unfaithful to their trust. After the final destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, there was no established standard of the Hebrew Scriptures; but from that time, the dispersion of the Jews into all countries, and the numerous converts to Christianity, became a double security for the preservation of a volume held equally sacred by Jews and Christians, and to which both constantly referred as to the written word of God. They differed in the interpretation of these books, but never disputed the validity of the text in any material point.

The books of the Old Testament have been always allowed, in every age and by every sect of the Hebrew church, to be the genuine works of those persons to whom they are usually ascribed; and they have also been, universally and exclusively, without any addition or exception, considered by the Jews as written under the immediate influence of the Divine Spirit. Those who were contemporaries with the respective writers of these books, had the clearest evidence, that they acted and spoke by the authority of God Himself; and this testimony transmitted to all succeeding ages, was in many cases strengthened and confirmed by the gradual fulfilment of predictions contained in their writings. "We have not," says Josephus, "myriads of books which differ from each other, but only twenty-two books, which comprehend the history of all past time, and are justly believed to be Divine. And of these, five are the works of Moses; which contained the laws, and an account of things from the creation of man to the death of Moses: this period falls but little short of 3000 years. And from the death of Moses to the reign of Artaxerxes, who succeeded Xerxes as king of Persia, the Prophets after Moses wrote the transactions of their own times in thirteen books; and the four remaining books contain hymns to God, and precepts for the conduct of human life. And from Artaxerxes to the present time there is a continuation of writings, but they are not thought deserving of the same credit, because there was not a clear succession of Prophets. But what confidence we have in our own writings is manifest from hence; that after so long a lapse of time no one has dared to add to them, or to diminish from them, or to alter any thing in them; for it is implanted in the nature of all Jews, immediately from their birth, to consider these books as the oracles of God, to adhere to them, and if occasion should require, cheerfully to die for their sake." The Jews of the present day, dispersed all over the world, demonstrate the sincerity of their belief in the authenticity of the Scriptures, by their inflexible adherence to the Law, and by the anxious expectation with which they wait for the accomplishment of the prophecies. "Blindness has happened to them" only "in part," Rom. xi. 25; and the constancy, with which they have endured persecution, and suffered hardships, rather than renounce the commands of their lawgiver, fully proves their firm conviction that these books were divinely inspired, and that they remain uninjured by time and transcription. Handed down, untainted by suspicion, from Moses to the present generation, they are naturally objects of their unshaken confidence and attachment—but suppose the case reversed—destroy the grounds of their faith, by admitting the possibility of the corruption of their Scriptures, and their whole history becomes utterly inexplicable. "A book of this nature," says Dr. Jenkin, speaking of the Bible, "which is so much the ancientest in the world, being constantly received as a Divine revelation, carries great evidence with it that it is authentick: for the first revelation is to be the criterion of all that follow; and God would not suffer the ancientest book of Religion in the world to pass all along under the notion and title of a revelation, without causing some discovery to be made of the imposture, if there were any in it; much less would He preserve it by a particular and signal providence for so many ages. It is a great argument for the truth of the Scriptures, that they have stood the test, and received the approbation, of so many ages, and still retain their authority, though so many ill men in all ages have made it their endeavour to disprove them; but it is a still farther evidence in behalf of them, that God has been pleased to shew so remarkable a providence in their preservation."

But the most decisive proof of the authenticity and inspiration of the ancient Scriptures is derived from the New Testament. The Saviour of the world Himself, even He who came expressly from the Father of truth "to bear witness to the truth," in the last instructions which He gave to His Apostles just before His ascension, said, "These are the words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses, and in the Prophets, and in the Psalms, concerning Me," Luke xxiv. 44. Our Lord, by thus adopting the common division of the Law, the Prophets, and the Psalms, which comprehended all the Hebrew Scriptures, ratified the Canon of the Old Testament as it was received by the Jews; and by declaring that those books contained prophecies which must be fulfilled, He established their Divine inspiration, since God alone can enable men to foretell future events. At another time Christ told the Jews, that they made "the word of God of none effect through their traditions," Mark vii. 13. By thus calling the written rules which the Jews had received for the conduct of their lives, "the word of God," He declared that the Hebrew Scriptures proceeded from God Himself. Upon many other occasions Christ referred to the ancient Scriptures as books of Divine authority; and both He and His Apostles constantly endeavoured to prove that Jesus was the Messiah foretold in the writings of the Prophets. St. Paul bears strong testimony to the Divine authority of the Jewish Scriptures, when he says to Timothy, 2 Tim. iii. 15, "From a child thou hast known the holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation, through faith, which is in Christ Jesus." This passage incontestably proves the importance of the ancient Scriptures, and the connexion between the Mosaic and Christian dispensations:—and in the next verse the Apostle expressly declares the inspiration of Scripture; "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God." To the same effect St. Luke says, ch. i. 70, that "God spake by the mouth of His holy Prophets." And St. Peter tells us, that "prophecy came not in old time by the will of man ; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost," 2 Pet. i. 21. In addition to these passages, which refer to the ancient Scriptures collectively, we may observe, that there is scarcely a book in the Old Testament, which is not repeatedly quoted in the New, as of Divine authority.

INTRODUCTION TO THE OLD TESTAMENT.

When it is said that Scripture is divinely inspired, it is not to be understood that God suggested every word, or dictated every expression. It appears from the different style in which the books are written, and from the different manner in which the same events are related and predicted by different authors, that the sacred penmen were permitted to write as their several tempers, understandings, and habits of life, directed ; and that the knowledge communicated to them by inspiration upon the subject of their writings, was applied in the same manner as any knowledge acquired by ordinary means. Nor is it to be supposed that they were even thus inspired in every fact which they related, or in every precept which they delivered. They were left to the common use of their faculties, and did not upon every occasion stand in need of supernatural communication ; but whenever, and as far as, Divine assistance was necessary, it was always afforded. In different parts of Scripture we perceive that there were different sorts and degrees of inspiration : God enabled Moses to give an account of the creation of the world ; He enabled Joshua to record with exactness the settlement of the Israelites in the land of Canaan ; He enabled David to mingle prophetick information with the varied effusions of gratitude, contrition, and piety ; He enabled Solomon to deliver wise instructions for the regulation of human life ; He enabled Isaiah to deliver predictions concerning the future Saviour of mankind, and Ezra to collect the sacred Scriptures into one authentick volume ; "but all these worketh that one and the self-same Spirit, dividing to every man severally as He will," 1 Cor. xii. 11. In some cases inspiration only produced correctness and accuracy in relating past occurrences, or in reciting the words of others ; in other cases it communicated ideas not only new and unknown before, but infinitely beyond the reach of unassisted human intellect ; and sometimes inspired Prophets delivered predictions for the use of future ages, which they did not themselves comprehend, and which cannot be fully understood till they are accomplished. But whatever distinctions we may make with respect to the sorts, degrees, or modes of inspiration, we may rest assured that there is one property which belongs to every inspired writing, namely, that it is free from error, I mean material error ; and this property must be considered as extending to the whole of each of those writings, of which a part only is inspired ; for we cannot suppose that God would suffer any such errors, as might tend to mislead our faith or pervert our practice, to be mixed with those truths, which He Himself has mercifully revealed to His rational creatures as the means of their eternal salvation. In this restricted sense it may be asserted, that the sacred writers always wrote under the influence, or guidance, or care of the Holy Spirit, which sufficiently establishes the truth and Divine authority of all Scripture.

These observations relative to the nature of inspiration, are particularly applicable to the historical books of the Old Testament. That the authors of these books were occasionally inspired is certain, since they frequently display an acquaintance with the counsels and designs of God, and often reveal His future dispensations in the clearest predictions. But though it is evident that the sacred historians sometimes wrote under the immediate operation of the Holy Spirit, it does not follow that they derived from revelation the knowledge of those things, which might be collected from the common sources of human intelligence. It is sufficient to believe, that by the general superintendence of the Holy Spirit, they were directed in the choice of their materials, enlightened to judge of the truth and importance of those accounts from which they borrowed their information, and prevented from registering any material error. The historical books appear, indeed, from internal evidence, to have been chiefly written by persons contemporary with the periods to which they relate ; who, in their description of characters and events, many of which they witnessed, uniformly exhibit a strict sincerity of intention, and an unexampled impartiality. Some of these books, however, were compiled in subsequent times from the sacred annals mentioned in Scripture as written by Prophets or seers, and from those publick records, and other authentick documents, which, though written by uninspired men, were held in high estimation, and preserved with great care by persons specially appointed as keepers of the genealogies and publick archives of the Jewish nation. To such well known chronicles we find the sacred writers not unfrequently referring for a more minute detail of those circumstances which they omit as inconsistent with their design. For "these books," says Dr. Gray, "are to be considered as the histories of revelations, as commentaries upon the prophecies, and as affording a lively sketch of the economy of God's government of His selected people. They were not designed as national annals, to record every minute particular and political event that occurred ; but they are rather a compendious selection of such remarkable occurrences and operations as were best calculated to illustrate the religion of the Hebrew nation ; to set before that perverse and ungrateful people an abstract of God's proceedings, of their interests and duties ; as also to furnish posterity with an instructive picture of the Divine attributes, and with a model of that dispensation on which a nobler and more spiritual government was to be erected ; and moreover, to place before mankind the melancholy proofs of that corruption, which had been entailed upon them, and to exhibit in the depravity of a nation highly favoured, miraculously governed, and instructed by inspired teachers, the necessity of that redemption and renewal of righteousness, which was so early and so repeatedly promised by the Prophets. It seems probable, therefore, that the books of Kings and Chronicles do not contain a complete compilation of the entire works of each contemporary Prophet, but are rather an abridgment of their several labours, and of other authentick publick writings, digested by Ezra after the captivity, with an intention to display the sacred history under one point of view ; and hence it is that they contain some expressions, which evidently result from contemporary description, and others which as clearly argue them to have been composed long after the occurrences which they relate."

Since then we are taught to consider the Divine assistance as ever proportioned to the real wants of men ; and since it must be granted that their natural faculties, though wholly incompetent to the prediction of future events, are adequate to the relation of such past occurrences as have fallen within the sphere of their own observation, we may infer that the historical books are not written with the same uniform inspiration, which illumines every page of the prophetick writings. But at the same time we are to believe that God vouchsafed to guard these registers of His judgments and His mercies from all important mistakes ; and to impart, by supernatural means, as much information and assistance to those who composed them, as was requisite for the accomplishment of the great designs of His providence. In the ancient Hebrew Canon they were placed, as has been already observed, in the class of prophetical books ; they are cited as such by the evangelical writers ; and it must surely be considered as a strong testimony to the constant opinion of the Jews respecting the inspiration of these books, that they have never dared to annex any historical narrative to them since the death of Malachi. They closed the sacred volume when the succession of Prophets ceased.

INTRODUCTION TO THE OLD TESTAMENT.

If it be asked by what rule we are to distinguish the inspired from the uninspired parts of these books, it is to be answered, that no general rule can be prescribed for that purpose. Nor is it necessary that we should be able to make any such discrimination. It is enough for us to know, that every writer of the Old Testament was inspired, and that the whole of the history it contains, without any exception or reserve, is true. These points being ascertained and allowed, it is of very little consequence, whether the knowledge of a particular fact was obtained by any of the ordinary modes of information, or whether it was communicated by immediate revelation from God; whether any particular passage was written by the natural powers of the historian, or whether it was written by the positive suggestion of the Holy Spirit.

We may in like manner suppose, that some of the precepts, delivered in the books called Hagiographa, were written without any supernatural assistance, though it is evident that others of them exceed the limits of human wisdom; and it would be equally impossible, as in the historical Scriptures, to ascertain the character of particular passages which might be proposed. But here again a discrimination would be entirely useless. The books themselves furnish sufficient proofs that the writers of them were occasionally inspired; and we know also, that they were frequently quoted, particularly the Psalms, as prophetic, by our Saviour and His Apostles, in support of the religion which they preached. Hence we are under an indispensable obligation to admit the Divine authority of the whole of these books, which have the same claim to our faith and obedience, as if they had been written under the influence of a constant and universal inspiration.

But whatever uncertainty there may be concerning the direct inspiration of any historical narrative, or of any moral precept, contained in the Old Testament, we must be fully convinced that all its prophetic parts proceeded from God. This is continually affirmed by the Prophets themselves, and is demonstrated by the indubitable testimony which history bears to the accurate fulfilment of many of these predictions; others are gradually receiving their accomplishment in the times in which we live, and afford the surest pledge and most positive security for the completion of those which remain to be fulfilled. The past, the present, and the future, have a connected reference to one great plan, which Infinite Wisdom, Prescience, and Power, could alone form, reveal, and execute. Every succeeding age throws an increasing light upon these sacred writings, and contributes additional evidence to their Divine origin. Bp. Tomline.

TO THE MOST HIGH AND MIGHTY PRINCE

J A M E S,

BY THE GRACE OF GOD, KING OF GREAT BRITAIN, FRANCE, AND IRELAND, DEFENDER OF THE FAITH, &c.

THE TRANSLATORS OF THE BIBLE WISH GRACE, MERCY, AND PEACE, THROUGH JESUS CHRIST OUR LORD.

GREAT and manifold were the blessings, most dread Sovereign, which Almighty God, the Father of all mercies, bestowed upon us the people of England, when first he sent Your Majesty's Royal Person to rule and reign over us. For whereas it was the expectation of many, who wished not well unto our Sion, that upon the setting of that bright Occidental Star, Queen Elizabeth of most happy memory, some thick and palpable clouds of darkness would so have overshadowed this Land, that men should have been in doubt which way they were to walk; and that it should hardly be known, who was to direct the unsettled State; the appearance of Your Majesty, as of the Sun in his strength, instantly dispelled those supposed and surmised mists, and gave unto all that were well affected exceeding cause of comfort; especially when we beheld the Government established in Your Highness, and Your hopeful Seed, by an undoubted Title, and this also accompanied with peace and tranquillity at home and abroad.

But among all our joys, there was no one that more filled our hearts, than the blessed continuance of the preaching of God's sacred Word among us; which is that inestimable treasure, which excelleth all the riches of the earth; because the fruit thereof extendeth itself, not only to the time spent in this transitory world, but directeth and disposeth men unto that eternal happiness which is above in heaven.

Then not to suffer this to fall to the ground, but rather to take it up, and to continue it in that state, wherein the famous Predecessor of Your Highness did leave it: nay, to go forward with the confidence and resolution of a Man in maintaining the truth of Christ, and propagating it far and near, is that which hath so bound and firmly knit the hearts of all Your Majesty's loyal and religious people unto You, that Your very name is precious among them: their eye doth behold You with comfort, and they bless You in their hearts, as that sanctified Person, who, under God, is the immediate Author of their true happiness. And this their contentment doth not diminish or decay, but every day increaseth and taketh strength, when they observe, that the zeal of Your Majesty toward the house of God doth not slack or go backward, but is more and more kindled, manifesting itself abroad in the farthest parts of Christendom, by writing in defence of the Truth, (which hath given such a blow unto that man of sin, as will not be healed,) and every day at home, by religious and learned discourse, by frequenting the house of God, by hearing the Word preached, by cherishing the Teachers thereof, by caring for the Church, as a most tender and loving nursing Father.

There are infinite arguments of this right christian and religious affection in Your Majesty; but none is more forcible to declare it to others than the vehement and perpetuated desire of accomplishing and publishing of this work, which now with all humility we present unto Your Majesty. For when Your Highness had once out of deep judgment apprehended how convenient it was, that out of the Original Sacred Tongues, together with comparing of the labours, both in our own, and other foreign Languages, of many worthy men who went before us, there should be one more exact Translation of the holy Scriptures into the English Tongue; Your Majesty did never desist to urge and to excite those to whom it was commended, that the work might be hastened, and that the business might be expedited in so decent a manner, as a matter of such importance might justly require.

And now at last, by the mercy of God, and the continuance of our labours, it being brought unto such a conclusion, as that we have great hopes that the Church of England shall reap good fruit thereby; we hold it our duty to offer it to Your Majesty, not only as to our King and Sovereign, but as to the principal Mover and Author of the work: humbly craving of Your most Sacred Majesty, that since things of this quality have ever been subject to the censures of illmeaning and discontented persons, it may receive approbation and patronage from so learned and judicious a Prince as Your Highness is, whose allowance and acceptance of our labours shall more honour and encourage us, than all the calumniations and hard interpretations of other men shall dismay us. So that if, on the one side, we shall be traduced by Popish Persons at home or abroad, who therefore will malign us, because we are poor instruments to make God's holy truth to be yet more and more known unto the people, whom they desire still to keep in ignorance and darkness; or if, on the other side, we shall be maligned by selfconceited Brethren, who run their own ways, and give liking unto nothing, but what is framed by themselves, and hammered on their anvil; we may rest secure, supported within by the truth and innocency of a good conscience, having walked the ways of simplicity and integrity, as before the Lord; and sustained without by the powerful protection of Your Majesty's grace and favour, which will ever give countenance to honest and christian endeavours against bitter censures and uncharitable imputations.

The Lord of heaven and earth bless Your Majesty with many and happy days, that, as his heavenly hand hath enriched Your Highness with many singular and extraordinary graces, so you may be the wonder of the world in this latter age for happiness and true felicity, to the honour of that great GOD, and the good of his Church, through Jesus Christ our Lord and only Saviour.

THE NAMES AND ORDER

OF ALL THE

BOOKS OF THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENT,

WITH THE NUMBER OF THEIR CHAPTERS.

THE BOOKS OF THE OLD TESTAMENT.

G ENESIS hath Chapters	50	II. CHRONICLES	36	DANIEL	12
EXODUS	40	EZRA	10	HOSEA	14
LEVITICUS	27	NEHEMIAH	13	JOEL	3
NUMBERS	36	ESTHER	10	AMOS	9
DEUTERONOMY	34	JOB	42	OBADIAH	1
JOSHUA	24	PSALMS	150	JONAH	4
JUDGES	21	PROVERBS	31	MICAH	7
RUTH	4	ECCLESIASTES	12	NAHUM	3
I. SAMUEL	31	THE SONG OF SOLOMON	8	HABAKKUK	3
II. SAMUEL	24	ISAIAH	66	ZEPHANIAH	3
I. KINGS	22	JEREMIAH	52	HAGGAI	2
II. KINGS	25	LAMENTATIONS	5	ZECHARIAH	14
I. CHRONICLES	29	EZEKIEL	48	MALACHI	4

THE BOOKS CALLED APOCRYPHA.

I ESDRAS hath Chapters	9	WISDOM	19	THE STORY OF SUSANNA.
II. ESDRAS	16	ECCLESIASTICUS	51	THE IDOL BEL, AND THE DRAGON.
TOBIT	14	BARUCH, WITH THE EPISTLE OF		THE PRAYER OF MANASSES.
JUDITH	16	JEREMIAH	6	I. MACCABEES	16
THE BEST OF ESTHER	6	THE SONG OF THE THREE CHILDREN.		II. MACCABEES	15

THE BOOKS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.

M ATTHEW hath Chapters	28	EPHESIANS	6	TO THE HEBREWS	13
MARK	16	PHILIPPIANS	4	THE EPISTLE OF JAMES	5
LUKE	24	COLOSSIANS	4	I. PETER	5
JOHN	21	I. THESSALONIANS	5	II. PETER	3
THE ACTS	28	II. THESSALONIANS	3	I. JOHN	5
THE EPISTLE TO THE ROMANS	16	I. TIMOTHY	6	II. JOHN	1
I. CORINTHIANS	16	II. TIMOTHY	4	III. JOHN	1
II. CORINTHIANS	13	TITUS	3	JUDE	1
GALATIANS	6	PHILEMON	1	REVELATION	22

THE WORLD
As known to the Ancients Shewing the Dispersion & Settling of NATIONS by the DESCENDANTS of NOAH

Longitude East 30 from London.

THE FIRST BOOK OF MOSES,

CALLED

GENESIS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE first five Books of the Bible, commonly called the Pentateuch, were composed by Moses, as the concurrent testimonies of all ages declare; and as hath ever been firmly believed by the Jews, with whom the fact continues to this day to be one of the thirteen articles of their creed. The word "Pentateuch" is of Greek original; being compounded of two words, signifying five, and book, or volume. It was probably first prefixed to the Greek version of the "Septuagint," or seventy translators; to denote Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy: all of which had been written by the hand of Moses in Hebrew, probably in the order in which they now stand, though not distributed by their author into books, but forming one continued work.

The first book is usually entitled Genesis, from a Greek word, which signifies generation; and is so called, because it contains the history of the Creation of the World, and the genealogy of the Patriarchs.

Moses was assisted by the Holy Spirit in the composition of this important work, which forms a proper introduction to the laws and judgments delivered in the subsequent books. The description, which he gives in it, of the Creation, as relating to circumstances before the existence of mankind, could be derived only from immediate revelation. As to subsequent events, the Israelites must have been able to judge by tradition how far the account of Moses was consistent with truth. For that tradition was conveyed from Adam to Moses through seven intermediate persons; namely, Methuselah, Noah, Shem, Abraham, Isaac, Joseph, and Amram, the father of Moses. The sacred character of the book is established by the internal evidence of its inspiration; by the revealed history of the Creation of the World; by the several predictions, afterwards fully accomplished; and lastly by the testimony of our Saviour and His Apostles, who have cited from it in the New Testament, at least twenty-seven passages, word for word, and thirty-eight according to the sense.

This book comprehends a period of 2369 years, or thereabouts. It begins with the history of the Creation of the World in six days, and contains also an account of the disobedience and punishment of Adam and Eve; the increase of mankind; the progress of wickedness; the general destruction of the human race by the deluge, except Noah and his family, who were miraculously preserved in the ark; the promise of God, that the world should no more be destroyed by a flood; the confusion of tongues, and the dispersion of the descendants of Noah; the call of Abraham, and the covenant of God with him; the repetition of that covenant with Isaac and Jacob; the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah; the history of Joseph; and the settlement of the Israelites in Egypt. This is the oldest book in the world. And it is remarkable, that the books which come nearest to it in age are those which make either the most distinct mention of, or the most evident allusion to, the facts related in Genesis concerning the formation of the world from a chaotic mass, the primeval innocence and subsequent fall of man, the longevity of mankind in the first ages of the world, the depravity of the antediluvians, and the destruction of the world by a deluge. Dr. Gray, Bp. Tomline, Gisborne, Bp. Watson.

CHAP. I.

Before
CHRIST
4004.

1 The creation of heaven and earth, 3 of the light, 6 of the firmament, 9 of the earth separated from the waters, 11 and made fruitful, 14 of the sun, moon, and stars, 20 of fish and fowl, 24 of beasts and cattle, 26 of man in the image of God. 29 Also the appointment of food.

^a Psal. 33.
6. & 136. 5.
Acts 14. 15.
& 17. 24.
Heb. 11. 3.

IN the ^a beginning God created the heaven and the earth.

2 And the earth was without form and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

3 And God said, ^bLet there be light: and there was light. ^b 2 Cor. 4. 6.

4 And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided [†]the light from the darkness.

5 And God called the light Day, and the

Before
CHRIST
4001.

[†] Heb. between the light and between the darkness.

Chap. I. ver. 1. In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.] In the beginning of time, God, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, made, of nothing, the whole great and goodly frame of the world; both the heaven and the earth, and the other elements, with all the furniture and inhabitants of them all. Bp. Hall.

Moses, the divine lawgiver, designing to hang the whole frame of his polity upon piety towards God and to make the Creator of all the founder of his laws, begins with Him. As if he had told the Hebrew nation, that He, who gave them the law contained in these books, was the King and Lawgiver of the whole world, which was, like a great city, governed by Him: whom therefore he would have them regard, as the Enactor, not only of their laws, but of those also which all nature obeys. Bp. Patrick.

Moses, though divinely inspired, does not go about to prove that there is a God: he justly supposes, that whoever considers

Before
CHRIST
4001.

† Heb.
And the evening was, and the morning was, &c.
* Ps. 136. 5.
Jer. 10. 12.
& 51. 15.
† Heb. expansion.
* Jer. 51.
15.

* Psal. 33.
7. & 136. 6.
Job 38. 8.

darkness he called Night. † And the evening and the morning were the first day.

6 ¶ And God said, 'Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters.

7 And God made the firmament, and divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament: and it was so.

8 And God called the firmament Heaven. And the evening and the morning were the second day.

9 ¶ And God said, 'Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so.

10 And God called the dry land Earth; and the gathering together of the waters called he Seas: and God saw that it was good.

11 And God said, Let the earth bring forth † grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth: and it was so.

12 And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

13 And the evening and the morning were the third day.

14 ¶ And God said, Let there be lights in the firmament of the heaven to divide

Before
CHRIST
4001.

† Heb. tender grass.

* Deut. 4.
19.
Psal. 136. 7.

the works of creation must be convinced, that a Being of infinite perfections, wisdom, and power, whom we call God, was the Creator of all things. Bp. Wilson.

— God created. The Hebrew word Elohim, which is here, and generally throughout the Old Testament, rendered "God," is a plural substantive, and yet is here and elsewhere joined to a singular verb. By which sort of expression it is very reasonably supposed, that the inspired writer designed to intimate the Trinity of Persons in the Unity of the Godhead: namely, as the plural noun denotes the plurality of persons, so the singular verb joined to it denotes the unity of the Godhead. Dr. Wells. See note on ver. 26.

— the heaven and the earth. Or the world: in the scripture-phrase "the heaven and earth" are used to express what is otherwise called the world or universe. Bp. Kidder.

The ancient Hebrews seem to have had no word in use among them, which singly of itself signified the world; and therefore they used in conjunction the "heaven and earth," as the grand extremities, within which all things are contained. Bp. Pearson.

2. And the earth was without form and void; A confused indigested heap, without any order or shape. Having no beasts, nor trees, nor herbs, nor any thing else, with which we now see it adorned. Bp. Patrick.

— and darkness was upon the face of the deep. Nothing was to be seen for want of light; which lay buried, as all things else did in that great abyss, or vast confused heap of matter, before mentioned. Bp. Patrick.

— the Spirit of God. The third Person in the blessed Trinity. Dr. Wells.

— the Spirit of God moved &c. That is, the Divine Spirit, by moving on the waters, operated toward the order and ornament of what was confused before. Bp. Kidder.

The word we here translate moved, signifies literally brooded upon the waters, as a hen doth upon her eggs. Bp. Patrick.

The word seems used to express that act of the Holy Spirit, by which He imparted motion, activity, and life to the particles of matter, lying yet in a mixed and shapeless heap. Dr. Wells.

3. And God said, Wherever in the history of the creation we read these words, He said, the meaning must be understood to be, He willed. Bp. Patrick. For this is the admirable power of God, that with Him to will is to effect, to determine is to perform. Bp. Pearson.

— Let there be light: Not of the sun or stars, which were not yet created; but a common brightness only, to distinguish the time, and to remedy the former confused darkness. Bp. Hall.

4. And God saw the light, that it was good: He approved it, as agreeable to His design and accommodated to the use of the world. Bp. Kidder.

— and God divided the light from the darkness. Appointed that they should constantly succeed one another. Bp. Patrick.

5. — And the evening and the morning were the first day. By the evening is here denoted one whole course of darkness; and by the morning, the next following whole course of light. The evening is mentioned before the morning, probably because the darkness was before the light, according to the history of the creation. Dr. Wells. Hence the natural day of the Jews began in the evening. Levit. xxiii. 32. Bp. Kidder.

Instead of making all things at once, it is probable that God was pleased to divide His work into six days, partly to give us occasion for considering His works with more attention and seriousness; and partly to lay the foundation for the weekly sabbath. Stackhouse.

6. And God said, Let there be a firmament &c. Then God willed that there should be a large, clear, airy distance, betwixt those upper waters, which are gathered into clouds, and these below. Bp. Hall.

The Greek version has given us a word, which has produced in our translation the corresponding word firmament. But this term by no means furnishes us with the true idea of the original word, which is derived from a verb, signifying, to spread abroad, expand, enlarge, make thin, &c. The proper rendering then is, the expansion: as it is said in other parts of Scripture; "Who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain!" "That stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain, and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in," Psal. civ. 2; Isai. xl. 22. Bp. Horne.

7. — divided the waters &c. Under the firmament; namely, in the seas and rivers, &c. Above the firmament; namely, in the clouds, which are said therefore to cover the heaven, (Ps. cxlvii. 8; compare Prov. viii. 28.) that is, the air or lower heaven. Compare 2 Sam. xxi. 10. Bp. Kidder.

9. — Let the waters &c. This work of God, whereby the waters were sent down into their proper channels, and the earth made dry, and fitted for the habitation of such creatures as were afterwards created, is observed by Strabo, a Greek geographer, as an act of Divine Providence. "Because," says he, "the water covered the earth, and man is not a creature that can live in the water, God made many cavities and receptacles in the earth for the water; and raised the earth above it, that it might be fit for man's habitation." Bp. Patrick.

11. — whose seed is in itself. The meaning is, that the plant should include in itself its proper seed, by means of which it should be afterwards propagated from one generation to another. Dr. Wells.

14. — Let there be lights Or luminous bodies, by which light is communicated. The light produced at first was now distributed into several luminaries, distant from the earth, "in the firmament of heaven;" or in those upper regions, where the sun and the planets are placed. Bp. Patrick.

— to divide &c. Partly to make a perpetual and constant division between day and night; and partly to be certain and na-

Before CHRIST 4004. † the day from the night; and let them be for signs, and for seasons, and for days, and years:

† Heb. between the day and between the night. 15 And let them be for lights in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth: and it was so.

† Heb. for the rule of the day, &c. 16 And God made two great lights; the greater light † to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night: he made the stars also.

17 And God set them in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth, 18 And to ^e rule over the day and over the night, and to divide the light from the darkness: and God saw that it was good.

19 And the evening and the morning were the fourth day.

20 And God said, ^b Let the waters bring forth abundantly the ^{||} moving creature that hath † life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the † open firmament of heaven.

tural signs for man's direction, in his course of judgment and practice, for sowing, planting, sailing, and such other common affairs; and partly, to make a distinction of seasons, summer, winter, spring, autumn, years, months, weeks, days, hours. Bp. Hall. As also to direct mankind afterwards in their solemn festivals. Bp. Kidder.

We must distinguish betwixt God's saying, Let such a thing be, and let such a thing do, so or so. By the first He produced the thing out of nothing; by the other He gave laws to it, then in being. As, when He said, "Let there be light," by that word, the light, which was not before, began to be: but when He said, "Let there be lights in the firmament, to divide the day from the night, &c." He thereby gave laws to the light He had before made, where He would have it be, and what He would have it do. This is what we call the law of nature: that law, which God hath put into the nature of every thing, whereby it always keeps itself within such bounds, and acts according to such rules, as God hath set it, and by that means shows forth the glory of His wisdom and power. Bp. Beveridge.

15. And let them be for lights &c.] Let them there continue to give constant light and warmth to the earth and its inhabitants, which is their principal use. Bps. Hall and Patrick.

16. — two great lights;] That is, which appear to us greater than all the rest; namely, the sun and moon. With regard to the inhabitants of the earth, the moon, though certainly an opaque or dark body, and less than most of the planets, may be not improperly called a great light: since, on account of its nearness, it communicates more light, and is of more use and benefit to us, than all the other planets put together. Dr. Wells, Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

— to rule the day, &c.] As the sun is said "to rule the day," because he then only appears in the firmament; so the moon and stars are said to "rule the night," because they then appear with splendour, and give a supply of light, which the sun does not then immediately afford. Dr. Wells, Bp. Kidder.

17. And God set them &c.] By repeating this so often, Moses intended to fix in the people's mind this notion; that though the heavenly bodies be very glorious, yet they are but creatures made by God, and set or appointed by His order, to give us light. And therefore He alone is to be worshipped, not they. Bp. Patrick. This supposition is the more probable, because the most early idolatry is reasonably judged to have been that of worshipping the host of heaven, or the celestial lights. Dr. Wells.

21. — whales,] Or great fishes of all sorts. Dr. Wells.

26. And God said, Let us make man] God not only reserved

21 And God created great whales, and every living creature that moveth, which the waters brought forth abundantly, after their kind, and every winged fowl after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

22 And God blessed them, saying, ⁱ Be fruitful, and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let fowl multiply in the earth.

23 And the evening and the morning were the fifth day.

24 ¶ And God said, Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle, and creeping thing, and beast of the earth after his kind: and it was so.

25 And God made the beast of the earth after his kind, and cattle after their kind, and every thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

26 ¶ And God said, ^k Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let

Before CHRIST 4004.

ⁱ Chap. 8. 17. & 9. 1.

^k Chap. 5. 1. & 9. 6. 1 Cor. 11. 7. Ephes. 4. 24. Col. 3. 10.

man for the last of His works, but, as it were, advises and consults about his production; not to signify any deliberation within Himself, or any difficulty in the work; but to represent to us the dignity of man, and that he was made with admirable wisdom and great prudence. It is to be observed also, that God does not say, "Let the earth bring forth man," as He said before of other animals; and that for the same reason: namely, to represent man as a far more noble work, than any other upon earth. Bp. Patrick.

— Let us] The ancient Christians looked upon this as a plain intimation of a plurality of Persons in the Godhead. Epiphanius says, "This is the language of God to his Word and only begotten, as all the faithful believe;" and again, "Adam was formed by the hand of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost." Bp. Patrick.

It is the language of St. Barnabas, one of the apostolical Fathers, "And for this cause the Lord was content to suffer for our souls, although He be the Lord of the whole earth; to whom God said, before the beginning of the world, Let us makeman, &c." Abp. Wake.

St. Chrysostom concludes some observations on the same passage, in the following eloquent terms: "Who was He, to whom God said, Let us make man? Who else but He, the Angel of the Great Council, the Wonderful Counsellor, the Mighty One, the Prince of Peace, the Father of the future age, the only-begotten Son of God, the equal to His Father in essence, by whom all things were made? To Him it was said, Let us make man."

"Let us make man." Us.—He speaks to One who has the power of creating. John i. 1, 2, 3. Bp. Wilson.

The phraseology, in which this resolution is couched, is remarkable. "Let us make man:" but the Old Testament furnishes more instances of a similar kind: "Behold, the man is become as one of us;" "Let us go down, and there confound their language;" "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" These plural forms, thus used by the Deity, demand our attention. Gen. iii. 22; xi. 7; Isaiah vi. 8.

Three solutions of the question have been offered. The first is that given by the Jews, who tell us, that in these forms God speaks of Himself and His angels. But may we not ask upon this occasion, "Who hath known the mind of the Lord, or who hath been His counsellor?" With which of the angels did He at any time vouchsafe to share His works and His attributes? Could they have been His coadjutors in the work of creation, which He so often claims to Himself, declaring He will not give the glory of it to another?

A second account of the matter is, that the King of heaven adopts the style employed by the kings of the earth. But doth it them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

Before
CHRIST
4001.

Matthew 19. 4.
Wisd. 2.
23.

27 So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them.

Chap.
9. 1.

28 And God blessed them, and God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth.

† Heb.
creepeth.

seem at all reasonable to imagine, that God should borrow His way of speaking from a king, before man was created upon the earth? Besides, as it hath been judiciously observed, "though a king and governor may say us and we, there is certainly no figure of speech that will allow any single person to say, 'one of us,' when he speaks only of himself. It is a phrase that can have no meaning, unless there be more persons than one concerned."

What then should hinder us from accepting the third solution, given by the best expositors ancient and modern, and drawn from this consideration, that in the unity of the Divine Essence there is a plurality of Persons, coequal and coeternal, who might say, with truth and propriety, "Let us make man," and, "Man is become as one of us?" Of such a personality revelation informs us: it is that, upon which the economy of man's redemption is founded; his creation, as well as that of the world, is, in different passages, attributed to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit; what more natural therefore than that, at his production, this form of speech should be used by the Divine Persons? What more rational than to suppose, that a doctrine, so important to the human race, was communicated from the beginning, that men might know whom they worshipped, and how they ought to worship? What other good and sufficient reason can be given, why the name of God, in use among believers from the first, should likewise be in the plural number, connected with verbs and pronouns in the singular? It is true, we Christians, with the New Testament in our hands, may not want these arguments to prove the doctrine: but why should we overlook, or slight, such very valuable evidence of its having been revealed and received in the Church of God, from the foundation of the world? It is a satisfaction, it is a comfort, to reflect, that in this momentous article of our faith we have patriarchs and prophets for our fathers; that they lived, and that they died in the belief of it; that the God of Adam, of Noah, and of Abraham is likewise our God; and that when we adore Him in three Persons, and give "glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost," we do "as it was" done "in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be." Bp. Horne.

— in our image, after our likeness:] Approaching to the Divine likeness in understanding, freedom of choice, spirituality, immortality, &c. in righteousness and true holiness likewise, as may be gathered from the Apostle, Eph. iv. 24. Bp. Patrick. Of man's distinguishing excellencies we are taught to entertain the most exalted sentiments, when we are told, that he was made "in the image and likeness of God." For what more can be said of a creature, than, that he is made after the similitude of his Creator? Bp. Horne.

We should learn to be cautious, lest we charge God foolishly, by ascribing that to Him or the nature He has given us, which is owing wholly to an abuse of it. Men may speak of the degeneracy and corruption of the world, according to the experience they have had of it: but human nature, considered as the Divine workmanship, should methinks be treated as sacred; for in the image of God made He man. Bp. Butler.

27. — him;] God thought fit to make one man to be the head and parent of the whole race of mankind, that men might not

29 ¶ And God said, Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat.

Before
CHRIST
4001.

† Heb.
seeding seed.

Chap. 9.
3.

30 And to every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life, I have given every green herb for meat: and it was so.

† Heb.
a living soul.

31 And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day.

° Eccl' 39.
16.

boast and vaunt of their extraction and original, (as the Jews have observed,) and that they might think themselves under an obligation to love and assist each other, as proceeding from the same original and common parent. Acts xvii. 26. Bp. Kidder.

— male and female] That is, one male, and one female; and the female from the male. Polygamy and divorce were not from the beginning. Compare Matt. xix. 3, 4. Bp. Kidder.

He made woman the same day He made man, as He did both sexes of all other living creatures; also He made woman, as well as man, "in the image of God;" forming the male of the matter of the earth, and the female afterwards of the male, of which a more particular account is reserved for the following chapter. Bps. Patrick and Hall, Dr. Wells.

28. And God blessed them,] That is, besides the excellent endowments, which He bestowed on them, He gave them power to multiply and increase their kind. See Psalm cxxviii. 3, 4. Bp. Kidder. This power He had before bestowed upon other creatures; He adds to it here two other things, "replenish the earth, and subdue it." He gives them the whole earth for their possession, with a power to "subdue" it; that is, to make it fit for their habitation, by bringing under, or driving away wild beasts. For, secondly, He gives them the "dominion" over all other creatures, whether in the water, air, or earth. Bp. Patrick.

— have dominion] The divine writers have informed us, that God at the beginning gave mankind dominion (that is, an impressed awe and authority) over every living thing that moveth upon the earth, as a defence and security against the beasts of prey, which would otherwise have destroyed them. Dr. Bentley.

By the dominion God gave him over the creatures, Adam, though naked and defenceless, had full security that they could not hurt him; and he had a convincing proof of this by their obedience, when they were brought before him. Bp. Wilson.

29. — Behold, I have given you &c.] Here he assigns them their food; and makes no mention at all of beasts, but only of plants and fruits of the earth. The allowance was expressly enlarged after the flood, when He gave them every living thing for meat, as well as the herbs, chap. ix. 3. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

31. — very good.] Exactly fitted to the ends and uses, for which He designed it; and contributing, as much as it could, to the manifestation of His glory. Bp. Beveridge. The least or worst of creatures in their original is not any way derogatory to the Creator. Whatsoever is evil, is not so by the Creator's action, but by the creature's defection. Bp. Pearson.

The narrative contained in this chapter redounds greatly to the honour and glory of God: for the work of creation is an illustrious display of the Divine Wisdom, Power, and Goodness. When the holy Psalmist had enumerated the great mercies of God to His creatures in various instances, Ps. civ, he exclaimed, ver. 24, "O Lord, how manifold are Thy works! in wisdom hast Thou made them all: the earth is full of Thy riches." Every thing indeed is wisely contrived and adapted to the ends for which it was designed. 2dly, The works of Creation demonstrate the all-sufficient power of God, who made heaven and earth by His word, and "all the hosts of them by the breath of His mouth:" nay,

Before
CHRIST
4004.

CHAP. II.

1 The first sabbath. 4 The manner of the creation. 8 The planting of the garden of Eden, 10 and the river thereof. 17 The tree of knowledge only forbidden. 19, 20 The naming of the creatures. 21 The making of woman, and institution of marriage.

THUS the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them.

* Exod. 20. 11. & 31. 17. Deut. 5. 14. Hebr. 4. 4. 2 ^a And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made; and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made.

3 And God blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it: because that in it he had rested from all his work which God † created and made.

† Heb. created to make.

who can produce a world with no more labour than by barely willing it to be. Lastly, the Divine Goodness is highly magnified in the works of Creation. There was a time, when there was nothing but God: but there was no time, when He was not infinitely happy; therefore He was infinitely happy in Himself, and wanted not His creatures to add any thing to Him. But His good pleasure and free grace disposed Him to create them, and impart a share of His own happiness to them. Some of them He hath placed in heaven; and "the earth hath He given to the children of men:" which would have been a secondary heaven to us, had we not brought death into it by sin. Nevertheless this death shall prove the beginning of eternal life to all those, who serve God in the faith of His Son Jesus Christ, who hath "opened the kingdom of heaven to all believers." Reading.

The Mosaical account of the Creation of the World is distinguished for its simplicity and perspicuity, above all the accounts of the Romans, Greeks, Phenicians, Egyptians, and Chinese; which still, however, tend to confirm and verify it in the leading circumstances. Dr. Hales.

Chap. II. Moses, having given a short account of the orderly production of all things from the meanest to the noblest, explains more largely in this chapter some things, which, in the foregoing, were delivered briefly, because he would not interrupt the connexion of his discourse, about the works of the six days. Particularly he relates how Eve was made; and also further illustrates the production of Adam, &c. Bp. Patrick.

Ver. 1. — all the host of them.] That is, of each of them. The word "host" is plainly used to signify every thing that is in heaven or in earth; or, as we say, in the whole world, which in Hebrew is always expressed by these two words, "heaven and earth." Bp. Beveridge. The several creatures are called "host" or army, because of their vast variety and excellent order. Bp. Patrick.

2. And on the seventh day God ended his work] Or rather, had ended, (as it may be translated,) for He did not work on the seventh day. Bp. Patrick. The verse may be rendered, agreeably to the translation of the Seventy, "On the sixth day God ended His work which He had made; and He rested on the seventh day from all His work which He had made." Dr. Wells. An emblem of the rest that we shall have, when we have done our work faithfully, and left none undone. Bp. Patrick.

3. — blessed] That is, ordered it to be observed, as a day for praising Him, and for obtaining His blessings: and no doubt it was so observed by all good men from Adam to Moses. Bp. Wilson.

— sanctified] That is, set it apart, that it might preserve to all ages the memory of the Creation and the Creator; man being by an express law obliged to commemorate them fifty-two times a year. And as the neglect of this law brought in idolatry and infidelity, so the breach of it has ever since been punished most

Before
CHRIST
4004.

4 ¶ These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens,

5 And every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew: for the Lord God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man to till the ground.

6 But ¶ there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. || Or, a mist which went up from, &c.

7 And the Lord God formed man † of the ^b dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and ^c man became a living soul. † Heb. dust of the ground. ^b 1 Cor. 15. 47. ^c 1 Cor. 15. 45.

8 ¶ And the Lord God planted a garden remarkably, by a judicial hardness of heart, forgetfulness of God, and exemplary judgments; as numberless offenders have confessed. Bp. Wilson.

4. These are the generations &c.] This is a faithful account of the generation, or original, of the world. Bp. Patrick.

— in the day] Or, at the time, "that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens." From henceforward the Supreme Being is called "Lord," having been hitherto called only "God." The Hebrew doctors observe, that JEHOVAH ELOHIM, (Lord God,) joined together, is the full and perfect name of God; and therefore fitly reserved till this place, when the works of God were perfected. Bp. Patrick.

7. — of the dust of the ground,] Not dry but moist dust, or clay; such as is used by potters: as the Greek and Hebrew words are thought most properly to signify. Upon this original of man's body the ancient Fathers make many pious reflexions: but none better or shorter than this, that it is intended to teach us, that when we are inclined to be lifted up, because we are made after God's image, the thoughts of the dirt, out of which we are taken, may humble and lay us low. Bp. Patrick.

In this instance, as in another since, God seemeth to have chosen the base things of the world, to confound things honourable and mighty, when of the dust of the ground He composed a frame, superiour, in rank and dignity, to the heavens and all their hosts. Bp. Horne.

— breathed into his nostrils the breath of life;] This being said of no other creature, leads us to conceive, not only that the soul of man is a distinct thing, of a different original from his body; but that a more excellent spirit was put into him by God (as appears by its operations) than into other animals. For though the simple phrase of inspiring him with "the breath of life" would not prove this, yet Moses speaking in the plural number, that "God breathed into him the breath or spirit of lives," it plainly denotes that spirit, which makes man not only breathe and move; but think also, reason and discourse. Bp. Patrick.

8. And the Lord God planted a garden] Or had planted, probably on the third day: "eastward," that is, eastward of Judea, or of the desert of the Amorites, where Moses wrote these books, in a country, long after called "Eden" from its pleasantness and fruitfulness. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

When we think of Paradise, we think of it as the seat of delight. The name EDEN authorizes us so to do. It signifies PLEASURE; and the idea of pleasure is inseparable from that of a garden, where man still seeks after lost happiness; and where, perhaps, a good man finds the nearest resemblance of it, which this world affords. "What is requisite," exclaims a great and original genius, (Dr. Young,) "to make a wise and happy man, but reflexion and peace? And both are the natural growth of a garden. A garden to the virtuous is a Paradise still extant; a Paradise unlost." Bp. Horne.

Before
CHRIST
4001.

eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed.

9 And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

10 And a river went out of Eden to water the garden; and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads.

° Eccl¹²
24. 25.

11 The name of the first is ^dPison: that is it which compasseth the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold;

12 And the gold of that land is good: there is bdellium and the onyx stone.

13 And the name of the second river is — and there he put the man &c.] We cannot conceive such a creature, as man, to be put into a more happy state than this. The ground naturally, without any labour or trouble, brought forth every thing that was necessary and convenient, and also every thing that was pleasant and delightful. So that there was nothing for man to do, but to dress and to keep the garden for his diversion, and to satisfy himself with all the variety which it afforded. Dr. John Clarke.

9. — the tree of life] So called, because he, that ate of it, would have lived for ever, either by virtue of that tree, or by the appointment of God; as the sacraments are means of grace. Bp. Wilson. This garden being a type of heaven, perhaps God intended by this tree to represent that immortal life, which He meant to bestow upon man with Himself. Rev. xxii. 2. In other trees there was nourishment for man; but in this also a sacrament. For it was a symbol both of that life, which God had already bestowed upon man; (who was hereby put in mind that God was the author of his being, and all his enjoyments;) and of that life which he was to hope for in another world, if he proved obedient. Bp. Patrick. By means of this sacrament, had Adam gone happily through his probation, and persevered in obedience unto the end, he would have been admitted, in the kingdom of heaven, to that state of eternal life with God, for which he was always designed, and of which Paradise was the earthly resemblance. Bp. Horne.

— tree of knowledge of good and evil.] A tree, which would make those that should eat of it sensible of good and evil. Bp. Wilson. It was so called, as being the appointed test of the obedience or disobedience of our first parents; procuring “good” or happiness in the former case; and “evil” or misery in the latter. Dr. Hales.

10. And a river went out of Eden &c.] It should seem that Paradise lay on the confluent stream of the rivers Euphrates and Tigris, but principally on the eastern bank; which divided into two branches above the garden, and two more below it. From the description of these rivers by the ancient historians and geographers, Major Rennell collects, that in ancient times they kept distinct courses to the sea, until the time of Alexander; although at no great distance of time afterwards they became united, and joined the sea in a collective stream. The Cyrus also and Araxes kept distinct courses in ancient times. This, however, does not invalidate a primeval junction of these rivers, before the deluge, which certainly produced a prodigious alteration in the face of the primitive globe. Besides, the changes in the beds of other great rivers, such as the Nile, the Ganges, and Barampooter, even in modern times, are known to be very great. Dr. Hales.

11. — Pison:] The westerly branch, by which the Euphrates empties itself into the Persian gulph. Both this river and the Gihon have long lost their names; the Greek and Roman writers calling them, after their parting, by the names which they had before they met, Euphrates and Tigris. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

— compasseth the whole land of Havilah,] That is, washes Gihon: the same is it that compasseth the whole land of [†]Ethiopia.

Before
CHRIST
4001.

14 And the name of the third river is Hiddekel: that is it which goeth || toward the east of Assyria. And the fourth river is Euphrates.

† Heb.
Cush.
|| Or, eastward to Assyria.

15 And the Lord God took || the man, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it.

|| Or,
Adam.

16 And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden [†]thou mayest freely eat:

† Heb. eating thou shalt eat.

17 But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof [†]thou shalt surely die.

† Heb. dying thou shalt die.

with a winding stream all one side of the land of Havilah; or of the eastern tract of Arabia Felix. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

12. And the gold of that land &c.] Arabia was famed for its gold, both as to its fineness and its quality; as also for its aromatic gums and pearls, which ever of these is intended by “bdellium:” and for its precious stones, whatever was the particular species signified by the word rendered “onyx stone.” Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

13. — Gihon:] The easterly channel of the two, into which the Euphrates, after its conjunction with the Tigris, is again divided. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

— Ethiopia.] Not the country so called in Africa, but another in Asia, adjoining to the easterly mouth of the Euphrates; called in Hebrew, as in the margin of our translation, Cush; by the Greeks and Latins Susiana; and now called by the Persians Chusistan, that is, the province of Chus. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

14. — Hiddekel:] The Tigris. The word, which is rendered toward the east, should be rendered simply toward or before. For it has that signification, as well as the other; and so expresses better the course of the river, which does not run toward the east of the province, properly called, of old, Assyria; but does run before it, in respect to the place where Moses wrote. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

— Euphrates.] In Hebrew Perath or Phrath. The course of it was so well known, that Moses gives no description of it. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

17. — thou shalt not eat of it:] It was fit to lay upon Adam this small restraint, to make him sensible, that though he had dominion over all things, yet he was not their lord, but a servant of the Most High, who required this abstinence in token of his subjection, and to prove his obedience to Him. But still some ask, Why should his obedience be tried in such an instance as this? not considering that a trial of it could scarce have been made in any of the moral precepts, which there was no opportunity of violating. For what should tempt him to idolatry, or to take God's name in vain, or to murder his wife? How was it possible to commit adultery, when there was nobody but he and she in the world? How could he steal, or what room was there then for coveting, when God had put him in possession of all things? It had been in vain to forbid that, which could not be done: and it had been virtue to abstain, not from that, to which there was no temptation, but from that, which invited them to transgress. I speak of them in the plural number, because it must be remembered that this prohibition was given, not to Adam only, but to Eve also, chap. iii. 1, 2. Bp. Patrick.

— thou shalt surely die.] This does not signify, as appears by the event, that he should instantly die, but that he should become mortal; lose the immortality with which he was invested, chap. iii. 19. Diseases, sicknesses, and pains, the forerunners of death, are included in this threatening. Bp. Patrick.

The threatening implies a promise, that if he did not eat of the

Before CHRIST 4004. 18 ¶ And the LORD God said, It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make ^ehim an help [†]meet for him.

36. 24. ¶ Heb. as before him. 19 And out of the ground the LORD God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air; and brought them unto Adam to see what he would call them: and whatsoever Adam called every living creature, that was the name thereof.

¶ Or, the man. 20 And Adam [†]gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field; but for Adam there was not found an help meet for him.

21 And the LORD God caused a deep

Before CHRIST 4004. sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof;

22 And the rib, which the LORD God had taken from man, [†]made he a woman, and brought her unto the man. [†] Heb. builded.

23 And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was ^ftaken out of Man. ^f 1 Cor. 11. 8.

24 ²Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh. ^e Matthew 19. 5. Mark 10. 7. 1 Cor. 6. 16. Eph. 5. 31.

25 And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

fruit, he should not die, but live. This was the first covenant which God made with man. Bp. Beveridge.

18. And the Lord God said,] Or had said, before the delivery of this commandment, which was given to both. Bp. Patrick.

— It is not good] Not so comfortable an estate, that the man should live alone. I will make him an helper, of his own nature, meet for him. Bp. Hall.

19. — Adam] The Hebrew word, hitherto rendered Man, or the Man, is here rendered as a proper name. Dr. Wells. It is commonly thought that this name, given to the first man, signifies as much as red earth. But it is far more probable, that it imports elegant or beautiful. Bp. Patrick.

20. And Adam gave names &c.] The ancient and modern professors of Atheistical philosophy represent the faculty of articulate speech, or language, as the mere instinctive expression of the wants and desires of a herd of associated savages, gradually invented for mutual convenience of communication, and established by mutual consent. But our great Lexicographer justly remarks, that “language must have come by inspiration: a thousand, nay a million of children, could not invent a language; while the organs are pliable; there is not understanding enough to form a language; and by the time that there is understanding enough, the organs are grown stiff. We know, that after a certain age, we cannot learn a language.” Boswell's Life of Dr. Johnson. This is confirmed by experience. Alexander Selkirk, when cast away on the desert island of Juan Fernandez, almost lost the use of his native tongue, after some years residence. The young savage, called Peter, caught in the woods of Hanover, several years ago, though soon tamed and reconciled to society, never could be taught to speak. And lately, the young savage of Aveyron, in France, though put under the care of the celebrated Sicard, master of the deaf and dumb school, has never yet been observed to utter an articulate sound, not even to express his most urgent wants.

It is remarkable, that Adam was endued with the faculty of speech in his solitary state, and gave names to the animal tribes before the formation of Eve. Dr. Hales.

21. And the Lord God caused a deep sleep &c.] Adam was thus less sensible of bodily pain; at the same time that there was represented to his mind, both what was done to him, and the mystery of it, as appears by ver. 23, 24. Bp. Patrick.

— and he took one of his ribs,] God did not form Eve out of the ground; as He had done Adam; but out of Adam's side, that He might create the greater love between him and her, as parts of the same whole. By this He also effectually recommended marriage to all mankind, as founded in nature; and as the reunion of man and woman.

No mention is here made of God's breathing a soul into her, as into him: for Moses only explains what is peculiar to Eve; the rest is supposed in the words, “I will make him an help meet for him;” which the Latin Vulgate rightly translates, “like unto him.” It was likewise said before, that both man and woman were made “in the likeness of God.” Bp. Patrick.

22. And the rib — made he a woman,] Which was as easy for the Divine power to do, as to make the man himself out of the earth. Bp. Patrick.

— and brought her unto the man.] Presented and gave her to him to be his wife. God Himself made the espousals (if I may so speak) between them, and joined them together in marriage. Bp. Patrick.

23. — This is now bone of my bones, &c.] Now indeed have I found, what I could not see before among all God's creatures, a fit helper for me; even another self. Bp. Hall.

— she shall be called Woman,] Partake of my name, as she doth of my nature. For he called her Isha, as he was called Ish. Bp. Patrick.

24. Therefore shall a man leave &c.] Dwell with his wife, rather than with his father and his mother, and be joined to her in the closest and most inseparable affection, as if they were but one person, and had but one soul and one body; an obligation arising from the singular union of the flesh of our first parents, one of whom was taken out of the other. Bp. Patrick.

— wife:] Not wives. All this must be from express revelation; for otherwise Adam knew not what a father or mother was, nor that the affections of children and parents were great; and yet that the ties of husband and wife would be greater. But it appears from our Saviour's words, Matt. xix. 4, that this revelation was from God; that it is founded upon the law of nature, for one man to have one woman only: for God knew, and none else could know, the evil consequences of unlimited mixture, and that the number of males and females should be so nearly equal, that many of them would be deprived of the comforts of marriage, if it were otherwise than as God ordained. Bp. Wilson.

25. — were not ashamed.] Because they were innocent, and had done nothing as yet to be ashamed of. Bp. Kidder.

If we consider seriously, what God is; how great, almighty, and wise He appears to be by the creation of this heaven and this earth; and how beneficent and gracious He is to man: if further we consider what man was in his original state, how dignified and distinguished above all other visible creatures: we cannot now, in this our present forlorn condition, make any doubt of the reasonableness and justice of confessing and repenting of those sins, whereby we have degraded our nature, and offended so great, so gracious a Being, our Maker, our Benefactor, and our God. And to make us thoroughly sensible why we ought to repent, was the main design of the inspired writer, in describing to us the original and happiness of mankind, and the great riches of the Divine Goodness. That very “shame,” which in a state of innocence we were strangers to, but which we now inherit by a natural descent, ought to excite our repentance and self-abhorrence. Wogan.

Before
CHRIST
4001.

CHAP. III.

1 The serpent deceiveth Eve. 6 Man's shameful fall.
9 God arraigneth them. 14 The serpent is cursed.
15 The promised seed. 16 The punishment of mankind. 21 Their first clothing. 22 Their casting out of paradise.

NOW the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said unto the woman, † Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?

† Heb.
Yea, because, &c.

2 And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden :

Chap. III. We have here an account of the state of man, both before and after his fall : that he was created in the image of God, and placed in Paradise, in a state of trial, in order to a greater happiness and an immortal life, if he should keep the covenant which God made with him and his posterity.

This covenant, through the temptation of the devil, he broke ; and was therefore turned out of Paradise, became subject to sin, and to the punishment of sin, which is misery, afflictions, and death after all : and this was the occasion of that universal corruption, which we see in the world. But then this transgression gave occasion to God to manifest, together with His justice and holiness in the punishment of sin, another of His glorious perfections, His infinite goodness and mercy.

For seeing man in this deplorable condition, He had compassion on him, and forthwith made him this promise of life and comfort, " That the Seed of the woman," One who was not to have a man for His father, " should bruise the head of that serpent," the devil, which had beguiled her. Bp. Wilson.

Ver. 1. — the serpent] That this was the devil's act, in the serpent, we have the authority of Christ Himself, who says, " He was a murderer from the beginning," John viii. 44; plainly in allusion to this seduction of our first parents, and the mortality thereby induced. The same appears also from the Apostle, who calls the devil or Satan, " the great dragon, that old serpent, which deceiveth the whole world," Rev. xii. 9; xx. 2, 10. And the author of the Book of Wisdom, ch. ii. ver. 24, who was well acquainted with the doctrines of the Jewish Church, tells us, " Through envy of the devil came death into the world." Bp. Beveridge, Dr. Kennicott.

— more subtil] And therefore a fitter instrument for the devil, who made use of him; and also a more perfect resemblance of his craft and wiliness. Bp. Kidder.

— Yea, hath God said, &c.] The best interpreters understand this to have been spoken interrogatively, Hath God indeed said? or, Dost thou think God meant absolutely by saying, &c.? Pyle.

The devil in these words seems to question the kindness of God, in that He did not permit to man the eating of every tree in the garden. Bp. Kidder.

2. — We may eat of the fruit &c.] She seems to have understood him, as if he thought God had forbid them to eat of any fruit in the garden. And indeed the foregoing question is ambiguous. Bp. Patrick.

4. — Ye shall not surely die:] As before he called in question God's kindness to man, so does he here deny God's veracity or truth; and deserves the character, which our Saviour gives him, of " a liar," John viii. 44. Bp. Kidder. From this first lie that was told in the world by the devil himself, he seems to be more particularly called by our Saviour, " the father" of lies. Dr. Wells.

Unbelief is not only a great sin of itself, but one great cause of all other sins. It may be truly called the Mother of sin, as the devil is the Father: for it was that, which by his instigation brought forth sin at first into the world; and it is that which still maintains and keeps it. When the old serpent assaulted our first parents, the first attack he made was upon their faith; and 3 But of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die.

Before
CHRIST
4001.

4 ^a And the serpent said unto the woman, ^b Ye shall not surely die :

^a 2 Cor. 11.

^b 3.

^c 1 Tim. 2.

^d 14.

5 For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.

6 And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was † pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the a desire.

† Heb.

when that was once shaken, he soon overcame them. Bp. Beveridge.

5. For God doth know &c.] The first accuser that ever was in the world was a false accuser; and that was the devil. He was " a liar from the beginning;" and the first false report he raised, was of the Most High: unjustly accusing God Himself unto our mother Eve, in a few words, of no fewer than three great crimes at once, Falschood, Tyranny, and Envy. He was then a slanderous accuser of his Maker; and he hath continued ever since a malicious accuser of his brethren. Bp. Sanderson.

— your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods,] The eyes of your understanding, which are now half-shut, shall be fully opened, and ye shall be full of divine knowledge, like your Maker. Bp. Hall. Or, like the angels of God, who are frequently called " gods" in Scripture. Bp. Patrick.

Be our ends and aims what they will, unless we arm ourselves with strong resolutions beforehand, not to do any thing we know to be unlawful upon any terms, seem it otherwise never so expedient; and then afterwards use all our best prayers and endeavours by God's grace to hold our resolutions, we are gone. Satan is cunning, and we are but weak, and he will be too hard for us, if he do but find us at all staggering in our resolutions to do nothing but what is lawful; or lending an ear to any persuasions, for the doing of any thing that is unlawful. By this very means he overcame our first mother Eve; and prevailed with her to taste of the forbidden fruit, though it were unlawful, by persuading her that it was expedient. This one is a sure ground for us to build upon: to a good Christian that desireth to make conscience of his ways, nothing can be truly expedient, that he knows to be unlawful. Bp. Sanderson.

— knowing good and evil.] An Hebrew phrase, signifying as much as to know every thing, or a very enlarged knowledge, as in 2 Sam. xiv. 17 and 20. And on the contrary, to know or speak neither good nor evil is to know or speak nothing at all, Deut. i. 39; Gen. xxxi. 29. Pyle.

6. And when the woman saw &c.] She could conclude that it was good for food, only by the serpent's eating of it before her eyes, and by seeing that he did not thereupon die, as God had threatened: so she gave him credit and distrusted God's word. Bp. Wilson.

— did eat,] Her sin was great and various; being guilty of ambition, incredulity, ingratitude, curiosity, inordinate desire, open rebellion against God, and the drawing aside of her husband, and the involving of him in sin, and their posterity in misery also. Bp. Kidder.

— and gave also unto her husband with her;] Besides the aggravations common to both our parents, Eve adds one more to her weight, in that she was not content to sin herself alone, but she allured and drew her husband also into the like horrible transgression with her: whereby she was not only guilty of her own personal sin, but of her husband's also. And this added so much to her former sins, that St. Paul speaks of her, as if she had been the only transgressor; " Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression," 1 Tim. ii. 14. So

Before
CHRIST
4004.
b Eccl¹⁰
25. 24.
1 Tim. 2. 14.

fruit thereof, ^b and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat.

7 And the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves || aprons.

8 And they heard the voice of the LORD God walking in the garden in the † cool of the day: and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the LORD God amongst the trees of the garden.

9 And the LORD God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou?

great and horrible a thing it is in the eye of God, to be the cause or mover of another's sin. Jos. Mede.

7. And the eyes of them both were opened,] They had no sooner transgressed than they began to reflect upon the guilt, and feel the fatal consequences of so doing. Their understandings were indeed "opened," not in the sense the tempter had promised; but in a manner that discovered to them their own folly, degeneracy, and shame. Pyle.

—and they knew that they were naked;] Who knows not the story of Adam's fall? Who hath not heard of the sin of Eve our mother? If there were no Scripture, yet the unexampled irregularity of our whole nature, which all the time of our life runs counter to all order and right reason; the woeful misery of our condition, being a scene of sorrow without any rest or contentment; this might breed some general suspicion, that from the beginning it was not so: that He, who made us lords of His creatures, made us not so worthless and vile as now we are; but that some common father to us all had drunken some strange and devilish poison, wherewith the whole race is infected. This poison, saith the Scripture, was the breach of God's commandment in Paradise, by eating of the forbidden fruit. Jos. Mede.

—and they sewed fig leaves together,] They twisted the branches of the fig tree about them for coverings: as the true translation is. The fig-tree leaves in eastern countries are so broad, that a few will cover the body of a man. Pyle.

8. And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden] The sound of the Majestick Presence, or the glory of the Lord, approaching nearer and nearer to the place, where they were. For the "walking" is to be referred to the voice, and not to the Lord. Bp. Patrick.

—hid themselves] Their very reason was so corrupted, as to think they could hide themselves, as wild beasts run into a wood when they see a man. Bp. Wilson.

9. —the Lord God called unto Adam,] Emphatically called, JEHOVAH ELOHIM, God the Lord. By which, in the language of Philo, according to the opinion of all the ancient Fathers, is to be understood God the FATHER, speaking by CHRIST, the LOGOS, the Word, or Son of God: the Messenger and Representative of the Father, "the brightness of His glory, and the express image of His person;" who appeared in, and spake from, the Shechinah, or cloud of glory; the same cloud of light, with its heavenly host of angels, from whence He communed with Adam, with Noah, with Abraham, and the Patriarchs; and communicated His will to, and conducted, the Israelitish nation. For of God the Father it is expressly said, "No man hath seen Him at any time," John i. 18; vi. 46. "Neither heard His voice at any time, nor seen His shape," John v. 37. Pyle.

—Where art thou?] Such questions do not argue ignorance in Him that asks them; but are intended to awaken the guilty to a confession of their crimes. As appears from chap. iv. 9, "Where is Abel thy brother?" Of whom when Cain stubbornly refused to give an account, the Lord said immediately, (to shew

VOL. I.

Before
CHRIST
4004.

10 And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself.

11 And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat?

12 And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

13 And the LORD God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

that He needed not to be informed,) "The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground." Bp. Patrick.

10. —because I was naked;] They became sensible that they were divested of their inward purity; they also blushed at their bodily nakedness, of which before they were not ashamed. This shame was part of their punishment; and it is entailed upon their posterity, as a standing memorial of the sins that occasioned it, being an impression from God upon their spirits: for no other account can be given of its being so universal as it is. Bps. Patrick and Wilson.

11. And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked?] Adam appears to have avoided a confession of the cause, by acknowledging only the effect: he owned no more than that he hid himself, "because he was naked." But God, who knew that this discovery, or sense of his nakedness, could only arise from his transgression, interrogates him again thus: "Who told thee that thou wast naked?" No one could shew thee this: this must be thy own discovery, and is a strong presumption of thy loss of innocence. Dr. Kennicott.

12. —The woman whom thou gavest to be with me,] He throws the blame upon his wife, which however he did not intend should rest there, but recoil back upon his Creator. "I have eaten," says he, "but the woman gave me of the tree:" even the woman, "whom thou gavest to be with me," or to be my constant companion. Thus we are apt to excuse and palliate our faults; by laying that load upon others, with which we ought to charge ourselves. Dr. Kennicott, Bp. Patrick. From the beginning man hath always been apt to lay the blame of his faults where it can least lie, upon goodness and perfection itself. The very first sin, that ever man was guilty of, he endeavoured to throw upon God. And his posterity are still apt to excuse themselves the same way. Abp. Tillotson.

13. And the Lord God said unto the woman, &c.] He from whom no secrets are hid, He that formed the heart of man, and knows all the works we do, He that searcheth and trieth the heart and reins, even He will first examine the fact, will first hear what miserable man can say for himself, before his sentence shall pass upon him: not out of ignorance of what was done; for how should the omniscient God be ignorant? but out of His wonderful clemency and unspeakable moderation towards man: I say, towards man; for to him alone He shews this favour: for as for the serpent, we see He vouchsafes not to ask him one question, nor to wait for what he could say for himself, but presently without examination proceeds to judgment against him. Jos. Mede.

—What is this that thou hast done?] Who would not think this rather the speech of a familiar and condoling friend, than of so great a Judge, so greatly offended? Here is no word of asperity, but of lenity: no menacing, no upbraiding terms; but only, "What is this that thou hast done?" Jos. Mede.

—and the woman said, The serpent beguiled me,] My weakness was deceived by the cunning of the devil. Thus she also threw the blame upon another. But God, no doubt, convinced them both of the greatness of their guilt, and the miserable con-

C

Before
CHRIST
4004.

14 And the LORD God said unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life:

15 And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.

dition into which they were fallen by their transgression, before He ended this discourse with them. This shews the infinite mercy of the Creator of all, who would not abandon them, but sought after them to "save" them, when they had "lost" themselves. Bp. Patrick.

— beguiled] This first act of the devil is that wherein we may behold, "as in a glass," the art he still useth to tempt us to sin, and bring us to utter destruction. His practice is uniformly to "beguile." He presents all things fair to our face, and suffers not evil to appear before us in its own deformed shape; for then every man would fly from it. When he would tempt a man to covetousness, he calls it thrift; and the same is the case with other vices. This is what the Scripture saith, "Satan is transformed into an angel of light," 2 Cor. xi. 14. Jos. Mede.

— me,] The devil assaults us where he finds us weakest, as here, in this first sin, he attempts the woman, the weaker vessel. "The serpent beguiled me:" for he knows this is the readiest way to overcome. Jos. Mede.

Let the fatal example of the fall of Eve be a warning to others, how they listen to sophistry in opposition to divine truths. For though the tempter, since that time, has no more made use of serpents, in such a way, yet he has other instruments proper to work with, and often does the same thing by the tongues or pens of serpentine men. Dr. Waterland.

14. And the Lord God said unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, &c.] Namely, because he had beguiled the man and woman, which God had made, and caused them to transgress His great commandment. He therefore that is the cause and occasion of another's sin is as hateful to God as the doer, and is liable to as great or rather a greater punishment. Nay, the serpent's doom is first read to him, as if he were the arch-offender: for which same reason the woman's sentence comes next, because she had been a sin-maker, and was guilty, not only of her own personal sin, but of her husband's also. The same might be confirmed from the quality of their several judgments; in that the serpent alone is doomed to be "cursed," and no such sentence is pronounced either upon the man or upon the woman. Jos. Mede, Bp. Patrick.

— thou art cursed &c.] What follows has a reference to the serpent, the instrument; and to Satan, who made use of that creature. As an argument of the detestableness of the sin, and a constant memorial of it, the abused beast is "cursed." Compare Exod. xxi. 28, 32; Levit. xx. 15, 16; and Gen. ix. 5.

The curse upon the serpent consisted, 1, in bringing down his stature, which was probably in great measure erect before this time: "upon thy belly shalt thou go;" or, "upon thy breast," as some versions have it: 2dly, in the meanness of his provision, "and dust shalt thou eat," inasmuch as creeping upon the ground, it cannot but lick up much dust together with its food: 3dly, in that "enmity," which hereafter ensued between this creature and mankind: for the wisest naturalists among the heathens (proper witnesses in the present case) have agreed, that there is a mortal enmity between the human and the serpentine species. Bps. Patrick and Kidder, Dr. Kennicott.

15. — I will put enmity &c.] This last particular more peculiarly refers to the devil or Satan, who made use of the serpent as an instrument, and is called a serpent, Rev. xii. 9; xx. 2. "Thy seed;" that is, the apostate spirits, and all those that in wickedness resemble their father, the devil, John vi. 70; viii. 44;

Before
CHRIST
4004.

16 Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception; in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children; and thy desire shall be || to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee.

|| Or, subject to thy husband.
1 Cor. 14.
34.

17 And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy Acts xiii. 10. "Her Seed;" that is, the Messiah or Christ, (who is peculiarly the Seed of the woman, Isa. vii. 14; Gal. iii. 16; iv. 4;) and His members, Eph. vi. 11, 12; Rev. xii. 13. "It shall bruise thy head;" that is, the Seed of the woman shall destroy thy power, 1 John iii. 8; John xii. 31; Rev. xii. 7, 8, 10; Heb. ii. 14; 1 Cor. xv. 55, 56, 57. "Thou shalt bruise his heel;" that is, thou shalt persecute the woman's seed, but thou shalt not be able to destroy. Bp. Kidder.

God in the midst of judgment remembers mercy; and here promises a deliverance, the Seed of a woman, (not of a man,) who should break the head of the serpent, the devil, by whom our first parents had been led into sin and misery; at the same time that the promised Seed should receive some damage from the serpent, though not in any principal part. So that Jesus Christ was appointed from the beginning to sufferings. Bp. Wilson.

Though this promise was not fulfilled till four thousand years after, yet the benefits commenced from this very time: which was before God had rejected Cain and preferred Seth to him; and long before any restriction was made to Noah's family, or Shem's, who derived from him; that all the world might look upon the Messiah, as a common benefit to all the sons of Adam. Bps. Patrick and Wilson.

— it shall bruise thy head,] "It," that is, the Seed of the woman, which is Christ, as our translation rightly expounds it. But the Latin Vulgate renders it, "Ipsa conteret caput tuum," "She shall bruise thy head," as if a woman should do it: which the Papists interpreting of the Virgin Mary, ascribe to her this great victory and triumph over sin and Satan; and are taught to say in their addresses to her, "Adoro et benedico sanctissimos pedes tuos, quibus antiqui serpentis caput calcasti:" "I adore and bless thy most holy feet, whereby thou hast bruised the head of the old serpent." Bp. Beveridge.

16. — I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception;] That is, "thy sorrow in thy conception:" a figure of speech not unusual in Scripture. See Ps. cxvi. 1; Jer. xxix. 11. Jos. Mede.

The sentence upon womankind consists, 1, in her sorrow and pain in conceiving and bringing forth children; it being observed that brute creatures bring forth their young with far less pain, difficulty, and danger than women do: 2dly, in her more helpless condition, by reason of which she would need to have recourse to her husband, and be more subject to him and his corrupt will; for whom at first she was designed for a meet-help. Compare 1 Cor. xiv. 34; 1 Tim. ii. 11, 12; 1 Pet. iii. 6. Bp. Kidder.

— thy desire shall be to thy husband,] That is, it shall be subject to him: so the phrase is used chap. iv. 7. Bp. Patrick. By a just retribution, the woman's desire of gratifying her appetites is punished with the pains of childbirth; and her ambition to vie with gods in knowledge, or to be exalted, with her subjection to her husband, and her submission to his will. Dr. Hales.

17. And unto Adam he said,] For Adam's transgression, 1, the ground is cursed: and 2dly, mankind is condemned to labour for bread, that is, for necessary food. Compare Gen. xviii. 5, and xxviii. 20. Bp. Kidder.

— for thy sake;] Because of thy sin; which shall be punished partly by the barrenness of the earth, in its being "cursed," or not bringing forth fruit so plentifully, nor so easily as it did. Bp. Patrick.

Painted by Raphael D'Urbau

Engraved by W. Moles.

ADAM & EVE DRIVEN OUT OF PARADISE.

Published by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge Jan 21 1814

Genesis ch. 3. v. 24.

Before
CHRIST
4004.

† Heb. cause to bud.

sake ; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life ;

18 Thorns also and thistles shall it †bring forth to thee ; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field ;

19 In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground ; for out of it wast thou taken : for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return.

† Heb.
Chavah.

20 And Adam called his wife's name †Eve ; because she was the mother of all living.

21 Unto Adam also and to his wife did

18. Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee ;] The word "thorns" seems to be put for all noxious plants, shrubs, &c. by which the labours of the husbandman are impeded, and which are only fit for burning. Our word "thistle" does not denote the plant, or plants, meant by the Hebrew word, which signifies something of a prickly kind. The word in the Greek version is the same as in Heb. vi. 8, where it is rendered "briers." We are not to suppose that thorns and briers were now for the first time created : but they now became vexatious ; as they grew more abundantly and vigorously, perhaps from favourable seasons ; and as man was expelled from his garden to till the land, where they were native, and consequently most prolific and troublesome. Script. illust. Expos. Ind.

— and thou shalt eat the herb of the field ;] Be content with such things as the common field produces, instead of the delicious fruits of Paradise. Bp. Patrick.

God made this earth amiable and sweet, and the world a scene of happiness to a creature that was to continue in it : but when sin introduced death, God in His goodness "cursed the earth" by a diminution of its excellence, to make the world less desirable to a creature who was so soon to leave it. Dr. Delaney.

God condemned man to toil and misery, that he might look for rest somewhere else than on earth. Bp. Wilson.

19. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread,] As some of God's curses (such is His goodness) are promises as well as curses ; as is that of the "enmity" between the woman's seed and the serpent's ; so some of God's curses (such is His justice) are precepts as well as curses ; as is that of the woman's subjection to the man. This of eating our bread in the sweat of our face is all the three : it is a curse ; it is a promise ; it is a precept. It is a curse ; in that God will not suffer the earth to afford us bread, without our sweat. It is a promise ; in that God assurcth us, we shall have bread for our sweat. And it is a precept too, in that God enjoineth us, if we will have bread, to sweat for it. Bp. Sanderson. All Adam's children are bound to labour ; for that which was said unto Adam, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," is likewise said unto us. Bp. Latimer.

20. And Adam called his wife's name Eve ;] He had before called her "woman" as her common name, or a name for her and all her sex, because she was taken out of man : and now he called her Eve, because he had found she was still to be "the mother of all living." Or, as some interpret it, because in her fall, (and his consequent upon hers,) all men being become mortal, in her Seed all men were to be made alive. This naming of his wife then may be looked upon as an act of faith, exercised by Adam upon the words of God just delivered in the sentence on the serpent. Dr. Kennicott.

God in the promise of a Redeemer did a particular kindness to Adam : for he having been seduced by his wife to eat the forbidden fruit, it might have occasioned a breach between them, had not God taken care to prevent it, by making this gracious promise to depend upon his union with his wife ; from whom, He assures them, One should descend, who should repair their losses. Besides, although the forementioned promise was sufficient to induce the LORD God make coats of skins, and clothed them.

Before
CHRIST
4004.

22 ¶ And the LORD God said, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil : and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever :

23 Therefore the LORD God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken.

24 So he drove out the man ; and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden Cherubims, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life.

them to live together as man and wife ; yet it seems not enough to have taken away all grounds for man (namely Adam or any of his male posterity) reproaching woman, (namely Eve or any of her female posterity,) as having been the occasion of human misery. Wherefore, to prevent this, the promised Redeemer is styled peculiarly the woman's Seed, forasmuch as He was to be born of a woman, without the concurrence of a man. So that the means of our having a Redeemer would be owing to the woman alone of the two, not at all to the man, immediately, or in respect of the birth of Christ Himself ; whereas the occasion of our misery was owing indeed first, but not only, to the woman, but also to the man jointly, though in the second place. Dr. Allix, Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

21. — did the Lord God make coats of skins,] This is not to be understood literally. God is frequently said to do that, which is done by His order and approbation. Dr. Kennicott.

It is probable that they were the skins of beasts slain in sacrifice, which was then first instituted in ratification of the gracious covenant, just made by God with our first parents ; and which was intended the better to represent to them their guilt, and that the promised Seed should vanquish the devil, and redeem them by shedding His blood. Bp. Patrick.

— coats of skins,] Skins have been worn as clothing by many nations ; the Tartars, the Hungarians, the Laplanders, the Finlanders, the Russians, still wear skins, or furs ; the ancient heroes of Greece and of Asia covered themselves with the spoils of lions, of tigers, and wild animals ; while the ancient Germans wore short coats of sheep-skins. A skin in its natural state is an effectual defence against both heat and cold ; and for duration nothing surpasses it. Script. illust. Expos. Ind.

22. — as one of us,] See note on chap. i. 26.

24. — to keep the way of the tree of life,] To shew us, that eternal life is not to be obtained by us, it being out of our reach, unless Jesus Christ give us power to eat of the tree of life. Bp. Wilson.

This "flaming sword," or, as it may be rendered by an usual figure of speech, sword-like or pointed flame, is generally considered as a sensible symbol of the Divine Presence : resembling perhaps the flame, that appeared to Moses in the bush, Exod. iii. 2, or that afterwards rested on the heads of the Apostles at the day of Pentecost, in the form of "fiery tongues," or tongue-like flames, Acts ii. 3. And it was here "placed" or stationed between two cherubim, or glorious angels, according to the ancient Jewish interpretation, furnishing probably the archetype of the Shechinah, first in the tabernacle in the wilderness, and afterwards in Solomon's temple. Dr. Hales.

The garden of Eden was the emblem of the Church upon earth. Man was not made in this Paradise, but placed there, after he was formed out of the earth, chap. ii. 8 ; so we are not of the Church by nature, but by grace. By nature we are all framed out of the same common and corrupt mass of human generation ; which made David say, "I was shapen in iniquity, and in sin did my mother conceive me." But by the grace of God we are taken at Baptism out of that state of pollution, and planted within the 4003.

Before
CHRIST

CHAP. IV.

- 1 The birth, trade, and religion of Cain and Abel. 8
The murder of Abel. 11 The curse of Cain. 17 Enoch the first city. 19 Lamech and his two wives.
25 The birth of Seth, 26 and Enos.

AND Adam knew Eve his wife; and she conceived, and bare Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from the LORD.

2 And she again bare his brother † Abel. And Abel was † a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground.

† Heb.
Hebel.
† Heb.
a feeder.

pale of His own garden the Church: here we are sanctified and cleansed; here we enter into covenant with God. But as Adam, on his breach of covenant, was expelled from the garden of Eden, to "till the ground from whence he was taken," so shall we be ejected out of the communion of saints, and church of the living God, if wilfully we break our solemn vow, and do not return to God by a true repentance, founded on a lively faith in His mercy through Jesus Christ. Wogan.

Chap. IV. The portion of Scripture, at the beginning of this chapter, contains a very remarkable history, in which perhaps, the first man that ever was born, is represented as a murderer; and the first person, that ever died, as murdered. These were the sad effects of Adam's transgression. The guilt of it was manifested in his firstborn, and its mischievous consequences in his second. Bp. Conybeare.

Ver. 1. — Cain,] A name emphatically signifying possession, and given him, either to express the satisfaction they had in seeing the general promise of their living yet longer, and propagating their kind, actually fulfilled; or else from the earnest expectation they had, that this son was to be the promised Seed, the Messiah and Saviour of mankind. Pyle.

— I have gotten a man from the Lord.] As the man, by the first sentence he uttered after God's promise of a Redeemer, expressed his faith in the promise, and his expectation of life and redemption by the "Seed of the woman," (chap. iii. 20;) so likewise did the woman herself, in the first speech which is recorded of her, when, upon the birth of Cain, she expressed herself in this manner, "I have gotten a man from the Lord." Dr. Berriman.

2. — she again bare his brother Abel.] But gives no reason of his name, which signifies vanity. Nor is it said who gave him his name; whether his parents at his birth, or others after he was murdered. It seems, however, that his parents made no account of him, in comparison with the firstborn; because they did not place in him their hope of the promised Seed; as they did in Cain. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

3. — in process of time] That is, at the return of some set and solemn time of Divine worship. Bp. Kidder.

4. — Abel,—brought of the firstlings &c.] Thereby instructing us, as the law afterwards did the children of Israel, that we ought not to appear before the Lord "empty," or to offer to Him of that "which costs us nothing." The prime of our years, the flower of our strength, the best of our substance, the firstfruits of our increase, should be dedicated and devoted to Him, who makes us all we are, and gives us all we have. So shall the benedictions of Heaven descend upon all things around us, and upon ourselves in the use of them. Bp. Horne.

— And the Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering:] First to his person, (his faith and purity of mind,) and then to his external service. Bp. Wilson.

Why had Almighty God respect to Abel's offering, and not to Cain's? To me the reason seems plainly this, that Cain offered only of the fruit of the ground, which had no respect to Christ, but only to God as the Creator of the world; whereas Abel offered the firstlings of his flock, and the fat thereof, which was a bloody sacrifice, typifying the death of Christ, "the Lamb slain from the beginning of the world;" and so exercised his faith in the promised Messiah. And therefore the Apostle saith, "By faith

3 And † in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the LORD.

4 And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his † flock and of the fat thereof. And the LORD had † respect unto Abel and to his offering:

5 But unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect. And Cain was very wroth, and his countenance fell.

6 And the LORD said unto Cain, Why

Before
CHRIST
4003.
† Heb.
at the end of days.
† Heb.
sheep, or,
goats.
† Heb. 11.
4.

Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain," Heb. xi. 4. By faith; that is, by believing the promise, which God had made to mankind in Christ; and manifested his faith by offering such a sacrifice, as represented the death of Christ; by whom therefore his sacrifice was well pleasing and acceptable to God. Bp. Beveridge.

In this particular the righteous Abel is a constant and useful monitor to every Christian, who comes into the presence of his heavenly Father, to come with the commemoration, as he did with the prefiguration, of the body and blood of Christ his Saviour. And let the one stir up at least as lively a faith in those who live since the manifestation of the Messiah in the flesh, as the other did in those who lived before it. Bp. Horne.

It is not improbable (and it seems to be suggested in the history itself) that there was a main difference in this; namely, that Cain offered the vile and refuse, and Abel the most precious, part of his treasures. Thus it is said of the one, that he "brought (barely) of the fruit of the ground;" and of the other, that he "brought of the firstlings of his flock, and of the fat thereof." If this were truly the case, the sacrifice of Abel was therefore more acceptable than Cain's, because it expressed a more grateful sense of the Divine goodness.

To this may be added, that probably the general course of Cain's life was vicious and immoral; and the very offering up of his sacrifice was not attended with that devotion which was necessary. The conjecture proposed may receive some confirmation from observing what the Apostle to the Hebrews tells us, (Heb. xi. 4.) "By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain; by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts." And St. John more fully declares, (1 John iii. 12,) that Cain "was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous." Bp. Conybeare.

— the Lord had respect &c.] It is probable that God testified His acceptance of Abel's sacrifice by fire coming from heaven; traces of which we meet with in Gen. xv. 17, and very many examples of it, in aftertimes: when Moses offered the first great burnt offerings according to the law, Lev. ix. 24; when Gideon offered upon the rock, Judg. vi. 21; when David stayed the plague, 1 Chron. xxi. 26; and Solomon consecrated the temple, 2 Chron. vii. 1; and when Elijah contended with the worshippers of Baal, 1 Kings xviii. 38, &c. Whence the Israelites, wishing all prosperity to their king, pray that God would "accept" (in the Hebrew, turn into ashes) "his burnt sacrifice," Psalm xx. 4. Bp. Patrick. Hereby it was declared, that the innocent was taken for the guilty; and the sacrifice sustained the vengeance, that must otherwise have been inflicted on the sinner. Bp. Horne.

5. — And Cain was very wroth,] He was highly incensed against Abel; instead of making severe reflexions on himself, and considering what had provoked God to slight his sacrifice; that so he might amend it and procure His favour. Bp. Patrick.

— his countenance fell.] Became not only dejected through grief, but lowering and cloudy, as of one meditating revenge. Bp. Patrick.

6. And the Lord said unto Cain, Why art thou wroth? &c.] The judgments of God are intended by Him to lead us to repentance. In the very midst of judgment He thinketh upon mercy; and the punishments, which are inflicted in this life, are graciously intend-Painted by Vander Werf.

Engraved by H. Moser.

ABEL MURDERED BY HIS BROTHER CAIN.

Genesis ch. 4. v. 8.

Published by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge, March 1, 1815.

Before CHRIST 4003. art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen?

|| Or, have the excellency? || Or, subject unto thee. 7 If thou doest well, shalt thou not || be accepted? and if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door, And || unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him.

about 3875. b Wisdom 10. 3. Matthew 23. 35. 1 John 3. 12. Jude 11. 8 And Cain talked with Abel his brother: and it came to pass, when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and ^b slew him.

9 ¶ And the LORD said unto Cain, Where is Abel thy brother? And he said, I know not: Am I my brother's keeper?

10 And he said, What hast thou done? the voice of thy brother's † blood crieth unto me from the ground.

11 And now art thou cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand; ed for our advantage in another. Happy would it have been for Cain, had he made a proper use of his misfortunes. But it seems a mad passion blinded him. He went on to add sin to sin, and to cut off the very possibility of repentance. And yet numerous as his offences had been, and great as the present provocation was, the Divine mercy was still greater. God was pleased to condescend so far, as to expostulate the matter with him: "Why," saith He, "art thou wroth?" &c. One might have imagined, this would have corrected his extravagance. So gracious a representation of the case must be sufficient to allay his present heat; or, if it were not attended with this effect, it must render him the more inexcusable. Bp. Conybeare.

12 When thou tillest the ground, it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength;

Before CHRIST about 3875.

† Heb. bloods.

7. If thou doest well, &c.] We may consider these words, either as setting forth the true reason of Cain's misfortunes; or else as directing him what use and improvement he ought to make of them. In the former view, they represent the unreasonableness of his present anger against his brother. All the disappointments he met with are here charged home upon himself. "If thou doest" thy duty, "shalt thou not be accepted?" and receive the same marks of approbation which have been vouchsafed unto thy brother? But, "if thou doest not well, sin" (that is, the punishment of sin) will constantly attend thee.—In the other view, they are a direction how he ought to behave for the future; and a kind of promise, that his past sins should be forgiven him on his repentance. To what purpose is it to disquiet thyself; and by thy impatience to aggravate the evils, which thou endurest? Rather consider, that they are the punishments of thy crimes; and know, that as sin hath been the occasion of thy calamities, so repentance must be their cure. If thou reformest, "shalt thou not be accepted?" But, if thou persistest in the same course of provocations, expect to suffer a greater train of evils. Bp. Conybeare.

— sin lieth at the door.] Thy punishment is not far off. "Your sin will find you out," Numb. xxxii. 23. "Sin" is sometimes put for its reward or punishment, as well as for the sacrifice, by which it is atoned, Numb. xii. 11; 2 Cor. v. 21; Levit. iv. 24. And it may be said to "lie at the door," when it is near at hand, Matt. xxiv. 33; Jam. v. 9. Bp. Kidder. The word rendered "sin" may be rendered "a sin-offering." The sense then is, "If thou doest not well," or, "if thou didst not well," "a sin-offering lieth (that is, coucheth) at the door," in readiness to be sacrificed, as an atonement for thy offence. Dr. Kennicott, Dr. Hales.

— unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him.] He is still thy younger brother, and shall be subject to thee, (see chap. iii. 16,) and thou shalt be his superiour, and retain the privilege of thy birthright. Bp. Patrick.

These words are connected with the clause, "If thou doest well," and not with the words which immediately go before. See an example to the same purpose, chap. x. 12. Bp. Kidder.

That which aggravated Cain's guilt was, that God Himself was pleased to argue with him before he committed the horrid fact, in order to deter him from it. And is not this the very case of all sinners? Does not God, by His ministers and by His word, warn them and set before them the danger and dreadful consequences of sin? And yet it makes no impression upon a heart set upon wickedness, as Cain's was. Bp. Wilson.

8. — Cain — slew him.] Thus his impiety at length ended in murder. One sin draws on another; a disregard to God naturally shews itself in hatred to man. And it is vain to hope, that he, who hath a contempt of religion, will retain the sentiments of humanity. We may in this example see the gradual progress of sin. The first crime mentioned was a disregard of sacred matters: this was followed by envy, and murmuring against God: and at last finished by the impious and inhuman murder of his brother: a crime, at which nature starts; and the very mention of which is enough to fill every ingenuous mind with horror. Bp. Conybeare.

Let every Christian take care, that he fall not after the similitude of this transgression. It is a determined case, that "whosoever hateth his brother, is a murderer:" it is an unquestionable truth, that he who envieth his brother, will soon hate him: and it is no less certain, that "the spirit, that dwelleth in us, lusteth to envy." How earnestly and fervently then ought we to pray, as our excellent Church enjoins us to do, that "from envy, hatred, and malice, and all uncharitableness" our "good Lord" would vouchsafe to "deliver us!" Bp. Horne.

9. And the Lord said unto Cain, &c.] See note on chap. iii. 9.

— And he said, I know not: Am I my brother's keeper?] I can give no account of him. Was he committed like a little child to my care; to look after him, and see that he took no harm? Bp. Patrick.

Thus adding both falsehood and insolence to all his other crimes; and, in a manner, defying the Deity in His own more immediate presence. Bp. Conybeare.

For this complication of crimes, envy, which led him to murder his brother, and then to attempt to hide it by a lie, and by an insolent rebellious answer to God, Cain is styled in the New Testament, a child "of that wicked one," 1 John iii. 12, as imitating his works, who through envy seduced our first parents, and was a "liar" and a "murderer" from the beginning. Dr. Hales.

10. And he said, What hast thou done? &c.] Though there should be no living witness of thy guilt, beside thyself, yet thine own conscience cannot but accuse thee; and the Almighty Judge of heaven and earth is Himself a spectator of thy crimes. In vain is it to hope for impunity. The innocent blood, which thou hast shed, crieth aloud for vengeance, and hath entered into the ears of the Lord of Hosts.

Though God doth not, in the present age of the world, discover Himself in so astonishing a manner as formerly, still He is not unconcerned in human affairs. Those crimes of men, which are committed with the utmost secrecy, are generally brought to light by the conduct of Providence. Sin will either discover itself, or be discovered. The blood of an Abel will cry aloud from the earth: and almighty vengeance will pursue the murderer. Bp. Conybeare.

11. And now art thou cursed from the earth, &c.] I pass a sentence upon thee of perpetual banishment from this country, which hath drunk in the blood of thy brother. Hitherto Adam and his children had lived together: but now Cain was banished into a region, far off from his father, who dwelt in the neighbourhood of Paradise. Bp. Patrick.

12. — her strength;] That is, her fruit or increase, which speaks the strength of the earth, Joel ii. 22. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
about 3875.

Or, My iniquity is greater than that it may be forgiven.

a fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth.

13 And Cain said unto the LORD, || My punishment is greater than I can bear.

14 Behold, thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth; and from thy face shall I be hid; and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth; and it shall come to pass, that every one that findeth me shall slay me.

15 And the LORD said unto him, Therefore whosoever slayeth Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him sevenfold. And the LORD set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should kill him.

16 ¶ And Cain went out from the pre-

— a fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth.] In that strange country thou shalt have no rest; but wander up and down quietly, and not know where to settle. Bp. Patrick.

13. — My punishment is greater than I can bear.] This is too heavy a punishment; for I sink under the weight of it. Others interpret it, as appears by the margin of our Bible, "My sin is unpardonable; or too great to be forgiven." Thus he, who at first was not so sensible of his sin as to confess it, now thinks it to no purpose to beg for mercy. Bp. Patrick.

Cain, when he had slain his righteous brother, and God had laid a judgment upon him for it, complained of the burden of it, as if the Lord had dealt hardly with him, in laying more upon him than he was able to bear. Solomon noteth it as a fault common among men, when by their own sinful folly they have pulled misery upon themselves, then to murmur against God, and complain of His providence. "The foolishness of man perverteth his way, and his heart fretteth against the Lord," Prov. xix. 3. Bp. Sanderson.

14. — driven me—from the face of the earth;] Banished me from my own native country, ver. 11. Bp. Patrick. From the land, where he then was; not the earth, in the largest sense, for in this he was to be a fugitive and a vagabond. Bp. Kidder.

— and from thy face shall I be hid;] And more than that, I am banished from Thy blessed presence, ver. 16, and shall not have the liberty to come before Thy glorious majesty. Bp. Patrick.

— every one that findeth me shall slay me.] By the usual progress of guilt, Cain adds to his former sins, that of despair, for he does not attempt to supplicate mercy from God; and terror, lest he should find no mercy from man. Dr. Hales.

He was not only burdened with the sense of present evil, but suspicious of what was farther yet to come. Every crime naturally suggests to us some punishment attending it; but the horror of blood, shed unjustly, will make men suspect the danger even of their own lives. And in truth it is no wonder that the common enemies of mankind should expect to be treated as enemies; and imagine, that the rest of the world will be apt to purchase their own security at their expence. A life, forfeited in this manner, must, according to the common course of things, be in continual danger: and fears, thus grounded, will supply the room of that punishment which is feared. Bp. Conybeare.

15. — Therefore whosoever slayeth Cain, &c.] Or, as the word we translate "therefore" may be rendered, "not so;" it shall not be as thou suspectest. Or the word may signify "surely;" so that the sense will be, Take it for a certain truth, that if any man slay Cain, &c. Bp. Patrick.

— sevenfold.] The number seven is an indication of an indeterminate, but great number; signifying as much as, he shall endure many punishments. God intended that the life of Cain should be prolonged in a miserable state, as an example of His vengeance; to deter others from committing the like sin. Bp. Patrick.

— And the Lord set a mark upon Cain,] What this mark was is not agreed by interpreters. Probably it might be such an sence of the LORD, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of Eden.

Before
CHRIST
about 3875.

17 And Cain knew his wife, and she conceived, and bare †Enoch: and he builded a city, and called the name of the city, after the name of his son, Enoch.

† Heb.
Chanock.

18 And unto Enoch was born Irad: and Irad begat Mehujael: and Mehujael begat Methusael: and Methusael begat †Lamech.

† Heb.
Lamech.

19 ¶ And Lamech took unto him two wives: the name of the one was Adah, and the name of the other Zillah.

20 And Adah bare Jabal: he was the father of such as dwell in tents, and of such as have cattle.

21 And his brother's name was Jubal:

one as at once answered the purposes of punishment, and secured him from human vengeance. We may therefore fairly suppose, that it consisted in a certain horror of countenance, occasioned by the inward horror of his mind, which proved, at the same time, the sign and punishment of his guilt. This must affect every spectator with a very lively concern: it must deter men from the commission of the like sin; and make the wretched Cain a living warning to the world. Bp. Conybeare.

"Set a mark;" or, as the Seventy say, "God set a sign or wonder to Cain;" that is, He wrought a miracle to convince him, or satisfy him, that whoever met him should not kill him. The murder of Abel was not long before the birth of Seth, (see ver. 25,) which was about the year of the world 130. So that at that time the earth was greatly peopled. Bp. Wilson.

16. — from the presence of the Lord,] It is the opinion of many commentators that there was a Divine Glory, called by the Jews the SHECHINAH, which appeared from the beginning; the sight of which Cain never after this time enjoyed, but was banished from it. And God withdrawing His gracious presence from him, he was also forsaken by God, and put out of His special protection. Bp. Patrick.

In the persons of these two brothers, whose history is recorded as an example "for our admonition," are characterized the two opposite spirits, that have ever since divided the world between them, and will continue to do so, till the consummation of all things; that is to say, the humble, obedient, and suffering spirit of faith; and the haughty, rebellious, and persecuting spirit of infidelity. He, who would be remembered with the children of God, must copy the example of Abel: he who chooses to have his portion with the seed of the evil one, may go "in the way of Cain." Bp. Horne.

— the land of Nod,] Or of exile, to which Cain retired with his wife, is generally reckoned by the Oriental geographers to have been the low country of Susiana, or Chusistan. Dr. Hales.

19. And Lamech took unto him two wives:] Polygamy was a deviation from the first institution of marriage, Gen. ii. 24. It was brought into use by Cain's offspring; though it was afterwards allowed to the Israelites, as was divorce also in some cases, "for the hardness of their hearts." Bp. Kidder.

It is likely that Lamech was the first who ventured to transgress the original institution, which was observed even by the Cainites till this time. Dr. Allix.

20. — he was the father] The Hebrews call him the "father" of any thing, who was the first inventor of it; or a most excellent master of that art. Bp. Patrick.

It demonstrates the superintendence of the great Creator and Conservator of the world, that things of great and absolutely necessary use have soon and easily occurred to the invention of man; but things of little use, or of very dangerous use, are rarely and slowly discovered, or still utterly undiscovered. We have, as early as the Mosaic history, an account of the inventions of the more useful crafts and occupations: thus, Gen. iii. 23, Adam was sent "forth from the garden of Eden" by God Himself "to till

Before CHRIST about 3875. he was the father of all such as handle the harp and organ.

† Heb. schetter. 22 And Zillah, she also bare Tubal-cain, an †instructor of every artificer in brass and iron: and the sister of Tubal-cain was Naamah.

23 And Lamech said unto his wives, Adah and Zillah, hear my voice; ye wives of Lamech, hearken unto my speech: for † I have slain a man to my wounding, and a young man † to my hurt.

24 If Cain shall be avenged sevenfold, truly Lamech seventy and sevenfold.

25 ¶ And Adam knew his wife again; and she bare a son, and called his name † Seth: For God, said she, hath appointed me another seed instead of Abel, whom Cain slew.

26 And to Seth, to him also there was born a son; and he called his name † Enos: then began men † to call upon the name of the LORD.

C H A P. V.

1 The genealogy, age, and death of the patriarchs from Adam unto Noah. 24 The godliness and translation of Enoch.

THIS is the ^a book of the generations of Adam. In the day that God created ^a 4004. ^a 1 Chron. 1. 1.

2 ^b Male and female created he them; and blessed them, and called their name Adam, in the day when they were created. ^b Wisd. 2. 22.

3 ¶ And Adam lived an hundred and thirty years, and begat a son in his own likeness, after his image; and called his name Seth: 3874.

the ground." And in the next chapter his two sons, Cain and Abel; the one was of the same occupation, "a tiller of the ground," the other, "a keeper of sheep." And the posterity of these are in the latter end of Gen. iv. recorded; Jabel, to have been "the father of such as dwell in tents;" that is, he was the inventor of tents, and of pitching those moveable houses in the fields, for looking after and depasturing their cattle in the deserts and uncultivated world. Tubal-Cain was "an instructor of every artificer in brass and iron;" or the first that found out the art of melting and malleating metals, and making them useful for tools and other necessary implements. And his sister Naamah, whose name is only mentioned, is by some thought to have been the inventor of spinning and clothing. Yea, the very art of musick is thus early ascribed to Jubal: so indulgent was the Creator, to find means to divert melancholy, to cheer the spirits, and to entertain and please mankind. Dr. Derham.

23. And Lamech said unto his wives, &c.] The occasion of this speech of Lamech's not being revealed, it cannot be reasonably expected that any man should positively determine the full sense of it. Thus much seems plain, that they are vaunting words, intimating his expectation of God's extraordinary regard to him, (though he had killed, or should kill, a man, as Cain did,) many times beyond what God shewed to Cain, as appears from ver. 24. He seems from Cain's indemnity to encourage himself in his violence and wickedness. Bp. Kidder.

The words should be read as a question, Have I slain a man? or so much as a boy? that you should be afraid of my life? It seems the use of weapons being found out by one of Lamech's sons, and grown common, his wives apprehended that some body or other might make use of them to slay him. But he bids them comfort themselves, for he was not guilty of slaying any body himself, and therefore might reasonably hope no body would hurt him. And then the meaning of the next verse is easy. "If Cain shall be avenged sevenfold, truly Lamech seventy and sevenfold." If God hath guarded Cain so strongly, who was a murderer, as to threaten great and long punishments to those that slay him; he will punish them far more, and pursue them with a longer vengeance, who shall slay me, being a guiltless person. Bp. Patrick.

It should seem that Lamech endeavours to reason his family out of fears which were entertained by the descendants of Cain, lest the family of Adam should revenge Abel's death upon them. Shuckford.

25. — called his name Seth:] The word signifies appointed, or substituted. Eve gave this son the name of Seth, because she looked on him as appointed by God to be what Cain, she thought, should have been, till God rejected his sacrifice, and he slew Abel. In whose room she believed God had substituted this son to be the seed, from whom the Redeemer of the world should come. Dr. Allix.

26. — he called his name Enos:] Signifying the weak and miserable condition of mankind, which he seemed, by giving him this name, to deplore. Bp. Patrick.

— then began men to call upon the name of the Lord.] This does not import, that men did not "call upon the Lord," which includes all His worship and service, before this time; but that now they were awakened to be more serious and frequent in religious offices: or rather, they began to hold more publick assemblies; for families being now multiplied, to which religion was before confined, they joined together and met in larger societies and communion, for the solemn worship of God by sacrifices and other religious services.

But it being scarce credible, that publick assemblies were not held long before this, some men of note follow our marginal translation, "then began men (that is, the children of Seth) to call themselves by the name of the Lord;" that is, the servants or worshippers of the Lord, in distinction from the Cainites, and such profane persons as had forsaken Him. Bp. Patrick.

Moses, in this short account of what passed before the flood, takes no notice of the institution of sacrifices, of the observation of the sabbath, of prayer, of the rules of virtue and morality, no doubt given to Adam; these being received duties, known and practised by all good men from the beginning. Bp. Wilson.

Chap. V. ver. 1. This is the book of the generations of Adam.] That is, Here follows a catalogue of the posterity of Adam. So the word "book" signifies, in Matt. i. 1, an account of those, from whom Christ the "second Adam" came; as here an account of those who came from the "first Adam." Yet not of all; but of the principal persons, by whom, in a right line, the succession was continued down to Noah, and Abraham, the father of the faithful, and so to the Messiah. As for the collateral lines, which, no doubt, were very many, by the other sons and daughters of the persons here mentioned, they are omitted: because no more was pertinent to Moses's purpose. Bp. Patrick.

— in the likeness of God] This is again mentioned, to remind men how highly God had honoured them, and how shamefully they had requited Him. Bp. Patrick.

2. — called their name Adam,] Or Man. The common name to both sexes; like Homo in Latin, &c. Bp. Patrick.

3. And Adam lived an hundred and thirty years,] For the more speedy propagation of mankind, for the quicker increase of arts and sciences, and that the knowledge of religion might with the greater certainty be established and conveyed down to posterity, it pleased the Divine Providence to prolong the lives of men before the flood to a much greater age than they have ever since been. Pyle.

— in his own likeness, after his image;] Not so perfect as himself, when he was created; but with those imperfections which impaired him, after he had eaten the forbidden fruit; that is, inclined to sin, and subject to death. For "his own likeness and 3774.

Before
CHRIST
1 Chron.
1. 1, &c.

4 And the days of Adam after he had begotten Seth were eight hundred years: and he begat sons and daughters:

5 And all the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years: and he died.

3769.
† Heb.
Enosh.

6 And Seth lived an hundred and five years, and begat † Enos:

7 And Seth lived after he begat Enos eight hundred and seven years, and begat sons and daughters:

8 And all the days of Seth were nine hundred and twelve years: and he died.

3679.
† Heb.
Kenan.

9 ¶ And Enos lived ninety years, and begat † Cainan:

10 And Enos lived after he begat Cainan eight hundred and fifteen years, and begat sons and daughters:

11 And all the days of Enos were nine hundred and five years: and he died.

3609.
† Gr.
Methuselah.

12 ¶ And Cainan lived seventy years, and begat † Mahalaleel:

13 And Cainan lived after he begat Mahalaleel eight hundred and forty years, and begat sons and daughters:

14 And all the days of Cainan were nine hundred and ten years: and he died.

3544.
† Heb.
Jered.

15 ¶ And Mahalaleel lived sixty and five years, and begat † Jared:

16 And Mahalaleel lived after he begat Jared eight hundred and thirty years, and begat sons and daughters:

17 And all the days of Mahalaleel were

Before
CHRIST
3382.

eight hundred ninety and five years: and he died.

18 ¶ And Jared lived an hundred sixty and two years, and he begat Enoch:

19 And Jared lived after he begat Enoch eight hundred years, and begat sons and daughters:

20 And all the days of Jared were nine hundred sixty and two years: and he died.

21 ¶ And Enoch lived sixty and five years, and begat † Methuselah: 3317.
† Gr.
Methuselah.

22 And Enoch walked with God after he begat Methuselah three hundred years, and begat sons and daughters:

23 And all the days of Enoch were three hundred sixty and five years:

24 And † Enoch walked with God: and he was not; for God took him. 4 Ecc1st 44. 16.
Hebr. 11. 5.

25 And Methuselah lived an hundred eighty and seven years, and begat † Lamech: 3130.
† Heb.
Lamech.

26 And Methuselah lived after he begat Lamech seven hundred eighty and two years, and begat sons and daughters:

27 And all the days of Methuselah were nine hundred sixty and nine years: and he died.

28 ¶ And Lamech lived an hundred eighty and two years, and begat a son:

29 And he called his name † Noah, saying, This same shall comfort us concerning our work and toil of our hands, because of the ground which the LORD hath cursed. 2948.
† Gr. Noe.

30 And Lamech lived after he begat image," wherein this son was begotten, seems to be opposed to the likeness and image of God, wherein Adam was made; and which, though not quite lost, was lamentably defaced. Bp. Patrick.

22. And Enoch walked with God] That is, was a religious man: he pleased God, and had therefore a true faith in Him, (Heb. xi. 5, 6,) and a firm belief of future rewards, Jude ver. 14, 15. Bp. Kidder. Enoch "walked with God" in the way of His commandments and ordinances: such was the effect and evidence of his faith, which "saw Him," who is otherwise "invisible," ever present to his soul, and "set the Lord always before him," as the inspector of all his ways. Bp. Horne.

24. —he was not;] Moses doth not say, that he died; as he doth of the rest in this chapter, both before and after; but that he "was not" any longer among men in this world; for "God took him," or translated him to another place. Which plainly signifies the different manner of his leaving this world; inasmuch that the Apostle saith, "he did not see death," Heb. xi. 5. Bp. Patrick.

God translated him either in soul or body, or both, to a place and state of happiness:—a most convincing argument and proof of a life after this; and sufficient, one would have thought, to have silenced the Sadducees, who received this book: but they had hardened their hearts. God gave the world this instance, perhaps to convince them, how He would have dealt with Adam, and all his posterity, had they continued in obedience to His command. Bp. Wilson.

"It is appointed unto all men once to die:" this is the general rule; but we meet with an exception to it in the case of Enoch; and another in that of Elijah. Thus it pleased God to vouchsafe the world two rehearsals of the ascension of the holy Jesus: one for the building up of those before the law, the other, of those under the law, in the faith of that great and important article; and both, that we of these latter days might admire the wisdom of God in foreshewing what hath been accomplished, and adore His mercy and power in the accomplishment of what was foreshown. Bp. Horne.

—God took him.] At the time appointed by the Father for the accomplishment of Enoch's prophecy, when the Lord shall come to judgment with ten thousand of His saints, Jude ver. 14; that which was foreshown by the translation of Enoch, and fulfilled in the ascension of the natural body of Christ, shall be brought to pass likewise in His mystical body, the Church, and the members thereof. They shall "not be found" in the ruins of a burning world, because God shall have "translated" them to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for them. This is but the completion of that great work begun in them by the Spirit of God in this life, renewing and transforming their souls by hearty repentance, lively faith, and fervent charity; by prayer, and fasting, and almsdeeds; by holy mourning, and pious meditation; by reading, hearing, and communicating; thus training them up by the means of grace to the hope of glory. Blessed and holy is he, who hath part in this first "translation" from sin to righteousness, the sure pledge and earnest of the second from dust to glory. Bp. Horne.

29. —he called his name Noah,] Which signifies rest; or refreshment, which proceeds from rest and quiet: because, as his father foretold of him, "This same shall comfort us." Some think that

^{Before}
CHRIST
^{2353.} Noah five hundred ninety and five years, and begat sons and daughters:

31 And all the days of Lamech were seven hundred seventy and seven years: and he died.

^{2448.} 32 And Noah was five hundred years old: and Noah begat Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

CHAP. VI.

1 The wickedness of the world, which provoked God's wrath, and caused the flood. 8 Noah findeth grace. 14 The order, form, and end of the ark.

AND it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them,

2 That the sons of God saw the daugh-his father expected him to be the promised Seed. In fact, he brought "comfort" and "rest" to mankind, by improving the art of husbandry, and so easing men as to the toil of their hands; by planting a vineyard, and finding out the art of making wine, which cheers the heart and revives the spirits of men, that are spent with labour; and by restoring the world, after it had been dispeopled by the flood, and upon his oblations receiving the assurance that "God would not again curse the ground any more for man's sake." Bps. Patrick and Kidder, Dr. Wells.

32. — and Noah begat Shem, Ham, and Japheth.] Of these three sons, the eldest was Japheth, as appears from chap. x. 21, the second was Shem, from x. 21, and the youngest Ham, from ix. 24. Nevertheless both here, and a little lower, Shem is named first; whether it was that the rights of primogeniture were transferred to him, though the sacred historian says nothing of it; or that God was minded thus early to show that He would not be confined to the order of nature in the disposal of His favours, which He frequently bestowed upon the younger children; or, what I think the most likely, because the nation of the Jews were to descend from him; and he and his posterity were to be the principal subject of this whole history. Stackhouse.

Chap. VI. ver. 2. — the sons of God] There are two famous interpretations of these words, besides that of some of the ancients, who took them to mean angels. Some understand by "the sons of God," the great men, nobles, rulers, and judges; who, being captivated with the beauty of "the daughters of men," that is, of the meaner sort, took by force and violence as many as they pleased.

But there are other ancient interpreters, and most of the later, who by "the sons of God" understand the posterity of Seth, who were worshippers of the true God, chap. iv. 26, and who now "saw," or conversed with, "the daughters of men," that is, the daughters of the ungodly race of Cain. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

— of all which they chose.] Whomsoever they liked, without regard to any thing else but their beauty. It is supposed, that the Cainites spent their time in feasting, musick, dancing, and sports: this allured the children of Seth to come down from the mountainous country, which under a solemn injunction from their godly forefathers they inhabited; and marry with the descendants of Cain. The consequence was all manner of impurity, impiety, idolatry, rapine, and violence. For "evil communications" naturally "corrupt good manners." And so the example of the wicked prevailed, and by degrees consumed, with few exceptions, all remains of religion in the posterity of Seth. Moses takes notice of these things, that he may give the reason why the descendants of Seth, even those who sprung from that holy man Enoch, except Noah and his family, were overwhelmed with the deluge, as well as the family of Cain. Stackhouse.

These daughters of Cain proved to the sons of Seth what the Moabitish women were afterwards to the children of Israel, and what women of bad principles always have been, and always will ters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose.

3 And the LORD said, My spirit shall not always strive with man, for that he also is flesh: yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years.

4 There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men which were of old, men of renown.

5 ¶ And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his ^a heart was only evil † continually.

^{Before}
CHRIST
^{2448.}

^{2469.}
¶ Or, the whole imagination. The Hebrew word signifieth not only the imagination, but also the purposes and desires.
^a Ch. 8. 21. Matt. 15. 19.
† Heb. every day.

be, to men of good ones, who are no wiser than to contract alliances with them in their state of error and delusion. Bp. Horne.

3.—My spirit] Either speaking by His prophets, such as Enoch had been, and Noah was; or, working inwardly in all men's hearts. "Shall not always strive with man," chide and reprove them, and thereby endeavour to bring them to repentance; but proceed to punish them. "For that he also is flesh;" for that, besides his wicked actions, he is grown wholly fleshly in his inclinations and affections. He savours nothing but carnal things, and consequently is incurable. "Yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years;" yet I will not destroy mankind presently; but have patience with them so long, that it may appear I would willingly have saved them. Bp. Patrick.

The time of the primary denunciation of this sad judgment was no less than 120 years before it came. Which was, I suppose, the time, that "the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing," 1 Pet. iii. 20; and while Noah himself, the great "preacher of righteousness," warned them of the certainty and greatness of this impending calamity. Whiston.

As it was with the world in the days of Noah, so will it be also in the days of the Son of man, and so is it in the present days with nations and individuals. They have their times and their seasons of trial and probation, and they have their warnings: after which the ax is laid to the root of the tree, and nothing in heaven or in earth can stay for one moment the uplifted hand of Justice from striking the fatal stroke. Open then, blessed Lord, our eyes, that we may see the things which belong unto our peace, before they are hid for ever from our sight! Bp. Horne.

4. There were giants in the earth in those days;] It is not agreed upon by interpreters, whether Moses intended, by this phrase, to express the uncommon stature and bulkiness of these men; or the cruelty, rapine, and violence of their dispositions and practices, describing them as thieves, robbers, and oppressors. Pyle.

They were giants, of the property of giants: not that they were greater men of stature and strength of body, than other men were; but they were "giants" for their cruelty, violence, and covetous oppression. Bp. Latimer.

From the marriages of the sons of Seth with the daughters of Cain sprang a race of men, who, whatever they were as to stature, became overgrown monsters of apostasy, impiety, and iniquity: so that in process of time the earth was totally overspread with "corruption" and "violence" of all kinds. Bp. Horne.

5. And God saw] That is, when the merciful space of "an hundred and twenty years," allowed for man's repentance, was expired. Pyle.

— every imagination &c.] All the secret thoughts and purposes of his mind were always bent upon evil. Not only the practices of men were evil, (as it is said, "God saw that the wickedness of man was great,") but the principles, from whence those actions flowed, were generally corrupted also. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
2469.

6 And it repented the Lord that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his heart.

† Heb.
from man unto beast.

7 And the Lord said, I will destroy man whom I have created from the face of the earth; † both man, and beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air; for it repenteth me that I have made them.

While principles remain, practices may be altered and amended: but those once gone, there remains no farther hope of a reformation, because there is then nothing to ground one upon. Let this be a warning to all, who would avert the judgments of God, that they spare no time or pains in fixing Christian principles in the hearts of those for whom they are concerned. Bp. Horne.

This is a description of an extraordinary degeneracy of men, signifying that the world was then extremely bad, and depraved to the highest degree. God gives this as a reason, why He was resolved to drown the world, and to "destroy man from the face of the earth," because their wickedness was grown to so great an height. Abp. Tillotson.

6. And it repented the Lord &c.] God can properly neither repent, nor be grieved. But such expressions signify He resolved to do, as men do; who, when they repent of any thing, endeavour to undo it. Bp. Patrick.

As the conversion of a sinner is said to cause "joy in heaven," so here, to shew the exceeding love of God towards us, and His unwillingness that any should perish, He is represented as "repenting that He had made man, and being grieved at His heart." Thus an all-merciful God is pleased to represent Himself as feeling for us, what we, alas! do not feel for ourselves, or for one another. Bp. Horne.

It is manifest, that this is only an emphatical way of expression, to signify God's just displeasure at the great and universal wickedness of mankind, and at their having so far fallen from the noble end of their creation: and that therefore, after having tried the methods of indulgence towards them, He saw fit to send a destructive deluge for exterminating that incorrigible race. And it is plain, that according to the doctrine of the sacred writings, which every where represent God as foreknowing the actions of men, this corruption of mankind was what He foresaw from the beginning; and the punishing of them in this manner made a part of the original scheme of Divine Providence, though it did not actually take effect till the proper time came for executing it. Dr. Leland.

The following observations from Stackhouse apply to a variety of passages in the sacred volume, and are well worthy of the attention of the reader: "When the holy Scriptures speak of God, they ascribe hands, and eyes, and feet to Him; not that He has any of these members, according to the literal signification; but the meaning is, that He has a power to execute all those acts, to the effecting of which these parts in us are instrumental: that is, He can converse with men, as well as if He had a tongue or mouth; can discern all that we do or say, as perfectly as if He had eyes and ears; and can reach us as well as if He had hands or feet, &c. In like manner, the Scripture frequently represents Him, as affected with such passions, as we perceive in ourselves; namely, as angry and pleased, loving and hating, repenting and grieving, &c. and yet upon reflection we cannot suppose, that any of these passions can literally affect the Divine Nature: and therefore the meaning is, that He will as certainly punish the wicked, as if He were inflamed with the passion of anger against them; as infallibly reward the good, as we will those, for whom we have a particular affection: and that, when He finds any alteration in His creatures, either for the better or the worse, He will as surely change His dispensations towards them, as if He really repented or changed His mind. It is by way of analogy and comparison therefore, that the nature and passions of men are ascribed to God: so that when He is said to repent or grieve, the meaning must be, not that He perceived any thing, that He was ignorant of before, to give Him any uneasiness; (for "known unto God are all His works from the beginning;") but only that He altered His conduct with regard to men, as they varied in their behaviour towards Him, just as we are wont to do, when we are moved by any of these passions and changes of affection."

8 But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord. Before CHRIST 2469.

9 ¶ These are the generations of Noah: ^{2448.} Noah was a just man and ^{b Ecclⁱⁱⁱ 44.} perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God. ^{17.} ^{2 Pet. 2. 5.} ^{¶ Or,} ^{upright.}

10 And Noah begat three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

Dr. Leland has noticed upon this subject the observation of a deistical writer, that "we must speak of God after the manner of men:" and the remarkable concession of another, that "was not God to be represented by expressions, which, literally understood, attribute to Him human passions and actions, they, who by their occupations in the world, are incapable of those more just ideas, which men of thought know to belong to that Being, would perhaps think Him incapable of taking cognizance of their actions. And therefore to make a revelation useful and credible in itself, it must consist of words whose literal meaning is false, but whose real meaning is consistent with the justest notions of reason and philosophy."

8. But Noah found grace] The phrase here means, obtained favour. Compare Heb. xi. 7. Bp. Kidder. This single person God resolved to spare, because (as it follows) he continued untainted in the midst of an universal contagion. Bp. Patrick.

9. These are the generations of Noah:] This is an account of his family: or, these are the things which befell him and his family. Bp. Patrick.

— Noah was a just man &c.] Had not the same Spirit by St. Peter, 2 Pet. ii. 5, told us that he was "a preacher of righteousness," we should not have known it. This shews, that a great many things in this short account, which Moses gives, are omitted. Noah, having been convinced of God's hatred to sin by his own deliverance, and the punishment of the former world, no doubt took all imaginable pains, and became a great "preacher of righteousness" to the new world as well as to the old. Bp. Wilson.

— perfect in his generations,] He was an upright and sincere man, and unblamable in the midst of a wicked and ungodly world. Bp. Kidder.

"Perfect," not as the holy Jesus was perfect, or as "the spirits of just men" are to be made perfect in heaven; but with such perfection as man can attain unto in this his state of pilgrimage. Bp. Horne.

Sincerity, or integrity of heart, is that which God is pleased to accept of in the new covenant, instead of perfection, and is frequently called by that name: as where Noah is said to be "a just man and perfect," Gen. vi. 9, and Job to be a "perfect and upright" man, chap. i. 1; that is, they were cordial and sincere in all their duties to God, serving Him in holiness and righteousness before Him or in His sight all their days, Luke i. 75. Thus God Himself seems to explain the word, when He ratified and confirmed the new covenant with Abram, saying, "Walk before Me, and be thou perfect," Gen. xvii. 1. As if He had said, "Walk always as in my sight, so as to keep thy heart right and sincere before Me, and then by the covenant, which I now establish with thee, thou shalt be perfect, for I will accept of thee as such." Bp. Beveridge.

— and Noah walked with God.] It is of unspeakable advantage to possess our minds with an habitual good intention, and to aim all our thoughts, words, and actions at some laudable end, whether it be the glory of our Maker, the good of mankind, or the benefit of our own souls. A person, who is possessed with such an habitual good intention, enters upon no single circumstance of life, without considering it as wellpleasing to the Author of his being, conformable to the dictates of reason, suitable to human nature in general, or to that particular station in which Pro-

Before
CHRIST
2443.

11 The earth also was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence.

12 And God looked upon the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth.

13 And God said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; and, behold, I will destroy them || with the earth.

|| Or, from the earth.

vidence has placed him. He lives in a perpetual sense of the Divine Presence, regards himself as acting, in the whole course of his existence, under the observation and inspection of that Being, who is privy to all his motions and all his thoughts, who knows his "downsitting and his uprising, who is about his path, and about his bed, and spieth out all his ways." In a word, he remembers that the eye of his Judge is always upon him, and in every action he reflects that he is doing what is commanded or allowed by Him, who will hereafter either reward or punish it. This was the character of those holy men of old, who in that beautiful phrase of Scripture are said to have "walked with God." Addison.

This was said before of Enoch; and it denotes that general and habitual course of religion and piety which he led: not only in preaching righteousness to the old world, but in preaching it on every occasion in his own life and conversation: as a light and example, as well as an instructor to others. In a word, it denotes that uniform obedience, which we all promise in our holy vow at Baptism, and almost in the same words, "the keeping of God's holy will and commandments, and walking in the same all the days of our life." Wogan.

11. The earth also was corrupt] It is remarkable that our Lord, speaking of this generation, chiefly insists upon their carnality, or worldly-mindedness, as the door at which all other abominations entered. "In the days of Noah," says he, "they were eating and drinking, marrying, and giving in marriage:" thereby intimating, that when we see a people wholly immersed in the cares of the world, and the pleasures of sense, regardless of that heavenly country to which they are travelling, it is a sure sign of approaching destruction. So was it in the days of Noah: so was it in the days of Lot: and so shall it be in the days of the Son of man. Let every reader of this examine his own heart in this particular, and take heed lest at any time it "be overcharged with surfeiting and drunkenness and cares of this life, and so that day," the day either of particular or general judgment, "come upon him unawares." Bp. Horne.

— violence.] Cruelty, and outrage, and injustice of every kind. Men were corrupt, that is, irreligious towards God; and unjust to one another. Bp. Kidder. Uncleanliness, covetousness, and oppression, were the special causes which occasioned the flood. Bp. Latimer.

In the period between the creation of the world and the flood, all mankind had, or might have had, a perfect knowledge of the will of God, and of their duty, had it not been their own fault: for Methuselah lived with Adam two hundred and forty-three years, and with Noah six hundred: so that no man needed to want information of the creation, &c. that had a mind to be informed. Bp. Wilson.

12. And God looked upon the earth,] The hundred and twenty years, allowed by God for mankind to repent, now drawing to an end, God is represented, as if in a special manner He "looked upon the earth" to see what use mankind had made of His gracious forbearance. Dr. Wells.

13. — The end of all flesh is come before me;] I am determined to make an end of, that is to destroy, all mankind shortly. Bp. Patrick.

Very many methods of mercy having been employed by God for the recovery of mankind, and especially "in the days, that His longsuffering waited, while the ark was a preparing," they amply vindicate the ways of God with man, and justify His severity in "bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly," which neither His restraints, nor rewards, nor all the monitions

14. ¶ Make thee an ark of gopher wood; Before
CHRIST
2443.
† rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and shalt pitch it within and without with † Heb.
pitch. nests.

15 And this is the fashion which thou shalt make it of: The length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits, the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty cubits.

and exhortations of His Prophets, added to His own declarations, institutions, inflictions and denunciations of vengeance could reclaim, in the course of many preceding centuries.

Other living creatures, it is true, were not culpable in this manner. They all answered the end of their production, and man was the only rebel against his Maker. But as, in an universal deluge, it was impossible to preserve them alive without a miracle; so having in some measure been made instrumental to man's wickedness, innocent though they were, they were all to be destroyed, in order to evince the malignity of sin, and God's abhorrence of it. For the great end of His providence in sending the deluge was not so much to "ease Himself of His adversaries," as to leave a perpetual monument of His unrelenting severity; that thereby He might deter future ages from the like provocations. For this is the inference which the Apostle draws from all His judgments of old: "If God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell; if He spared not the old world, but brought in a flood upon the ungodly; if He turned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes, and condemned them with an overthrow; these are an example unto those, that after shall live ungodly, that," however they may escape in this life, "He hath reserved the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished," 2 Pet. ii. 4, &c. Stackhouse.

14. Make thee an ark] This vessel was not made in the form of one of our ships or boats, sharp forward and at the bottom to cut the waves, but broad at the ends, like a chest, and flat at the bottom, with a cover or a roof. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

The Hebrew word, which we render ark, occurs only here, and in another place, where Moses, when an infant, is said to have been put into one made of bulrushes, Exod. ii. 3. It is supposed to come from a root, which signifies to dwell or inhabit, and may therefore here denote a house or place of abode. Stackhouse.

— gopher wood;] Probably cypress; which abounded in Babylonia, and was a durable timber fit for ship building. The bitumen also, with which the ark was pitched both inside and outside, abounded in Babylonia, which probably was the country of Noah's residence; not far, we may presume, from the original settlement of Adam's family, in the neighbourhood of Eden, after the fall. Dr. Hales.

— rooms shalt thou make] Little cabins or cells, to sever the beasts from the birds; the clean beasts from the unclean; and to preserve their several kinds of food. Bp. Patrick.

15. And this is the fashion &c.] When one sees with what unconcernedness Moses relates the dimensions of the ark, which at first view seems too little for such a number of creatures and provisions as it was to hold; and this without explaining himself, whereas a writer of his own head would have taken pains to obviate difficulties and explain them;—this is a sure proof that Moses wrote just as he was inspired to write; and afterages, notwithstanding all objections of infidels, have found all most agreeable to truth and the reason of things. Bp. Wilson.

— The length of the ark &c.] The dimensions of the ark were 300 cubits in length, 50 in breadth, and 30 in height: and it consisted of three stories or floors. Reckoning the cubit at 18 inches, it must have been of the burden of 42,413 tons. A first rate man of war is between 2,200 and 2,300 tons; and consequently the ark had the capacity or stowage of 18 such ships, the largest in present use, and might carry 20,000 men with provisions for six months, besides the weight of 1800 cannons and of all military stores. It was then by much the largest ship ever built. Can we doubt of its being sufficient to contain eight per-

Before
CHRIST
2448.

16 A window shalt thou make to the ark, and in a cubit shalt thou finish it above; and the door of the ark shalt thou set in the side thereof; with lower, second, and third stories shalt thou make it.

17 And, behold, I, even I, do bring a flood of waters upon the earth, to destroy all flesh, wherein is the breath of life, from under heaven; and every thing that is in the earth shall die.

18 But with thee will I establish my covenant; and thou shalt come into the ark, thou, and thy sons, and thy wife, and thy sons' wives with thee.

sons, and about 200 or 250 pair of fourfooted animals; (a number, to which, according to Buffon, all the various distinct species may be reduced;) together with all the subsistence necessary for a twelvemonth? Dr. Hales.

— cubits.] The Hebrews made use of three sorts of cubits: 1. The common cubit, which was about one foot and a half of our measure. 2. The sacred cubit, which was a hand's breadth more than the common cubit. 3. The geometrical cubit, which was about nine feet. The ark is to be measured by the common cubit. The standard of the common cubit was that part of a man's arm, which reaches from the bend of the elbow to the point of the middle finger. If we think the stature of mankind in Moses' time larger than it is now, we may suppose the common cubit something larger than we shall now compute it: if not, the strict measure of the ark will be, length 450 feet, breadth 75, height 45: and the best writers generally agree, that the common stature of mankind has always been much the same that it now is. Shuckford.

16. A window shalt thou make] To let in light to the several apartments. For which purpose should we conceive that one great window might be contrived so as to be sufficient, that would not exclude many little ones, here and there, for greater convenience. Bp. Patrick.

— and in a cubit shalt thou finish it above;] It, that is, the ark; which was covered with a roof, raised a cubit high in the middle to carry off the rain. Stackhouse.

— with lower, second, and third stories] The lower story was probably for the greater beasts; the second for stowage of provisions; the third for Noah's family, and the fowls, and perhaps some of the smaller creatures. Bp. Kidder.

17. And, behold, I, even I, do bring a flood of waters &c.] That is, all creatures shall unavoidably be swept away; for I Myself will bring a deluge upon them: not an ordinary flood; but one, of which I will appear to be the author. Bp. Patrick.

If we take the circuit of the globe, and inquire of the inhabitants of every climate, we shall find, that the fame of this deluge is gone through the earth; and that in every part of the known world there are certain records and traditions of it: that the Americans acknowledge and speak of it in their continent; that the Chinese, who are the most distant people in Asia, have the tradition of it; that the several nations of Africa tell various stories concerning it; and that in the European parts the flood of Deucalion is the same with that of Noah, only related with some disguise. So that we may trace the deluge quite round the globe; and, what is more remarkable still, every one of these people has a tale to tell, some one way, some another, concerning the restoration of mankind, which is a full proof, that they thought all mankind was once destroyed in that deluge. Stackhouse.

18. — with thee will I establish my covenant;] Either the promise to preserve him and his family in the ark; or the covenant concerning the promised Seed of the woman. Bp. Patrick.

Although this is the first place, where a "covenant" is expressly mentioned in Scripture, it appears, from the form of words

Before
CHRIST
2448.

19 And of every living thing of all flesh, two of every sort shalt thou bring into the ark, to keep them alive with thee; they shall be male and female.

20 Of fowls after their kind, and of cattle after their kind, of every creeping thing of the earth after his kind, two of every sort shall come unto thee, to keep them alive.

21 And take thou unto thee of all food that is eaten, and thou shalt gather it to thee; and it shall be for food for thee, and for them.

22 'Thus did Noah; according to all ^{c Heb. 11.} that God commanded him, so did he. ^{7.}

here used, to have subsisted before. It is not said, a covenant, but "My covenant will I establish with thee;" plainly referring to the same covenant, which God had made with Adam. As if God had said, "I do not revoke My covenant made with Adam, notwithstanding it hath, on man's part, been so grievously infringed; but I establish and confirm it to thee, and to all that shall descend from thee." The covenant, here spoken of, is not the first, but the second covenant; not the covenant of works, but that of grace and mercy, by which we are now saved, even the gospel of peace, and grand charter of our salvation: the person, spoken to, was Noah, not in his private capacity only, but in his publick character, as a second Adam, the head and representative of all mankind, and so the type and figure of Christ, the new man, who was to restore to the world that life which had been lost by the first: and the benefit, thus renewed and confirmed, was to extend to his posterity, to "him, and his sons, and his seed after him." Consequently as the grant is general, and without any limitation or reservation whatsoever, except what necessarily results from the nature of the covenant itself, namely, the terms and conditions on our part; and as God has likewise in the Gospel declared, that "He would have all men to be saved;" the miscarriage of no one soul can justly be imputed to Him: on His part of the covenant He has never failed, and never will: the default is wholly on the side of men, who reject the covenant when it is offered to them, or neglect the terms of it, and so forfeit the benefit. Wogan.

19. — two of every sort] Not that there shall be but two of any sort, (compare chap. vii. ver. 2,) but there must be two at least, namely, male and female, of every kind, ver. 20. Bp. Kidder.

20. — two of every sort shall come unto thee,] In the foregoing verse He had said, "two of every sort shalt thou bring into the ark." Which Noah might think impossible; for how should he get them all together? Therefore it is here explained in these words, they "shall come unto thee;" by the care of God, who made them, and moved them to it. Bp. Patrick.

22. Thus did Noah; according to all that God commanded him, &c.] The Apostle to the Hebrews, chap. xi. 7, mentions Noah's building the ark, as an heroic act of faith: "By faith, Noah being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark, to the saving of his house; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness, which is by faith." For, we may well imagine that this work of his was not only costly and laborious, but esteemed by the generality very foolish and ridiculous; especially when they saw all things continue in the same posture and safety, for so many scores of years together. Stackhouse.

The conduct of the Patriarch upon this occasion shows us what ours ought to be in like circumstances. "According to all that God commanded him, so did he." Being once well assured, upon good and sufficient evidence, what the will of God is, we should suffer no appearances of things, or opinions of men, to discourage and prevent us from accomplishing it, to the utmost of our ability.

Before
CHRIST
2349.

CHAP. VII.

Before
CHRIST
2349.

1 Noah, with his family, and the living creatures, enter into the ark. 17 The beginning, increase, and continuance of the flood.

2 Pet. 2.
5.

AND the ² LORD said unto Noah, Come thou and all thy house into the ark; for thee have I seen righteous before me in this generation.

† Heb. seven seven.

2 Of every clean beast thou shalt take to thee by † sevens, the male and his female: and of beasts that are not clean by two, the male and his female.

3 Of fowls also of the air by sevens, the male and the female; to keep seed alive upon the face of all the earth.

† Heb.
blot out.

4 For yet seven days, and I will cause it to rain upon the earth forty days and forty nights; and every living substance that I have made will I † destroy from off the face of the earth.

5 And Noah did according unto all that the LORD commanded him.

6 And Noah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters was upon the earth.

7 ¶ And Noah went in, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with him, into the ark, because of the waters of the flood.

8 Of clean beasts, and of beasts that are not clean, and of fowls, and of every thing that creepeth upon the earth,

9 There went in two and two unto Noah into the ark, the male and the female, as God had commanded Noah.

10 And it came to pass || after seven days, that the waters of the flood were upon the earth. || Or, on the seventh day.

11 ¶ In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, the seventeenth day of the month, the same day were all the fountains of the great deep broken up, and the || windows of heaven were opened. || Or,

12 And the rain was upon the earth forty floodgates. days and forty nights.

13 In the selfsame day entered Noah, and Shem, and Ham, and Japheth, the sons of Noah, and Noah's wife, and the three wives of his sons with them, into the ark;

14 They, and every beast after his kind,

The only question to be asked is—Hath God spoken it? This being resolved in the affirmative, the soul is to rest on His word and promise, as an anchor sure and stedfast, from which she should never suffer herself to be parted by all the doubts, difficulties, and objections in the world. In simplicity and godly sincerity let her do what she is commanded to do, waiting with patience the appointed time; and in the end God will be found true, though all men are liars. Bp. Horne.

Noah built the ark and laid up provisions for all creatures, as here directed, when the hundred and twenty years drew towards an end. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. VII. Noah had as perfect an account of whatever had happened since the Creation, as any man can have of what happened in the days of his own father and grandfather; or as any man can have of what happened sixty years ago: for Lamech, Noah's father, had conversed with Adam fifty-six years. Bp. Wilson.

Ver. 1. — for thee have I seen righteous before me in this generation. Thee only have I found, in this corrupt and depraved age, free from the common infection of wickedness, and sincere-hearted towards Me. Bp. Hall.

2. Of every clean beast The distinction between beasts, that were clean and unclean, being made by the law, has given some a colour to imagine, that Moses wrote this book, after his coming out of Egypt, and receiving of the law. But though with respect to man's food, the distinction between clean and unclean was not before the law, yet some were accounted fit for sacrifices, and others unfit, from the very first beginning; and then, unclean beasts in this place must denote such as are rapacious, which were not to be offered to God. In short, since the rite of sacrificing was before the flood, we may well suppose that this distinction also was before it: and we may suppose farther, that, as the rite was undoubtedly of God's institution, so the difference of clean and unclean creatures to be sacrificed, was of His appointment likewise. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

Many things, established afterwards in the law of Moses, obtained before that law, and were generally practised by the worshippers of God; for example: sacrifices, (chap. iv. 3, 4; viii. 20; xiii. 18,) the paying of tithe, (chap. xiv. 20,) circumcision, (chap. xvii. 11,) the right of primogeniture, (chap. xxv. 33,) making vows, (chap. xxviii. 20; xxxi. 13,) marrying the brother's wife, (chap. xxxviii. 8.) And some of those things, which Moses forbade, were forbidden before his law: as the eating of blood, and murder, which was a capital crime before the law, (chap. ix. 4, 6.) And there is no doubt, but the difference of clean and unclean beasts, with respect to sacrifice, was known and observed before the Law of Moses, and before the Flood. Bp. Kidder.

— by sevens. Seven couple, most probably; that they might have sufficient for sacrifice when they came out of the ark; and if need were, for food, if other provision did not hold out: at least for food after the flood, when God enlarged their former grant, chap. ix. 3. Bp. Patrick.

11. — were all the fountains of the great deep broken up. By "the great deep" is meant those waters that are contained in vast quantities within the bowels of the earth: which by some cause unknown to us were now made suddenly to gush out at several parts of the earth, where they either found or made a vent: the waters of the sea likewise at the same time breaking in upon the land. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

— and the windows of heaven were opened. By this must be understood the causing of the waters, which were suspended in the clouds, to fall upon the earth, not in ordinary showers, but in floods, or (as the Seventy translate it) in cataracts; of which travellers may have the truest notion, who have seen those prodigious falls of water, so frequent in the Indies, where the clouds many times do not break into drops, but fall with a terrible violence in a torrent. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

In the Scriptures, the heavens are said to be "opened" when it rains, and "shut" when rain is withholden, and the like. The original word here does not signify windows, according to the modern idea; but rather clefts, fissures, passages; these were opened, the clouds were rent, as we say. The waters, rising from beneath, met the rains descending from above; and uniting their forces, they deluged the world. Bp. Horne.

Some are puzzled to find water enough to form an universal deluge: to assist their endeavours it may be remarked, that was all that precipitated, which is dissolved in the air, it might probably be sufficient to cover the surface of the whole earth to the depth of above thirty feet. Bp. Watson.

12. And the rain was upon the earth forty days &c. It continued raining so long without any intermission. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
2349.

† Heb.
wing.

and all the cattle after their kind, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind, and every fowl after his kind, every bird of every † sort.

15 And they went in unto Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh, wherein is the breath of life.

16 And they that went in, went in male and female of all flesh, as God had commanded him: and the LORD shut him in.

17 And the flood was forty days upon the earth; and the waters increased, and bare up the ark, and it was lift up above the earth.

18 And the waters prevailed, and were increased greatly upon the earth; and the ark went upon the face of the waters.

19 And the waters prevailed exceedingly upon the earth; and all the high hills, that were under the whole heaven, were covered.

20 Fifteen cubits upward did the waters prevail; and the mountains were covered.

* Wisd. 10.
4.

21 ^b And all flesh died that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of beast, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and every man:

† Heb.

the breath of the spirit of life.

22 All in whose nostrils was the † breath of life, of all that was in the dry land, died.

23 And every living substance was de-

16. — and the Lord shut him in.] God, probably by the ministry of an angel, fastened and secured the door of the ark, into which Noah was entered, from the danger of the waters, as well as against the attempts of those, that might else have broken in upon him. Bp. Kidder.

17, 18. And the flood &c.] At the end of forty days the waters were come just high enough to lift the ark from the ground; and afterward increased so far as to carry it freely up and down, as the waves drove it. Pyle.

19. — all the high hills, that were under the whole heaven, were covered.] These words, and other passages, which say, that "all flesh died," ver. 21, prove the flood to have been universal. The truth is, there is every reason to suppose that the world was, at the least, full as well peopled as it is now; perhaps much more so: and that, to destroy its inhabitants, the inundation must have fallen upon every quarter, and encompassed the whole globe. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

20. Fifteen cubits upward did the waters prevail;] That is, about twenty-two feet and a half above the mountains. Whereas Moses assures us, that the waters prevailed fifteen cubits above the highest mountains, let the mountains themselves be appealed to for the truth of this assertion. Examine the highest eminences of the earth, and they all, with one accord, produce the spoils of the ocean, deposited upon them on that occasion; the shells and skeletons of sea-fish and sea-monsters of all kinds. The Alps, the Apennines, the Pyrenees, the Andes, and Atlas, and Ararat, every mountain of every region under heaven, from Japan to Mexico, all conspire in one uniform universal proof, that they all had the sea spread over their highest summits. Search the earth, and you will find the Moose-deer, natives of America, buried in Ireland; Elephants, natives of Asia and Africa, buried in the midst of England; Crocodiles, natives of the Nile, in the heart of Germany; shell-fish, never known in any but the American seas, together with entire skeletons of whales, in divers other countries;

stroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man, and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven; and they were destroyed from the earth: and ^cNoah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark.

Before
CHRIST
2349.

^c Wisd. 10.

4.
2 Pet. 2. 5.

24 And the waters prevailed upon the earth an hundred and fifty days.

CHAP. VIII.

1 The waters asswage. 4 The ark resteth on Ararat. 7 The raven and the dove. 15 Noah, being commanded, 18 goeth forth of the ark. 20 He buildeth an altar, and offereth sacrifice, 21 which God accepteth, and promiseth to curse the earth no more.

AND God remembered Noah, and every living thing, and all the cattle that was with him in the ark: and God made a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters asswaged;

2 The fountains also of the deep and the windows of heaven were stopped, and the rain from heaven was restrained;

3 And the waters returned from off the earth † continually: and after the end of the hundred and fifty days the waters were abated.

† Heb. going and returning.

4 And the ark rested in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day of the month, upon the mountains of Ararat.

and, what is more, trees and plants of various kinds, which are not known to grow in any region under heaven. All which are a perfect demonstration, that Moses's account of the deluge is uncontestably true. Stackhouse.

— the mountains were covered.] It appears upon examination that the highest mountain in the world is not more than four miles perpendicular. Bp. Stillingfleet.

21. And all flesh died.] "If God spared not the old world, but saved Noah, a preacher of righteousness, &c. the Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished," 2 Pet. ii. 4, &c.

"As it was in the days of Noah," saith our Saviour, so shall sinners be surprised in the midst of their security. Consider here, what was the consequence of a forgetfulness of God, a contempt of His laws, an abuse of His patience, and the turning of a deaf ear to the preachers of righteousness: a whole world of sinners, surprised by death and judgment, in the midst of the greatest security! Whether something like this is not the case of too many Christians, when death surprises them, is worthy of the consideration of every one who reads this history. Bp. Wilson.

Chap. VIII. ver. 1. And God remembered Noah,] This is spoken of God after the manner of men. The meaning is, that God shewed His care of Noah. We are said to remember that which we take care of. God is said to "remember," when He relieves and shows mercy, Heb. vi. 10; Ps. cxxxvi. 23. Bp. Kidder.

He remembered the promise He had made to Noah, of preserving him, and all that was with him in the ark. Dr. Wells.

— and God made a wind to pass over the earth,] Which by degrees drove back the waters into the several channels and caverns, whence they had broken out. Pyle.

4. — upon the mountains of Ararat.] That is, upon one of the mountains; as chap. xix. 29. "God overthrew the cities in which Lot dwelt;" that is, in one of which he dwelt, Judg. xii. 7.

Before
CHRIST
2349.

† Heb. were in going and decreasing.

5 And the waters † decreased continually until the tenth month: in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, were the tops of the mountains seen.

6 ¶ And it came to pass at the end of forty days, that Noah opened the window of the ark which he had made:

7 And he sent forth a raven, which went forth † to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth.

8 Also he sent forth a dove from him, to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground;

9 But the dove found no rest for the sole of her foot, and she returned unto him into the ark, for the waters were on the face of the whole earth: then he put forth his hand, and took her, and † pulled her in unto him into the ark.

10 And he stayed yet other seven days;

† Heb.
in going forth and returning.

† Heb. caused her to come.

"Jephthah was buried in the cities of Gilead;" that is, in one of the cities. Bp. Patrick.

Mount Ararat, according to Major Rennell's excellent map of the ancient Persian empire, (Geogr. of Herodotus, p. 229,) lies in 39° 30' North lat. and 40° 30' East long. nearly in the middle of the vast ridge of Taurus, that "stony girdle encompassing the earth," as aptly described by the Arabian Geographers, which runs eastward from Cilicia, through the whole extent of Asia; for Ararat lies nearly midway between the southern extremities of the Euxine and Caspian seas. Dr. Hales.

The Persians call mount Ararat Asis, or the happy mountain, on account of the choice which God made of it, to serve as a port for Noah's ark. The Armenians maintain by tradition, that, since Noah, no one has been able to climb this mountain, because it is perpetually covered with snow, which never melts, but to make room for some newly fallen: that Noah, when he left the ark, settled at Erivan, twelve leagues from Ararat; and that at a league from this city, in a very happy aspect, this Patriarch planted the vine, in a place, where at present there is excellent wine made. Calmel.

5. — were the tops of the mountains seen.] The ark by its weight settled on mount Ararat, while the top of the mountain, where it rested, was covered with water, and that several cubits high: so that the top of this mountain might not appear much before the tops of the other mountains. That the top of it was higher than the neighbouring ones, is probable from the ark's settling upon it. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

6. — window] Or, casement. It is not the same word, which is used chap. vi. 16. And most probably, (by comparing the word used here by the Chaldee, with Dan. vi. 10,) it is to be understood of some shut or casement; which, being easily removed, gave a prospect abroad, as well as a passage out for the raven, and dove; and for the rest of the fowls afterwards. Bp. Kidder.

7. — he sent forth a raven.] To make discovery, whether the earth was dry: for, if it were, the smell of the dead carcases, he knew, would allure it to fly away from the ark. Bp. Patrick.

— went forth to and fro.] In the Hebrew more plainly, going forth and returning. After many flights, finding nothing but water, it still betook itself to the ark; either entering into it, or sitting upon it: till at last, the waters being dried up, it returned no more: that is, fifty days after its first going forth. Bp. Patrick.

8. Also he sent forth a dove] As a proper creature to make farther discoveries; being of a strong flight, loving to feed on the ground, and pick up seeds, and constantly returning to its rest and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark;

11 And the dove came in to him in the evening; and, lo, in her mouth was an olive leaf pluckt off: so Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth.

12 And he stayed yet other seven days; and sent forth the dove; which returned not again unto him any more.

13 ¶ And it came to pass in the six hundredth and first year, in the first month, the first day of the month, the waters were dried up from off the earth: and Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and, behold, the face of the ground was dry.

14 And in the second month, on the seven and twentieth day of the month, was the earth dried.

15 ¶ And God spake unto Noah, saying,

Before
CHRIST
2349.

2348.

from the remotest places. This was seven days after he had sent forth the raven. Bp. Patrick.

10. And he stayed yet other seven days;] It appears by this, that on the seventh day Noah expected a blessing rather than on another day: it being the day devoted from the beginning to religious services. Having probably performed these services, he sent out the dove again on this day, as he had done before, with hope of good tidings. Bp. Patrick.

11. — in her mouth was an olive leaf] Some versions read "leaves;" others, "a branch;" perhaps "a sprig of olive leaves" was what the dove really brought to Noah. Hence the olive branch has ever been among the forerunners of peace, and chief of those emblems, by which a happy state of renovation and restoration to prosperity has been signified among mankind. Expos. Ind. Script. illust.

Dr. Chandler supposes, that the olive groves are the principal places for the shooting of birds; and he observes, that when the olive blackens, vast flights of doves, pigeons, thrushes, and other birds, repair to the olive groves for food: the connexion then between Noah's dove and an olive leaf is not at all unnatural.

The tops of olive trees might alone, possibly, be in view of the place, where the ark was then floating, though it is a tree of only a middling height; but if the dove saw a great number of other trees appear above the water, it was natural for it to repair to olive trees, where it had been wont to shelter itself, preferably to others, according to Dr. Chandler's account. Harmer.

We may be assured, that the ark was providentially wafted into Armenia; as that region seems to have been particularly well calculated for the reception of the Patriarch's family, and for the re-peopling of the world. The soil of the country was very fruitful; and especially of that part, where the Patriarch first made his descent: and we have the attestation of Strabo, that it produced the olive. The region styled Araratia was also very high, though it had fine plains and valleys between the mountains. A country of this nature and situation must, after the flood, have been soonest dried, and consequently the soonest habitable. And it seems, also, in an eminent degree to have contained every requisite for habitation. Bryant.

14. — in the second month, &c.] If their months were such as ours, twelve of which make 365 days, then Noah stayed in the ark a whole year and ten days, as appears by comparing this verse with chap. vii. 11. But if they were lunar months, which is most probable, then he was in the ark just one of our years, going out on the 365th day after his entrance into it. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
2348.

16 Go forth of the ark, thou, and thy wife, and thy sons, and thy sons' wives with thee.

17 Bring forth with thee every living thing that is with thee, of all flesh, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth; that they may breed abundantly in the earth, and be fruitful, and multiply upon the earth.

18 And Noah went forth, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with him:

† Heb.
families.

19 Every beast, every creeping thing, and every fowl, and whatsoever creepeth upon the earth, after their † kinds, went forth out of the ark.

20 ¶ And Noah builded an altar unto the Lord; and took of every clean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt offerings on the altar.

Basnage has given us the calendar of this melancholy year of Noah's confinement.

The year of the world's Creation, 1656.

Month

- I. September. Methuselah died at the age of 969 years.
- II. October. Noah and his family entered the ark.
- III. November the 17th. The fountains of the great deep were broken up.
- IV. December the 26th. The rain began, and continued forty days and forty nights.
- V. January. All the men and beasts, that were on the earth, were buried under the waters.
- VI. February. The rain continued.
- VII. March. The waters remained in their elevation, till the 27th, when they began to abate.
- VIII. April the 17th. The ark rested on mount Ararat, in Armenia.
- IX. May. They did nothing, while the waters were retreating.
- X. June the 1st. The tops of the mountains appeared.
- XI. July the 11th. Noah let go a raven.
the 18th. He let go a dove, which returned.
the 25th. He let go the dove again, which returned with an olive branch.
- XII. August the 2d. The dove went out the third time, and returned no more.
- I. September the 1st. The dry land appeared.
- II. October the 27th. Noah went out of the ark with his family. Stackhouse.

16. Go forth of the ark,] Though Noah saw that the earth was fit to be inhabited, he waited for God's order to go out of the ark, as he had for his entering into it. Bp. Patrick.

20. And Noah builded an altar unto the Lord;] A place, where a sacrifice or oblation was laid, when it was to be offered up. Here is the first express mention of an altar, though it is to be supposed there was one, upon which Cain and Abel offered, in the place appointed for Divine worship. Bp. Kidder.

Noah having been preserved from the flood by a miraculous providence, the first thing he did, was to offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving for his deliverance, and for God's faithfulness and truth, in continuing in him and in his posterity the blessing of the promised Seed. This was so acceptable to God, that it drew down a blessing upon the whole earth, and a promise, that it should never be destroyed again by water. Bp. Wilson.

21 And the Lord smelled † a sweet savour; and the Lord said in his heart, I will not again curse the ground any more for man's sake; for the ^a imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth; neither will I again smite any more every thing living, as I have done.

22 † While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease.

CHAP. IX.

1 God blesseth Noah. 4 Blood und murder are forbidden. 8 God's covenant, 13 signified by the rainbow. 11 Noah replenisheth the world, 20 planteth a vineyard, 21 is drunken, and mocked of his son, 25 curseth Canaan, 26 blesseth Shem, 27 prayeth for Japheth, 29 and dieth.

AND God blessed Noah and his sons, and said unto them, ^a Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth.

— burnt offerings] They were offerings, which were entirely burnt, Levit. vi. 9. Bp. Kidder.

21. And the Lord smelled a sweet savour;] This expression is used in great condescension to human thoughts and human language; and is intended to signify, that God was pleased with the piety and devout services of Noah and others, sacrificing to Him from a pure heart, as men are wont to be pleased with sweet odours. A comparison taken from things human serves in some measure to illustrate things divine: and though it is not exact, as none can be exact, yet it helps to convey a more lively and more affecting idea of the thing than could be given without it. "A sweetsmelling savour" is St. Paul's phrase in the New Testament also; where Christ is said to have "given Himself for us, an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweetsmelling savour," Eph. v. 2. Dr. Waterland. See note on chap. vi. 6.

— and the Lord said in his heart,] He determined or resolved in Himself. Bp. Patrick. Or, (as the Hebrew will bear,) to his heart, meaning the heart of Noah; that is, God spake comfortably to Noah. "To speak to the heart of a man," is, in the Scripture phrase, to comfort and speak kindly to him, Gen. xxxiv. 3; Is. xl. 2. Bp. Kidder.

— for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth;] Such a proclivity there is in men to evil, that if I should scourge them thus, as often as they deserve it, there would be no end of deluges. Or, the words may mean, "Though the imagination, &c."

Those words, "from his youth," signify a long rooted corruption, as appears from many places, Is. xlvii. 12, 15; Jer. iii. 25; Ezek. xxiii. 8, &c. Perhaps they may be extended so far as to signify from his mother's womb. Bp. Patrick.

22. While the earth remaineth, seedtime &c.] This word is our only security. Our only dependence is upon God. To Him therefore we ought to pray and give praise.

This seems to have been what Noah prayed for, and intended by his sacrifice; and this was granted. Bp. Wilson.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. And God blessed Noah and his sons, &c.] As He did our first parents. The blessing upon Noah and his offspring is more particularly expressed afterwards: first, in blessing them with increase, "Be fruitful, &c," ver. 7; secondly, restoring them to their dominion over the creatures, ver. 2; thirdly, allowing them the living creatures for food, ver. 3; fourthly, assuring them that He would take special care of their lives, ver. 5, 6; and lastly, that He would not destroy the earth by another flood, ver. 11. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
2348.

† Heb.
a savour of rest.
a Chap. 6. 5.
Matth. 15.
19.

† Heb.
as yet all the days of the earth.

a Chap. 1.
28. & s. 17.

Painted by Nicholas Poussin.

NOAH'S SACRIFICE.

Genesis ch. 8, vv. 20.

Published by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge Jan 1, 1814

Engraved by H. Morse.

Before
CHRIST
2348.

Before
CHRIST
2348.

2 And the fear of you and the dread of you shall be upon every beast of the earth, and upon every fowl of the air, upon all that moveth upon the earth, and upon all the fishes of the sea; into your hand are they delivered.

3 Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you; even as the ^bgreen herb have I given you all things.

4 ^c But flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof, shall ye not eat.

5 And surely your blood of your lives will I require; at the hand of every beast will I require it, and at the hand of man; at the hand of every man's brother will I require the life of man.

6 ^d Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: ^e for in the image of God made he man.

7 And you, be ye fruitful, and multiply; bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein.

8 ¶ And God spake unto Noah, and to his sons with him, saying,

9 And I, behold, I establish my covenant with you, and with your seed after you;

10 And, with every living creature that is with you, of the fowl, of the cattle, and of every beast of the earth with you; from all that go out of the ark, to every beast of the earth.

11 And ^f I will establish my covenant ^g Isai. 54. 9. with you; neither shall all flesh be cut off any more by the waters of a flood; neither shall there any more be a flood to destroy the earth.

12 And God said, This is the token of the covenant which I make between me and you and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations:

13 I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth.

3. Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you;] Here the first grant made to mankind concerning food is enlarged. The first legislation granted them the use of fruits; but now they are permitted to eat of all living creatures as freely, as formerly of all the fruits of the garden. This is the general sense of the Jews, and of the Christian Fathers, and of the first Reformers. Bp. Patrick.

4. But flesh with the life thereof, &c.] As the criterion of judging of the aptitude of animals for food was declared to be their moving and having life, a danger appeared of misinterpretation, and that these creatures should be used living; a thing, which God by no means intended: and therefore immediately after, it is said, "But flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof, shall ye not eat;" or, as it is explained by the best interpreters, Flesh, or members torn from living animals, having the blood in them, thou shalt not eat. We see by this prohibition, that the abuse of eating living meat, or part of animals while yet alive, was known in the days of Noah, and forbidden after being known: and it is precisely what is practised in Abyssinia to this day. This law then was prior to that of Moses, but it came from the same Legislator. It was given to Noah, and consequently obligatory upon the whole world. Moses, however, insists upon it throughout his law. He positively prohibits it four times in one chapter of Deuteronomy, chap. xii, and thrice in one of the chapters of Leviticus, chap. xvii. Bruee.

Another reason perhaps was, that God intending in aftertimes to reserve the blood for the expiation of sin, required this early abstinence from it, that men might be the better prepared to submit to that law, and understand the reason of it: which was, that God accepted the life of the beast instead of their life, when they had forfeited it by their sins.

Another plain reason is immediately added, that they might be the more fearful of shedding the blood one of another, when it was not lawful so much as to taste the blood of a beast. Bp. Patrick.

—which is the blood thereof;] That blood is the seat of life could not be known to Moses, but by revelation; it being a secret in nature never discovered till of late, and that by many experiments and observations, which the age of Moses, and ages following, knew nothing of. Bp. Wilson. Life is supposed in Scripture to be seated in, or attached to, the blood: and that excellent anatomist, Mr. John Hunter, from the result of many experiments, has confirmed the doctrine, that the living principle is inherent in the blood. Dr. Hales.

VOL. I.

5. —at the hand of every beast will I require it,] That is, Any beast, that kills a man, shall itself be killed: not as if beasts were to blame if they killed a man; for they are capable of neither vice nor virtue: but this was ordained with respect to men, for whose use beasts were created. For 1st, such owners, as were not careful to prevent such mischief, were hereby punished. 2dly, Others were admonished by their example to be cautious. 3dly, God hereby instructed them that murder was a most grievous crime, the punishment of which extended even to beasts. And 4thly, the lives of men were hereby much secured by killing such beasts as might otherwise have done the like mischief again. Bp. Patrick.

—at the hand of every man's brother] And therefore "if at the hand of every beast, much more will I require it at the hand of every man:" whom He calls brother, to shew that murder is the more heinous on this account, because we are all brethren. Bp. Patrick.

6. —by man shall his blood be shed;] That is, by the magistrate or judges. Bp. Patrick.

Against murder the Lord thus provided by an early law, enacted and published before him, out of whose loins the whole world after the flood was to be re-peopled: to shew that it was not meant for a national and temporary ordinance, but for an universal and perpetual law. Bp. Sanderson.

—for in the image of God made he man.] This is a farther aggravation of the sin of murder. It is a great trespass upon God, as it destroys His likeness. And self-murder upon this account is forbidden, as well as the killing of others. Bp. Kidder.

God having stamped His own image upon every man, and withal signified His blessed pleasure, how precious He would have him to be in our eyes and esteem, according to the tenour of the edict in this verse, and the reason of it; we must expect to answer it as an high contempt of that Sacred Majesty, if we set any man at nought, or make less account of him than God would have us. Bp. Sanderson.

13. I do set my bow in the cloud,] It was now that the rainbow was appointed by God to be a memorial both of His justice upon the old world, and of His mercy to the new. Let us, when we look upon it, bless God for being mindful of His covenant, and securing to us the blessing of His promised Seed. Bp. Wilson.

When the Jews behold the rainbow, they bless God, who remembers His covenant, and is faithful to His promise. And the tradition of this its designation to proclaim comfort to mankind was strong among the heathen; for according to the mythology of 2348.

E

Before
CHRIST
* Eccl¹,
43. 11, 12.

14 ⁸ And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud :

15 And I will remember my covenant, which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh ; and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh.

16 And the bow shall be in the cloud ; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth.

17 And God said unto Noah, This is the token of the covenant, which I have established between me and all flesh that is upon the earth.

2347.

18 ¶ And the sons of Noah, that went forth of the ark, were Shem, and Ham, and Japheth : and Ham is the father of † Heb.

Chanaan.

† Canaan.
19 These are the three sons of Noah :

the Greeks, the rainbow was the daughter of wonder, "a sign to mortal men," and regarded, upon its appearance, as the messenger of the celestial deities. Bp. Horne.

It is not at all necessary to inquire whether there was, or was not, any rainbow before the flood. Upon either supposition the Divine Wisdom is very apparent, in appointing the rainbow for a token of His covenant, and a memorial of His promise: that as often as men should see it, they might remember that God had given them such a promise, and that His infallible word should be their sufficient security. Dr. Waterland.

14. — the bow shall be seen in the cloud :] Not always, but at certain times: often enough to remind men of the promise, and stir up their belief of it. Bp. Patrick.

16. — I will look upon it, that I may remember &c.] God did not "set this bow in the clouds" for His own sake, to engage His attention, and revive His memory whenever "He looked on it;" though that be the expression, which the Holy Spirit, speaking after the manner of men, has thought fit to make use of: but for our sakes was it placed there, as an illustrious symbol of the Divine Mercy and Goodness, and to confirm our belief and confidence in God. And therefore, whenever we "look upon the rainbow," we should do well to "praise Him that made it; very beautiful it is in the brightness thereof. It compasseth the heaven about with a glorious circle, and the hands of the Most High have bended it," Ecclus. xliii. 11, 12. Stackhouse.

18. — Ham is the father of Canaan.] He had other sons besides, chap. x. 6. But Canaan is here mentioned, as the head of a cursed race, whose country God gave to the Israelites; and in order to the ensuing relation, ver. 22. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

19. — of them was the whole earth overspread.] We see then, that all mankind are of one blood and original; being descended of one common ancestor; and therefore are all brethren, and, as it were, but one family. This consideration shews, not only the reasonableness of that universal benevolence and humanity, which God, the great Lord and Master of all, requires towards all men; but also the folly and injustice of that pride, which puffs up one man against another. "The rich and poor meet together: the Lord is the Maker of them all," Prov. xxii. 2. Wogan.

The two continents of Asia and America, so widely separated from each other by the vast Pacific or Eastern ocean at their southern extremities, are now found to approach each other towards the northern within thirteen leagues, instead of eight hun-and of them was the whole earth over-spread. Before

CHRIST
2347.

20 And Noah began to be an husbandman, and he planted a vineyard :

21 And he drank of the wine, and was drunken; and he was uncovered within his tent.

22 And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and told his two brethren without.

23 And Shem and Japheth took a garment, and laid it upon both their shoulders, and went backward, and covered the nakedness of their father; and their faces were backward, and they saw not their father's nakedness.

24 And Noah awoke from his wine, and knew what his younger son had done unto him.

25 And he said, Cursed be Canaan; a servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren.

dred, as was supposed. And in this narrow strait there are several intervening islands, as Bering's, &c. Among other good purposes therefore, the voyages of Captain Cook have rendered essential services to religion, by robbing infidelity of a favourite objection to the Mosaic account of the peopling of the earth. North America might have been easily furnished with inhabitants from the opposite coasts of Asia: and South America, by means of the great chain of newly discovered tropical isles, scattered between the two great continents, and successively colonised from Asia; and also, on its eastern side, by vessels driven by storms, or trade winds and currents, from the shores of Europe and Africa. And indeed the similarity of languages, religion, manners, and customs, in several leading points, furnishes decisive evidence of the descent of all mankind from the same parent stock. Dr. Hales. See the note on chap. x. 32.

21. And he drank of the wine, and was drunken;] Being unacquainted with the strength of the liquor; or else being old, and unable to bear its strength. This happened a great while after the flood. Bp. Patrick. Bishop Wilson, after Bedford's Script. Chronol. says 100 years.

It is a strong argument of the veracity of Moses, that throughout his history he has drawn no character so fair, as not to leave some blemishes, some instances of human frailty, still abiding on it. And indeed it is an act of singular kindness and benefit to us, that God has ordered the faults and miscarriages of His saints so constantly to be recorded in Scripture; since "they are written for our admonition," to remind us of our frailty, and to alarm our caution and fear. The example of Noah, who had escaped the pollutions of the old world, and was now overcome in a time of security and peace, calls perpetually upon "him that thinketh he standeth, to take heed lest he fall." Stackhouse.

25. — Cursed be Canaan;] The ancient prophecies must be understood, not of single persons, but of whole nations. The curse of servitude pronounced upon Canaan, and the promise of blessing and enlargement made to Shem and Japheth, extend to their whole race; as afterwards the prophecies concerning Ishmael, and those concerning Esau and Jacob, and those relating to the Twelve Patriarchs. The curse therefore upon Canaan was properly a curse upon the Canaanites. God foreseeing the wickedness of this people, which began in their father Ham, and greatly increased in this branch of his family, commissioned Noah to pronounce a curse upon them, and to devote them to the servitude and misery, which their more common vices and iniquities would deserve.

Before CHRIST 2347. 26 And he said, Blessed be the LORD God of Shem; and Canaan shall be || his servant.

|| Or, servant to them. 27 God shall || enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant.

|| Or, persuade.

28 ¶ And Noah lived after the flood three hundred and fifty years.

29 And all the days of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years: and he died. Before CHRIST 1998.

CHAP. X.

- 1 The generations of Noah. 2 The sons of Japheth.
6 The sons of Ham. 8 Nimrod the first monarch.
21 The sons of Shem.

NOW these are the generations of the sons of Noah, Shem, Ham, and Japheth: and unto them were sons born after the flood.

And this account was plainly written by Moses for the encouragement of the Israelites in their expedition against a people, who by their sins had forfeited the Divine protection, and were destined to slavery from the days of Noah. Bp. Newton.

This curse did not affect individuals, nor even nations, so long as they continued righteous. In Abraham's days, before the iniquity of the Canaanites came to the full, in the fourth generation afterwards, Melchizedek, whose name was expressive of his character, "king of righteousness," was a worthy "priest of the Most High God:" and Abimelech, whose name denotes "parental king," pleaded the integrity of his heart, and the righteousness of his nation before God, and his plea was admitted. Yet they appear both to have been Canaanites, chap. xiv. 18—20; xv. 16; xx. 4—9. Dr. Hales.

—a servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren.] The word brethren, in Hebrew, comprehends more distant relations. The descendants therefore of Canaan were to be subject to the descendants of both Shem and Japheth: and the natural consequence of vice in communities, as well as in single persons, is slavery.

Several centuries, 800 years, after the delivery of this prophecy, the Israelites, who were descendants of Shem, under the command of Joshua, invaded the Canaanites, smote above thirty of their kings, took possession of their land, slew several of the inhabitants, made the Gibeonites and others servants and tributaries; and Solomon afterwards subdued the rest, 2 Chron. viii. 7—9.

The Greeks and Romans too, who were descendants of Japheth, not only subdued Syria and Palestine, but also pursued and conquered such of the Canaanites as were any where remaining; as for instance, the Tyrians and Carthaginians, the former of whom were ruined by Alexander and the Grecians, and the latter by Scipio and the Romans. And ever since the miserable remainder of this people have been slaves to a foreign yoke; first to the Saracens, who descended from Shem; and afterwards to the Turks, who descended from Japheth; and they groan under their dominion at this day. Bp. Newton.

26.—Blessed be the Lord God of Shem;] The old Patriarch doth not say, "Blessed be Shem," as he said, "Cursed be Canaan:" for men's evil springeth of themselves, but their good from God: and therefore in a strain of devotion he breaks forth into thanksgiving to God as the Author of all good to Shem. Neither doth he say the same to Japheth; for God certainly may dispense His particular favours according to His good pleasure, and salvation was to be derived to mankind through Shem and his posterity. God prefers Shem to his elder brother Japheth, as Jacob was afterwards preferred to Esau, and David to his elder brothers, to shew that the order of grace is not always the same as the order of nature. The Lord being called "the God of Shem" particularly, it is plainly intimated that the Lord would be his God in a particular manner. And accordingly the Church of God was among the posterity of Shem for several generations, "of whom as concerning the flesh Christ came." Bp. Newton.

27. God shall enlarge Japheth,] In the Hebrew there is a plain allusion to Japheth's name, which signifies enlargement; as there is to many others in Scripture; Noah, chap. v. 29; Judah, Dan, Gad, &c, chap. xlix. 8, 16, 19. Japheth was enlarged both in territory and in children. As to territory, his posterity possessed, besides all Europe, the lesser Asia, Media, part of Armenia, Iberia, Albania, and those vast regions to the north, which anciently the Scythians inhabited, and now the Tartars; and it is not improbable that the new world was peopled by some of his northern descendants going thither by the straits of Anian. As to progeny, from the next chapter it appears that Japheth had seven sons, whereas Ham had only four, and Shem only five: and the northern hive was always remarkable for its fecundity, and hath been continually sending out colonies southward, both in Europe and in Asia, both in former and in later times. Bp. Newton.

—and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem;] By this may be meant either that God or that Japheth shall dwell in the tents of Shem. In either sense it has been fulfilled. In the former sense literally, when the Shechinah or Divine Presence rested on the ark, and dwelt in the tabernacle and temple of the Jews; and when "the Word, who was with God and was God," pitched His tent, and "dwelt among us." In the latter sense it was fulfilled, first, when the Greeks and Romans, who sprung originally from Japheth, subdued and possessed Judea and other countries of Asia, belonging to Shem; and again spiritually, when they were proselyted to the true religion; and they, who were not Israelites by birth, became Israelites by faith, and lived, as we and many others of Japheth's posterity live at this day, within the pale of the Church of Christ. Bp. Newton.

How just a regard is here shewn both to piety and disobedience! Because Ham sinned against his father, therefore he shall be plagued in his children. Japheth is dutiful to his father, and finds the reward of it in his posterity. Because Ham was an ill son to his father, therefore his sons shall be servants to his brethren; because Japheth assisted Shem to bear the cloke of shame, therefore shall Japheth dwell in the tents of Shem, partaking with him in blessing, as in duty. When we do but what we ought, yet God is gracious to us; and rewards that, the omission of which would be a sin. Who could ever yet shew me a man, rebelliously undutiful to his parents, that had prospered in himself and his seed? Bp. Hall.

29. —and he died.] Not above two and thirty years before Abram was born. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. X. ver. 1. Now these are the generations &c.] The tenth chapter of Genesis is one of the most valuable and the most venerable records of antiquity. It explains what all profane historians were ignorant of—the origin of nations. Instead of telling us, as other books do, that one nation had sprung out of the earth they inhabited; another from a cricket or a grasshopper; another from an oak; another from a mushroom; another from a dragon's tooth; instead of these absurdities, it gives such an account of the peopling of the earth after the deluge, as no other book in the world ever did give; and the truth of which all other books in the world, which contain any thing on the subject, confirm. The last verse of the chapter says, "These are the families of the sons of Noah, after their generations, in their nations: and by these were the nations divided in the earth after the flood." It would require great learning to trace out precisely, either the actual situation of all the countries, in which these founders of empires settled, or to ascertain the extent of their dominions. This however has been done by various authors, to the satisfaction of all competent judges; so much at least to my satisfaction, that had I no other proof of the authenticity of Genesis, I should consider this as sufficient. But without the aid of learning, any man, who can barely read his Bible, and has but heard of such 1998.

Before
CHRIST
* 1 Chron.
1. 5.

2 ^a The sons of Japheth; Gomer, and Magog, and Madai, and Javan, and Tubal, and Meshech, and Tiras.

3 And the sons of Gomer; Ashkenaz, and Riphath, and Togarmah.

4 And the sons of Javan; Elishah, and Tarshish, Kittim, and Dodanim.

5 By these were the isles of the Gentiles divided in their lands; every one after his tongue, after their families, in their nations.

* 1 Chron.
1. 8.

6 ^b And the sons of Ham; Cush, and Mizraim, and Phut, and Canaan.

people as the Assyrians, the Elamites, the Lydians, the Medes, the Ionians, the Thracians, will readily acknowledge that they had Assur, and Elam, and Lud, and Madai, and Javan, and Tiras, grandsons of Noah, for their respective founders. Bp. Watson.

The following curious and valuable commentary on the tenth chapter of Genesis, which records the primitive settlements of the three families, is furnished by Abulfaragi, in his History of the Dynasties. "In the 140th year of Phaleg, the earth was divided, by a second division, among the sons of Noah. To the sons of Shem was allotted the middle of the earth; namely, Palestine, Syria, Assyria, Samarra, (a town of Babylonian, or Chaldean Irac,) Babel, Persia, and Hegiaz, (or Arabia Petrea.) To the sons of Ham, Teman, (or Idumea, Jer. xlix. 7,) Africa, Nigritia, Egypt, Nubia, Ethiopia, Scindia, and India, (or Western and Eastern India,) on both sides of the Indus. To the sons of Japheth also, Garbia, (the North,) Spain, France, the countries of the Greeks, Sclavonians, Bulgarians, Turks, and Armenians." Dr. Hales.

The late excellent Sir William Jones has very satisfactorily traced the origin of all the people of the earth to the three roots, Shem, Ham, and Japheth, according to the account given in this chapter. Bp. Tomline.

2.—Japheth;] He seems to have been the same with Japetus, whom the Greeks own to have been their father. Bp. Patrick.

5. By these were the isles of the Gentiles divided;] The Hebrews (as Mr. Mede observes) use the word isles to signify all those countries divided from them by the sea, Isai. xi. 10, 11; xl. 15; Jer. ii. 10; or the word may be used generally for a region, country, or province, Job xxii. 30; Isai. xx. 6. And the word, here rendered "Gentiles," may signify a multitude of people, or "nations," as it is translated in the last verse of this chapter. The phrase then may be thus interpreted: By these, or among these, were divided the regions of the people, or nations, (descended from Japheth,) in their lands; in the several countries which they possessed. Bp. Patrick.

"The isles of the Gentiles" mean many of the maritime countries washed by the Mediterranean sea. Gisborne.

—divided;] It appears by the following words, according to his language, family, and nations, this great division of the earth was made in an orderly manner, and not by a confused irregular dispersion, wherein every one went and seated himself where he thought good. Jos. Mede.

This distribution was by the immediate appointment of God. We have full evidence of this in that sublime and pathetick hymn of Moses, where he addresses himself to the people of Israel, "Remember the days of old, &c." Deut. xxxii. 7—9. From this we may see that the whole was by God's appointment; and that there was a reserve for a people who were to come after. St. Paul likewise speaks of it expressly as a Divine ordinance, Acts xvii. 26. This is taken notice of by many of the Fathers. Eusebius in particular mentions "the distribution of the earth;" and adds, that it happened in "the 2672d year of the creation, and in the 930th year of the Patriarch's life. Then it was that Noah, by Divine appointment, divided the world between his three sons." The 1998.

Before
CHRIST

7 And the sons of Cush; Seba, and Havilah, and Sabtah, and Raamah, and Sabtechah: and the sons of Raamah; Sheba, and Dedan.

8 And Cush begat Nimrod: he began ^{about 2218.} to be a mighty one in the earth.

9 He was a mighty hunter before the Lord: wherefore it is said, Even as Nimrod the mighty hunter before the Lord.

10 And the beginning of his kingdom was ^{† Gr. Babylon. || Or, he went out into Assyria.} Babel, and Erech, and Accad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar.

11 Out of that land ^{||} went forth Asshur,

Grecians had some traditions of this partition of the earth, which they supposed to have been by lot, and between Jupiter, Neptune, and Pluto. The tradition probably came to Greece from Egypt. Bryant.

—after his tongue,] Not distinct languages, but different dialects. Bp. Patrick, Pyle. Many dialects, even now spoken, may be traced to one common language, which, as the primitive stock, has been the original of them all. Sir William Jones has demonstrated, that three great branches of language are sufficient to account for all the varieties now extant; and it forms a very strong, as well as a new argument in favour of the Mosaical account of the early postdiluvian ages. Calmet's Dictionary, Supplement.

8.—he began to be a mighty one in the earth.] He was the first great warrior and conqueror: or, as some say, a more severe government than they had been, who only exercised paternal authority. For he was the first that put down the government of eldership or paternity, and laid the foundation of sovereign rule. Bp. Patrick.

9. He was a mighty hunter;] Or rather, mighty in hunting: by which means he became a great monarch. For he inured himself to labour by this toilsome exercise; and got together a great company of robust young men to attend him in this sport; who were hereby also fitted to pursue men, as they had done wild beasts. For he was looked upon in all ages as the rudiment of warfare, all the heroes of old being bred up to hunting. Besides, in the age of Nimrod, the exercise of hunting might win him the hearts of men, whom he thus delivered from wild beasts, to which they were much exposed, in their rude and unprotected way of living. So that many at last joined with him in the great designs he formed of subduing men, and making himself master of the neighbouring people in Babylon, Susiana, and Assyria. The memory of this hunting of his was preserved by the Assyrians, who made Nimrod the same as Orion; for they joined the dog and the hare, the first creature perhaps that he hunted, with his constellation. Bp. Patrick.

—before the Lord;] That is, to the highest degree. For so a great city to God is a very great city, Jonah iii. 3, and a child very beautiful is called fair to, or before God, Acts vii. 20. Bp. Patrick. The phrase may perhaps be more properly rendered, "against the Lord." Bibliotheca Biblica. Bel was the name of the great god of the Babylonians. He is supposed to have been the same with Nimrod; and to have been called Bel from his dominion, and Nimrod from his rebellion. For "Bel" or "Baal," which is the same name, signifies Lord; and "Nimrod," a Rebel, in the Jewish and Chaldean languages; the former was his Babylonian name, by reason of his empire in that place; and the latter his Scripture name, by reason of his rebellion, in revolting from God to follow his own wicked designs. Dean Prideaux.

—wherefore it is said, Even as Nimrod &c.] That is, thence came the common proverb: which Moses alleges as a proof of the truth of what he delivered. Bp. Patrick.

10.—the beginning of his kingdom was Babel,] He first erected the city of Babylon, making it the capital seat of his dominions. Pyle.

11. Out of that land went forth Asshur,] The translation in the margin is to be preferred, He went out into Assyria: meaning, that

Before CHRIST about 2218. and builded Nineveh, and || the city Rehoboth, and Calah,

|| Or, the streets of the city. 12 And Resen between Nineveh and Calah: the same is a great city.

13 And Mizraim begat Ludim, and Anamim, and Lehabim, and Naphtuhim, 14 And Pathrusim, and Casluhim, (out of whom came Philistim,) and Caphtorim.

† Heb. Sidon. 15 ¶ And Canaan begat † Sidon his firstborn, and Heth, 16 And the Jebusite, and the Amorite, and the Girgasite,

17 And the Hivite, and the Arkite, and the Sinite,

18 And the Arvadite, and the Zemarite, and the Hamathite: and afterward were the families of the Canaanites spread abroad.

19 And the border of the Canaanites was from Sidon, as thou comest to Gerar, unto † Gaza; as thou goest, unto Sodom, and Gomorrah, and Admah, and Zeboim, even unto Lasha.

† Heb. Azrah. 20 These are the sons of Ham, after their families, after their tongues, in their countries, and in their nations.

21 ¶ Unto Shem also, the father of all the children of Eber, the brother of Japheth the elder, even to him were children born.

Before CHRIST about 2218. 22 The children of Shem; Elam, and Asshur, and † Arphaxad, and Lud, and Aram.

23 And the children of Aram; Uz, and Hul, and Gether, and Mash.

24 And Arphaxad begat † Salah; and Salah begat Eber. † Heb. Shalah.

25 ^d And unto Eber were born two sons: the name of one was Peleg; for in his days was the earth divided; and his brother's name was Joktan. 2247. 1 Chron. 1. 19.

26 And Joktan begat Almodad, and Sheleph, and Hazarmaveth, and Jerah, 27 And Hadoram, and Uzal, and Diklah,

28 And Obal, and Abimael, and Sheba,

29 And Ophir, and Havilah, and Jobab: all these were the sons of Joktan.

30 And their dwelling was from Mesha, as thou goest, unto Sephar a mount of the east.

31 These are the sons of Shem, after their families, after their tongues, in their lands, after their nations.

32 These are the families of the sons of Noah, after their generations, in their nations: and by these were the nations divided in the earth after the flood.

Nimrod went to war against Assyria, which belonged to the children of Shem, but was usurped by this son of Cush. Bp. Patrick. — and builded Nineveh,] So called from his son Ninus. Thus Cain built a city, and called it, not by his own, but by his son's name. Bp. Patrick.

13. — Ludim,] That is, Lud and his posterity the Ludims; the form of that word, as of several others that follow, being plural, and denoting several nations probably in Africa. Bp. Kidder.

18. — afterward were the families of the Canaanites spread abroad.] The race of the Canaanites was so numerous, as not only to spread over the tract of land possessed afterward by the Israelites, but reached into several countries round it. Pyle.

21. — the father of all the children of Eber,] And so consequently the father of the Hebrews, who had their name from him. From him Abram is called an Hebrew, chap. xiv. 13, and his posterity Hebrews, Gen. xxxix. 14; Exod. i. 15, 16. Some however have thought that Eber in this place is not a proper name: and that Abraham is called an Hebrew, not from Eber, as the proper name of a man, but as this word imports one who comes from beyond the river Euphrates. And then, what we render "the children of Eber," imports the inhabitants beyond the river Euphrates. Bp. Kidder.

25. — Peleg;] The great dispersion, recorded in the next chapter, happening just when he was born, made his father call him by this name, which signifies division and separation. Bp. Patrick.

32. These are the families of the sons of Noah, &c.] The derivation of the human species, all from one stock, Noah, the second father of mankind, has proved a great stumblingblock to minute philosophers: who cannot reconcile the fact to the varieties of the species in different countries, as to colour, size, shape, disposition, &c. However inadequate we may be fully to unfold the mysteries of nature and the ways of Providence, yet much of these alleged varieties may be satisfactorily accounted for, from the influence of climate, local circumstances of air, water, food, customs, &c. which may, in process of time, make a material change in the constitutions and complexions of the inhabitants. If dogs, taken to the frigid zone, grow shaggy; and if sheep, transported to the torrid zone, exchange their wool for hair; why may not the human species gradually partake of the influence of climate?

1. Man was formed to reside in all climates. "The human animal is the only one which is naked, and the only one which can clothe itself. This is one of the properties, which renders him an animal of all climates and of all seasons. He can adapt the warmth or lightness of his covering to the temperature of his habitation. Had he been born with a fleece upon his back, although he might have been comforted by its warmth in high latitudes, it would have oppressed him by its weight and heat, as the species spread toward the Equator." This is the simple but profound remark of Paley.

2. "Man, though white in Europe, black in Africa, yellow in Asia, and red in America, is still the same animal, tinged only with the colour of the climate. Where the heat is excessive, as in Guinea and Senegal, the people are perfectly black: where less excessive, as in Abyssinia, the people are less black: where it is more temperate, as in Barbary and in Arabia, they are brown: and where mild, as in Europe and in Lesser Asia, they are fair." Buffon. This concession from a great naturalist and sceptick is important.

3. Shaw, in his travels through Barbary, found a tribe in the mountains of Auress, south of Algiers, who appeared to be of a different race from the Moors: far from swarthy, their complexion is fair and ruddy, and their hair a deep yellow, instead of being dark, as among the neighbouring Moors. He conjectures that they are a remnant of the Vandals. And they probably retained their complexion from their high mountainous situation; as the natives of Armenia, in western Asia, and Cashmire, in eastern, are fair; owing to the great elevation of the soil in both places, and the temperature of the climate occasioned thereby.

4. On the other hand, a colony of Jews, settled at Cochin, on the Malabar coast, from a very remote epoch, of which they have lost the memory, though originally a fair people in Palestine, and from their customs preserving themselves unmixed, are grown as black as the other Malabarians, who are hardly a shade lighter than the negroes of Guinea. And at Ceylon, the Portuguese, who

Before
CHRIST
about 2247.

CHAP. XI.

1 One language in the world. 3 The building of Babel.
5 The confusion of tongues. 10 The generations of Shem. 27 The generations of Terah the father of Abram. 31 Terah goeth from Ur to Haran.

* Wisd. 10.

5.

† Heb. lip.

† Heb.

words.

† Heb.

a man said to his neighbour.

† Heb.

burn them to a burning.

AND ^athe whole earth was of one [†]language, and of one [†]speech.

2 And it came to pass, as they journeyed from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar; and they dwelt there.

3 And [†]they said one to another, Go to, let us make brick, and [†]burn them thoroughly. And they had brick for stone, and slime had they for mortar.

4 And they said, Go to, let us build us settled there only a few centuries ago, are degenerated, and grown blacker than the original natives. They are in number about 5000, still speak Portuguese, wear the European dress, and profess the Romish religion.

Still there are anomalies, or exceptions, to the general conclusions of the influence of climate and customs, that must be ascribed to other, and perhaps undiscovered causes, which baffle the pride of human sagacity to develop; and which, after all, must be resolved into the will and pleasure of the Creator, and deposited among "the unsearchable riches" of His wisdom and providence, in the variety, no less than in the regularity, of His works. Dr. Hales.

Chap. XI. ver. 1. — one language,] The learned are not agreed, whether we have any remains of the primitive language of men: and as the Scriptures are silent upon the subject, we must be content to leave it in uncertainty. Perhaps it is most probable, that the old Hebrew or Syriack is the most ancient language which has descended to us; and in support of this opinion, the Jewish historians assert, that the sons of Eber, or Heber, did not concur with the rest in the attempt to build the tower, and therefore retained the primitive language. Sir William Jones is of opinion that the original language is entirely lost. Bp. Tomline.

2. — as they journeyed from the east,] Not all the posterity of Noah, who after the flood were planted in the East; much less Noah himself: but a great colony of them, who, when the East was much peopled, chose to go westward. Bp. Patrick.

— Shinar;] Not only that part of Assyria where Babylon stood, but all that country which bordered upon the river Tigris unto the mountains of Armenia. Bp. Patrick.

— they dwelt there.] By what follows it appears, that they intended to dwell there for the future, contrary to God's command of replenishing the earth. Bp. Kidder.

3. — they said] Nimrod very probably, as Josephus affirms, encouraged others of his race and temper to this contempt of God. Bp. Kidder.

— let us make brick,] In that low and fat soil there was no stone. Herodotus, Justin, and many others, describe the walls of Babylon as made of burnt bricks.

The cement, here mentioned by the name of slime, was probably what the ancients called asphaltus or bitumen; a kind of pitch, which is described by authors as very glewy, and therefore it was used by Noah, under God's direction, about the ark. Assyria abounds with it, both in a liquid and solid state; as we learn from ancient historians and modern travellers, who describe it as cast up from some fountains with the water. Herodotus and many other authors, both Greek and Latin, affirm that the walls of Babylon were cemented with it. And it is observable that Arrian says, The temple of Belus, in the midst of the city of Babylon, of a vast bigness, was made of brick, cemented with asphaltus. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

Many have thought that the tower of Belus, mentioned by Herodotus, and in his time to be seen in Babylon, was the tower a city and a tower, whose top may reach ^{Before} unto heaven; and let us make us a name, ^{CHRIST} lest we be scattered abroad upon the face ^{about 2247.}

of the whole earth.

5 And the Lord came down to see the city and the tower, which the children of men builded.

6 And the Lord said, Behold, the people is one, and they have all one language; and this they begin to do: and now nothing will be restrained from them, which they have imagined to do.

7 Go to, let us go down, and there confound their language, that they may not understand one another's speech.

of Babel; or at least was built upon the old foundations. Cubnet.

4. — a city and a tower,] The tower was contained in the city, and formed part of it. It was probably the Acropolis, as the Greeks call it, a strong place in the highest part of the city, such as we call a citadel. Bp. Patrick.

— whose top may reach unto heaven;] Or to the clouds. An exceeding high tower. The same is said of the walls of the cities of Canaan, Deut. i. 28; ix. 1. Bp. Patrick.

The misunderstanding of this text probably gave rise to the fable of the giants attempting to scale heaven. The silliest of the Pagan fables generally have some foundation in truth, either misunderstood or misapplied. Stackhouse.

— let us make us a name,] The work was intended to frustrate the good design of regularly peopling the earth; out of an ambitious aim of raising themselves into a powerful state, and getting the honour of being the founders of the first great city and government in the world. Pyle.

God hath a special indignation at pride, above all sins; and will cross our endeavours, not because they are evil, (what hurt could there be in laying one brick upon another?) but because they are proudly undertaken. Bp. Hall.

— lest we be scattered abroad] What they dreaded, they brought upon themselves by their own vain attempt to avoid it: and now there is no memory preserved of the names of those, who conspired in this attempt. Thus what Solomon saith, was long before verified, "The fear of the wicked shall come upon him." But this evil by God's providence was attended with a great good: for by this dispersion the whole earth was peopled; and the foundation laid of several great nations and kingdoms. Bp. Patrick.

5. And the Lord came down to see &c.] This is an accommodation to our conceptions. It means, that by the effects He made it appear, that He observed their motions and knew their intentions. Bp. Patrick.

— the children of men] Children of men in Scripture are opposed to Children of God; as bad men and infidels are to good and faithful. So that the people engaged in this work were not Noah, Shem, and other good men; but some of the worst sort, who had degenerated from the piety of their ancestors. Bp. Patrick.

6. — now nothing will be restrained from them,] They will give farther instances of their rebellion and tyranny, if they be not defeated. Bp. Kidder.

Or the sentence may be taken interrogatively, thus: "Shall they not be restrained in all they imagine to do?" The question amounts to the most express affirmation that they shall be restrained, which accordingly was executed immediately. Stackhouse.

7. — confound their language,] God did not make every one speak a new different language; but they had such a confused remembrance of their original language, that they spake it very differently: so that by the various inflections, and terminations, and pronunciations of the divers dialects, they could no more understand one another, than they, who understand only Latin, can un-

Before CHRIST about 2247. 8 So the LORD scattered them abroad from thence upon the face of all the earth: and they left off to build the city.

|| That is, Confusion. 9 Therefore is the name of it called || Babel; because the LORD did there confound the language of all the earth: and from thence did the LORD scatter them abroad upon the face of all the earth.

^b 1 Chron. 1. 17. 2346. 10 ¶ ^b These are the generations of Shem: Shem was an hundred years old, and begat Arphaxad two years after the flood:

11 And Shem lived after he begat Arphaxad five hundred years, and begat sons and daughters.

2311. 12 And Arphaxad lived five and thirty years, and begat Salah:

13 And Arphaxad lived after he begat Salah four hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters.

2281. 14 And Salah lived thirty years, and begat Eber:

15 And Salah lived after he begat Eber four hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters.

^c 1 Chron. 1. 19. 2247. 16 ^c And Eber lived four and thirty years, and begat ^d Peleg:

^d Called, Luke 3. 35, Phalec. 17 And Eber lived after he begat Peleg four hundred and thirty years, and begat sons and daughters.

2217. 18 And Peleg lived thirty years, and begat Reu:

Before CHRIST 2217. 19 And Peleg lived after he begat Reu two hundred and nine years, and begat sons and daughters.

20 And Reu lived two and thirty years, and begat ^e Serug: 2185.

^e Luke 3. 35, Saruch. 21 And Reu lived after he begat Serug two hundred and seven years, and begat sons and daughters.

22 And Serug lived thirty years, and begat Nahor: 2155.

23 And Serug lived after he begat Nahor two hundred years, and begat sons and daughters.

24 And Nahor lived nine and twenty years, and begat ^f Terah: 2126.

^f Luke 3. 34, Thara. 25 And Nahor lived after he begat Terah an hundred and nineteen years, and begat sons and daughters.

26 And Terah lived seventy years, and ^g begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran. 2056.

^g Joshua 24. 2. 1 Chron. 1. 26. 27 ¶ Now these are the generations of Terah: Terah begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran; and Haran begat Lot. 1996.

28 And Haran died before his father Terah in the land of his nativity, in Ur of the Chaldees.

29 And Abram and Nahor took them wives: the name of Abram's wife was Sarai; and the name of Nahor's wife, Milcah, the daughter of Haran, the father of Milcah, and the father of Iscah.

30 But Sarai was barren; she had no child.

derstand those who speak French, Italian, or Spanish; though these languages arise out of the former.

It is probable that each family had its peculiar dialect; or rather the same common dialect, or way of speaking, was given to those families, whom God intended to form one colony in the following dispersion. Bp. Patrick.

8. So the Lord scattered them] This followed upon God's multiplying the languages of these builders. For as the unity of one common language had before knit them into one community, so it is the proper effect of pluralities of tongues to sort men into pluralities of societies. Jos. Mede. Division of tongues must needs slacken any work. Happy were the Church of God, if we all spake but one language. Bp. Hall.

— upon the face of all the earth:] The migrations of the three primitive families took place from the central regions of Armenia, Mesopotamia, and Assyria; and by successive colonisations established far distant communities, and various modes of society and government; the Phenicians, Arabians, Egyptians, Ethiopians, and Libyans, southwards; the Persians, Ethiopians, Indians, and Chinese, eastwards; the Scythians, Celts, and Tartars, northwards; and the Goths, Greeks, and Latins, even as far as the Peruvians and Mexicans of South America, and the Indian tribes of North America, westwards. All these various inhabitants of the globe retain a striking affinity in the leading principles of their language, customs, and religions, however diversified in process of time from each other by local circumstances: such affinity evincing their common descent from one and the same parent stock. Dr. Hales. See the notes on chap. ix. 19, and x. 32.

— and they left off to build the city.] And the tower. They desisted from their enterprise; but the city and tower probably stood long after this, and may have been the very tower afterwards consecrated to Belus. Bp. Patrick.

10. These are the generations of Shem:] As we have an account in chap. v. of the generations from Adam to Noah, who was the tenth from Adam: so we have here an account from Noah to Abram, who was the tenth from Noah. And hence we may learn that the age of man's life was much shortened after the flood. The whole time from the flood to the birth of Abram is but 352 years; whereas from Adam's creation to the flood was no less than 1656 years. Bp. Kidder.

— Shem was an hundred years old,] Abram lived with Shem 150 years; and could have from him a most exact account of the creation, flood, &c. for Shem was one hundred years old when the flood came; and had long conversed with Lamech, who had conversed with Adam 56 years. Bp. Wilson.

26. — Abram, Nahor, and Haran.] Abram seems to have been the youngest: but is named first because of his preeminence. Bp. Patrick. See note on chap. v. 32.

28. And Haran died before his father] He was the first son, who in the natural way died before his father. Bp. Wilson.

— Ur of the Chaldees.] That part of Mesopotamia, which was next to Assyria, is called "the land of the Chaldees." For Ur was in Mesopotamia. St. Stephen therefore makes Mesopotamia and the land of the Chaldees the same, Acts vii. 2, 4. Bp. Patrick.

29. — Iscah.] This is supposed to be another name of Sarai, whom Abram married: his eldest brother's daughter, and sister to Lot. Haran had three children: Lot, Milcah whom Nahor married, and Sarai whom Abram married. That is, on the death of Haran, his two surviving brothers married his two

Before
CHRIST
about 1923.

^a Neh. 9. 7.
Judith 5. 7.
Acts 7. 4.

1921.

31 And Terah took Abram his son, and Lot the son of Haran his son's son, and Sarai his daughter in law, his son Abram's wife; and they went forth with them from ^b Ur of the Chaldees, to go into the land of Canaan; and they came unto Haran, and dwelt there.

32 And the days of Terah were two hundred and five years: and Terah died in Haran.

CHAP. XII.

¹ God calleth Abram, and blesseth him with a promise of Christ. ⁴ He departeth with Lot from Haran. ⁶ He journeyeth through Canaan, ⁷ which is promised him in a vision. ¹⁰ He is driven by a famine into Egypt. ¹¹ Fear maketh him feign his wife to be his sister. ¹⁴ Pharaoh, having taken her from him, by plagues is compelled to restore her.

daughters. Sarai perhaps had one name before they came out of Chaldea, and the other after. Bp. Patrick.

31.—they went forth—from Ur of the Chaldees,] Terah removed from his own country with Abram, who had received a command from God to come out of it, Gen. xii. 1; xv. 7; Acts vii. 3. It may be concluded from this obedience to the Divine direction, that Terah, who is supposed to have been an idolater, perhaps an idolatrous priest, was become a worshipper of the true God. Bps. Kidder and Patrick.

—and they came unto Haran,] Or Charran, as St. Stephen calls it; a place in Mesopotamia. Bp. Patrick.

—and dwelt there,] He intended to go to Canaan, and not to settle here: but being arrested by sickness, could proceed no further. On his death, Abram went forward into Canaan. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

32. And the days of Terah were two hundred and five years:] By this time a striking change had been experienced in the duration of human life. Adam lived 930 years. His posterity before the flood appear to have passed, upon an average, nearly as large a portion of time, and some individuals even a longer period, upon earth. Noah lived to the age of 950 years. His son Shem fell far short of the age of man before the flood: and in the days of Peleg, man appears to have attained not to one half of the original measure of his existence. In succeeding generations a rapid diminution continued to take place; until at length, by the time when the children of Israel came out of Egypt, the continuance of the pilgrimage of man upon earth was reduced nearly within its present span.

The cause of this change is known to God, but immaterial to us. Our concern is to draw from the fact the moral and religious instruction, which it is so well adapted to suggest, that our lives are in the hand of God, and depend for their continuance, moment after moment, solely on His will. Gisborne.

Chap. XII. One great design of Moses being to lead the Jews to understand the genealogy of Abraham, their noble ancestor, he hastens to it: relating other matters briefly, but spending many pages about him. For instance, he comprises the history of the world from the creation to the flood, containing 1656 years, in six chapters: but bestows on the history of Abraham nineteen chapters, though it contains no more time than 175 years. Bp. Patrick.

With this period the Mosaic history properly commences. All the preceding part of Genesis is only introductory to the birth of Abraham, the illustrious ancestor of the Israelites, and of the Jews; the father of the faithful, and by the highest of all titles, "the friend of God," and "a blessing" to the world, as being the privileged ancestor of Christ, "in whom all the nations of the earth are blessed." Dr. Hales.

Ver. 1. Now the Lord had said unto Abram,] Before he came

NOW the ^a Lord had said unto Abram, ^{Before} Get thee out of thy country, and from ^{CHRIST} thy kindred, and from thy father's house, ^{1921.} unto a land that I will shew thee: ^a Acts 7. 3.

2 And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing:

3 And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: ^b and ^b Chap. 18, in thee shall all families of the earth be 18. & 22. blessed. 18. Acts 3. 25. Gal. 3. 8.

4 So Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken unto him; and Lot went with him: and Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran. 1921.

5 And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother's son, and all their substance to Haran, and while he lived in Ur of the Chaldees. Bp. Patrick.

—unto a land] Which was 400 miles off. The father of the faithful was sent out of his own country, to intimate to his children, that they are but sojourners and pilgrims here, and therefore must wean their affections from this present world. Bp. Wilson.

—that I will shew thee:] This was probably done by some appearance of the Shechinah going before him; as his posterity were afterwards conducted to the same country. Biblioth. Bibl.

It argued, as the Apostle observes, great faith in God, that he would follow Him, "not knowing whither" he should be led, Heb. xi. 8. Bp. Patrick.

3.—in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.] "In thee," that is, in thy Seed, chap. xxii. 18. "And that Seed is Christ," Gal. iii. 16; Acts iii. 25. Bp. Kidder.

It seems plain from hence, that Abram, as our Lord observes, John viii. 56, "saw His day, and was glad;" that is, he saw, and it was made known to him, that the Messiah was to come out of his family.

It is plain also that in this and the foregoing verse are two distinct covenants or blessings: the first temporal, which respects only Abram and his family; the second spiritual, which has regard to Christ and the whole world. And all future prophecies have a regard to these two covenants. Ishmael, and Esau, and all the family of Abram, had a right to the blessings of the first; and all the world to the blessings of the second. The Jews indeed expect, by virtue of the last, to bear rule over the whole world; but surely this would be no great blessing to the rest of the nations of the world, whatever it might be to them. Therefore, saith St. Paul, with respect to this promise, Gal. iii. 28, "There is neither Jew nor Greek, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus," the promised Seed, in which all the families of the earth were to be happy.

The terrible judgment of God upon the wicked world by the flood was now almost forgotten, and the greatest part of the world fallen into idolatry; when God, to preserve all the well-disposed from being infected, appeared to Abram, and by him kept up and preserved the knowledge of the true God in his family and posterity. From this time a particular providence attended the people of Israel, his posterity by his sons Isaac and Jacob: correcting, trying, punishing, redeeming them out of the hands of their enemies, until the promised Seed came. Bp. Wilson.

4. So Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken &c.] In the foregoing benediction of Abram, we observe the special privileges and advantage of the second, or Christian, covenant. In this noble pattern of his ready obedience, we may as plainly see the obligations, which every Christian takes upon him, when he enters into this covenant of grace. Abram "departed," and forsook all, to follow his Lord and Master: so must we. He believed, "as

Mesopotamia

WITH
CANAAN & other parts of the EAST.
Adapted to the histories of Shadrach, Meshach, & Abednego.

Before
CHRIST
1921.

that they had gathered, and the souls that they had gotten in Haran; and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan; and into the land of Canaan they came.

6 ¶ And Abram passed through the land unto the place of Sichem, unto the plain of Moreh. And the Canaanite was then in the land.

7 And the LORD appeared unto Abram, and said, ^cUnto thy seed will I give this land: and there builded he an ^daltar unto the LORD, who appeared unto him.

8 And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the east of Beth-el, and pitched his tent, having Beth-el on the west, and Hai on the east: and there he builded an altar unto the LORD, and called upon the name of the LORD.

9 And Abram journeyed, [†]going on still toward the south.

10 ¶ And there was a famine in the the Lord had spoken unto him:" so must we believe "all the articles of our Christian faith." "He went forth to go, &c." he actually set about and performed what he was commanded and undertook to do: so must we fulfil our solemn engagement of "keeping God's holy will and commandments, and walking in the same all the days of our life," never stopping, much less turning back again to those things we have renounced, till we arrive, as he did, in Canaan, the promised land, and lot of our inheritance. Wogan.

Here begin the 430 years, mentioned Exod. xii. 40, 41; Gal. iii. 17. Bp. Kidder.

5. — and the souls that they had gotten] That is, all the slaves born in their house, or bought with their money. Bp. Patrick.

They were "the little ones of their household," which formed part of the riches of the primitive patriarchal times. See Job xxi. 11; and compare Gen. xiv. 14. Dr. Hales.

— the land of Canaan;] It lies between the Mediterranean sea and the mountains of Arabia, and extends from Egypt to Phenicia. It is bounded to the east by the mountains of Arabia; to the south by the wilderness of Paran, Idumea, and Egypt; to the west by the Mediterranean, called in Hebrew the Great sea; and to the north by the mountains of Libanus. Its length from the city of Dan, since called Cesarea Philippi, which stands at the foot of these mountains, to Beer-sheba, is about 70 leagues, or 210 miles; and its breadth from the Mediterranean sea to the eastern border, in some places 30 leagues or 90 miles. This country, though small, lying in the very middle of the then known world, was chosen by God wherein to work the redemption of mankind. It was first called the land of Canaan from Canaan, the son of Ham, whose posterity possessed it:—afterwards Palestine, from the people, whom the Hebrews called Philistines, and the Greeks and Romans corruptly Palestines; who inhabited the sea coasts, and were first known to them:—the Land of Promise, from God's promise to Abram of giving it to him:—the Land of Israel, from the Israelites, who afterwards possessed it:—the Land of Judah, or Judea, from the tribe of Judah, the most considerable of the twelve tribes, and the only one that remained after the captivity:—and lastly, the Holy Land, from being the scene of the birth, miracles, death, and resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ. Stackhouse, Bp. Wilson.

6. — unto the place of Sichem.] That is, the place where Sichem, Sechem, or Sychar, afterwards was. It was a town of Samaria, in the borders of Ephraim. Stackhouse.

— unto the plain of Moreh.] Or, oak of Moreh. It was under this oak, that Jacob hid the strange gods, (chap. xxxv. 4;) and 1921.

Before
CHRIST

land: and Abram went down into Egypt to sojourn there; for the famine was grievous in the land.

11 And it came to pass, when he was come near to enter into Egypt, that he said unto Sarai his wife, Behold now, I know that thou art a fair woman to look upon:

12 Therefore it shall come to pass, when the Egyptians shall see thee, that they shall say, This is his wife: and they will kill me, but they will save thee alive.

13 Say, I pray thee, thou art my sister: that it may be well with me for thy sake; and my soul shall live because of thee.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, that, when Abram ^{about 1920.} came into Egypt, the Egyptians beheld the woman that she was very fair.

15 The princes also of Pharaoh saw her, and commended her before Pharaoh: and the woman was taken into Pharaoh's house.

that Rebekah's nurse was buried, (ver. 8.) It was here Joshua set up a great stone, (Josh. xxiv. 26;) and here Abimelech was made king, (Judg. ix. 6;) and here the sons of the old Prophet found the man of God, (1 Kings xiii. 14.) Bp. Wilson.

— the Canaanite was then in the land.] This may relate, not to the whole country, but to the part of it where Sichem was. By the Canaanite is meant, not all the posterity of Canaan, or all the Canaanitish tribes, but only one particular tribe of them. Biblioth. Bibl. The Canaanite tribe, as distinguished from the rest; the Hivites, Perizzites, &c. Dr. Hales. See note on chap. xiii. 7.

7. And the Lord appeared unto Abram,] Abram had entirely resigned himself to the disposal of Heaven, not knowing whither he was to go. When he was come into Canaan, his faith was rewarded with a farther revelation of God's will, and he was told that this was the land, given to him and to his seed. Bp. Warburton.

8. — unto a mountain] Mount Ephraim, which lay between Beth-el, a town not far from Jerusalem, northwards, and Hai, which is situated toward the west of Beth-el. Dr. Wells.

— Beth-el,] The name of a place called Luz; and after this Beth-el, which signifies the House of God, chap. xxviii. 19. Bp. Kidder.

— pitched his tent,] He did not build an house, being but a sojourner in a strange land, Heb. xi. 9. Bp. Kidder.

13. Say, I pray thee, thou art my sister:] He explains in what sense she was so, chap. xx. 12. Bp. Patrick. In those early ages of the world, the rules about marrying with their kindred were not so strict, neither was there any reason that they should be. The prohibited degrees came not to be minutely laid down, till the Levitical law commenced; which has been the standard ever since to those that admit Divine Revelation. Dr. Waterland.

If this conduct of Abram was weakness and defect in faith, (as who is perfect and sinneth not?) let it teach us to fear for ourselves, to "watch and to pray, lest we also enter into temptation." And if at any time, through frailty of the flesh, we happen to fall, let it also be an encouragement to us, that we shall not perhaps be cast away; that God is gracious, and may overlook our infirmities. But be it considered likewise, that, at this time, Abram was, as it were, in the state of natural religion: he was not yet circumcised, nor yet professedly entered into covenant with God, as we are. His fall therefore, if it was a fall, is no excuse for ours, when in any article of danger we shall happen to betray an unworthy fear, or use unlawful means for our escape. Wogan.

15. — Pharaoh] This name was very ancient, and continued to be the name of all the kings of Egypt till the captivity of Babylon,

Before
CHRIST
about 1920.

16 And he entreated Abram well for her sake: and he had sheep, and oxen, and he asses, and menservants, and maid-servants, and she asses, and camels.

17 And the LORD plagued Pharaoh and his house with great plagues because of Sarai Abram's wife.

18 And Pharaoh called Abram, and said, What is this that thou hast done unto me? why didst thou not tell me that she was thy wife?

19 Why saidst thou, She is my sister? so I might have taken her to me to wife: now therefore behold thy wife, take her, and go thy way.

20 And Pharaoh commanded his men concerning him: and they sent him away, and his wife, and all that he had.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Abram and Lot return out of Egypt. 7 By disagreement they part asunder. 10 Lot goeth to wicked Sodom. 14 God reneweth the promise to Abram. 18 He removeth to Hebron, and there buildeth an altar.

perhaps longer: as Ptolemy was their name after the times of Alexander; and Cesar Augustus the names of the Roman emperours; and Candace the name of the queens of Ethiopia. Pharaoh is supposed to mean Father of the country. Bp. Patrick.

The name signified "the king," in the Egyptian tongue. Dr. Hales.

16. And he entreated Abram well &c.] The valuable acquisitions, made by Abram in Egypt, were not a consideration paid by Pharaoh, for permission to espouse one that was taken for Abram's sister: for a brother appears not to have had such a right: but they are to be understood as a gift of generosity, like that made to Laban, mentioned in Gen. xxiv. Harmer.

— sheep, and oxen.] The word, rendered "sheep," includes both the goat kind and the sheep kind. It denotes also a flock of either kind; as the word, rendered "oxen," has also an extended signification, and implies sometimes a herd of cattle. Script. illust.

17. — his house] Pharaoh's courtiers partake of the punishment, because they were partners in the intended sin. Bp. Patrick.

19. Why saidst thou, She is my sister?] Notwithstanding the piety and worth of Abram, it must be acknowledged, that in this instance of denying his wife Sarai, he was guilty of a manifest dissimulation. This may be said in extenuation of his fault, that it proceeded from a weakness of faith, and a prevalence of fear, which are incident to the best of men. He considered himself as a stranger, among a licentious sort of people, and exposed to the power of an arbitrary government; and from a principle of worldly caution, both to preserve his own life, and his wife's virtue, he concluded, that this would be the best expedient: but much more wisely had he done, had he committed the whole matter to God's management, in reliance on His promises, and in confidence of His protection. "The most celebrated saints of God," says St. Austin, "are not secure from sinning: and from their faults there is no arguing to the prejudice of the Book, in which as we find them recorded as matter of history, so we find them condemned as matter of morality. God has informed us of what passed, but not authorized it; and set the example before us, not for a pattern, but for a warning." Stackhouse.

Chap. XIII. ver. 1. — into the south.] Not southward; for Canaan was north of Egypt; but into the southern part of Ca-

Before
CHRIST
about 1918.

AND Abram went up out of Egypt, he, and his wife, and all that he had, and Lot with him, into the south.

2 And Abram was very rich in cattle, in silver, and in gold.

3 And he went on his journeys from the south even to Beth-el, unto the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Beth-el and Hai;

4 Unto the ² place of the altar, which ² Chap. 12. he had made there at the first: and there ⁷ Abram called on the name of the LORD.

5 ¶ And Lot also, which went with Abram, had flocks, and herds, and tents.

6 And the land was not able to bear them, that they might dwell together: for their substance was great, so that they could not dwell together.

7 And there was a strife between the herdmen of Abram's cattle and the herdmen of Lot's cattle: and the Canaanite and the Perizzite dwelled then in the land.

naan. This part of the land is called the south, Josh. x. 40; and the south country, Josh. xi. 16. Bp. Kidder.

2. — Abram was very rich &c.] His riches being increased, since he went into Egypt, by the bounty of Pharaoh. Dr. Wells. Abram lived with all the elegance of a modern Arab emir, or prince; or at least with no other abatement than what arose from his great antiquity. He was very rich in silver and in gold, as well as in cattle; and consequently he was able to procure the ancient elegancies of his way of life, as well as the modern Arab princes are theirs.

Authors have sufficiently explained how these acquisitions might be made. Dr. Russell tells us, that the people of Aleppo are supplied with the greater part of their butter, their cheese, and their cattle for slaughter, by the Arabs, Rushwans, or Turcomans, who travel about the country with their flocks and their herds, as the Patriarchs did of old. The Patriarchs doubtless supplied the ancient cities of Canaan in like manner with these things. Hamor expressly speaks of their trading with his people, Gen. xxxiv. 21.

At the same time that the Arabs receive money for their commodities, their expenses are very small, so that their princes are rich in silver and gold as well as in cattle, and amass large quantities of these precious metals. Abram's expenses, like those of the Arabs, by no means equalled his profits: he was therefore continually making acquisitions of "money current with the merchant," Gen. xxiii. 16, or of such precious commodities as were easy of carriage, and suited to his way of life. And more especially might he do this in Egypt, where, as being a rich country, his exchanging his cattle might be more advantageous to him than usual. For which reason perhaps, his being rich in silver and gold is mentioned immediately after his return from thence. Harmer.

6. — the land was not able to bear them,] There was not sufficient pasturage for them both in that part of the country. Bp. Patrick.

7. — and the Canaanite and the Perizzite dwelled then in the land.] This part of the country was inhabited by the people peculiarly called Canaanites, and by the Perizzites, perhaps a branch of the family of the Canaanites, a very rugged and barbarous nation, (chap. xv. 20,) among whom contention would have been dangerous, at least very scandalous. Bp. Patrick.

The same observation concerning the Canaanite occurs in chap. xii. 6. It does not follow, that the Canaanites had been expelled when this clause was written: it may mean no more, than that

Before
CHRIST
about 1918.

† Heb. men brethren.

8 And Abram said unto Lot, Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen; for we be † brethren.

9 Is not the whole land before thee? separate thyself, I pray thee, from me: if thou wilt take the left hand, then I will go to the right; or if thou depart to the right hand, then I will go to the left.

10 And Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered every where, before the LORD destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, even as the garden of the LORD, like the land of Egypt, as thou comest unto Zoar.

11 Then Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan; and Lot journeyed east: and the Canaanites were even at that time in the land, which God had promised to give to the seed of Abram. This observation, in the former place, may have been intended to illustrate the faith of Abram, who did not hesitate to obey the command of God, by sojourning in this strange land, though even then inhabited by a powerful nation, totally unconnected with, if not averse to, him; a circumstance intimated by Abram's remonstrance to Lot, to avoid any enmity between them, "because they were brethren:" as if he had said, It would be extreme imprudence in us, who are brethren, who have no connexion or friendship but with each other, to allow any dissension to arise between us, surrounded as we are by strangers, indifferent or even averse to us, who might rejoice at our quarrel, and take advantage of it to our common mischief: "for the Canaanite and the Perizzite dwelled" even then in the land." Another reason may be given why Moses noticed the circumstance of the Canaanite and the Perizzite having been then in the land, which, he immediately after the first notice of it, declares, that God promised to the seed of Abram. The Israelites might thus be most clearly satisfied, that no change had taken place in the purpose of God to give them this land; when they were reminded, that at the very time this purpose was declared, the very same nation possessed the country, who now occupied it. Dr. Graves.

8. And Abram said unto Lot,] The best, the wisest men, and those of greatest experience in the world, are most inclined to peace, and most yielding in order to it. Bp. Patrick.

— we be brethren.] Near kinsmen, whom the Hebrews call brethren. He was uncle to Lot. He was also Lot's brother, having married Sarai, sister to Lot. Bp. Kidder.

9. Is not the whole land before thee?] The settlements of the primitive families at first seem to have been scattered and detached from each other, according to local convenience; and in Abram's days there were considerable tracts of unappropriated land in Canaan, on which he and Lot freely grazed their cattle, without hindrance or molestation. That country was not fully peopled till the departure of the Israelites from Egypt. Dr. Hales.

10. — beheld all the plain of Jordan,] A fruitful and pleasant country, well watered by the streams of Jordan; which in many windings and turnings ran through it, and at some times overflowed it, and so rendered it very rich. Therefore Moses compares this plain to the garden of Eden, as most understand the words, "the garden of the Lord," which was well watered by a river running through it; and to the land of Egypt, which is enriched by the overflowing of the Nile, as this was by the overflowing of Jordan. Bp. Patrick. The description, that is given us of some well-watered places in the East of late times, may serve to enliven our apprehensions of the fruitfulness and the beauty of the plain, where Sodom and Gomorrah stood, before God destroyed those cities. Harmer.

— Jordan,] This river is of great note in the Sacred Writthey separated themselves the one from the other.

12 Abram dwelled in the land of Canaan, and Lot dwelled in the cities of the plain, and pitched his tent toward Sodom.

13 But the men of Sodom were wicked and sinners before the LORD exceedingly.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward:

15 For all the land which thou seest, ^b to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever.

16 And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number

Before
CHRIST
about 1917.

^b Chap. 12.
7. & 26. 4.
Deut. 34. 4.

ings. It is said to derive its name from Jor a spring, and Dan a small town near its source; or from the two rivulets, Jor and Dan: perhaps it was so called from Jarad, to descend, by reason of the fall and rapid course of the river.

From its source, near Cesarea Philippi, it runs through a space of about fifty leagues, till it discharges itself into the Dead sea or the lake Asphaltites, where it is lost. Five or six leagues from its spring, it forms the lake Semechon. Thence it enters, and passes through, the lake of Tiberias. It overflows its banks about the time of barley harvest, or the feast of the Passover.

We know from Scripture what miracles were performed in the river Jordan: how it was divided to leave a free passage for the Hebrews under the conduct of Joshua; how Elijah and Elisha walked over its waters; how Elisha made the ax head of iron, which fell into it, swim; how when the Saviour of the world was baptized in the same river, the heavens opened and the Holy Spirit descended upon Him. Calmet.

— as thou comest unto Zoar.] These words are not to be referred to "the land of Egypt," immediately foregoing, from which Zoar was at a great distance; but to those words in the beginning, "a plain well watered every where;" even to the utmost skirts of it, which was Zoar. Such transpositions are not uncommon in Scripture: see Josh. xxiv. 26; Mark xi. 13, 14; xiv. 3, 4. Zoar was so called afterwards, chap. xix. 22. Before that it was called Bela, chap. xiv. 2. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

12. — in the land of Canaan,] In the part more strictly so called: if "the land of Canaan" be taken largely, the plain of Jordan was a part of it. Bp. Patrick.

— in the cities] In one of the cities. See chap. viii. 4.

— toward Sodom.] That is, he removed his tent from place to place, till he came to Sodom, where he fixed. See chap. xiv. 12. Bp. Kidder.

13. — the men of Sodom were wicked &c.] Their sins were grown ripe for punishment; having been brought, as it were, "before the Lord," and sentenced at His tribunal to the judgment which shortly after befell them. Bp. Patrick. Or, they were very great sinners: see chap. x. 9.

We may here take notice of what is but too common in the world; the folly and danger of consulting our senses only in the choice of a way of life. Lot made choice of the fruitful plain of Jordan; not considering the danger of being in the neighbourhood of a most wicked people. The consequence of this unadvised choice was, he lost all he had; he lost his wife; and he had like to have lost his life, had not Abraham prevailed with God for his deliverance. This choice was made about twenty years before Sodom was destroyed. Bp. Wilson.

15. — for ever.] It doth not here signify strictly time without end, but till the end of the world. Bp. Patrick. The promise however was made on condition of their obedience. Compare Deut. iv. 25, 26; Judg. ii. 20, 21. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
about 1917.

the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered.

17 Arise, walk through the land in the length of it and in the breadth of it; for I will give it unto thee.

† Heb.
plains.

18 Then Abram removed his tent, and came and dwelt in the † plain of Mamre, which is in Hebron, and built there an altar unto the LORD.

CHAP. XIV.

1 The battle of four kings against five. 11 Lot is taken prisoner. 14 Abram rescueth him. 18 Melchizedek blesseth Abram. 20 Abram giveth him tithe. 22 The rest of the spoil, his partners having had their portions, he restoreth to the king of Sodom.

AND it came to pass in the days of Amraphel king of Shinar, Arioch king of Ellasar, Chedorlaomer king of Elam, and Tidal king of nations;

2 That these made war with Bera king of Sodom, and with Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of Admah, and Shemeber king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela, which is Zoar.

3 All these were joined together in the vale of Siddim, which is the salt sea.

4 Twelve years they served Chedorlaomer, and in the thirteenth year they rebelled.

about 1919.

5 And in the fourteenth year came Chedorlaomer, and the kings that were with him, and smote the Rephaims in Ashteroth Karnaim, and the Zuzims in Ham, and the Emims in ‖ Shaveh Kiriathaim, 6 And the Horites in their mount Seir, unto ‖ El-paran, which is by the wilderness.

7 And they returned, and came to Enmishpat, which is Kadesh, and smote all the country of the Amalekites, and also the Amorites, that dwelt in Hazezon-tamar.

8 And there went out the king of Sodom, and the king of Gomorrah, and the king of Admah, and the king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (the same is Zoar;) and they joined battle with them in the vale of Siddim;

9 With Chedorlaomer the king of Elam, and with Tidal king of nations, and Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar; four kings with five.

10 And the vale of Siddim was full of slimepits; and the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled, and fell there; and they that remained fled to the mountain.

11 And they took all the goods of Sodom and Gomorrah, and all their victuals, and went their way.

12 And they took Lot, Abram's brother's son, who dwelt in Sodom, and his goods, and departed.

13 ¶ And there came one that had escap-

Before
CHRIST
about 1913.
‖ Or,
the plain of Kiriathaim.
‖ Or, the plain of Paran.

18. Then Abram removed his tent,] See chap. xii. 8; xiii. 3, 12. Abram dwelt in tents through the whole year: Isaac and Jacob followed his example: and the Rechabites lived in the same manner in Jeremiah's time, and for several ages before. Many inhabitants of that country do the same at this day. Mons'. d'Arvieux, who visited the Arabs of mount Carmel by order of Louis XIV. informs us, that they have no other places to dwell in but tents; which are set up in such a manner, as that the rain slides off without penetrating them. Sandys goes further, and says of these Arabs, that they lived in tents, according to the ancient custom of that nation, even during the winter, although possessed of sundry convenient houses. The true way of accounting for this fact is, that that discipline might appear severe and dangerous to Englishmen, which was safe to the Patriarchs and Rechabites, who were used to this way of life; and which is accordingly practised by many at this day, even in the northern parts of Palestine. Harmer.

— in the plain of Mamre,] Or, by the oak of Mamre. So called from Mamre, the brother of Eshcol and Aner, who were confederate with Abram, chap. xiv. 24. From him Hebron was called Mamre, chap. xxiii. 19. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

— in Hebron,] Or rather, by or near Hebron: which was one of the most ancient cities in the world. It was situated upon an eminence, about twenty miles south of Jerusalem, and about twenty miles north of Beer-sheba. Abraham, Sarah, and Isaac were buried near Hebron, in the cave of Machpelah. Calmet.

— and built there an altar unto the Lord.] This is the first thing, which we always find him doing, after he had pitched his tent. Biblioth. Bibl.

A leading reason, we may presume, which influenced Abram to settle at Hebron, was its vicinity to Salem, and to the publick worship of the true God there. For the religion of Abram and Melchizedek was evidently the same, from their joint use of the same epithets or attributes of the Deity, which were introduced or designed to counteract the Zabian idolatry, which had crept from Chaldea, before Abram's days, into the northern parts of Palestine. Dr. Hales.

Chap. XIV. ver. 1. — Amraphel king of Shinar,] Commonly understood to be king of Babylon. But it is probable, either that he was some small prince in the country of Shinar, that is, Assyria; or that, if he was king of Babylon, that monarchy was not very great in Abram's days. The other names probably belong to some particular places, like Sodom and Gomorrah, over which Arioch and Chedorlaomer reigned, who were such kings as those in Canaan when Joshua conquered it; or else commanders of colonies, which they had led out of Assyria and Persia; and settling thereabouts, endeavoured to enlarge their plantations: as the manner was in those and in succeeding times, when the captains of a troop, and leaders of small bodies of men, were called princes or kings. Bp. Patrick.

— king of nations;] That is, of a place, the inhabitants of which were of several nations and people met together. Bp. Kidder. Part of Galilee, being inhabited by a mixed people of divers countries, was thence called "Galilee of the nations," or "Gentiles," Matt. iv. 15. Bp. Patrick.

3. — in the vale of Siddim,] A fruitful valley, changed into the salt sea or lake, since the overthrow of the five cities by fire and brimstone from heaven. Bp. Patrick.

5, 6, 7.] For the probable situation of these people, the reader is referred to the map, adapted to the history of Abraham, &c.

10. — fled to the mountain.] This flying to hills and mountains for safety is frequently alluded to in Scripture. Harmer.

Before CHRIST about 1913. ed, and told Abram the Hebrew; for he dwelt in the plain of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol, and brother of Aner: and these were confederate with Abram.

14 And when Abram heard that his brother was taken captive, he armed his men, and trained servants, born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen, and pursued them unto Dan.

15 And he divided himself against them, he and his servants, by night, and smote them, and pursued them unto Hobah, which is on the left hand of Damascus.

16 And he brought back all the goods, and also brought again his brother Lot, and his goods, and the women also, and the people.

17 ¶ And the king of Sodom went out to meet him after his return from the slaughter of Chedorlaomer, and of the Before CHRIST about 1913. kings that were with him, at the valley of Shaveh, which is the king's dale.

18 And Melchizedek king of Salem brought forth bread and wine: and he was the priest of the most high God.

19 And he blessed him, and said, Blessed be Abram of the most high God, possessor of heaven and earth:

20 And blessed be the most high God, which hath delivered thine enemies into thy hand. And he gave him tithes of all.

21 And the king of Sodom said unto Abram, Give me the persons, and take the goods to thyself.

22 And Abram said to the king of Sodom, I have lift up mine hand unto the LORD, the most high God, the possessor of heaven and earth,

23 That I will not take from a thread even to a shoelatchet, and that I will not

14. — his brother] His brother's son, or nephew. See chap. iii. 8.

— three hundred and eighteen,] If we look to the strength of an Arab emir, or prince, or the number of men he commands, we shall find that, were Abram now alive, he would still be considered as a prince among them, he having "three hundred and eighteen" servants trained to bear arms: for this is much like the strength of those Arab emirs of Palestine, whom d'Arvieux visited.

Dr. Shaw says, several Arabian tribes can bring no more than 100 or 400 horses into the field; so that it is no wonder that Abram was considered in ancient days as a considerable prince, at the head of a powerful clan; had his alliance courted, Gen. xxi. 22; and made war in his own name. Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre, his confederates, were probably neighbouring emirs at the head of considerable clans also, with whom Abram was leagued, and who made up together a formidable power for those times. Harmer.

— pursued them unto Dan.] As far as the place where one of the springs of Jordan breaks forth, called Dan, as Josephus relates, where he speaks of this history. Bp. Patrick.

15. — he and his servants, by night, &c.] The manner, in which the Arabs make war and pillage the caravans, is by keeping at the side of them, or following them in the rear, at a greater or smaller distance according to their forces, which may be easily done in Arabia, on account of its being one great plain: and in the night they fall silently upon the camp, and carry off one part, before the rest are under arms. Abram probably fell upon the camp of the four kings, that had carried away Lot, in the same Arab manner; and thus, with unequal forces, accomplished his design, and rescued Lot. It is to be remembered, that the combats of those days more resembled a fight among the mob, than the bloody and destructive wars of Europe. Sir J. Chardin.

18. — Melchizedek] He was a king and priest (for these two offices were in ancient times united in the same person) in that country; where men were not yet wholly fallen from the true religion. Bp. Patrick. The word Melchizedek signifies king of righteousness, Heb. vii. 2, or a just and righteous king. Pyle.

— Salem] The most ancient quarter of Jerusalem. Dr. Hales.

— brought forth bread and wine:] For the refreshment of Abram and his followers after the fight. This he did as a king, not as a priest: it was an act, not of religion, but of hospitality. In the character of a priest "he blessed him," as is added in the following verse. Bp. Patrick. For this was the office of a priest, Numb. vi. 23; and in this he was a type of Jesus Christ, Acts ii. 26. Bp. Kidder.

This Canaanitish prince was early considered as a type of Christ in the Jewish Church; "Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek," Ps. cx. 4; who resembled Christ in the following particulars. 1, In his name, Melchizedek, "king of righteousness." 2, In his city, Salem, "peace." 3, In his offices of king and priest of the most high God. And, 4, In the omission of the names of his parents and genealogy, the time of his birth, and length of life; exhibiting an indefinite reign and priesthood, according to the Apostle's exposition, Heb. vii. 3. Dr. Hales.

20. And blessed be the most high God,] That is, praised be, &c. When God blesseth man, He bestows benefits upon him, Deut. xxviii. 1, 2. Man blesseth God, when he praiseth Him for His benefits. Compare Matt. xxvi. 26; with Luke xxii. 19. Bp. Patrick.

— And he gave him tithes of all.] It was a very ancient custom to offer to God, whose priest Melchizedek was, the tenth part of what they took in war. The custom prevailed among the Greeks and Romans, and other nations, most distant from and unknown to each other. What is recorded here, was long before the law of tithes was given to the Israelites, and therefore could not be from them. Jacob vowed after this the tithes to God. And that narrative, together with this of Abram, shows plainly, that the custom of paying tithes was of very high antiquity; and that not only of the spoils of war, but of their flock, corn, and other fruit, which Jacob vowed unto God, chap. xxviii. 22. Bps. Patrick and Wilson.

21. And the king of Sodom said] The defeat and the great deliverance of the king of Sodom and his people should have been a warning to them, as it was in the intention of Providence, to leave off their wicked way of living; but it was not, and they are reserved for a much greater punishment. What we should be convinced of by this is, that the abuse of God's mercies and forbearance is visited upon particular persons, as well as upon nations and cities. Bp. Wilson.

22. — I have lift up mine hand &c.] That is, sworn; as the phrase is used in many places, Exod. vi. 8; Numb. xiv. 30, &c. Bp. Patrick. See the note on Deut. xxxii. 40.

23. — I will not take from a thread &c.] That is, the meanest thing. Bp. Patrick.

Abram had learned the lesson of the Apostle, "to be contented with his own." He was so far from the base desire of enriching himself with the king of Sodom's goods, that he utterly refused them, when he might have taken them, and held them without any injustice at all. He had, or might have had, a double title to them. They were his by the law of arms and nations; having won them in the field, and in a just war: and they might

Before
CHRIST
about 1913.

take any thing that is thine, lest thou shouldst say, I have made Abram rich :

24 Save only that which the young men have eaten, and the portion of the men which went with me, Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre ; let them take their portion.

CHAP. XV.

1 God encourageth Abram. 2 Abram complaineth for want of an heir. 4 God promiseth him a son, and a multiplying of his seed. 6 Abram is justified by faith. 7 Canaan is promised again, and confirmed by a sign, 12 and a vision.

1913.

AFTER these things the word of the LORD came unto Abram in a vision, saying, Fear not, Abram : I am thy shield, and thy exceeding ^a great reward.

^a Psal. 16. 5.

2 And Abram said, Lord God, what wilt thou give me, seeing I go childless, and the steward of my house is this Eliezer of Damascus ?

3 And Abram said, Behold, to me thou hast given no seed : and, lo, one born in my house is mine heir.

4 And, behold, the word of the LORD

have been his by the king's free donation, if he had been minded to accept the offer : " Give me the persons, take the goods to thyself." But Abram would not take them : contenting himself with what the Lord had blessed him with, he did not desire, neither would he take " from a thread even to a shoelatchet," of any thing that appertained to the king of Sodom. Bp. Sanderson.

Chap. XV. ver. 1. — the word of the Lord came unto Abram.] God revealed Himself to him more clearly. For this is the first time we read of the Word of the Lord coming to him, and of his having a vision, that is, being made a Prophet, and that in an high degree, God revealing His mind to him not in a dream, but in a vision ; when he was awake, but having his senses bound up from their ordinary functions, whilst the heavenly influence came upon his mind. Bp. Patrick.

A signal manifestation of Himself was now made to Abram by the personal WORD of THE LORD ; who announced Himself as the same God, who had brought him out of Ur of the Chaldees, to give him the inheritance of the land of Canaan. Dr. Hales. See note on Jer. i. 4.

— Fear not, Abram :] He might be tempted to fear : he was a sojourner in a strange land, separated from Lot, who with the confederates was assaulted, and but lately rescued from captivity. God assures him therefore both of protection, and of great blessings besides. Bp. Kidder.

2. — Lord God, what wilt thou give me,] What good will all the riches in the world do me, if I have not a child to inherit my estate ? Bp. Patrick.

We commonly have our eye upon those things which we desire, and set so great a price upon them, that the overvaluing of what we have in pursuit and expectation, makes us undervalue what we have in possession. An infirmity, to which the best of the faithful, " the Father of the faithful " not excepted, are subject. It was the speech of no worse a man than Abram, " Lord God, what wilt thou give me, seeing I go childless ? " As if he had said, " All this great increase of cattle and abundance of treasure, which Thou hast given me, avail me nothing, so long as I have never a child to leave it to." Bp. Sanderson.

— Eliezer of Damascus ?] His ancestors were of Damascus, in Syria, though he was born in Abram's house. Bp. Kidder.

came unto him, saying, This shall not be thine heir ; but he that shall come forth out of thine own bowels shall be thine heir.

Before
CHRIST
1913.

5 And he brought him forth abroad, and said, Look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them : and he said unto him, ^b So shall thy seed be.

^b Rom. 4. 18.

6 And he ^c believed in the LORD ; and he counted it to him for righteousness.

^c Rom. 4. 3. Gal. 3. 6. Jam. 2. 23.

7 And he said unto him, I am the LORD that brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees, to give thee this land to inherit it.

8 And he said, Lord God, whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it ?

9 And he said unto him, Take me an heifer of three years old, and a she goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old, and a turtledove, and a young pigeon.

10 And he took unto him all these, and divided them in the midst, and laid each piece one against another : but the birds divided he not.

11 And when the fowls came down

3. — one born in my house is mine heir.] If they have no children at all, the rich people of Barbary purchase young slaves educate them in their own faith, and sometimes adopt them for their own children. Relations among us would think this a cruel hardship ; would often pronounce it unjust : but the people of the East seem always to have had these ideas. " One born in my house is mine heir," said Abram, speaking of a slave that he had, born of some female slave ; though he had brother's children and grandchildren, if not a brother, in Mesopotamia, Gen. xxii. 20—24. Harmer.

6. And he believed in the Lord ;] He trusted in God, believing that He would make His promises good, how unlikely soever they seemed. " He against hope believed in God." Bp. Kidder.

— and he counted it to him for righteousness.] The Lord esteemed it a most noble act and high expression of a pious confidence in Him ; and thereon graciously owned him for a " righteous " person, though he was not free from all sin ; but was guilt of some actions that were not consistent with perfect " righteousness." Bp. Patrick. This is that faith of Abraham, which is highly celebrated in the New Testament, Rom. iv. 3 ; Gal. iii. 6. Jam. ii. 23 ; and which consisted in a firm belief or persuasion that the Divine promises, both temporal and spiritual, would be fulfilled in their season ; and in a conduct suitable to that persuasion. Dr. Hales.

8. — whereby shall I know &c.] He desires to know more particularly the manner of God's performing this last promise of his inheriting that land. He questions not God's veracity but desires a more distinct knowledge of the matter. Bp. Kidder.

10. — divided them in the midst,] The only trace of this rite in Scripture is in Jer. xxxiv. 18, 19, where a covenant is made by dividing a beast, and the parties covenanting passing between the parts of the beast so divided. This place however shows to have been a very ancient custom : which appears also from Homer, the earliest heathen writer. The rite was as much as to say, " Thus let me be divided and cut in pieces, if I violate the oath which I have now made in the presence of God." Dr. Mede, Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

11. And when the fowls came down] The birds of prey.

Before
CHRIST
1913. upon the carcases, Abram drove them away.

12 And when the sun was going down, a deep sleep fell upon Abram; and, lo, an horror of great darkness fell upon him.

13 And he said unto Abram, Know of Acts 7. 6. a surety "that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not their's, and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years;

14 And also that nation, whom they shall serve, will I judge: and afterward shall they come out with great substance.

15 And thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in a good old age.

12. — an horror of great darkness] An horrible darkness and dread of spirits. That horror and dread of spirits frequently seized on those who saw visions, is evident from Daniel: "I was left alone, and saw this great vision, and there remained no strength in me: for my comeliness was turned in me into corruption, and I retained no strength," chap. x. 8. The description of this matter in Job is very awful and affecting: "In thoughts from the visions of the night, &c," chap. iv. 13, &c. Stackhouse.

13. And he said unto Abram, &c.] Three things were to befall Abram's seed: 1st, That they "should be a stranger in a land not their's;" and they sojourned partly in Canaan, partly in Egypt: 2dly, That they should "serve;" and they did serve the Egyptians: 3dly, That they should be "afflicted;" and so the Israelites were in a great degree, a long time before they came out of Egypt. The time from the birth of Isaac to the deliverance of the Israelites from Egypt was 400 years. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

15. And thou shalt go to thy fathers] Die, and depart to the other world. Bp. Patrick.

It is no small mercy in God, it is no small comfort to us, if either He take us away, before His judgments come; or keep His judgments away, till we be gone. When God had told Abram that "his seed should be a stranger in a land that was not their's," meaning Egypt, where they should be kept under and afflicted 400 years, lest the good Patriarch should have been overwhelmed with grief at it, He comforteth him, as with a promise of a glorious deliverance at the last, so with a promise also of prosperity to his own person and for his own time. See also Isaiah xxix. 8; 2 Kings xxii. 20. Bp. Sanderson.

16. But in the fourth generation] The fourth from the descent into Egypt. Thus Caleb, one of those who came into the promised land, was the fourth from Judah, 1 Chron. ii. 4, 5, 9, 18. and Aaron and Moses were the fourth in descent from Levi, Exod. vi. 16, 18, 20. Bp. Kidder.

— the iniquity of the Amorites &c.] Abram now lived among the Amorites, (chap. xiv. 13,) but under their name are comprehended all the other nations of Canaan. There is a certain measure of wickedness, beyond which God will not spare a sinful land. And though the seasons of punishing nations with a general ruin be known to God only, yet when a land adds to its sins, it both hastens and assures to itself destruction. Compare Jer. li. 13; Matt. xxiii. 32; 1 Thess. ii. 16; with Ezek. xiv. 14. Bps. Kidder and Patrick.

When neither the mercies nor the judgments of God will bring us to repentance, we are then fit for destruction: according to the saying of the Apostle in Rom. ix. 22, "What if God, willing to shew His wrath, and to make His power known, endured with 16 But in the fourth generation they shall come hither again: for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet full. Before

CHRIST
1913.

17 And it came to pass, that, when the sun went down, and it was dark, behold a smoking furnace, and † a burning lamp that passed between those pieces. † Heb. a lump of fire.

18 In the same day the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying, "Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates: * Chap. 12. 7. & 13. 15. & 26. 4. Deut. 34. 4.

19 The Kenites, and the Kenizzites, and the Kadmonites,

20 And the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Rephaims,

21 And the Amorites, and the Canaanites, and the Gergashites, and the Jebusites.

much long-suffering the vessels of wrath fitted to destruction?" They who are wrought upon neither by the patience of God's mercies, nor by the patience of His judgments, seem to be fitted and prepared, to be ripe and ready for destruction. Abp. Tillotson.

17. — behold a smoking furnace, &c.] By this symbol God designed to represent to Abram, either the future state of his posterity, the "smoking furnace" signifying Israel's misery in Egypt, and the "burning lamp" their escape and deliverance: or more probably to notify His own immediate presence. A symbolical representation of His Majesty appeared in great splendour, like a flaming fire, as it afterwards appeared to Moses, (Exod. iii. 2, 6,) and "passed between the pieces" of the beasts that were divided, (ver. 10,) in token that He entered into covenant with Abram and his posterity. Stackhouse, Bp. Patrick.

18. — from the river of Egypt] "The river of Egypt," which is here mentioned, as one of the boundaries of the land promised to the posterity of Abraham, was the river Nile, whose eastern or Pelusiac branch was reckoned the boundary of Egypt, towards the great desert of Shur, which lies between Egypt and Palestine, and which is about 90 miles in breadth. From a comparison of 1 Kings viii. 65, and 2 Chron. vii. 8, with 1 Chron. xiii. 5, it appears that "Sihor" and "the river of Egypt" are the same. And it appears from Jer. ii. 18, that Sihor was the Nile. The Hebrew name "Sihor" signifies "black;" it is an apt epithet of the Nile, bringing down, with its flood, from Abyssinia, a rich, black, loamy sand, which fertilizes the lower Egypt. In the Ethiopian, Egyptian, Greek, and Hindu languages, the Nile is distinguished by appellations, all of which signify "black."

From a solitary passage in the Septuagint version, rendering "the stream or the river of Egypt" (Isai. xxvii. 12) by Rhinocorura, a city of Palestine Syria, built on the borders of the desert which separates that country from Egypt, it has been supposed to denote a stream or torrent near that city by Augustine, and by some respectable modern geographers, Wells, Cellarius, Bochart, &c. But none of the old geographers, Strabo, Mela, Pliny, Ptolemy, &c. notice any such stream or torrent there. Dr. Hales.

The reader will observe, that, in the maps constructed for the present edition of the Bible, attention has been paid to the two opinions respecting "the river of Egypt," stated above: accordingly in the "Map of the stations of the Israelites," the south border of Canaan is delineated so as to agree with the hypothesis of the eastern branch of the Nile being the river here spoken of by Moses: and in the "Map of Canaan," the same border is made to correspond with the opinion, which identifies that river with the supposed stream near Rhinocorura.

Before
CHRIST
about 1913.

take any thing that is thine, lest thou shouldest say, I have made Abram rich :

24 Save only that which the young men have eaten, and the portion of the men which went with me, Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre ; let them take their portion.

CHAP. XV.

1 God encourageth Abram. 2 Abram complaineth for want of an heir. 4 God promiseth him a son, and a multiplying of his seed. 6 Abram is justified by faith. 7 Canaan is promised again, and confirmed by a sign, 12 and a vision.

1913.

AFTER these things the word of the LORD came unto Abram in a vision, saying, Fear not, Abram : I am thy shield,

* Psal. 16. 5.

and thy exceeding ^a great reward. 2 And Abram said, Lord God, what wilt thou give me, seeing I go childless, and the steward of my house is this Eliezer of Damascus ?

3 And Abram said, Behold, to me thou hast given no seed : and, lo, one born in my house is mine heir.

4 And, behold, the word of the LORD

have been his by the king's free donation, if he had been minded to accept the offer : " Give me the persons, take the goods to thyself." But Abram would not take them : contenting himself with what the Lord had blessed him with, he did not desire, neither would he take " from a thread even to a shoelatchet," of any thing that appertained to the king of Sodom. Bp. Sanderson.

Chap. XV. ver. 1. — the word of the Lord came unto Abram] God revealed Himself to him more clearly. For this is the first time we read of the Word of the Lord coming to him, and of his having a vision, that is, being made a Prophet, and that in an high degree, God revealing His mind to him not in a dream, but in a vision ; when he was awake, but having his senses bound up from their ordinary functions, whilst the heavenly influence came upon his mind. Bp. Patrick.

A signal manifestation of Himself was now made to Abram by the personal WORD OF THE LORD ; who announced Himself as the same God, who had brought him out of Ur of the Chaldees, to give him the inheritance of the land of Canaan. Dr. Hales. See note on Jer. i. 4.

— Fear not, Abram :] He might be tempted to fear : he was a sojourner in a strange land, separated from Lot, who with the confederates was assaulted, and but lately rescued from captivity. God assures him therefore both of protection, and of great blessings besides. Bp. Kidder.

2. — Lord God, what wilt thou give me,] What good will all the riches in the world do me, if I have not a child to inherit my estate? Bp. Patrick.

We commonly have our eye upon those things which we desire, and set so great a price upon them, that the overvaluing of what we have in pursuit and expectation, makes us undervalue what we have in possession. An infirmity, to which the best of the faithful, " the Father of the faithful" not excepted, are subject. It was the speech of no worse a man than Abram, " Lord God, what wilt thou give me, seeing I go childless?" As if he had said, " All this great increase of cattle and abundance of treasure, which Thou hast given me, avail me nothing, so long as I have never a child to leave it to." Bp. Sanderson.

— Eliezer of Damascus ?] His ancestors were of Damascus, in Syria, though he was born in Abram's house. Bp. Kidder.

came unto him, saying, This shall not be thine heir ; but he that shall come forth out of thine own bowels shall be thine heir.

Before
CHRIST
1913.

5 And he brought him forth abroad, and said, Look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them : and he said unto him, ^b So shall thy seed be.

^b Rom. 4. 18.

6 And he ^c believed in the LORD ; and he counted it to him for righteousness.

^c Rom. 4. 3. Gal. 3. 6. Jam. 2. 23.

7 And he said unto him, I am the LORD that brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees, to give thee this land to inherit it.

8 And he said, Lord God, whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it ?

9 And he said unto him, Take me an heifer of three years old, and a she goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old, and a turtledove, and a young pigeon.

10 And he took unto him all these, and divided them in the midst, and laid each piece one against another : but the birds divided he not.

11 And when the fowls came down

3. — one born in my house is mine heir.] If they have no children at all, the rich people of Barbary purchase young slaves, educate them in their own faith, and sometimes adopt them for their own children. Relations among us would think this a cruel hardship ; would often pronounce it unjust : but the people of the East seem always to have had these ideas. " One born in my house is mine heir," said Abram, speaking of a slave that he had, born of some female slave ; though he had brother's children and grandchildren, if not a brother, in Mesopotamia, Gen. xxii. 20—24. Harmer.

6. And he believed in the Lord ;] He trusted in God, believing that He would make His promises good, how unlikely soever they seemed. " He against hope believed in God." Bp. Kidder.

— and he counted it to him for righteousness.] The Lord esteemed it a most noble act and high expression of a pious confidence in Him ; and thereon graciously owned him for a " righteous" person, though he was not free from all sin ; but was guilty of some actions that were not consistent with perfect " righteousness." Bp. Patrick. This is that faith of Abraham, which is so highly celebrated in the New Testament, Rom. iv. 3 ; Gal. iii. 6 ; Jam. ii. 23 ; and which consisted in a firm belief or persuasion, that the Divine promises, both temporal and spiritual, would be fulfilled in their season ; and in a conduct suitable to that persuasion. Dr. Hales.

8. — whereby shall I know &c.] He desires to know more particularly the manner of God's performing this last promise of his inheriting that land. He questions not God's veracity, but desires a more distinct knowledge of the matter. Bp. Kidder.

10. — divided them in the midst,] The only trace of this rite in Scripture is in Jer. xxxiv. 18, 19, where a covenant is made by dividing a beast, and the parties covenanting passing between the parts of the beast so divided. This place however shows it to have been a very ancient custom : which appears also from Homer, the earliest heathen writer. The rite was as much as to say, " Thus let me be divided and cut in pieces, if I violate the oath which I have now made in the presence of God." Jos. Mede, Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

11. And when the fowls came down] The birds of prey.

^{Before}
CHRIST upon the carcases, Abram drove them ^{1913.} away.

12 And when the sun was going down, a deep sleep fell upon Abram; and, lo, an horror of great darkness fell upon him.

13 And he said unto Abram, Know of ^{4 Acts 7. 6.} a surety ^dthat thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not their's, and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years;

14 And also that nation, whom they shall serve, will I judge: and afterward shall they come out with great substance.

15 And thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in a good old age.

16 But in the fourth generation they shall come hither again: for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet full. ^{Before}
CHRIST ^{1913.}

17 And it came to pass, that, when the sun went down, and it was dark, behold a smoking furnace, and † a burning lamp that passed between those pieces.

18 In the same day the LORD made a covenant with Abram, saying, ^{† Heb. a lamp of fire.} 'Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates: ^{Chap. 12. 7. & 13 15. & 26. 4. Deut. 34. 4.}

19 The Kenites, and the Kenizzites, and the Kadmonites,

20 And the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Rephaims,

21 And the Amorites, and the Canaanites, and the Girgashites, and the Jebusites.

12. — an horror of great darkness] An horrible darkness and dread of spirits. That horror and dread of spirits frequently seized on those who saw visions, is evident from Daniel: "I was left alone, and saw this great vision, and there remained no strength in me: for my comeliness was turned in me into corruption, and I retained no strength," chap. x. 8. The description of this matter in Job is very awful and affecting: "In thoughts from the visions of the night, &c," chap. iv. 13, &c. Stackhouse.

13. And he said unto Abram, &c.] Three things were to befall Abram's seed: 1st, That they "should be a stranger in a land not their's;" and they sojourned partly in Canaan, partly in Egypt: 2dly, That they should "serve;" and they did serve the Egyptians: 3dly, That they should be "afflicted;" and so the Israelites were in a great degree, a long time before they came out of Egypt. The time from the birth of Isaac to the deliverance of the Israelites from Egypt was 400 years. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

15. And thou shalt go to thy fathers] Die, and depart to the other world. Bp. Patrick.

It is no small mercy in God, it is no small comfort to us, if either He take us away, before His judgments come; or keep His judgments away, till we be gone. When God had told Abram that "his seed should be a stranger in a land that was not their's," meaning Egypt, where they should be kept under and afflicted 400 years, lest the good Patriarch should have been overwhelmed with grief at it, He comforteth him, as with a promise of a glorious deliverance at the last, so with a promise also of prosperity to his own person and for his own time. See also Isaiah xxxix. 8; 2 Kings xxii. 20. Bp. Sanderson.

16. But in the fourth generation] The fourth from the descent into Egypt. Thus Caleb, one of those who came into the promised land, was the fourth from Judah, 1 Chron. ii. 4, 5, 9, 18. And Aaron and Moses were the fourth in descent from Levi, Exod. vi. 16, 18, 20. Bp. Kidder.

— the iniquity of the Amorites &c.] Abram now lived among the Amorites, (chap. xiv. 13,) but under their name are comprehended all the other nations of Canaan. There is a certain measure of wickedness, beyond which God will not spare a sinful land. And though the seasons of punishing nations with a general ruin be known to God only, yet when a land adds to its sins, it both hastens and assures to itself destruction. Compare Jer. li. 13; Matt. xxiii. 32; 1 Thess. ii. 16; with Ezek. xiv. 14. Bps. Kidder and Patrick.

When neither the mercies nor the judgments of God will bring us to repentance, we are then fit for destruction: according to the saying of the Apostle in Rom. ix. 22, "What if God, willing to shew His wrath, and to make His power known, endured with much longsuffering the vessels of wrath fitted to destruction?" They who are wrought upon neither by the patience of God's mercies, nor by the patience of His judgments, seem to be fitted and prepared, to be ripe and ready for destruction. Abp. Tillotson.

17. — behold a smoking furnace, &c.] By this symbol God designed to represent to Abram, either the future state of his posterity, the "smoking furnace" signifying Israel's misery in Egypt, and the "burning lamp" their escape and deliverance: or more probably to notify His own immediate presence. A symbolical representation of His Majesty appeared in great splendour, like a flaming fire, as it afterwards appeared to Moses, (Exod. iii. 2, 6,) and "passed between the pieces" of the beasts that were divided, (ver. 10,) in token that He entered into covenant with Abram and his posterity. Stackhouse, Bp. Patrick.

18. — from the river of Egypt] "The river of Egypt," which is here mentioned, as one of the boundaries of the land promised to the posterity of Abraham, was the river Nile, whose eastern or Pelusiac branch was reckoned the boundary of Egypt, towards the great desert of Shur, which lies between Egypt and Palestine, and which is about 90 miles in breadth. From a comparison of 1 Kings viii. 65, and 2 Chron. vii. 8, with 1 Chron. xiii. 5, it appears that "Sihor" and "the river of Egypt" are the same. And it appears from Jer. ii. 18, that Sihor was the Nile. The Hebrew name "Sihor" signifies "black;" it is an apt epithet of the Nile, bringing down, with its flood, from Abyssinia, a rich, black, loamy sand, which fertilizes the lower Egypt. In the Ethiopian, Egyptian, Greek, and Hindu languages, the Nile is distinguished by appellations, all of which signify "black."

From a solitary passage in the Septuagint version, rendering "the stream or the river of Egypt" (Isai. xxvii. 12) by Rhinocorura, a city of Palestine Syria, built on the borders of the desert which separates that country from Egypt, it has been supposed to denote a stream or torrent near that city by Augustine, and by some respectable modern geographers, Wells, Cellarius, Bochart, &c. But none of the old geographers, Strabo, Mela, Pliny, Ptolemy, &c, notice any such stream or torrent there. Dr. Hales.

The reader will observe, that, in the maps constructed for the present edition of the Bible, attention has been paid to the two opinions respecting "the river of Egypt," stated above: accordingly in the "Map of the stations of the Israelites," the south border of Canaan is delineated so as to agree with the hypothesis of the eastern branch of the Nile being the river here spoken of by Moses: and in the "Map of Canaan," the same border is made to correspond with the opinion, which identifies that river with the supposed stream near Rhinocorura.

Before
CHRIST
1911.

CHAP. XVI.

1 Sarai, being barren, giveth Hagar to Abram. 4 Hagar, being afflicted for despising her mistress, runneth away. 7 An angel sendeth her back to submit herself, 11 and telleth her of her child. 15 Ishmael is born.

NOW Sarai Abram's wife bare him no children: and she had an handmaid, an Egyptian, whose name was Hagar.

2 And Sarai said unto Abram, Behold now, the LORD hath restrained me from bearing: I pray thee, go in unto my maid; it may be that I may † obtain children by her. And Abram hearkened to the voice of Sarai.

† Heb. be builded
by her.

3 And Sarai Abram's wife took Hagar her maid the Egyptian, after Abram had dwelt ten years in the land of Canaan, and gave her to her husband Abram to be his wife.

4 ¶ And he went in unto Hagar, and she conceived: and when she saw that she had conceived, her mistress was despised in her eyes.

5 And Sarai said unto Abram, My wrong be upon thee: I have given my maid into thy bosom; and when she saw that she had conceived, I was despised in her eyes: the LORD judge between me and thee.

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. — an handmaid, an Egyptian,] Every woman (in Barbary) that is married, has at least one female slave, who is usually a black, to attend her; whilst others have two or more, according to their rank and quality. In like manner we find that Hagar was Sarai's "handmaid;" that Rebekah, when she was betrothed to Isaac, was attended by "her nurse and her damsels;" that Laban gave to his daughter Leah, when she was married to Jacob, Zilpah "his maid for an handmaid;" and to Rachel, on the like occasion, Bilhah "his handmaid to be her maid." Dr. Shaw.

3. — gave her to her husband &c.] In concubinage, these secondary wives were accounted lawful and true wives, and their issue was reputed legitimate; but they were inferior to the chief wife, having no authority in the family, nor any share in household government: so, if they had been servants in the family, before they became concubines, they continued to be such afterwards, and in the same subjection to their mistresses as before. Stackhouse.

Hagar being Sarai's bondslave, her children would be Sarai's children, according to the custom of those times, chap. xxx. 3; Exod. xxi. 4. Bp. Patrick.

4. And he went in &c.] As an excuse, in some measure, for Abram, it may be pleaded, that having lived many years without giving occasion to suspect his modesty and continence, he did not in all probability now act from a criminal motive, but from a principle of conjugal affection to Sarai, in compliance with whose solicitations, made from her desire of thus contributing to the accomplishment of God's promises, he took Hagar to his bed: that having no longer any hope of issue by Sarai, he had recourse to this, as the only way he could devise, whereby to have God's promise of "an heir, that should be born of himself," accomplished; and that polygamy, though certainly declared criminal by our Saviour, who has restored matrimony to its primitive institution, may have been at that time, if not allowed, yet tolerated by God, for the hardness of men's hearts. Stackhouse.

The instances of polygamy, which Scripture records, by no means exhibit inducements to the practice: witness Sarai and Hagar, Leah and Rachel, Hannah and Peninnah. As in ancient 6 But Abram said unto Sarai, Behold, thy maid is in thy hand; do to her † as it pleaseth thee. And when Sarai † dealt hardly with her, she fled from her face.

7 ¶ And the angel of the LORD found her by a fountain of water in the wilderness, by the fountain in the way to Shur.

8 And he said, Hagar, Sarai's maid, whence camest thou? and whither wilt thou go? And she said, I flee from the face of my mistress Sarai.

9 And the angel of the LORD said unto her, Return to thy mistress, and submit thyself under her hands.

10 And the angel of the LORD said unto her, I will multiply thy seed exceedingly, that it shall not be numbered for multitude.

11 And the angel of the LORD said unto her, Behold, thou art with child, and shalt bear a son, and shalt call his name ‖ Ishmael; because the LORD hath heard thy affliction.

Before
CHRIST
1911.

† Heb. that which is good in thine eyes.
† Heb. afflicted her.

‖ That is,
God shall hear.

12 And he will be a wild man; his hand will be against every man, and every man's hand against him; and he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethren.

Chap. 25.
18.

times family feuds imbittered polygamy, we shall find on inquiry, that in modern times also this irregular practice is far from adding any thing to domestick happiness. In Mahometan countries, where polygamy is allowed, what we are able to learn of the domestick life of the husbands, who have several wives, is calculated neither to make their lot enviable, nor to give a favourable opinion of Mahomet's legislation: their house is a perpetual scene of tumult and contention. Nothing is to be heard but quarrels among the different wives, and complaints made to the husband. The four legal married wives complain, that their slaves are preferred to them; and their slaves, that they are abandoned to the jealousy of their mistresses. Fragments to Calmet, Volney's Travels.

— her mistress was despised in her eyes.] Fruitfulness was accounted a great blessing and honour in those days. Bp. Patrick.

7. And the angel of the Lord] This is the first time that we read of the appearance of an angel: by which some Christians understand the ETERNAL WORD, or SON OF GOD. It is probable, that it was one of the heavenly ministers. Bp. Patrick.

— in the way to Shur.] She was fleeing into Egypt, her own country, on which the wilderness of Shur bordered. Bp. Patrick.

8. — Hagar, Sarai's maid,] He addresses her as Sarai's maid, to put Hagar in mind of her relation and duty. Bp. Wilson.

10. — I will multiply &c.] The angel delivers this message in the name of God who sent him. Bp. Patrick. He speaks in the person of God, and by Hagar is acknowledged as God, ver. 13, which seems to some to intimate, that it was the Son of God, who appeared. Bp. Kidder.

— multiply thy seed exceedingly,] In a few years the family of her son Ishmael was so increased, that in the 37th chapter we read of Ishmaelites trading into Egypt. Afterwards his seed was multiplied exceedingly in the Hagarenes, probably so called from his mother Hagar; and in the Nabatheans, who had their name from his son Nebaioth; and in the Itureans, so called from his son Jetur or Itur; and in the Arabs, especially the Scenites, and the Saracens, who overran a great part of the world: and his descendants, the Arabs, are a very numerous people at this day. Bp. Newton.

12. And he will be a wild man;] Live in a rambling unsettled

Before
CHRIST
1911.

13 And she called the name of the LORD that spake unto her, Thou God seest me: for she said, Have I also here looked after him that seeth me?

* Chap. 24.
62.
† That is,
the well of him that liveth and seeth me.

14 Wherefore the well was called ^bBeer-lahai-roi; behold, it is between Kadesh and Bered.

15 ¶ And Hagar bare Abram a son: and Abram called his son's name, which Hagar bare, Ishmael.

1910.

16 And Abram was fourscore and six years old, when Hagar bare Ishmael to Abram.

CHAP. XVII.

1 God reneweth the covenant. 5 Abram his name is changed in token of a greater blessing. 10 Circumcision is instituted. 15 Sarai her name is changed, and she blessed. 17 Isaac is promised. 23 Abraham and Ishmael are circumcised.

state. Dr. Wells. It is in the original a wild ass-man; meaning as wild as a wild ass: so that that should be eminently true of him, which is affirmed of mankind in general, "Man is born like a wild ass's colt," Job xi. 12. The nature of the creature, to which Ishmael is compared, cannot be described better than in the same book, (chap. xxxix. 5, &c.) according to which Ishmael and his posterity were to be wild, fierce, savage, ranging in the deserts, and not easily softened and tamed to society. And whoever hath read or known any thing of this people, knoweth this to be their true and genuine character. Bp. Newton.

— his hand will be against every man, &c.] The one is the natural and almost necessary consequence of the other. Ishmael lived by prey and rapine in the wilderness; and his posterity have all along infested Arabia and the neighbouring countries with their robberies and incursions. They live in a state of continual war with the rest of the world; and are both robbers by land, and pirates by sea. As they have been such enemies to mankind, it is no wonder that mankind have been enemies to them again; that several attempts have been made to extirpate them; and even now, as well as formerly, travellers are forced to go with arms and in caravans or large companies, and to march and keep watch and guard like a little army, to defend themselves from the assaults of these freebooters. Bp. Newton.

The Arabs are naturally thievish and treacherous: and it sometimes happens that those very persons are overtaken and pillaged in the morning, who were entertained the night before with all the instances of friendship and hospitality. Neither are they to be accused for plundering strangers only, and attacking almost every person whom they find unarmed and defenceless; but for those many implacable and hereditary animosities, which continually subsist among them; literally fulfilling to this day the prophecy to Hagar, that "Ishmael should be a wild man; his hand should be against every man, and every man's hand against him." Dr. Shaw.

— and he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethren.] Shall tabernacle; for many of the Arabs dwell in tents, and are therefore called Scenites, from a Greek word, signifying a tent. They dwelt in tents in the wilderness as long ago as Isaiah's and Jeremiah's time, Is. xiii. 20; Jer. iii. 2; and they do the same at this day. This is very extraordinary, that "his hand should be against every man, and every man's hand against him;" and yet that he should be able to "dwell in the presence of all his brethren:" but extraordinary as it was, this also hath been accomplished both in the person of Ishmael, and in his posterity. As for Ishmael himself, the sacred historian afterwards relates, ch. xxv. 17, 18, that "the years of the life of Ishmael were an hundred and thirty and seven years, and he died in the presence of all his brethren." As for his posterity, they dwelt likewise in the pre-

AND when Abram was ninety years old and nine, the LORD appeared to Abram, and said unto him, I am the Almighty God; ^awalk before me, and be thou ^bperfect.

Before
CHRIST
1893.

2 And I will make my covenant between me and thee, and will multiply thee exceedingly.

* Chap. 5.
22.
† Or, upright, or,
sincere.

3 And Abram fell on his face: and God talked with him, saying,

4 As for me, behold, my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father of [†]many nations.

† Heb. multitude of nations.

5 Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram, but thy name shall be Abraham; ^bfor a father of many nations have I made thee.

^b Rom. 4.
17.

6 And I will make thee exceeding fruitful, and I will make nations of thee, and kings shall come out of thee.

sence of all their brethren; Abraham's sons by Keturah; the Moabites and Ammonites, descendants of Lot; the Israelites, descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and the Edomites, descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Esau. They still subsist a distinct people, and inhabit the country of their progenitors; they have from first to last maintained their independency; and notwithstanding the most powerful efforts for their destruction, still dwell in the presence of all their brethren, and in the presence of all their enemies. Bp. Newton.

The region inhabited by the Arabs is not remote or insulated, separated from social life, and therefore exempt from the influence, which naturally results from intercourse with other countries. It is situated in that portion of the globe, in which society originated, and the first kingdoms were formed. The greatest empires of the world arose and fell around them. They have not been secluded from correspondence with foreign nations; and thus attached through ignorance and prejudice to simple and primitive manners. In the early periods of history they were united as allies to the most powerful monarchs of the East: under their victorious prophet they once carried their arms over the most considerable kingdoms of the earth; through many succeeding ages the caravans of the merchant, and the companies of Mahometan pilgrims passed regularly over their deserts: even their religion has undergone a total change. Yet all these circumstances, which, it might be supposed, would have subdued the most stubborn prejudices, and altered the most inveterate habits, have produced no effect upon the Arabs; and they still preserve unimpaired a most exact resemblance to the first descendants of Ishmael. Richards.

13. — for she said, Have I also here &c.] That is, Have I not here also, even in the waste desert, and not only in the house of Abram, seen that good God of mine, which hath first graciously looked upon me and mine affliction? Bp. Hall.

Chap. XVII. ver. 1. — I am the Almighty God;] Or Almighty. This is the first time we meet with this name. And God plainly uses it here, to confirm His covenant; that Abram might more firmly believe, that He was able to perform what He promised, seeing He was "God Almighty." Bp. Beveridge.

— perfect.] See note on chap. vi. 9.

2. — I will make my covenant] Establish, and confirm, and give a token of it: it was made before. Bp. Patrick.

4. — thou shalt be a father of many nations.] Not only of Jews, and Ishmaelites, and others; but in the spiritual sense, of all the Gentile world. Bp. Patrick.

5. Neither shall thy name &c.] Abram means, a high father; Abraham, a father of a great multitude. Bp. Patrick, Calmet.

6. — kings shall come out of thee.] Many kings sprang from

Before
CHRIST
1898.

7 And I will establish my covenant between me and thee and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee.

† Heb. of thy sojournings.

8 And I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land † wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God.

9 ¶ And God said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou, and thy seed after thee in their generations.

† Act. 7. 9.

10 This is my covenant, which ye shall keep, between me and you and thy seed after thee; † Every man child among you shall be circumcised.

4 Acts 7. 8.
Rom. 4. 11.

† Heb.
a son of eight days.

† Lev. 12. 3.
Luke 2. 21.
John 7. 22.

11 And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin; and it shall be † a token of the covenant betwixt me and you.

12 And † he that is eight days old † shall be circumcised among you, every man child in your generations, he that is born in the house, or bought with money of any stranger, which is not of thy seed.

Before
CHRIST
1898.

13 He that is born in thy house, and he that is bought with thy money, must needs be circumcised: and my covenant shall be in your flesh for an everlasting covenant.

14 And the uncircumcised man child whose flesh of his foreskin is not circumcised, that soul shall be cut off from his people; he hath broken my covenant.

15 ¶ And God said unto Abraham, As for Sarai thy wife, thou shalt not call her name Sarai, but Sarah shall her name be.

16 And I will bless her, and give thee a son also of her: yea, I will bless her, and † she shall be a mother of nations; kings of people shall be of her.

† Heb.
she shall become nations.

17 Then Abraham fell upon his face, and laughed, and said in his heart, Shall a child be born unto him that is an hundred years old? and shall Sarah, that is ninety years old, bear?

18 And Abraham said unto God, O that Ishmael might live before thee!

Abraham; of the Jews, Ishmaelites, Idumeans, Midianites, and our great King the Messiah. Bp. Kidder.

7. — to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee.] The family of Abraham was to be disciplined as a select people, and God in a peculiar sense engaged to be a God unto him and to his seed after him. Whilst other nations seemed to be neglected, and left to follow their own imaginations, He prescribed them a body of laws, as their proper head and governor; and, by a continued series of typical prefigurations, prepared them for the acknowledgment and reception of that great Deliverer, who had been promised from the beginning. Dr. Berriman.

This is the first place in all the Scriptures, wherein God promises in express terms to be a God to any people. Afterwards indeed He often repeated the same thing by His prophets, saying, "I will be to them a God, and they shall be to Me a people." But these words were only as the transcripts of this covenant: this was the original copy; the first grant here made to Abraham and to his seed. Bp. Beveridge.

8. — for an everlasting possession;] The word "everlasting" is to be understood according to the capacity of the subject; sometimes for a perpetual duration; sometimes for as long as the world shall last; according to God's appointment or purpose. Bp. Wilson.

Abraham's seed were to "possess" the land, if they did not forfeit it by their disobedience to God. Bp. Patrick.

10. This is my covenant.] That is, this which I am about to mention, is a sign or token of the covenant; as the Paschal Lamb is called "the Passover of the Lord," Exod. xii. 11, that is, the memorial of the angel's passing them by, when he smote the Egyptian children. But circumcision was such a sign, that they entered thereby into a covenant with God to be His people. For it was not a mere mark, whereby they should be known to be Abraham's seed, and distinguished from other nations; but they were made by this the children of the covenant, and entitled to the blessings of it. This mark was very fitly chosen, because it was such a token, as no man would have set upon himself, and upon his children, unless it were for faith and religion's sake.

Covenants were anciently made in the East by means of blood. Thus God's covenant with Abraham was solemnized on Abraham's part by his own and his son Isaac's blood, and so continued through all generations: and as they were thus made the select people of God, so God in conclusion sent His own Son, who by this very covenant of circumcision was consecrated to be their God and their Redeemer. Bp. Patrick.

One great end of circumcision was, not only to distinguish them from all others, but chiefly to keep them from idolatry, into which all other nations had fallen; and to put them in mind of the covenant made with Abraham, and with every one that was circumcised, that he would worship no other god but the true God, the God of his father Abraham; nor own any other Mediator, but Him promised to Abraham: all other nations worshipping the sun, &c. as mediators. Bp. Wilson.

The Egyptians borrowed circumcision either from the Hebrews, or the Ishmaelites, or some other people descended from Abraham. Bp. Patrick.

12. And he that is eight days old] The eighth day is the time of circumcision among the Jews, that is, the descendants of Abraham and Sarah; but because Ishmael, the son of Abraham and Hagar, was thirteen years old, when he was circumcised, the descendants of Ishmael are not circumcised till that age. Circumcision was a type of baptism. Abraham was the first person circumcised; and he is also the first person called a Prophet in Scripture. Bp. Tomline.

14. — that soul shall be cut off] The meaning of this phrase is much disputed. The simplest sense seems to be, He shall not be accounted one of God's people. Bp. Patrick.

15. — Sarai] Sarai means my princess, Sarah a princess, or the princess; a princess indefinitely: not of one family, but of many nations. Bp. Wilson, Calmet.

17. — laughed,] Not doubting of the promise, for the Apostle tells us the contrary, Rom. iv. 19, but out of his great joy and admiration. He is therefore not censured for it, as Sarah is, chap. xviii. A reference seems to be made to this by our Saviour, John viii. 56. God had promised, that the Seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. This covenant is renewed to Abraham, ver. 3, 4 of this chapter; and here limited to Isaac. Good reason therefore had he to rejoice exceedingly, believing that so great a blessing should proceed out of his loins: a blessing, which should abolish the curse, brought upon all nations by Adam's transgression. Bps. Patrick, Kidder, and Wilson.

18. — O that Ishmael might live before thee!] I believe, O Lord, as Thou sayest, that my old age shall be blessed with 1898.

Before
CHRIST

Chap. 18.
10. & 21. 2.

19 And God said, 'Sarah thy wife shall bear thee a son indeed; and thou shalt call his name Isaac: and I will establish my covenant with him for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him.

Chap. 25.
12.

20 And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee: Behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly; ⁵ twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make him a great nation.

21 But my covenant will I establish with Isaac, which Sarah shall bear unto thee at this set time in the next year.

22 And he left off talking with him, and God went up from Abraham.

23 ¶ And Abraham took Ishmael his son, and all that were born in his house, and all that were bought with his money, every male among the men of Abraham's house; and circumcised the flesh of their foreskin in the selfsame day, as God had said unto him.

1898.

24 And Abraham was ninety years old and nine, when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin.

farther issue, for which also Thou wilt in all likelihood reserve Thy special and highest favour: but let not the son, Thou hast given me already, even Ishmael, be cast out and neglected by Thee: let it please thee to continue him also to me, with much prosperity. Bp. Hall.

19. — Isaac:] Which signifies in the Hebrew he has, or shall laugh. He was so called, not from Sarah's laughter, ch. xviii. 12, but from Abraham's joy. His name was a memorial of his father's faith, not of his mother's unbelief. Stackhouse, Bp. Kidder.

20. — and will multiply him &c.] See the note from Bp. Newton, on the tenth verse of the preceding chapter.

— twelve princes shall he beget.] This circumstance is very particular, but it was punctually fulfilled. Moses hath given us the names of these twelve princes, chap. xxv. 13—16: by which we are to understand, not that they were so many distinct sovereign princes, but heads of clans or tribes. Heathen writers speak of the Arabian phylarchs, or rulers of tribes; and of that people having twelve kings over them. The people have ever since lived in tribes; and still continue to do so, as Thevenot and other modern travellers testify. Bp. Newton.

— and I will make him a great nation.] This is repeated twice or thrice; and it was accomplished as soon as in the regular course of nature it could be. His seed in process of time grew up into a great nation; and such they continued for several ages, and such they remain to this day. They might indeed emphatically be styled a great nation, when the Saracens had made their rapid and extensive conquests, and created one of the largest empires that ever were in the world. Bp. Newton.

21. But my covenant will I establish with Isaac.] My spiritual covenant; My everlasting covenant, chap. xii. 3. As for the temporal covenant, or promise, Ishmael was made as much partaker of it as Isaac; and so was Esau, as well as Jacob. Bp. Wilson.

St. Paul points out a material difference between these two sons of Abraham. He says that Ishmael, the son of the bondwoman, was born only according to the flesh, in the common course of nature: but that Isaac was born by virtue of the promise, and by the particular interposition of the Divine Power: and that these two sons of Abraham were designed to represent the two covenants of the Law and of the Gospel; the former a state of bondage, the latter of freedom, Gal. iv. 22—31. Bp. Tomline.

Before
CHRIST
1898.

25 And Ishmael his son was thirteen years old, when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin.

26 In the selfsame day was Abraham circumcised, and Ishmael his son.

27 And all the men of his house, born in the house, and bought with money of the stranger, were circumcised with him.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 Abraham entertaineth three angels. 9 Sarah is reproved for laughing at the strange promise. 17 The destruction of Sodom is revealed to Abraham. 23 Abraham maketh intercession for the men thereof.

AND the LORD appeared unto him in the plains of Mamre: and he sat in the tent door in the heat of the day;

1898.

2 ^a And he lift up his eyes and looked, and, lo, three men stood by him: and when he saw them, he ran to meet them from the tent door, and bowed himself toward the ground,

^a Hebr. 13.

3 And said, My Lord, if now I have found favour in thy sight, pass not away, I pray thee, from thy servant:

Chap. XVIII. ver. 1. And the Lord appeared unto him] When we consider what our Saviour saith, John i. 18, "No man hath seen God at any time; the only-begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, He hath declared Him;" as also John vi. 46, we must be convinced that it was not God the Father, who shewed Himself in these appearances; but that it was He, the Logos or Word, who appeared to the Patriarchs; and neither God the Father, nor His angels. Bp. Wilson.

— he sat in the tent door in the heat of the day.] "At ten minutes after ten in the morning, we had in view several fine bays, and a plain full of booths, with the Turcomans sitting by the doors, under sheds resembling porticoes; or by shady trees, surrounded with flocks of goats." Dr. Chandler.

2. — threc men] Whom he took to be three men. Bp. Wilson.

It is very observable, that one of these appeared superiour to the other two: Abraham therefore addresses him as the chief, and Moses styles him Jehovah, which most Jews and Christians look upon as the incommunicable name of God: and therefore the far greatest part of the latter believe, that it was the Son of God, who appeared in that form. Others however, particularly some modern ones, maintain, that it was no more than an angel, who spoke in the person of God: though it is hardly probable, either that Moses should call an angel by that name, or that Abraham should intercede with him, as he does, when he saith, "That be far from thee to slay the righteous with the wicked; shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?" or that an angel should peremptorily say, "If I find fifty righteous within the city, for their sakes I will spare all the place." So that the most probable opinion is, that it was Christ Himself, who is emphatically called "the Judge of all the earth." Stackhouse.

Happy were the days, when celestial visitants thus deigned to descend, and converse with men, "as a man converseth with his friend." But surely we have no reason to complain of any partiality shewn in this respect to our fathers; we, to whom this comfortable promise hath been made by the mouth of Truth itself; "If a man love Me, My Father will love him, and we will come, and make our abode with him," John xiv. 23. By His word and by His spirit, Christ continually visiteth His people, and dwelleth in the hearts of the faithful. Bp. Horne.

Before
CHRIST
1898.

4 Let a little water, I pray you, be fetched, and wash your feet, and rest yourselves under the tree:

† Heb.
stay.
† Heb.
you have passed

5 And I will fetch a morsel of bread, and † comfort ye your hearts; after that ye shall pass on: for therefore † are ye come to your servant. And they said, So do, as thou hast said.

† Heb.
Hasten.

6 And Abraham hastened into the tent unto Sarah, and said, † Make ready quickly three measures of fine meal, knead it, and make cakes upon the hearth.

7 And Abraham ran unto the herd, and fetched a calf tender and good, and gave it unto a young man; and he hastened to dress it.

8 And he took butter, and milk, and the calf which he had dressed, and set it before them; and he stood by them under the tree, and they did eat.

9 ¶ And they said unto him, Where is Sarah thy wife? And he said, Behold, in the tent.

¶ Chap. 17.
19. & 21. 2.

10 And he said, I will certainly return unto thee according to the time of life; and, lo, ^b Sarah thy wife shall have a son. And Sarah heard it in the tent door, which was behind him.

5. — a morsel of bread,] Rather, a loaf of bread; comprehending all necessary provision at a meal. Bp. Patrick.

The Eastern people in general are great eaters of bread; it being computed that three persons in four live entirely upon it, or else on such compositions as are made of barley and wheat flour. Frequent mention is made of this simple diet in the holy Scriptures. Dr. Shaw.

— comfort ye your hearts;] Refresh yourselves.

6. — make cakes upon the hearth.] Rauwolff tells us in his Travels, that as he went through a country, which lies between Mesopotamia and Media, a woman presently made them cakes, about a finger thick, and of the bigness of a trencher: which she first laid upon hot stones, and turned them often; and then threw ashes and embers over them: which he says were very savoury. Bp. Patrick.

Among the Bedoweens, as soon as the dough is kneaded, it is made into thin cakes, which are either immediately baked upon the coals, or else in a shallow earthen vessel like a fryingpan. Such were the “unleavened cakes,” Exod. xxix. 2, and other places of Scripture; and the “cakes which Sarah made quickly on the hearth.” Dr. Shaw.

7. And Abraham ran unto the herd,] It is no disgrace here for persons of the highest character to busy themselves in what we should reckon menial employments. The greatest prince of these countries is not ashamed to fetch a lamb from his herd, and kill it, whilst the princess is impatient till she hath prepared her fire and her kettle to dress it. The custom, that still continues, of walking either barefoot or only with sandals, requires the ancient compliment of bringing water, upon the arrival of a stranger, to wash his feet: whilst the person, who presents himself the first to do this office, and to give the welcome, is the master of the family; who always distinguishes himself by being the most officious; and who, after his entertainment is prepared, thinks it a shame to sit down with his guests, but will stand up all the time and serve them. Dr. Shaw.

9. — in the tent.] In her apartment: for women had their apartments by themselves. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1898.

11 Now Abraham and Sarah were old and well stricken in age; and it ceased to be with Sarah after the manner of women.

12 Therefore Sarah laughed within herself, saying, After I am waxed old shall I have pleasure, my ^c lord being old also? ^c 1 Pet. 3. 6.

13 And the LORD said unto Abraham, Wherefore did Sarah laugh, saying, Shall I of a surety bear a child, which am old?

14 Is any thing too hard for the LORD? At the time appointed I will return unto thee, according to the time of life, and Sarah shall have a son.

15 Then Sarah denied, saying, I laughed not; for she was afraid. And he said, Nay; but thou didst laugh.

16 ¶ And the men rose up from thence, and looked toward Sodom: and Abraham went with them to bring them on the way.

17 And the LORD said, Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do;

18 Seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be ^d blessed in him? ^d Chap. 12. 3. & 22. 18. Acts 3. 25. Gal. 3. 8.

19 For I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the

10. — according to the time of life;] The next or following year: according to the usual time that passes from the conception to the timely birth of a living child. Bp. Kidder.

12. — Sarah laughed within herself,] Not as Abraham for joy, but out of incredulity: having a greater regard to the order of nature than to God's promise. Bps. Patrick and Wilson.

Abraham heard this news from the Angel, and “laughed:” Sarah heard it, and “laughed:” they did not more agree in their desire, than differ in their sentiments: Abraham laughed for joy; Sarah, for distrust: Abraham laughed, because he believed it would be so; Sarah, because she believed it could not be so: the same act varies in the manner of doing, and the intention of the doer. Bp. Hall.

— After I am waxed old] She was now eighty-nine years old. Bp. Kidder.

15. — for she was afraid.] This natural fear of Sarah's, accompanied with confusion at being discovered, betrayed her into this denial, and so caused her to add one sin to another. For this reason perhaps it is, that when the Apostle proposes Sarah as a pattern of obedience to women, he at the same time cautions them very seasonably against the fear by which she fell. “Whose daughters ye are as long as ye do well, and are not afraid with any amazement,” 1 Pet. iii. 6. Bp. Kidder.

— And he said, Nay; but thou didst laugh.] Sarah only laughed within herself, and is betrayed. How easily can God discover even our most secret sins! Bp. Hall.

18. Seeing that Abraham &c.] Two reasons are given, why God acquaints Abraham with His intended proceedings: 1st, Because He had already revealed to him greater things, and made him most gracious promises: 2dly, Because He knew that Abraham would approve himself so faithful to Him, that he would not fail to enjoy all that God had promised. Bp. Patrick.

19. — that he will command his children &c.] This was the great glory of Abraham, next to his being “the friend of God,” that he was “the father of the faithful.” And the careful education of children “in the nurture and admonition of the Lord” is so honourable to parents, that God Himself would not pass it by

Before
CHRIST
1898.

LORD, to do justice and judgment; that the LORD may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him.

20 And the LORD said, Because the cry of Sodom and Gomorrah is great, and because their sin is very grievous;

21 I will go down now, and see whether they have done altogether according to the cry of it, which is come unto me; and if not, I will know.

22 And the men turned their faces from thence, and went toward Sodom: but Abraham stood yet before the LORD.

23 ¶ And Abraham drew near, and said, Wilt thou also destroy the righteous with the wicked?

24 Peradventure there be fifty righteous within the city: wilt thou also destroy and not spare the place for the fifty righteous that are therein?

25 That be far from thee to do after this manner, to slay the righteous with the wicked: and that the righteous should be as the wicked, that be far from thee: Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?

26 And the LORD said, If I find in Sodom fifty righteous within the city, then I will spare all the place for their sakes.

27 And Abraham answered and said,

Behold now, I have taken upon me to speak unto the Lord, which am but dust and ashes:

28 Peradventure there shall lack five of the fifty righteous: wilt thou destroy all the city for lack of five? And he said, If I find there forty and five, I will not destroy it.

29 And he spake unto him yet again, and said, Peradventure there shall be forty found there. And he said, I will not do it for forty's sake.

30 And he said unto him, Oh let not the Lord be angry, and I will speak: Peradventure there shall thirty be found there. And he said, I will not do it, if I find thirty there.

31 And he said, Behold now, I have taken upon me to speak unto the Lord: Peradventure there shall be twenty found there. And he said, I will not destroy it for twenty's sake.

32 And he said, Oh let not the Lord be angry, and I will speak yet but this once: Peradventure ten shall be found there. And he said, I will not destroy it for ten's sake.

33 And the LORD went his way, as soon as he had left communing with Abraham: and Abraham returned unto his place.

Before
CHRIST
1898.

in Abraham without special mention of it to his everlasting commendation; "I know Abraham," saith God, "that he will command his children and his household after him to keep the way of the Lord, and to do justice and judgment." Abp. Tillotson.

Parents and masters of families, from the example of this Father of the Faithful, may learn their duty to instruct their children and servants in the way of the Lord. Bp. Kidder.

That Abraham might be furnished with a powerful argument against a wicked course of life, which he might make use of for the instruction of others, he is made acquainted with God's intentions against Sodom: so that he could assure his posterity, that this dreadful judgment was not the effect of natural causes, but the appointment of a just and angry God. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." Bp. Wilson.

21. I will go down &c.] The patience of God was very great towards Sodom and Gomorrah. For when the cry of their sins had reached heaven, and called loud for vengeance to be poured down upon them; to express the wonderful patience of God toward such grievous sinners, though nothing is hid from His sight and knowledge, yet He is represented as coming down from heaven to earth on purpose to inquire into the truth of things, and "whether they were altogether according to the cry that was come up to Him." Abp. Tillotson.

In this passage God speaks after the manner of men; using the language of a good judge, who never passes sentence, much less executes it, till he hath examined the cause. Bps. Kidder and Patrick.

32. — I will not destroy it for ten's sake.] A wonderful representation of the tender mercy of the most High; who condescended to grant a reprieve to the whole country for the sake of a few righteous, could they have been found in it. And His mercy was still greater, even beyond Abraham's desire; for He spared one of the five cities, for the sake of three or four persons: as we read chap. xix. 20, 21.

Abraham makes no express mention of Lot in any of the foregoing petitions: but it is plain from chap. xix. 29, that he was in his thoughts, which God knew; and he is comprehended in those words at the 23d verse of this chapter, "Wilt Thou also destroy the righteous with the wicked?" Bp. Patrick.

The conduct of Abraham on this occasion furnishes a powerful instance of the efficacy of well-directed prayer, and an encouragement to the faithful at all times to "continue instant in prayer, watching thereunto with all perseverance;" without fainting indeed, but "with all humility of mind." Though Abraham did not succeed for the guilty Sodom, his intercession was powerful to save Lot, and the righteous part of his family. And one of the five cities, Zoar, as appears from the next chapter, was saved by the sole intercession of Lot; and by a gracious impossibility, Sodom itself, the largest and the guiltiest, could not be destroyed, while one righteous person remained therein. These are remarkable and comfortable instances of the mighty efficacy of intercession before the throne of grace. "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much," not only for himself, but for his family and friends, and for his country, and even for strangers. While the destruction of Sodom, because there were not ten righteous found therein, furnishes a most awful and awakening example, that every obstinate and incorrigible sinner is not only an enemy to himself, but an enemy to his family and to his country, by contributing to swell the tide of national guilt, which will not fail to end in national calamity, whenever the measure of the iniquity of the individuals, that compose the community, shall come to the full. Dr. Hales.

In this chapter we find the holy Patriarch Abraham interceding with the Lord for sinful Sodom: and we find, such is the amazing extent of Divine mercy, that had there been only ten righteous persons in the city, the rest would have been spared for their sakes. But the corruption was universal; and Abraham himself could interfere no longer. "The Lord left communing with Abraham: and Abraham returned unto his place." Bp. Horne.

Before
CHRIST
1898.

CHAP. XIX.

1 Lot entertaineth two angels. 4 The vicious Sodomites are stricken with blindness. 12 Lot is sent for safety into the mountains. 18 He obtaineth leave to go into Zoar. 24 Sodom and Gomorrah are destroyed. 26 Lot's wife is a pillar of salt. 30 Lot dwelleth in a cave. 31 The incestuous original of Moab and Ammon.

AND there came two angels to Sodom at even; and Lot sat in the gate of Sodom: and Lot seeing them rose up to meet them; and he bowed himself with his face toward the ground;

2 And he said, Behold now, my lords, turn in, I pray you, into your servant's house, and tarry all night, and wash your feet, and ye shall rise up early, and go on your ways. And they said, Nay; but we will abide in the street all night.

3 And he pressed upon them greatly; and they turned in unto him, and entered into his house; and he made them a feast, and did bake unleavened bread, and they did eat.

4 ¶ But before they lay down, the men of the city, even the men of Sodom, compassed the house round, both old and young, all the people from every quarter:

5 And they called unto Lot, and said unto him, Where are the men which came in to thee this night? bring them out unto us, that we may know them.

Chap. XIX. Extraordinary interpositions of Providence demand extraordinary attention. If God speaks, it is but reasonable that man should hear. And when He executed the vengeance recorded in this chapter, He certainly spake in an audible voice to the hopes and fears of all the dwellers upon earth. By the deliverance vouchsafed to His righteous servant, He encouraged the hopes of such as, like him, preserved their integrity in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation; while by the unparalleled destruction of the cities of the plain, He alarmed the fears of those, who resembled them in impiety and iniquity. And though so many hundred years have past, since that astonishing catastrophe took place, yet the history should answer the same purpose now, that the event itself was designed to do then. No time can destroy the efficacy of this salutary medicine for the disorders of the world. Virtue and vice are not changeable things: they continue still the same, and there is no alteration in the Divine decrees concerning them. Sooner or later, in this life or in the next, a deliverance similar to that of Lot will be granted to the righteous: a destruction, answering to that of Sodom, will be the portion of the wicked. For, as St. Peter argues on the subject, "If God turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes, condemned them with an overthrow, making them an ensample unto those that after should live ungodly; and delivered just Lot, vexed with the filthy conversation of the wicked:—the Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished." Bp. Horne.

Ver. 1. — Lot sat in the gate of Sodom:] People might sit in the gate anciently for conversation and diversion, as they do now among the Arabs, in markets and fairs. Lot seems to have placed himself in the gate after this manner, for amusement and society. Harner.

Before
CHRIST
1898.

6 And Lot went out at the door unto them, and shut the door after him,

7 And said, I pray you, brethren, do not so wickedly.

8 Behold now, I have two daughters which have not known man; let me, I pray you, bring them out unto you, and do ye to them as is good in your eyes: only unto these men do nothing; for therefore came they under the shadow of my roof.

9 And they said, Stand back. And they said again, This one fellow came in to sojourn, and he will needs be a judge: now will we deal worse with thee, than with them. And they pressed sore upon the man, even Lot, and came near to break the door.

10 But the men put forth their hand, and pulled Lot into the house to them, and shut to the door.

11 And they smote the men ^b that were at the door of the house with blindness, both small and great: so that they wearied themselves to find the door. ^b Wisd. 12. 17.

12 ¶ And the men said unto Lot, Hast thou here any besides? son in law, and thy sons, and thy daughters, and whatsoever thou hast in the city, bring them out of this place:

13 For we will destroy this place, because the ^c cry of them is waxen great be- ^c Chap. 15. 20.

2. — turn in, I pray you, &c.] In the Eastern countries of late some few caravansaries have been set up, but in Lot's time there were no inns for the accommodation of strangers: so that travellers, unless invited to a private house, were forced to lie all night in the streets. It was customary therefore for those of the better sort to receive travellers, whether or not they knew them, into their houses, and entertain them with great civility. For this reason we meet, both in sacred and profane authors, with such large commendations of this act of hospitality; and particularly in the Epistle to the Hebrews, chap. xiii. 2, we have a precept to this effect, alluding to this very history: "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers; for thereby some have entertained angels unawares." Stackhouse.

3. — unleavened bread,] Because it would be soonest ready.

5. — that we may know them.] This vile sin, so hateful to God, and repugnant to human nature, continued among the Gentiles till the Apostles' time, as may be gathered from Rom. i. 27, and 1 Cor. vi. 9. It was expressly forbidden by the law of Moses, Levit. xviii. 22, and thereby made capital, chap. xx. 13, as it is also by our English laws. Stackhouse.

7. — do not so wickedly.] As to break the rights of hospitality, and violate the laws of nature. Bp. Patrick.

8. Behold now, I have two daughters &c.] If we may not do any evil, to procure a positive good, certainly much less may we do one evil, to avoid or prevent another. Lot should have resolved, rather to suffer any evil, than to do any. He should rather have adventured his own life, and theirs too, in protecting the chastity of his daughters, and the safety of his guests, than have offered the exposure of his daughters to the lusts of the Sodomites, though it were to redeem his guests from the abuse of fouler and more abominable filthiness. There is no perplexity, no necessity, no obligation, no expediency, which should either en-

Before CHRIST 1898. fore the face of the LORD; and the LORD hath sent us to destroy it.

14 And Lot went out, and spake unto his sons in law, which married his daughters, and said, Up, get you out of this place; for the LORD will destroy this city. But he seemed as one that mocked unto his sons in law.

15 ¶ And when the morning arose, then the angels hastened Lot, saying, Arise, take thy wife, and thy two daughters, which † are here; lest thou be consumed in the † iniquity of the city.

16 And ^d while he lingered, the men laid hold upon his hand, and upon the hand of his wife, and upon the hand of his two daughters; the LORD being merciful unto him: and they brought him forth, and set him without the city.

17 ¶ And it came to pass, when they had brought them forth abroad, that he said, Escape for thy life; look not behind thee, neither stay thou in all the plain; escape to the mountain, lest thou be consumed.

18 And Lot said unto them, Oh, not so, my Lord:

19 Behold now, thy servant hath found grace in thy sight, and thou hast magnified thy mercy, which thou hast shewed unto me in saving my life; and I cannot escape to the mountain, lest some evil take me, and I die:

20 Behold now, this city is near to flee unto, and it is a little one: Oh, let me escape thither, (is it not a little one?) and my soul shall live.

21 And he said unto him, See, I have accepted † thee concerning this thing also, that I will not overthrow this city, for the which thou hast spoken.

22 Haste thee, escape thither; for I cannot do any thing till thou be come thither. Therefore the name of the city was called Zoar.

23 ¶ The sun was † risen upon the earth when Lot entered into Zoar.

24 Then ^e the LORD rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from the LORD out of heaven;

25 And he overthrew those cities, and all the plain, and all the inhabitants of the cities, and that which grew upon the ground.

Before CHRIST 1898.

† Heb. thy face.

† Heb. gone forth.

^e Deut. 29. 23. Luke 17. 29. Isai. 13. 19. Jer. 50. 40. Amos 4. 11. Jude 7.

force or persuade us to any sin. The resolution, "Let us do evil, that good may come," is pronounced by an Apostle to be worthy of condemnation. Bp. Sanderson.

14. — which married his daughters,] Or, were to marry: that is, were betrothed or espoused to his daughters. Bp. Wilson.

— But he seemed as one that mocked] Lot warns his sons in law like a prophet, and advises them like a father; but both in vain: he seems to them as if he mocked, and they do more than seem to mock him again. "Why should to-morrow differ from other days? Who ever saw it rain fire? Or whence should that brimstone come? Or if such showers must fall, how shall nothing burn but this valley?" So to carnal men preaching is foolishness, devotion idleness, the Prophets madmen, Paul a babbler: these men's incredulity is as worthy of the fire, as the others' uncleanness. "He that believeth not, is condemned already." Bp. Hall.

16. — while he lingered,] It is observable that Lot, though he fully believed there should be a performance of the things which were told him, yet made not that haste to get out of the city, which the case required. How apt is the sinner to linger and to put off his repentance! How often is God forced, as it were, to arrest him by sickness or some grievous calamity, and so to drag him from perdition! And O! how merciful is the Lord to that man, whom by any means, however painful and afflicting, He bringeth forth into safety, and setteth him without the city! Let such an one hear the voice of his gracious Deliverer, saying to him in the person of Lot, "Escape for thy life; look not behind thee; neither stay thou in all the plain; escape to the mountain, lest thou be consumed."—Escape, O sinner, for thine eternal life: look not behind thee on the pleasures thou hast left, neither let thine affections stay upon the earth; escape to the holy mountain, lest thou be consumed with the world. Bp. Horne.

22. — I cannot do any thing &c.] Having made thee this promise, I must defer the vengeance till thou art safe there. Bp. Patrick.

— Therefore the name of the city was called Zoar.] Signifying "little:" for the name of it was Bela before, chap. xiv. 2. Bp. Wilson.

In times of public calamity, there is often some little Zoar provided for them that love God, where they are wonderfully preserved from the judgments, that fall on their country and their kindred. The Roman armies, which surrounded Jerusalem, to execute on it the vengeance predicted, drew off in an unaccountable manner, as if their design had been to give the Christians contained within its walls an opportunity of withdrawing to a little adjoining city called Pella, which proved a Zoar to them: from whence they beheld the Roman eagles fly again to devour their destined prey. And what is the Church upon earth, but a Zoar, a little city, (is it not a little one?) spared at the intercession of its Lord? Here the penitent, not yet strong enough to escape to the heavenly mountain, findeth rest and refreshment, and is strengthened to pursue his journey. Hither let him escape, and his soul shall live. Bp. Horne.

24. Then the Lord rained — from the Lord] In the account of the overthrow of Sodom, there is a distinction of persons in the Godhead: "Then the LORD rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from the LORD out of heaven." The former was the visible LORD, "the image," or representative, "of the invisible," whom "no man hath seen at any time, nor can see; nor ever saw His shape, nor heard His voice;" as we learn from the former; who only could expound to mortals the nature and the will of the Father: for "no man knoweth the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal Him." Compare Col. i. 15; John i. 18; v. 37; 1 Tim. vi. 16; Matt. xi. 27. That the visible LORD was the Son of God, was the doctrine of the primitive Church: Tertullian says, "It is the Son, who has executed judgment from the beginning: overthrowing the proud tower of Babel, and confounding men's languages; punishing the whole world by the violence of waters; raining upon Sodom and Gomorrah fire and brimstone, the LORD FROM THE LORD." Dr. Hales.

— upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah] And the neighbouring cities, Admah and Zeboim; as appears from Deut. xxix. 23. Bp. Patrick.

— brimstone and fire] The plain where these cities stood, which had been pleasant and fruitful, like an earthly paradise, was first inflamed by lightning, which set fire to the bitumen, with which it was replete; and it was afterwards overflowed by the waters of the Jordan, which diffused itself there, and formed

Before
CHRIST
1898.

26 ¶ But his wife looked back from behind him, and she became a pillar of salt.

27 ¶ And Abraham gat up early in the morning to the place where he stood before the LORD :

28 And he looked toward Sodom and Gomorrah, and toward all the land of the plain, and beheld, and, lo, the smoke of the country went up as the smoke of a furnace.

29 ¶ And it came to pass, when God destroyed the cities of the plain, that God remembered Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow, when he overthrew the cities in the which Lot dwelt.

30 ¶ And Lot went up out of Zoar, and dwelt in the mountain, and his two daughters with him; for he feared to dwell in Zoar: and he dwelt in a cave, he and his two daughters.

31 And the firstborn said unto the younger, Our father is old, and there is not a man in the earth to come in unto us after the manner of all the earth :

Before
CHRIST
1898.

32 Come, let us make our father drink wine, and we will lie with him, that we may preserve seed of our father.

33 And they made their father drink wine that night: and the firstborn went in, and lay with her father; and he perceived not when she lay down, nor when she arose.

34 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the firstborn said unto the younger, Behold, I lay yesternight with my father: let us make him drink wine this night also; and go thou in, and lie with him, that we may preserve seed of our father.

35 And they made their father drink wine that night also: and the younger arose, and lay with him; and he perceived not when she lay down, nor when she arose.

36 Thus were both the daughters of Lot with child by their father.

"the Dead sea," or "lake of Sodom," called also "the lake Asphaltites," because of the asphaltus or bitumen, with which it abounded; and "the Salt sea," because the Hebrews call nitre and bitumen salt. The Prophets speak often of the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, and say that these places shall be desert, dried up, and uninhabited; covered with briars and brambles; a land of salt and sulphur, where there can be neither planting nor sowing. Josephus says, that round about the lake of Sodom, and about the cities heretofore destroyed by fire from heaven, the land is all burnt up, and there are still to be seen the dismal effects of this terrible burning, and the remains of those unfortunate cities. Heathen writers give accounts much to the same effect: especially Tacitus, who says that these cities were burnt by the stroke of thunderbolts from heaven; and that vestiges of that destruction remained, the earth itself being in appearance burnt up, and having lost its prolific power: and the air being infected with the same noisome qualities. Modern travellers speak in like manner of the saltiness of the water; of the unwholesomeness of the air; of the bitumen, gathered on the neighbouring mountains, and covering the stones on the side of the lake; and of a sort of black sulphureous stones, abounding on the shores of the lake and on the neighbouring hills, which being held in the flame of a candle soon burn, and yield a smoke of an intolerable stench. Calmet, Bps. Patrick and Poccocke, Maundrell.

26. But his wife looked back &c.] There are in Lot's story two very notable memorials of God's judgment. The lake of Sodom, and Lot's wife's pillar. The one, the punishment of resolute sin; the other, of faint virtue. For the Sodomites are an example of impenitent wilful sinners: and Lot's wife, of unpersevering and relapsing righteous persons. So that there are two sorts of men, to whom these particulars are fitted. To those in a state of sin, the lake of Sodom: to those in a state of grace, Lot's wife's pillar. To the first in a state of sin, Moses proposeth "the vine of Sodom," and the grapes of Gomorrah, which, if you but touch them, turn to ashes. To the others, in a state of grace, Christ proposeth the pillar of salt: "Remember Lot's wife." To the one Jeremiah crieth, that when they have "fallen," they should "arise again:" to the others St. Paul saith, "Let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall:" Deut. xxxii. 32; Luke xvii. 32; Jer. viii. 4; 1 Cor. x. 12. Bp. Andrewes.

— a pillar of salt.] It is probable that some of the dreadful shower, which destroyed the cities of the plain, overtook her; and falling upon her, wrapped her body in a sheet of nitro-sul-phureous matter; which congealed into a crust as hard as stone, and made her appear like a pillar of salt, her body being, as it were, candied with it. Josephus says, that the pillar was remaining in his time. Bps. Patrick and Wilson.

28. — and, lo, the smoke of the country went up &c.] "As it was in the days of Lot, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man:" when that last morning shall dawn, and the Sun of Righteousness shall arise in glorious majesty upon the earth. No sooner shall He make His appearance, than the heavens, being on fire at His presence, shall be dissolved, and pass away with a great noise: the earth also, with the works that are therein, shall be burned up. Then shall be fulfilled that which was spoken by the Psalmist in terms evidently borrowed from the history before us: "Upon the ungodly He shall rain fire and brimstone, storm and tempest: this shall be their portion." What Sodom was, the world shall be: and at the last day, when we shall arise and look towards the place, where its pleasures and delights, its beauties and glories once existed, as "Abraham arose in the morning, and looked toward Sodom and Gomorrah, and toward all the cities of the plain," we shall behold a sight like that which presented itself to the Patriarch, "the smoke of the country going up, as the smoke of a furnace."

But the same all-gracious and merciful God, who, "when He destroyed the cities of the plain, remembered Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow;" when He shall destroy this place wherein we dwell, will remember the true Abraham, the Father of us all, our dear Redeemer and Intercessor: and for His sake, if we now repent and believe in Him, will save us in that day from the ruins of a burning world, and from those fires which are never to be extinguished. Bp. Horne.

33. And they made their father drink wine] We must be convinced of the frailty of nature, without the grace of God, when we read the account of Lot's intemperance after so great a deliverance; and if we have any concern for our salvation, we shall dread a vice, which will lead a man to the greatest crimes. Bp. Wilson.

36. Thus were both the daughters of Lot &c.] One circumstance must be remembered by those, who would understand the scope and design of the sacred writer, in furnishing us with particular relations contained in this book; which is, that he always kept in mind the promise of the Messiah, and was desirous of shewing, that the expectation of this great object of the Jewish hopes was predominant in all times, and influenced the

Before
CHRIST
1897.

37 And the firstborn bare a son, and called his name Moab: the same is the father of the Moabites unto this day.

38 And the younger, she also bare a son, and called his name Ben-ammi: the same is the father of the children of Ammon unto this day.

CHAP. XX.

1 Abraham sojourneth at Gerar, 2 denieth his wife, and loseth her. 3 Abimelech is reprov'd for her in a dream. 9 He rebuketh Abraham, 14 restoreth Sarah, 16 and reproveth her. 17 He is healed by Abraham's prayer.

about 1898.

AND Abraham journeyed from thence toward the south country, and dwelled between Kadesh and Shur, and sojourned in Gerar.

2 And Abraham said of Sarah his wife, opinions and manners of every generation. The recollection of this will furnish the reason of many particulars mentioned in the book, which might otherwise appear extraordinary and exceptionable. It will perhaps serve to explain the conduct of Lot's daughters; the violent desire of Sarah for a son; the solicitude of Isaac to remove the barrenness of Rebekah; and the contention between the wives of Jacob. In conformity with this design also Moses relates the jealousies between Ishmael and Isaac; and between Esau and Jacob; and many other minute and singular particulars, which an historian of his dignity would not have condescended to describe, but with a view to illustrate the general persuasion of, and gradual preparation for, the coming of the Messiah. Dr. Gray.

Chap. XX. ver. 1. — journeyed from thence] That is, from Mamre, probably to avoid the stench of the vale of Siddim, and on occasion of the destruction of Sodom, of which he was an eyewitness. Stackhouse, Bp. Kidder.

— toward the south country,] Towards Egypt. Bp. Patrick.

— Gerar.] Gerar was a regal city, situated not far from the angle, where the south and west sides of Palestine meet: and the country, to which it gave the name, extended itself pretty far into Arabia Petrea. Beer-sheba signifies the well of the oath, because here Abraham made a covenant with Abimelech, king of Gerar, concerning a well which he had digged hard by; here he likewise planted a grove, and instituted an oratory, or place of divine worship; and here in process of time was a city or considerable town built, taken notice of by heathen authors under the name of Bersimma, or Bersabe. Kadesh was a city, lying on the edge of the land of Canaan, to the south of Hebron. Shur was the name of that part of Arabia Petrea, which joins Egypt and the Red sea: and somewhere between these two was the well, near which Abraham, when he left Mamre, fixed his habitation. Stackhouse.

2. And Abraham said of Sarah &c.] See the note on chapter xii. 13. It is still more extraordinary, that Abraham failed under the same trial twenty-three years after his former failure; when he again denied his wife to Abimelech, whose character and that of his people was the reverse of that of the Egyptian court; for he took her “in the integrity of his heart,” and his nation was then “righteous.” God therefore dealt more gently with him than with the Egyptians; and removed the plague of barrenness from him and his household, on Abraham's intercession. Dr. Hales.

— Abimelech] The name of all the kings of Palestine, as Pharaoh was of the kings of Egypt. Bp. Patrick.

3. — in a dream] God revealed Himself and His will freely. Vol. I.

She is my sister: and Abimelech king of Gerar sent, and took Sarah.

Before
CHRIST
about 1898.

3 But God came to Abimelech in a dream by night, and said to him, Behold, thou art but a dead man, for the woman which thou hast taken; for she is † a man's wife.

† Heb.
married to an husband.

4 But Abimelech had not come near her: and he said, LORD, wilt thou slay also a righteous nation?

5 Said he not unto me, She is my sister? and she, even she herself said, He is my brother: in the || integrity of my heart and innocency of my hands have I done this.

|| Or,
simplicity,
or, sincerity.

6 And God said unto him in a dream, Yea, I know that thou didst this in the integrity of thy heart; for I also withheld thee from sinning against me: therefore suffered I thee not to touch her.

quently in old times, especially before the sealing of the Scripture-canon, in sundry manners: as by visions, prophecies, ecstasies, oracles, and other supernatural means; among the rest, by dreams. By such supernatural revelations He imparted His will, not only to the godly and faithful, though more frequently and especially to them; but sometimes also to hypocrites within the church, as to Saul and others; and sometimes even to heathens out of the church, as to Pharaoh, Balaam, Nebuchadnezzar, &c. and here to Abimelech. But since the writings of the Prophets and Apostles were made up, the Scripture-canon sealed, and the Christian church by the preaching of the Gospel became universal; dreams, and other supernatural revelations, as also other things of like nature, as miracles, and all the more immediate and extraordinary manifestations of the will and power of God, have ceased to be of ordinary and familiar use: so that now, we ought rather to suspect delusion in them, than to expect direction from them. Bp. Sanderson.

— thou art but a dead man,] That is, thou shalt certainly die. But then there is a condition implied in this as in other threats; namely, “If he did not restore Abraham his wife.” See Jonah iii. 4; Ezek. xxxiii. 14, 15. Besides, the words imply what punishment adultery deserves in God's account. Bp. Kidder.

5. Said he not unto me, She is my sister?] Abimelech, an heathen man, who had not the knowledge of the true God of heaven to direct him in the right way; and withal a King, who had therefore none upon earth above him, to control him if he should transgress; would yet have abhorred to have defiled himself knowingly by adultery with another man's wife, although the man were but a stranger, and the woman exceeding beautiful. Certainly Abimelech shall one day rise up in judgment, and condemn thy filthiness and injustice, whosoever thou art, that committest, or causest another to commit, adultery: “who knowing the judgment of God, that they which do such things are worthy of death, either dost the same thyself, or hast pleasure in them that do them;” or being in place and office to punish incontinent persons, dost at once both criminate thy own conscience, and embolden the adulterer to commit that sin again without fear, from which he hath once escaped without shame. Bp. Sanderson.

— in the integrity of my heart] Not with any intention to defile her, but to make her my wife: and innocency of my hands; I did not take her by violence from Abraham, but he and she consented to it. Bp. Patrick.

6. — I also withheld thee from sinning] It was God's great mercy to all the three parties, that He did not suffer this evil to be done: for by this means He graciously preserved Abimelech from the sin, Abraham from the wrong, and Sarah from both. And it is to be acknowledged the great mercy of God, when at

Before
CHRIST
about 1898.

7 Now therefore restore the man his wife; for he is a prophet, and he shall pray for thee, and thou shalt live: and if thou restore her not, know thou that thou shalt surely die, thou, and all that are thine.

8 Therefore Abimelech rose early in the morning, and called all his servants, and told all these things in their ears: and the men were sore afraid.

9 Then Abimelech called Abraham, and said unto him, What hast thou done unto us? and what have I offended thee, that thou hast brought on me and on my kingdom a great sin? thou hast done deeds unto me that ought not to be done.

10 And Abimelech said unto Abraham, What sawest thou, that thou hast done this thing?

11 And Abraham said, Because I thought, Surely the fear of God is not in this place; and they will slay me for my wife's sake.

12 And yet indeed she is my sister; she is the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother; and she became my wife.

13 And it came to pass, when God caused me to wander from my father's house, that I said unto her, This is thy kindness which thou shalt shew unto me; at every place whither we shall come, ^a say of me, He is my brother.

^a Chap. 12.
13.

any time He doth (and He doth often more or less) by His gracious and powerful restraint withhold any man from running into those extremities of sin and mischief, whereinto his own corruption would carry him headlong, especially when it is inflamed by the cunning persuasions of Satan, and the manifold temptations that are in the world through lust. Bp. Sanderson.

7. — he is a prophet,] This is the first time we meet with the word prophet; and Abraham is the first that is honoured with this name. It signifies one admitted to a nearer intercourse with God; so as to be allowed to consult Him, and to declare His mind and will to others; and also to prevail with Him by prayer to confer blessings upon them. Bp. Patrick. See note on Numb. xi. 25.

— he shall pray for thee,] Though God can give His blessing without the intercession of any of His servants, yet it is plain that He has otherwise ordered it. He sends them to His "Prophets;" to those whom He has appointed to "bless in His name;" to "men of like passions with themselves;" that He may prove their faith and their obedience. Bp. Wilson.

11. — the fear of God is not in this place;] This fear of God being the great restraint upon men's lusts and passions. "By the fear of the Lord men depart from evil," Prov. xvi. 6. It appears however that Abimelech and his court were not so corrupt as Abraham suspected. Bps. Kidder and Patrick.

16. And unto Sarah he said,] In this speech Abimelech tells Sarah, she was at liberty to return to her brother, as she called him; and might live with him without fear: for that he was so far from designing any injury to him, or resenting what had passed, that he had made him a present of great value, as a token of esteem for a virtuous and good man. But by way of gentle reproof, he advised her not to use any more artifices by disowning Abraham for her husband; but to place herself under his care, which would be a protection to her; or (as the words

Before
CHRIST
about 1898.

14 And Abimelech took sheep, and oxen, and menservants, and womenservants, and gave them unto Abraham, and restored him Sarah his wife.

15 And Abimelech said, Behold, my land is before thee: dwell † where it pleaseth thee.

† Heb.
as is good in thine eyes.

16 And unto Sarah he said, Behold, I have given thy brother a thousand pieces of silver: behold, he is to thee a covering of the eyes, unto all that are with thee, and with all other: thus she was reproved.

17 ¶ So Abraham prayed unto God: and God healed Abimelech, and his wife, and his maidservants; and they bare children.

18 For the Lord had fast closed up all the wombs of the house of Abimelech, because of Sarah Abraham's wife.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Isaac is born. 4 He is circumcised. 6 Sarah's joy. 9 Hagar and Ishmael are cast forth. 15 Hagar in distress. 17 The angel comforteth her. 22 Abimelech's covenant with Abraham at Beer-sheba.

AND the LORD visited Sarah as he had said, and the LORD did unto Sarah ^a as he had spoken.

^a Chap. 17.
19. & 13.
10.

2 For Sarah ^b conceived, and bare Abraham a son in his old age, at the set time of which God had spoken to him.

^b Acts 7. 8.
Gal. 4. 22.
Hebr. 11.
11.

3 And Abraham called the name of his may signify) wear her veil over her face, as she ought to do, that every body might know her to be a married woman, to prevent such misfortunes for the future. Pyle.

18. — because of Sarah Abraham's wife.] God here restrained Abimelech, as elsewhere He did Laban, and Esau, and Balaam, and others; not so much for their own sakes, though sometimes perhaps that also; as for the sake of those, whom they would have injured by their sins, if they had committed them. As here Abimelech for His chosen Abraham's sake; and Laban and Esau for His servant Jacob's sake; and Balaam for His people Israel's sake. As it is said in the 105th Psalm, and that with special reference, as I conceive, to this very story of Abraham, "He suffered no man to do them wrong, but reprov'd even kings for their sakes; saying, Touch not Mine anointed, and do My prophets no harm:" He reprov'd "even kings," by restraining their power, as here Abimelech: but it was "for their sakes" still; that so Sarah "His anointed might not be touched," nor "His prophet" Abraham sustain "any harm." Bp. Sanderson.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. — the Lord visited Sarah &c.] Bestowed on her the promised blessing. The word "visit" signifies, either, in a bad sense, to inflict punishment, (Exod. xx. 5;) or, in a good sense, as here, to confer blessings, (Exod. iii. 16; Ps. viii. 4.) Bp. Patrick.

2. — Sarah conceived,] That the posterity of Abraham might be disposed hereafter more readily to receive the promised Seed, it pleased God to make Isaac, the heir of that promise, a most exact type and figure of Jesus Christ. His birth was miraculous, as was that of Christ; for it was as much out of the common course of nature for Sarah to bear at ninety, as for a virgin to bear a child. He disputed not his father's will, though it was to cost him his life: Jesus Christ became obedient even to the death.

^{Before CHRIST about 1897.} son that was born unto him, whom Sarah bare to him, Isaac.

^{c Chap. 17. 12.} 4 And Abraham circumcised his son Isaac being eight days old, as God had commanded him.

5 And Abraham was an hundred years old, when his son Isaac was born unto him.

6 ¶ And Sarah said, God hath made me to laugh, so that all that hear will laugh with me.

7 And she said, Who would have said unto Abraham, that Sarah should have given children suck? for I have born him a son in his old age.

8 And the child grew, and was weaned: and Abraham made a great feast the same day that Isaac was weaned.

9 ¶ And Sarah saw the son of Hagar the Egyptian, which she had born unto Abraham, mocking.

^{about 1892.} 10 Wherefore she said unto Abraham, ^{d Gal. 4. 30.} Cast out this bondwoman and her son: for the son of this bondwoman shall not be heir with my son, even with Isaac.

11 And the thing was very grievous in Abraham's sight because of his son.

12 ¶ And God said unto Abraham, Let it not be grievous in thy sight because of the lad, and because of thy bondwoman; in all that Sarah hath said unto thee, hearken unto her voice; for in Isaac shall thy seed be called.

^{Before CHRIST about 1892.} 13 And also of the son of the bondwoman will I make a nation, because he is thy seed.

14 And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and took bread, and a bottle of water, and gave it unto Hagar, putting it on her shoulder, and the child, and sent her away: and she departed, and wandered in the wilderness of Beer-sheba.

15 And the water was spent in the bottle, and she cast the child under one of the shrubs.

16 And she went, and sat her down over against him a good way off, as it were a bowshot: for she said, Let me not see the death of the child. And she sat over against him, and lift up her voice, and wept.

17 And God heard the voice of the lad; and the angel of God called to Hagar out of heaven, and said unto her, What aileth thee, Hagar? fear not; for God hath heard the voice of the lad where he is.

18 Arise, lift up the lad, and hold him in thine hand; for I will make him a great nation.

19 And God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water; and she went, and filled the bottle with water, and gave the lad drink.

20 And God was with the lad; and he grew, and dwelt in the wilderness, and became an archer.

Isaac carried the wood on which he was to be sacrificed; Jesus Christ carried the cross on which He was to be crucified. They both carried them to the very same place, mount Moriah; being the place, where the Temple was afterwards built, though then a desert. So good was God: who, for the greater confirmation of our faith, would not let us want these surprising instances of the truth of both the Old and the New Testaments, confirming each other. But then how great is the sin, and how great must be the punishment, of infidelity! Bp. Wilson. See note on ch. xxii. 19.

6. — God hath made me to laugh.] That is, to rejoice exceedingly. She refers to her laughter on a former occasion; though from a different motive. Bp. Patrick.

8. — and was weaned.] Probably when he was two or three years old. Stackhouse.

9. — Sarah saw the son of Hagar — mocking.] He derided perhaps the festivity observed at Isaac's weaning, looking on himself as the firstborn. Bp. Patrick.

10. — she said] And God approved it, ver. 12. And the Apostle observes, that "the Scripture saith, Cast out the bondwoman, &c." Gal. iv. 30. Bp. Kidder. Abraham was satisfied by what follows in ver. 12, that Sarah's motion proceeded not merely from her anger, but from a Divine suggestion. Bp. Patrick.

12. — in Isaac shall thy seed be called.] The promised Seed, the Messiah, shall not descend from Ishmael, but from Isaac. Bp. Kidder.

14. — took bread, and a bottle of water.] Which includes all sort of provision for their present necessity, till they came to the place, to which in all probability he directed them. Their wandering about in the desert, until their water was consumed, appears to have been the effect of their accidentally mistaking their way; and not to have been intended by Abraham. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

— and the child,] Ishmael, though called "a child," was not less than sixteen or seventeen years old; and was consequently a youth capable of being a support and assistance to his mother, as he soon after proved. Stackhouse. See the note on Jer. i. 6. An ambiguity in the text would be avoided, by placing the clause "putting it on her shoulder" within a parenthesis, as it is placed by Bishop Kidder, Stackhouse, and Pyle.

15. — she cast the child &c.] The lad being faint and ready to perish, she laid him under the shade of a tree or shrub. Bp. Kidder. She left off supporting him, and let him gently drop on the ground, where he desired to lie. In a succeeding verse the Angel of the Lord bade her lift up Ishmael, and hold him in her hand, or support him under his extreme weakness: she had doubtless done this before; and her quitting her hold, upon his lying down, is the meaning of the word translated cast. Harmer.

18. — I will make him a great nation.] Very properly denominated Ishmaelites and Hagarenes by others, they affectedly called themselves Saracens; thus rejecting their descent from the concubine, and challenging it from the wife, of Abraham; till at last they became noticed under that appellation by Dioscorides, by Ptolemy, and the Jerusalem Targum itself. Whitaker.

20. — and became an archer.] A skilful hunter and warrior also with bow and arrow. The Saracens, who were of the posterity of Ishmael, never set their hands to the plough, but got their living for the most part by their bow: supporting themselves on wild flesh and venison, and such wild fowl as the wilderness afforded, with herbs and milk. Bp. Patrick.

It is from our inattention to the customs of the times, if we imagine that Hagar and Ishmael had any hard usage in their ejectment. Whatever the nature of their offence may have been, there is no reason to accuse Abraham's conduct; since it was

Before
CHRIST
about 1892.

21 And he dwelt in the wilderness of Paran: and his mother took him a wife out of the land of Egypt.

22 ¶ And it came to pass at that time, that Abimelech and Phichol the chief captain of his host spake unto Abraham, saying, God is with thee in all that thou doest:

† Heb.
if thou shalt lie unto me.

23 Now therefore swear unto me here by God † that thou wilt not deal falsely with me, nor with my son, nor with my son's son: but according to the kindness that I have done unto thee, thou shalt do unto me, and to the land wherein thou hast sojourned.

24 And Abraham said, I will swear.

25 And Abraham reproved Abimelech because of a well of water, which Abimelech's servants had violently taken away.

26 And Abimelech said, I wot not who hath done this thing: neither didst thou tell me, neither yet heard I of it, but to day.

27 And Abraham took sheep and oxen, and gave them unto Abimelech; and both of them made a covenant.

28 And Abraham set seven ewe lambs of the flock by themselves.

29 And Abimelech said unto Abraham, pursuant to a Divine direction, was agreeable to the practice of the times, and no more than what other fathers in those days imposed upon their younger sons:—since the hardships, which Hagar and Ishmael suffered, were accidental; but the benefits, which accrued, were designed:—since Abraham by this means rescued them from a state of servitude for ever; and, according to the Divine prediction, was persuaded, that this would be the only expedient to make of Ishmael a flourishing nation. Stackhouse.

23. — swear unto me here by God] This is the first mention of an oath given or taken. Bp. Wilson.

Bruce, with reference to this passage, observes that a “kind of oath,” which he specifies as now prevailing in those parts, “was in use among the Arabs, or shepherds, as early as the time of Abraham.”

“Cursed be those men of my people, or others, that ever shall lift up their hand against you, either in the desert or the tell; (the part of Egypt which is cultivated.) As long as you are in this country, or between this and Cosseir, my son shall serve you with heart and hand: one night of pain, that your medicines freed me from, would not be repaid, if I was to follow you on foot to Messir, that is, Cairo.”

“The great people among them came, and, after joining hands, repeated a kind of prayer of about two minutes long, by which they declared themselves and their children accursed, if ever they lifted their hands against me in the tell, or field, in the desert, or on the river: or, in case that I or mine should fly to them for refuge, if they did not protect us at the risk of their lives, their families, and their fortunes; or, as they emphatically expressed it, to the death of the last male child among them.” Bruce.

25. And Abraham reproved Abimelech] Before he swore, he thought it necessary to settle a right understanding between them: and therefore argued with Abimelech, as it may be rendered, about a well of water, digged by Abraham's servants, which Abimelech's had injuriously taken from him. This was wisdom, to complain of wrongs now, before they entered into covenant; that these being redressed, there might be no occasion of future quarrels. Bp. Patrick.

What mean these seven ewe lambs which thou hast set by themselves?

Before
CHRIST
about 1892.

30 And he said, For these seven ewe lambs shalt thou take of my hand, that they may be a witness unto me, that I have digged this well.

31 Wherefore he called that place || Beer-sheba; because there they swore both of them. || That is, The well of the oath.

32 Thus they made a covenant at Beer-sheba: then Abimelech rose up, and Phichol the chief captain of his host, and they returned into the land of the Philistines. about 1891.

33 ¶ And Abraham planted a || grove in || Beer-sheba, and called there on the name of the Lord, the everlasting God. || Or, tree.

34 And Abraham sojourned in the Philistines' land many days.

CHAP. XXII.

1 Abraham is tempted to offer Isaac. 3 He giveth proof of his faith and obedience. 11 The angel stayeth him. 13 Isaac is exchanged with a ram. 14 The place is called Jehovah-jirch. 15 Abraham is blessed again. 20 The generation of Nahor unto Rebekah.

AND it came to pass after these things, that ^a God did tempt Abraham, and said unto him, Abraham: and he said, † Behold, here I am. 1872. ^a Hebr. 11. 17. † Heb. Behold me.

27. And Abraham took &c. and gave them &c.] In token of amity, or as an expression of gratitude. Bp. Kidder.

Presents are considered in the East to be essential to humane and civil intercourse: whether they be dates, or whether they be diamonds, they are so much a part of Eastern manners, that without them an inferior will never be at peace in his own mind, or think that he has a hold of his superiour for his favour or protection. Bruce.

Medicines and advice being given on my part, faith and protection pledged on theirs, (some Arabs near the Nile,) two bushels of wheat and seven sheep were carried down to the boat; nor could we refuse their kindness, as refusing a present in that country (however it is understood in ours) is just as great an affront, as coming into the presence of a superiour without a present at all. Bruce.

30. And he said, For these seven &c.] That is, thy acceptance of these seven lambs shall be an acknowledgment, that this well, which I have digged, belongs to me. Bp. Kidder.

31. — Beer-sheba;] The well of the oath. In process of time there was a considerable town built there, which is noticed by heathen writers under the name of Berzimme, or Bersabe. The greatest length of the land of Israel is denoted in Scripture by the distance from Beer-sheba, in the south, to Dan in the north. Dr. Heylin tells us, it was well fortified by the western Christians, when they were masters of the Holy Land, as being a border town of importance. Dr. Wells.

33. And Abraham planted a grove] For a solemn and retired place wherein to worship God. Hence, some think, the custom of planting groves was derived into all the Gentile world: who so profaned them by images, and filthiness, and sacrifices to demons, that God commanded them, by the Law of Moses, to be cut down. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXII. ver. 1. — God did tempt Abraham,] Or prove and try him, as the word here used signifies in Deut. viii. 2, and xii. 3, “that it might be known to others what Abraham was.” See ver. 12. Bp. Kidder. See the note on Deut. viii. 2.

— here I am.] A phrase, expressing readiness to hearken and to answer. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1872.

2 And he said, Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.

3 ¶ And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and saddled his ass, and took two of his young men with him, and Isaac his son, and clave the wood for the burnt offering, and rose up, and went unto the place of which God had told him.

4 Then on the third day Abraham lifted up his eyes, and saw the place afar off.

Before
CHRIST
1872.

5 And Abraham said unto his young men, Abide ye here with the ass; and I and the lad will go yonder and worship, and come again to you.

6 And Abraham took the wood of the burnt offering, and laid it upon Isaac his son; and he took the fire in his hand, and a knife; and they went both of them together.

7 And Isaac spake unto Abraham his father, and said, My father: and he said, † Here am I, my son. And he said, Behold the fire and the wood: but where is the ‖ lamb for a burnt offering?

† Heb.
Behold me.

‖ Or, kid.

8 And Abraham said, My son, God will

2. And he said,] The command proceeded immediately from God Himself: but how, and in what manner, it was conveyed to Abraham, we are no where told. This only can be affirmed, that God may, if He pleases, communicate His will to His creatures: and whenever He vouchsafes to do so, He will, no doubt, give sufficient evidence of the revelation. And therefore we can make no question but Abraham had sufficient proof (whatever that proof was) that the several revelations, respecting both God's former promises, and the present severe command, did really proceed from God. Bp. Conybeare.

— Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac,] A hard thing, even had it been Ishmael: but this was his only son by Sarah, and the child of promise. Bp. Patrick.

This command was a noble manifestation of Abraham's faith and obedience. The hardest of those orders, which he had received before, were very supportable: and they were accompanied with great promises of advantages; in particular of worldly advantage. This on the other hand was severe beyond expression; and had no promise or consolation at all annexed to it: but, instead of that, it enumerated to him the most cutting circumstances, and placed them before him in the fullest light. "Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and offer him up." Yet pierced to the heart, as he must be, by these expressions, he dutifully submitted: without seeking excuses from any dissuasive reasonings; without throwing on any one the least share of the burden of his own anguish; without exposing himself to the tender solicitations of Sarah; without acquainting Isaac what was intended, before it became absolutely needful. How astonishingly great, how composed, how considerate a self-denial was this! Abp. Secker.

— the land of Moriah;] "The high land," as the Greek renders it; it being a mountainous place. The Latin Vulgate renders it "a land of vision;" the reason of which may be found in ver. 14. And the Chaldec, by a prolepsis, calls it "the land of worship:" for there Abraham worshipped, ver. 5 and 13; and there was afterwards built a temple for the worship of God, 2 Chron. iii. 1. Bp. Kidder.

— upon one of the mountains] In ancient times they chose mountains or high places, on which to worship God and offer sacrifices, chap. xii. 8. God approved of this, till they were profaned, as the groves were; see note on chap. xxi. 33; and then He commanded Abraham's posterity, not to worship in high places, but only in one certain mountain, where He ordered His temple to be seated. These mountains were well shaded with trees, so that commonly groves and mountains are mentioned together, as places for religious worship. Bp. Patrick.

3. And Abraham rose up &c.] There have been several examples, especially of persons of a publick character, who have sacrificed themselves, or their nearest relations. But to what?—Even to desperation, or the apprehension of human force and power; to a wicked and superstitious custom; to pride and vain-glory; or to the hopes of preventing or stopping some dreadful and publick calamity. But the case of Abraham is so singularly circumstanced, that none of all these can be imputed to it. The only motive we can possibly imagine, must have been his earnest desire to testify his obedience to God, in all, even His most arduous commands. Stackhouse.

— went unto the place of which God had told him.] Isaac was the very person to whom God had solemnly promised signal blessings, and a numerous posterity: so that the former promises and the last command seemed directly to contradict each other, and consequently might have staggered a less confirmed piety than that of Abraham; and have made another parent, if he had been so tried, unwilling to obey, and inclined to suppose either that there was some delusion in the revelation, or that he did not rightly understand it. He would have chosen to save his son, and to sacrifice his faith. Yet Abraham's faith was as reasonable as it was eminent.

For, first, he had had a long and familiar intercourse with God, and frequent experience of the nature of revelations; and so knew, beyond a possibility of doubting, that the command came from God.

He was ordered to go with his son to the land of Moriah, a land where there were many mountains, and to offer up his son upon one particular mountain, which God would shew him. On the third day he came within sight of it, and distinguished it from the rest, which must have been by some Divine indication. So this was a new revelation to him, that God required of him this act of obedience.

He therefore concluded that God would provide some method to reconcile this cruel command with His goodness and with His promises. And this method could be no other than to raise up Isaac, and to restore him to a second life. Upon this supposition, the immorality and the cruelty of killing a son would be removed, and the death of Isaac would be only a short sleep followed by a resurrection. "Abraham," says the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews, "offered up his son, accounting," or reasoning with himself, "that God was able to raise him from the dead: from whence also he received him in a figure." That is, Abraham was persuaded, that God could raise his son from the dead: and according to his faith it was done unto him: he did receive him raised up from the dead, raised in a figurative sense, when the sentence of his death was recalled, and when he brought him away from the altar. This was a plain and striking image and representation of a real death and of a real resurrection. Dr. Jortin.

4. — on the third day] The piteous deed was not to be done immediately, whilst the impression of the Divine Voice was still sounding in Abraham's ears, and excluded every other sentiment; but at the distance of three whole days: during which every feeling of paternal affection would return in full force; and even the inferior consideration of what his family and the world would think and say to so unnatural an action, if Isaac did not rise again instantly, as there was no proof he would, must singly have a weight very hard to be supported. Abp. Secker.

Before CHRIST 1972. provide himself a lamb for a burnt offering: so they went both of them together.

9 And they came to the place which God had told him of; and Abraham built an altar there, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac his son, and ^b laid him on the altar upon the wood.

10 And Abraham stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay his son.

11 And the angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, and said, Abraham, Abraham: and he said, Here am I.

12 And he said, Lay not thine hand upon the lad, neither do thou any thing unto him: for now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from me.

13 And Abraham lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold behind him a ram caught in a thicket by his horns: and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt offering in the stead of his son. Before CHRIST 1872.

14 And Abraham called the name of that place || Jehovah-jireh: as it is said to || That is, The LORD will see, or, provide. this day, In the mount of the Lord it shall be seen.

15 ¶ And the angel of the Lord called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time,

16 And said, ^c By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son:

17 That in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea [†] shore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies;

18 ^d And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice.

19 So Abraham returned unto his young

8. — so they went both of them together.] These days were not to be spent in retirement, in meditation and prayer, to fortify his resolution; but altogether in the company of the dear object, whom he was to slay; whose conversation would be in a thousand instances the more moving, as he went along with him unsuspecting of what was to follow; and whose innocent question at last, "My father, behold the fire and the wood: but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?" must, one should think, have completed the melting down of all human resolution. But "wisdom preserved him," as the Book of Wisdom expresses it, "blameless unto God, and kept him strong against his tender compassion towards his son," chap. x. 5. Abp. Secker.

9. — and bound Isaac his son, and laid him on the altar.] The love of God the Father cannot be better expressed than by this instance. Abraham readily gives his only, his beloved son, to be sacrificed: so God gave His only Son. Bp. Wilson.

Abraham bound Isaac, that he might not afterwards, through fear or pain, disturb or defeat the work. No doubt he had made him acquainted with the will of God, and persuaded him willingly to submit to it: in which he prefigured Christ the more exactly, who "laid down His life of Himself, and no man" (without His consent) "could take it from Him." Isaac, being younger and stronger, could have made resistance, had he chosen. Josephus says he was twenty-five years old. Bps. Kidder and Patrick.

10. And Abraham stretched forth his hand, &c.] Now, when the sacrifice of the mind was made to the utmost, and only the outward act was wanting, the hand being stretched forth even for that; the goodness of the Almighty broke forth on a sudden, like the sun from behind a black cloud concealing it, "and the angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, &c." The transport of hearing these words must have made in a moment large amends for the preceding pangs. Isaac was restored to him without going through "the bitterness of death:" reproach and misconception was avoided: the dreadful deed dispensed with: the willing mind accepted: and a solemn approbation pronounced over him from above, anticipating the final sentence, "Well done, good and faithful servant." Abp. Secker.

12. — for now I know that thou fearest God.] Indeed, before this, God had declared, "I know Abraham," chap. xviii. 19. But now He "knew him" by a new proof: and, which is the constant Scripture-sense of His trying any one, He manifested him by the trial to angels, to men, to himself: and "experience wrought in him sure hope not to be ashamed" upon any future occasion, "because the love of God was thus shed abroad in his heart." A further discovery was, and a very delightful one it must be, that, by so decisive an experiment of Isaac's piety, his father knew him to be worthy of his utmost affection; and worthy of the choice, which God had made of him, to support religion, and be the progenitor of the promised Seed. Abp. Secker.

14. — Jehovah-jireh:] That is, The Lord will see, or, provide. God having there provided a ram for a sacrifice, instead of Isaac. Bp. Kidder. The word "provide" having been used before, ver. 8, it would have been better to retain the same word instead of "It shall be seen," in this verse. Dr. Wall.

16. — By myself have I sworn,] God enlarged His mercies to Abraham proportionally to his obedience. This is apparent, as on other occasions, so in this the great and last trial of all, the offering of his son; which was rewarded by the ratification of God's former promise or covenant, by a most solemn oath. Bp. Patrick. "Because He could swear by no greater, He swore by Himself," Heb. vi. 13.

17. — the gate of his enemies;] That is, the cities; and consequently their country. For the gates being taken, they entered into their cities; and their cities being surrendered, the country was conquered. Bp. Patrick.

18. — in thy seed] That is, in Christ, Gal. iii. 16. — because thou hast obeyed my voice.] As a reward (the Hebrew word signifies) for obeying My voice. Bp. Patrick.

We read that Abraham's "faith was accounted unto him for righteousness:" but then St. James tells us, that "faith wrought with his works;" and, "by works was his faith made perfect." Let us not pretend to rest in a naked contemplation of the great truths of the Gospel: they are revealed for nobler purposes, and intended to enforce the duty of obedience. It is to no purpose that we maintain the orthodoxy of our faith, as to the deep points of our religion, if we still promote heresy in our practice, and by our actions disgrace our belief. These are both jointly necessary to salvation: and what God hath joined together, let not man put asunder. "Wilt thou know," saith St. James, chap. ii, "that faith without works is dead? As the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also." Bp. Conybeare.

19. So Abraham returned.] The sacrifice of Isaac should be viewed in the resemblance which it hath to that of Christ. No wonder it was so extraordinary a transaction in itself, if it was intended to prefigure the most extraordinary and mysterious one that the world ever saw: as the agreeing circumstances prove it must. In both cases we see a good and kind Father causing his beloved, only, and innocent Son to suffer death. Isaac was heir to the promises of the temporal Canaan: through Christ we claim the inheritance of the heavenly. Isaac carried the wood, Painted by Theod. Rombaut.

ABRAHAM OFFERING UP ISAAC.

Genesis C 22 v. 9 to 13.

London, Published by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge, No. 1, St. Paul's Church-Yard.

[illegible]

^{Before}
CHRIST
1872. men, and they rose up and went together to Beer-sheba; and Abraham dwelt at Beer-sheba.

20 ¶ And it came to pass after these things, that it was told Abraham, saying, Behold, Milcah, she hath also born children unto thy brother Nahor;

21 Huz his firstborn, and Buz his brother, and Kemuel the father of Aram, 22 And Chesed, and Hazo, and Pildash, and Jidlaph, and Bethuel.

^{Called,}
^{Rom. 9. 10,}
^{Rebecca.} 23 And Bethuel begat [°] Rebekah: these eight Milcah did bear to Nahor, Abraham's brother.

24 And his concubine, whose name was Reumah, she bare also Tebah, and Gaham, and Thahash, and Maachah.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 The age and death of Sarah. 2 The purchase of Machpelah, 19 where Sarah was buried.

AND Sarah was an hundred and seven and twenty years old: these were the years of the life of Sarah.

1860.

2 And Sarah died in Kirjath-arba; the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan: and Abraham came to mourn for Sarah, and to weep for her.

3 ¶ And Abraham stood up from before his dead, and spake unto the sons of Heth, saying,

^{Before}
CHRIST
1860.

4 I am a stranger and a sojourner with you: give me a possession of a burying-place with you, that I may bury my dead out of my sight.

5 And the children of Heth answered Abraham, saying unto him,

6 Hear us, my lord: thou art † a mighty prince among us: in the choice of our sepulchres bury thy dead; none of us shall withhold from thee his sepulchre, but that thou mayest bury thy dead.

^{† Heb.}
^{a prince of} ^{God.}

7 And Abraham stood up, and bowed himself to the people of the land, even to the children of Heth.

8 And he communed with them, saying, If it be your mind that I should bury my dead out of my sight; hear me, and in-treat for me to Ephron the son of Zohar, 9 That he may give me the cave of Machpelah, which he hath, which is in the end of his field; for † as much money as it is worth he shall give it me for a possession of a buryingplace amongst you.

^{† Heb.}
^{full money.}

10 And Ephron dwelt among the children of Heth: and Ephron the Hittite answered Abraham in the † audience of the

^{† Heb.}
^{ears.}

on which he was bound, in order to be offered up: Christ carried the cross, on which He was afterwards nailed, and put to death. The place, where God appointed the former should die, and where the latter died actually, was the very same; "the land of Moriah," that is, of God manifested: on one of the mountains of which, the Temple stood; on another, our Saviour's cross. The term of three days too is remarkably specified in each history. The lamb, which, Abraham said, "God would provide," naturally turns our thoughts to Him, whom the Baptist calls the Lamb of God; and the ram, substituted for Isaac, to the temple-sacrifices of animals, types of the atonement of Christ. Then lastly, the mountain, where provision was made for Abraham's distress, deserved its name infinitely better, on account of God's providing there for the redemption of mankind.

These things indeed the Patriarch could not understand, unless they were revealed to him: for the likeness of two objects cannot be discerned, till both appear. Perhaps he was told the intent; and thus "saw the day" of Christ, and "was glad." How gracious an ending of so terrifying a dispensation! But however that were, we now may justly conclude, that what He then required Abraham to do for Him, He had purposed from eternity, in the counsel of unsearchable wisdom, to do for His lost creatures. And let the comforting reflection dwell with us, "He that spared not his own Son, but delivered Him up for us all, how shall He not with Him also freely give us all things?" Abp. Secker.

20. — it was told Abraham, &c.] The chief intention of this genealogy seems to be, to give us an account of the family of Rebekah, whom Isaac married: it connects with the beginning of ch. xxiv. And it was in consequence of the information here given to Abraham, that he thought of seeking a wife for his son from this family. Huz, or Uz, here mentioned, is supposed to have given its name to Job's country, (see Job i. 1;) and from Buz it is thought came Elihu, the Buzite. See Job xxxii. 2. Locke.

Chap. XXIII. ver. 2. — Kirjath-arba;] "The city of Arba," who was a famous man among the Anakims, Josh. xiv. 15. It does not appear when Abraham left Beer-sheba, and removed to this place. Bp. Patrick.

— Abraham came to mourn] He came from his own tent, which was separate from his wife's: see chap. xxiv. 67. Having performed the offices of private sorrow, he appears to have now prepared for the publick funeral solemnities. Bp. Patrick.

3. — from before his dead,] That is, from the place where he sat mourning over his dead, Is. xlvii. 1; Job ii. 13. Bp. Kidder.

— the sons of Heth,] That is, the Hittites. Heth was the son of Canaan, and grandson of Ham. By "the sons" are meant the principal persons of the nation. Bp. Patrick.

4. I am a stranger and a sojourner with you;] Abraham's declaration that he was only a stranger and sojourner in the land, and his purchase of a buryingplace for his deceased wife and his family from the Hittites or "sons of Heth," is finely introduced by St. Paul, to prove how well he and the Patriarchs understood that the grant of the land of promise gave them no present title, or immediate possession of it; that it was only designed for a future inheritance. "By faith Abraham sojourned in the land of promise, as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise: for he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God," Heb. xi. 9, 10. Dr. Hales.

9. — the cave of Machpelah, — in the end of his field;] By a cave is probably meant a vault, arched over with stones or wood, such as the ancient Greeks called Crypta. Buryingplaces were not anciently in the cities, much less in their temples; but in the fields in caves or vaults, made to hold a large number of bodies. So they continued among the Jews in our Saviour's time, as appears by Lazarus's monument, John xi. 30, 31; and by the buryingplaces for strangers, Matt. xxvii. 7; and by their carrying the widow's son out of the city, Luke vii. 12, &c. This seems to have been in the corner of the field, which perhaps was near the highway:

Before
CHRIST
1860.

children of Heth, even of all that went in at the gate of his city, saying, 11 Nay, my lord, hear me: the field give I thee, and the cave that is therein, I give it thee; in the presence of the sons of my people give I it thee: bury thy dead.

12 And Abraham bowed down himself before the people of the land.

13 And he spake unto Ephron in the audience of the people of the land, saying, But if thou wilt give it, I pray thee, hear me: I will give thee money for the field; take it of me, and I will bury my dead there.

14 And Ephron answered Abraham, saying unto him,

15 My lord, hearken unto me: the land is worth four hundred shekels of silver; what is that betwixt me and thee? bury therefore thy dead.

16 And Abraham hearkened unto Ephron, and Abraham weighed to Ephron the silver, which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth, four hundred shekels of silver, current money with the merchant.

17 ¶ And the field of Ephron, which was in Machpelah, which was before Mamre, the field, and the cave which was therein, and all the trees that were in the field, that were in all the borders round about, were made sure

18 Unto Abraham for a possession in the presence of the children of Heth, before all that went in at the gate of his city.

19 And after this, Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah before Mamre: the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan.

Before
CHRIST
1860.

20 And the field, and the cave that is therein, were made sure unto Abraham for a possession of a buryingplace by the sons of Heth.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Abraham sweareth his servant. 10 The servant's journey: 12 His prayer: 14 His sign. 15 Rebekah meeteth him, 18 fulfilleth his sign, 22 receiveth jewels, 23 sheweth her kindred, 25 and inviteth him home. 26 The servant blesseth God. 28 Laban entertaineth him. 34 The servant sheweth his message. 50 Laban and Bethuel approve it. 58 Rebekah consenteth to go. 62 Isaac meeteth her.

AND Abraham was old, and [†]well stricken in age: and the LORD had blessed Abraham in all things.

1857.
† Heb. gone into days.

2 And Abraham said unto his eldest servant of his house, that ruled over all that he had, ^a Put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh:

^a Chap. 47.
29.

3 And I will make thee swear by the LORD, the God of heaven, and the God of the earth, that thou shalt not take a wife unto my son of the daughters of the Canaanites, among whom I dwell:

4 But thou shalt go unto my country, and to my kindred, and take a wife unto my son Isaac.

5 And the servant said unto him, Peradventure the woman will not be willing to follow me unto this land: must I needs bring thy son again unto the land from whence thou camest?

for there they sometimes chose to bury their dead, Gen. xxxv. 8, 19; Josh. xxiv. 30. Bp. Patrick.

10. — of all that went in at the gate of his city,] That is, of all the citizens or inhabitants. Bp. Kidder.

The gates of cities in these day, and many ages after, were the places of judicature and common resort. Here the governours and elders of the city met to hear complaints, administer justice, make conveyances of titles and estates, and in short to transact all the affairs of the place. Hence that passage in the Psalmist, "They shall not be ashamed when they speak with their enemies in the gate;" that is, when they are accused by them before the court of magistrates. It is probable that the room or hall, where these magistrates sat, was over the gate, because Boaz is said to "go up to the gate;" and the reason of having it built there seems to have been for the convenience of the inhabitants; who, being all husbandmen, and forced to pass and repass every morning and evening, as they went and came from their labour, might be more easily called as they went by, whenever they were wanted to appear in any business. So that from the whole it appears, that Abraham could not have made his purchase from Ephron, without his having recourse to the city gates. Stackhouse.

All affairs of moment among the Algerines are laid before the Dey or the principal officers, who sit constantly in the gate of the palace for that purpose. Thus we read of the "elders in the gate," Deut. xlii. 15, and xlv. 7. And of "him that reproveth and re-buketh in the gate," Is. xxix. 21; Amos v. 10. The Ottoman Court likewise seems to be called the Porte, from the distribution of justice, and the despatch of publick business carried on in the gates of it. Dr. Shaw.

15. — four hundred shekels] Money in general, and pieces of silver, were spoken of before, chap. xvii. 12, 13, and xx. 16; which shews that they did not trade merely by the exchange of commodities. This is the first place in which the name of shekel occurs. The value is not exactly known: but it appears from Josephus to have been something less than half-a-crown of our money. Bp. Patrick.

16. — and Abraham weighed] They did not tell money as we do now, but weighed it: till it being found inconvenient to weigh it on every particular occasion, they set a mark upon it to denote its value. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXIV. ver. 1. And Abraham was old,] A hundred and forty years old.

Some think that putting the hand under the thigh was a token of subjection and homage, done by a servant to his lord: the latter sitting, and the servant kneeling and putting his hand under him. Bp. Patrick. In ancient times servants were accustomed thus to acknowledge their obedience; and the custom is preserved to this day amongst some Indians. It is as much as to say, Thou art subjected to me; thou art my servant. Locke.

Before
CHRIST
1857.

6 And Abraham said unto him, Beware thou that thou bring not my son thither again.

7 ¶ The LORD God of heaven, which took me from my father's house, and from the land of my kindred, and which spake unto me, and that sware unto me, saying, ^bUnto thy seed will I give this land; he shall send his angel before thee, and thou shalt take a wife unto my son from thence.

8 And if the woman will not be willing to follow thee, then thou shalt be clear from this my oath: only bring not my son thither again.

9 And the servant put his hand under the thigh of Abraham his master, and sware to him concerning that matter.

10 ¶ And the servant took ten camels of the camels of his master, and departed; [†]for all the goods of his master were in his hand: and he arose, and went to Mesopotamia, unto the city of Nahor.

11 And he made his camels to kneel down without the city by a well of water at the time of the evening, even the time [†]that women go out to draw water.

12 And he said, O LORD God of my master Abraham, I pray thee, send me good speed this day, and shew kindness unto my master Abraham.

13 Behold, ^cI stand here by the well of water; and the daughters of the men of the city come out to draw water:

14 And let it come to pass, that the damsel to whom I shall say, Let down thy pitcher, I pray thee, that I may drink; and she shall say, Drink, and I will give thy camels drink also: let the same be she that thou hast appointed for thy servant Isaac; and thereby shall I know that thou hast shewed kindness unto my master.

15 ¶ And it came to pass, before he had done speaking, that, behold, Rebekah came out, who was born to Bethuel, son of Milcah, the wife of Nahor, Abraham's brother, with her pitcher upon her shoulder.

16 And the damsel was [†]very fair to look upon, a virgin, neither had any man known her: and she went down to the well, and filled her pitcher, and came up.

17 And the servant ran to meet her, and said, Let me, I pray thee, drink a little water of thy pitcher.

18 And she said, Drink, my lord: and

Before
CHRIST
1857.

Ver. 43.

† Heb. good of counse-
nance.

• Chap. 12.
7. & 13. 15.
& 15. 18. &
26. 4.

† Or, and.

† Heb. that women which draw water go forth.

6. And Abraham said unto him, Beware thou &c.] The steward demanded, whether, if he could not persuade the person, whom Isaac was to marry, to come and dwell with Isaac in Canaan, he might carry him to her, into that country, which Abraham had forsaken. The answer of Abraham is a denial; accompanied with an intimation that he was bound, by express revelation, to let none of his family return, for constant residence, thither, that is, into the country of Mesopotamia. Pyle.

10. — the servant took ten camels] What enables the shepherd to perform the long and toilsome journeys across Africa is the camel, emphatically called by the Arabs, "the ship of the desert." He seems to have been created for this very trade, endued with parts and qualities adapted to the office he is employed to discharge. The driest thistle, or the barest thorn, is all the food this useful quadruped requires; and even these, to save time, he eats while advancing on his journey, without stopping, or occasioning a moment of delay. As it is his lot to cross immense deserts, where no water is found, and countries not even moistened by the dew of heaven, he is endowed with the power of laying in at one watering-place a store, with which he supplies himself for many days to come. To contain this enormous quantity of fluid, nature has formed large cisterns within him, from which, once filled, he draws at pleasure the quantity he wants, and pours it into his stomach with the same effect as if he then drew it from a spring; and with this he travels patiently and vigorously, all day long, carrying a prodigious load through countries affected with poisonous winds, and parching and never-cooling sands. Bruec.

The common load of the Turkman camel is about 400 pounds on each side: but some will carry a much greater weight. The Arab camel seldom carries more than 250 pounds on each side. They go between two and three miles an hour. The dromedary is a high breed of the Arab camel: it ambles with more agility; and is capable of going as far in one day as the ordinary camels usually go in three or four. Dr. Russell.

11. — he made his camels to kneel down] When a camel is born, the breeders tie his four feet under his belly, and a carpet over his back. Thus they teach him the habit of bending his knees to rest himself, or to be loaded or unloaded. Cabnet.

— at the time of the evening, &c.] Dr. Shaw, having described the occupations of the Barbary women during the day, adds, To finish the day, "at the time of the evening, even the time that women go out to draw water," they have still to fit themselves out with a pitcher or a goat's skin: and tying their sucking children behind them, go in this manner two or three miles to fetch water. Yet, in the midst of all these labours, the women will not lay aside any of their ornaments: neither their nose-jewels, which are still used by the Levant Arabs; nor their bracelets, shackles, or earrings, which are all very cumbersome. Dr. Shaw.

15. — Rebekah came out, &c.] Great was the simplicity of these early days, when persons of the best rank, and of the female sex too, did not disdain to be employed in such menial offices. Thus, in the following age, Jacob found his cousin Rachel watering her father's sheep; and several ages after that, the seven daughters of Jethro, who was a prince as well as a priest of Midian, kept their father's flocks, and used to draw water for the cattle. So well has Moses expressed that simplicity of manners, which we may observe in Homer, or Hesiod, or any of the most ancient writers. Stackhouse.

— with her pitcher upon her shoulder.] "We came to a well at the foot of a hill, on which there is a village called Perè. The oxen raise the water by a bucket and rope; and the women carry the water in earthen jars up the hill, to water the plantations of tobacco." Bp. Pococke.

At the foot of the hill is what the monks call the well of Zaphulon: the water is drawn by boys in leathern buckets, and carried in jars up the hill on women's heads. Bp. Pococke.

"The women," says Dr. Chandler, "resort to the fountains by their houses, each with a large two-handled earthen jar, on the back, or thrown over the shoulder, for water." This account of the jars made use of by the Greek women of the island of Tenedos may, very naturally, be understood to be a modern but

Before
CHRIST
1857.

she hasted, and let down her pitcher upon her hand, and gave him drink.

19 And when she had done giving him drink, she said, I will draw water for thy camels also, until they have done drinking.

20 And she hasted, and emptied her pitcher into the trough, and ran again unto the well to draw water, and drew for all his camels.

21 And the man wondering at her held his peace, to wit whether the LORD had made his journey prosperous or not.

|| Or, jewel for the forehead.

22 And it came to pass, as the camels had done drinking, that the man took a golden || earring of half a shekel weight, and two bracelets for her hands of ten shekels weight of gold ;

23 And said, Whose daughter art thou ? tell me, I pray thee : is there room in thy father's house for us to lodge in ?

24 And she said unto him, I am the daughter of Bethuel the son of Milcah, which she bare unto Nahor.

25 She said moreover unto him, We have both straw and provender enough, and room to lodge in.

26 And the man bowed down his head, and worshipped the LORD.

27 And he said, Blessed be the LORD God of my master Abraham, who hath not left destitute my master of his mercy and his truth : I being in the way, the LORD led me to the house of my master's brethren.

28 And the damsel ran, and told them of her mother's house these things.

29 ¶ And Rebekah had a brother, and his name was Laban : and Laban ran out unto the man, unto the well.

30 And it came to pass, when he saw the earring and bracelets upon his sister's hands, and when he heard the words of Rebekah his sister, saying, Thus spake the man unto me ; that he came unto the man ; and, behold, he stood by the camels at the well.

31 And he said, Come in, thou blessed of the LORD ; wherefore standest thou without ? for I have prepared the house, and room for the camels.

accurate comment on what is said concerning Rebekah's fetching water. Harmer.

22. — the man took &c.] The weight of these ornaments appears to us rather extraordinary : the earring, or jewel for the face, weighed half a shekel, and the bracelets for her hands ten shekels, which, as Sir J. Chardin justly observes, is about five ounces. Upon which he tells us, " the women wear rings and bracelets of as great weight as this, through all Asia, and even much heavier. They are rather manacles than bracelets. There are some as large as the finger. The women wear several of them, one above another, in such a manner as sometimes to have the arm covered

Before
CHRIST
1857.

32 ¶ And the man came into the house : and he ungirded his camels, and gave straw and provender for the camels, and water to wash his feet, and the men's feet that were with him.

33 And there was set meat before him to eat : but he said, I will not eat, until I have told mine errand. And he said, Speak on.

34 And he said, I am Abraham's servant.

35 And the LORD hath blessed my master greatly ; and he is become great : and he hath given him flocks, and herds, and silver, and gold, and menservants, and maidservants, and camels, and asses.

36 And Sarah my master's wife bare a son to my master when she was old : and unto him hath he given all that he hath.

37 And my master made me swear, saying, Thou shalt not take a wife to my son of the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose land I dwell :

38 But thou shalt go unto my father's house, and to my kindred, and take a wife unto my son.

39 And I said unto my master, Peradventure the woman will not follow me.

40 And he said unto me, The LORD, before whom I walk, will send his angel with thee, and prosper thy way ; and thou shalt take a wife for my son of my kindred, and of my father's house :

41 Then shalt thou be clear from this my oath, when thou comest to my kindred ; and if they give not thee one, thou shalt be clear from my oath.

42 And I came this day unto the well, and said, O LORD God of my master Abraham, if now thou do prosper my way which I go :

43 ^d Behold, I stand by the well of water ; and it shall come to pass, that when the virgin cometh forth to draw water, and I say to her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water of thy pitcher to drink ;

44 And she say to me, Both drink thou, and I will also draw for thy camels : let the

with them from the wrist to the elbow. Poor people wear as many of glass or horn. They hardly ever take them off: they are their riches." Harmer.

— a golden earring] It is the custom in almost all the East, for the women to wear rings in their noses, in the left nostril, which is bored low down in the middle. These rings are of gold ; and have commonly two pearls and one ruby between, placed in the ring. I never saw a girl, or young woman, in Arabia or in Persia, who did not wear a ring after this manner in her nostril. It is without doubt of such a ring that we are to understand what is said in this verse. Sir J. Chardin.

Before CHRIST 1857. same be the woman whom the LORD hath appointed out for my master's son.

45 And before I had done speaking in mine heart, behold, Rebekah came forth with her pitcher on her shoulder; and she went down unto the well, and drew water: and I said unto her, Let me drink, I pray thee.

46 And she made haste, and let down her pitcher from her shoulder, and said, Drink, and I will give thy camels drink also: so I drank, and she made the camels drink also.

47 And I asked her, and said, Whose daughter art thou? And she said, The daughter of Bethuel, Nahor's son, whom Milcah bare unto him: and I put the earring upon her face, and the bracelets upon her hands.

48 And I bowed down my head, and worshipped the LORD, and blessed the LORD God of my master Abraham, which had led me in the right way to take my master's brother's daughter unto his son.

49 And now if ye will deal kindly and truly with my master, tell me: and if not, tell me; that I may turn to the right hand, or to the left.

50 Then Laban and Bethuel answered and said, The thing proceedeth from the LORD: we cannot speak unto thee bad or good.

51 Behold, Rebekah is before thee, take her, and go, and let her be thy master's son's wife, as the LORD hath spoken.

52 And it came to pass, that, when Abraham's servant heard their words, he worshipped the LORD, bowing himself to the earth.

53 And the servant brought forth † jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment, and gave them to Rebekah: he gave also to her brother and to her mother precious things.

54 And they did eat and drink, he and the men that were with him, and tarried all night; and they rose up in the morning, and he said, Send me away unto my master.

55 And her brother and her mother said, Let the damsel abide with us || a few days, at the least ten; after that she shall go.

56 And he said unto them, Hinder me not, seeing the LORD hath prospered my way; send me away that I may go to my master.

57 And they said, We will call the damsel, and enquire at her mouth.

58 And they called Rebekah, and said unto her, Wilt thou go with this man? And she said, I will go.

59 And they sent away Rebekah their sister, and her nurse, and Abraham's servant, and his men.

60 And they blessed Rebekah, and said unto her, Thou art our sister, be thou the mother of thousands of millions, and let thy seed possess the gate of those which hate them.

61 ¶ And Rebekah arose, and her damsels, and they rode upon the camels, and followed the man: and the servant took Rebekah, and went his way.

62 And Isaac came from the way of the well Lahai-roi; for he dwelt in the south country.

63 And Isaac went out to || meditate in the field at the eventide: and he lifted up his eyes, and saw, and, behold, the camels were coming.

64 And Rebekah lifted up her eyes, and when she saw Isaac, she lighted off the camel.

65 For she had said unto the servant, What man is this that walketh in the field to meet us? And the servant had said, It is my master: therefore she took a vail, and covered herself.

Before CHRIST 1857.

¶ Ver. 55. & 59.

|| Or, a full year, or, ten months.

† Chap. 16. 14. & 25. 11.

|| Or, to pray.

† Heb. vessels.

49. — that I may turn to the right hand, or to the left.] A proverbial speech, signifying, That I may take some other course, as God shall direct, for fulfilling my master's desire. Bp. Patrick.

50. — we cannot speak unto thee bad or good.] No way contradict it. Bp. Patrick.

53. — the servant brought forth jewels &c.] A gold and silver sarmah, one or two sets of earrings, bracelets, and shekels, a gold chain to hang over their breasts, with half a dozen vests, some of brocade, others of rich silk, are usually the wedding clothes of an Algerine lady of fashion. Habits and ornaments of the like kind were given to the bride in the time of Abraham. Thus "a golden earring of half a shekel weight" was given to Rebekah, and "two bracelets for her hands of ten shekels weight of gold." Abraham's servant also "brought forth jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment, and gave them to Rebekah." Dr. Shaw.

65. — she took a vail,] The Eastern brides are wont to be veiled in a particular manner, when presented to the bridegroom. Those that give us an account of their customs at such times, take notice of their being veiled all over. Dr. Russell gives us this circumstance in his account of a Maronite wedding, which, he says, may serve as a specimen of all the rest, there being nothing materially different in the ceremonies of the different sects. I suppose that the vail, which Rebekah put on, was such an one as was appropriate to such a solemnity; and that she was presented to Isaac by her nurse and other female attendants in form. Harmer.

In the summer months, when the Moorish women retire to their country seats, they walk abroad with less caution and reservedness; and upon the approach of a stranger, let only their veils fall over their faces, as Rebekah may be supposed to have done upon the sight of Isaac. Dr. Shaw.

Before
CHRIST
1857.

66 And the servant told Isaac all things that he had done.

67 And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent, and took Rebekah, and she became his wife; and he loved her: and Isaac was comforted after his mother's death.

CHAP. XXV.

¹ The sons of Abraham by Keturah. ⁵ The division of his goods. ⁷ His age, and death. ⁹ His burial. ¹² The generations of Ishmael. ¹⁷ His age, and death. ¹⁹ Isaac prayeth for Rebekah, bring barren. ²² The children strive in her womb. ²⁴ The birth of Esau and Jacob. ²⁷ Their difference. ²⁹ Esau selleth his birthright.

about 1853.

THEN again Abraham took a wife, and her name was Keturah.

^a 1 Chron. 1. 32.

2 And ^a she bare him Zimran, and Jokshan, and Medan, and Midian, and Ishbak, and Shuah.

3 And Jokshan begat Sheba, and Dedan. And the sons of Dedan were Asshurim, and Letushim, and Leummim.

4 And the sons of Midian; Ephah, and Ephher, and Hanoah, and Abidah, and Eldaah. All these were the children of Keturah.

5 ¶ And Abraham gave all that he had unto Isaac.

6 But unto the sons of the concubines, which Abraham had, Abraham gave gifts, and sent them away from Isaac his son, while he yet lived, eastward, unto the east country.

1822.

7 And these are the days of the years of Abraham's life which he lived, an hundred threescore and fifteen years.

8 Then Abraham gave up the ghost, and died in a good old age, an old man, and full of years; and was gathered to his people.

Chap. XXV. ver. 6. — sons of the concubines,] Namely, of Hagar and Keturah: who were wives, but of an inferiour sort, according to the manner of those times and countries. Keturah is expressly called his concubine, 1 Chron. i. 32, as she is called his wife, ver. 1 of this chapter. She was his concubine, because of a servile condition; but his wife, being married with covenants to provide for her and her children: though they were not to inherit his estate. Bp. Patrick.

— gave gifts, &c.] Lest these sons should interfere with Isaac, in his inheritance of Canaan, as they grew up, Abraham portioned them off, and sent them away towards the East; where, settling in Arabia and Syria, they became in time heads of different nations: of which we have footsteps both in sacred and in profane history. Stackhouse.

8. — Abraham — died] This is said by anticipation, to finish the story of Abraham; for Esau and Jacob were born fifteen years before he died. Bp. Patrick.

— was gathered to his people.] He passed into the state of the dead, following his deceased ancestors. Bp. Kidder. See chap. xlix. 33.

Abraham, from the time of his call, became the great restorer and reviver both of natural and revealed religion to a corrupt

9 And his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him in the cave of Machpelah, in the field of Ephron the son of Zohar the Hittite, which is before Mamre;

Before
CHRIST
1822.

10 ^b The field which Abraham purchased of the sons of Heth: there was Abraham buried, and Sarah his wife. ^b Chap. 23. 16.

11 ¶ And it came to pass after the death of Abraham, that God blessed his son Isaac; and Isaac dwelt by the ^c well Lahai-roi. ^c Chap. 16. 14. & 24. 62.

12 ¶ Now these are the generations of Ishmael, Abraham's son, whom Hagar the Egyptian, Sarah's handmaid, bare unto Abraham:

13 And ^d these are the names of the sons of Ishmael, by their names, according to their generations: the firstborn of Ishmael, Nebajoth; and Kedar, and Adbeel, and Mibsam, ^d about 1800. ^d 1 Chron. 1. 29.

14 And Mishma, and Dumah, and Massa, 15 Hadar, and Tema, Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah:

16 These are the sons of Ishmael, and these are their names, by their towns, and by their castles; twelve princes according to their nations.

17 And these are the years of the life of Ishmael, an hundred and thirty and seven years: and he gave up the ghost and died; and was gathered unto his people. ^{1779.}

18 And they dwelt from Havilah unto Shur, that is before Egypt, as thou goest toward Assyria: and he [†] died in the presence of all his brethren. [†] Heb. fu.

19 ¶ And these are the generations of Isaac, Abraham's son: Abraham begat Isaac:

20 And Isaac was forty years old when he took Rebekah to wife, the daughter of Bethuel the Syrian of Padan-aram, the sister to Laban the Syrian. ^{1857.}

world. By his sons, Isaac and Ishmael, and six more, and by his nephew Lot, he spread religion and virtue far and wide, their descendants being numerous as the stars of heaven, and growing up into many and great nations. His fame reached much farther than the Jewish scriptures reached, among the Gentiles, among the Arabians especially, his descendants: and there are some remains of his religion and memory among the Persians at this day. Dr. Waterland.

19. — these are the generations of Isaac,] His principal design being to give an account of those descended from Abraham by Isaac, Moses returns to that after a short account of Abraham's other posterity. Bp. Patrick.

20. — the Syrian of Padan-aram,] Bethuel, as also his son Laban, is called the Aramite or Syrian, not as descended from Aram, or a Syrian by descent; but as living in the country, which fell to the lot of Aram at the first plantation after the flood, and which must accordingly be esteemed a part also of Syria, largely taken to denote all the country of Aram. For he lived at Haran, and so in the north part of Aram-Naharaim, or Mesopotamia, which north part from the fruitfulness of it was particularly called Padan-aram, the word Padan denoting a cultivated fruitful ground. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1838.

21 And Isaac intreated the LORD for his wife, because she was barren: and the LORD was intreated of him, and Rebekah his wife conceived.

22 And the children struggled together within her; and she said, If it be so, why am I thus? And she went to enquire of the LORD.

23 And the LORD said unto her, Two nations are in thy womb, and two manner of people shall be separated from thy bowels; and the one people shall be stronger than the other people; and ^ethe elder shall serve the younger.

^e Rom. 9.
12.

24 ¶ And when her days to be delivered were fulfilled, behold, there were twins in her womb.

25 And the first came out red, all over like an hairy garment; and they called his name Esau.

26 And after that came his brother out, ^eand ^fhis hand took hold on Esau's heel; and

21. — Isaac intreated the Lord for his wife, &c.] He prayed, as the Hebrew implies, with earnestness, vehemence, and importunity: being uneasy at her barrenness, on account of the promise of the Messiah. Bp. Patrick.

Of all the Patriarchs, none passed so quietly through the world as Isaac: none lived either so privately, or so innocently: neither know I whether he approved himself a better son or husband. For the one, he gave himself over to the knife of his father, and mourned three years for his mother: for the other, he sought not to any handmaid's bed, but in a chaste forbearance reserved himself for twenty years' space, and prayed: Rebekah was so long barren. At last, in reward for his piety, she conceived. Bp. Hall.

22. — went to enquire of the Lord.] Either by prayer, or to some holy man, and possibly to Abraham, who was now living. Bp. Kidder.

23. — Two nations] That is, the heads of two nations, the Edomites and Israelites. Bp. Kidder.

— two manner of people] Greatly differing in their disposition, manners, course of life, and country; which will make them perpetually disagree. Bp. Patrick.

— The children struggled together in the womb, which was an omen and token of their future disagreement; and when they were grown up to manhood, they manifested very different inclinations. Esau was "a cunning hunter," and delighted in the sports of the field: Jacob was more mild and gentle, "dwelling in tents," and minding his sheep and his cattle. Esau slighted his birthright, and those sacred privileges, of which Jacob was desirous, and is therefore called the profane Esau, Heb. xii. 16; but Jacob was a man of better faith and religion. The like diversity ran through their posterity. The religion of the Jews is very well known: but whatever the Edomites were at first, in process of time they became idolaters. Upon these religious differences, and other accounts, there was a continual grudge and enmity between the two nations. The king of Edom would not suffer the Israelites, in their return out of Egypt, so much as to pass through his territories, Numb. xx. 14—21; and the history of the Edomites afterwards is little more than the history of their wars with the Jews. Bp. Newton.

— the one people shall be stronger &c.] The family of Esau was for some time the greater and more powerful of the two. But David entirely conquered the Edomites, and made them tributaries. In aftertimes, they were governed for the most part by viceroys or deputies appointed by the kings of Judah. And his name was called Jacob: and Isaac was threescore years old when she bare them. Before

CHRIST
1837.

27 And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter, a man of the field; and Jacob was a plain man, dwelling in tents.

28 And Isaac loved Esau, because [†]he did eat of his venison: but Rebekah loved Jacob. † Heb.
venison was in his mouth.

29 ¶ And Jacob sod pottage: and Esau came from the field, and he was faint:

30 And Esau said to Jacob, Feed me, I pray thee, [†]with that same red pottage; for I am faint: therefore was his name called Edom. † Heb.
with that red, with that red pottage.
about 1805.

31 And Jacob said, Sell me this day thy birthright.

32 And Esau said, Behold, I am [†]at the point to die: and what profit shall this birthright do to me? † Heb.
going to die.

33 And Jacob said, Swear to me this day; and he sware unto him: and ^ehe sold ^ehis birthright unto Jacob. ^e Hebr. 12.
16.

in the time of the Maccabees they were incorporated into the Jewish church and nation. Bp. Newton:

— and the elder shall serve the younger.] In his posterity, not in his own person. Bp. Patrick.

The prediction was verified in the descendants of Jacob, then represented by himself, being favoured with some distinguishing prerogatives, both spiritual and temporal, above the descendants of Esau. For we know Esau did not serve his brother Jacob: nay, his brother Jacob did obeisance to him. Dean Tucker.

25. — Esau.] That is, made or perfected, as if born more like a man than a babe. Bp. Kidder.

26. — Jacob.] That is, a supplanter; or one that taketh hold of, and trippeth up his brother's heels. Stackhouse.

27. — Jacob was a plain man.] But he appears rather from his whole conduct and behaviour, to have been an artful man. The word in the original signifies perfect, which is a general term: but being put in opposition to the rough and rustick manners of Esau, it particularly imports, that Jacob was more humane and gentle. Bp. Newton.

29. — sod] Boiled; the preterite of seethe. Johnson's Dictionary.

30. — Edom.] Which signifies red. Whence the city, which he built, and the country, which his posterity inhabited, were called by the same name; and by the Greeks Idumea: bordering towards the south on Judea, Arabia, and Egypt. Bp. Patrick.

31. — Sell me this day thy birthright.] The birthright, or right of primogeniture, had many privileges annexed to it. The first-born was consecrated to the Lord, Exod. xxii. 29; had a double portion of the estate allotted him, Deut. xxi. 17; had a dignity and authority over his brethren, Gen. xlix. 3; succeeded in the government of the family or kingdom, 2 Chron. xxi. 3; and, as some with good reason imagine, succeeded to the priesthood, or chief government in matters ecclesiastical. He had a right to challenge the particular blessing of his dying parent; he had the covenant, which God made with Abraham, that from his loins Christ should come, consigned to him: and, what is more, these prerogatives were not confined to his person only, but descended to his latest posterity, in case they comported themselves so as to deserve them. Stackhouse.

33. — Swear to me this day.] Moses, who records this conduct of Jacob, does not commend him for it. God indeed, before he was born, designed and promised this privilege to him: but then he should have waited, till the Divine wisdom had found out the means of executing His promise in His own way, as David

Before
CHRIST
about 1805.

34 Then Jacob gave Esau bread and pottage of lentiles; and he did eat and drink, and rose up, and went his way: thus Esau despised his birthright.

CHAP. XXVI.

1 Isaac because of famine went to Gerar. 2 God instructeth, and blesseth him. 7 He is reproved by Abimelech for denying his wife. 12 He groweth rich. 18 He diggeth Esau, Sittah, and Rehoboth. 23 Abimelech maketh a covenant with him at Beer-sheba. 34 Esau's wives.

about 1804.

AND there was a famine in the land, beside the first famine that was in the days of Abraham. And Isaac went unto Abimelech king of the Philistines unto Gerar.

2 And the LORD appeared unto him, and said, Go not down into Egypt; dwell in the land which I shall tell thee of:

* Chap. 12.
15. & 15.
18.

3 Sojourn in this land, and I will be with thee, and will bless thee; for unto thee, and unto thy seed, * I will give all these countries, and I will perform the oath which I sware unto Abraham thy father;

4 And I will make thy seed to multiply as the stars of heaven, and will give unto thy seed all these countries; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed;

* Chap. 12.
3. & 15. 18.
& 22. 18.

5 Because that Abraham obeyed my voice, and kept my charge, my commandments, my statutes, and my laws.

6 ¶ And Isaac dwelt in Gerar:

7 And the men of the place asked him of his wife; and he said, She is my sister:

did, till God gave him possession of Saul's kingdom: and not have anticipated God, and snatched it by an irregular act of his own. In the whole affair indeed, Jacob acted with a subtilty, not at all becoming an honest man. He knew that delays were dangerous, and that his brother's consideration might possibly spoil his bargain; and therefore he required haste, both in the sale, and in his oath; and thereby incurred another sin, by hurrying his brother into an oath by precipitation, which neither he should have taken, nor Jacob have advised him to take, without mature advice and deliberation.

And in like manner, as to his interception of the blessing, which his father designed for his brother Esau: it is in vain to have recourse to forced constructions, or to plead the lawfulness of mental reservations, in order to excuse him in the lying and dissimulation, for which he was certainly culpable. The best way is, upon this occasion, to lament the infirmity of human nature, which cannot always stand upright; and to admire the impartiality of the Sacred Writings, in which the very blemishes and transgressions of such, as are designed to make the principal figure in them, are not forgotten to be recorded. Stackhouse.

34. — pottage of lentiles;] Lentiles were a kind of pulse, somewhat like our vetches, or coarser sort of pease. Stackhouse.

The inhabitants of Barbary still make use of lentiles, boiled and stewed with oil and garlick, and forming a pottage of a chocolate colour: this was "the red pottage," ver. 30, for which Esau, thence called Edom, sold his birthright. Dr. Sham.

In the account of the Life of Hilarion, a celebrated hermit, that austere recluse is said for three years to have eaten nothing, for he feared to say, She is my wife; lest, said he, the men of the place should kill me for Rebekah; because she was fair to look upon.

Before
CHRIST
about 1801.

8 And it came to pass, when he had been there a long time, that Abimelech king of the Philistines looked out at a window, and saw, and, behold, Isaac was sporting with Rebekah his wife.

9 And Abimelech called Isaac, and said, Behold, of a surety she is thy wife: and how saidst thou, She is my sister? And Isaac said unto him, Because I said, Lest I die for her.

10 And Abimelech said, What is this thou hast done unto us? one of the people might lightly have lien with thy wife, and thou shouldest have brought guiltiness upon us.

11 And Abimelech charged all his people, saying, He that toucheth this man or his wife shall surely be put to death.

12 Then Isaac sowed in that land, and † received in the same year an hundred-fold; and the LORD blessed him: † Heb. found.

13 And the man waxed great, and † went forward, and grew until he became very great: † Heb. went going.

14 For he had possession of flocks, and possession of herds, and great store of || servants: and the Philistines envied him. || Or, husbandry.

15 For all the wells which his father's servants had digged in the days of Abraham his father, the Philistines had stopped them, and filled them with earth.

but half a sextary (about a pint) of lentiles, moistened with cold water: and for other three years only dry bread with salt, and some water. This shews the eating of lentiles was thought to be very poor living, though much eaten in those countries; and sometimes sent to soldiers attending their prince, 2 Sam. xvii. 28. It shews also, in a very strong point of light, the profaneness of Esau, who despised his birthright to such a degree, as to part with it for a mess of lentile pottage. Harmer.

Chap. XXVI. ver. 1. — Abimelech] Probably the son of him, to whom Abraham went. Bp. Patrick.

10. — guiltiness] The Hebrew word signifies both sin and punishment. Bp. Kidder.

12. — an hundredfold:] This was a singular blessing of God. However, Varro and Pliny say, that in parts of Syria and Africa, they reaped an hundred bushels for one: nay, Bochart shews out of several good authors, that some parts of Africa were so rich as to produce two and even three hundredfold. Bp. Patrick.

15. — the Philistines had stopped them,] The people of these countries have put in practice, many ages since the events recorded by Moses, the same mode of taking vengeance on those that were disagreeable to them, or whom they would prevent from coming among them. Niebuhr relates, that the Turkish emperours annually give to every Arab tribe, which is near the road from Egypt and Syria to Mecca, a certain sum of money, and a certain number of vestments, to keep them from destroying the wells, that lie in that route. Harmer. See 2 Kings iii. 19.

Before
CHRIST
about 1804.

16 And Abimelech said unto Isaac, Go from us; for thou art much mightier than we.

17 ¶ And Isaac departed thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there.

18 And Isaac digged again the wells of water, which they had digged in the days of Abraham his father; for the Philistines had stopped them after the death of Abraham: and he called their names after the names by which his father had called them.

† Heb.
living.

19 And Isaac's servants digged in the valley, and found there a well of † springing water.

¶ That is,
Contention.

20 And the herdmen of Gerar did strive with Isaac's herdmen, saying, The water is our's: and he called the name of the well || Esek; because they strove with him.

¶ That is,
Hatred.

21 And they digged another well, and strove for that also: and he called the name of it || Sitnah.

¶ That is,
Room.

22 And he removed from thence, and digged another well; and for that they strove not: and he called the name of it || Rehoboth; and he said, For now the LORD hath made room for us, and we shall be fruitful in the land.

23 And he went up from thence to Beer-sheba.

24 And the LORD appeared unto him the same night, and said, I am the God of Abraham thy father: fear not, for I am with thee, and will bless thee, and multiply thy seed for my servant Abraham's sake.

25 And he builded an altar there, and called upon the name of the LORD, and

20. — the herdmen of Gerar did strive] It is our ignorance of the Patriarchal manner of living, which makes us think it unaccountable to hear, in those early days, of so many contests about wells: for on nearer inspection we should find, that in those hot countries, where water was so very scarce, a well, or fountain of living water, was a possession of inestimable value: and for this reason we find Moses, in magnifying the Divine bounty to the children of Israel, among other parts of the inventory, reckoning up, not only "great and goodly cities, which they builded not," but "wells likewise digged, which they digged not." Biblioth. Bibl.

The importance of water is acknowledged all over the world; but its value, and the labour, with which it is sometimes procured in the East, are hardly credible to an English ear. At Cairo and Constantinople the gratuitous distribution of water is esteemed a most beneficial charity. Niebuhr. At Suez, a very considerable price, not less than a groat or sixpence a gallon, was paid for fresh water. Pitts. Persons are forced to travel across the deserts without any supply for their camels, sometimes as much as eighty miles. Plaisted. The wells too are very deep; many of them being from 160 to 170 feet. Niebuhr. From the great depth of earth, which must be dug away to get at water, we may infer the labour that Abraham had to dig his wells, and Isaac afterwards, to re-open them, when filled by the Philistines. We see too, pitched his tent there: and there Isaac's servants digged a well.

Before
CHRIST
about 1804.

26 ¶ Then Abimelech went to him from Gerar, and Ahuzzath one of his friends, and Phichol the chief captain of his army.

27 And Isaac said unto them, Wherefore come ye to me, seeing ye hate me, and have sent me away from you?

28 And they said, † We saw certainly that the LORD was with thee: and we said, Let there be now an oath betwixt us, even betwixt us and thee, and let us make a covenant with thee;

† Heb.
Seeing we saw.

29 † That thou wilt do us no hurt, as we have not touched thee, and as we have done unto thee nothing but good, and have sent thee away in peace: thou art now the blessed of the LORD.

† Heb.
If thou shalt, &c.

30 And he made them a feast, and they did eat and drink.

31 And they rose up betimes in the morning, and sware one to another: and Isaac sent them away, and they departed from him in peace.

32 And it came to pass the same day, that Isaac's servants came, and told him concerning the well which they had digged, and said unto him, We have found water.

33 And he called it || Shebah: therefore the name of the city is || Beer-sheba unto this day.

¶ That is,
an oath.
¶ That is,
the well of the oath.
1796.

34 ¶ And Esau was forty years old when he took to wife Judith the daughter of Beeri the Hittite, and Bashemath the daughter of Elon the Hittite:

° Chap. 27.
46.

35 Which ° were † a grief of mind unto Isaac and to Rebekah.

† Heb.
bitterness of spirit.

that a well was an article of property of the most valuable kind; since it was to be procured in many places only by continued and expensive labour. An acquaintance with such particulars adds much to the spirit of those passages in Scripture, where wells, or brooks, or waters are mentioned: but to know the full value of this indispensable element, we must endure burning thirst, beneath an unclouded sky, under a parching sun, amidst an arid and sandy desert. Fragments to Calmet.

26. — Phichol] The same name and the same office, possessed by him, who is mentioned chap. xxi. 22. It was probably the name of some dignity among them, like that of tribune or dictator among the Romans. Bp. Patrick.

33. — Beer-sheba] Isaac renewed the well dug by his father at this place, where in later times a city was built. Dr. Wells. See note on Gen. xxi. 33.

34. — the daughter of Beeri the Hittite, &c.] Josephus says, these two men, whose daughters Esau married, were powerful men among the Hittites. Doubtless his father had given him the same charge which Abraham had done concerning his own marriage, chap. xxiv. 3. And then it was a very undutiful, nay, an impious action, to marry with those people, who were under the curse of God. The Scripture might well call him profane; for he seems not to have regarded either the curse or the blessing of the Almighty. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1760.

CHAP. XXVII.

1 Isaac sendeth Esau for venison. 6 Rebekah instructeth Jacob to obtain the blessing. 15 Jacob under the person of Esau obtaineth it. 30 Esau bringeth venison. 33 Isaac trembleth. 34 Esau complaineth, and by importunity obtaineth a blessing. 41 He threateneth Jacob. 42 Rebekah disappointeth it.

AND it came to pass, that when Isaac was old, and his eyes were dim, so that he could not see, he called Esau his eldest son, and said unto him, My son: and he said unto him, Behold, here am I.

2 And he said, Behold now, I am old, I know not the day of my death:

3 Now therefore take, I pray thee, thy weapons, thy quiver and thy bow, and go out to the field, and † take me some venison;

4 And make me savoury meat, such as I love, and bring it to me, that I may eat; that my soul may bless thee before I die.

5 And Rebekah heard when Isaac spake to Esau his son. And Esau went to the field to hunt for venison, and to bring it.

6 ¶ And Rebekah spake unto Jacob her son, saying, Behold, I heard thy father speak unto Esau thy brother, saying,

7 Bring me venison, and make me savoury meat, that I may eat, and bless thee before the LORD before my death.

8 Now therefore, my son, obey my voice according to that which I command thee.

9 Go now to the flock, and fetch me from thence two good kids of the goats; and I will make them savoury meat for thy father, such as he loveth:

10 And thou shalt bring it to thy father, that he may eat, and that he may bless thee before his death.

11 And Jacob said to Rebekah his mother, Behold, Esau my brother is a hairy man, and I am a smooth man:

12 My father peradventure will feel me,

† Heb.
hunt.

and I shall seem to him as a deceiver; and I shall bring a curse upon me, and not a blessing. Before
CHRIST
about 1760.

13 And his mother said unto him, Upon me be thy curse, my son: only obey my voice, and go fetch me them.

14 And he went, and fetched, and brought them to his mother: and his mother made savoury meat, such as his father loved.

15 And Rebekah took † goodly raiment of her eldest son Esau, which were with her in the house, and put them upon Jacob her younger son: † Heb.
desirable.

16 And she put the skins of the kids of the goats upon his hands, and upon the smooth of his neck:

17 And she gave the savoury meat and the bread, which she had prepared, into the hand of her son Jacob.

18 ¶ And he came unto his father, and said, My father: and he said, Here am I; who art thou, my son?

19 And Jacob said unto his father, I am Esau thy firstborn; I have done according as thou badest me: arise, I pray thee, sit and eat of my venison, that thy soul may bless me.

20 And Isaac said unto his son, How is it that thou hast found it so quickly, my son? And he said, Because the LORD thy God brought it † to me. † Heb.
before me.

21 And Isaac said unto Jacob, Come near, I pray thee, that I may feel thee, my son, whether thou be my very son Esau or not.

22 And Jacob went near unto Isaac his father; and he felt him, and said, The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau.

23 And he discerned him not, because his hands were hairy, as his brother Esau's hands: so he blessed him.

Chap. XXVII. ver. 1. — when Isaac was old,] He was one hundred and thirty-seven years old. Bp. Patrick.

4. — make me savoury meat,] For the eldest son of a family to be so employed, may seem to shew that the family was possessed of no great wealth or magnificence. Such however was the simplicity of those times, that it was customary for men of the highest rank to submit to meaner offices than this. The Sacred History, in all its accounts and descriptions, agrees with the sense of the most ancient writers, and is conformable to the manners and customs that then prevailed. Stackhouse.

16. — put the skins of the kids &c.] Bochart observes, that in the Eastern countries goats' hair was very like that of men. Bp. Patrick.

In this chapter is shown, how Jacob deceived his father. He was a good man; but every thing, that good men have said or done through infirmity, must not be imitated: the Law of God being our sure and never-failing rule.

A while hence we shall see Jacob himself imposed upon by Laban, in the case of Rachel his espoused wife: and in his old age we shall see him imposed upon by his own sons, and with the blood of a kid, with which they dyed his son's coat. So exact, so wonderful, so instructive are all the ways of Providence! Bp. Wilson.

23. — so he blessed him.] Jacob and his mother were justly to be praised, for having a due esteem of the paternal benediction, as a means instituted by God for the conveyance of His covenant with Abraham. And if this blessing was, as some suppose, an appendage to the birthright, Jacob, in purchasing the one, had acquired a just title to the other. Pursuant to the Divine designation likewise, Isaac was bound to confer his blessing upon Jacob; and therefore his wife, perceiving his erroneous intention, laid a scheme, which induced him to do ignorantly, what God had preordained to be done. Furthermore, when her artifice had succeeded, and Jacob was blessed, Isaac was fully satisfied with about 1760.

Before
CHRIST

Before
CHRIST
about 1760.

24 And he said, Art thou my very son Esau? And he said, I am.

25 And he said, Bring it near to me, and I will eat of my son's venison, that my soul may bless thee. And he brought it near to him, and he did eat: and he brought him wine, and he drank.

26 And his father Isaac said unto him, Come near now, and kiss me, my son.

27 And he came near, and kissed him: and he smelled the smell of his raiment, and blessed him, and said, See, the smell of my son is as the smell of a field which the Lord hath blessed:

^a Hebr. 11. 20. 28 Therefore ^aGod give thee of the dew of heaven, and the fatness of the earth, and plenty of corn and wine:

29 Let people serve thee, and nations bow down to thee: be lord over thy brethren, and let thy mother's sons bow down to thee: cursed be every one that curseth thee, and blessed be he that blesseth thee.

30 ¶ And it came to pass, as soon as Isaac had made an end of blessing Jacob, and Jacob was yet scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, that Esau his brother came in from his hunting.

31 And he also had made savoury meat, and brought it unto his father, and said unto his father, Let my father arise, and eat of his son's venison, that thy soul may bless me.

32 And Isaac his father said unto him, Who art thou? And he said, I am thy son, thy firstborn Esau.

33 And Isaac † trembled very exceedingly, and said, Who? where is he that hath † taken venison, and brought it me, and I have eaten of all before thou camest, and have blessed him? yea, and he shall be blessed.

34 And when Esau heard the words of his father, he cried with a great and exceeding bitter cry, and said unto his father, Bless me, even me also, O my father.

35 And he said, Thy brother came with subtilty, and hath taken away thy blessing.

36 And he said, Is not he rightly named ¶ Jacob? for he hath supplanted me these two times: he took away my birthright; and, behold, now he hath taken away my blessing. And he said, Hast thou not reserved a blessing for me?

37 And Isaac answered and said unto Esau, Behold, I have made him thy lord, and all his brethren have I given to him for servants; and with corn and wine have I ¶ sustained him: and what shall I do now ¶ unto thee, my son?

38 And Esau said unto his father, Hast thou but one blessing, my father? bless what he had done: "I have blessed him, yea, and he shall be blessed:" which sudden change of mind may be imputed to some Divine inspiration, opening his understanding, and convincing him that he had given the blessing to the right person. These considerations may serve to alleviate the crime: still it must be owned, that Rebekah was guilty of a fault, in suggesting such wicked advice to her son; and that Jacob committed another, in suffering himself to be seduced by so bad a guide: and that both of them presumed to limit the power of God, by thinking that a complication of frauds was necessary for the accomplishment of a Divine prophecy. Had Rebekah put her husband in remembrance of this prophecy, and shewn how Esau had forfeited the blessing by selling his birthright, and by marrying strange wives, this had been a much more honourable proceeding. But she was left to pursue her own indiscreet method; and thus God accomplished His righteous purposes by converting, as He often does, human folly to the promotion of His glory. Stackhouse.

24. — And he said, I am.] Jacob got his father's blessing by a lie: but see what followed. His brother purposed to murder him:—he was in a manner banished from his father's house;—his uncle dealt deceitfully with him, as he had done with his father, and treated him with great rigour: and his mother, who put him upon this fraud, never saw him after. Bp. Wilson.

28. Therefore God give thee] Or, will give thee: it is a prophecy as well as a prayer. Bp. Kidder.

— the dew of heaven,] Rain fell only at certain seasons in that country: but there was a recompense for it by plentiful dews, which very much refreshed the earth, and are represented as a Divine gift, Job xxxviii. 28; Mic. v. 7. Bp. Patrick.

— and the fatness of the earth,] Canaan, the lot of his inheritance, was a fruitful, and therefore by the Prophet called, a fat land, Neh. ix. 25. Stackhouse.

29. Let people serve thee,] As the former part of the blessing relates to wealth, so does this to dominion and empire: it was signally fulfilled in the days of David, when the Moabites, Ammonites, Syrians, Philistines, and Edomites also, were subdued under him. Bp. Patrick.

— be lord over thy brethren,] This is a third part of the blessing, giving him a prerogative in his own family. Bp. Patrick.

In the following chapter, ver. 14, the promise is made to Jacob, "In thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed;" and to this are to be referred in their full force those expressions, "Let people serve thee, &c." It appears that Jacob was a man of more religion, and believed the Divine promises more than Esau. The posterity of Jacob likewise preserved the true religion and the worship of one God, while the Edomites were sunk in idolatry. And of the seed of Jacob was born at last the Saviour of the world. This was the peculiar privilege and advantage of Jacob, to be the happy instrument of conveying these spiritual blessings to all nations. This was his greatest superiority over Esau: and in this sense St. Paul understands and applies the prophecy, "The elder shall serve the younger," Rom. ix. 12. The Christ, the Saviour of the world, was to be born of some one family; and Jacob's was preferred to Esau's out of the good pleasure of Almighty God, who is certainly the best judge of fitness and expedience, and hath an undoubted right to dispense His favours, as He shall see proper: "for He saith to Moses," as the Apostle proceeds to argue, ver. 15, "I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compassion

Before
CHRIST
about 1760.

* Heb. 12.

17.

* Ver. 28.

|| Or,

of the fatness.

me, even me also, O my father. And Esau lifted up his voice, and wept.

39 And Isaac his father answered and said unto him, Behold, thy dwelling shall be the fatness of the earth, and of the dew of heaven from above;

40 And by thy sword shalt thou live, and shalt serve thy brother; and it shall come to pass when thou shalt have the dominion, that thou shalt break his yoke from off thy neck.

41 ¶ And Esau hated Jacob because of the blessing wherewith his father blessed him: and Esau said in his heart, The days of mourning for my father are at hand; then will I slay my brother Jacob.

* Obad. 10.

42 And these words of Esau her elder son were told to Rebekah: and she sent and called Jacob her younger son, and said unto him, Behold, thy brother Esau, as touching thee, doth comfort himself, purposing to kill thee.

43 Now therefore, my son, obey my voice; and arise, flee thou to Laban my brother to Haran;

44 And tarry with him a few days, until thy brother's fury turn away;

45 Until thy brother's anger turn away from thee, and he forget that which thou hast done to him: then I will send, and fetch thee from thence: why should I be deprived also of you both in one day?

* Chap. 26.
25.

46 And Rebekah said to Isaac, I am weary of my life because of the daughters of Heth: if Jacob take a wife of the daughters of Heth, such as these which are of the daughters of the land, what good shall my life do me?

Before
CHRIST
about 1760.

CHAP. XXVIII.

1 Isaac blesseth Jacob, and sendeth him to Padan-aram.

6 Esau marrieth Mahalath the daughter of Ishmael.

10 The vision of Jacob's ladder. 18 The stone of Beth-el. 20 Jacob's vow.

AND Isaac called Jacob, and blessed him, and charged him, and said unto him, Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan.

1760.

2 Arise, go to Padan-aram, to the house of Bethuel thy mother's father; and take thee a wife from thence of the daughters of Laban thy mother's brother.

* Hos. 12.
12.

3 And God Almighty bless thee, and make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, that thou mayest be a multitude of people;

† Heb.
an assembly of people.

4 And give thee the blessing of Abraham, to thee, and to thy seed with thee; that thou mayest inherit the land † wherein thou art a stranger, which God gave unto Abraham.

† Heb. of thy so-
journings.

5 And Isaac sent away Jacob: and he went to Padan-aram unto Laban, son of Bethuel the Syrian, the brother of Rebekah, Jacob's and Esau's mother.

6 ¶ When Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and sent him away to Padan-aram, to take him a wife from thence; and that as he blessed him he gave him a on whom I will have compassion." And when the Gentiles were converted to Christianity, the prophecy was literally fulfilled, "Let people serve thee, and nations bow down to thee;" and will more amply be fulfilled, when "the fulness of the Gentiles shall come in, and all Israel shall be saved." Bp. Newton.

39. — Behold, thy dwelling &c.] Esau had cattle, and beasts, and substance in abundance. And when the Israelites on their return from Egypt desired leave to pass through the territories of Edom, it appears that the country contained fields and vineyards. There is however a manifest difference between this and Jacob's benediction. For here is no mention of plenty of corn and wine; nor is there dominion given to him, as there was to Jacob: and, whatsoever fatness was in the soil of the country, it did not last, as appears from Mal. i. 3. Bps. Newton and Patrick.

40. — by thy sword shalt thou live,] Live upon spoil. Bp. Patrick. The Edomites were always distinguished for their violence and martial spirit. Josephus gives them the character of "a turbulent and disorderly nation, always erect to commotions, and rejoicing in changes; at the least adulation of those who beseech them, beginning war, and hastening to battles as it were to a feast." Bp. Newton.

— shalt serve thy brother;] See note on chap. xxv. 23.

— when thou shalt have the dominion,] It is not meant, that they should have dominion over the seed of Jacob, but simply have dominion, as they had when they appointed a king of their own. Bp. Newton.

— thou shalt break his yoke &c.] In the reign of Jehoram, "the Edomites revolted from under the dominion of Judah, and made themselves a king," (2 Kings viii. 20;) thus fulfilling this prophecy 900 years after it was delivered. Bp. Newton.

46. — I am weary of my life &c.] However culpable Rebekah may be thought in the former instance, there is not the like imputation on her, in hiding from her husband the true reason of her sending Jacob away. It is prudence to conceal the truth, when the discovery will occasion more harm than good. Therefore that she might not afflict her husband's old age with the unwelcome news of his son Esau's wicked design against his brother, and thereby provoke his indignation against him; she covered the dismissal of Jacob with a reason, that was true indeed, but not that chief and latent one, which gave her the most uneasiness; and which, if communicated to her husband, might have been the means of bringing down his grey hairs with sorrow to the grave. So that, on the whole, and according to the Proverbs of the wise king, she acted the part both of a careful wife and of a prudent woman: for "the tongue of the wise useth knowledge aright," and she, "that is of a faithful spirit, concealeth the matter," Prov. xv. 2, and xi. 13. Stackhouse.

Chap. XXVIII. ver. 1. — blessed him,] Renewed and confirmed his former blessing, that it might not be thought of less force, because procured by artifice and subtilty. Bp. Patrick.

4. — the blessing of Abraham,] That blessing, not only temporal, but spiritual, which was promised to Abraham, chap. xii. 2, 3; xvii. 19; xxii. 17, 18; and was by God Himself transferred to Isaac, chap. xxv. 11, and xxvi. 3; and is here by Isaac assured to Jacob and his seed. Bp. Kidder.

^cBefore CHRIST 1760. charge, saying, Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan;

7 And that Jacob obeyed his father and his mother, and was gone to Padan-aram;

[†] Heb. were evil in the eyes, &c.

8 And Esau seeing that the daughters of Canaan [†]pleased not Isaac his father;

9 Then went Esau unto Ishmael, and took unto the wives which he had Mahalath the daughter of Ishmael Abraham's son, the sister of Nebajoth, to be his wife.

about 1760.

10 ¶ And Jacob went out from Beer-sheba, and went toward ^bHaran.

^b Called, Acts 7. 2, Charran.

11 And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep.

12 And he dreamed, and behold a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and behold the angels of God ascending and descending on it.

^c Chap. 35. 1. & 48. 3.

13 ^cAnd, behold, the LORD stood above it, and said, I am the LORD God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed;

14 And thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth, and thou shalt [†]spread abroad ^dto the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south: and in thee and ^ein thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed.

^eBefore CHRIST about 1760.

[†] Heb. break forth, ^dDeut. 12. 20.

^e Chap. 12. 3. & 18. 18. & 22. 18. & 26. 4.

15 And, behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.

16 ¶ And Jacob awaked out of his sleep, and he said, Surely the LORD is in this place; and I knew it not.

17 And he was afraid, and said, How dreadful is this place! this is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven.

18 And Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stone that he had put for his pillows, and set it up for a pillar, and poured oil upon the top of it.

19 And he called the name of that place || Beth-el: but the name of that city was || called Luz at the first.

^{||} That is, the house of God.

20 And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, If God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on,

10. And Jacob went out from Beer-sheba,] Isaac's life was not more retired and quiet, than Jacob's was busy and troublesome. In the one I see the image of contemplation; of action, in the other. None of the Patriarchs saw so evil days as he; from whom justly hath the Church of God therefore taken her name. Neither were the faithful ever since called Abrahamites, but Israelites. As an emblem of his future lot, he began his strife in the womb: after that, he flies for his life from a cruel brother to a cruel uncle. With a staff goes he over Jordan alone, doubtful and comfortless, not like the son of Isaac. In the way the earth is his bed, and a stone his pillow; yet even there he sees a vision of angels. Jacob's heart was never so full of joy, as when his head lay hardest. God is most present with us in our greatest dejection; and loves to give comfort to those that are forsaken of their hopes. Bp. Hall.

12. — behold a ladder &c.] This ladder, according to the sense of the best interpreters, is an emblem of the Divine Providence, which governs all things. Its being "set up on the earth" denotes the steadiness of Providence, which nothing can unsettle: its "reaching up to heaven" signifies, that it extends over all things: the several "steps of the ladder" are the motion and action of Providence: the "angels going up and down" show, that they are the great ministers of Providence, always employed in the preservation of the just: their "ascending" represents their going up to receive the Divine commands; and their "descending," their coming down upon earth to execute them. So that God hereby signified to Jacob, now full of cares and uneasy apprehensions, that the man, who was under the custody and protection of Divine Providence, wanted not company in a wilderness; nor security in danger; nor direction in difficulties: since there were so many "ministering spirits," holding correspondence between earth and heaven; and daily and hourly "sent forth" from God's presence "to minister for them, who shall be heirs of salvation," Heb. i. 14.

Another interpretation deserves our attention. The promise, which God makes to Jacob, from the top of the ladder, relates chiefly to His covenant with Abraham, which was principally founded in Christ, that chosen Seed, "in whom all the families of the earth were to be blessed." The analogy of the thing may therefore lead us to believe, that this ladder was designed for a type and emblem of the covenant of grace, which was in force from the time of man's first apostasy, and began to be put in execution at the incarnation of our Saviour Christ, that only Mediator, who opened an intercourse between earth and heaven: by whose intercession plenty of all spiritual blessings descend to us; and by whose merits and doctrines His disciples are sanctified, and so become "meet to be partakers with the saints in light," or to ascend into heaven. To this mystical meaning of the ladder, our Saviour Himself may be thought to allude, when He says, "Hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of man," John i. 51. Stackhouse.

18. — took the stone, — and set it up &c.] That it might preserve the memory of this heavenly vision; and serve as a token to point out to him the place, when God should bring him back again. He afterwards poured oil upon it, to consecrate it as a monument of God's great mercy to him. Hence arose the Pagan custom of anointing stones, and consecrating them to the memory of great men after their death, and falling down, and worshipping before them; a proof, how the best and noblest acts of piety may be perverted into a foolish and degrading superstition. This idolatrous practice arose very early: whence Moses forbade the erecting of such pillars, they being in his time converted to a profane use. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

19. — the name of that city] Which was near the place where this pillar was set up. Bp. Patrick.

20. — Jacob vowed a vow,] Annotators have observed, that this is the first vow we read of in Scripture. Jacob however appears to have done no more, than his fathers had done before him. When, for example, the Lord is said to have made a covenant with Abraham, it must be supposed, that Abraham on his part expressed his consent and acceptance; and not only so, but vowed

Before
CHRIST
1760.

21 So that I come again to my father's house in peace; then shall the LORD be my God:

22 And this stone, which I have set for a pillar, shall be God's house: and of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee.

CHAP. XXIX.

1 Jacob cometh to the well of Haran. 9 He taketh acquaintance of Rachel. 13 Laban entertaineth him. 18 Jacob covenanteth for Rachel. 23 He is deceived with Leah. 28 He marrieth also Rachel, and serveth for her seven years more. 32 Leah beareth Reuben, 33 Simeon, 34 Levi, 35 and Judah.

† Heb.
lift up his feet.
† Heb.
children.

THEN Jacob † went on his journey, and came into the land of the † people of the east.

2 And he looked, and behold a well in the field, and, lo, there were three flocks of sheep lying by it; for out of that well they watered the flocks: and a great stone was upon the well's mouth.

3 And thither were all the flocks gathered: and they rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the sheep, and put the stone again upon the well's mouth in his place.

4 And Jacob said unto them, My bre-and promised to perform the conditions, in order to attain the benefits of it. Biblioth. Bibl.

— and will give me bread &c.] To work our own contentment, we should not labour so much to increase our substance, as to moderate our desires. Jacob did not propose to himself any great endowments, rich revenues, and large possessions: but only "bread to eat, and raiment to put on." No matter of what coarse grain, so it were but bread to give nourishment, and maintain life. No matter for the stuff or fashion, so it were but raiment to cover nakedness, and to keep off heat and cold. Neither doth St. Paul speak of any choicer or costlier gifts: "Having food and raiment," saith he, "let us be therewith content," 1 Tim. vi. 8. He saith not delicacies, but food; not ornaments, but raiment, coverings. Bp. Sanderson.

The conditions of Jacob's vow seem to denote the secret wish and desire of his soul, and not any express stipulation with God. Man certainly cannot insist on terms with his Maker; but he may desire and humbly hope for a supply of his wants. More than this the Patriarch did not expect; and less than this God never intended to give. "Our heavenly Father knows that we have need of food to eat and raiment to put on;" and it is a renunciation of our dependance upon His providential goodness not to ask them. To serve God for no consideration, but that of His own glory, is a notion, that may well enough comport with our future exalted state, when we shall "hunger no more, neither thirst any more," and where our service will always be attended with vision; but while we are invested with these weak and frail bodies, they and their concerns will tenderly affect us: and God, who "considers whereof we are made," expects no other than that they should. Stackhouse.

21. — then shall the Lord be my God:] I will suffer no idolatry in my house or family. Bp. Wilson. He does not mean, that he would not worship God, if He did not bring him home in peace: for the right which God has to the service and homage of His creatures is absolute and inalienable; but that, if He did, he would perform some special service to Him, and worship Him with extraordinary devotion. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

thren, whence be ye? And they said, Of Haran are we. Before 1760.
CHRIST

5 And he said unto them, Know ye Laban the son of Nahor? And they said, We know him.

6 And he said unto them, † Is he well? † Heb. Is there peace to him? And they said, He is well: and, behold, Rachel his daughter cometh with the sheep.

7 And he said, Lo, † it is yet high day, † Heb. yet the day is great. neither is it time that the cattle should be gathered together: water ye the sheep, and go and feed them.

8 And they said, We cannot, until all the flocks be gathered together, and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep.

9 ¶ And while he yet spake with them, Rachel came with her father's sheep: for she kept them.

10 And it came to pass, when Jacob saw Rachel the daughter of Laban his mother's brother, and the sheep of Laban his mother's brother, that Jacob went near, and rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the flock of Laban his mother's brother.

11 And Jacob kissed Rachel, and lifted up his voice, and wept.

22. — I will surely give the tenth unto thee.] The tithe of all his income, saith Josephus; for the maintenance of burnt sacrifices, and other pious purposes; perhaps also for the relief of the poor; the order of priesthood being not yet instituted.

This is the second mention of tithes or tenths, and the first specifick dedication of them to God: and from this place we may conclude, that Jacob, the grandchild of Abraham, vowing "the tenth of all," as Abraham had given "the tenth of the spoil," was induced to do it by the custom then prevailing among religious people. Some persons suppose this portion was fixed upon, rather than a fifth, sixth, or any other, because in this number ten all nations in a manner end their account, and then begin again with compound numbers. But it is most likely, they had some Divine direction for it, as for sacrificing. Jacob appears to have performed his vow on his return from Padan-aram, Gen xxxv. 7, 14. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

Chap. XXIX. ver. 2. — a great stone was upon the well's mouth.] In Arabia, and in other places, they are wont to close and cover up their wells of water, lest the sand, which is put into motion by the winds there, like the water of a pond, should fill them, and quite stop them up. Sir J. Chardin.

8. And they said, We cannot,] Not that they were unable to roll away the stone; but it was probably contrary to the rules of the place, as it may have been agreed, that no one should uncover the well, and disturb the waters, till all the shepherds with their flocks were assembled together to this common place of watering. Locke. See below note on ver. 10.

9. — for she kept them.] That employment in those early days was very honourable; as is evident from Homer and other ancient writers. Stackhouse.

It is customary, even to this day, for the children of the greatest emir to attend their flocks, as we find Rachel kept the sheep of her father Laban. Dr. Shaw.

10. — rolled the stone from the well's mouth,] Sir J. Chardin gives us to understand, that he has known wells or cisterns of water locked up in the East: and if not, that some person is so far the pro-

Before CHRIST 1760. 12 And Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's brother, and that he was Rebekah's son: and she ran and told her father.

† Heb. hearing. 13 And it came to pass, when Laban heard the † tidings of Jacob his sister's son, that he ran to meet him, and embraced him, and kissed him, and brought him to his house. And he told Laban all these things.

14 And Laban said to him, Surely thou art my bone and my flesh. And he abode with him † the space of a month.

† Heb. a month of days. 15 ¶ And Laban said unto Jacob, Because thou art my brother, shouldest thou therefore serve me for nought? tell me, what shall thy wages be?

16 And Laban had two daughters: the name of the elder was Leah, and the name of the younger was Rachel.

17 Leah was tender eyed; but Rachel was beautiful and well favoured.

18 And Jacob loved Rachel; and said, I will serve thee seven years for Rachel thy younger daughter.

19 And Laban said, It is better that I give her to thee, than that I should give her to another man: abide with me.

20 And Jacob served seven years for Rachel; and they seemed unto him but a few days, for the love he had to her.

1753. 21 ¶ And Jacob said unto Laban, Give

Before CHRIST 1752. me my wife, for my days are fulfilled, that I may go in unto her.

22 And Laban gathered together all the men of the place, and made a feast.

23 And it came to pass in the evening, that he took Leah his daughter, and brought her to him; and he went in unto her.

24 And Laban gave unto his daughter Leah Zilpah his maid for an handmaid.

25 And it came to pass, that in the morning, behold, it was Leah: and he said to Laban, What is this thou hast done unto me? did not I serve with thee for Rachel? wherefore then hast thou beguiled me?

26 And Laban said, It must not be so done in our † country, to give the younger † Heb. place. before the firstborn.

27 Fulfil her week, and we will give thee this also for the service which thou shalt serve with me yet seven other years.

28 And Jacob did so, and fulfilled her week: and he gave him Rachel his daughter to wife also.

29 And Laban gave to Rachel his daughter Bilhah his handmaid to be her maid.

30 And he went in also unto Rachel, and he loved also Rachel more than Leah, and served with him yet seven other years.

31 ¶ And when the LORD saw that Leah was hated, he opened her womb: but Rachel was barren.

prietor, that no one dares to open a well or cistern, but in his presence. He has often, he says, seen the inhabitants make use of such precautions in divers parts of Asia, on account of the real scarcity of water there. Harmer.

12. — her father's brother,] That is, kinsman.

13. — he told Laban all these things.] Such as that he was Laban's kinsman, and Rebekah's son, ver. 12; as also the reason of his coming from home; God's providence over him on his journey; and his happy meeting with Rachel. Bp. Patrick.

17. Leah was tender eyed,] Having some blemish or soreness in her eyes. Stackhouse.

18. — I will serve thee seven years for Rachel] It was a custom, which had prevailed almost in all ages, that, in contracting marriages, as the wife brought a portion to the husband, so the husband should give her, or her parents, money or presents, sometimes called in Scripture the dowry, in lieu of this portion. Jacob, being destitute of money, offers his uncle seven years' service, which must have been equivalent to a large sum. Biblioth. Bibl.

22. — Laban gathered together all the men of the place,] All such private contracts were completed by the elders or governors of the place, in the presence of all the people. An instance of this occurred before in Abraham's purchase of a sepulchre for his family, chap. xxiii. 11, 18. This was a sacred and religious thing, as well as the rites of marriage; and therefore both were parts of the publick care. Bp. Patrick.

23. — and brought her to him;] The modesty of those times made them bring the bride to her husband's bed veiled, and without lights: so that it was easier for Laban to impose on Jacob. Bp. Patrick.

25. — wherefore then hast thou beguiled me?] This was a great fraud in Laban, and to Jacob a great affliction: but such as might remind him of the guile which he had used in procuring his father's blessing. Bp. Kidder.

26. — It must not be so done] This was a mere pretence, for we read of no such custom; had it been true, he should have told Jacob beforehand. Bp. Patrick.

27. Fulfil her week, &c.] That is, marriages are to be celebrated, according to custom, by a seven days' feast: complete this marriage thou hast begun with Leah; and then, upon condition of another seven years' service, thou shalt marry Rachel also, and keep her wedding feast seven days. Selden.

30. And he went in also unto Rachel,] There was no positive law at this time against such marriages as this; and Jacob probably thought there was an unavoidable necessity for his marrying these two sisters: for Rachel was his true wife, Leah being imposed upon him by deceit; but having taken her, he concluded he could not honestly leave her, any more than he could Rachel, to whom he was first contracted. The example of Jacob however in this particular is no rule for Christians. He, who pretends to pronounce on so singular a case as that of this Patriarch, should consider the different state of things, before the promulgation of the Law, during the obligation of it, and since the commencement of the Gospel. The Gospel undoubtedly prohibits both a plurality of wives, and consanguinity in marriages; and requires of its votaries the strictest chastity, from a consideration and motive, which neither the law of nature, nor the Law of Moses, knew any thing of; "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's," 1 Corinth. vi. 19, 20. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

31. — Leah was hated,] Loved less than Rachel, as it is in the

Before CHRIST about 1752. 32 And Leah conceived, and bare a son, and she called his name || Reuben: for she said, Surely the Lord hath looked upon my affliction; now therefore my husband will love me.

about 1751. 33 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Because the Lord hath heard that I was hated, he hath therefore given me this son also: and she called his name || Simeon.

|| That is, hearing. about 1750. 34 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Now this time will my husband be joined unto me, because I have born him three sons: therefore was his name called || Levi.

|| That is, joined. about 1749. 35 And she conceived again, and bare a son: and she said, Now will I praise the Lord: therefore she called his name ^a || Judah; and † left bearing.

* Matth. 1. 2.
|| That is, praises.
† Heb. stood from bearing.

CHAP. XXX.

1 Rachel, in grief for her barrenness, giveth Billhah her maid unto Jacob. 5 She beareth Dan and Naphtali. 9 Leah giveth Zilpah her maid, who beareth Gad and Asher. 15 Reuben findeth mandrakes, with which Leah buyeth her husband of Rachel. 17 Leah beareth Issachar, Zebulun, and Dinah. 22 Rachel beareth Joseph. 25 Jacob desireth to depart. 27 Laban stayeth him on a new covenant. 37 Jacob's policy, whereby he became rich.

AND when Rachel saw that she bare Jacob no children, Rachel envied her sister; and said unto Jacob, Give me children, or else I die.

2 And Jacob's anger was kindled against Rachel: and he said, Am I in God's stead, who hath withheld from thee the fruit of the womb?

3 And she said, Behold my maid Billhah, go in unto her; and she shall bear upon my knees, that I may also have children by her.

† Heb. be built by her.

4 And she gave him Billhah her handmaid to wife: and Jacob went in unto her.

5 And Billhah conceived, and bare Jacob a son.

Before CHRIST about 1749. 6 And Rachel said, God hath judged me, and hath also heard my voice, and hath given me a son: therefore called she his name || Dan.

7 And Billhah Rachel's maid conceived again, and bare Jacob a second son.

|| That is, judging.

8 And Rachel said, With † great wrestlings have I wrestled with my sister, and I have prevailed: and she called his name || ^a Naphtali.

† Heb. wrestlings of God.

9 When Leah saw that she had left bearing, she took Zilpah her maid, and gave her Jacob to wife.

|| That is, my wrestling.

10 And Zilpah Leah's maid bare Jacob a son.

* Called, Matth. 4. 15, Nephthali.

11 And Leah said, A troop cometh: and she called his name || Gad.

|| That is, a troop, or, company.

12 And Zilpah Leah's maid bare Jacob a second son.

13 And Leah said, † Happy am I, for the daughters will call me blessed: and she called his name || Asher.

† Heb. In my happiness.

14 ¶ And Reuben went in the days of wheat harvest, and found mandrakes in the field, and brought them unto his mother Leah. Then Rachel said to Leah, Give me, I pray thee, of thy son's mandrakes.

|| That is, happy. about 1751.

15 And she said unto her, Is it a small matter that thou hast taken my husband? and wouldest thou take away my son's mandrakes also? And Rachel said, Therefore he shall lie with thee to night for thy son's mandrakes.

16 And Jacob came out of the field in the evening, and Leah went out to meet him, and said, Thou must come in unto me; for surely I have hired thee with my son's mandrakes. And he lay with her that night.

17 And God hearkened unto Leah, and she conceived, and bare Jacob the fifth son.

about 1750.

18 And Leah said, God hath given me my hire, because I have given my maiden to my husband: and she called his name || Issachar.

|| That is, an hire.

foregoing verse. Hating is, in the Scripture phrase, sometimes put for loving less. Compare Luke xiv. 26, with Matthew x. 37. Bp. Kidder.

Chap. XXX. ver. 3. — she shall bear upon my knees,] Bring me a child, whom I may set upon my knees as my own. Bp. Patrick.

The bearing upon the knees may denote, that Rachel designed her servant to bear a child, as in her presence, and as it were upon her knees, to the end that her mistress might be made a mother by her instrumentality, and might have children whom she might truly call her own, though not born of herself. Stackhouse.

We see that barren Rachel follows Sarah's example, and adopts the son of that maidservant, whom she gave to Jacob: wherein Leah followed her, and gave one of her maids to her husband. All this was evidently grounded upon the same principle, which afterwards bred those dissensions betwixt Jacob's wives about the having children by them: for it is very natural to believe, that Jacob did not conceal from his wives his advantages and hopes. Dr. Allix. See Dr. Gray's note on chap. xix. 36. See also note on ver. 23.

— that I may also have children] She being Rachel's servant, the children, that were born of her, were Rachel's children. Bp. Patrick.

14. — mandrakes] Supposed to be what the Syrians call mauz, a fruit, about as big as a small cucumber, that hangs in clusters, sometimes to the number of forty on the same stalk, and is in figure and taste not unlike the Indian fig. Stackhouse.

Before CHRIST about 1749. 19 And Leah conceived again, and bare Jacob the sixth son.

20 And Leah said, God hath endued me with a good dowry; now will my husband dwell with me, because I have born him six sons: and she called his name ||^b Zebulun.

|| That is, dwelling.
b Called, Matth. 4. 13, Zebulun.
about 1748.
|| That is, judgment.
1745.

21 And afterwards she bare a daughter, and called her name || Dinah.

22 ¶ And God remembered Rachel, and God hearkened to her, and opened her womb.

23 And she conceived, and bare a son; and said, God hath taken away my reproach:

|| That is, adding.

24 And she called his name || Joseph; and said, The LORD shall add to me another son.

25 ¶ And it came to pass, when Rachel had born Joseph, that Jacob said unto Laban, Send me away, that I may go unto mine own place, and to my country.

26 Give me my wives and my children, for whom I have served thee, and let me go: for thou knowest my service which I have done thee.

27 And Laban said unto him, I pray thee, if I have found favour in thine eyes, tarry: for I have learned by experience that the LORD hath blessed me for thy sake.

28 And he said, Appoint me thy wages, and I will give it.

29 And he said unto him, Thou knowest how I have served thee, and how thy cattle was with me.

30 For it was little which thou hadst before I came, and it is now † increased unto a multitude; and the LORD hath blessed thee † since my coming: and now when shall I provide for mine own house also? Before CHRIST 1745.

† Heb. broken forth.

31 And he said, What shall I give thee? † Heb. at my foot. And Jacob said, Thou shalt not give me any thing: if thou wilt do this thing for me, I will again feed and keep thy flock:

32 I will pass through all thy flock to day, removing from thence all the speckled and spotted cattle, and all the brown cattle among the sheep, and the spotted and speckled among the goats: and of such shall be my hire.

33 So shall my righteousness answer for me † in time to come, when it shall come for my hire before thy face: every one that is not speckled and spotted among the goats, and brown among the sheep, that shall be counted stolen with me. † Heb. to morrow.

34 And Laban said, Behold, I would it might be according to thy word.

35 And he removed that day the he goats that were ringstraked and spotted, and all the she goats that were speckled and spotted, and every one that had some white in it, and all the brown among the sheep, and gave them into the hand of his sons.

36 And he set three days' journey betwixt himself and Jacob: and Jacob fed the rest of Laban's flocks.

37 ¶ And Jacob took him rods of green poplar, and of the hasel and chesnut tree; and piled white strakes in them, and made the white appear which was in the rods.

38 And he set the rods which he had piled before the flocks in the gutters in the watering troughs when the flocks came to drink, that they should conceive when they came to drink.

21. — Dinah.] No reason is given for this name; but it seems to have the same with that of Rachel's firstborn by Bilhah; for, as if she had now got the better of Rachel, she called this child by a name importing judgment. Bp. Patrick.

23. — taken away my reproach:] "Be fruitful and multiply" was the blessing of God. Barrenness therefore was reckoned peculiarly a reproach in those days. Bp. Wilson.

25. — unto mine own place, &c.] To my father's house in Canaan, where I was born. Bp. Patrick.

26. — thou knowest my service which I have done thee.] How faithful and successful it has been, so that I now well deserve to be dismissed. Dr. Wells.

32. I will pass through all thy flock to day,] The meaning was, that Laban should drive away all the brown or speckled, that were at present in the flock, and give them to his sons to keep three days' journey off: and that Jacob should have only the white sheep and the uniformly-coloured goats of Laban's, to keep; and that he should have for his hire for keeping them, only such of the breed of that flock, as should hereafter be black of the sheep or speckled of the goats. Dr. Wall.

33. So shall my righteousness &c.] This separation being made, it would appear that if he had any spotted, they were not taken from Laban's flock; but given to him by God out of them as a reward of his honest diligence. Bp. Patrick.

In considering this action of Jacob, we must not look to it by itself only, but we must remember, that there was a much superior Agent, even the great Proprietor of the world, by whose direction it was done. God Almighty determined to punish Laban for his injustice, and to reward Jacob for his fidelity. He revealed to Jacob the manner, in which He designed to bless him, and ordered him to do an action, as a token of reliance on Him for the performance of His promise, chap. xxxi. 10. Jacob faithfully observed the orders, that were given him, and the event proved accordingly.

Were it lawful for any private person to make reprisals, the injurious treatment Jacob had received from Laban, both in imposing a wife upon him, and prolonging his servitude without wages, was enough to give him both the provocation and the privilege to do so. God Almighty however was pleased to take the determination of the whole matter into His own hands: and therefore the true conclusion is, what Jacob himself expresses in his speech to his two wives, "Ye know that with all my power I have served your father. And your father hath deceived me; but God suffered him not to hurt me. If he said thus, The speckled shall be thy wages; then all the cattle bare speckled: and if he said thus, The ringstraked shall be thy hire; then bare all the cattle ringstraked. Thus God hath taken away the cattle of your father, and given them to me," chap. xxxi. 6—9. Stackhouse.

Before
CHRIST
1745.

39 And the flocks conceived before the rods, and brought forth cattle ringstraked, speckled, and spotted.

40 And Jacob did separate the lambs, and set the faces of the flocks toward the ringstraked, and all the brown in the flock of Laban; and he put his own flocks by themselves, and put them not unto Laban's cattle.

41 And it came to pass, whensoever the stronger cattle did conceive, that Jacob laid the rods before the eyes of the cattle in the gutters, that they might conceive among the rods.

42 But when the cattle were feeble, he put them not in: so the feebler were Laban's, and the stronger Jacob's.

43 And the man increased exceedingly, and had much cattle, and maidservants, and menservants, and camels, and asses.

CHAP. XXXI.

1 Jacob upon displeasure departeth secretly. 19 Rachel stealeth her father's images. 22 Laban pursueth after him, 26 and complaineth of the wrong. 34 Rachel's policy to hide the images. 36 Jacob's complaint of Laban. 43 The covenant of Laban and Jacob at Galced.

1739.

AND he heard the words of Laban's sons, saying, Jacob hath taken away all that was our father's; and of that which was our father's hath he gotten all this glory.

2 And Jacob beheld the countenance of Laban, and, behold, it was not toward him † as before.

† Heb.
as yesterday and the day
before.

3 And the LORD said unto Jacob, Return unto the land of thy fathers, and to thy kindred; and I will be with thee.

4 And Jacob sent and called Rachel and Leah to the field unto his flock,

5 And said unto them, I see your father's countenance, that it is not toward me as before; but the God of my father hath been with me.

6 And ye know that with all my power I have served your father.

7 And your father hath deceived me,

Chap. XXXI. ver. 7. — changed my wages ten times;] The cattle in Mesopotamia bred twice every year. Supposing therefore that for the first year Laban stood to his bargain, but seeing his son in law thrive exceedingly, altered the form of it in the next, and so continued to do every half year, till the sixth year when Jacob left him, the times of his changing his wages will be exactly ten. There is no occasion however for so exact a calculation, as it is usual to put a certain for an uncertain number. Stackhouse.

19. — the images] In the Hebrew "teraphim:" used as objects of worship, or instruments of divination. It is supposed that Rachel stole them; either because, having still a tincture of superstition, and changed my wages ten times; but God suffered him not to hurt me. Before 1739.

CHRIST

8 If he said thus, The speckled shall be thy wages; then all the cattle bare speckled: and if he said thus, The ringstraked shall be thy hire; then bare all the cattle ringstraked.

9 Thus God hath taken away the cattle of your father, and given them to me.

10 And it came to pass at the time that the cattle conceived, that I lifted up mine eyes, and saw in a dream, and, behold, the *||*rams which leaped upon the cattle were || Or, he goats. ringstraked, speckled, and grised.

11 And the angel of God spake *†*unto me in a dream, saying, Jacob: And I said, Here am I.

12 And he said, Lift up now thine eyes, and see, all the rams which leap upon the cattle are ringstraked, speckled, and grised: for I have seen all that Laban doeth unto thee.

13 I am the God of Beth-el, ^awhere thou ^aChap. 28. 18. anointedst the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto me: now arise, get thee out from this land, and return unto the land of thy kindred.

14 And Rachel and Leah answered and said unto him, Is there yet any portion or inheritance for us in our father's house?

15 Are we not counted of him strangers? for he hath sold us, and hath quite devoured also our money.

16 For all the riches which God hath taken from our father, that is our's, and our children's: now then, whatsoever God hath said unto thee, do.

17 ¶ Then Jacob rose up, and set his sons and his wives upon camels; 1739.

18 And he carried away all his cattle, and all his goods which he had gotten, the cattle of his getting, which he had gotten in Padan-aram, for to go to Isaac his father in the land of Canaan.

19 And Laban went to shear his sheep: and Rachel had stolen the *†*images that † Heb.
teraphim. were her father's.

she feared Laban should inquire of them which way Jacob was gone; or because, having been brought off by Jacob from the false notions and bad customs of her country, she desired to convince her father of his superstition, by letting him see, that his gods (as he called them) could not preserve themselves, much less be of any service to him: or because she intended to give herself some portion of his goods which she thought justly belonged to her, and of which he had deprived her. It is supposed the images were made of gold, or silver, or some other valuable substance. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

The teraphim were probably the pictures or statues of some of Rachel's ancestors, and taken by her for the preservation of their

Before
CHRIST
1739.

† Heb.
the heart of Laban.

20 And Jacob stole away † unawares to Laban the Syrian, in that he told him not that he fled.

21 So he fled with all that he had; and he rose up, and passed over the river, and set his face toward the mount Gilead.

22 And it was told Laban on the third day that Jacob was fled.

23 And he took his brethren with him, and pursued after him seven days' journey; and they overtook him in the mount Gilead.

24 And God came to Laban the Syrian in a dream by night, and said unto him, Take heed that thou speak not to Jacob † either good or bad.

† Heb.
from good to bad.

25 ¶ Then Laban overtook Jacob. Now Jacob had pitched his tent in the mount: and Laban with his brethren pitched in the mount of Gilead.

26 And Laban said to Jacob, What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen away unawares to me, and carried away my daughters, as captives taken with the sword?

† Heb.
hast stolen me.

27 Wherefore didst thou flee away secretly, and † steal away from me; and didst not tell me, that I might have sent thee away with mirth, and with songs, with tabret, and with harp?

28 And hast not suffered me to kiss my sons and my daughters? thou hast now done foolishly in so doing.

29 It is in the power of my hand to do you hurt: but the God of your father spake unto me yesternight, saying, Take

Before
CHRIST
1739.

thou heed that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad.

30 And now, though thou wouldest needs be gone, because thou sore longedst after thy father's house; yet wherefore hast thou stolen my gods?

31 And Jacob answered and said to Laban, Because I was afraid: for I said, Peradventure thou wouldest take by force thy daughters from me.

32 With whomsoever thou findest thy gods, let him not live: before our brethren discern thou what is thine with me, and take it to thee. For Jacob knew not that Rachel had stolen them.

33 And Laban went into Jacob's tent, and into Leah's tent, and into the two maidservants' tents; but he found them not. Then went he out of Leah's tent, and entered into Rachel's tent.

34 Now Rachel had taken the images, and put them in the camel's furniture, and sat upon them. And Laban † searched all the tent, but found them not.

† Heb.
felt.

35 And she said to her father, Let it not displease my lord that I cannot rise up before thee; for the custom of women is upon me. And he searched, but found not the images.

36 ¶ And Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban: and Jacob answered and said to Laban, What is my trespass? what is my sin, that thou hast so hotly pursued after me?

37 Whereas thou hast † searched all my

† Heb.
felt.

memory, when she was about never to see her country and father's house again. Laban had abused them to idolatry. Dr. Lightfoot.

21. — the river,] The Euphrates; frequently called in Scripture the river, by way of eminence. Bp. Patrick.

— the mount Gilead.] So called by anticipation. The heap of stones, which Laban and Jacob raised in memory of their agreement and covenant, was called Gilead, that is, an heap of witnesses: and in afterages gave the name to the whole neighbouring country, which lies on the east of the sea of Galilee: being part of that ridge of mountains, which runs from mount Lebanon southward on the east of the Holy Land, and includes the mountainous region, called in the New Testament Trachonitis. Dr. Wells.

27. — I might have sent thee away with mirth, &c.] When the prefetto of Egypt was preparing for his journey, he complains of his being incommoded by the sonnets of his Eastern friends, who took leave in this manner of their relations and acquaintance before their setting out. These valedictory songs, however, are not to be supposed to be a prelude to all their journeys, but only to those of the most solemn kind. There is therefore an energy in those words of Laban, which ought to be remarked. Why didst not thou tell me, that I might have sent thee away, and taken my leave of my daughters, going such a journey, with all due solemnity, according to the custom of my country? Harmer.

33. And Laban went into Jacob's tent, &c.] Men and women had their distinct tents, apart by themselves, chap. xxiv. 67. Bp. Patrick.
VOL. I.

The Arabs are not so scrupulous as the Turks about their women; and though they have the harem, or women's part of the tent, yet such, as they are acquainted with, come into it; but no strangers ever dare to come into the women's apartment, unless they are introduced. Bp. Pococke.

34. — put them in the camel's furniture,] Rachel probably rode after the Arab mode, upon an hiran, which is a piece of serge, about six ells long, laid upon the saddle, which is of wood, in order to make the sitting more easy. This hiran is made use of as a mattress, when they stop for a night in a place; and it serves them to lodge on, as their wallets serve for cushions or a bolster. It was probably the hiran, part of the camel's furniture, under which she hid her father's teraphim; and on which she sat, according to their customs, in her tent, and therefore unsuspected. Harmer.

In the East, aged and infirm persons travel in double wicker-work seats, placed on the back of a camel, one on each side of the animal; they are formed something like a cradle; and have a back, head, and sides, like a great chair. Under the seat are store hampers, or baskets, containing those personal necessities, which may be needed by the traveller on the journey. Under the saddle of each camel is a coarse carpet, to cover them by night. This coarse carpet is the hiran mentioned by Harmer. It is probable that the camel's furniture, on which Rachel was seated, was the vehicle, above described. Script. illust.

Before
CHRIST
1739.

stuff, what hast thou found of all thy household stuff? set it here before my brethren and thy brethren, that they may judge betwixt us both.

38 This twenty years have I been with thee; thy ewes and thy she goats have not cast their young, and the rams of thy flock have I not eaten.

Exod. 22.
12.

39 That which was torn of beasts I brought not unto thee; I bare the loss of it; of ^b my hand didst thou require it, whether stolen by day, or stolen by night.

40 Thus I was; in the day the drought consumed me, and the frost by night; and my sleep departed from mine eyes.

41 Thus have I been twenty years in thy house; I served thee fourteen years for thy two daughters, and six years for thy cattle: and thou hast changed my wages ten times.

42 Except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the fear of Isaac, had been with me, surely thou hadst sent me away now empty. God hath seen mine affliction and the labour of my hands, and rebuked thee yesternight.

43 ¶ And Laban answered and said unto Jacob, These daughters are my daughters, and these children are my children, and these cattle are my cattle, and all that thou seest is mine: and what can I do this day unto these my daughters, or unto their children which they have born?

44 Now therefore come thou, let us make a covenant, I and thou; and let it be for a witness between me and thee.

45 And Jacob took a stone, and set it up for a pillar.

40. — in the day the drought consumed me, &c.] In Europe the days and nights resemble each other, with respect to the qualities of heat and cold: but it is quite otherwise in the East. In the lower Asia, in particular, the day is always hot: on the contrary, in the height of summer the nights are as cold as at Paris in the month of March. I have travelled in Arabia and in Mesopotamia, the theatre of the adventures of Jacob, both in winter and in summer; and have found the truth of what the Patriarch said, That he was scorched with heat in the day, and stiffened with cold in the night. This contrariety in the qualities of the air in twenty-four hours is extremely great in some places, and not conceivable by those that have not felt it: one would imagine he had passed in a moment from the violent heats of summer to the depth of winter. Thus it hath pleased God to temper the heat of the sun by the coolness of the nights; without which the greatest part of the East would be barren and a desert: the earth could not produce any thing. Sir J. Chardin.

42. — the fear of Isaac,] The God whom Isaac feared, that is, worshipped. Bp. Patrick.

45. — set it up for a pillar.] Or monument. This monument must not be supposed to have been a heap of loose stones, for then it could not have continued long in the same position, nor have given a name to the country around it. It was doubtless a regular and permanent building; probably in the figure of a table, as they used it the next morning to eat and sacrifice upon. Bibl. Bibl.

Before
CHRIST
1739.

46 And Jacob said unto his brethren, Gather stones; and they took stones, and made an heap: and they did eat there upon the heap.

47 And Laban called it || Jegar-sahadutha: but Jacob called it Galeed.

|| That is, the heap of witness.

48 And Laban said, This heap is a witness between me and thee this day. Therefore was the name of it called Galeed;

49 And || Mizpah; for he said, The Lord watch between me and thee, when we are absent one from another.

|| That is,
a beacon, or, watch tower.

50 If thou shalt afflict my daughters, or if thou shalt take other wives beside my daughters, no man is with us; see, God is witness betwixt me and thee.

51 And Laban said to Jacob, Behold this heap, and behold this pillar, which I have cast betwixt me and thee;

52 This heap be witness, and this pillar be witness, that I will not pass over this heap to thee, and that thou shalt not pass over this heap and this pillar unto me, for harm.

53 The God of Abraham, and the God of Nahor, the God of their father, judge betwixt us. And Jacob sware by the fear of his father Isaac.

54 Then Jacob || offered sacrifice upon the mount, and called his brethren to eat bread: and they did eat bread, and tarried all night in the mount.

|| Or, killed
beasts.

55 And early in the morning Laban rose up, and kissed his sons and his daughters, and blessed them: and Laban departed, and returned unto his place.

47. — Laban called it &c.] The one is a Syriack, the other a Hebrew name; both having the same signification. Bp. Patrick.

55. And — Laban rose up, &c.] There is something or other, that restraineth men from doing some evils, to which they have not only a natural proneness, but perhaps withal an actual desire and purpose. When we behold Laban, who had pursued seven days after Jacob in an hostile manner, upon overtaking him, do no more than expostulate with him, and then kiss him, and bless him, and return to his place; and when we behold Esau, who had vowed the death of Jacob, and who went forth to meet him with four hundred men, armed, as it should seem, for his destruction, yet run to meet him on his approach, and embrace him, and fall on his neck, and kiss him: it cannot be imagined that such a stop should be made but by the powerful restraint of some superiour and overruling hand; nor may we doubt, that every such restraint, by whatsoever second and subordinate means it be furthered, is yet the proper work of God, as proceeding from and guided by His almighty and irresistible providence. It was God, that turned Laban's revengeful thoughts into a friendly expostulation: it was the same God, that turned Esau's inveterate malice into a kind brotherly congratulation. He that "hath set bounds to the sea, which, though the waves thereof rage horribly, they cannot pass," hath in His hands, and at His command, "the hearts of all the sons of men, as the rivers of waters;" and can wind and turn them at His pleasure, inclining them which way soever He will. Bp. Sanderson.

Before
CHRIST
1739.

CHAP. XXXII.

1 Jacob's vision at Mahanaim. 3 His message to Esau. 6 He is afraid of Esau's coming. 9 He prayeth for his deliverance. 13 He sendeth a present to Esau. 24 He wrestleth with an angel at Peniel, where he is called Israel. 31 He halteth.

AND Jacob went on his way, and the angels of God met him.

2 And when Jacob saw them, he said, This is God's host : and he called the name of that place || Mahanaim.

|| That is,
two hosts,
or, camps.

3 And Jacob sent messengers before him to Esau his brother unto the land of Seir, the † country of Edom.

† Heb. field.

4 And he commanded them, saying, Thus shall ye speak unto my lord Esau; Thy servant Jacob saith thus, I have sojourned with Laban, and stayed there until now :

5 And I have oxen, and asses, flocks, and menservants, and womenservants : and I have sent to tell my lord, that I may find grace in thy sight.

6 ¶ And the messengers returned to Jacob, saying, We came to thy brother Esau, and also he cometh to meet thee, and four hundred men with him.

7 Then Jacob was greatly afraid and distressed : and he divided the people that was with him, and the flocks, and herds, and the camels, into two bands;

8 And said, If Esau come to the one company, and smite it, then the other company which is left shall escape.

^a Chap. 31.
13.

9 ¶ And Jacob said, O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac, the LORD which saidst unto me, ^a Return unto thy country, and to thy kindred, and I will deal well with thee:

† Heb.
I am less than all,
&c.

10 † I am not worthy of the least of all the mercies, and of all the truth, which thou hast shewed unto thy servant; for with my staff I passed over this Jordan; and now I am become two bands.

Chap. XXXII. ver. 2. — Mahanaim.] That is, two hosts, or camps, the angels probably appearing in two companies: or else it may have respect to the host or camp of Jacob, and the other host of the angels. Bp. Kidder.

3. — unto the land of Seir,] Which Esau, it seems, had conquered in Jacob's absence, according to the blessing of his father, "by thy sword shalt thou live." Bp. Patrick.

4. — my lord Esau;] By the Divine direction Jacob was constituted Esau's lord; nor did he forego that prerogative by calling himself Esau's servant. Lord and servant were, as they are now, certain modes of civility. Jacob therefore might address Esau in this manner, without derogating from his own spiritual preeminence: and confining himself to the bounds of nature, might reverence him as his elder brother. Stackhouse.

9. And Jacob said, O God &c.] This should be the practice of Christians, to go immediately to God in all their necessities and 1739.

Before
CHRIST

11 Deliver me, I pray thee, from the hand of my brother, from the hand of Esau: for I fear him, lest he will come and smite me, and the mother † with the children.

† Heb.
upon.

12 And thou saidst, I will surely do thee good, and make thy seed as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude.

13 ¶ And he lodged there that same night; and took of that which came to his hand a present for Esau his brother;

14 Two hundred she goats, and twenty he goats, two hundred ewes, and twenty rams, 15 Thirty milch camels with their colts, forty kine, and ten bulls, twenty she asses, and ten foles.

16 And he delivered them into the hand of his servants, every drove by themselves; and said unto his servants, Pass over before me, and put a space betwixt drove and drove.

17 And he commanded the foremost, saying, When Esau my brother meeteth thee, and asketh thee, saying, Whose art thou? and whither goest thou? and whose are these before thee?

18 Then thou shalt say, They be thy servant Jacob's; it is a present sent unto my lord Esau: and, behold, also he is behind us.

19 And so commanded he the second, and the third, and all that followed the droves, saying, On this manner shall ye speak unto Esau, when ye find him.

20 And say ye moreover, Behold, thy servant Jacob is behind us. For he said, I will appease him with the present that goeth before me, and afterward I will see his face; peradventure he will accept † of me.

† Heb.
my fucs.

21 So went the present over before him : and himself lodged that night in the company.

dangers: since He will as surely help them, as He did Jacob. Bp. Wilson.

10. — with my staff I passed over &c.] I had nothing but this staff in my hand, when I left my father's house: an humble and very affecting expression of God's mercy to him; and a lesson to the rich, to put them in mind that it is God alone, to whom they stand obliged for all their wealth and riches. Bp. Wilson.

13. — and took of that which came to his hand] What he could first light upon, without any choice: or, it may be, "that which was in his hand;" what he had it in his power to offer; namely, the cattle, which are afterwards mentioned; though he had no jewels or precious raiment. Bp. Patrick.

15. — milch camels] Which had lately foaled. Bochart observes out of Aristotle, Pliny, and many other authors, that nothing was more delicious in those countries than camels' milk. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1739.

22 And he rose up that night, and took his two wives, and his two womenservants, and his eleven sons, and passed over the ford Jabbok.

† Heb. caused to pass.

23 And he took them, and † sent them over the brook, and sent over that he had.

24 ¶ And Jacob was left alone; and there wrestled a man with him until the † breaking of the day.

† Heb.
ascending of the morning.

25 And when he saw that he prevailed not against him, he touched the hollow of his thigh; and the hollow of Jacob's thigh was out of joint, as he wrestled with him.

† Hos. 12.
4.

26 And he said, Let me go, for the day breaketh. And he said, ^b I will not let thee go, except thou bless me.

27 And he said unto him, What is thy name? And he said, Jacob.

† Chap. 35.
10.

28 And he said, ^c Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel: for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed.

29 And Jacob asked him, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, thy name. And he said, Wherefore is it that thou dost ask after my name? And he blessed him there.

30 And Jacob called the name of the

22. — the ford Jabbok.] A small river, which is by all agreed to flow from the adjacent mountains of Gilead; but some represent it as running into the sea of Galilee, others into the river Jordan, below or south of that sea. Dr. Wells.

24. And Jacob was left alone.] He stayed alone, in all probability, that he might commend himself and his family to God by earnest prayer. Bp. Patrick.

— and there wrestled a man with him] That is, an angel in the appearance of a man; called also God. Comp. ver. 28, 30, with Hos. xii. 3, 4. A fair representation of Christ, both God and Man, and “the angel of the covenant,” Mal. iii. 1. Bp. Kidder.

25. And when he saw that he prevailed not] Jacob, hearing of his brother Esau's power, and dreading his resentment, addresses himself, for protection in this distress, to the God of his fathers, with all humility and confidence. God hears his prayer, and is pleased to inform him of the happy issue of the adventure by a significant action: the following night he has a struggle with an angel, with whom he is suffered to make his part so good, that from thence he collected God had granted his petition. This information by action, concerning only the individual concerned in it, who little needed to be told the meaning of a mode of instruction, at that time in vulgar use, hath now an obscurity, which the Scripture-relations of the same mode of information to the Prophets are free from, by reason of their being given for the use of the people, to whom they were explained. Bp. Warburton.

It was a common custom among Eastern nations, to convey the knowledge of things by actions, as well as words. To this purpose we find Zedekiah “making him horns of iron,” thereby to portend victory to Ahab, 1 Kings xxii. 11; and Elisha ordering Joash to “strike the ground with arrows,” thence to presignify his triumph over the Syrians, 2 Kings xiii. 18. Nay, even Hannibal himself, as Livy tells us, perceiving that his soldiers were not to be encouraged with words, made a publick shew for them, not so much to entertain their sight, as to give them an image and representation of their own condition. In like manner, God made use of this expedient to cure Jacob of his dejection. Stackhouse.

place || Peniel: for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved. Before 1739.
CHRIST

31 And as he passed over Penuel the sun rose upon him, and he halted upon his thigh. || That is, the face of God.

32 Therefore the children of Israel eat not of the sinew which shrank, which is upon the hollow of the thigh, unto this day: because he touched the hollow of Jacob's thigh in the sinew that shrank.

CHAP. XXXIII.

1 The kindness of Jacob and Esau at their meeting. 17 Jacob cometh to Succoth. 18 At Shalem he buyeth a field, and buildeth an altar called El-elohe-Israel.

AND Jacob lifted up his eyes, and looked, and, behold, Esau came, and with him four hundred men. And he divided the children unto Leah, and unto Rachel, and unto the two handmaids.

2 And he put the handmaids and their children foremost, and Leah and her children after, and Rachel and Joseph hindermost.

3 And he passed over before them, and bowed himself to the ground seven times, until he came near to his brother.

4 And Esau ran to meet him, and em-

— the hollow of his thigh;] The upper part of his thigh, or hip-bone where the joint is. Bp. Kidder.

— out of joint,] Though Jacob prevailed, yet he met with difficulty and pain to keep him from vaunting his own strength, and being “exalted above measure,” 2 Cor. xii. 7. Bp. Kidder. This bodily affliction was left to humble him, and at the same time to testify, that it was not a mere man with whom he strove. Bp. Hall.

28. — Thy name shall be called &c.] Not only Jacob; or not so much Jacob as Israel: which name abolished the other in his posterity, who were called Israelites, but never by any name derived from Jacob. Bp. Patrick.

— Israel;] That is, a prince with God. Bp. Patrick. The latter part of the verse should be thus translated: “for thou hast been a prevailer with God; and with men thou shalt also powerfully prevail.” This is the true verbal translation of the Hebrew words, and is agreeable to the Chaldee Paraphrase, the Septuagint, and the Vulgate. Shuckford.

— and hast prevailed.] St. Jerome understands the “wrestling” of Jacob as figurative of spiritual conflicts, which we are to maintain. Dr. Gray.

30. — my life is preserved.] He either alludes to an opinion, that if men saw one of the heavenly ministers, they should die presently: or the words may refer to the principal scope of the combat, which was to confirm Jacob against the fear of Esau. Bp. Patrick.

32. Therefore the children of Israel eat not of the sinew which shrank.] That sinew, or tendon, which fastens the hip-bone in its socket: comprehending the flesh of the muscle connected with it. He that ate of this was to be beaten, as the Jewish masters tell us. Bp. Patrick.

The Jews take great care to cut away the sinew of the thigh of such animals as they intend to eat. And in several places of Germany and Italy they will not eat any of the hinder quarter, because great nicety is required in taking away this sinew as it should be done, and few know how to do it exactly. Calmet.

Before
CHRIST
1739.

braced him, and fell on his neck, and kissed him: and they wept.

† Heb.
to thee.

5 And he lifted up his eyes, and saw the women and the children; and said, Who are those † with thee? And he said, The children which God hath graciously given thy servant.

6 Then the handmaidens came near, they and their children, and they bowed themselves.

7 And Leah also with her children came near, and bowed themselves: and after came Joseph near and Rachel, and they bowed themselves.

† Heb.
What is all this bund to thee?

8 And he said, † What meanest thou by all this drove which I met? And he said, These are to find grace in the sight of my lord.

† Heb. be that to thee that is thine.

9 And Esau said, I have enough, my brother; † keep that thou hast unto thyself.

10 And Jacob said, Nay, I pray thee, if now I have found grace in thy sight, then receive my present at my hand: for therefore I have seen thy face, as though I had seen the face of God, and thou wast pleased with me.

11 Take, I pray thee, my blessing that is brought to thee; because God hath dealt graciously with me, and because I have enough. And he urged him, and he took it.

12 And he said, Let us take our journey, and let us go, and I will go before thee.

13 And he said unto him, My lord knoweth that the children are tender, and the flocks and herds with young are with me: and if men should overdrive them one day, all the flock will die.

Before
CHRIST
1739.

14 Let my lord, I pray thee, pass over before his servant: and I will lead on softly, according † as the cattle that goeth before me and the children be able to endure, until I come unto my lord unto Seir.

† Heb.
according to the foot of the work,
&c.

15 And Esau said, Let me now † leave with thee some of the folk that are with me. And he said, † What needeth it? let me find grace in the sight of my lord.

and according to the foot of the children.

† Heb.
set, or, place.
† Heb.
Wherefore
is this?

16 ¶ So Esau returned that day on his way unto Seir.

17 And Jacob journeyed to Succoth, and built him an house, and made booths for his cattle: therefore the name of the place is called || Succoth.

|| That is,
booths.

18 ¶ And Jacob came to Shalem a city of || Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, when he came from Padan-aram; and pitched his tent before the city.

|| Called,
Acts 7. 16,
Sychem.

19 And he bought a parcel of a field, where he had spread his tent, at the hand of the children || of Hamor, Shechem's father, for an hundred || pieces of money.

|| Called,
Acts 7. 16,
Emmor.
|| Or,
lamps.

20 And he erected there an altar, and called it || El-elohe-Israel.

|| That is,
God the God of Israel.

CHAP. XXXIV.

1 Dinah is ravished by Shechem. 4 He sueth to marry her. 13 The sons of Jacob offer the condition of cir-

Chap. XXXIII. ver. 10. — as though I had seen the face of God,] He regarded Esau's kind reception of him as a token of the Divine favour. Bp. Patrick.

11. — my blessing] That is, my present: as we expound it in the margin of 1 Sam. xxv. 27. Bp. Patrick.

15. — let me find grace in the sight of my lord.] In this also be so kind as to gratify my desires. Bp. Patrick.

16. — Esau returned that day] All things considered, Esau was not that very bad man, which some would make him. His generous and open temper appears in his affectionate deportment towards his brother, and his speedy and utter oblivion of the treatment he had received from him. And though St. Paul calls him a "profane person," and says that he was "hated by God;" yet all that he means by the word hated is no more than that God did not shew him the same mark of distinction which He did Jacob: for the Apostle's purpose is to shew, that God had, all along, bestowed the favours, which led to the Messiah, on whom He pleased; on Abraham, not on Lot; on Jacob, not on Esau; as at the time he wrote, the Gentiles were made the people of God, and not the Jews. And he calls him profane for this reason; not because he was more wicked than other men of his age; but because he seems to have been not so mindful of the spiritual promises made to his family, as Jacob was; and consequently was not so fit to be the heir of the mercies peculiar to it. Shuckford, Stackhouse.

17. And Jacob journeyed to Succoth,] Esau invited Jacob to Seir, and offered to conduct him thither; but Jacob had no design to accept the invitation, and yet was afraid directly to refuse it. Shuckford.

— Succoth.] So the place was afterwards called: it is situated not far from the Jordan, to the east. Dr. Wells.

19. — an hundred pieces of money.] In the margin it is "lambs." It was probably some sort of coin, which had a lamb stamped upon it, and was originally of the real value of a lamb: and may have been called by that name, as we used to call a certain coin an angel from the stamp which it bore. Stackhouse, Bp. Wilson. See the note on Josh. xxiv. 32.

20. And he erected there an altar,] At the same place, where Abraham had built his first altar, chap. xii. 7. Abraham dedicated his "unto the Lord, who appeared unto him;" Jacob his, unto "God the God of Israel," which was the new name that God had given him. The place was at or near Shechem: so that the woman of Samaria might well say as she did to our Saviour, that "their fathers worshipped God in that mount." Shechem seems to have been one of the oldest cities in all Canaan. Dr. Wall. The first thing that good men do, is to provide for the honour and service of God. Bp. Wilson.

Chap. XXXIV. The fatal history of Dinah is recorded to convince future ages of this truth; that the sins of impurity are so hateful to God, that they seldom go unpunished in this world; if they do, worse will be their punishment in the next. Bp. Wilson.

Before
CHRIST
about 1732.

cumcision to the Shechemites. 20 Hamor and Shechem persuade them to accept it. 25 The sons of Jacob upon that advantage slay them, 27 and spoil their city. 30 Jacob reproveth Simeon and Levi.

AND Dinah the daughter of Leah, which she bare unto Jacob, went out to see the daughters of the land.

† Heb. humbled her.

2 And when Shechem the son of Hamor the Hivite, prince of the country, saw her, he took her, and lay with her, and † defiled her.

† Heb.
in her heart.

3 And his soul clave unto Dinah the daughter of Jacob, and he loved the damsel, and spake † kindly unto the damsel.

4 And Shechem spake unto his father Hamor, saying, Get me this damsel to wife.

5 And Jacob heard that he had defiled Dinah his daughter: now his sons were with his cattle in the field: and Jacob held his peace until they were come.

6 ¶ And Hamor the father of Shechem went out unto Jacob to commune with him.

7 And the sons of Jacob came out of the field when they heard it: and the men were grieved, and they were very wroth, because he had wrought folly in Israel in lying with Jacob's daughter; which thing ought not to be done.

8 And Hamor communed with them, saying, The soul of my son Shechem longeth for your daughter: I pray you give her him to wife.

9 And make ye marriages with us, and give your daughters unto us, and take our daughters unto you.

10 And ye shall dwell with us: and the land shall be before you; dwell and trade ye therein, and get you possessions therein.

11 And Shechem said unto her father and unto her brethren, Let me find grace in your eyes, and what ye shall say unto me I will give.

12 Ask me never so much dowry and gift, and I will give according as ye shall say unto me: but give me the damsel to wife.

13 And the sons of Jacob answered

Before
CHRIST
about 1732.

Shechem and Hamor his father deceitfully, and said, because he had defiled Dinah their sister:

14 And they said unto them, We cannot do this thing, to give our sister to one that is uncircumcised; for that were a reproach unto us:

15 But in this will we consent unto you: If ye will be as we be, that every male of you be circumcised;

16 Then will we give our daughters unto you, and we will take your daughters to us, and we will dwell with you, and we will become one people.

17 But if ye will not hearken unto us, to be circumcised; then will we take our daughter, and we will be gone.

18 And their words pleased Hamor, and Shechem Hamor's son.

19 And the young man deferred not to do the thing, because he had delight in Jacob's daughter: and he was more honourable than all the house of his father.

20 ¶ And Hamor and Shechem his son came unto the gate of their city, and communed with the men of their city, saying, 21 These men are peaceable with us; therefore let them dwell in the land, and trade therein; for the land, behold, it is large enough for them; let us take their daughters to us for wives, and let us give them our daughters.

22 Only herein will the men consent unto us for to dwell with us, to be one people, if every male among us be circumcised, as they are circumcised.

23 Shall not their cattle and their substance and every beast of their's be our's? only let us consent unto them, and they will dwell with us.

24 And unto Hamor and unto Shechem his son hearkened all that went out of the gate of his city; and every male was circumcised, all that went out of the gate of his city.

25 ¶ And it came to pass on the third day, when they were sore, that two of the

Ver. 1. — Dinah — went out to see &c.] When this happened, the Scripture does not inform us. From the exploit of her brothers, she was probably fifteen or sixteen years of age. The occasion of the calamity, Josephus tells us, was a great festival, held at Shechem, which she ventured to go to, desirous of seeing the fine spectacles and fashions of the place. Stackhouse.

7. — wrought folly in Israel] Or, against Israel. Committed a wickedness, highly to the disgrace and injury of Israel's family. Bp. Patrick.

12. Ask me never so much dowry] This shews more fully, that the custom was (as noted before, chap. xxix. 18,) for men to give money for their wives. But there was a greater reason for a dowry now, and that a large one, to make compensation for the wrong he had done. For there was a natural equity in those laws of Moses, Exod. xxii. 16, and Dent. xxii. 28, 29, by which men were bound to make satisfaction to the families, if either by enticement or violence they had abused their daughters. Bp. Patrick. The same custom of men giving dowries for their wives prevails at this time among the Turks and Persians. Theveaut.

14. — We cannot] Or, we ought not; it is not lawful. Bp. Wilson. Here is a specious pretence of religion, with design to do an injury. Bp. Kidder.

25. — on the third day, &c.] Physicians have observed, that this was the time when fevers usually attended circumcision,

Before
CHRIST
about 1732.
^a Chap. 49.
6.

sons of Jacob, Simeon and Levi, Dinah's brethren, took each man his sword, and came upon the city boldly, and ^a slew all the males.

† Heb.
mouth.

26 And they slew Hamor and Shechem his son with the † edge of the sword, and took Dinah out of Shechem's house, and went out.

27 The sons of Jacob came upon the slain, and spoiled the city, because they had defiled their sister.

28 They took their sheep, and their oxen, and their asses, and that which was in the city, and that which was in the field,

29 And all their wealth, and all their little ones, and their wives took they captive, and spoiled even all that was in the house.

30 And Jacob said to Simeon and Levi, Ye have troubled me to make me to stink among the inhabitants of the land, among the Canaanites and the Perizzites: and I being few in number, they shall gather themselves together against me, and slay me; and I shall be destroyed, I and my house.

31 And they said, Should he deal with our sister as with an harlot?

occasioned by the inflammation of the wound, which was generally then most painful. Stackhouse.

— Simeon and Levi,] These are mentioned, because, being own brothers to Dinah both by father and mother, and consequently more concerned to resent the injury done to her honour, they were the chief contrivers and conductors of it: but it is to be supposed, that their domesticks were engaged in the execution of it. Nothing is more known and common in history, than to ascribe an action, especially in military affairs, to the chief commanders in it, however many under-agents they may employ. Stackhouse.

— slew all the males.] Though this was a base action, yet God permitted it, to punish the sin of Shechem, and the connivance of his father. Bp. Wilson.

The women and children were always spared in the most deadly wars. As when the Midianites were killed, Numb. xxxi. 7, 9; and the Edomites, 1 Kings xi. 16. And so Moses commanded they should do even with the Canaanites, Deut. xx. 13, 14. Bp. Patrick.

26. And they slew Hamor and Shechem his son] To execute rigour upon a submissive offender, is more merciless than just: or if the punishment had been both just and proportionable from another, yet from them, who had vowed peace and affinity, it was shamefully unjust. To disappoint the trust of another, and to neglect our own promise and fidelity for private purposes, adds faithlessness unto our cruelty. That they were impotent, was caused by their circumcision: what impiety was this! instead of honouring a holy sign, to take an advantage by it! Bp. Hall.

27. — because they had defiled] Their prince had defiled her; and the people, it seems, did not disapprove the fact. It is therefore imputed to them all, as the cause of their slaughter. Bp. Patrick.

30. — Ye have troubled me to make me to stink &c.] That is, to render me odious to all the country, as a murderer, a robber, and a breaker of my faith, as if I had been privy to your craft and cruelty. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

CHAP. XXXV.

Before
CHRIST
about 1732.

1 God sendeth Jacob to Beth-el. 2 He purgeth his house of idols. 6 He buildeth an altar at Beth-el. 8 Deborah dieth at Allon-bachuth. 9 God blesseth Jacob at Beth-el. 16 Rachel travaileth of Benjamin, and dieth in the way to Edar. 22 Reuben lieth with Bilhah. 23 The sons of Jacob. 27 Jacob cometh to Isaac at Hebron. 28 The age, death, and burial of Isaac.

AND God said unto Jacob, Arise, go up to Beth-el, and dwell there: and make there an altar unto God, that appeared unto thee ^a when thou fleddest from the face of Esau thy brother. ^a Chap. 27. 43.

2 Then Jacob said unto his household, and to all that were with him, Put away the strange gods that are among you, and be clean, and change your garments:

3 And let us arise, and go up to Beth-el; and I will make there an altar unto God, who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me in the way which I went.

4 And they gave unto Jacob all the strange gods which were in their hand, and all their earrings which were in their ears; and Jacob hid them under the oak which was by Shechem.

The abhorrence, which Jacob expressed of the cruelty of his sons, the sharpness of the reproaches uttered against them, the remembrance of it, even to the end of his life, and the care he took to recapitulate it upon his death-bed, give us a much juster idea of it than the writings of some Rabbins, who have undertaken not only to excuse, but even to commend it. Stackhouse.

31. — Should he deal with our sister &c.] What great evils arise from small beginnings! The idle curiosity of Dinah hath bred all this mischief: ravishment follows upon her wandering; upon her ravishment, murder; upon the murder, spoil: it is holy and safe, to be jealous of the first occasions of evil, either done or suffered. Bp. Hall.

Chap. XXXV. ver. 2. — Put away the strange gods that are among you,] Hence it is supposed, that some of Jacob's family were addicted to idolatry. But "the strange gods," or "the gods of the stranger," as the words may be rendered, probably mean the gods of the Shechemites, whom Jacob's sons had taken captive, and brought into his family. These were to be put away, in order to preserve in his family that purity of worship, which he designed to keep up among them. Shuckford.

— be clean, and change your garments:] The manner in which Jacob required his domesticks to purify themselves, was by washing their bodies, and putting on fresh apparel. This was a custom among other nations, as well as the Jews: and may be regarded as an external profession of the purity of heart and mind, with which persons should approach God in solemn and religious offices. Bp. Patrick.

4. — and all their earrings which were in their ears;] Besides the earrings, which were for ornament, there were others worn in the nature of amulets or charms, or for some other superstitious uses; having the effigies of some false god, or some symbolical notes, in which was fancied to be a power to preserve them from evil. Bp. Patrick.

I have seen some Eastern earrings with figures upon them, and strange characters, which, I believe, may be talismans or charms,

Before
CHRIST
about 1792.

5 And they journeyed: and the terror of God was upon the cities that were round about them, and they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob.

6 ¶ So Jacob came to Luz, which is in the land of Canaan, that is, Beth-el, he and all the people that were with him.

^b Chap. 28.
19.
¶ That is,
the God of Beth-el.

7 And he built there an altar, and ^b called the place || El-beth-el: because there God appeared unto him, when he fled from the face of his brother.

8 But Deborah Rebekah's nurse died, and she was buried beneath Beth-el under an oak: and the name of it was called || Allon-bachuth.

¶ That is,
the oak of weeping.

9 ¶ And God appeared unto Jacob again, when he came out of Padan-aram, and blessed him.

10 And God said unto him, Thy name is Jacob: thy name shall not be called any more Jacob, ^c but Israel shall be thy name: and he called his name Israel.

^c Chap. 32.
28.

11 And God said unto him, I am God Almighty: be fruitful and multiply; a nation and a company of nations shall be of thee, and kings shall come out of thy loins;

12 And the land which I gave Abraham and Isaac, to thee I will give it, and to thy seed after thee will I give the land.

13 And God went up from him in the place where he talked with him.

14 And Jacob set up a pillar in the place where he talked with him, even a pillar of stone: and he poured a drink offering thereon, and he poured oil thereon.

15 And Jacob called the name of the place where God spake with him, Beth-el.

† Heb.
a little piece of ground.

16 ¶ And they journeyed from Beth-el; and there was but † a little way to come to Ephrath: and Rachel travailed, and she had hard labour.

Before
CHRIST
1729.

17 And it came to pass, when she was in hard labour, that the midwife said unto her, Fear not; thou shalt have this son also.

18 And it came to pass, as her soul was in departing, (for she died) that she called his name || Ben-oni: but his father called him || Benjamin.

about 1729.
¶ That is,
the son of my sorrow.
¶ That is,
the son of the right hand.

19 And Rachel died, and was buried in the way to Ephrath, which is Beth-lehem.

20 And Jacob set a pillar upon her grave: that is the pillar of Rachel's grave unto this day.

21 ¶ And Israel journeyed, and spread his tent beyond the tower of Edar.

22 And it came to pass, when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and ^d lay with Bilhah his father's concubine: and Israel heard it. Now the sons of Jacob were twelve:

^d Chap. 49.
4.

23 The sons of Leah; Reuben, Jacob's firstborn, and Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Zebulun:

24 The sons of Rachel; Joseph, and Benjamin:

25 And the sons of Bilhah, Rachel's handmaid; Dan, and Naphtali:

26 And the sons of Zilpah, Leah's handmaid; Gad, and Asher: these are the sons of Jacob, which were born to him in Padan-aram.

27 ¶ And Jacob came unto Isaac his father unto Mamre, unto the city of Arbah, which is Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac sojourned.

28 And the days of Isaac were an hundred and fourscore years.

or perhaps nothing but the amusement of old women. The Indians say they are preservatives against enchantment. Perhaps the earrings of Jacob's family were of this kind. Sir J. Chardin.

8. — Deborah Rebekah's nurse died,] She attended Rebekah on her marriage with Isaac. Jacob had probably been at his father's house before this time; and Rebekah being dead, Deborah was desirous of living with his wives, who were her countrywomen. Bp. Patrick.

Mons^r. Savary, speaking of the Egyptian women, says, "When circumstances compel them to have recourse to a nurse, she is not looked upon as a stranger. She becomes part of the family, and passes the rest of her life in the midst of the children she has suckled. She is honoured and cherished like a second mother." So this Syrian nurse continued until her death with Rebekah's family, and was buried with great solemnity of mourning: since the oak, under which she was buried, was from that time distinguished by the name of the oak of weeping. Harmer.

16. — Ephrath:] Which is Beth-lehem, ver. 19, called Beth-lehem Ephratah, Mic. v. 2, where Christ was born. Bp. Kidder.

20. And Jacob set a pillar upon her grave:] This monument of Rachel's is the first that we read of in Scripture. It was certainly standing, when Moses wrote, as appears from this verse; and mention is made of it, just before Saul was anointed king, 1 Sam. x. 2. The monument, now shewn for it, is a modern and Turkish structure; for though the work is rude enough, and without any ornament, yet the whole is as entire, as if it had been only just made. Maunderell.

22. — Reuben went] Moses mentions this, that he may give us a true account, why the right of inheritance, which was originally in Reuben, was transferred to Joseph; and the kingdom, or right of dominion, which was forfeited by his transgression, was conferred on the tribe of Judah: and that he might furnish his countrymen with matter for humiliation, by giving them to understand, from this and the like instances, that it was not their merit, but purely God's mercy, that advanced them to the honour of being His peculiar people. Stackhouse.

26. — born to him in Padan-aram.] All except Benjamin.

27. — Jacob came unto Isaac his father] To dwell with him, and to be the comfort of his old age. Bp. Patrick.

Isaac had the comfort of seeing the promise of God, in this instance of earthly prosperity, made good to himself and to Abraham; as a sure pledge that the spiritual promises, that "in their

^{Before}
CHRIST
1716.
^c Chap. 25.
^{8.} 29 And Isaac gave up the ghost, and died, and ^c was gathered unto his people, being old and full of days: and his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

CHAP. XXXVI.

¹ Esau's three wives. ⁶ His removing to mount Seir. ⁹ His sons. ¹⁵ The dukes which descended of his sons. ²⁰ The sons and dukes of Seir. ²⁴ Anah findeth mules. ³¹ The kings of Edom. ⁴⁰ The dukes that descended of Esau.

^{about 1796.} NOW these are the generations of Esau, who is Edom.

² Esau took his wives of the daughters of Canaan; Adah the daughter of Elon the Hittite, and Aholibamah the daughter of Anah the daughter of Zibeon the Hivite;

^{about 1760.} ³ And Bashemath Ishmael's daughter, sister of Nebajoth.

^a 1 Chron. 1. 35. ⁴ And ^a Adah bare to Esau Eliphaz; and Bashemath bare Reuel;

⁵ And Aholibamah bare Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah: these are the sons of Esau, which were born unto him in the land of Canaan.

^{about 1740.} [†] Heb. souls. ⁶ And Esau took his wives, and his sons, and his daughters, and all the [†] persons of his house, and his cattle, and all his beasts, and all his substance, which he had got in the land of Canaan; and went into the country from the face of his brother Jacob.

⁷ For their riches were more than that they might dwell together; and the land wherein they were strangers could not bear them because of their cattle.

^b Josh. 24. 4. ⁸ Thus dwelt Esau in ^b mount Seir: Esau is Edom.

[†] Heb. Edom. ⁹ ¶ And these are the generations of Esau the father of [†] the Edomites in mount Seir:

^c 1 Chron. 1. 35, &c. ¹⁰ These are the names of Esau's sons; ^c Eliphaz the son of Adah the wife of Esau, Reuel the son of Bashemath the wife of Esau.

¹¹ And the sons of Eliphaz were Teman, Omar, Zepho, and Gatam, and Kenaz.

¹² And Timna was concubine to Eliphaz Esau's son; and she bare to Eliphaz Amalek: these were the sons of Adah Esau's wife.

^{Before}
CHRIST
about 1740. ¹³ And these are the sons of Reuel; Nahath, and Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah: these were the sons of Bashemath Esau's wife.

¹⁴ ¶ And these were the sons of Aholibamah, the daughter of Anah the daughter of Zibeon, Esau's wife: and she bare to Esau Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah.

¹⁵ ¶ These were dukes of the sons of Esau: the sons of Eliphaz the firstborn son of Esau; duke Teman, duke Omar, duke Zepho, duke Kenaz, ¹⁶ Duke Korah, duke Gatam, and duke Amalek: these are the dukes that came of Eliphaz in the land of Edom; these were the sons of Adah.

¹⁷ ¶ And these are the sons of Reuel Esau's son; duke Nahath, duke Zerah, duke Shammah, duke Mizzah: these are the dukes that came of Reuel in the land of Edom; these are the sons of Bashemath Esau's wife.

¹⁸ ¶ And these are the sons of Aholibamah Esau's wife; duke Jeush, duke Jaalam, duke Korah: these were the dukes that came of Aholibamah the daughter of Anah, Esau's wife.

¹⁹ These are the sons of Esau, who is Edom, and these are their dukes.

²⁰ ¶ ^d These are the sons of Seir the Horite, who inhabited the land; Lotan, and Shobal, and Zibeon, and Anah, ^{about 1840.}
^d 1 Chron. 1. 38.

²¹ And Dishon, and Ezer, and Dishan: these are the dukes of the Horites, the children of Seir in the land of Edom.

²² And the children of Lotan were Hori and Hemam; and Lotan's sister was Timna.

²³ And the children of Shobal were these; Alvan, and Manahath, and Ebal, Shepho, and Onam.

²⁴ And these are the children of Zibeon; both Ajah, and Anah: this was that Anah that found the mules in the wilderness, as he fed the asses of Zibeon his father.

²⁵ And the children of Anah were these; Dishon, and Aholibamah the daughter of Anah.

²⁶ And these are the children of Dishon; Hemdan, and Eshban, and Ithran, and Cheran.

Seed all the nations of the earth should be blessed," would be made good in God's due time. Bp. Wilson.

29. — his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.] As Isaac and Ishmael had buried Abraham. Hence it appears the friendship between Esau and Jacob continued after their interview on Jacob's return. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXXVI. ver. 2. Esau took his wives] They had probably several names as well as he. Bp. Kidder. See chap. xxvi. 34.

15. These were dukes] Heads, chiefs, or rulers of families. Bp. Patrick.

24. — that found the mules in the wilderness,] Or, that discovered springs of warm water, or encountered the Emim, a gigantic people, whom he overthrew. Calmet.

Before
CHRIST
about 1780.

27 The children of Ezer are these; Bilhan, and Zaavan, and Akan.

28 The children of Dishan are these; Uz, and Aran.

29 These are the dukes that came of the Horites; duke Lotan, duke Shobal, duke Zibeon, duke Anah, 30 Duke Dishon, duke Ezer, duke Dishan: these are the dukes that came of Hori, among their dukes in the land of Seir.

31 ¶ And these are the kings that reigned in the land of Edom, before there reigned any king over the children of Israel.

about 1676. 32 And Bela the son of Beor reigned in Edom: and the name of his city was Dinhabah.

33 And Bela died, and Jobab the son of Zerah of Bozrah reigned in his stead.

34 And Jobab died, and Husham of the land of Temani reigned in his stead.

35 And Husham died, and Hadad the son of Bedad, who smote Midian in the field of Moab, reigned in his stead: and the name of his city was Avith.

36 And Hadad died, and Samlah of Masrekah reigned in his stead.

37 And Samlah died, and Saul of Rehoboth by the river reigned in his stead.

38 And Saul died, and Baal-hanan the son of Achbor reigned in his stead.

39 And Baal-hanan the son of Achbor died, and Hadar reigned in his stead: and the name of his city was Pau; and his

31. — before there reigned any king over the children of Israel.] Moses having recently mentioned the promise of God to Jacob, that “kings should come out of his loins,” observes it as remarkable, that Esau’s posterity should have so many kings, and yet there was no king in Israel when he wrote this book. Moses might have written this by inspiration; or he might well write it without a spirit of prophecy; and we might affirm, if necessary, that his meaning is, “All these were kings in Edom, before his own time,” who was, in a certain sense, the first king in Israel, Dent. xxxiii. 5; for he truly exercised royal authority over them, as Selden observes. Bp. Patrick. See the note on Deut. xxxiii. 5.

Chap. XXXVII. The history of Joseph sets before our eyes such a scene of the wonders of Providence, as will confirm our faith in God. His brethren conspire to kill him: God sends a company of merchants at that very moment to buy him. A thousand others might have purchased him in the land of Egypt: but God had trials for him to pass through, and work for him to do, in the palace of the king. Thither he is to be sold.

In the next place we find him run the hazard of his very life, rather than do what he knew would displease God: and God rewarded him for it, beyond what Potiphar could do for him. The very dreams of Pharaoh and his servants are all directed by God for the advancement of Joseph: nay, the very fate of the whole kingdom, both the seven years plenty, and seven years famine, were ordained, in order to bring Joseph’s father and his family into Egypt, according to former prophecies.

We may observe, in Joseph’s brethren, how God by afflictions brings men to a sense of their sins: insomuch as that Judah himwife’s name was Mehetabel, the daughter of Matred, the daughter of Mezahab.

40 And these are the names of the dukes that came of Esau, according to their families, after their places, by their names; duke Timnah, duke Alvah, duke Jetheth,

41 Duke Aholibamah, duke Elah, duke Pinon,

42 Duke Kenaz, duke Teman, duke Mibzar,

43 Duke Magdiel, duke Iram: these be the dukes of Edom, according to their habitations in the land of their possession: he is Esau the father of † the Edomites.

Before
CHRIST
about 1496.

† Heb.
Edom.

CHAP. XXXVII.

2 Joseph is hated of his brethren. 5 His two dreams.

13 Jacob sendeth him to visit his brethren. 18 His brethren conspire his death. 21 Reuben saveth him.

26 They sell him to the Ishmeelites. 31 His father, deceived by the bloody coat, mourneth for him. 36 He is sold to Potiphar in Egypt.

AND Jacob dwelt in the land † wherein his father was a stranger, in the land of Canaan.

† Heb. of his father’s sojournings.

2 These are the generations of Jacob. Joseph, being seventeen years old, was feeding the flock with his brethren; and the lad was with the sons of Bilhah, and with the sons of Zilpah, his father’s wives: and Joseph brought unto his father their evil report.

1729.

3 Now Israel loved Joseph more than all his children, because he was the son of his old age: and he made him a coat of many † colours.

† Or, pieces.

self, who had hated Joseph because he was dear to his father, is now willing to be a bond-slave for Joseph’s brother, for the very same reason.

We may observe, what a lively type or figure Joseph is, and was so designed by God to be, of Jesus Christ. Sold by his brethren: sold to strangers: sold for a few pieces of money: the bargain proposed by his brother Judah, the very namesake of that disciple and brother, for so Christ vouchsafes to call him, who sold his Lord and Master; and after all he became the saviour of them and of all the neighbouring nations.

All these things came to pass by the direction of a wise, great, and good God, who would not let the world want such instances, to confirm their faith in Him. Bp. Wilson.

Ver. 2. These are the generations of Jacob.] Or things which happened to him. Bp. Kidder.

— their evil report.] What evil lives they led. Bp. Patrick.

3. — because he was the son of his old age:] Not because he was his youngest son, for that he was not, Benjamin being younger. But probably because, after a long season of barrenness, he was born of Rachel, the most beloved consort of Jacob; and because, at the period referred to, he was arrived at an age, when he was capable of affording more comfort to the declining years of his father, than his younger brother Benjamin. The Jewish historian Josephus says, “his father loved him above the rest of his sons, both because of the beauty of his body, and the virtues of his mind, for he excelled the rest in prudence.” Bp. Patrick.

— a coat of many colours.] Generally thought to signify a

Before
CHRIST
1729.

4 And when his brethren saw that their father loved him more than all his brethren, they hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him.

5 ¶ And Joseph dreamed a dream, and he told it his brethren: and they hated him yet the more.

6 And he said unto them, Hear, I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed:

7 For, behold, we were binding sheaves in the field, and, lo, my sheaf arose, and also stood upright; and, behold, your sheaves stood round about, and made obeisance to my sheaf.

8 And his brethren said to him, Shalt thou indeed reign over us? or shalt thou indeed have dominion over us? And they hated him yet the more for his dreams, and for his words.

9 ¶ And he dreamed yet another dream, and told it his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed a dream more; and, behold, the sun and the moon and the eleven stars made obeisance to me.

10 And he told it to his father, and to his brethren: and his father rebuked him, and said unto him, What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? Shall I and thy mother and thy brethren indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee to the earth?

11 And his brethren envied him; but his father observed the saying.

about 1729. 12 ¶ And his brethren went to feed their father's flock in Shechem.

garment wrought with threads of divers colours, or made up of variegated pieces of silk or stuff. Bp. Patrick.

5. — dreamed a dream.] See the note on chap. xx. 3. In the manifestations, which God made of Himself by dreams, the point, intended to be disclosed, was either expressly signified; or else shadowed forth by sufficient representations and emblems. These emblems again were sometimes so plain and clear, that their meaning was immediately apprehended; as in these dreams of Joseph: at other times they were more difficult to be understood, so that the person, who saw the dream, was a stranger to its meaning. In this case Providence so ordered it, that there was some one in the way, to whom the gift of interpreting dreams was vouchsafed. Of this we have instances in the dreams of Pharaoh's butler and baker, and afterwards in Pharaoh's own dreams; which were interpreted by Joseph, and the meaning justified by the accomplishment. Bp. Conybeare.

9. — the eleven stars] The obeisance of the sun, moon, and eleven stars (or constellations of the Zodiack) to him the twelfth. Dr. Hales.

10. — his father rebuked him.] Gave him a check; that Joseph might not grow proud, and that his brethren might not be provoked to hate him. Still Jacob did not look upon the dream as a mere fancy, but laid it up in his heart. Bp. Patrick.

— What is this dream &c.] From this time forward in all the Scripture, when in any dream, vision, parable, or prophecy there is mention of sun, moon, stars darkened, falling, &c. it is generally meant of kings, emperours, or other superiours, as here of father and mother. Dr. Wall.

12. — their father's flock in Shechem.] Not that Shechem, I suppose, where they had so lately robbed and murdered the peo-

13 And Israel said unto Joseph, Do not thy brethren feed the flock in Shechem? come, and I will send thee unto them. And he said to him, Here am I.

14 And he said to him, Go, I pray thee, † see whether it be well with thy brethren, and well with the flocks; and bring me word again. So he sent him out of the vale of Hebron, and he came to Shechem.

15 ¶ And a certain man found him, and, behold, he was wandering in the field: and the man asked him, saying, What seekest thou?

16 And he said, I seek my brethren: tell me, I pray thee, where they feed their flocks.

17 And the man said, They are departed hence; for I heard them say, Let us go to Dothan. And Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in Dothan.

18 And when they saw him afar off, even before he came near unto them, they conspired against him to slay him.

19 And they said one to another, Behold, this † dreamer cometh.

20 Come now therefore, and let us slay him, and cast him into some pit, and we will say, Some evil beast hath devoured him: and we shall see what will become of his dreams.

21 And ^a Reuben heard it, and he delivered him out of their hands; and said, ^{2a} Let us not kill him.

Before
CHRIST
about 1729.

† Heb. see the peace
of thy brethren, &c.

† Heb.
master of dreams.

^a Chap. 42.

ple, and where they had been afraid of being pursued by the neighbours: the Septuagint makes a difference in the spelling of that name and this: here it is Sychem; that Shechem it always calls Sekima: it was more northward. This Sychem and Dothan, which must be nigh it, were in the way, which the Ishmeelites took from Gilead to Egypt. Dr. Wall.

18. — they conspired against him to slay him.] See in this instance the sad consequences of giving way to anger! At first perhaps the displeasure, which they conceived against their brother, was moderate, and pardonable in persons so liable to error as men are. But then, the first cool reflections ought to have checked these resentments, and have brought them back to a better temper. Instead of this, they laid hold of every opportunity to keep up, and even to heighten their passion. They rose from one degree to another; till at length they deliberated about the commission of an action, which in former times they could not have thought on without horror. They "conspired together to slay their brother:"—to commit murder, a crime abhorred both by God and man;—and this upon so near a relation, as a brother, whose life they ought to have defended at the hazard of their own; and at a time too, when he was performing towards them an act of brotherly love, and bringing a tender message from their father. Bp. Conybeare.

21. And Reuben heard it, &c.] Several reasons may be assigned for this interference of Reuben: such as the common feelings of humanity, fraternal affection, or the sense of responsibility to God for the murder of an innocent and excellent youth. Besides these reasons, which Josephus suggests, he may have either thought himself most concerned to save his brother, as being the firstborn, and therefore likely to be the first in blame: or

Before
CHRIST
about 1729.

22 And Reuben said unto them, Shed no blood, but cast him into this pit that is in the wilderness, and lay no hand upon him; that he might rid him out of their hands, to deliver him to his father again.

23 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joseph was come unto his brethren, that they stript Joseph out of his coat, his coat of many colours that was on him;

¶ Or, pieces.

24 And they took him, and cast him into a pit: and the pit was empty, there was no water in it.

25 And they sat down to eat bread: and they lifted up their eyes and looked, and, behold, a company of Ishmeelites came from Gilead with their camels bearing spicery and balm and myrrh, going to carry it down to Egypt.

26 And Judah said unto his brethren, What profit is it if we slay our brother, and conceal his blood?

27 Come, and let us sell him to the Ishmeelites, and let not our hand be upon him; for he is our brother and our flesh. And his brethren † were content.

† Heb.
hearkened.

¶ Psal. 105.
17.
Wisd 10.
18.
Acts 7. 9.

28 Then there passed by Midianites merchantmen; and they drew and lifted up Joseph out of the pit, ^b and sold Joseph to the Ishmeelites for twenty pieces of silver: and they brought Joseph into Egypt.

29 ¶ And Reuben returned unto the pit; and, behold, Joseph was not in the pit; and he rent his clothes.

he may have hoped, by thus piously and compassionately preserving the favourite Joseph, to recover that place in his father's affection, which he had lost by his late crime. Stackhouse.

25. — a company of Ishmeelites] They are called below Midianites. These people were near neighbours to each other; and were joined together in one company or caravan, as it is now called. It is the custom, even to this day, in the East, for merchants and others to travel through the deserts in large companies, for fear of robbers or wild beasts. Bp. Patrick.

27. Come, and let us sell him &c.] The providence of God makes use of the wickedness of men to accomplish His designs. His ways are dark and to us unsearchable, till they are cleared up by the event. Means, to us unlikely, are applied by God to bring about the most important ends: and it is sometimes seen, that adversity itself is the direct way to happiness. Bps. Wilson and Conybeare.

29. — he rent his clothes.] This was an Eastern way of expressing either grief for calamity, or horror for sin. Reuben was the first we read of, who, to denote his exceeding sorrow, "rent his clothes:" and as Jacob, we find ver. 34, does the same, we may suppose it to have been an usual manner of expressing grief and uneasiness of mind in those days. Putting on sackcloth, which Jacob is here first described as doing, was afterwards common on all mournful occasions. "Rend your clothes, and gird you with sackcloth, and mourn before Abner," 2 Sam. iii. 31. "Mordecai rent his clothes, and put on sackcloth with ashes, and cried with a loud and a bitter cry," Esth. iv. 1—3. Stackhouse, Calmet.

30. — The child is not;] That is, he is dead. A common Scripture phrase.

30 And he returned unto his brethren, ^{Before CHRIST about 1729.} and said, The child is not; and I, whither shall I go?

31 And they took Joseph's coat, and killed a kid of the goats, and dipped the coat in the blood;

32 And they sent the coat of many colours, and they brought it to their father; and said, This have we found: know now whether it be thy son's coat or no.

33 And he knew it, and said, It is my son's coat; an ^c evil beast hath devoured him; Joseph is without doubt rent in pieces. ^{c Chap. 44. 28.}

34 And Jacob rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his loins, and mourned for his son many days.

35 And all his sons and all his daughters rose up to comfort him; but he refused to be comforted; and he said, For I will go down into the grave unto my son mourning. Thus his father wept for him.

36 And the Midianites sold him into Egypt unto Potiphar, an † officer of Pharaoh's, and † ¶ captain of the guard.

† Heb.
eunuch:
But the word doth signify not only eu-nuchs, but also chamberlains,
courtiers,
and officers.
† Heb.
chief of the slaughter-men, or ex. cution-
ers.
¶ Or, chief marshal.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

1 Judah begetteth Er, Onan, and Shelah. 6 Er marrieth Tamar. 8 The trespass of Onan. 11 Tamar stogeth for Shelah. 13 She deceiveth Judah. 27 She beareth twins, Pharez and Zarah.

AND it came to pass at that time, that Judah went down from his brethren, and turned in to a certain Adullamite, whose name was Hirah.

35. — all his daughters] Dinah and his sons' wives.

— I will go down into the grave &c.] That is, to the state or place of the dead. The sense is, I will not cease mourning until I die and be laid in the grave. Stackhouse.

The translation into the grave is wrong; as if he meant to have his body laid by Joseph's. That could not be, for he thought him devoured by wild beasts. It means, into the invisible state, the state of departed souls; and in this sense it is said of several of the Patriarchs, that they "were gathered unto their people," Gen. xxv. 8; xxxv. 29; and of "all that generation," which lived with Joshua, that they "were gathered unto their fathers," Judg. ii. 10. Abp. Secker.

Where parental affection exists, it will express itself in grief and mourning, when the person beloved is taken from us. Grief on such occasions is natural. Our blessed Lord Himself wept on the death of Lazarus. Care however must be taken, not to run into excess. To grieve is generous and humane; to be loud and querulous is childish; and to refuse comfort is inexcusable. It is impious towards God; it shews too great disregard to other men; and it is highly prejudicial to ourselves. Nothing can excuse such conduct in Jacob but this, that his present passion overcame his reason, and that this misfortune befell him at an age when he was least able to bear it. We find however by the event, that he got the better of his grief. When the first fit was over, he grew more moderate: time in some degree cured him of his concern; and he submitted to that misfortune, which he could not avoid. Bp. Conybeare.

Chap. XXXVIII. ver. 1. — at that time,] Judah was married about eight years before Joseph was sold; Joseph being then not Printed by W. J. Lane.

JOSEPH SOLD BY HIS BRETHREN.

Genesis, l. 37, v. 28.

London, Published by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge, No. 1, Ave

Engraved by W. J. Lane.

Before
CHRIST
about 1727.
^a 1 Chron.
2. 3.

2 And Judah saw there a daughter of a certain Canaanite, whose name was ^aShuah; and he took her, and went in unto her.

3 And she conceived, and bare a son; and he called his name Er.

^b Numb. 26.
19.

4 ^b And she conceived again, and bare a son; and she called his name Onan.

5 And she yet again conceived, and bare a son; and called his name Shelah: and he was at Chezib, when she bare him.

6 And Judah took a wife for Er his firstborn, whose name was Tamar.

^c Numb. 26.
19.

7 And ^cEr, Judah's firstborn, was wicked in the sight of the LORD; and the LORD slew him.

8 And Judah said unto Onan, Go in unto thy brother's wife, and marry her, and raise up seed to thy brother.

9 And Onan knew that the seed should not be his; and it came to pass, when he went in unto his brother's wife, that he spilled it on the ground, lest that he should give seed to his brother.

[†] Heb. was evil in the eyes of the LORD.

10 And the thing which he did [†]displeased the LORD: wherefore he slew him also.

11 Then said Judah to Tamar his daughter in law, Remain a widow at thy father's house, till Shelah my son be grown: for he said, Lest peradventure he die also, as his brethren die. And Tamar went and dwelt in her father's house.

[†] Heb.
the days were multiplied.

12 ¶ And [†]in process of time the daughter of Shuah Judah's wife died; and Judah was comforted, and went up unto his sheepshearers to Timnath, he and his friend Hirah the Adullamite.

Before
CHRIST
about 1727.

13 And it was told Tamar, saying, Behold thy father in law goeth up to Timnath to shear his sheep.

14 And she put her widow's garments off from her, and covered her with a vail, and wrapped herself, and sat in an [†]open place, which is by the way to Timnath; for she saw that Shelah was grown, and she was not given unto him to wife.

[†] Heb.
the door of eyes, or, of Enajim.

15 When Judah saw her, he thought her to be an harlot; because she had covered her face.

16 And he turned unto her by the way, and said, Go to, I pray thee, let me come in unto thee; (for he knew not that she was his daughter in law.) And she said, What wilt thou give me, that thou mayest come in unto me?

17 And he said, I will send thee [†]a kid from the flock. And she said, Wilt thou give me a pledge, till thou send it?

[†] Heb.
a kid of the goats.

18 And he said, What pledge shall I give thee? And she said, Thy signet, and thy bracelets, and thy staff that is in thine hand. And he gave it her, and came in unto her, and she conceived by him.

19 And she arose, and went away, and laid by her vail from her, and put on the garments of her widowhood.

20 And Judah sent the kid by the hand of his friend the Adullamite, to receive his pledge from the woman's hand: but he found her not.

21 Then he asked the men of that place, above twelve years of age. Therefore the words "at that time," do not refer to the time of Judah's marriage, but to the deaths of Er and Onan; which happened not long after Joseph was sold, and show how Judah was punished in his children for the sale of his righteous brother. Dr. Lightfoot.

— Adullamite.] A citizen of Adullam, a famous town, that fell afterwards to the tribe of Judah. Bp. Patrick.

7. — and the Lord slew him.] By some extraordinary judgment. Bp. Wilson.

Notorious sinners God reserves to His own vengeance. He doth not inflict sensible judgments upon all His enemies, lest the wicked should think there were no punishment abiding for them elsewhere. He doth inflict such judgments upon some, lest He should seem careless of evil. It were as easy for Him to strike all dead, as one: but He would rather all should be warned by one; and would have His enemies find Him merciful, as well as His children, just. Bp. Hall.

8. — marry her, and raise up seed &c.] This is the first mention of the custom, which nevertheless seems to have been a very common one, and well understood by Onan; for he knew that the firstborn son was not to be accounted his, but his deceased brother's; to be called by his name, and inherit his estate. Stackhouse.

10. — he slew him also.] Thus Judah, who deprived his aged father of his son, is himself deprived of two of his own sons. Bp. Wilson.

13. — to shear his sheep.] Sheepshearing was a kind of harvest, and used to be observed with the same sort of joy. Judah, having finished the time of mourning for his wife, went to recreate himself with his friends, at this festival season. Bp. Patrick.

14. — covered her with a vail.] As all women did in the Eastern countries, when they went abroad. This is still the practice, and is required by several passages in the Koran. Bp. Patrick.

— and sat in an open place.] Hoping to impose herself, either upon Judah himself, on his return from the feast, or upon Shelah, whom, she presumed, he would take with him. This most desperate and unlawful proceeding of Tamar was probably undertaken out of revenge upon Judah, for not fulfilling his promise, but retaining Shelah from her, after he was fully arrived at man's estate. Pyle.

15. — because she had covered her face.] This is not the reason, why he took her for an harlot; but why he did not know her to be his daughter in law, because he could not see her face. He thought her to be an harlot, because she sat in the highway, where she publicly exposed herself. Selden, Bp. Patrick.

18. — thy bracelets.] According to the views of different commentators, the word, translated "bracelets," is supposed to be a cloak, or girdle; Bp. Patrick, Pyle. A scarf; Bp. Kidder. A handkerchief; Bp. Hall, Sir J. Chardin. A fillet or wreath, worn about the head; Harmcr.

The ancient Hebrews wore their seals or "signets" in rings on their fingers, or in "bracelets" on their arms: as is now the custom in the East. See Cant. viii. 6. Calmet.

Before
CHRIST
about 1727.

Or,
in Enajim.

† Heb. become a contempt.

saying, Where is the harlot, that was || openly by the way side? And they said, There was no harlot in this place.

22 And he returned to Judah, and said, I cannot find her; and also the men of the place said, that there was no harlot in this place.

23 And Judah said, Let her take it to her, lest we † be shamed: behold, I sent this kid, and thou hast not found her.

24 ¶ And it came to pass about three months after, that it was told Judah, saying, Tamar thy daughter in law hath played the harlot; and also, behold, she is with child by whoredom. And Judah said, Bring her forth, and let her be burnt.

25 When she was brought forth, she sent to her father in law, saying, By the man, whose these are, am I with child: and she said, Discern, I pray thee, whose are these, the signet, and bracelets, and staff.

26 And Judah acknowledged them, and said, She hath been more righteous than I; because that I gave her not to Shelah my son. And he knew her again no more.

27 ¶ And it came to pass in the time of her travail, that, behold, twins were in her womb.

28 And it came to pass, when she travailed, that the one put out his hand: and the midwife took and bound upon his hand a scarlet thread, saying, This came out first.

29 And it came to pass, as he drew back

23. — Let her take it to her, lest we be shamed:] Though the fact, he had committed, was not punished by the laws, yet men were ashamed it should be known, which was a sign that they were sensible of its moral turpitude. Agreeable to this is the sense of Judah's words: "It is better to lose what she hath of ours, than, by inquisition after it, to divulge the business, and increase our shame." Bp. Patrick.

24. — Judah said, Bring her forth,] If Judah had not forgotten his sin, his pity had been more than his hatred, to this of his daughters. How easy is it to detest those sins in others, which we flatter in ourselves! Bp. Hall.

— let her be burnt.] Some think burning was the punishment for adultery in those days: others, that the punishment depended on the will of the supreme governour, whom some suppose Judah himself to have been, as chief in his own family. Others suppose, that by burning is meant no more than branding her in the forehead. All this proceeds on the supposition of her being an adulteress, as the wife of Shelah, by virtue of the first contract with his eldest brother. Bp. Patrick.

26. — She hath been more righteous than I;] Tamar had kept her faith with Judah for a considerable time, living long a widow, in expectation of being married, as she ought to have been, to his son Shelah. In that respect, she had been more righteous and faithful to Judah, than he had been to her. Dr. Waterland.

It is not meant, that in this matter she had committed a less sin, than he; for she had knowingly committed adultery and incest, whereas he had not by design committed either. She was more wicked in the sight of God; yet she may be said to be juster his hand, that, behold, his brother came out: and she said, || How hast thou broken forth? this breach be upon thee: therefore his name was called ||^d Pharez.

30 And afterward came out his brother, that had the scarlet thread upon his hand: and his name was called Zarah.

CHAP. XXXIX.

1 Joseph advanced in Potiphar's house. 7 He resisteth his mistress's temptation. 13 He is falsely accused. 20 He is cast in prison. 21 God is with him there.

AND Joseph was brought down to Egypt; and Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, captain of the guard, an Egyptian, bought him of the hands of the Ishmeelites, which had brought him down thither.

2 And the LORD was with Joseph, and he was a prosperous man; and he was in the house of his master the Egyptian.

3 And his master saw that the LORD was with him, and that the LORD made all that he did to prosper in his hand.

4 And Joseph found grace in his sight, and he served him: and he made him overseer over his house, and all that he had he put into his hand.

5 And it came to pass from the time that he had made him overseer in his house, and over all that he had, that the LORD blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake; and the blessing of the LORD was upon all that he had in the house, and in the field.

before Judah; or to have done no more to him, than what he justly deserved. Stackhouse.

— he knew her again no more.] This abstaining from sin is necessary, and without it we cannot be said to repent. Bp. Kidder. If this had not cost Judah many a sigh, he had no more escaped his father's curse than Reuben did. The difference was not in the sins, but in the men. Bp. Hall.

Chap. XXXIX. ver. 2. And the Lord was with Joseph,] To guide him in his deportment, and in the management of all affairs committed to him. Bp. Patrick. He was favourable and merciful to him in his affliction. Bp. Kidder.

— he was in the house of his master] One of his domestick servants. Bp. Patrick.

4. — overseer] The office, to which Joseph was thus promoted, was one of great trust and honour; for he was made superintendent of all the property of Potiphar. Fragments to Calmet.

Here was a prodigious change of circumstances. He, who a little before was sold by his brethren, brought down to Egypt, and delivered over to Potiphar as a slave, is now advanced to a creditable and advantageous post; made steward to a rich and great man; the director of all his fortunes. This instance should teach us to rely on the care and protection of Providence in the most comfortless circumstances of life: because how hopeless soever our condition may, in human accounts, appear, yet there is a God above, who careth for us; and is both able and willing to relieve us from all our troubles. Bp. Conybeare.

Before
CHRIST
about 1727.

Or,
Wherefore
hast thou made this breach against thee?

That is,
a breach.

1 Chron.

2. 4.

Matt. 1. 3.

1729.

Before
CHRIST
1729.

6 And he left all that he had in Joseph's hand ; and he knew not ought he had, save the bread which he did eat. And Joseph was a goodly person, and well favoured.

7 ¶ And it came to pass after these things, that his master's wife cast her eyes upon Joseph ; and she said, Lie with me.

8 But he refused, and said unto his master's wife, Behold, my master wotteth not what is with me in the house, and he hath committed all that he hath to my hand ;

9 There is none greater in this house than I ; neither hath he kept back any thing from me but thee, because thou art his wife : how then can I do this great wickedness, and sin against God ?

10 And it came to pass, as she spake to Joseph day by day, that he hearkened not unto her, to lie by her, or to be with her.

11 And it came to pass about this time, that Joseph went into the house to do his business ; and there was none of the men of the house there within.

12 And she caught him by his garment, saying, Lie with me : and he left his garment in her hand, and fled, and got him out.

13 And it came to pass, when she saw that he had left his garment in her hand, and was fled forth,

14 That she called unto the men of her house, and spake unto them, saying, See, he hath brought in an Hebrew unto us to mock us ; he came in unto me to lie with me, and I cried with a loud voice :

15 And it came to pass, when he heard that I lifted up my voice and cried, that he left his garment with me, and fled, and got him out.

† Heb.
great.

9. — how then can I do this great wickedness, and sin against God ?] He alleges in the most modest manner, gratitude to his master, and obedience to the Divine will. The favours, which his master had bestowed upon him, were sufficient to such a grateful mind as his, to prevent him from doing any thing which might justly displease his master : much less could he bear the thought of turning these very favours to his dishonour, and of injuring him in the most sensible manner by those very advantages which he held under him. To this he adds, that the regard he owed to the Supreme Being, would ever forbid him to gratify such unlawful requests. Bp. Conybeare.

From a sense of duty to his master he was incapable of recompensing the confidence reposed in him with so irreparable and cruel an injury. But his sense of duty to his master was founded on the only perfect security of moral obligation ; a sense of his duty to God. Mant's Parochial Sermons.

14. — to mock us ;] To disgrace us, by committing a sin so foul and so dishonourable to us. Bp. Kidder.

17. And she spake unto him, — saying, &c.] Thus one sin draws on another. She had been unfaithful to her lord, in endeavouring to bring dishonour on him : and when these endeavours did not succeed, she could not stop here, but aggravated the fault of

Before
CHRIST
about 1729.

16 And she laid up his garment by her, until his lord came home.

17 And she spake unto him according to these words, saying, The Hebrew servant, which thou hast brought unto us, came in unto me to mock me :

18 And it came to pass, as I lifted up my voice and cried, that he left his garment with me, and fled out.

19 And it came to pass, when his master heard the words of his wife, which she spake unto him, saying, After this manner did thy servant to me ; that his wrath was kindled.

20 And Joseph's master took him, and put him into the prison, a place where the king's prisoners were bound : and he was there in the prison.

21 ¶ But the LORD was with Joseph, and † shewed him mercy, and gave him favour in the sight of the keeper of the prison.

† Heb. extended kindness unto him.

22 And the keeper of the prison committed to Joseph's hand all the prisoners that were in the prison ; and whatsoever they did there, he was the doer of it.

23 The keeper of the prison looked not to any thing that was under his hand ; because the LORD was with him, and that which he did, the LORD made it to prosper.

CHAP. XL.

1 The butler and baker of Pharaoh in prison. 4 Joseph hath charge of them. 5 He interpreteth their dreams.
20 They come to pass according to his interpretation.
23 The ingratitude of the butler.

AND it came to pass after these things, about 1720. that the butler of the king of Egypt and his baker had offended their lord the king of Egypt.

2 And Pharaoh was wroth against two a criminal desire by a false accusation. The same may be observed in almost every other instance of sin. When we venture on the commission of it, we lose the command of ourselves : we roll on, as a stone down a precipice, unable to say where we shall stop, or how far we shall go. Bp. Conybeare.

20. And Joseph's master took him,] This error of Potiphar, for I will not give it any harsher name, cost Joseph dear. He forfeited his post ; and, what is worse, was treated as the worst of criminals. Hence we may learn, that the greatest innocence cannot secure us from misfortunes. We are born to trouble ; and ought rather to expect it, than be surprised at it. Nay, it sometimes happens, that our virtue itself will expose us to sufferings. Yet we ought not on this account to question the providence of God. This world is a place, not of retribution, but of trial. If we are true to ourselves, God will assist us in these sufferings ; and perhaps make them, as He had before done, and now again did, in the case of Joseph, the steps and means towards a greater advancement. Bp. Conybeare.

Chap. XL. ver. 1. — the butler — and — baker] These were two distinguished officers of the crown ; “cupbearer” and “master of the household” to the king. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1720.

of his officers, against the chief of the butlers, and against the chief of the bakers.

3 And he put them in ward in the house of the captain of the guard, into the prison, the place where Joseph was bound.

4 And the captain of the guard charged Joseph with them, and he served them: and they continued a season in ward.

1718.

5 ¶ And they dreamed a dream both of them, each man his dream in one night, each man according to the interpretation of his dream, the butler and the baker of the king of Egypt, which were bound in the prison.

6 And Joseph came in unto them in the morning, and looked upon them, and, behold, they were sad.

7 And he asked Pharaoh's officers that were with him in the ward of his lord's house, saying, Wherefore † look ye so sadly to day?

† Heb. are your faces evil?

8 And they said unto him, We have dreamed a dream, and there is no interpreter of it. And Joseph said unto them, Do not interpretations belong to God? tell me them, I pray you.

9 And the chief butler told his dream to Joseph, and said to him, In my dream, behold, a vine was before me;

10 And in the vine were three branches: and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shot forth; and the clusters thereof brought forth ripe grapes:

11 And Pharaoh's cup was in my hand: and I took the grapes, and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and I gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand.

12 And Joseph said unto him, This is the interpretation of it: The three branches are three days:

¶ Or, reckon.

13 Yet within three days shall Pharaoh lift up thine head, and restore thee unto thy place: and thou shalt deliver Pharaoh's cup into his hand, after the former manner when thou wast his butler.

Before
CHRIST
1718.

14 But † think on me when it shall be well with thee, and shew kindness, I pray thee, unto me, and make mention of me unto Pharaoh, and bring me out of this house:

† Heb.
remember me with thee.

15 For indeed I was stolen away out of the land of the Hebrews: and here also have I done nothing that they should put me into the dungeon.

16 When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was good, he said unto Joseph, I also was in my dream, and, behold, I had three white baskets on my head:

¶ Or,
full of holes.

17 And in the uppermost basket there was of all manner † of bakemeats for Pharaoh; and the birds did eat them out of the basket upon my head.

† Heb.
meat of Pharaoh,
the work of a baker, or, cook.

18 And Joseph answered and said, This is the interpretation thereof: The three baskets are three days:

19 Yet within three days shall Pharaoh lift up thy head from off thee, and shall hang thee on a tree: and the birds shall eat thy flesh from off thee.

¶ Or, rock in thee,
and take thy office from thee.

20 ¶ And it came to pass the third day, which was Pharaoh's birthday, that he made a feast unto all his servants: and he lifted up the head of the chief butler and of the chief baker among his servants.

¶ Or, reckoned,

21 And he restored the chief butler unto his butlership again; and he gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand:

22 But he hanged the chief baker: as Joseph had interpreted to them.

23 Yet did not the chief butler remember Joseph, but forgot him.

CHAP. XLI.

1 Pharaoh's two dreams. 25 Joseph interpreteth them. 33 He giveth Pharaoh counsel. 38 Joseph is ad-

4. — the captain of the guard charged Joseph with them,] Potiaphar seems by this time to have been convinced of Joseph's innocency, as to the crime which he had confined him for: and though, to conceal the dishonour of his wife, he thought it proper still to confine him, yet having now a still greater opinion of his virtue and prudence, he committed to him the management of the whole prison, and so delivered these two prisoners into his custody. Pyle.

5. — according to the interpretation] That is, such as signified the event which Joseph foretold. Bp. Kidder.

15. — out of the land of the Hebrews:] Joseph might well call that particular part of the land of Canaan near Hebron, where Isaac and Jacob had resided so many years, "the land of the Hebrews." They, it is true, were not originally natives of the country, but they possessed such wealth, such numerous families, herds, and flocks, that they were looked up to as "mighty princes," as appears from the language of the children of Heth to Abraham, Gen. xxiii. 6. We find them joining the neighbouring kings in making war, chap. xiv; making compacts and leagues even with kings, chap. xxi. 23, and chap. xxvi. 14; and even conquering entire cities, chap. xxxiv; living according to their own customs, and exercising their own religion. It is therefore perfectly credible, that the place of their residence may have been termed "the land of the Hebrews," as they had been there such a length of time, independent, and in alliance with the natives. Dr. Graves.

23. Yet did not — remember Joseph,] Prosperity is very apt to puff men up; to incline them to vanity; and to make them overlook the concerns of other men. This we see in the instance before us. The chief butler bestowed not one kind thought on Joseph for full two years. He contented himself with following his own pleasures, and enjoying the good fortune which had befallen him: whilst this innocent and extraordinary person was left friendless in prison, and supported only by the consciousness of his innocence, and the favour of his God. Bp. Conybeare.

Before
CHRIST
1715.

vanced. 50 He begetteth Manasseh and Ephraim. 54
The famine beginneth.

AND it came to pass at the end of two full years, that Pharaoh dreamed: and, behold, he stood by the river.

2 And, behold, there came up out of the river seven well favoured kine and fatfleshed; and they fed in a meadow.

3 And, behold, seven other kine came up after them out of the river, ill favoured and leanfleshed; and stood by the other kine upon the brink of the river.

4 And the ill favoured and leanfleshed kine did eat up the seven well favoured and fat kine. So Pharaoh awoke.

5 And he slept and dreamed the second time: and, behold, seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk, †rank and good.

6 And, behold, seven thin ears and blasted with the east wind sprung up after them.

7 And the seven thin ears devoured the seven rank and full ears. And Pharaoh awoke, and, behold, it was a dream.

8 And it came to pass in the morning that his spirit was troubled; and he sent and called for all the magicians of Egypt, and all the wise men thereof: and Pharaoh told them his dream; but there was none that could interpret them unto Pharaoh.

9 ¶ Then spake the chief butler unto Pharaoh, saying, I do remember my faults this day:

10 Pharaoh was wroth with his servants, and put me in ward in the captain of the guard's house, both me and the chief baker:

11 And we dreamed a dream in one night, I and he; we dreamed each man according to the interpretation of his dream.

12 And there was there with us a young man, an Hebrew, servant to the captain of the guard; and we told him, and he ^{Before} interpreted to us our dreams; to each man according to his dream he did interpret. ^{CHRIST} 1715.

13 And it came to pass, as he interpreted to us, so it was; me he restored unto mine office, and him he hanged. ^{a Chap. 40. 12, &c.}

14 ¶ ^b Then Pharaoh sent and called Joseph, and they † brought him hastily out of the dungeon: and he shaved himself, and changed his raiment, and came in unto Pharaoh. ^{b Psal. 105. 20. † Heb. made him run.}

15 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I have dreamed a dream, and there is none that can interpret it: and I have heard say of thee, that ¶ thou canst understand a dream to interpret it. ^{¶ Or, when thou hearest a dream, thou canst interpret it.}

16 And Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying, It is not in me: God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace.

17 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, In my dream, behold, I stood upon the bank of the river:

18 And, behold, there came up out of the river seven kine, fatfleshed and well favoured; and they fed in a meadow:

19 And, behold, seven other kine came up after them, poor and very ill favoured and leanfleshed, such as I never saw in all the land of Egypt for badness:

20 And the lean and the ill favoured kine did eat up the first seven fat kine:

21 And when they had † eaten them up, it could not be known that they had eaten them; but they were still ill favoured, as at the beginning. So I awoke. ^{† Heb. come to the inward parts of them.}

22 And I saw in my dream, and, behold, seven ears came up in one stalk, full and good:

23 And, behold, seven ears, ¶ withered, ¶ thin, and blasted with the east wind, sprung up after them: ^{¶ Or, small.}

Chap. XLI. ver. 5. — seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk,] This is not an unusual and monstrous production, as it has been often supposed to be. A species of wheat, which grows in Egypt, actually bears, when perfect, this number of ears on one stalk. The stem is solid, or at least full of pith, in order to yield sufficient nourishment and support to so great a weight as the ears it bears; whereas the stem of our own wheat is a mere hollow straw. Fragments to Calmel.

6. — blasted with the east wind] To this wind is ascribed in Scripture all the mischief done to corn or fruit, by blasting, smutting, mildews, locusts, &c. It was more pernicious in Egypt than other places, because it came through the vast deserts of Arabia. Bp. Patrick.

8. — the magicians] Men who professed a skill in interpreting dreams; whether by natural observations, or by consulting demons, or by the foolish art of astrology, or by certain superstitious characters, pictures, images, and figures, engraven with magical rites and ceremonies, is uncertain. Bp. Patrick.

9. — I do remember my faults this day:] His offences against Pharaoh; or more probably his ingratitude towards Joseph. Bp. Patrick.

VOL. I.

13. — me he restored unto mine office,] He foretold that I should be restored to mine office; and he told the other he should be hanged. Bp. Patrick. See the note on Jer. i. 10.

14. — out of the dungeon:] Where he was possibly ministering to the prisoners committed to his charge. Bp. Kidder.

— he shaved himself, &c.] It was the custom in most countries, when men were in a mournful condition, to neglect their hair, both of the head and beard; and not to shift their clothes as in prosperity; but to continue in a sorrowful dress, expressing thereby the sense they had of their calamity. Bp. Patrick.

16. — It is not in me: God shall give Pharaoh &c.] He had previously ascribed his skill in divination to its all-wise Giver; see chap. xl. 8. The instrument of any extraordinary action ought not to arrogate that praise, which is due only to the author of it. Even our ordinary powers proceed from God: and therefore, as we should do every thing to His glory, so, when we have done it, we should ascribe our doing it to His power. Bp. Conybeare.

— an answer of peace.] An answer that will be to his satisfaction and the welfare of his kingdom. Dr. Wells.

N

Before
CHRIST
1715.

24 And the thin ears devoured the seven good ears: and I told this unto the magicians; but there was none that could declare it to me.

25 ¶ And Joseph said unto Pharaoh, The dream of Pharaoh is one: God hath shewed Pharaoh what he is about to do.

26 The seven good kine are seven years; and the seven good ears are seven years: the dream is one.

27 And the seven thin and ill favoured kine that came up after them are seven years; and the seven empty ears blasted with the east wind shall be seven years of famine.

28 This is the thing which I have spoken unto Pharaoh: What God is about to do he sheweth unto Pharaoh.

29 Behold, there come seven years of great plenty throughout all the land of Egypt:

30 And there shall arise after them seven years of famine; and all the plenty shall be forgotten in the land of Egypt; and the famine shall consume the land;

31 And the plenty shall not be known in the land by reason of that famine following; for it shall be very †grievous.

† Heb.
heavy.

¶ Or, prepared of God.

32 And for that the dream was doubled unto Pharaoh twice; it is because the thing is ¶ established by God, and God will shortly bring it to pass.

33 Now therefore let Pharaoh look out a man discreet and wise, and set him over the land of Egypt.

¶ Or, overscers.

34 Let Pharaoh do this, and let him appoint ¶ officers over the land, and take up the fifth part of the land of Egypt in the seven plenteous years.

Before
CHRIST
1715.

35 And let them gather all the food of those good years that come, and lay up corn under the hand of Pharaoh, and let them keep food in the cities.

36 And that food shall be for store to the land against the seven years of famine, which shall be in the land of Egypt; that the land †perish not through the famine.

† Heb. be not cut off.

37 ¶ And the thing was good in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of all his servants.

38 And Pharaoh said unto his servants, Can we find such a one as this is, a man in whom the Spirit of God is?

39 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Forasmuch as God hath shewed thee all this, there is none so discreet and wise as thou art:

40 'Thou shalt be over my house, and according unto thy word shall all my people †be ruled: only in the throne will I be greater than thou.

† Psal. 105.
21.
1 Mac. 2.
53.
Acts 7. 10.
† Heb.
armed, or,
kiss.

41 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, See, I have set thee over all the land of Egypt.

42 And Pharaoh took off his ring from his hand, and put it upon Joseph's hand, and arrayed him in vestures of ¶ fine linen, and put a gold chain about his neck;

¶ Or, silk.

43 And he made him to ride in the second chariot which he had; and they cried before him, ¶† Bow the knee: and he made him ruler over all the land of Egypt.

¶ Or, Tender fu-
ther.
† Heb.
Abrech.

44 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I am Pharaoh, and without thee shall no man lift up his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt.

25. — The dream of Pharaoh is one:] One and the same thing is represented by two several figures. Bp. Patrick.

28. This is the thing which I have spoken &c.] I have told the king in short, what God is about to effect. Bp. Patrick.

29. — seven years of great plenty] This history of Joseph foretelling the seven years of plenty, and then seven years of famine, and of Egypt preserved thereby, was remembered by the Egyptians, and told by them to Trogus Pompeius, out of whom Justin recites it, though not naming Joseph's name. Dr. Wall.

30. — all the plenty shall be forgotten] It shall be as if it had not been at all, by reason of the succeeding famine. Bp. Kidder.

35. — gather all the food] The fifth part of the growth, as before stated. Bp. Patrick.

36. — the land perish not] That is, the people of the land. Bp. Patrick.

38. — a man in whom the Spirit of God is?] Pharaoh forms this conclusion from the interpretation which Joseph had given of his dream; compare Dan. v. 11; as also from Joseph's words before, ver. 16. Bp. Kidder.

40. — shall all my people be ruled:] In the margin it is kiss; as it signifies in the second Psalm, "Kiss the Son," that is, submit to Him and obey Him. Bp. Patrick.

Bp. Pococke, when he describes the Egyptian compliments, tells us, that on persons taking any thing from the hand of a superiour, or that is sent from such an one, they kiss it, and as the highest respect put it to their foreheads. The same custom prevails in other Eastern countries. Is not this what Pharaoh refers to in this passage? "according unto thy word," or on account of thy word, "shall all my people kiss:" that is, I imagine, the orders of Joseph were to be received with the greatest respect by all, and kissed by the most illustrious princes of Egypt. Harmer.

42. — took off his ring &c.] Both in token of the dignity to which he was preferred, and that he might seal letters or patents in the king's name. Bp. Patrick.

— vestures of fine linen,] Not "silk," as in the margin; nor common linen; but that which the ancients called Byssus; a sort of linen very pure and soft, and very dear. In garments made of this great men only were clothed; kings themselves, it appears by Solomon, being arrayed in such vestures. Bp. Patrick.

44. — without thee shall no man lift up &c.] No man shall have power to do any thing without thy leave, at least not against thy will. Bp. Kidder.

We have now followed Joseph to the height of his advancement. We have seen him in all the several parts of his life virtuous and religious; patient and courageous under the greatest misfortunes; and modest and temperate in the greatest successes. His virtue indeed had been for some time ill requited. He was imprisoned by his master, for being just and faithful to him, in a point, in which his peace and honour were in the greatest degree concerned. Yet, though he suffered, his own innocence gave

Before
CHRIST
1715.

|| Or,
prince.

about 1715.

45 And Pharaoh called Joseph's name Zaphnath-paaneah; and he gave him to wife Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah || priest of On. And Joseph went out over all the land of Egypt.

46 ¶ And Joseph was thirty years old when he stood before Pharaoh king of Egypt. And Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh, and went throughout all the land of Egypt.

47 And in the seven plenteous years the earth brought forth by handfuls.

48 And he gathered up all the food of the seven years, which were in the land of Egypt, and laid up the food in the cities: the food of the field, which was round about every city, laid he up in the same.

49 And Joseph gathered corn as the sand of the sea, very much, until he left numbering; for it was without number.

^d Chap. 46.
20. & 48. 5.

50^d And unto Joseph were born two sons before the years of famine came, which Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah || priest of On bare unto him.

|| Or,
prince.
about 1712.

51 And Joseph called the name of the firstborn || Manasseh: For God, said he, hath made me forget all my toil, and all my father's house.

|| That is,
forgetting.

52 And the name of the second called he || Ephraim: For God hath caused me to be fruitful in the land of my affliction.

Before
CHRIST
about 1711.
|| That is,
fruitful.

53 ¶ And the seven years of plenteousness, that was in the land of Egypt, were ended.

1703.

54^c And the seven years of dearth began to come, according as Joseph had said: and the dearth was in all lands; but in all the land of Egypt there was bread.

^c Psal. 105.
16.

55 And when all the land of Egypt was famished, the people cried to Pharaoh for bread: and Pharaoh said unto all the Egyptians, Go unto Joseph; what he saith to you, do.

56 And the famine was over all the face of the earth: And Joseph opened † all the storehouses, and sold unto the Egyptians; and the famine waxed sore in the land of Egypt.

† Heb.
all wherein was,

57 And all countries came into Egypt to Joseph for to buy corn; because that the famine was so sore in all lands.

CHAP. XLII.

1 Jacob sendeth his ten sons to buy corn in Egypt. 16 They are imprisoncd by Joseph for spies. 18 They are set at liberty, on condition to bring Benjamin.

him some comfort, and the Spirit of God greater. He resigned himself up entirely to the Divine will; as knowing, that whatever happens, it will "work together for good to them that love God." The Divine workings are indeed many times to us unsearchable; but they are always managed by infinite goodness and wisdom. Joseph trusted in God; who not only delivered him from the prison, where he had been confined, but at once advanced him to be first minister to the king of Egypt. Such was the reward of his piety! And thus was it done to that person, whom the Lord delighted to honour. Bp. Conybeare.

45. And Pharaoh called Joseph's name &c.] It was an ancient custom among Eastern princes, on their promotion of a favourite, to give him a new name. Thus Nebuchadnezzar did to Daniel and his companions in Babylon: and to this day the Mogul never advances a man, without giving him a new name, significant of something belonging to him. Joseph's new name signified a revealer of secrets; or, more probably, a prime minister, or, the prince of lords. Stackhouse.

— priest of On.] Or "prince" of On, as in the margin; for the original word signifies both priest and prince. Bp. Patrick. On among the Egyptians signifies the sun. Hence the city On was uniformly rendered Heliopolis, or the city of the sun. The authors of the Greek version call Poti-pherah, priest of Heliopolis. Bryant.

— And Joseph went out over all the land of Egypt.] To see what places were fittest for stores. Bp. Patrick.

As soon as Joseph was invested with full power over the dominions of Pharaoh, he immediately took a survey of the land, and entered on proper measures to discharge the office he had undertaken. He did not consider his advancement, as intended merely to give him a figure, and to gratify his own pride and vanity. He knew that this was intended for the publick good; to enable him to do some general service; and to preserve life. This is indeed the design of Providence, whenever a person is advanced to any station of figure and fortune. And consequently men should consider, that the more they enjoy, they are accountable for so much the more; and, as they are capable of doing the more good, so by neglecting these opportunities they expose themselves to the greater punishments. Bp. Conybeare.

51. — forget all my toil, and all my father's house.] God did for certain purposes order it so; or else it might be counted a wonder, that in all this time he did not send to his father. Dr. Wall.

57. And all countries came into Egypt to Joseph] The history of Joseph is a strong and plain example of the circuitous providence of God; that is to say, of His bringing about the ends and purposes of His providence, by seemingly casual and unsuspected means. That is a high doctrine, both of natural and revealed religion; and is clearly exemplified in this history. It is an useful example, at the same time, of the protection and final reward of virtue, though for a season oppressed and calumniated, or carried through a long series of distresses and misfortunes. I say it is an useful example, if duly understood, and not urged too far. It shows the protection of Providence to be with virtue under all its difficulties; and this being believed upon good grounds, it is enough: for the virtuous man will be assured, that this protection will keep him in and through all stages of his existence: living and dying he is in its hands; and for the same reason that it accompanies him, like an invisible guardian, through his trials, it will finally recompense him. This is the true application of that doctrine of a directing Providence, which is illustrated by the history of Joseph, as it relates to ourselves: I mean as it relates to those, who are looking forward to a future state. If we draw from it an opinion, or an expectation, that, because Joseph was at length rewarded with riches and honours, therefore we shall be the same, we carry the example farther than it will bear. It proves that virtue is under the protection of God, and will ultimately be taken care of, and rewarded: but in what manner, and in what stage of our existence, whether in the present, or the future, or in both, is left open by the example: and both may and must depend upon reasons, in a great measure unknown to and incalculable by us. Archdeacon Paley.

Before
CHRIST
1707.

21 They have remorse for Joseph. 24 Simcon is kept for a pledge. 25 They return with corn, and their money. 29 Their relation to Jacob. 36 Jacob refuseth to send Benjamin.

* Acts 7. 12.

NOW when ^a Jacob saw that there was corn in Egypt, Jacob said unto his sons, Why do ye look one upon another?

2 And he said, Behold, I have heard that there is corn in Egypt: get you down thither, and buy for us from thence; that we may live, and not die.

3 ¶ And Joseph's ten brethren went down to buy corn in Egypt.

4 But Benjamin, Joseph's brother, Jacob sent not with his brethren; for he said, Lest peradventure mischief befall him.

5 And the sons of Israel came to buy corn among those that came: for the famine was in the land of Canaan.

6 And Joseph was the governor over the land, and he it was that sold to all the people of the land: and Joseph's brethren came, and bowed down themselves before him with their faces to the earth.

† Heb. hard things with them.

7 And Joseph saw his brethren, and he knew them, but made himself strange unto them, and spake † roughly unto them; and he said unto them, Whence come ye? And they said, From the land of Canaan to buy food.

8 And Joseph knew his brethren, but they knew not him.

* Chap. 37.
5.

9 And Joseph ^b remembered the dreams which he dreamed of them, and said unto them, Ye are spies; to see the nakedness of the land ye are come.

Before
CHRIST
1707.

10 And they said unto him, Nay, my lord, but to buy food are thy servants come.

11 We are all one man's sons; we are true men, thy servants are no spies.

12 And he said unto them, Nay, but to see the nakedness of the land ye are come.

13 And they said, Thy servants are twelve brethren, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan; and, behold, the youngest is this day with our father, and one is not.

14 And Joseph said unto them, That is it that I spake unto you, saying, Ye are spies:

15 Hereby ye shall be proved: By the life of Pharaoh ye shall not go forth hence, except your youngest brother come hither.

16 Send one of you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be † kept in prison, that your words may be proved, whether there be any truth in you: or else by the life of Pharaoh surely ye are spies.

† Heb.
bound.

17 And he † put them all together into ward three days.

† Heb. gathered.

18 And Joseph said unto them the third day, This do, and live; for I fear God:

19 If ye be true men, let one of your brethren be bound in the house of your prison: go ye, carry corn for the famine of your houses:

20 But ^cbring your youngest brother unto me; so shall your words be verified, and ye shall not die. And they did so. ^c Chap. 43. 5.

21 ¶ And they said one to another, We are verily guilty concerning our brother, in Chap. XLII. ver. 1. — when Jacob saw &c.] The Scripture sometimes puts seeing for hearing. "All the people saw the thunderings," Exod. xx. 18. And so here, when Jacob saw, that is, when Jacob heard, as it is expressed Acts vii. 12. Bp. Kidder.

6. — bowed down themselves before him] By so doing, they unwittingly fulfilled his dream, Gen. xxxvii. 7, &c. Bp. Patrick.

7. — and spake roughly unto them;] This was the properest way of bringing them to a sense of their sin against him; and it had that effect. Bp. Wilson.

9. — Ye are spies;] These words were not spoken by way of affirmation, but of probation or trial: such as judges use, when they examine suspected persons, or inquire into a crime, of which men are accused. And therefore they have the force of an interrogation, Are ye not spies? Or, I must take you for spies, till ye prove the contrary. Bp. Patrick.

To conceive the full force and heinousness of this charge, it is necessary to state briefly the situation of Egypt at this time. In the reign of Timaus or Thamuz, Egypt had been invaded and subdued by a tribe of Cushite shepherds from Arabia, who cruelly enslaved the whole country, under a dynasty of six kings, until, at length, the native princes, weary of their tyranny, rebelled, and after a long war of thirty years shook off the yoke, and expelled the shepherds to Palestine, where they became the Philistines, about twenty-seven years before Joseph's administration. But the memory of their tyranny was still fresh in the minds of the Egyptians, so that "every shepherd was an abomination unto the Egyptians," Gen. xlv. 34. And they could not endure to "eat bread with the Hebrews," because they were shepherds, and came from the neighbourhood of Palestine. Dr. Hales.

— to see the nakedness of the land] The weakest and most undefended places. Egypt was most liable to incursions on the side towards Canaan, whence Joseph's brethren came. On other sides it was secured by large deserts and shallow seas. Bp. Kidder, Stackhouse.

11. We are all one man's sons;] And no man would send all his sons on so dangerous an enterprise. Nor was it probable that one man could have a design on Egypt, but all the great men of Canaan must have joined in it; and then they would have sent men of different families. Bp. Patrick.

13. — and one is not.] He is dead. So they thought, having heard nothing of Joseph for twenty years. Bp. Patrick.

17. — into ward three days.] He made them taste for three days the sufferings he had undergone for three years; and probably in the very same state prison. Dr. Hales.

18. — for I fear God:] I know there is a God, who will punish all injustice and cruelty; therefore ye may expect justice from me. Bps. Patrick and Wilson.

21. — We are verily guilty concerning our brother, &c.] Under the direction of that blessed Spirit, whose office, we are told, it is to "convince or convict the world of sin," such conviction is that we saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not hear; therefore is this distress come upon us.

Before
CHRIST
1707.

* Chap. 37.
21.

22 And Reuben answered them, saying, ^d Spake I not unto you, saying, Do not sin against the child; and ye would not hear? therefore, behold, also his blood is required.

† Heb.
an interpreter was between them.

23 And they knew not that Joseph understood them; for [†] he spake unto them by an interpreter.

24 And he turned himself about from them, and wept; and returned to them again, and communed with them, and took from them Simeon, and bound him before their eyes.

25 ¶ Then Joseph commanded to fill their sacks with corn, and to restore every man's money into his sack, and to give them provision for the way: and thus did he unto them.

26 And they laded their asses with the corn, and departed thence.

27 And as one of them opened his sack to give his ass provender in the inn, he espied his money; for, behold, it was in his sack's mouth.

† Heb.
went forth.

28 And he said unto his brethren, My money is restored; and, lo, it is even in my sack: and their heart [†] failed them, and they were afraid, saying one to another, What is this that God hath done unto us?

29 ¶ And they came unto Jacob their father unto the land of Canaan, and told him all that befell unto them; saying,

† Heb. with us hard things.

30 The man, who is the lord of the land, spake [†] roughly to us, and took us for spies of the country.

31 And we said unto him, We are true men; we are no spies:

produced by various means; by disappointments, by crosses, by losses, by sickness, by the death of a friend, by a passage in Scripture, or a discourse upon one, by the incidents of common life, or the changes that happen in the natural world: in short, there is hardly a circumstance of so trivial a nature, but that a kind Providence, in some instance or other, has been pleased to make it instrumental to this salutary purpose. On the brethren of Joseph, after an interval of more than twenty years, the conviction was wrought by the usage they experienced from him, when unknown, in Egypt. It put them upon reflecting, of what offence they could have been guilty in the former part of life, which might deserve to be punished in this particular manner. Conscience stepped forth, and gave the necessary information, "We are verily guilty concerning our brother: therefore is this distress come upon us." Bp. Horne.

24. And he turned himself about from them, and wept;] Human nature is ever uniform; and the greater passions, such as those of friendship and natural affection, shew themselves to be the same at all times. Of this we have an instance in that amiable domestic story of Joseph. This Patriarch had been cruelly injured by

Before
CHRIST
1707.

32 We be twelve brethren, sons of our father; one is not, and the youngest is this day with our father in the land of Canaan.

33 And the man, the lord of the country, said unto us, Hereby shall I know that ye are true men; leave one of your brethren here with me, and take food for the famine of your households, and be gone:

34 And bring your youngest brother unto me: then shall I know that ye are no spies, but that ye are true men: so will I deliver you your brother, and ye shall traffick in the land.

35 ¶ And it came to pass as they emptied their sacks, that, behold, every man's bundle of money was in his sack: and when both they and their father saw the bundles of money, they were afraid.

36 And Jacob their father said unto them, Me have ye bereaved of my children: Joseph is not, and Simeon is not, and ye will take Benjamin away: all these things are against me.

37 And Reuben spake unto his father, saying, Slay my two sons, if I bring him not to thee: deliver him into my hand, and I will bring him to thee again.

38 And he said, My son shall not go down with you; for his brother is dead, and he is left alone: if mischief befall him by the way in the which ye go, then shall ye bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

CHAP. XLIII.

1 Jacob is hardly persuaded to send Benjamin. 15 Joseph entertaineth his brethren. 31 He maketh them a feast.

AND the famine was sore in the land.
2 And it came to pass, when they his brethren. Providence at length put them into his power; and, in just resentment of their inhuman usage, he thought fit to mortify and humble them: but no sooner did he find them begin to be unhappy, than his anger subsided, violated affection returned, and he melted into their bosoms with all the tenderness of a fellow-sufferer. This was nature: this was history. Bp. Warburton.

— took from them Simeon,] Reuben, who was the eldest, had resolved to save Joseph; and, Judah also being inclined to favour him, had Simeon joined with them, their authority might have prevailed for his deliverance. Simeon was the eldest of those, who had proposed to murder him, and was therefore a fit proxy for the rest: the man, as the Hebrews say, who put Joseph into the pit, and was now very justly served in his kind. Stackhouse.

28. — and their heart failed them, &c.] Their guilt made them afraid; otherwise they would have rejoiced. But all things terrify an evil conscience. Bp. Patrick.

38. — he is left alone:] The only child of Rachel, as Jacob supposed. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
1707.

had eaten up the corn which they had brought out of Egypt, their father said unto them, Go again, buy us a little food.

† Heb. protesting he protested.

* Chap. 42.
20.

3 And Judah spake unto him, saying, The man † did solemnly protest unto us, saying, Ye shall not see my face, except your ^a brother be with you.

4 If thou wilt send our brother with us, we will go down and buy thee food :

5 But if thou wilt not send him, we will not go down : for the man said unto us, Ye shall not see my face, except your brother be with you.

6 And Israel said, Wherefore dealt ye so ill with me, as to tell the man whether ye had yet a brother ?

† Heb.
asking he asked us.

7 And they said, The man † asked us straitly of our state, and of our kindred, saying, Is your father yet alive ? have ye another brother ? and we told him according to the † tenor of these words : † could we certainly know that he would say, Bring your brother down ?

† Heb.
mouth.
† Heb. knowing could we know.

8 And Judah said unto Israel his father, Send the lad with me, and we will arise and go ; that we may live, and not die, both we, and thou, and also our little ones.

* Chap. 44.
32.

9 I will be surety for him ; of my hand shalt thou require him : ^b if I bring him not unto thee, and set him before thee, then let me bear the blame for ever :

|| Or, twice by this.

10 For except we had lingered, surely now we had returned || this second time.

11 And their father Israel said unto them, If it must be so now, do this ; take of the best fruits in the land in your vessels, and carry down the man a present, a little balm, and a little honey, spices, and myrrh, nuts, and almonds :

12 And take double money in your hand ; and the money that was brought again in the mouth of your sacks, carry it again in your hand ; peradventure it was an oversight :

Before
CHRIST
1707.

13 Take also your brother, and arise, go again unto the man :

14 And God Almighty give you mercy before the man, that he may send away your other brother, and Benjamin. || If I be bereaved of my children, I am bereaved. || Or, And I, as I have been, &c.

15 ¶ And the men took that present, and they took double money in their hand, and Benjamin ; and rose up, and went down to Egypt, and stood before Joseph.

16 And when Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to the ruler of his house, Bring these men home, and † slay, and make ready ; for these men shall † dine with me at noon.

† Heb. kill a killing.
† Heb.
eat.

17 And the man did as Joseph bade ; and the man brought the men into Joseph's house.

18 And the men were afraid, because they were brought into Joseph's house ; and they said, Because of the money that was returned in our sacks at the first time are we brought in ; that he may † seek occasion against us, and fall upon us, and take us for bondmen, and our asses.

† Heb.
roll himself upon us.

19 And they came near to the steward of Joseph's house, and they communed with him at the door of the house,

20 And said, O sir, † we came indeed down at the first time to buy food :

* Chap. 42.
3.

21 And it came to pass, when we came to the inn, that we opened our sacks, and, behold, every man's money was in the mouth of his sack, our money in full weight : and we have brought it again in our hand.

† Heb. coming down we came down.

22 And other money have we brought down in our hands to buy food : we cannot tell who put our money in our sacks.

23 And he said, Peace be to you, fear not : your God, and the God of your fa-

Chap. XLIII. ver. 5. — we will not go down :] It would have been to no purpose ; and would also have endangered their lives. Bp. Patrick.

8. — Send the lad with me.] He was the youngest of Jacob's sons, and might therefore be called the young man by those of Jacob's family : though he was at this time the father of several children. The Hebrew word implies, not a stripling, but only a young man. Bp. Kidder. See the note on Jer. i. 6.

10. — except we had lingered, &c.] If thou hadst not hindered us by these scruples about Benjamin, we had been there and at home again by this time. Bp. Patrick.

11. — a little balm,] The balm of Gilead was of great price all the world over, and a small quantity was a present worth acceptance. Stackhouse.

— honey,] For which this country was famous : and therefore it was a fit present for a king, as we see in the story of David, 2 Sam. xvii. 29. Bp. Patrick. Honey was formerly the only sweetener in use, like our sugar : its value consequently was then greater than it is now : it was also a delicacy. Script. illust.

— nuts,] Such as we call pistachioes. Bp. Patrick. The pistachioes of Syria are the best in the world. Sir J. Chardin.

14. — If I be bereaved &c.] Having taken this course, I entirely commit the success to God, and refer myself to Him. Be it now as it will : " If I be bereaved, I am bereaved." See the like expression, Esth. iv. 16, " If I perish, I perish." Bp. Kidder.

18. And the men were afraid, &c.] They who have not showed mercy are very apt to believe they shall receive none. Bp. Kidder.

23. — Peace be to you,] The Bedoweens retain a great many of the customs and manners we read of in sacred as well as profane history : being, except in their religion, the same people they were two or three thousand years ago. Upon meeting one another they still use the primitive salutation, " Peace be unto you ;" though they have made it a religious compliment, as if they said, Be in a state of salvation. Dr. Shaw.

— your God, and the God of your father, &c.] This steward had learnt of Joseph the knowledge of the true God, and would 1707.

Before
CHRIST

† Heb. your money
came to me.
4 Chap. 19.
1. & 24. 32.

ther, hath given you treasure in your sacks:
† I had your money. And he brought Simeon out unto them.

24 And the man brought the men into Joseph's house, and ^dgave them water, and they washed their feet; and he gave their asses provender.

25 And they made ready the present against Joseph came at noon: for they heard that they should eat bread there.

26 ¶ And when Joseph came home, they brought him the present which was in their hand into the house, and bowed themselves to him to the earth.

† Heb.
peace.
† Heb.
Is there peace to your fu-ther?

27 And he asked them of their † welfare, and said, † Is your father well, the old man of whom ye spake? Is he yet alive?

28 And they answered, Thy servant our father is in good health, he is yet alive.
And they bowed down their heads, and made obeisance.

29 And he lifted up his eyes, and saw his brother Benjamin, his mother's son, and said, Is this your younger brother, of whom ye spake unto me? And he said, God be gracious unto thee, my son.

30 And Joseph made haste; for his bowels did yern upon his brother: and he sought where to weep; and he entered into his chamber, and wept there.

31 And he washed his face, and went out, and refrained himself, and said, Set on bread.

have these men acknowledge God's providence in what had befallen them. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

28. — Thy servant our father &c.] Thus Jacob by his sons paid homage to Joseph; and so was fulfilled that part of the dream, which related to him, Gen. xxxvii. 10. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

29. — God be gracious unto thee, my son.] He blessed him, as superiors were wont to do to those below them: calling them sons, with reference to themselves as fathers of the country. Bp.
Patrick.

32. — because the Egyptians might not eat &c.] See the note above from Dr. Hales, on chap. xlii. 9.

33. — the men marvelled one at another.] That they should be so exactly disposed according to the order of their birth; and so kindly treated by one, who had lately used them so roughly.
Bp. Patrick.

34. And he took and sent messes &c.] The ancient manner of eating was, for every one to have one or more dishes to himself.
The whole of these dishes were set before the master of the feast, and he distributed to every one his portion. As a mark of particular esteem for Benjamin, Joseph sent him five dishes to the others' one; or five times as much meat in his mess, as in one of their's. Bp. Patrick.

In Persia, Arabia, and the Indies, a carver parts each dish, which is set before the master of the house, or the principal guest, or in the middle of the hall, into as many portions, put into different plates, as there are people to eat. The great men of the state are always by themselves in the feasts that are made for them, and have a greater profusion; their part of each kind of provision being always double, treble, or a larger proportion of 32 And they set on for him by himself, and for them by themselves, and for the Egyptians, which did eat with him, by themselves: because the Egyptians might not eat bread with the Hebrews; for that is an abomination unto the Egyptians.

33 And they sat before him, the first-born according to his birthright, and the youngest according to his youth: and the men marvelled one at another.

34 And he took and sent messes unto them from before him: but Benjamin's mess was five times so much as any of their's. And they drank, and were † merry with him.

Before
CHRIST
1707.

† Heb.
they drank largely.

CHAP. XLIV.

1 Joseph's policy to stay his brethren. 14 Judah's humble supplication to Joseph.

AND he commanded † the steward of his house, saying, Fill the men's sacks with food, as much as they can carry, and put every man's money in his sack's mouth.

† Heb. him that was over his house.

2 And put my cup, the silver cup, in the sack's mouth of the youngest, and his corn money. And he did according to the word that Joseph had spoken.

3 As soon as the morning was light, the men were sent away, they and their asses.

4 And when they were gone out of the city, and not yet far off, Joseph said unto his steward, Up, follow after the men; and when thou dost overtake them, say unto each kind of meat. As for Benjamin's mess being five times as much as any of his brethren's, it may be understood to mean, that he had five times as much of every thing as they; or that the vessel, in which he was served, was five times larger: but the first notion agrees best with the customs and manners of the East.

Sir J. Chardin.

Chap. XLIV. ver. 1. — Fill the men's sacks with food,] There are two sorts of sacks, noticed in the history of Joseph, which ought not to be confounded: one for the corn, the other for the baggage, &c. Through all Asia, as far as to the Indies, every thing is carried upon beasts of burden, in sacks of wool, covered in the middle with leather, down to the bottom, the better to resist water. They inclose in them their things, done up in large parcels. Of this kind of sacks we are to understand what is said here, and through this history; and not of the sacks in which they carried their corn. Otherwise we must believe that each of the Patriarchs carried but one sack of corn out of Egypt, which is not reasonable. The present text confirms this remark; for Joseph ordered the steward to fill the sacks with victuals as much as they could hold; which presupposes they were not full of corn. Another proof is in chap. xlii. 27, "One of them opened his sack to give his ass provender in the inn:" for if this sack had been a sack of wheat, it would follow, that they gave their beasts of burden wheat for food, which is not at all probable.
Sir J. Chardin.

2. — put my cup, &c.] Joseph, having before honoured Benjamin, now tries the temper of his brethren, whether moved with envy they would give him up, or help him in his danger. Bp.
Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
1707.

them, Wherefore have ye rewarded evil for good?

¶ Or, maketh trial.

5 Is not this it in which my lord drinketh, and whereby indeed he || divineth? ye have done evil in so doing.

6 ¶ And he overtook them, and he spake unto them these same words.

7 And they said unto him, Wherefore saith my lord these words? God forbid that thy servants should do according to this thing:

8 Behold, the money, which we found in our sacks' mouths, we brought again unto thee out of the land of Canaan: how then should we steal out of thy lord's house silver or gold?

9 With whomsoever of thy servants it be found, both let him die, and we also will be my lord's bondmen.

10 And he said, Now also let it be according unto your words: he with whom it is found shall be my servant; and ye shall be blameless.

11 Then they speedily took down every man his sack to the ground, and opened every man his sack.

12 And he searched, and began at the eldest, and left at the youngest: and the cup was found in Benjamin's sack.

13 Then they rent their clothes, and laded every man his ass, and returned to the city.

14 ¶ And Judah and his brethren came to Joseph's house; for he was yet there: and they fell before him on the ground.

¶ Or, make trial.

15 And Joseph said unto them, What deed is this that ye have done? wot ye not that such a man as I can certainly || divine?

16 And Judah said, What shall we say unto my lord? what shall we speak? or how shall we clear ourselves? God hath found out the iniquity of thy servants: behold, we are my lord's servants, both we, and he also with whom the cup is found.

5. — whereby — he divineth?] This does not signify that Joseph practised divination, nor does his steward say that he did; but only asks such a question, as might make them think he did. For being a known interpreter of dreams, people perhaps thought he was skilled in the arts of divination. But the word, rendered "divineth," sometimes signifies no more than to make an experiment, as in the words of Laban, chap. xxx. 27. The meaning then may be, Might you not have considered, that my master made a trial, (so we interpret it in the margin,) by laying this in your way, whether you were honest men or thieves? Bp. Patrick.

The verse may be rendered, "Why have ye stolen the cup, in which my lord drinketh? He indeed hath conjectured rightly concerning it, and you have done wickedly." The verb, rendered "divineth," signifies, not only auguries, but conjecture: and the original admits of an application not only to the instrument, which one uses, but also to the subject, concerning which any 1707.

Before
CHRIST

17 And he said, God forbid that I should do so: but the man in whose hand the cup is found, he shall be my servant; and as for you, get you up in peace unto your father.

18 ¶ Then Judah came near unto him, and said, Oh my lord, let thy servant, I pray thee, speak a word in my lord's ears, and let not thine anger burn against thy servant: for thou art even as Pharaoh.

19 My lord asked his servants, saying, Have ye a father, or a brother?

20 And we said unto my lord, We have a father, an old man, and a child of his old age, a little one; and his brother is dead, and he alone is left of his mother, and his father loveth him.

21 And thou saidst unto thy servants, Bring him down unto me, that I may set mine eyes upon him.

22 And we said unto my lord, The lad cannot leave his father: for if he should leave his father, his father would die.

23 And thou saidst unto thy servants, ^a Except your youngest brother come down with you, ye shall see my face no more. ^a Chap. 43. 3.

24 And it came to pass when we came up unto thy servant my father, we told him the words of my lord.

25 And our father said, Go again, and buy us a little food.

26 And we said, We cannot go down: if our youngest brother be with us, then will we go down: for we may not see the man's face, except our youngest brother be with us.

27 And thy servant my father said unto us, Ye know that my wife bare me two sons:

28 And the one went out from me, and I said, ^b Surely he is torn in pieces; and I saw him not since: ^b Chap. 37. 33.

29 And if ye take this also from me, and mischief befall him, ye shall bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

30 Now therefore when I come to thy thing is done, judged, or said. The steward means, that his lord had made a certain conjecture concerning his cup, where it was; and the words of Joseph, ver. 15, have the same meaning: "Wot ye not that such a man as I can certainly divine?" Knew ye not that such a man as I could form a right conjecture? that is, that I, who can interpret dreams and foretell future events, must be able to form an immediate and true conjecture concerning all things, and that therefore I should suspect you? Houbigant.

16. — God hath found out the iniquity &c.] He ingeniously acknowledges that he and his brethren had been guilty of many sins, for which God had now brought them hither to suffer punishment. Yet he neither confesses this particular guilt, nor denies it, nor excuses it; but acknowledging God's justice, throws himself and his brethren upon Joseph's mercy. Bp. Patrick.

He meant their cruelty to Joseph, whom probably they now named, and began afresh to reproach each other with, as in chap. xlii. 21, &c. As Josephus thinks. Pyle.

Before
CHRIST
1707.

servant my father,' and the lad be not with us; seeing that his life is bound up in the lad's life;

31 It shall come to pass, when he seeth that the lad is not with us, that he will die: and thy servants shall bring down the gray hairs of thy servant our father with sorrow to the grave.

32 For thy servant became surety for the lad unto my father, saying, 'If I bring him not unto thee, then I shall bear the blame to my father for ever.

33 Now therefore, I pray thee, let thy servant abide instead of the lad a bondman to my lord; and let the lad go up with his brethren.

34 For how shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me? lest peradventure I see the evil that shall † come on my father.

† Heb.
find my father.

CHAP. XLV.

1 Joseph maketh himself known to his brethren. 5 He comforteth them in God's providence. 9 He sendeth for his father. 16 Pharaoh confirmeth it. 21 Joseph furnisheth them for their journey, and exhorteth them to concord. 25 Jacob is revived with the news.

THEN Joseph could not refrain himself before all them that stood by him; and he cried, Cause every man to

33. — let thy servant abide &c.] Thus God makes use of afflictions, to humble us, and bring us to a sense of our sins: and we see their power in this very instance. He who could not endure Joseph, because he was dear to his father, is willing, for the very same reason, to become a bond-slave for Joseph's brother. Bp. Wilson.

34. For how shall I go up to my father,] I must abide here too, if thou wilt not dismiss him; for I am not able to see my father die.

Nothing could be said more affecting, than this speech of Judah, which flowed from such natural passions, as no art can imitate. Which makes me wish, that they who think these historical books of Scripture were written with no spirit, but that with which honest men now write the history of their country, or the lives of any famous persons, would seriously read and consider this speech of Judah's to Joseph, together with the foregoing dialogue between Jacob and his sons: and I hope it may make them change their opinions, and be of the mind of Dr. Jackson, "That seeing such passages are related by men, who affect no art, and who lived long after the parties that first uttered them, we cannot conceive how all particulars could be so naturally and fully recorded, unless they had been suggested by His Spirit, who gives mouth and speech to men." Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XLV. ver. 1. Then Joseph could not refrain himself] The circumstances of this discovery are very remarkable, and serve strongly to illustrate the filial piety of Joseph. He had prepared, we read in the foregoing chapter, to detain Benjamin: the rest being perplexed beyond measure, and distressed by this proposal, Judah, approaching Joseph, presents a most earnest supplication for the deliverance of the lad; offers himself to remain Joseph's prisoner, or slave, in his brother's place; and in the conclusion touches, unknowingly, upon a string, which vibrates with all the affections of the person, whom he was addressing. "How shall go out from me. And there stood no man with him, while Joseph made himself known unto his brethren.

Before
CHRIST
1707.

2 And he † wept aloud: and the Egyptians and the house of Pharaoh heard.

† Heb. gave forth his voice in weeping.

3 And Joseph said unto his brethren, 'I am Joseph; doth my father yet live? And his brethren could not answer him; for they were ‖ troubled at his presence.

2 Acts 7.
13.

4 And Joseph said unto his brethren, Come near to me, I pray you. And they came near. And he said, I am Joseph your brother, whom ye sold into Egypt.

‖ Or, terrified.

5 Now therefore be not grieved, nor † angry with yourselves, that ye sold me hither: ^b for God did send me before you to preserve life.

† Heb.
neither let there be anger in your eyes.
20.
1706.

6 For these two years hath the famine been in the land: and yet there are five years, in the which there shall neither be earing nor harvest.

7 And God sent me before you to † preserve you a posterity in the earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance.

† Heb. to put for you a remnant.

8 So now it was not you that sent me hither, but God: and he hath made me a father to Pharaoh, and lord of all his house, and a ruler throughout all the land of Egypt.

9 Haste ye, and go up to my father, and

I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me? lest peradventure I see the evil that shall come on my father." The mention of this circumstance and this person subdued immediately the heart of Joseph; and produced a sudden, and, as it should seem, an undesigned premature discovery of himself to his astonished family. Then, that is, upon this circumstance being mentioned, "Joseph could not refrain himself:" and, after a little preparation, "Joseph said unto his brethren, I am Joseph." Archdeacon Paley.

5. — for God did send me before you] When you thought only to be rid of me, God intended another thing, which is now come to pass. For He hath made me an instrument of preserving all your lives. A most happy event of a most wicked deed. Bp. Patrick.

God's thoughts are not as men's thoughts, nor His ways like our ways. In our transactions with the world, we are too apt to be actuated by some irregular passion, and to be so far from aiming at the glory of God, or the welfare of our brethren, that we often grossly neglect them both, and sacrifice them to the gratification of our own desires. But He, to whom alone belong the property and the power to bring good out of evil, so orders the unruly wills and affections of sinful men, as to make them subservient to the fulfilling of His decrees, when they least intend it. Reading.

6. — neither be earing nor harvest.] The word "earing" suggests the idea of gathering ripe ears of corn: whereas Joseph means to say, "there shall be neither ploughing nor harvest during five years." "Earing" is an old English word for "ploughing:" the word is used in the same sense in 1 Sam. viii. 12; Exod. xxxiv. 21; Isai. xxx. 24. In Deut. xxi. 4, it occurs in the sense of tillage, general labour, labour of any kind bestowed upon the ground. Fragments to Calmet.

8. — made me a father to Pharaoh,] Given me the authority of a father with him, so that he honours me, and does nothing without my advice and counsel. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1706.

say unto him, Thus saith thy son Joseph, God hath made me lord of all Egypt: come down unto me, tarry not:

10 And thou shalt dwell in the land of Goshen, and thou shalt be near unto me, thou, and thy children, and thy children's children, and thy flocks, and thy herds, and all that thou hast:

11 And there will I nourish thee; for yet there are five years of famine; lest thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, come to poverty.

12 And, behold, your eyes see, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin, that it is my mouth that speaketh unto you.

13 And ye shall tell my father of all my glory in Egypt, and of all that ye have seen; and ye shall haste and bring down my father hither.

14 And he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck, and wept; and Benjamin wept upon his neck.

15 Moreover he kissed all his brethren, and wept upon them: and after that his brethren talked with him.

16 ¶ And the fame thereof was heard in Pharaoh's house, saying, Joseph's brethren are come: and it † pleased Pharaoh well, and his servants.

† Heb. was good in the eyes of Pharaoh.

17 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Say unto thy brethren, This do ye; lade your beasts, and go, get you unto the land of Canaan;

18 And take your father and your households, and come unto me: and I will give you the good of the land of Egypt, and ye shall eat the fat of the land.

10. — the land of Goshen,] Part of lower Egypt, next to Arabia and Palestine; abounding with fair pastures, and watered by many streams from the Nile. Bp. Patrick.

14. — he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck, &c.] Among the Bedowees, those who are more intimately acquainted, or are of equal age and dignity, mutually kiss the hand, head, or shoulder of each other. Dr. Shaw.

Those passages in the Bible, which speak of falling on the neck and kissing a person, seem to have a reference to this Eastern way of kissing the shoulder in an embrace. Harmer.

15. Moreover he kissed all his brethren,] Here is noble matter of instruction. The affectionate brother forgets his past sufferings, and is so far from endeavouring to avenge himself, and to afflict the authors of his wrongs, that he employs his whole power to comfort and relieve them. A behaviour this, different from what most men would be inclined to discover on the like occasion: the sense of injuries is apt to bear too hard on the mind; and men are transported into measures both mischievous and unreasonable. Bp. Conybeare.

19. Now thou art commanded, this do] Now that thou hast received my warrant for it, go about it immediately. Bp. Patrick.

20. — regard not your stuff;] Your furniture, or moveables. If you are not able to bring it all, do not care for it: you shall have better here. Bp. Patrick.

19 Now thou art commanded, this do ye; take you wagons out of the land of Egypt for your little ones, and for your wives, and bring your father, and come.

Before
CHRIST
1706.

20 Also † regard not your stuff; for the good of all the land of Egypt is your's.

† Heb.
let not your eye spare,
&c.

21 And the children of Israel did so: and Joseph gave them wagons, according to the † commandment of Pharaoh, and gave them provision for the way.

† Heb.
mouth.

22 To all of them he gave each man changes of raiment; but to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver, and five changes of raiment.

23 And to his father he sent after this manner; ten asses † laden with the good things of Egypt, and ten she asses laden with corn and bread and meat for his father by the way.

† Heb.
carrying.

24 So he sent his brethren away, and they departed: and he said unto them, See that ye fall not out by the way.

25 ¶ And they went up out of Egypt, and came into the land of Canaan unto Jacob their father, 26 And told him, saying, Joseph is yet alive, and he is governor over all the land of Egypt. And † Jacob's heart fainted, for he believed them not.

† Heb. his.

27 And they told him all the words of Joseph, which he had said unto them: and when he saw the wagons which Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of Jacob their father revived:

28 And Israel said, It is enough; Joseph my son is yet alive: I will go and see him before I die.

22. — to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver,] Sir John Chardin observes on this occasion, that the kings of Asia almost always make presents of this kind to ambassadors, and to other strangers of consideration, who have brought them presents. So the khalif Mahadi, according to d'Herbelot, gave an Arab, that had entertained him in the desert, a vest and a purse of silver. Harmer.

24. — See that ye fall not out by the way.] About what you have formerly done to me; or any thing else that I have said to you. But when you reflect on your selling me, adore the providence of God, which by that means brought about your happiness and mine. Bp. Patrick.

Considering the bad disposition of mankind in general, and the bad disposition, which he knew by experience had formerly appeared in some of them, he gave them a charge, not to fall out by the way; but to travel peaceably like brethren, and make their journey as comfortable to each other as they could. Gilpin.

28. — It is enough; Joseph my son is yet alive:] Two things his sons told him; namely, that Joseph was alive, and that he was governor of Egypt. And the latter of the two Joseph required them to tell his father. But for Joseph's glory and dominion Jacob does not rejoice, as one greatly affected with it. It was his life that gave him the joy: he said, "It is enough; Joseph my son is yet alive." Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
1706.

CHAP. XLVI.

1 Jacob is comforted by God at Beer-sheba: 5 Thence he with his company goeth into Egypt. 8 The number of his family that went into Egypt. 28 Joseph meeteth Jacob. 31 He instructeth his brethren how to answer to Pharaoh.

AND Israel took his journey with all that he had, and came to Beer-sheba, and offered sacrifices unto the God of his father Isaac.

2 And God spake unto Israel in the visions of the night, and said, Jacob, Jacob. And he said, Here am I.

3 And he said, I am God, the God of thy father: fear not to go down into Egypt; for I will there make of thee a great nation:

4 I will go down with thee into Egypt; and I will also surely bring thee up again: and Joseph shall put his hand upon thine eyes.

5 And Jacob rose up from Beer-sheba: and the sons of Israel carried Jacob their father, and their little ones, and their wives, in the wagons which Pharaoh had sent to carry him.

6 And they took their cattle, and their goods, which they had gotten in the land of Canaan, and came into Egypt, ^a Jacob, and all his seed with him:

7 His sons, and his sons' sons with him, his daughters, and his sons' daughters, and all his seed brought he with him into Egypt.

8 ¶ And ^b these are the names of the children of Israel, which came into Egypt, Jacob and his sons: ^c Reuben, Jacob's first-born.

9 And the sons of Reuben; Hanoch, and Phallu, and Hezron, and Carmi.

10 ¶ And ^d the sons of Simeon; Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad, and Jachin, and Zohar, and Shaul the son of a Canaanitish woman.

11 ¶ And the sons of ^e Levi; Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

12 ¶ And the sons of ^f Judah; Er, and Onan, and Shelah, and Pharez, and Zarah: but Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan. And the sons of Pharez were Hezron and Hamul.

13 ¶ ^g And the sons of Issachar; Tola, and Phuvah, and Job, and Shimron.

14 ¶ And the sons of Zebulun; Sered, and Elon, and Jahleel.

15 These be the sons of Leah, which she bare unto Jacob in Padan-aram, with his daughter Dinah: all the souls of his sons and his daughters were thirty and three.

16 ¶ And the sons of Gad; Ziphion, and Haggi, Shuni, and Ezbon, Eri, and Arodi, and Areli.

17 ¶ ^h And the sons of Asher; Jimnah, and Ishuah, and Isui, and Beriah, and Serah their sister: and the sons of Beriah; Heber, and Malchiel.

18 These are the sons of Zilpah, whom Laban gave to Leah his daughter, and these she bare unto Jacob, even sixteen souls.

19 The sons of Rachel Jacob's wife; Joseph, and Benjamin.

20 ¶ And unto Joseph in the land of Egypt were born Manasseh and Ephraim, ⁱ which Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah ¶ priest of On bare unto him.

21 ¶ ^k And the sons of Benjamin were Belah, and Becher, and Ashbel, Gera, and Naaman, Ehi, and Rosh, Muppim, and Huppim, and Ard.

22 These are the sons of Rachel, which were born to Jacob: all the souls were fourteen.

23 ¶ And the sons of Dan; Hushim.

24 ¶ And the sons of Naphtali; Jahzeel, and Guni, and Jezer, and Shillem.

25 These are the sons of Bilhah, which Laban gave unto Rachel his daughter, and she bare these unto Jacob: all the souls were seven.

26 ^l All the souls that came with Jacob into Egypt, which came out of his [†] loins, besides Jacob's sons' wives, all the souls were threescore and six;

Before
CHRIST
1706.

^g 1 Chron.
7. 1.

^h 1 Chron.
7. 50.

ⁱ Chap. 41.
50.
¶ Or,
prince.
^k 1 Chron.
7. 6. & 8. 1.

^l Deut. 10.
29.
[†] Heb.
thigh.

^a Josh. 24.
4.
Psal. 105.
23.
Isai. 52. 4.

^b Exod. 1.
1. & 6. 14.
Numb. 26.
8. &
1 Chron.
5. 1.
^c Numb.
26. 5.

^d Exod. 6.
15.
1 Chron. 4.
24.

^e 1 Chron.
6. 1.
^f 1 Chron.
2. 3. & 4.
21.
chap. 38. 3.

Chap. XLVI. ver. 3. — fear not to go down into Egypt;] On several accounts Jacob might fear to go, with his whole family especially, into Egypt. Abraham had been injured there: it had been foretold that his seed should be afflicted by the Egyptians: Isaac had been warned not to go into Egypt: the Egyptians were men of very different usages and manners from the Hebrews: they were also of a different religion, and Jacob besides might fear lest by this means his posterity should be deprived of the land of Canaan. Bp. Kidder.

4. I will go down with thee] Take care of thee in thy journey, and preserve thee and thy family there. Bp. Patrick.

— bring thee up again:] His body was brought into Canaan, and (what seems principally intended) his posterity also returned thither. Bp. Kidder.

— put his hand upon thine eyes.] Be with thee, when thou leavest the world, and take care of thy funeral when thou art dead. The first thing done, when one expired, was to close his eyes, which was performed, both among Greeks and Romans, by the nearest relations or dearest friends. In short, by these words God assures Jacob, that he should die before his son Joseph, and that he should die in peace, with his children about him. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1706.

27 And the sons of Joseph, which were born him in Egypt, were two souls: all the souls of the house of Jacob, which came into Egypt, were threescore and ten.

28 † And he sent Judah before him unto Joseph, to direct his face unto Goshen; and they came into the land of Goshen.

29 And Joseph made ready his chariot, and went up to meet Israel his father, to Goshen, and presented himself unto him; and he fell on his neck, and wept on his neck a good while.

30 And Israel said unto Joseph, Now let me die, since I have seen thy face, because thou art yet alive.

31 And Joseph said unto his brethren, and unto his father's house, I will go up, and shew Pharaoh, and say unto him, My brethren, and my father's house, which were in the land of Canaan, are come unto me;

† Heb.
they are men of cattle.

32 And the men are shepherds, for † their trade hath been to feed cattle; and they have brought their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have.

33 And it shall come to pass, when Pharaoh shall call you, and shall say, What is your occupation?

27. — all the souls, — which came into Egypt, were threescore and ten.] There is a remarkable difference between this verse and the foregoing: there those only are numbered who came with Jacob into Egypt, amounting to no more than threescore and six: but here are numbered all that came into Egypt, first and last, comprehending Jacob, Joseph, and his two sons, and making up threescore and ten. Bp. Patrick.

The whole account of Jacob's sons and grandsons, who went along with him into Egypt, stands thus: by Leah, thirty-two; by Zilpah, sixteen; by Rachel, eleven; by Bilhah, seven: in all sixty-six, exclusive of Jacob himself, and of Joseph and his two sons, which make up the seventy: and it was necessary that these genealogies should be exactly registered, not only to distinguish each tribe, and thereby discover the Messiah, when He came; but (as it is in the case before us) to make it apparent, that the increase of Israel, even under oppression, should bear a fair proportion to the promise made to Abraham, concerning the multiplication of his seed. Stackhouse.

28. And he sent Judah before him] Who seems by the whole story to have been the most eminent among Jacob's children, when Joseph was gone; and to have given good proof, a little before, how much he was concerned for his father. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

— to direct his face unto Goshen;] To give Joseph notice of his coming, and to receive directions in what part of Goshen he should remain. Bp. Patrick.

34. — ye shall say, Thy servants' trade &c. — that ye may dwell in the land of Goshen;] There must have been shepherds in those parts before; otherwise Joseph could not have foreseen, that, on telling their occupation, the land would be necessarily given to his brethren. And when they are presented before the king, he at once determines this place of residence for them, chap. xlvii. 5, 6. They were most probably the Arabian or Cuthite shepherds, who had been previously in possession of this land, from whence they had been lately ejected. The whole kingdom had been in subjection to their kings. But they were obliged to retire, being expelled by the natives. The other parts of the kingdom were immediately occupied. But pasturage being contrary to the taste of

Before
CHRIST
1706.

34 That ye shall say, Thy servants' trade hath been about cattle from our youth even until now, both we, and also our fathers: that ye may dwell in the land of Goshen; for every shepherd is an abomination unto the Egyptians.

CHAP. XLVII.

1 Joseph presenteth five of his brethren, 7 and his father, before Pharaoh. 11 He giveth them habitation and maintenance. 13 He getteth all the Egyptians' money, 16 their cattle, 18 their lands to Pharaoh. 22 The priests' land was not bought. 23 He letteth the land to them for a fifth part. 28 Jacob's age. 29 He sweareth Joseph to bury him with his fathers.

THEN Joseph came and told Pharaoh, and said, My father and my brethren, and their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have, are come out of the land of Canaan; and, behold, they are in the land of Goshen.

2 And he took some of his brethren, even five men, and presented them unto Pharaoh.

3 And Pharaoh said unto his brethren, What is your occupation? And they said unto Pharaoh, Thy servants are shepherds, both we, and also our fathers.

4 They said moreover unto Pharaoh, For to sojourn in the land are we come; for thy the Egyptians, this particular region lay, in a great measure, neglected. Hence we have a satisfactory reason for the Israelites finding such easy access into the country, so as not only to dwell in it, but to have the land of Goshen given them for a possession, even the best of the land of Egypt. Bryant.

— for every shepherd is an abomination &c.] See note on chap. xlii. 9. The promise which God had made to Abraham, to give his posterity the land of Canaan, could not be performed till Abraham's family was grown strong enough to take and keep possession of it. In the mean time therefore they were necessitated to reside among idolaters, and to reside unmixed; but whoever examines their history, will see, that the Israelites ever had a violent propensity to join themselves to Gentile nations, and to practise their manners. God therefore, in His infinite wisdom, brought them into Egypt, and kept them there during this period, the only place, where they could remain for so long a time safe, and unconfounded with the natives: the ancient Egyptians being, by numerous institutions, forbidden all fellowship with strangers, and bearing besides a particular aversion to the profession of the Israelites, who were shepherds. Thus from the Israelites going into Egypt arises a new occasion to adore the footsteps of Eternal Wisdom, in His dispensations to His chosen people. Bp. Warburton.

— is an abomination unto the Egyptians.] It was an instance of Joseph's great modesty and love of truth, that he was not ashamed of an employment, so vile in the sight of the Egyptians. He might have instructed his brethren to conceal their way of life: or he might have told them to lay before Pharaoh the dignity of their descent, and the wonderful history of their forefathers; men, great in their generations, and honoured with revelations from God Himself. But by this open declaration his object seems to have been, to render as conspicuous as possible the wonderful chain of the Divine counsels, in raising him from so humble a condition to an elevation of such dignity and power. Stackhouse.

Chap. XLVII. ver. 4. — to sojourn in the land] Not to settle servants have no pasture for their flocks ; for the famine is sore in the land of Canaan : now therefore, we pray thee, let thy servants dwell in the land of Goshen.

Before
CHRIST
1706.

5 And Pharaoh spake unto Joseph, saying, Thy father and thy brethren are come unto thee :

6 The land of Egypt is before thee ; in the best of the land make thy father and brethren to dwell ; in the land of Goshen let them dwell : and if thou knowest any men of activity among them, then make them rulers over my cattle.

7 And Joseph brought in Jacob his father, and set him before Pharaoh : and Jacob blessed Pharaoh.

8 And Pharaoh said unto Jacob, † How old art thou ?

9 And Jacob said unto Pharaoh, ^a The days of the years of my pilgrimage are an hundred and thirty years : few and evil have the days of the years of my life been, and have not attained unto the days of the years of the life of my fathers in the days of their pilgrimage.

10 And Jacob blessed Pharaoh, and went out from before Pharaoh.

11 ¶ And Joseph placed his father and his brethren, and gave them a possession in the land of Egypt, in the best of the land, in the land of Rameses, as Pharaoh had commanded.

12 And Joseph nourished his father, and his brethren, and all his father's household, with bread, † according to their families.

13 ¶ And there was no bread in all the land ; for the famine was very sore, so that the land of Egypt and all the land of Canaan fainted by reason of the famine.

14 And Joseph gathered up all the money that was found in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, for the corn which they bought : and Joseph brought the money into Pharaoh's house.

15 And when money failed in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, all the Egyptians came unto Joseph, and said, Give us bread : for why should we die in thy presence ? for the money faileth.

16 And Joseph said, Give your cattle ; and I will give you for your cattle, if money fail.

17 And they brought their cattle unto Joseph : and Joseph gave them bread in exchange for horses, and for the flocks, and for the cattle of the herds, and for the asses : and he † fed them with bread for all their cattle for that year.

18 When that year was ended, they came unto him the second year, and said unto him, We will not hide it from my lord, how that our money is spent ; my lord also hath our herds of cattle ; there is not ought left in the sight of my lord, but our bodies, and our lands :

19 Wherefore shall we die before thine

Before
CHRIST
1706.

¶ Or, as a little child is nourished.
† Heb.
according to the little ones.

1702.

† Heb. led them.

1701.

in it ; and therefore they desire Goshen as near to Canaan. Bp. Kidder.

— the famine is sore in the land of Canaan :] Canaan was an high country, when compared with Egypt : and the grass sooner burnt up there than in Goshen, which being very low, they found in it pasture for their flocks. We are told on the authority of those who knew the country, that there was grass in the marshes and fenny parts of Egypt, when the Nile did not overflow enough to make plenty of corn. Bp. Patrick.

6. — make them rulers over my cattle.] As Doeg was to Saul, 1 Sam. xxi. 7, and those great officers, mentioned 1 Chron. xxvii. 29, were to king David. The Eastern kings raised part of their revenue from cattle ; as the Egyptians also did : having some principal officers to superintend the lower sort of shepherds. Bp. Patrick.

9. — pilgrimage] So good men are wont to call their life, though they never stir from their native soil : looking upon it as a passage, not a settlement. But Jacob had reason to call his life so, more literally : having been tossed from place to place, ever since he went from his father's house to Mesopotamia, and returned from thence into Canaan : where he dwelt some time at Succoth ; then at Shechem : and after that removed to Beth-el ; and so to Hebron, unto his father Isaac ; whence he was now come into Egypt. Bp. Patrick.

If we look into the story of those friends and favourites of Heaven, the ancestors of the Israelitish nation, we find them sojourning in a land that was not their's ; dwelling only in tents, soon pitched, and as soon removed again ; having no ground of their own to set their foot on, save only a possession of a buryingplace, and that purchased of the inhabitants ; where they might rest from their travels, till they shall pass, at the resurrection of the just, to their durable inheritance in the kingdom of God. Such was Jacob's notion of human life, expressed in his answer to the Egyptian monarch, who had inquired his age. Bp. Horne.

— few and evil have the days &c.] They had been few, in comparison with his forefathers ; and evil, because full of labour and care, grief and sorrow, on many occasions. Bp. Patrick.

Though Jacob in some respects was a prosperous man, yet he met with many evils. He fled from Esau, and served Laban twenty years ; he was defeated in his hope of Rachel, and she was barren also ; he fled from Laban, and feared Esau ; he was afflicted in Dinah, in Simcon and Levi, and in Reuben, and upon the score of Joseph ; in the sons of Judah, and in Tamar ; besides the death of Rachel and the sending away of Benjamin. Bp. Kidder.

— have not attained unto the days &c.] Though Jacob lived seventeen years after this, he did not attain to " the days of the years of the life of his fathers : " since his father Isaac lived 180 years, and his grandfather Abraham 175. Biblioth. Bibl.

11. — in the land of Rameses,] So called perhaps by anticipation : the Israelites built a city of that name for Pharaoh in the land of Goshen, and the same name was given to the country. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

14. — into Pharaoh's house.] Into the treasury. Bp. Patrick.

18. — second year,] That is, the next year after the sale of their cattle : this was the last year of the famine. Bp. Patrick.

19. Wherefore shall we die, — we and our land ?] The land is said to die, when it lies untilled and desolate. Bp. Patrick.

† Heb.
How many are the days of thy life ?
a Hebr. 11.
9, 13.

Before
CHRIST
1701.

eyes, both we and our land? buy us and our land for bread, and we and our land will be servants unto Pharaoh: and give us seed, that we may live, and not die, that the land be not desolate.

20 And Joseph bought all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh; for the Egyptians sold every man his field, because the famine prevailed over them: so the land became Pharaoh's.

21 And as for the people, he removed them to cities from one end of the borders of Egypt even to the other end thereof.

¶ Or,
princes.

22 Only the land of the ¶ priests bought he not; for the priests had a portion assigned them of Pharaoh, and did eat their portion which Pharaoh gave them: wherefore they sold not their lands.

23 Then Joseph said unto the people, Behold, I have bought you this day and your land for Pharaoh: lo, here is seed for you, and ye shall sow the land.

24 And it shall come to pass in the increase, that ye shall give the fifth part unto Pharaoh, and four parts shall be your own, for seed of the field, and for your food, and for them of your households, and for food for your little ones. Before CHRIST

1701.

25 And they said, Thou hast saved our lives: let us find grace in the sight of my lord, and we will be Pharaoh's servants.

26 And Joseph made it a law over the land of Egypt unto this day, that Pharaoh should have the fifth part; except the land of the ¶ priests only, which became not Pharaoh's. ¶ Or,
princes.

27 ¶ And Israel dwelt in the land of Egypt, in the country of Goshen; and they had possessions therein, and grew, and multiplied exceedingly.

28 And Jacob lived in the land of Egypt seventeen years: so † the whole age of Jacob was an hundred forty and seven years. 1689. † Heb.
the days of the years of his life.

29 And the time drew nigh that Israel must die: and he called his son Joseph, and said unto him, If now I have found grace in thy sight, ^b put, I pray thee, thy ^b hand under my thigh, and deal kindly and truly with me; bury me not, I pray thee, in Egypt: ² b Chap. 24.

30 But I will lie with my fathers, and thou shalt carry me out of Egypt, and bury — we and our land will be servants unto Pharaoh:] We, that are free, will become the king's bondmen; and our land, which was our own, we will hold of him. Bp. Patrick.

— give us seed,] They desired corn, not merely for food, but also to sow, in hopes of a crop the next year. For Joseph had told them there should be but seven years of famine. Bp. Patrick.

21. — he removed them to cities &c.] The people of Egypt were, before this time, almost entirely scattered over the country; by which means, having fewer opportunities of conversing together, they were not only, upon many occasions, left destitute of friendly help and assistance, but were also rude and unpolished; and unacquainted with the arts, necessary to improve life. To persuade men to combine together, and to unite several dispersed families, is a most difficult point: and those who have succeeded in such attempts, have been few. But Joseph, having gained the absolute power of the country, employed it to promote this useful end. Bp. Conybeare.

— from one end of the borders of Egypt &c.] Joseph did not, as some persons have imagined, transplant the people to cities remote from their residence; but, consulting their convenience, only to the cities adjacent: the people round about each store-city he brought into that city; and this he did throughout the whole extent of the country. The lands, thus voluntarily sold by the people, he farmed to the occupiers again, at the moderate and fixed crown rent of a fifth part of the produce. Thus did he provide for the liberty and independence of the people, while he strengthened the authority of the king, by rendering him sole proprietor of the lands. And to secure the people from further exaction, "Joseph made it a law over the land of Egypt, that Pharaoh should have only the fifth part;" which law subsisted to the time of Moses, ver. 26. By this wise regulation, the people had four fifths of the produce of the lands for their own use, and were exempted from any further taxes; the king being bound to support his civil and military establishment out of the crown rents. Dr. Hales.

22. Only the land of the priests bought he not;] The Egyptian priests were obliged to provide all sacrifices, and to bear all the charges of the national religion; and religion was in those days a matter of very great expense to them, who were to supply what was requisite for the performance of the offices of it. The numerous sacrifices that were appointed to be offered in these times, could not be provided, nor the preparations and ceremonies in offering them, performed, but at a very great charge. The priests of Egypt were the whole body of the nobility of the land: they were the king's counsellors, and assistants: they were the professors and cultivators of astronomy, without which, even agriculture itself could not have proceeded: they were the keepers of the public registers, memoirs, and chronicles of the kingdom: in a word, under the king, they were the magistrates; and filled all the prime offices. If we consider them in some or other of these views, Pharaoh might think, that they had not too much to support the stations they were to act in, and for that reason he ordered, that no tax should be laid upon them. Shuckford.

23. — Behold, I have bought you this day] The bargain could not be denied: but he would not be so rigid as to insist upon it strictly. He requires only a fifth part of the increase of their ground for the king; and tells them the rest shall be their own. Herein he showed himself both a good man, and a wise statesman; in taking away all matter of complaint from the people. Bp. Patrick.

29. — If now I have found grace in thy sight,] If thou lovest me. Bp. Patrick.

— put — thy hand under my thigh, &c.] Swear to me, that thou wilt shew me true kindness, in promising and performing what I desire. Bp. Patrick. See note on chap. xxiv. ver. 2.

30. — I will lie with my fathers, &c.] Besides the desire, natural to men, of being buried with their forefathers, Jacob had this peculiar reason for his request; namely, his belief, that the country, where their bodies lay, was his in reversion; and that God, in His due time, would put his children into possession of it: for which time they would long more earnestly, because the bodies of their ancestors were there buried. Jacob requires an oath of Joseph, not because he doubted of Joseph's inclination, but to make it an argument for Pharaoh's compliance with a pru-

Before
CHRIST
1689.

me in their buryingplace. And he said, I will do as thou hast said.

^c Hebr. 11.
21.

31 And he said, Swear unto me. And he sware unto him. And ^c Israel bowed himself upon the bed's head.

CHAP. XLVIII.

1 Joseph with his sons visiteth his sick father. 2 Jacob strengtheneth himself to bless them. 3 He repeateth the promise. 5 He taketh Ephraim and Manasseh as his own. 7 He telleth Joseph of his mother's grave. 9 He blesseth Ephraim and Manasseh. 17 He preferreth the younger before the elder. 21 He prophesieth their return to Canaan.

1689.

AND it came to pass after these things, that one told Joseph, Behold, thy father is sick: and he took with him his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim.

2 And one told Jacob, and said, Behold, thy son Joseph cometh unto thee: and Israel strengthened himself, and sat upon the bed.

^a Chap. 28.
13. & 35. 6.

3 And Jacob said unto Joseph, God Almighty appeared unto me at ^a Luz in the land of Canaan, and blessed me,

4 And said unto me, Behold, I will make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, and I will make of thee a multitude of people; and will give this land to thy seed after thee for an everlasting possession.

^b Chap. 41.
50.
Josh. 13. 7.

5 ¶ And now thy ^b two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, which were born unto thee in the land of Egypt before I came unto thee into Egypt, are mine; as Reuben and Simeon, they shall be mine.

ceeding, to which Joseph would lie under so sacred an obligation. Bp. Patrick.

31. — Israel bowed himself upon the bed's head.] Raised up his head from his pillow, and bowed, either to Joseph, in thankfulness for his promise; or to God, for the assurance he had received, that he should be buried with his pious forefathers. Bp. Patrick. Or it may be, he laid himself down upon his pillow, as weak men are accustomed to do, after they have sat up some time, for the despatch of business. Stackhouse.

Chap. XLVIII. ver. 1. — one told Joseph, Behold, thy father is sick:] On receiving this intelligence, Joseph delayed not, we find, to leave the court of Pharaoh, the cares and greatness of his station in it, in order to pay the last visit to his dying parent, and to place before him the hopes of his house and family, in the persons of his two sons. Nothing can well be more solemn or interesting than this interview; more honourable or consoling to old age, or more expressive of the dignified piety of the best of sons and the greatest of men. Archdeacon Paley.

2. — Israel strengthened himself,] He exerted his strength: and possibly, when he had raised himself, he supported himself by bearing on his staff, Heb. xi. 21. Bp. Kidder.

5. — thy two sons — are mine;] They shall be reckoned as if ^a had begotten them; and accordingly shall have, each of them, an inheritance, equal with the rest of my sons, and be distinct tribes. Thus he gives Joseph the right of primogeniture, who was indeed the firstborn of his intended wife; and bestows a double portion on him, by making his two sons equal to the rest of Jacob's children. Bp. Patrick.

6 And thy issue, which thou begetteth after them, shall be thine, and shall be called after the name of their brethren in their inheritance.

Before
CHRIST
1689.

7 And as for me, when I came from Padan, ^c Rachel died by me in the land of Canaan in the way, when yet there was but a little way to come unto Ephrath: and I buried her there in the way of Ephrath; the same is Beth-lehem.

^c Chap. 35.
19.

8 And Israel beheld Joseph's sons, and said, Who are these?

9 And Joseph said unto his father, They are my sons, whom God hath given me in this place. And he said, Bring them, I pray thee, unto me, and I will bless them.

10 Now the eyes of Israel were [†] dim for age, so that he could not see. And he brought them near unto him; and he kissed them, and embraced them. [†] Heb. heavy.

11 And Israel said unto Joseph, I had not thought to see thy face: and, lo, God hath shewed me also thy seed.

12 And Joseph brought them out from between his knees, and he bowed himself with his face to the earth.

13 And Joseph took them both, Ephraim in his right hand toward Israel's left hand, and Manasseh in his left hand toward Israel's right hand, and brought them near unto him.

14 And Israel stretched out his right hand, and laid it upon Ephraim's head, who

6. And thy issue, which thou begetteth after them, &c.] But as to whatever sons you shall hereafter have, I give them no such privilege as this. They shall not be the heads of tribes, but shall be sorted and comprehended in those of Ephraim and Manasseh. Pyle.

7. — Rachel died by me] He intimates, that in memory of his most beloved wife Rachel, and to testify his affection for her, he adopted her grandsons to be, as it were, his sons by her; that so three of the tribes of his family might be descended and denominated from her offspring. Dr. Wells.

8. And Israel beheld Joseph's sons,] But could not see distinctly who they were, on account of the dimness of his sight. Bp. Patrick.

12. — his knees,] That is, Jacob's. When Jacob had ceased caressing them, Joseph, fearing his two sons might press too long or too hard on their grandfather by reason of his feebleness, took his sons from between his father's legs, and in the most reverent manner thanked him for the kindness he had expressed to his children. Pyle, Dr. Wells.

13. — toward Israel's right hand,] Joseph so placed them, that his father might lay his right hand on Manasseh the eldest. The right hand being esteemed a token of the greater honour, 1 Kings ii. 19; Matt. xxv. 33. Bp. Kidder.

14. — laid it upon Ephraim's head,] Laying hands on the head of any person was always used in this nation in giving blessings, and appointing men to any office, and in the consecration of public and solemn sacrifices. This is the first time we find it mentioned; but in aftertimes it occurs often: particularly when Moses constituted Joshua his successor, God orders him to do it,

Before
CHRIST
1689.

* Hebr. 11.
21.

† Heb.
as fishes do increase.

was the younger, and his left hand upon Manasseh's head, guiding his hands wittingly; for Manasseh was the firstborn.

15 ¶ And he blessed Joseph, and said, God, before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac did walk, the God which fed me all my life long unto this day, 16 The Angel which redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads; and let my name be named on them, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac; and let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth.

17 And when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand upon the head of Ephraim, it displeased him: and he held up his father's hand, to remove it from Ephraim's head unto Manasseh's head.

18 And Joseph said unto his father, Not so, my father: for this is the firstborn; put thy right hand upon his head.

19 And his father refused, and said, I know it, my son, I know it: he also shall become a people, and he also shall be great: but truly his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his seed shall become a multitude of nations.

Before
CHRIST
1689.

† Heb.
fulness.

20 And he blessed them that day, saying, In thee shall Israel bless, saying, God make thee as Ephraim and as Manasseh: and he set Ephraim before Manasseh.

21 And Israel said unto Joseph, Behold, I die: but God shall be with you, and bring you again unto the land of your fathers.

22 Moreover I have given to thee one portion above thy brethren, which I took out of the hand of the Amorite with my sword and with my bow.

CHAP. XLIX.

1 Jacob calleth his sons to bless them. 3 Their blessing in particular. 29 He chargeth them about his burial. 33 He dieth.

AND Jacob called unto his sons, and said, Gather yourselves together, that I may tell you that which shall befall you in the last days.

by laying his hands on him, Numb. xxvii. 18, 23; Deut. xxxiv. 9. Thus children were brought to our blessed Saviour, that He might lay His hands on them, and bless them; which He did, Matth. xix. 13, 15. Bp. Patrick.

14. — who was the younger,] God chose from the beginning in several instances to prefer the younger before the elder; as Abel before Cain; Shem before Japheth; Isaac before Ishmael; Jacob before Esau; Judah and Joseph before Reuben; and here Ephraim before Manasseh; and afterwards, Moses before Aaron; and David, the youngest of all, before his elder brethren: to shew that the Divine benefits were not limited to the order of nature, but dispensed freely according to God's most wise goodness. Bp. Patrick.

— guiding his hands wittingly;] He did it of choice, not by chance. Bp. Kidder.

— for] Or, although, as the Hebrew particle signifies. Bp. Kidder.

15. — he blessed Joseph,] In the blessing he bestowed on his children. Bp. Patrick.

16. The Angel which redeemed &c.] That is, Christ, the Angel of the covenant, Mal. iii. 1, who led the Israelites, and whom they tempted, Exod. xiv. 19; and xxiii. 20; and 1 Cor. x. 9. To whom the title of Redeemer belongs, Isai. lix. 20. Who is called "the Angel of God," chap. xxxi. 11; and "the God of Beth-el," chap. xxxi. 13. Bp. Kidder.

— let my name be named on them,] Here he plainly adopts them for his children, as he before said he would. For to be called by one's name, which is the same as having his name named on them, is as much as to be one's children. For thus they, that are said to be called by God's name, became His peculiar people. Bp. Patrick.

Let my name, as their father, be named on them as my sons; and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac be consequently named on them, as if Isaac had been their grandfather only, and Abraham their great grandfather. Dr Wells.

17. And when Joseph saw &c.] Joseph, supposing that his father, through weakness of sight, had committed a mistake in placing his hands, would have rectified it, before he began his blessing. Pyle.

19. — greater] In number, Numb. i. 33, 35; Deut. xxxiii. 17. And in dignity: for this is called the tribe of Joseph, Numb. i. 32, 34; Rev. vii. 8; and is put for the whole kingdom of Israel, Isai. vii. 2. Bp. Kidder.

— his seed shall become a multitude of nations.] How rapidly the tribe of Ephraim increased in its population, we may judge from the pedigree of Joshua, 1 Chron. vii. 20—27, who was in the tenth generation. Dr. Hales.

20. And he blessed them that day,] He concluded with a solemn benediction upon them both. And when he pronounced it, "worshipped God," as the Apostle tells us, Heb. xi. 21, "leaning upon the top of his staff." This he did to support himself from falling. Bp. Patrick.

— In thee shall Israel bless,] When the Israelites, my posterity, would wish all happiness to others, they shall use this form of speech, "God make thee as Ephraim and as Manasseh;" which is said to continue among the Jews to this day. Bp. Patrick.

22. — which I took out of the hand of the Amorite] It is probable, that Jacob bought this part, which he here gives to Joseph, of Shechem's father, chap. xxxiii. 19: and that upon Jacob's removal, after the Shechemites were destroyed, the Amorite took possession of it, whom Jacob upon his return dispossessed by force of arms, and recovered his unquestionable right. Bp. Kidder.

This parcel of land he here promised to the posterity of Joseph, though it should not fall to their lot on the division of Canaan. It did however lie in that part, which fell by lot to Joseph's descendants; Providence perhaps so ordering it, to prevent all occasion of difference between them and any other tribe. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XLIX. ver. 1. — that I may tell you that which shall befall you &c.] It is a very ancient opinion, that the nearer men approach to their dissolution, their souls grow more divine, and discern more of futurity. We find this opinion as early as Homer; and testimonies to this purpose might be produced from various authorities. What might principally give rise to this opinion, was the tradition of some of the Patriarchs being divinely inspired in their last moments to foretell the condition of their descendants, as Jacob on his deathbed summoned his children together, that he might inform them of what should befall them in the latter or the last days. Bp. Newton.

Jacob is the first we read of, who particularly declared the future state of every one of his sons, when he left the world. These last words of his may be called prophecies, rather than benedictions; some of them containing no blessing in them; but all of them predictions. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1639.

2 Gather yourselves together, and hear, ye sons of Jacob; and hearken unto Israel your father.

3 ¶ Reuben, thou art my firstborn, my might, and the beginning of my strength, the excellency of dignity, and the excellency of power:

4 Unstable as water, † thou shalt not excel; because thou^a wentest up to thy father's bed; then defiledst thou it: || he went up to my couch.

5 ¶ Simeon and Levi are brethren; || instruments of cruelty are in their habitations.

† Heb.
do not thou excel.
^a Chap. 35.
22.
1 Chron.
5. 1.
|| Or,
my couch
is gone.
|| Or, their swords are weapons of violence.

— in the last days.] That is, hereafter. These words denote not any one precise time. The predictions were to be fulfilled in sundry times: and part of them to extend to the time of the Messiah, which is called “the last days,” Is. ii. 2; Acts ii. 17; Heb. i. 2. Bp. Kidder.

2. Gather yourselves together, &c.] The style, in which Jacob speaks to his sons, is much more lofty than that hitherto used in this book. The spirit of prophecy, now coming upon him, probably raised his style as well as his understanding; as it did that of Moses also, who delivered his benedictions in Deut. xxxiii. in a strain more sublime than his other writings. Bp. Patrick.

3. Reuben, thou art my firstborn,] The prerogatives of the birthright consisted chiefly in a double portion of the father's estate; the priesthood; and the kingdom, that is, the chief authority among his brethren. The first of these was given to Joseph; the second to Levi; and the third to Judah, to descend to their respective tribes; whilst the tribe of Reuben, who had forfeited his prerogative by his crime, recorded before by Moses, and now alluded to by Jacob, was to continue in obscurity. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

— my might, and the beginning of my strength,] Whom I begot, when I was in my full vigour; and the firstfruits of my strength. The firstborn is called the “beginning of strength” in Deut. xxi. 17; and “the chief of strength” in Ps. cv. 36. Bp. Patrick. Or the phrase may signify, not the personal vigour of Jacob, but “the beginning of his strength,” as a tribe. The strength of the Patriarch consisted in the number and valour of his sons; and the future greatness of the tribe depended on their increase. Edit.

— the excellency of dignity, and the excellency of power:] Who hadst the preeminence among thy brethren, if thou hadst not lost it by thy folly: and who wast born to the highest authority among them. Bp. Patrick.

4. Unstable as water,] Or, poured out like water. It denotes Reuben's fall from dignity, as water suddenly disappears, when it is poured out on the earth, and sucked up into it. Bp. Patrick. Rather unconfined, licentious: not to be restrained by mounds and banks, but overflowing all restrictions: “impetuous as a deluge, or a cataract.” Script. illust.

— thou shalt not excel;] Nothing great or excellent is recorded of this tribe. In number and power they were inferior to several other tribes. Less numerous, by a third part, than the tribe of Judah, to whom God gave part of Reuben's prerogative, Numb. i. 21, 27. Bps. Newton and Patrick.

— thou wentest up] At one end of each chamber there is a little gallery, raised four or five feet above the floor, with a balustrade in the front of it. Here they place their beds: a situation frequently alluded to in the holy Scriptures; Gen. xlix. 4; 2 Kings i. 6, and 16; Ps. cxxxii. 3. Dr. Shaw.

5. Simeon and Levi are brethren;] That is, not only born of the same father and mother, for so were Reuben and Judah also; but as they conspired against Joseph, whose life Reuben and Judah studied to preserve; and especially because of their conspiracy against the Shechemites, chap. xxxiv. 25; the swords, there mentioned, being the instruments of cruelty mentioned here. In the

VOL. I.

Before
CHRIST
1639.

6 O my soul, come not thou into their secret; unto their assembly, mine honour, be not thou united: for in their anger they slew a man, and in their selfwill they || digged down a wall.

7 Cursed be their anger, for it was fierce; and their wrath, for it was cruel: I will divide them in Jacob, and scatter them in Israel.

8 ¶ Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren shall praise: thy hand shall be in the neck of thine enemies; thy father's children shall bow down before thee.

|| Or,
houghed
ozen.

Scripture phrase, brethren are those who are alike in manners, and agree in the same design. Compare Job xxx. 29; Ps. cii. 6; Prov. xviii. 9. Bp. Kidder.

6. O my soul, come not thou &c.] He utterly disclaims all knowledge of their wicked deed beforehand; and all approbation of it afterwards. By soul is meant himself: and the word honour seems to mean the same; or else it signifies the tongue, as in other places of Scripture, particularly Ps. xxx. 12. The meaning then is, He never in thought, much less in word, assented to what they did. Bp. Patrick. Though Jacob seems, from what is recorded in chap. xxxiv, to have urged only prudential reasons against the crime committed by these two brethren, yet we may fairly conclude, from the manly abhorrence which he expresses here, that his conduct in that transaction was altogether free from censure. Dr. Durell.

— secret;] A secret place or closet, where cabals are usually held. Bp. Patrick. Their secret cruel designs. Dr. Wells.

— they slew a man,] The original word, though singular in its form, is frequently used for any number of men: though it may be matter of indifference, which of the two numbers we adopt here. The singular answers more exactly to Hamor, the chief of the Shechemites; but the plural represents in a stronger light the murder of “all the males.” Dr. Durell.

— they digged down a wall,] In order to break into Hamor's house, and so kill him and his son. Dr. Wells. Or, as the inhabitants of Shechem are meant by the former sentence, so is the town of Shechem by “the wall,” which they are here said to have “digged down.” Locke. Many read, “They slew a bullock,” that is, a prince: meaning the prince of Shechem, chap. xxxiv. 26. Script. illust.

7. — I will divide them in Jacob, &c.] The tribe of Simeon had not any inheritance properly of their own, but only a portion in the midst of the tribe of Judah, Josh. xix. 1—9; whence several of them afterwards went in quest of new habitations, 1 Chron. iv. 39, 42, and so were divided from the rest of their brethren. As to the tribe of Levi, they had no inheritance allotted to them, but were dispersed among all the tribes, having certain cities assigned to them, with a little land adjoining. This indeed did not prove a curse to them, they having the tenth of all the increase of the land: for this curse seems to have been taken off, by reason of their eminent service in falling on the worshippers of the golden calf, and so consecrating themselves to the Lord, Exod. xxxii. 26, 29; on which account Moses blesses this tribe a little before his death, Deut. xxxiii. 9: whereas he gives no blessing to the tribe of Simeon, but leaves them under the curse here pronounced by Jacob. Bp. Patrick.

8. Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren shall praise:] Or, confess. The rest of the nation shall be called Jews, and their whole country Judea, from Judah. See Esth. iii. 6; Matth. xxvii. 37. This tribe was famous also for their conquests over their enemies, Judg. i. 2, and the dominion, which it enjoyed over their brethren. It was famous for the kingdom of the house of David; but especially, because the Messiah was born of this tribe, whose kingdom is everlasting. Bp. Kidder.

The name of Judah signifies praise: it was given him by his

Before
CHRIST
1689.

9 Judah is a lion's whelp : from the prey, my son, thou art gone up : he stooped down, he couched as a lion, and as an old lion ; who shall rouse him up ?

10 The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come ; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be.

11 Binding his fole unto the vine, and his ass's colt unto the choice vine ; he mother, in gratitude to God for him ; and his father here alludes to it, with a view to the applause, which Judah should receive from his brethren. Bp. Patrick.

9. Judah is a lion's whelp : He sets forth in this verse the warlike temper of this tribe, their undaunted courage, and the terror they inspired into their enemies. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

This tribe gave early proofs of its valour, being the first that went to fight against the Canaanites after Joshua's death. Bp. Patrick.

— from the prey, my son, thou art gone up : He speaks as if he saw them returning in triumph with the spoils of their enemies ; alluding to lions, who, having gotten their prey in the plain, return satiated to the mountains. Bp. Patrick.

— he stooped down, he couched as a lion : The Hebrew word signifies a grown lion, come to his full strength : by whose stooping down and couching to take his rest, Jacob sets forth the ease and quiet, that Judah should enjoy after their victories, without any fear of disturbance. Bp. Patrick.

— who shall rouse him up ? That is, as all other creatures are afraid to disturb a full grown lion, so shall all the neighbouring nations be afraid to assault the tribe of Judah or any of the Israelites, during the great power which that tribe shall possess in the days of David and Solomon. And this shall be fulfilled in a much higher manner, when the kingdoms of the earth shall become the kingdom of Christ, who is expressly and emphatically styled "the Lion of the tribe of Juda," as He in whom this prophecy is to receive its utmost completion. Dr. Wells.

10. The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, The word, translated sceptre, signifies a rod or staff of any kind ; and particularly the rod or staff, which belonged to each tribe as an ensign of their authority. What is here meant is, that such authority as Judah then had, was to remain with his posterity ; that is, that he should not cease from being a tribe, or body politick, having rulers and governors of his own, till a certain period here foretold. Bp. Newton.

— nor a lawgiver from between his feet, The word, rendered lawgiver, signifies, not only one who makes laws, but likewise one who exercises jurisdiction. The meaning is, there should not be wanting a judge of the race and posterity of Judah, according to the Hebrew phrase of children's coming from between the feet, until the time here foretold. Bp. Newton.

— until Shiloh come : That is, until the coming of the Messiah. For howsoever the word Shiloh be explained, whether it signify He who is to be sent, or the Peacemaker, or any other of the senses, usually given by interpreters, the Messiah is the person plainly intended.

The promise then to Judah means, that his tribe should continue a distinct tribe with rulers and judges and governors of its own, until the coming of the Messiah. In early times the tribe of Judah made as considerable a figure as any other. The second king of Israel was of the tribe of Judah ; and from that time to the Babylonish captivity, Judah had not only the sceptre of a tribe, but the sceptre of a kingdom. When it was promised, that the sceptre should not depart from Judah, it was implied that it should depart from the other tribes : accordingly the tribe of Benjamin became an appendage to the kingdom of Judah, and the other ten tribes were carried into Assyria, whence they never returned. The Jews also were carried captive to Babylon, but returned after seventy years. During their captivity they had lived as a distinct people ; had rulers and governors of their own ; and 1689.

Before
CHRIST

washed his garments in wine, and his clothes in the blood of grapes :

12 His eyes shall be red with wine, and his teeth white with milk.

13 ¶ Zebulun shall dwell at the haven of the sea ; and he shall be for an haven of ships ; and his border shall be unto Zidon.

14 ¶ Issachar is a strong ass couching down between two burdens :

15 And he saw that rest was good, and a "prince of Judah," Ezra i. 8. These princes and rulers managed their return and settlement afterwards. After the Babylonish captivity, they lived under the dominion of the Persians, Greeks, and Romans, not so free as before ; but still as a distinct people under their own laws. The authority of their rulers and governors subsisted under these foreign masters ; afterwards under the Asmonean princes ; and even in our Saviour's time. Their power indeed in capital causes, especially those relating to the state, was abridged. The sceptre was then departing ; and in about forty years it totally departed. Their city was taken ; their temple was destroyed ; and they themselves were either slain with the sword, or sold for slaves. And from that time to this, they have never formed one body or society, but have been dispersed among all nations ; their tribes and genealogies have been all confounded ; and they have lived without a ruler, without a lawgiver, and without supreme authority and government in any part of the earth. And this a captivity not for seventy years, but for seventeen hundred. Bp. Newton.

— unto him shall the gathering of the people be. That is, of the Gentiles. This is foretold in many other Scriptures. It began to be fulfilled in Cornelius the centurion, Acts x, and in a few years the Gospel was disseminated in the most considerable parts of the then known world. We ourselves were of the Gentiles, but are now gathered unto Christ. Bp. Newton.

11. Binding his fole unto the vine, &c. The expressions in this verse are somewhat hyperbolic ; for they imply that vines in this country were as common as thorns in other places, so that they might tie asses with their colts to them ; and wine as plentiful as water, so that they might wash their clothes in it. They were however in a great measure fulfilled in that fertile land, which fell to the tribe of Judah : for here was the valley of Eschol, from which a bunch of grapes was brought by the spies as a specimen of the fruitfulness of the land, Numb. xiii. 23. And here was a brook, or torrent of the same name, along the banks of which were the most delicious pasture grounds for cattle. Modern travellers tell us of the large grapes and rich pasture grounds, about Jerusalem and the valley of Hebron. Stackhouse.

13. Zebulun shall dwell at the haven of the sea ; Had Jacob been present at the division of the land of Canaan, he could hardly have described Zebulun's lot more exactly, than he did two hundred and fifty years before it happened. It extended from the Mediterranean sea on the west, to the lake of Genesareth on the east, and was very commodious for trade and navigation. Such particularities as these must have convinced the Israelites, that it was not chance, nor power, nor policy, that gave them the land of Canaan ; but God's right hand, and His arm, and the light of His countenance, because He had a favour unto them. Stackhouse.

— unto Zidon. Not the city of Zidon, for the tribe of Zebulun did not extend beyond mount Carmel, forty miles from thence ; but the country of Zidon, or Phenicia, which Zebulun touched. Bp. Patrick.

14. Issachar is a strong ass The description of Issachar is no less remarkable : since, though a laborious people in rural employments, they had no inclination to war ; and were therefore frequently subjected by strangers, especially in the time of the Judges. Stackhouse.

As he compares Judah to a lion, for his valour ; so he compares Issachar to an ass, which was principally employed for hard labour in those countries. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1689.

the land that it was pleasant; and bowed his shoulder to bear, and became a servant unto tribute.

16 ¶ Dan shall judge his people, as one of the tribes of Israel.

† Heb.
an arrow-snake.

17 Dan shall be a serpent by the way, † an adder in the path, that biteth the horse heels, so that his rider shall fall backward.

18 I have waited for thy salvation, O LORD.

19 ¶ Gad, a troop shall overcome him: but he shall overcome at the last.

20 ¶ Out of Asher his bread shall be fat, and he shall yield royal dainties.

21 ¶ Naphtali is a hind let loose: he giveth goodly words.

15. — he saw that rest was good.] He should prefer husbandry to war or merchandise, and love peace and quiet as husbandmen do. Bp. Patrick.

— and the land that it was pleasant;] The famous valley of Jezreel was in this tribe; the border of which extended as far as Jordan, where was a very pleasant country, Josh. xix. 18, 22. Bp. Patrick.

16. Dan shall judge his people, &c.] Though Dan was the son of a bondwoman, yet his posterity shall be governed by a ruler of his own tribe, as well as the descendants of Rachel and Leah. Bps. Patrick and Wilson.

17. Dan shall be a serpent by the way, &c.] This is supposed to be a description of Samson, who was of that tribe, and, by pulling down the temple on the Philistines, overthrew them by craft and subtlety. Perhaps it rather belongs to the tribe of Dan in general, as the foregoing prophecies to the other tribes: Jacob foreseeing that they would manage their wars rather by cunning and deceit, than by open hostility. An example of this occurs, Judg. xviii. 27. Stackhouse, Bp. Patrick.

18. I have waited for thy salvation, O Lord.] In these words, Jacob, foreseeing the distresses of his children, prays that God would help them, and teach them to look up to Him in their necessities, especially to wait for the Messiah. Or, perceiving his approaching death, and his spirits beginning to fail him, he interrupts his speech to his sons with this exclamation, signifying, I wait, O Lord, for a happy deliverance out of this world into a better place. Bp. Patrick.

19. Gad, a troop shall overcome him: &c.] The inheritance of Gad being in a frontier country, they were often invaded and harassed by their neighbours, the Ammonites, Moabites, &c. Judg. x. 7, 8, 17. But as they were a fierce and valiant people, Deut. xxxiii. 20; in time they overcame them, Judg. xi. 33; 1 Chron. v. 18—22. Bp. Kidder, Pyle.

20. Out of Asher] That is, out of his country. Bp. Patrick. Asher's tribe shall be situated in a plentiful tract, abounding not only with excellent provisions of all kinds for human life; but some part of it, namely, the delicious valley about Carnel, producing the choicest fruit, fit to be served up to the table of kings, Josh. xix. 26. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

21. Naphtali is a hind let loose:] And like it, will be great lovers of liberty. To preserve the peace and freedom of their country, they will use great smoothness and address in treating with the neighbouring people. But when urged by necessity, will prove as swift and valiant in defending their country, as any other tribe. As in the instance of Barak's expedition, Judg. iv. and v. Pyle.

The prophecy relating to Naphtali may be thus translated, "Naphtali is a spreading oak, which produceth beautiful boughs:" Jacob probably meant hereby to denote the flourishing condition of the land, which this tribe should possess. Dr. Durell. Or, it

Before
CHRIST
1689.

22 ¶ Joseph is a fruitful bough, even a fruitful bough by a well; whose † branches run over the wall:

† Heb.
daughters.

23 The archers have sorely grieved him, and shot at him, and hated him:

24 But his bow abode in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong by the hands of the mighty God of Jacob; (from thence is the shepherd, the stone of Israel:)

25 Even by the God of thy father, who shall help thee; and by the Almighty, who shall bless thee with blessings of heaven above, blessings of the deep that lieth under, blessings of the breasts, and of the womb:

26 The blessings of thy father have pre-may be translated, "Naphtali is a deer, roaming at liberty: he shooteth forth noble branches," that is, majestic antlers. The horns of a stag are ample or stunted in their growth, in proportion to the richness or penury of his pasture. The prediction then of Jacob means: Naphtali shall inhabit a country, so rich, fertile, and quiet, that after having fed to the full on the most nutritious pasturage, he shall shoot out branches, or antlers, of the most majestic magnitude. Thus the Patriarch indirectly denotes the happy lot of Naphtali. And in fact the lot of this tribe was rich in pasture, and his soil was very fruitful in corn and oil. Script. illust.

22. Joseph is a fruitful bough, &c.] See Ps. i. 3; Jer. xvii. 8. Joseph is very fitly compared to a fruitful bough, by reason of his numerous offspring. He was the head of two tribes, Ephraim and Manasseh, and they were both very numerous, Numb. i. 33, 35; Josh. xvii. 14—17; Deut. xxxiii. 17. Bp. Kidder.

23. The archers &c.] Joseph was, as it were, aimed and shot at, and greatly oppressed by his enemies. His own brethren reviled him, shooting at him with the arrows of bitter words: they contrived his death. He was sold into Egypt through envy, and imprisoned by a lie. His chastity was assaulted by his mistress; his patience exercised by his master and the ingratitude of Pharaoh's butler. Bp. Kidder.

24. But his bow abode in strength, &c.] The Divine help and mercy did not forsake him: he was preserved and relieved by the mighty God of Israel. By Him he was kept alive, when his death was designed; preserved chaste, when he was greatly tempted to lewdness; rendered prosperous in his lowest circumstances; and from them advanced to great dignity, and made an instrument of very great good to others. From thence, that is, from the same Divine power and mercy, Joseph, who had been sold, tempted, maligned, and imprisoned, and greatly oppressed, became the feeder, and stay, and support, (called here stone, compare Gen. xxviii. 11,) or rock of defence of his father and his family. "Neither was there a man born like unto Joseph, a governor of his brethren, a stay of the people," Eccus. xlix. 15. Bp. Kidder.

25. Even by] Or rather, from the God, &c. These blessings light upon Joseph, but they come from the God of Israel, who will help him; and from the Almighty, who will bless him with all temporal blessings. Such are seasonable weather, Lev. xxvi. 4; Deut. xxviii. 12; xxxiii. 14; and consequently a fruitful land; a numerous offspring, and power to bring them up. Bp. Kidder.

26. The blessings of thy father have prevailed &c.] The blessings, which I have received, and with which I bless thee and thy brethren, are greater than the blessings of my progenitors, Abraham and Isaac. Jacob blessed Joseph's two sons; whereas Abraham suffered Ishmael to be cast out; and Isaac bestowed the blessing on Jacob, rejecting Esau. Besides, Jacob was blessed with many sons, none of which were excluded from inheritance,

Before
CHRIST
1689.

vailed above the blessings of thy progenitors unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills: they shall be on the head of Joseph, and on the crown of the head of him that was separate from his brethren.

27 ¶ Benjamin shall ravin as a wolf: in the morning he shall devour the prey, and at night he shall divide the spoil.

28 ¶ All these are the twelve tribes of Israel: and this is it that their father spake unto them, and blessed them; every one according to his blessing he blessed them.

29 And he charged them, and said unto them, I am to be gathered unto my people: ^b bury me with my fathers in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the Hittite,

^a Chap. 47.
20.

30 In the cave that is in the field of Machpelah, which is before Mamre, in the land of Canaan, ^c which Abraham bought with the field of Ephron the Hittite for a possession of a buryingplace.

^a Chap. 23.
6.

but all were heads of their several tribes, and continued among God's peculiar people. "Unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills" may imply, either the plenty of that part of Canaan, which was the lot of Joseph's children, comprehending the mountains of Ephraim, Samaria, and Bashan, Deut. xxxiii. 15; or, the eminence and long duration of these blessings, metaphorically expressed by the height and duration of ancient hills, Is. liv. 10. Bp. Kidder.

— of him that was separate from his brethren.] The Hebrew word nazir, translated separate, signifies crowned; it appears to be here used in allusion to the superintendents of the king's household in Eastern countries, who were called Nazirs, and probably wore some kind of diadem on their heads, by way of distinction. Stackhouse. Separated from others, either by a vow or by dignity: Joseph is called so in the latter sense, as viceroy of Egypt. Bp. Patrick.

27. Benjamin shall ravin as a wolf.] As Judah is likened to a lion, Issachar to a strong ass, Dan to a serpent, Naphtali to an hind let loose, Joseph to a fruitful bough, or tree planted by the waters; so Benjamin is fitly compared to a ravenous wolf, for his warlike courage and success against his enemies. Bp. Kidder. It was a fierce and warlike tribe, as appears from several instances, and especially in the case of the Levite's wife, Judg. xx, when they alone waged war against all the other tribes, and overcame them in two battles. Bp. Newton.

— in the morning he shall devour the prey, &c.] The morning and night here are the morning and night of the Jewish state, which is the subject of all Jacob's prophecy: as in Moses's prophecy, which is an exposition of this of Jacob, "Benjamin shall dwell in safety; the Lord shall cover him all the day long," Deut. xxxiii. 12. This imports that Benjamin should continue longer than the other tribes, even to the very last times of the Jewish state. And this was most exactly fulfilled. As the tribe of Benjamin annexed itself to the tribe of Judah as its head, so it ran the same fortune with it: they went together into captivity; they returned home together; and were both in being when Shiloh came. Bps. Sherlock and Newton.

28. All these are the twelve tribes of Israel.] From these sprang the twelve tribes of Israel; or these are the blessings of the twelve tribes. Levi not inheriting as the rest did, they are said to be twelve: or they are so reckoned, according to Jacob's words; for though he expressly mentions Levi, he does not men-

31 There they buried Abraham and Sarah his wife; there they buried Isaac and Rebekah his wife; and there I buried Leah.

Before
CHRIST
1689.

32 The purchase of the field and of the cave that is therein was from the children of Heth.

33 And when Jacob had made an end of commanding his sons, he gathered up his feet into the bed, and yielded up the ghost, and was gathered unto his people.

CHAP. L.

1 The mourning for Jacob. 4 Joseph getteth leave of Pharaoh to go to bury him. 7 The funeral. 15 Joseph comforteth his brethren, who craved his pardon. 22 His age. 23 He seeth the third generation of his sons. 24 He prophesieth unto his brethren of their return. 25 He taketh an oath of them for his bones. 26 He dieth, and is chested.

AND Joseph fell upon his father's face, and wept upon him, and kissed him.

tion Ephraim and Manasseh, but blesses them in Joseph. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

— blessed them;] Reuben, Simeon, and Levi, though reprehended by their father, yet received a blessing in being reckoned as heads of their tribes, and inheritors of the promised land. Bp. Kidder.

— according to his blessing.] That is, Jacob told each of his sons what would happen in aftertimes to his posterity respectively, as we are told in the introduction to this prophecy. The word "bless" may signify here to take leave or bid farewell; as it appears to be used in 2 Sam. xix. 39; or it is meant, as Calmet says, to denote the last words of a dying parent to his children. Dr. Durell.

29. — I am to be gathered unto my people.] I must die shortly. Bp. Patrick.

30. In the cave that is in the field &c.] He describes the place so particularly, because he would not have them mistake it, when they went to bury him; and that he might show his title to it, if the inhabitants of Canaan, from which he had been absent many years, should deny the right of laying his body there. Bp. Patrick.

33. — and was gathered unto his people.] To his ancestors. Hence is inferred the belief entertained in those days of another life, in society with such as were departed out of this life. Bp. Patrick.

In the history, which the Scriptures give us, of good men in old time, it is worth observing, that their dying appears to have been a circumstance as easy and indifferent to them as to the historian who relates it. With Moses, it is only, "Go up to mount Nebo, and die." With Aaron, "Ascend to mount Hor," and do the same. And before them, we find the holy Patriarchs, when the appointed hour came, calling their children about them, bequeathing to posterity the promised blessing of salvation by the Messiah, gathering up their feet into the bed, and dying with the same satisfaction and complacency, as they would have fallen asleep. And why? but because, having been always accustomed to think of themselves as strangers in the earth, they constantly regarded death as a departure to that other and better country, of which they lived in perpetual expectation; and could not therefore be surprised or alarmed, at being called to take possession, as knowing they began their journey in order to finish it. Could we think as they did, we should live as they did, and die as they did. Bp. Horne.

Before
CHRIST
1689.

2 And Joseph commanded his servants the physicians to embalm his father: and the physicians embalmed Israel.

† Heb.
wept.

3 And forty days were fulfilled for him; for so are fulfilled the days of those which are embalmed: and the Egyptians †mourned for him threescore and ten days.

4 And when the days of his mourning were past, Joseph spake unto the house of Pharaoh, saying, If now I have found grace in your eyes, speak, I pray you, in the ears of Pharaoh, saying,

^a Chap. 47.
29.

5 ^a My father made me swear, saying, Lo, I die: in my grave which I have digged for me in the land of Canaan, there shalt thou bury me. Now therefore let me go up, I pray thee, and bury my father, and I will come again.

6 And Pharaoh said, Go up, and bury thy father, according as he made thee swear.

Before
CHRIST
1689.

7 ¶ And Joseph went up to bury his father: and with him went up all the servants of Pharaoh, the elders of his house, and all the elders of the land of Egypt,

8 And all the house of Joseph, and his brethren, and his father's house: only their little ones, and their flocks, and their herds, they left in the land of Goshen.

9 And there went up with him both chariots and horsemen: and it was a very great company.

10 And they came to the threshingfloor of Atad, which is beyond Jordan, and there they mourned with a great and very sore lamentation: and he made a mourning for his father seven days.

Chap. L. ver. 2. — the physicians] Those to whom the care of embalming belonged. Bp. Kidder.

— embalmed Israel.] The manner of embalming among the Egyptians was as follows. A coffin was first prepared, the upper part of which represented the person of the deceased, and was generally adorned with paintings and embellishments, suitable to his quality. Preparations were then made for embalming the body, the price varying from about £300 sterling, to a very small sum. An incision was first made in the left side, through which they drew all the intestines, except the heart and kidneys, and then washed them with palm-wine, and other strong and binding drugs. The brains they drew through the nostrils with an hooked piece of iron, and filled the skull with astringent drugs. The whole body they anointed with oil of cedar, with myrrh, cinnamon, and other drugs, for about thirty days: by which means it was preserved entire, without so much as losing its hair; and sweet, without any signs of putrefaction. It was then put into salt about forty days: so that when Moses says, "that forty days were employed in embalming Jacob," he must mean the forty days of his continuing in the salt of nitre, without including the thirty days, spent in the other operations: so that in the whole they mourned seventy days in Egypt, as Moses likewise observes. Last of all, the body was taken out of this salt, washed, and wrapped up in linen swaddling-bands, dipped in myrrh, and rubbed with a certain gum, which the Egyptians used instead of glue, and so restored to the relations, who put it into the coffin, and kept it in some repository, in their houses, or in tombs made particularly for that purpose. Calmct.

The Egyptians excelled all other people in this art. Bodies thus embalmed remain to this day, and are often brought into these countries under the name of mummies. Bp. Patrick.

4. — Joseph spake unto the house of Pharaoh.] He does not speak to Pharaoh himself, perhaps because he was a mourner, and for that reason might not come into the king's presence, being looked upon as defiled. See Esth. iv. 2. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

5. — in my grave which I have digged for me] It was usual for men to dig their sepulchres in their lifetime. Bp. Kidder. And Jacob, it seems, had taken care to have a grave digged for himself in the cave that Abraham had bought. Bp. Patrick.

7. — all the servants] That is, a great number of them; all that could well be spared. Thus in Matt. iii. 5, all Judea is said to have gone out to John's baptism; that is, a great many of the inhabitants. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

— the elders of his house.] Elder is a name of dignity, as in chap. xxiv. 2, where it signifies, the principal servant, who was set over all the rest, as their governor. It appears from this place to have been used by the Egyptians, as well as by the Hebrews, long before Moses's time, as a title of honour; as it hath been ever since by all nations whatsoever. Selden.

9. — and it was a very great company.] The splendour and magnificence of our Patriarch's funeral seem to be without a parallel in history. The noble obsequies of Marcellus come nearest in comparison. But how do even these fall short of the simple narrative before us! For what are the six hundred beds, for which the Roman solemnities on this occasion were so famous, when compared to that national itinerant multitude, which swelled like a flood, and moved like a river; to "all Pharaoh's servants, to the elders of his house, and all the elders of the land of Egypt," that is, to the officers of his household, and deputies of his provinces; with "all the house" of Joseph, and his "brethren," and his "father's house," conducting their solemn sorrow for near two hundred miles into a distant country? Stackhouse.

10. — the threshingfloor of Atad.] It is uncertain whether Atad is the name of a place or of a man: the threshingfloor was probably not far from Hebron. Dr. Wells.

— beyond Jordan.] Beyond, not in respect of Egypt, whence Jacob's corpse was brought; but in respect of the place, in which Moses was when he wrote this history, and which was east of Jordan; consequently the places beyond Jordan lay on the west. Why they made this threshingfloor, rather than the place of interment, the scene of their lamentations, is not so easy to resolve. Perhaps it was a place more convenient to stay in for seven days, than the field of Machpelah: or perhaps it might be the custom at the entrance of the country, whither they were carrying the body for burial, to fall into lamentations, which they might repeat over the grave. Dr. Wells.

— they mourned with a great and very sore lamentation.] In what this lamentation consisted, we are not told: but in after-times they sat with their faces covered, having ashes sprinkled on their heads, crying out with a mournful voice, sometimes wringing, sometimes clapping their hands together, smiting their breasts or their thighs, with many other expressions of sorrow. Bp. Patrick.

The cries of the Eastern people are especially long in the case of death, and very frightful. I was lodged in 1676 at Ispahan when the mistress of the next house to mine died. The moment she expired, all the family, to the number of twenty-five or thirty persons, set up such a furious cry that I was quite startled. These cries continue a long time, then cease all at once: they begin again as suddenly at daybreak, and in concert. This enraged kind of mourning continued forty days: not equally violent, but diminishing from day to day. The longest and most violent acts were when they washed the body, when they perfumed it, when 1639.

Before
CHRIST

¶ That is,
the mourning of the Egyptians.

• Acts 7.
16.

• Chap. 23.
16.

† Heb.
charged.

11 And when the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, saw the mourning in the floor of Atad, they said, This is a grievous mourning to the Egyptians : wherefore the name of it was called || Abel-mizraim, which is beyond Jordan.

12 And his sons did unto him according as he commanded them :

13 For ^b his sons carried him into the land of Canaan, and buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah, which Abraham ^c bought with the field for a possession of a buryingplace of Ephron the Hittite, before Mamre.

14 ¶ And Joseph returned into Egypt, he, and his brethren, and all that went up with him to bury his father, after he had buried his father.

15 ¶ And when Joseph's brethren saw that their father was dead, they said, Joseph will peradventure hate us, and will certainly requite us all the evil which we did unto him.

16 And they [†] sent a messenger unto Joseph, saying, Thy father did command before he died, saying,

17 So shall ye say unto Joseph, Forgive, I pray thee now, the trespass of thy brethren, and their sin ; for they did unto thee evil : and now, we pray thee, forgive the trespass of the servants of the God of thy father. And Joseph wept when they spake unto him. Before

CHRIST
1639.

18 And his brethren also went and fell down before his face ; and they said, Behold, we be thy servants.

19 And Joseph said unto them, ^d Fear not : for am I in the place of God ? ^d Chap.
45. 5.

20 But as for you, ye thought evil against me ; but God meant it unto good, to bring to pass, as it is this day, to save much people alive.

21 Now therefore fear ye not : I will nourish you, and your little ones. And he comforted them, and spake [†] kindly unto them. [†] Heb.
to their hearts.

22 ¶ And Joseph dwelt in Egypt, he, and his father's house : and Joseph lived an hundred and ten years. 1635.

23 And Joseph saw Ephraim's children of the third generation : ^e the children also of Machir the son of Manasseh were [†] brought up upon Joseph's knees. ^e Numb.
32. 39.
[†] Heb. borne.

24 And Joseph said unto his brethren, I die : and ^f God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land unto the land which he sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. ^f Hebr. 11.
22.

25 And ^g Joseph took an oath of the children of Israel, saying, God will surely ^g Exod.
13. 19.

they carried it out to be interred, at making the inventory, and when they divided the effects. Sir J. Chardin.

— seven days.] This was the time of publick mourning among the Jews in succeeding ages, as appears from 1 Sam. xxxi. 13 ; Ecclus. xxii. 12 ; Judith xvi. 24. They rejoiced the same length of time at solemn weddings ; see chap. xxix. 27. Bp. Patrick.

Thus died, and thus was honoured in his death, the founder of the Jewish nation, who, amidst many mercies, and many visitations, sudden and surprising vicissitudes of afflictions and joy, found it the greatest blessing of his varied and eventful life, that he had been the father of a dutiful and affectionate son. It has been said, and, as I believe, truly, that there is no virtuous quality belonging to the human character, of which there is not some distinct and eminent example to be found in the Bible : no relation, in which we can be placed, no duty, which we have to discharge, but that we may observe a pattern for it in the Sacred History. Of the duty of children to parents, of a son to his father, maintained under great singularities and variations of fortune, undiminished, nay rather increased, by absence, by distance, by unexampled success, by remote and foreign connections, we may see, in this most ancient of all histories, as conspicuous, and as amiable an instance, as can be met with in the records of the world, in the purest, best ages of its existence. Archdeacon Paley.

15. — Joseph will peradventure hate us,] Their guilt was so great that it continued to make them suspicious. Bp. Patrick.

This was probably twenty years after their coming into Egypt ; and forty since the commission of the crime. Sins of great presumption will not suffer him that hath repented them, for ever quite to forget them : and he shall never be able to remember them, without shame and horror. Bp. Sanderson.

17. — of the servants of the God of thy father.] Besides the command of their father, and their relation to him as his brethren, they urge that they are of the same religion with him. This, if rightly understood and practised, causes the greatest union of minds and affections. For how can the worshippers of the same God hate one another ? Bp. Patrick.

19. — am I in the place of God ?] To whom alone belongs vengeance. Bp. Wilson. It belongs not to me to punish you for your sins, nor will it become me to remember your former faults, since God hath turned your evil into good. Bp. Kidder.

20. — but God meant it unto good, &c.] Joseph does not vaunt his own wisdom and skill ; but acknowledges God as the author of the good which befell him and his father's house. Bp. Kidder. Herein appears the wonderful wisdom of God's overruling providence ; which, contrary to the nature of sin and the will of sinners, turns the evil they do into good, and directs it to the most excellent ends. Bp. Patrick.

22. — Joseph lived an hundred and ten years.] Eighty of which he spent in great prosperity, being but thirty years old when he first stood before Pharaoh. Bp. Patrick.

23. — Ephraim's children of the third generation :] That is, his great grandchildren. So that Joseph had the pleasure of seeing his father's blessing upon his own two sons in part fulfilled : for he saw great grandchildren from Ephraim ; and grandchildren by one branch of Manasseh. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

24. — his brethren,] Such of the principal heads of his family as were then alive. Pyle.

— God will surely visit you,] Accomplish His promise of giving you the land of Canaan. Pyle.

25. And Joseph took an oath] As his father had done of him, chap. xlvii. 30, 31. The oath was to oblige all such as should be alive on their going out of Egypt. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

Before CHRIST 1635. visit you, and ye shall carry up my bones from hence.

26 So Joseph died, being an hundred — ye shall carry up my bones from hence.] He did not desire to have his body carried into Canaan immediately, for several reasons; chiefly, Because the presence of his body with the Israelites might be a pledge to assure them, and a means to strengthen and confirm their faith and hope in God's promises to their progenitors, that He would infallibly put their posterity in possession of the land of Canaan. And accordingly, when Moses delivered them out of Egypt, he carried Joseph's body along with him, Exod. xiii. 19; and committed it to the care of the tribe of Ephraim, who buried it near Shechem, Josh. xxiv. 32, in the field, which Jacob, a little before his death, gave to Joseph, as his peculiar property. Stackhouse.

Moses does not tell us what became of the other sons of Jacob: but Josephus saith, they were all carried into the land of Canaan to be buried. For they had probably the same desire, and gave the same charge concerning their bodies, to keep their posterity in hope that God would certainly bring them thither. This may seem to be imported by the words of St. Stephen also, "Jacob went down into Egypt, and died, he and our fathers, and were carried over into Sychem, and laid in the sepulchre that Abraham bought, &c." Bp. Patrick.

26. — he was put in a coffin in Egypt.] Such a chest, as dead bodies were enclosed in, after being embalmed; to be preserved in it, until the Israelites should go out of Egypt. Travellers, who have gone to search for mummies, tell us, they found some of the coffins, made of wood, not putrefied to this day; and others of cloths pasted together, forty times double, which were as strong as wood, and not at all rotten. Bp. Patrick.

Coffins were not used universally in Egypt: and probably they were only persons of distinction that were buried in them. In times so remote as those of Joseph, they might be much less common than afterwards; and consequently Joseph's body being put and ten years old: and they embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt. Before CHRIST 1635.

in a coffin in Egypt may be mentioned, with a design of expressing the great honours the Egyptians paid him in death as well as in life, being treated after the most sumptuous manner of the Egyptians, embalmed and put into a coffin. Harmer.

Throughout the foregoing narrative we trace in the Patriarch Joseph the character of one, who diligently "exercised himself to have always a conscience void of offence towards God and towards man." Endowed with a solid understanding, and with a heart alive to virtuous thoughts and to kind affections, he made "the fear of God" the ruling principle of his conduct. He accordingly affords us an example of devout and rational piety; of blameless and manly virtue. To the Almighty he was humble, grateful, and resigned; zealous in promoting His glory, and resolute in keeping His commandments. To his fellow creatures he was, as a son, dutiful and affectionate; as a brother, kind and forgiving; faithful, as a servant and a subject; discreet and benevolent, as a ruler; of integrity unshaken, and of manners uncorrupt. The concluding chapters of the book of Genesis, which are unexampled for the interesting and affecting simplicity of the narrative, present us in this character of Joseph with one of the most faultless patterns for our imitation. We may therefore reasonably demand in the language of the Egyptian monarch, and with that enlarged signification, which the Christian will affix to the words, "Can we find such an one as this is; a man, in whom is the Spirit of God?" And we may then safely conclude, that we are guided by the same Spirit, when we testify our "love of God," by that piety, faith, resignation, gratitude, and obedience; and our "love of man" by that affectionate behaviour in our domestick relations, by that faithful discharge of our social duties, and that general tenour of kindness and benevolence, which so eminently distinguished this wellbeloved son of Israel, this highly favoured servant of God. Mant's Parochial Sermons.

The following are the Chapters from the Book of Genesis, appointed for Proper Lessons on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. I.	- - - - -	{ Trinity Sunday,	- - - - -	Morning.
— II.	- - - - -	{ Septuagesima,	- - - - -	Ditto.
— III.	- - - - -	Septuagesima,	- - - - -	Evening.
— VI.	- - - - -	Sexagesima,	- - - - -	Morning.
— IX. to ver. 20.	- - - - -	Ditto,	- - - - -	Evening.
— XI. to ver. 10.	- - - - -	Quinquagesima,	- - - - -	Morning.
— XII.	- - - - -	Whit-Monday,	- - - - -	Ditto.
— XVII.	- - - - -	Quinquagesima,	- - - - -	Evening.
— XVIII.	- - - - -	Circumcision,	- - - - -	Morning.
— XIX. to ver. 30.	- - - - -	Trinity Sunday,	- - - - -	Evening.
— XXII.	- - - - -	1st Sunday in Lent,	- - - - -	Morning.
— XXII. to ver. 20.	- - - - -	Ditto,	- - - - -	Evening.
— XXVII.	- - - - -	Good Friday,	- - - - -	Morning.
— XXXII.	- - - - -	2nd Sunday in Lent,	- - - - -	Ditto.
— XXXIV.	- - - - -	St. Michael,	- - - - -	Ditto.
— XXXIX.	- - - - -	2nd Sunday in Lent,	- - - - -	Evening.
— XLII.	- - - - -	3rd Sunday in Lent,	- - - - -	Morning.
— XLIII.	- - - - -	Ditto,	- - - - -	Evening.
— XLV.	- - - - -	4th Sunday in Lent,	- - - - -	Morning.
		Ditto,	- - - - -	Evening.

THE SECOND BOOK OF MOSES,

CALLED

EXODUS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE title of this Second Book of Moses is descriptive of its contents. The word Exodus is of Greek derivation, and signifies a going out or departing from one place to another. The book relates the departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, after a previous description of their state of servitude, of the appointment of Moses, and of the miracles by which he effected their deliverance. It presents us also with the account of their journey through the wilderness, of the solemn promulgation of the Law at mount Sinai, of the delivery of the Ten Commandments, and of the building of the tabernacle. It is universally allowed to be written by Moses, and the words of Exodus are cited as the words of Moses, by Daniel, David, and other Sacred Writers: there are, besides, no less than twenty-five passages from this book, quoted by Christ and His Apostles in express words, and nineteen more as to the sense.

Exodus contains a history of one hundred and forty-five years, or perhaps of a somewhat shorter period.

Besides historical events, this book contains some predictions, of which it records also the accomplishment; as that of the deliverance of the Jews, which Moses foresaw and effected, (Exod. vii. 4, 5).—It likewise describes some which were not fulfilled till after his death, as that concerning the conquest of Canaan, and the future division and allotment of the land,—also those relating to the revolutions that were to take place in the government of the Jews, their future subjections, captivities, deliverances, and returns. Dr. Gray.

Moses proceeds in this book in such an order, as was most natural to a writer, relating the different occurrences which took place, exactly as they took place. The history is perpetually interrupted with exact details of the laws, as they were occasionally delivered: with minute, and even tedious, though necessary descriptions of the materials and work of the tabernacle and its furniture, of the altar, the ark, the dress of the priests, and the mode of offering the sacrifices: these are detailed in the most inartificial manner, if we consider the book as intended for a regular and finished composition. The description of the method, in which these things should be formed, is spread through near six chapters; chap. xxv.—xxx; then the history proceeds for five more; and then succeeds a relation of the fact, that each particular, directed to be made, was made according to the direction given, in most cases word for word the same as the direction; and this extended through five long chapters, xxxvi.—xl. The measures of the curtains, and the boards, and the borders, the number and size of the rings and the loops, of the tenons, and the pillars, and the sockets, of the curtains and the hangings, are enumerated with such exactness, as proves the detail was not at all designed to display in strong and glowing colours the magnificence of the objects described; for such a purpose it is totally unfit, but it is exactly such as was necessary to instruct the workmen in the making of them. All this is just and natural if Moses was really the author of Exodus, and if he detailed the circumstances at the time when they occurred; because he conceived the formation of all this work, according to a particular model, chap. xxv. 3, 9, and 40, as a matter of important obligation; and worthy a peculiar record, when he tells us, “that according to all that the Lord commanded Moses, so the children of Israel made all the work, and Moses blessed them,” chap. xxxix. 42. But such an enumeration would have been utterly irrational and unnatural in any other writer, or for any other purpose. Dr. Graves.

Before
CHRIST
1706.

CHAP. I.

1 The children of Israel, after Joseph's death, do multiply. 8 The more they are oppressed by a new king, the more they multiply. 15 The godliness of the midwives, in saving the men children alive. 22 Pharaoh commandeth the male children to be cast into the river.

^a Gen. 46.
8.
chap. 6. 14.

NOW ^a these are the names of the children of Israel, which came into E-

Chap. I. ver. 1. Now these are the names &c.] As Moses was about to relate the departure of the children of Israel out of Egypt; it was very proper to begin with setting down the number of those who came into it, and the heads of the distinct households or tribes; whereby it might the better appear also, how God had fulfilled His promise to Abraham of “multiplying his seed.” Bp. Patrick.

gypt; every man and his household came with Jacob.

Before
CHRIST
1706.

- 2 Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah,
- 3 Issachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin,
- 4 Dan, and Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.
- 5 And all the souls that came out of the † loins of Jacob were ^b seventy souls: for Joseph was in Egypt already.

† Heb.
thigh.
^b Gen. 46.
27.
Deut. 10.
22.

2. ^a Reuben, Simeon, &c.] He does not report their names in these three verses, according to their birth; but first the children of Leah; then one of Rachel's; then those of Jacob's handmaids; and last of all Joseph, who was in Egypt before. Bp. Patrick.

5. — for Joseph was &c.] Or, with Joseph who was &c. Joseph is not to be added to the seventy, but reckoned among them to make up the number. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1635.
c Acts 7.
17.

6 And Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation.

7 ¶ And the children of Israel were fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty; and the land was filled with them.

8 Now there arose up a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph.

9 And he said unto his people, Behold, the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we:

10 Come on, let us deal wisely with them; lest they multiply, and it come to pass, that, when there falleth out any war, they join also unto our enemies, and fight against us, and so get them up out of the land.

11 Therefore they did set over them taskmasters to afflict them with their burdens. And they built for Pharaoh treasure cities, Pithom and Raamses.

† Heb. And as they afflicted them, so they multiplied, &c.
12 † But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. And they were grieved because of the children of Israel.

13 And the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigour:

14 And they made their lives bitter

7. And the children of Israel were fruitful, &c.] They increased to such numbers, strength, and riches, as to fill all the country of Goshen, and some other of the neighbouring parts of Egypt. Pyle. In the course of two hundred years and upwards, the seventy had increased to about six hundred thousand men, Exod. xii. 37. Bp. Patrick. Moses expresses the prodigious increase of their numbers and power by a remarkable amplification of terms: "and they were fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty; and the land was filled with them." Dr. Hales.

8. — a new king] New in his laws and manner of government. Bp. Hall. Of a new house and family, perhaps. Bp. Kidder. Or it may be sufficient to understand, a king different from him who advanced Joseph, though of the same race. Dr. Wells. — knew not Joseph.] Unthankfully forgot the great service, which Joseph had done to the kingdom and crown of Egypt. Bp. Hall.

9. — more and mightier than we:] This was not really true; but he said it to awaken his people to consider how to suppress them. Bp. Patrick. More mighty in proportion than we; or more than is consistent with our safety. Pyle. Pharaoh's pretences for oppressing the Israelites were, 1st, Their great number, ver. 9. 2dly, A fear lest they should join with the enemies of Egypt in the event of war, ver. 10. 3dly, Lest they should go out of Egypt when they pleased, ver. 10. Bp. Kidder.

The fear entertained by Pharaoh, lest the Israelites should "get them up out of the land," was a reasonable apprehension: for Egypt was, in every age, subject to the incursions of that fierce and barbarous people, the Arabians, on that very side which the Israelites inhabited: who, possessing their own district, unmixed with the Egyptians, had the keys of the country in their hands, to admit or exclude an invader at pleasure. To prevent so probable a danger, their taskmasters are ordered to increase their oppressions: and they groaned under them without power to resist, till set free by the almighty hand of God. Bp. Warburton.

Before
CHRIST
1635.

with hard bondage, in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field: all their service, wherein they made them serve, was with rigour.

15 ¶ And the king of Egypt spake to the Hebrew midwives, of which the name of the one was Shiphrah, and the name of the other Puah:

16 And he said, When ye do the office of a midwife to the Hebrew women, and see them upon the stools; if it be a son, then ye shall kill him: but if it be a daughter, then she shall live.

17 But the midwives feared God, and did not as the king of Egypt commanded them, but saved the men children alive.

18 And the king of Egypt called for the midwives, and said unto them, Why have ye done this thing, and have saved the men children alive?

19 And the midwives said unto Pharaoh, Because the Hebrew women are not as the Egyptian women; for they are lively, and are delivered ere the midwives come in unto them.

20 Therefore God dealt well with the midwives: and the people multiplied, and waxed very mighty.

Pharaoh's treatment of them was a violation of their rights, as a free people, naturalized in his country. Dr. Hales.

11. — treasure cities, Pithom and Raamses.] Fortified cities, in which he had stores of corn, provisions, ammunition, &c. Bp. Patrick. Pithon or Bethon, "the house of On," or the Sun, was a second Heliopolis, built upon the confines of Arabia, according to Ptolemy. Bryant. Instead of Raamses, the Greek version reads Rameses; and Eusebius says, that Rameses, which gave name to that district of the land of Goshen, Gen. xlvii 11, was built by the Israelites. Besides these store cities, on the confines of the desert of Arabia, Josephus mentions that the Israelites were employed in making canals and embankments, to prevent the overflowing of the river; and also in building pyramids. Perhaps the principal brick pyramids, found in Egypt, were their work. Dr. Hales.

15. — the name of the one was Shiphrah, &c.] It is not to be supposed, that there were only two midwives to serve the whole nation: but these were probably the chief, who had the rest under their government. Bp. Patrick.

16. — see them upon the stools:] Seats contrived for women in labour, that the midwives might the better do their office. Dr. Wells.

— if it be a son, then ye shall kill him:] By which means, in no long time, none would be born, that were not half Egyptians; and so the Israelites would be soon lost in that nation. Dr. Wells.

19. — for they are lively, &c.] Many of the Hebrew women may have been such as here described, if not all. The answer of the midwives is therefore so far from being, as sometimes represented, an unworthy falsehood to save their lives, that it is a bold confession of their faith and piety to the hazard of them: purporting that they saw so plain an evidence of the wonderful hand of God in that extraordinary vigour in the travail of the women, that, do what Pharaoh would, they durst not, would not, obey him, because they would not strive against God. Dr. Lightfoot.

Before
CHRIST
1635.

about 1572.

21 And it came to pass, because the midwives feared God, that he made them houses.

22 And Pharaoh charged all his people, saying, Every son that is born ye shall cast into the river, and every daughter ye shall save alive.

CHAP. II.

1 Moses is born, and in an ark cast into the flags. 5 He is found, and brought up by Pharaoh's daughter. 11 He slayeth an Egyptian. 13 He reproveth an Hebrew. 15 He fleeth into Midian. 21 He marryeth Zipporah. 22 Gershom is born. 23 God respecteth the Israelites' cry.

^a Chap. 6.
20.
Numb. 26.
59.

1571.

^b Acts 7.
20.
Hebr. 11.
23.

AND there went ^a a man of the house of Levi, and took to wife a daughter of Levi.

2 And the woman conceived, and bare a son: and when she saw him that he was a goodly child, she ^b hid him three months.

3 And when she could not longer hide him, she took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch,

21. — he made them houses.] That is, He blessed the midwives with a peculiar increase of their own families and estates. Pyle. Others refer them to the Israelites, understanding the sense to be, "God by these means multiplied and increased the Israelites," which is expressed by "making them houses." Bp. Kidder.

22. And Pharaoh charged all his people, &c.] This decree was in force at the birth of Moses, sixty-four years after the death of Joseph; and was probably enacted soon after the birth of his elder brother Aaron, three years earlier, who was not subject to the decree. We may date it therefore about the thirty-second year of their bondage; and about an hundred and thirty-three years after their settlement. Dr. Hales.

Chap. II. ver. 1. — there went a man &c.] The name of the father of Moses was Amram; and his mother's name was Jochebed, chap. vi. 20. They were both of the tribe of Levi. Aaron, his elder brother, was three years older than he; and Miriam, his sister, probably seven or eight years older than Aaron. Calmet.

2. — and bare a son:] The entire account, which the book of Exodus delivers of the private life of Moses, for the eighty years which preceded his divine mission to deliver the Israelites, is contained in two short chapters: at his birth, the narrative with a beautiful simplicity notices the very natural circumstance, that "when his mother saw him that he was a goodly child, she hid him three months." All that follows is plain and artless, full of the simplicity of patriarchal life, and unmingled with any circumstances tending to exalt the personal character of the lawgiver, or mark him out as peculiarly fitted for so high a destiny; but it is distinguished, like the other parts of the Pentateuch, in which Moses speaks of himself, by the most decisive proofs of candour and impartiality. Dr. Graves.

3. — she took for him an ark of bulrushes,] A little vessel or basket made of rushes: which she "daubed with slime and with pitch," to keep out the water; and "laid in the flags by the brink of the river" Nile, that it might remain concealed without being carried away by the stream, or that she might suckle the child in the night. Bp. Patrick.

— an ark of bulrushes,] This ark was probably of the form of one of those boats, with which the river was always covered, and put the child therein; and she laid it <sup>Before

CHRIST
1571.</sup> in the flags by the river's brink.

4 And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him.

5 ¶ And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river; and her maidens walked along by the river's side; and when she saw the ark among the flags, she sent her maid to fetch it.

6 And when she had opened it, she saw the child: and, behold, the babe wept. And she had compassion on him, and said, This is one of the Hebrews' children.

7 Then said his sister to Pharaoh's daughter, Shall I go and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee?

8 And Pharaoh's daughter said to her, Go. And the maid went and called the child's mother.

9 And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Take this child away, and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages. And the woman took the child, and nursed it.

and made like them of "bulrushes," or flags of the papyrus, of which the Egyptians made their paper, and which grew particularly on the banks of the Nile. This papyrus was strong enough to hold out the water, and smooth enough to receive the "slime and pitch" with which it was smeared; and by its lightness fittest to swim with the child's weight. The vessels of bulrushes, mentioned both in sacred and profane history, were no other than larger fabricks made of the papyrus, in the same manner as this ark of Moses. Dr. Waterland, Dr. Shaw.

4. And his sister stood afar off;] The mother of Moses does not leave her child without a guardian. No tyranny can forbid her to love him, whom she is forbidden to keep. Her daughter's eyes must supply the place of her arms. And if the weak affection of a mother were thus effectually careful, what shall we think of Him, whose love, whose compassion, is, as Himself, infinite? His eye, His hand cannot but be with us, even when we forsake ourselves. Moses had never a stronger protection about him, no, not when all his Israelites were pitched about his tent in the wilderness, than now when he lay an outcast, alone, upon the waters. No water, no Egyptian can hurt him. Neither father nor mother dare own him; and now God challenges his custody. When we seem most neglected and forlorn in ourselves, then is God most present, most vigilant. Bp. Hall.

5. — to wash herself at the river;] Not for pleasure probably, but for purification; this being an ancient rite of religion in all ages, for persons to cleanse themselves by washing after any defilement. Bp. Patrick. The people of Egypt, especially the females, express their veneration for the Nile, in return for the benefits received from it, by plunging into it when it begins to overflow the country. It is probable, that when the daughter of Pharaoh bathed in the river, it was in compliance with some such custom, perhaps of an idolatrous kind. Irwin mentions a ceremony, which is observed by some of the Egyptian females, of going with singing and dances to solemnize the first visible rise of the Nile, and to bathe in the river. Harmer.

8. And Pharaoh's daughter said to her, Go. And the maid went &c.] Here we see an amazing concurrence of circumstances; and those of great moment, and highly interesting, which could not be the effect of chance. They were certainly brought about by that Divine Wisdom, which can influence our hearts, and order our goings, and make us subservient to the will of God. Which Printed by Nicholas Pussell.

THE FINDING OF MOSES.

Engraved by H. B. 1866.

Published by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge, No. 5, Old St. Paul's Church-yard.

Engraved by H. B. 1866.

Before
CHRIST
1571.

|| That is,
drawn out.

10 And the child grew, and she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son. And she called his name || Moses: and she said, Because I drew him out of the water.

11 ¶ And it came to pass in those days, when Moses was grown, that he went out unto his brethren, and looked on their burdens: and he spied an Egyptian smiting an Hebrew, one of his brethren.

1531. 12 And he looked this way and that way, and when he saw that there was no man, he slew the Egyptian, and hid him in the sand.

often makes use of a series, and evolution of events, simple in themselves, and obvious, but wonderful in their texture, and combination, towards the accomplishment of His high decrees. Bryant.

10. — she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter.] Who was a married woman, without children, according to the Jewish historian Josephus. Bp. Patrick.

— and he became her son.] Her adopted son. Accordingly she gave him a princely education; and caused him to be instructed "in all the wisdom of the Egyptians," Acts vii. 22. Bp. Patrick. Josephus says, that he became a man of eminence among them; was made general and leader of their armies; and fought some battles with conduct and success. Shuckford. Thus did he find an asylum in the very palace of his intended destroyer; while his intercourse with his own family and nation was still most naturally, though unexpectedly, maintained: so mysterious are the ways of Heaven! And while he was instructed "in all the wisdom of the Egyptians," and bred up in the midst of a luxurious court, he acquired at home the knowledge of the promised Redemption of Israel: and, "by faith in the REDEEMER CHRIST," refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to have enjoyment of sinful pleasures for a season; esteeming the reproach of Christ (or persecution for Christ's sake) greater wealth than the treasure of Egypt: for he had respect unto the (future) recompense of the reward, or looked forward to a future state. Dr. Hales.

— Moses:] Which in the Egyptian language signifies one saved or drawn out of the water. Mo or Mou was the Egyptian for water. Culmet, Bryant.

11. — when Moses was grown, that he went out &c.] Being now forty years old, Acts vii. 23, he was moved by God to go and acquaint himself more particularly with the condition of his brethren; and to own himself, more than he had hitherto done, to be one of them. Bp. Patrick. One of the noblest instances on record of despising popular opinion, when it opposes duty, is furnished in the conduct of Moses. He was in the highest credit in the court of Pharaoh, and enjoyed all the luxuries of Egypt. He had had intercourse with the Israelites, no doubt, in various shapes; and was well acquainted with the prophecies of Christ, from the times of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. He had that faith therefore, which all true Israelites had, in a promised Saviour: and in obedience to that faith he thought it his duty to break away from all the allurements of his splendid situation, and take his fortune with his poor oppressed countrymen. Many, no doubt, were the reproaches he suffered on this apparently strange choice. The wit and ridicule of Pharaoh's court would undoubtedly be pointed against him; and all who heard of his leaving such advantages, for no consideration as it appeared, would deride his folly. Moses however considered these scoffs of the world as trials only of his faith: "he had respect unto the recompense of the reward; esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt." Gilpin. If we had Moses's faith, we could not but make his choice. It is only our infidelity, that binds us to the world, and makes us prefer the momentary

Before
CHRIST
1531.

13 And when he went out the second day, behold, two men of the Hebrews strove together: and he said to him that did the wrong, Wherefore smitest thou thy fellow?

14 And he said, Who made thee † a prince and a judge over us? intendest thou to kill me, as thou killedst the Egyptian? And Moses feared, and said, Surely this thing is known.

15 Now when Pharaoh heard this thing, he sought to slay Moses. But Moses fled from the face of Pharaoh, and dwelt in the land of Midian: and he sat down by a well.

pleasures of sin unto that everlasting recompense of reward. Bp. Hall.

12. — he looked this way and that way,] Though he knew he had a secret calling to deliver the Israelites, yet, because it was not publicly known, he carried himself warily in the business, and looked round about. Bp. Hall.

— he slew the Egyptian,] By comparing the two accounts of this matter here and in the Acts, it appears that the Israelite suffered wrongfully. For St. Stephen says, that Moses saw him "suffer wrong," or "treated injuriously." The manner, as represented here, was, that he observed the Egyptian "smiting" him; and that to such a degree, that, according to St. Stephen, the Israelite was "oppressed," or rather, "quite debilitated," and lay at his mercy. Upon this Moses stepped in, and "defended and avenged him;" that is, agreeably to the original, "rescued him, and vindicated his cause, or did him justice," by killing the Egyptian, there being probably no other way of doing it. It is not said indeed, that the Egyptian had a murderous design, and would have proceeded to kill the Israelite, when he had him in his power, if Moses had not interposed. But the circumstances of the narrative, and the character of Moses, as the meekest man upon earth, make it very probable. Nor does the word used both by the Septuagint and by St. Stephen concerning Moses, as smiting the Egyptian, necessarily signify that he designed to kill him. But if he had not, it would certainly have been a very imprudent action to have struck him at all: since, had the Egyptian lived to make his complaint at court, it must very probably have cost Moses his life. This action therefore may be considered, as done to save the life of an innocent man in the utmost extremity by the death of him, who would otherwise have killed him. The Israelites had doubtless a natural right to rescue themselves from the unjust slavery, to which they were reduced. And any one of them had the like right to defend his own life against any single Egyptian, who should attack it, though by the death of the aggressor. And that a third person might rescue another from one about to murder him, appears from Cicero to have been an allowed case: and Grotius produces the opinion of several ancient writers among both the Greeks and the Romans, in support of that principle. Dr. John Ward.

15. — he sought to slay Moses.] The voluntary killing of a person was, according to the laws of Egypt, certain death to the aggressor. Of what antiquity the law was, is uncertain. But all the laws of Egypt are said to have been very ancient. Bryant.

— Moses fled from the face of Pharaoh.] Though he could satisfy his own conscience in having killed the Egyptian, yet he had not received a commission from God to act publicly as the deliverer of the Israelites, and so could not well justify his action to Pharaoh: nor had he reason to expect, that God should protect him in an extraordinary manner, since his safety could be provided for at present by ordinary means; namely, by withdrawing from Egypt. Dr. Wells.

— the land of Midian:] A part of Arabia Petraea, where some of Abraham's posterity were settled, Gen. xxv. 2. Bp. Patrick. It lay upon the farther side of the two inlets to the Red sea, to the east of the wilderness of Sin and Etham: about eight 1521.

Before
CHRIST
|| Or,
prince.

16 Now the || priest of Midian had seven daughters: and they came and drew water, and filled the troughs to water their father's flock.

17 And the shepherds came and drove them away: but Moses stood up and helped them, and watered their flock.

18 And when they came to Reuel their father, he said, How is it that ye are come so soon to day?

19 And they said, An Egyptian delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds, and also drew water enough for us, and watered the flock.

20 And he said unto his daughters, And days' journey from Egypt. The whole route was through a desert. Bryant.

16. — drew water,] See note on Gen. xxiv. 15; and xxix. 9.

17. — Moses stood up and helped them,] Moses, when he may not in Egypt, will be doing justice in Midian. In Egypt, he delivers the oppressed Israelite: in Midian, the wronged daughters of Jethro. A good man will be doing good, wheresoever he is. His practice is a compound of justice and charity. As therefore evil dispositions cannot be changed by climate, no more will good. Bp. Hall.

18. — Reuel their father,] The name of the priest of Midian was Jethro, Exod. iii. 1; so that either Reuel was his name as well as Jethro; or else Reuel was the father of Jethro, and therefore grandfather of these young women. Bp. Patrick. It is usual in Scripture to call the grandfather, father; see Gen. xxiv. 48, where Rebekah is called Abraham's brother's daughter: she was in fact his granddaughter. Bp. Kidder. See the note on Jer. xxvii. 7.

19. — An Egyptian delivered us] So they took Moses to be from his speech and habit. Bp. Patrick.

21. — he gave Moses Zipporah his daughter,] It may be made a standing observation, that the sacred authors do not relate all the particulars of a story, as other authors delight to do; but such only as are most material. We may therefore suppose that a great many things intervened, between Moses's entrance into Jethro's family, and his marriage to his daughter: especially considering that his children were so young at his return into Egypt after an absence of forty years. Stackhouse. This marriage of Moses was contrary to the usage of his forefathers, and of the Hebrews in general; and seems to intinate that he thought himself quite alienated from his countrymen. Bryant.

22. — Gershom:] That is, a desolate stranger. Bp. Patrick. A stranger here. Calmel.

All this while Moses's affection was not so tied to Midian, that he could forget Egypt. He was a stranger in Midian: what was he else in Egypt? Surely, either Egypt was not his home, or a miserable one; and yet, in reference to it, he calls his son "Gershom," a stranger here. Much better were it to be a stranger there, than a dweller in Egypt. How hardly can we forget the place of our abode or education, although never so homely! And if he so thought of his Egyptian home, where was nothing but bondage and tyranny; how should we think of that home of ours, above, where is nothing but rest and blessedness! Bp. Hall.

— for he said, I have been a stranger &c.] During his long exile, Moses was trained in the school of adversity for that arduous mission, which he had anticipated; and so became "very meek, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth," Numb. xii. 3. And no man indeed had greater trials, or more occasion for meekness. And his humility was equal thereto: his backwardness afterwards to undertake that mission, for which he was destined from the womb, was no less remarkable than his forwardness before, Exod. iv. 10—13. Dr. Hales.

where is he? why is it that ye have left the man? call him, that he may eat bread. Before
CHRIST
1521.

21 And Moses was content to dwell with the man: and he gave Moses Zipporah his daughter.

22 And she bare him a son, and he called his name 'Gershom: for he said, I have been a stranger in a strange land. Chap. 18.
3.

23 ¶ And it came to pass in process of time, that the king of Egypt died: and the children of Israel sighed by reason of the bondage, and they cried, and their cry came up unto God by reason of the bondage.

24 And God heard their groaning, and

24. And God heard their groaning, &c.] He favourably condescended to listen to their petition, which was the first step to their deliverance. He "remembered His covenant;" which gives the reason of His gracious condescension, because He was mindful of His ancient promises to their forefathers. He "looked upon them;" or, took notice of their affliction and hard labour. And He "had respect unto them;" and determined forthwith to effect their deliverance. Bp. Patrick.

"God doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men." It is therefore reasonable to suppose, that the severe chastisement, which He caused the Israelites to undergo, was in consequence of some great and national defection, such as that, of which they were in aftertimes guilty, and of which they had probably been guilty in Egypt, in neglecting His worship, and complying too much with the idolatrous customs of the country: and that it was accordingly designed to remind them of their sad degeneracy from the virtues of their ancestors; and so, in the phrase of the Prophet, to make them "look to Abraham their father, and to Sarah that bare them," Isai. li. 2.

Or supposing them to have been not thus culpable, since "whom the Lord loveth, He chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth," God may have permitted such calamities to befall His adopted people, the more to exercise their virtue, and patience, and resignation to the Divine will: the more to keep up a distinction between them and the Egyptians, which friendly usage might have destroyed: the more to prepare and make them willing to leave Egypt, when God should command them to depart: and the more to heighten the relish of their future deliverance, and to make them more thankful, more obedient to Him and His injunctions, on every remembrance of that "house of bondage," wherein they had suffered so much, and been so long detained. Stackhouse.

In this history of Israel, here is consolation for the oppressed: that they can engage an invisible hand to vindicate their cause, if they truly turn to God, pour out their supplications before Him, trust in Him, and patiently wait for His salvation. For God is full of compassion: He delights to show mercy and lovingkindness; to raise up those that are down; to release the innocent prisoner, and break the yoke of the proud and haughty from off the neck of His servants. And when He is pleased to do this, who shall hinder Him? All Egypt could not hinder Israel from thriving among them, though they had an army of taskmasters, and searchers, to murder and destroy them. All Egypt could not murder Moses at three months old, though one of their chiefs met with him even upon the river.

We see also, how mindful God is of His promise, and how punctual in the performance of it. He had promised four hundred years before to give Israel the land of Canaan, and that time was now expired. But when was Israel in so unlikely a condition to obtain it, as at the expiration of this term, when they most groaned under their Egyptian servitude? This then was a season, most suitable for God to magnify His wisdom and power in ac-

Before
CHRIST 1531. God remembered his ^d covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob.

⁴ Gen. 15. 25 And God looked upon the children
14. & 46. 4. of Israel, and God [†] had respect unto them.
[†] Heb. knew.

CHAP. III.

1 Moses keepeth Jethro's flock. 2 God appeareth to him in a burning bush. 9 He sendeth him to deliver Israel.
14 The name of God. 15 His message to Israel.

1491. NOW Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father in law, the priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the backside of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb.

2 And the angel of the LORD appeared completing His promise. When there is no help in man, then is the arm of the Lord most easily seen, and the work is most confessedly to be ascribed to Him. Let this confirm us in the faith of our eternal redemption, of which the deliverance from Egypt is a figure. Let us conclude from hence, that when our burden is great, and our religion oppressed by the overflowings of impiety, and patience is much tired, and hope almost ashamed, then our spiritual Moses, our great Prophet like unto him, shall appear, as he did, the second time for our salvation: and deliver us out of this our Egyptian servitude by a glorious resurrection and ascension into our heavenly Canaan, which He has promised us and secured for us, by now living and reigning there in our nature, at the right hand of the Father, in the unity of the Holy Spirit, one God, world without end. Reading.

Chap. III. ver. 1. Now Moses kept the flock &c.] So Moses was taken from the sheepfold, as David was in aftertimes, to be the ruler of God's people, Ps. lxxviii. 70. God's power herein appeared the more wonderful, that He delivered His people from the Egyptian tyranny by one, that was contemptible, or rather abominable to that nation, namely a keeper of sheep. It can hardly be supposed however, but that a person of Moses's education would, during forty years, find some other employment besides that of keeping sheep. It is probable therefore, that the several arts and sciences, which he had been taught in his youth, he took care to cultivate and improve in this happy retirement. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

— the mountain of God, even to Horeb.] Otherwise, Sinai, Acts vii. 30. Horeb and Sinai seem to have been two tops of the same mountain. It is here called "the mountain of God," because, when Moses wrote this book, there had been this Divine appearance on it. Moses was conducted hither by the providence of God. Bp. Patrick.

2. — the angel of the Lord] Christ, the Angel of the Covenant, appeared. Bp. Hall. It is plain that the angel here spoken of was no created being, from the whole context, and especially from His saying, "I am the Lord God, the Jehovah, &c." No angel, without blasphemy, could take these titles; and since neither God the Father, nor God the Holy Ghost, is called an Angel, that is, a Messenger; whereas God the Son is called "the Angel of the Covenant," Mal. iii. 1; it seems to follow, that this was God the Son, who might properly be called an Angel, because in the fullness of time He was to be sent into the world in our flesh, as a messenger from God. Stackhouse.

— the bush burned with fire, &c.] When I look upon this burning bush with Moses, methinks I can never see a worthier and more lively emblem of the Church, that in Egypt was in "the furnace," yet wasted not: since then how oft hath it been flaming, never consumed! The same power, that enlightens it, preserves it: and to none, but to His enemies, is He "a consuming fire." Bp. Hall.

4. — when the Lord saw &c.] The Lord, who appeared to unto him in a ^a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: and he looked, and, behold, the bush burned with fire, and the ^a bush was not consumed.

Before
CHRIST 1491.

^a Acts 7.
30.

3 And Moses said, I will now turn aside, and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

4 And when the LORD saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses. And he said, Here am I.

5 And he said, Draw not nigh hither: ^b put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for ^b the place whereon thou standest is holy ^b ground.

^b Josh. 5.
15.
Acts 7. 33.

the Patriarchs, is allowed by the best and most judicious writers to have been the same Divine Person who afterwards "took upon Him the seed of Abraham," and was made man, and dwelt among the Jews; and accordingly the prophet Zechariah, chap. xii, calls this Person, whom the Jews were to pierce, Jehovah. But since no person could be justly called Jehovah, unless he were truly and essentially God; since we must conclude with Isaiah, that God would "not give His name and glory to another;" since, according to the words of the Apostle to the Hebrews, we ought to think this Divine Person "so much better than the angels, as He hath obtained a more excellent name than they:" it must appear, from this Person being after called by the name of Jehovah in the Old Testament, that we have in that Testament great and weighty proofs of our blessed Saviour's true and essential Deity. I need not remark, that neither Abraham nor his children ran into the errors of polytheism; for though it appears that they acknowledged more persons than one to have a right to the essential name of God, yet their belief was, that the Lord their God was (ONE JEHOVAH) ONE LORD. God, whom no man hath seen at any time, nor can see; and the Lord, who appeared unto Abraham, were not supposed to be one and the same person: but as they were called by one and the same name, by a name which could not be given to another, so they were believed to be of one nature, they were one Being; in a word, as is expressed by Moses, they were one Jehovah, though revealed to be more persons than one. Shuckford.

5. — Draw not nigh hither.] In that appearance, God meant to call Moses to come: yet, when he is come, inhibits him, "Come not hither." We must come to God: we must not come too near Him. When we meditate of the great mysteries of His word, we come to Him: we come too near Him, when we search into His counsels. The sun and the fire say of themselves, "Come not too near;" how much more the light, which none can attain unto! We have all our limits set us. The Gentiles might come into some outer courts, not into the inmost: the Jews might come into the inner court, not into the temple: the priests and Levites into the temple, not into the Holy of Holies: Moses to the hill, not to the bush. The waves of the sea had not more need of bounds than man's presumption. Bp. Hall.

— put off thy shoes] A customary token of reverence in those times in Eastern countries. The custom was probably derived from the Patriarchs; it continued to be observed by the priests in the service of the tabernacle, though there is no command for it in the law of Moses; and the Mahometans and other Eastern people retain it to this day. Bp. Patrick.

— holy ground.] Made holy by the special presence of God: thus the tabernacle, the temple, and the utensils belonging to them were called holy, with all things appropriated to the Divine service. Bp. Patrick.

All things that belong to God are holy—His house, His sacraments, His word, &c. are "holy ground;" and when we approach them, we must put off all uncleanness, and appear with the

Before
CHRIST
1491.

* Matth.
22. 34.
Acts 7. 32.

6 Moreover he said, 'I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face; for he was afraid to look upon God.

7 ¶ And the Lord said, I have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and have heard their cry by reason of their taskmasters; for I know their sorrows;

8 And I am come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them up out of that land unto a good land, and a large, unto a land flowing with milk and honey; unto the place of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites.

9 Now therefore, behold, the cry of the children of Israel is come unto me: and I have also seen the oppression wherewith the Egyptians oppress them.

10 Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.

11 ¶ And Moses said unto God, Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?

12 And he said, Certainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token unto thee, that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain.

13 And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they

Before
CHRIST
1491.

profoundest reverence, and the greatest purity of soul. Wogan.

6. — the God of Abraham, &c.] Having made a covenant that He would be their God after a peculiar manner; for otherwise He was the God of Noah, and of all the holy Patriarchs before him. But He is called the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, for a peculiar reason, because of the promise made to these three of the blessed Seed that should spring from them, in opposition to the pretensions of other neighbouring people who were their rivals in that hope. These words signify the same as if He had said, the God of Abraham and not of Lot, as the Ammonites and Moabites pretended; the God of Isaac; and not of Ishmael, as his posterity pretended; the God of Jacob, and not of Esau, as the Edomites boasted. Dr. Allix.

Moses was the son of Amram, Amram of Kohath, Kohath of Levi, Levi of Jacob, Jacob of Isaac, Isaac of Abraham. God here places together both ends of the pedigree; "I am the God of thy father; and the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob." If He had only said, "I am thy God," it had been the duty of Moses to attend awfully; but now that He says, "I am the God of thy father, and of Abraham, &c." He challenges further reverence by prescription. Bp. Hall.

— And Moses hid his face; &c.] Moses at first was bold: he goes towards the bush to behold this strange appearance; but hearing God was there, he "hid his face, and was afraid." This suggests a sentiment of great use, to repress the fond presumption of spiritual pride; and may plainly shew, that the more God revealeth Himself to man, and the nearer man draweth unto God, the greater will be his reverence and holy fear, the deeper his sense of his own imperfections and unworthiness. Wogan.

8. — a land flowing with milk and honey;] A country fruitful and well watered; full of fair pastures and flowers, where the flocks might abound with milk, and the bees might fill their cells with honey. The goats of Syria, which includes this country of Canaan, are said to have afforded a greater plenty of milk than those of any other country. Bp. Patrick. And besides the frequent expressions of Scripture, which denote that honey was formerly very common in Palestine, travellers observe, that it is at this day in great plenty there, and that the inhabitants mix it in all their sauces. Calmet.

10. Come now therefore, and I will send thee &c.] Moses had now probably given over all thoughts of ever seeing or coming again to the Israelites. But the private affairs of all considerate men afford them, I believe, many instances of some turn of life brought about by the direction of Providence in unexpected events, which could not be compassed by all the schemes which they themselves could contrive and execute. Thus it happened in the life of Moses in a most extraordinary manner. Shuckford.

— that thou mayest bring forth my people] From this time we are to consider God as the king of this people; not in general only, as He is Lord of the whole world; but in a proper and peculiar manner; for whatever authority or jurisdiction the kings of other nations exercised over their subjects, as power of life and death, of making laws and leagues, &c. the same prerogative did the Lord of heaven and earth reserve to Himself alone over the children of Israel, on which ground Moses was delegated to be His ambassadour to the king of Egypt, and constituted, as appears by the whole story, His deputy or viceroy over Israel. Bp. Patrick.

12. — this shall be a token unto thee, &c.] The present miracle of the burning bush shall be a previous token of assurance of good success, through the future assistance of the same Almighty power. Pyle. Moses was frightened when he heard his destination. He started back from a just sense of the greatness of the undertaking, and a fearful consciousness of his own inability. It pleased God to assure him of His guidance and protection; and He added, "this shall be a token &c." This was a circumstance, were it not for the Person who promised and appointed it, scarcely to be believed. For what connection had Horeb with the borders of Canaan? the road from Egypt being in a quite different direction. When however this was afterwards accomplished, it was a sure token, that the mission of Moses was from God. Bryant.

13. — and they shall say to me, What is his name? &c.] The revelation which God had made of Himself being hitherto imperfect, Moses, by desiring to know God's name, desired to have some revelation of His nature and attributes. The ancients did not give names arbitrarily, and without reason, Gen. iv. 1, and 25; v. 29; xxv. 25, 30. Some names were given by God Himself, expressive of the nature or circumstances of the person, Gen. v. 2; xvii. 5; xxxii. 28. And men endeavoured from the beginning to give names as expressive as they could, Gen. ii. 23; iii. 20. The Egyptians were curious in attempts to name persons in this manner, even before Moses's days, Gen. xli. 45. And the Israelites afterwards thought a person well named, when his name expressed his nature, 1 Sam. xxv. 25. The same observation applies to the name or names, which God thought fit to give of Himself, and which were descriptive of His attributes. See Exod. xxxiii. 18, 19; xxxiv. 5—7. And in the same manner the name of the Messiah is spoken of, Is. ix. 6; Matt. i. 21, 23. The design of Moses then, in asking God's name, was to obtain information concerning the Divine nature and attri-shall say to me, What is his name? what shall I say unto them?

Before
CHRIST
1491.

14 And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you.

15 And God said moreover unto Moses, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you: this is my name for ever, and this is my memorial unto all generations.

16 Go, and gather the elders of Israel together, and say unto them, The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, appeared unto me, saying, I have surely visited you, and seen that which is done to you in Egypt:

17 And I have said, I will bring you up out of the affliction of Egypt unto the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, unto a land flowing with milk and honey.

18 And they shall hearken to thy voice: and thou shalt come, thou and the elders of Israel, unto the king of Egypt, and ye shall say unto him, The LORD God of the Hebrews hath met with us: and now let us go, we beseech thee, three days' journey into the wilderness, that we may sacrifice to the LORD our God.

19 ¶ And I am sure that the king of Egypt will not let you go, || no, not by a || Or, but mighty hand. by strong hand.

20 And I will stretch out my hand, and smite Egypt with all my wonders which I will do in the midst thereof: and after that he will let you go.

21 And I will give this people favour in the sight of the Egyptians: and it shall come to pass, that, when ye go, ye shall not go empty:

22 ^d But every woman shall borrow of ^{4 Chap. 11.} her neighbour, and of her that sojourneth ^{2. & 12. 35.}

butes, in order to know what duties He would expect from the Israelites, and how they were to serve Him. Shuckford.

So great at this time was the degeneracy of the Israelites in Egypt, and so sensible was Moses of its effects, in ignorance of, or alienation from, the true God, that he would willingly have declined the office; and when absolutely commanded to undertake it, he desired that God would let him know by what name He would be called, when the people should ask the name of the God of their fathers. In which we see a people, not only lost to all knowledge of the unity, for the asking for a name necessarily implied their opinion of a plurality; but likewise possessed with the very spirit of Egyptian idolatry. The religion of names was a matter of great consequence in Egypt: it was one of their essential superstitions—it was one of their native inventions; and the first of them which they communicated to the Greeks. A name was a peculiar adjunct to a local tutelary deity. Out of indulgence to this weakness, God was pleased to give Himself a name: where we may observe, according to the constant method of Divine Wisdom, when it condescends to the prejudices of men, how, in the very instance of indulgence to their superstition, He gives a corrective of it. The religion of names arose from an idolatrous polytheism; and the name here given, which implies eternity and self-existence, directly opposes that superstition. Bp. Warburton.

14. — I am that I am:] I am constantly and eternally unchangeable, being of Myself, one and the same for ever. Even thus thou shalt describe and express Me to the children of Israel. Bp. Hall. He doth not say, I am this or that particular thing; but in general I AM, and I AM THAT I AM. Whereby he plainly interprets his name JEHOVAH, which signifies HE IS, or BEING ITSELF, without any restriction or limitation; as St. John expresses it, “which is, and which was, and which is to come,” Rev. i. 4. Bp. Beveridge. This very name, thus expressed by the Apostle, is given to Jesus Christ, Rev. i. 8. Bp. Wilson.

— I am] It may be rendered, as may the former words, I will be: As God is, so will He be. And this belongs to Him alone; no creature can say, I will be. Bp. Kidder.

15. — The Lord] That, which God Himself in a more especial manner calls His name, Is. xlii. 8, is JEHOVAH, as we commonly pronounce it: this, in the Greek translation of the Old Testament, and by the Apostles and Evangelists in the New, is constantly interpreted by a word, which being commonly used to signify a Lord or Governour, therefore our English translation always renders it THE LORD, in capital or great letters; and wherever we read THE LORD, in such letters, it answers to JEHOVAH; that is, to the most proper and essential name of God, signifying essence or being itself. Bp. Beveridge.

— this is my memorial &c.] By this name will I be remembered throughout all generations. Bp. Patrick.

18. — The Lord God of the Hebrews hath met with us: &c.] That is, we have received a special command from the Eternal God, whom we and our forefathers worship. Bp. Patrick.

— three days' journey] They intended to go quite away; but are directed to demand at first, to go as far as mount Sinai, which was by the nearest way but three days' journey from Egypt. Bp. Patrick. Pharaoh was to be tried at first with this request. Bp. Kidder.

19. — the king of Egypt will not let you go.] God knew beforehand the hardness of Pharaoh's heart to be such, that he would not yield, “no, not by a mighty hand;” in the margin, “but by strong hand.” The meaning is, till I have performed many miracles, and at length cut off all the firstborn in Egypt. Dr. Wells.

20. — I will — smite Egypt with all my wonders] There was a peculiarity in God's judgments upon the Egyptians; they were very significant in their operation, and particularly adapted to the people, upon whom they were inflicted. They would have been marks of Divine power to any nation upon earth: at Nineveh, or Babylon; in Carthage, or Tyre. But they are remarkably pointed in respect to the Egyptians, and in every instance have a strict reference to their idolatry, such as cannot be so particularly applied to any other people. Bryant.

22. — every woman shall borrow of her neighbour, &c.] The Hebrew word, which our translators have rendered borrow, does not signify to borrow, but to ask one to give. It is the very word used in Ps. ii. 8, “Ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession;” and the fact was this: God told Moses, that the Israelites “should not go out of Egypt empty, but that every woman should ask her neighbour, and the person she lived with, to give her jewels and raiment; and that He would dispose the Egyptians to give them;” and thus, when they were leaving Egypt, the children of Israel asked the Egyptians for “jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment;” and the Lord gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they gave

Before
CHRIST
1491.

† Or.
E. 911.

in her house, jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment: and ye shall put them upon your sons, and upon your daughters; and ye shall spoil || the Egyptians.

CHAP. IV.

1 Moses's rod is turned into a serpent. 6 His hand is leprous. 10 He is loth to be sent. 14 Aaron is appointed to assist him. 18 Moses departeth from Jethro. 21 God's message to Pharaoh. 24 Zipporah circumciseh her son. 27 Aaron is sent to meet Moses. 31 The people believeh them.

AND Moses answered and said, But, behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken unto my voice: for they will say, The Lord hath not appeared unto thee.

2 And the Lord said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, A rod.

3 And he said, Cast it on the ground. And he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from before it.

4 And the Lord said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand, and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand:

5 That they may believe that the Lord God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath appeared unto thee.

6 ¶ And the Lord said furthermore un-them what they asked for so freely as to impoverish themselves by making presents to them. Josephus represents this fact agreeably to the true sense of the sacred text. He says, that the Egyptians made the Hebrews considerable presents; and that some did so in order to induce them to go the sooner away from them; others, out of respect to, and upon account of the acquaintance they had had with them. Shuckford. In a parallel passage, Hannah "freely gave," or consecrated to the Lord her firstborn, whom she had asked, or prayed for, in obedience to the Law of Moses respecting the firstborn, 1 Sam. i. 28; Exod. xiii. 2. On the present mistranslation has been grafted a calumny against the Israelites, as if they cheated the Egyptians: whereas the Lord gave them favour in the sight of the Egyptians, who freely gave what they as freely asked. Dr. Hales.

The practice of giving, receiving, and asking for presents, is very common in the East at this day, and seems to be among the usages derived from remote antiquity. Thus we read that king Solomon (1 Kings x. 13) "gave unto the queen of Sheba all her desire, whatsoever she asked, beside that which Solomon gave her of his royal bounty." The practice is not looked upon as any degradation to dignity, or any mark of a rapacious meanness. Harmer. See the note on Gen. xxi. 27.

—ye shall spoil the Egyptians.] Not by rapine or stealth, but by their own consent. Bp. Patrick. Or, ye shall empty Egypt; that is, ye shall leave the people in a condition, like those that are spoiled. Bp. Kidder. All this was to be done by the special appointment of Almighty God, who is the disposer of all things, and ordered this as one part of the punishment due to the oppressive Egyptians. Pyle.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. —they will not believe &c.] Moses might well suppose, that the Israelites would not presently and without a sign give him credit: such signs he now asks and God grants, that they might believe the Lord had appeared unto him, and to him, Put now thine hand into thy bosom. And he put his hand into his bosom; and when he took it out, behold, his hand was leprous as snow.

7 And he said, Put thine hand into thy bosom again. And he put his hand into his bosom again; and plucked it out of his bosom, and, behold, it was turned again as his other flesh.

8 And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe thee, neither hearken to the voice of the first sign, that they will believe the voice of the latter sign.

9 And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe also these two signs, neither hearken unto thy voice, that thou shalt take of the water of the river, and pour it upon the dry land: and the water which thou takest out of the river † shall become blood upon the dry land.

10 ¶ And Moses said unto the Lord, O my Lord, I am not † eloquent, neither † heretofore, nor since thou hast spoken unto thy servant: but I am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue.

11 And the Lord said unto him, Who hath made man's mouth? or who maketh the dumb, or deaf, or the seeing, or the blind? have not I the Lord?

12 Now therefore go, and I will be ^a with

Before
CHRIST
1491.

† Heb. shall be and shall be.

† Heb.
a man of words.

† Heb.
since yesterday, nor since the third day.

^a Matth.
10. 19.
Mark 13.
11.

Luke 12.
11.

given him a commission for their deliverance. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

2. —A rod.] The staff or wand that he generally used for driving his flock. Calmct.

5. That they may believe &c.] The meaning is, This shall be one miracle, which you shall be enabled to repeat before the Israelites, to demonstrate that you are authorized by Me, the God of your forefathers. Pyle.

6. —his hand was leprous as snow.] As white with leprosy as snow. Bp. Patrick.

8. And it shall come to pass, &c.] In case the first of these miracles should fail to bring over the people to him, his orders were to make use of the second: and if that should not be sufficient, he was promised a third, which was to take water out of the Nile, and turn it into blood before their eyes. This last sign was not wrought now, because he was in the desert, and far from the river. Pyle.

It was necessary that Moses should be furnished with all these powers, because he came with an unusual commission, which would not have been credited, unless confirmed by such extraordinary proof. All the Prophets after him did not work miracles, which were necessary only when some great change was to be effected in the world: and this was the case now at the deliverance of the Israelites from Egypt. After this, they were to be put into a new form and order by a body of peculiar laws, both civil and religious. And when these laws were notoriously violated, God was pleased by such wonders, as Moses wrought, to turn their hearts back again, as He did in the days of Elijah, 1 Kings xviii. 37. Bp. Patrick.

12. —I will be with thy mouth,] I will take away thy imperfection of speech. Bp. Patrick. No observant reader of the writings of Moses can be insensible, that he was in truth, what St. Stephen styles him, "mighty in words:" for numerous instances may be given of his eloquence. But it is not to be believed that 1491. thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt say.

Before
CHRIST

13 And he said, O my Lord, send, I pray thee, by the hand of him whom thou wilt send.

|| Or,
shouldst.

14 And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Moses, and he said, Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well. And also, behold, he cometh forth to meet thee: and when he seeth thee, he will be glad in his heart.

15 And thou shalt speak unto him, and put words in his mouth: and I will be with thy mouth, and with his mouth, and will teach you what ye shall do.

16 And he shall be thy spokesman unto the people: and he shall be, even he shall be to thee instead of a mouth, and ^b thou shalt be to him instead of God.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

17 And thou shalt take this rod in thine hand, wherewith thou shalt do signs.

^b Chap.
7. 1.

18 ¶ And Moses went and returned to Jethro his father in law, and said unto him, Let me go, I pray thee, and return unto my brethren which are in Egypt, and see whether they be yet alive. And Jethro said to Moses, Go in peace.

19 And the Lord said unto Moses in Midian, Go, return into Egypt: for all the men are dead which sought thy life.

20 And Moses took his wife and his sons, and set them upon an ass, and he returned to the land of Egypt: and Moses took the rod of God in his hand.

he acquired this ability from his Egyptian education any more than that he was thereby made "mighty in deeds" also, which St. Stephen joins to his power "in words," and in which he was undoubtedly assisted in an extraordinary manner by the Deity. Shuckford.

13. — send, I pray thee, by the hand &c.] Send a more proper person, one fitter for the employment, than I am. Bp. Patrick. Driven from all his excuses, Moses is at last compelled to declare openly, that he was not inclined for the office, and to intreat God to provide some other messenger. His backwardness appears to have been produced by such considerations as these: he had long lost the influence, which he formerly possessed in Egypt; he had already experienced the ingratitude of the Hebrews, and their rejection of his services; perhaps also he was still mindful of the danger, which had caused him to take refuge in Midian; besides he was aware of the great weight of the employment, and conscious of his own infirmities. These considerations may serve to account for Moses's backwardness, and perhaps go some way towards excusing it. Stackhouse.

14. And the anger of the Lord was kindled &c.] These words seem to import that God was highly displeased at him. Perhaps this anger amounted only to such displeasure, as a father conceives against a son when he is too diffident, notwithstanding all that he has said or done to breed in him a just confidence. Bp. Patrick.

— Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? The manner of Aaron's introduction into the history is worthy of notice. He at once appears as a kind of assistant, and so far an inferior to his brother Moses; yet Aaron had some advantages, which seem to entitle him to prior consideration. He was the elder brother, was an eloquent speaker, and was favoured by Divine inspiration. Why he was not preferred to Moses in respect of authority we have no cause assigned: and it is not now for us to assign any other than the Divine good pleasure. Cabnet.

Aaron was probably a person of great distinction in the tribe of Levi, as may be concluded also from his marriage with the sister of the prince of the tribe of Judah, chap. vi. 23. Bp. Patrick. It should seem that he was in circumstances superiour to those of the lower class of people. One from among such, as were kept to their daily bondage, could ill have spared time and money for a journey to Horeb: his family and his task would have missed him too much. It is reasonable to suppose, that, though the family of these brothers had no pretension to sovereign authority by descent, they were probably of consideration by their property, or their office, or on some other account. Cabnet.

— he cometh forth to meet thee:] That is, by My direction or suggestion to him, he will come forth to meet thee, when thou goest into Egypt. Dr. Wells. Among the most confirming signs given by God to Moses, no doubt, we must reckon the interview with his brother Aaron; which, being predicted by God, and directly happening, was very convincing to Moses. See something similar in the case of Jeremiah, chap. xxxii. 7, 8. See also Luke xxii. 10. It should seem also, that Aaron would not have taken a long journey from Egypt to mount Sinai at great hazard and at much expense, unless he had been well assured of the authority which sent him. Neither could he have expected to find Moses, where he did find him, unless by Divine direction; since the place, afterwards called "the mount of God," was then private and unfrequented. Inasmuch therefore, as Aaron was a sign to Moses by meeting him there, so Moses was a sign to Aaron. Aaron seems to have joined Moses after the affair of Zipporah: no doubt, he related to Moses the events in Egypt, the death of the former Pharaoh, &c. Cabnet.

16. — thou shalt be to him instead of God.] Thou shalt deliver My mind and will to him. Bp. Patrick. By this is meant, that Moses should be like a Divine oracle; whose responses were disclosed by his priest or prophet. He was, as a divinity, to suggest; and another was to declare his purpose. But the first suggestion was to come from God; by whom Moses himself was to be originally inspired. "Thou shalt speak unto him, and put words in his mouth:" but antecedently to this, "I will put words in thy mouth." Thus Moses was made the oracle of God. And it is very remarkable, that among the Egyptians he was styled Alpha, or more properly Alphi, which signifies the mouth or oracle of God: a term, used by them for an honourable and prophetick title. Bryant.

According to the foregoing appointment, when the people and elders of Israel were assembled, it was Aaron "who spake all the words which the Lord had spoken unto Moses, and did all the signs in the sight of all the people," ver. 30. And in every subsequent conference with Pharaoh, and the whole deliverance from Egypt, Aaron is the inseparable companion of Moses, and always acts the same subordinate indeed, but yet necessary and important part. Dr. Graves.

17. — thou shalt do signs.] Moses and Aaron, the lawgiver and priest of His chosen people, appear to have been the first persons, whom God empowered to work miracles. Bp. Tomline.

18. — see whether they be yet alive.] He concealed his main design from Jethro, not thinking it safe perhaps to trust his commission to one, who, though a good man, was not an Hebrew: or fearing that Jethro might discourage him from undertaking what he was now fully resolved on. Bp. Patrick.

20. — rod of God.] The rod, which God had commanded him to take, and with which he was to perform miracles. Bp. Patrick.

It pleased God, who could have wrought His wonders without any visible signs, that Moses should use the rod in external demonstration of the Divine power: yet it is to be observed, that the Lord uses such means as have no power of themselves, or likelihood to effect that which is wrought. Thus Naaman was bid to wash himself in Jordan, and our Saviour used spittle and 1491.

Before
CHRIST

21 And the LORD said unto Moses, When thou goest to return into Egypt, see that thou do all those wonders before Pharaoh, which I have put in thine hand: but I will harden his heart, that he shall not let the people go.

22 And thou shalt say unto Pharaoh, Thus saith the Lord, Israel is my son, even my firstborn:

23 And I say unto thee, Let my son go, that he may serve me: and if thou refuse to let him go, behold, I will slay thy son, even thy firstborn.

24 ¶ And it came to pass by the way in clay to anoint the eyes of the blind. And this the Lord doth, that the work should not be ascribed to the means. Willet.

21. — I will harden his heart,] I will, when he has hardened his own heart, leave him to his stubbornness and impenitence. Bp. Kidder. When God is said to harden men's hearts, it is not to be imagined that He secretly influences their wills, or suggests any stubborn resolutions to their minds. But knowing how obstinately they are bent on wickedness, He judiciously gives them up to their own madness, and lets them run headlong on to their certain undoing. Dr. Waterland. It was before the plagues began to be inflicted, that the Lord announced to Moses that He would "harden Pharaoh's heart:" but it is a remarkable fact, that the threat was constantly suspended, in order, as it appears, that Pharaoh might "set his heart" to God's judgments, and be obedient to His word. Five plagues had already been wrought in his presence by "the finger of God," and he had previously hardened his heart against these unequivocal testimonies of Almighty power, before the sentence of the Divine wrath was accomplished against him, and "the Lord hardened his heart, as He had spoken by Moses." See chap. vii. 13, 22; viii. 15, 19, 32; ix. 12. This result was drawn down upon him by his own previous obstinacy and numerous provocations. That he hardened his own heart, was his sin; that the Lord hardened it, was his punishment. It was an act of righteous retributive justice upon an impenitent and obstinate sinner, who had despised the riches of God's mercy and forbearance, and challenged the severity of His anger. Mant's Bampton Lectures.

22. — Israel is my son, even my firstborn:] The children of Israel are My chosen and adopted people, both before all other and above all other nations. Bp. Hall. Israel is most dear to Me, and beloved above all people, as the firstborn son commonly is above the other children. Bp. Patrick.

23. — I will slay thy son,] Not after the first refusal; but after a long course of other judgments, which should end, if he were not reformed by them, in the death of his firstborn. Bp. Patrick.

24. — in the inn,] Our translators have here used a very modern term. The Hebrew word signifies only, where they rested all night: which was most probably in some cave, or under the shade of some trees. Shuckford.

— sought to kill him.] Sensibly afflicted him with some sudden and violent disease, which he knew to be done, on account of his neglect of his son's circumcision. Bp. Hall. Appeared in such a manner as if He intended to kill him. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. God had been pleased to make a covenant with Abraham, and ordained circumcision as a test of it, and as a badge to all those who were admitted to His covenant. And it was enjoined in strong terms, and attended with this penalty to the uncircumcised person, "that soul shall be cut off from his people; he hath broken My covenant," Gen. xvii. 14. Of this breach and neglect Moses was apparently guilty, having been probably seduced by his Cushite wife. On this account it is said, "that the Lord met him" in his way towards Egypt, and offered "to kill him" for not having had this rite performed on his son. There seems to have been some hesitation on the part of the woman; but the alternathe inn, that the LORD met him, and sought to kill him. Before

CHRIST
1491.

25 Then Zipporah took a sharp || stone, || Or, knife. and cut off the foreskin of her son, and † cast it at his feet, and said, Surely a bloody husband art thou to me. † Heb. made it touch.

26 So he let him go: then she said, A bloody husband thou art, because of the circumcision.

27 ¶ And the LORD said to Aaron, Go into the wilderness to meet Moses. And he went, and met him in the mount of God, and kissed him.

28 And Moses told Aaron all the words

tive was death, or obedience. Alarmed therefore with her husband's danger, which was imminent, she performed the operation, concluding with a bitter taunt, "a bloody husband art thou to me." Moses, by his acquiescence, had brought down the necessary interposition of the Deity. For how could it be expected, that a person should be a promulgator of God's Law, who had been guilty of a violation in one of the first and most essential articles, and persevered in this neglect? Bryant.

25. — a sharp stone,] The knives of stone, used by the Jews in circumcision, were not enjoined by the Law; but the use was founded either on custom, convenience, or experience, that instruments of this kind were less dangerous than those of metal. Zipporah used a stone to circumcise her son. Joshua did the same at Gilgal, Josh. v. 2. The Egyptians used knives of stone to open dead bodies that were to be embalmed. They used stone knives to make incisions in the tree, whence the balm distilled; also, to cut the canes for writing with. The Africans of Morocco, and some Americans, still have them in common use. The Oriental Jews commonly used them for the circumcision of their children, being not unlike flints for guns: but the Western Jews use a razor. Calmet.

— at his feet,] The feet of Moses.

— Surely a bloody husband &c.] She tells him, either in a pettish humour, as some interpret: or, in a strain of joy, as others; that she had saved his life, and got him for an husband again, by circumcising his child. Pyle.

26. So he let him go:] So the Lord no longer threatened Moses with death. Bp. Patrick.

What circumcision was of old, baptism is now. Forasmuch therefore as our Lord Himself maketh baptism necessary, necessary, whether we respect the good received by it, or the testimony thereby yielded to God of our humility and meek obedience; howsoever He, by the secret ways of His own incomprehensible mercy, may be thought to save without baptism, this cleareth not us from guilt; if through our superfluous scruples, lets, and impediments, we cause a grace of so great moment to be withheld. By such scruples we may do an injury to ourselves, though not to them, towards whom we show them: and we for the hardness of our hearts may perish, although they through God's unspeakable mercy may be saved. God, who did not afflict the innocent child, whose circumcision Moses had too long deferred, took revenge upon Moses himself for the injury which was done through so great neglect: giving us thereby to understand, that they, whom God's own mercy saveth without us, are on our parts notwithstanding, and as much as in us lieth, even destroyed, when under insufficient pretences we defraud them of such ordinary outward helps, as we should exhibit. We have for baptism no set day, as the Jews had for circumcision: infants therefore are capable of it from the very instant of their birth. And if they have it not, whosoever is the occasion of that loss, doth, as much as in him lieth, wilfully cast away their souls. Hooker.

28. And Moses told Aaron &c.] We see now the shepherd of Horeb, the man slow of speech, arrived upon the confines of Egypt, with a design to free his people. If we set aside all supernatural assistance, he stands single and unsupported, without 1491.

Before
CHRIST

of the LORD who had sent him, and all the signs which he had commanded him.

29 ¶ And Moses and Aaron went and gathered together all the elders of the children of Israel :

30 And Aaron spake all the words which the LORD had spoken unto Moses, and did the signs in the sight of the people.

31 And the people believed : and when they heard that the LORD had visited the children of Israel, and that he had looked upon their affliction, then they bowed their heads and worshipped.

CHAP. V.

1 Pharaoh chideth Moses and Aaron for their message.
5 He increaseth the Israelites' task. 15 He checketh their complaints. 19 They cry out upon Moses and Aaron. 22 Moses complaineth to God.

one requisite for the completion of his purpose. How can we suppose a person, so circumstanced, capable of carrying on a scheme so arduous in its execution? He sets out alone to perform, what the wisdom and experience of the elders of the people jointly could not effect; and this, without knowing for certain that he had any friend or ally. Arriving with his staff in his hand, like a pilgrim, in Egypt, how is he to get together some hundreds of thousands of people, scattered over the face of the country, and persuade them to follow him to Canaan? A stranger at the Egyptian court, and not gifted with the powers of persuasion, how is he to get access to the reigning prince; and beg, or demand, the dismissal of so many useful subjects? What plea could he use, or what art employ, to favour his purpose? And what answer could he expect from a monarch on such an occasion, but that which was really given; accompanied with an imposition of double duty on the people; sufficient to make them detest the name of Moses, to ruin him in their opinion, and to defeat all his views? These difficulties neither the wisdom nor the ability of men could remedy. Yet they were remedied; but it was by far superiour power. It was by God Himself, who suffered His people to be in this perplexity and distress, that they might wish for deliverance, and be ready to obey. Accordingly, when, upon the display of His wonders, they acknowledged the hand of the Almighty, and proffered their obedience to His Prophet, they were delivered by Him from those evils, from which no power on earth could have freed them. Bryant.

Chap. V. ver. 1. — Moses and Aaron went in, and told Pharaoh, Attended probably by some of the elders of the people, they demanded an audience of Pharaoh, and repaired to his court. Bp. Patrick. It seems probable that Aaron was a governour over the Israelites. He was certainly under the authority of Pharaoh's officers, yet he might be the head of his own people: for it is customary in the East, for all societies, trades, &c. to have a head, who is responsible to government: and something of this kind was very likely the case, because we do not read of any intrusion of Aaron into office, or any election by the people, or any charge of such assuming brought against him by Pharaoh; but both Moses and Aaron seem to be acknowledged by Pharaoh himself, and evidently by many of his servants, to be of great consideration; and apparently to be the proper persons, who should plead and remonstrate on behalf of the Israelites to the king. Cabnet.

— hold a feast unto me Perform a solemn service according to peculiar rites, which I shall prescribe. Bp. Patrick. The apparent reason of Moses's application to Pharaoh was, that the people might go three days' journey into the desert, for the purpose of a festivity and sacrifice to the God Jehovah. Similar 1491.

Before
CHRIST

AND afterward Moses and Aaron went in, and told Pharaoh, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Let my people go, that they may hold a feast unto me in the wilderness.

2 And Pharaoh said, Who is the LORD, that I should obey his voice to let Israel go? I know not the LORD, neither will I let Israel go.

3 And they said, ^a The God of the He- ^a Chap. 4.
brews hath met with us: let us go, we ^{15.}
pray thee, three days' journey into the desert, and sacrifice unto the LORD our God; lest he fall upon us with pestilence, or with the sword.

4 And the king of Egypt said unto them, Wherefore do ye, Moses and Aaron, let the people from their works? get you unto your burdens.

undertakings are actually established, and accomplished every year, from Egypt, by the caravan to Mecca, &c. And it is probable that such pilgrimages are of very ancient date. Fragments to Calmet.

2. — Who is the Lord, Who is Jehovah? Though he owned such gods as the Egyptians worshipped, he slighted that God, whom Moses called Jehovah, to whom he says, that he owed no obedience, because he did not know whom they meant by Hūn. Bp. Patrick.

The answer of all irreligious people, when they are pressed to a duty, which it is against their interest or inclination to perform, is much the same with this of Pharaoh to Moses: "Who is the Lord, that I should obey His voice?" How does it appear that He has employed you, and that you do not rather use His name, to give credit to your own ambitious purposes? It is well known that such objections as these have broken the force of religion upon the hearts of sinners in all ages of the world. Reading.

3. And they said, The God of the Hebrews &c. In answer to the haughty tyrant, they styled the LORD by a more ancient title, which the Egyptians ought to have known and respected, from Abraham's days, when He plagued them in the matter of Sarah: "THE GOD OF THE HEBREWS hath met with us: let us go, we pray thee, three days' journey into the desert, and sacrifice unto the Lord our God; lest He fall upon us with pestilence, or with the sword:" plainly intimating to Pharaoh also, not to incur His indignation, by refusing to comply with their desire. Dr. Hales. The "three days' journey" was not the whole that was intended. But Moses was under no obligation to let so bitter an enemy as Pharaoh into all his design. He acted according to God's instructions: and God thought proper to demand at first no more than "three days' journey into the wilderness," that by denying so modest a request Pharaoh might make his tyranny more manifest, and the Divine vengeance more just and remarkable. Stackhouse.

— lest he fall upon us &c. Lest He send a plague upon us, or some foreign enemy to cut us off, for our neglect of Him. It is observable, that they neither wrought any miracle, nor threatened any punishment upon Pharaoh, on their first application to him, but told him very submissively the danger to which they were themselves exposed, if they did not obey their God. Bp. Patrick.

4. And the king of Egypt said Pharaoh raged before, much more now, that he received a message to dismiss the Israelites. The admonitions of God make ill men worse. Corruption, when it is checked, grows mad with rage. A good heart yields at the stillest voice of God; but the most gracious motions of God harden the wicked. Bp. Hall.

— Wherefore do ye, &c. Instead of answering their reasons,
R 2

Before
CHRIST
1491.

5 And Pharaoh said, Behold, the people of the land now are many, and ye make them rest from their burdens.

6 And Pharaoh commanded the same day the taskmasters of the people, and their officers, saying,

7 Ye shall no more give the people straw to make brick, as heretofore: let them go and gather straw for themselves.

8 And the tale of the bricks, which they did make heretofore, ye shall lay upon them; ye shall not diminish ought thereof: for they be idle; therefore they cry, saying, Let us go and sacrifice to our God.

† Heb.
Let the work be heavy upon the men.

9 † Let there more work be laid upon the men, that they may labour therein; and let them not regard vain words.

10 ¶ And the taskmasters of the people went out, and their officers, and they spake to the people, saying, Thus saith Pharaoh, I will not give you straw.

11 Go ye, get you straw where ye can find it: yet not ought of your work shall be diminished.

12 So the people were scattered abroad throughout all the land of Egypt to gather stubble instead of straw.

† Heb.
a matter of a day in his day.

13 And the taskmasters hastened them, saying, Fulfil your works, your † daily tasks, as when there was straw.

14 And the officers of the children of Israel, which Pharaoh's taskmasters had set over them, were beaten, and demanded, Wherefore have ye not fulfilled your task in making brick both yesterday and to day, as heretofore?

15 ¶ Then the officers of the children of Israel came and cried unto Pharaoh, saying, Wherefore dealest thou thus with thy servants?

Pharaoh tells them, that he looked upon them as disturbers of the peace of the kingdom, and hinderers of his business. Bp. Patrick.

7. — straw to make brick,] The composition of bricks in Egypt was only a mixture of clay, mud, and straw, slightly blended and kneaded together, and afterwards baked in the sun. Dr. Shaw.

The Egyptian pyramid of unburnt brick seems to be made of the earth brought by the Nile, being a sandy black earth, with some pebbles and shells in it: it is mixed up with chopped straw, in order to bind the clay together. Bp. Pococke.

21. — The Lord look upon you, and judge; &c.] The Lord requite you, as you deserve; because you have made us odious in the sight of Pharaoh, and given him occasion or pretence for destroying our whole nation. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

22. And Moses returned unto the Lord, &c.] This plainly intimates, that the Lord had appeared to Moses since he came to Egypt, in some settled place, whither he might on all occasions resort to Him. Bp. Patrick.

— wherefore hast thou &c.] Moses himself appears to have been unable to give an account why the Lord should suffer their 16 There is no straw given unto thy servants, and they say to us, Make brick: and, behold, thy servants are beaten; but the fault is in thine own people.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

17 But he said, Ye are idle, ye are idle: therefore ye say, Let us go and do sacrifice to the Lord.

18 Go therefore now, and work; for there shall no straw be given you, yet shall ye deliver the tale of bricks.

19 And the officers of the children of Israel did see that they were in evil case, after it was said, Ye shall not minish ought from your bricks of your daily task.

20 ¶ And they met Moses and Aaron, who stood in the way, as they came forth from Pharaoh:

21 And they said unto them, The Lord look upon you, and judge; because ye have made our savour † to be abhorred in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of his servants, to put a sword in their hand to slay us.

† Heb.
to stink.

22 And Moses returned unto the Lord, and said, Lord, wherefore hast thou so evil entreated this people? why is it that thou hast sent me?

23 For since I came to Pharaoh to speak in thy name, he hath done evil to this people; † neither hast thou delivered thy people at all.

† Heb. delivering thou hast not delivered.

CHAP. VI.

1 God reneweth his promise by his name JEHOVAH.

14 The genealogy of Reuben, 15 of Simeon, 16 of Levi, of whom came Moses and Aaron.

THEN the LORD said unto Moses, Now shalt thou see what I will do to Pharaoh: for with a strong hand shall he let condition to grow worse rather than better, since he delivered His message to Pharaoh. The reflections, which had been cast upon him by the officers, so disturbed his mind, that he forgot himself to such a degree as to ask these unbecoming questions; and to complain that God had done nothing to fulfil His promise of deliverance to His people. Bp. Patrick.

It is the nature of man to murmur and complain, if our hopes are deferred, and things succeed not immediately according to our expectations: and even good men, as we see from this part of Moses's conduct, are too apt to repine, when they suffer themselves to be surprised. But if Moses did amiss in repining, he did well in "returning unto the Lord," and making his complaint, not to others, but to Him. Let this example teach us, that whenever our frailty falls into discontent and uneasiness under the hand of God, we should avoid publicly venting our griefs, as the Israelites did; but rather, with Moses, return to God, and pour out our complaints before Him. So did David, the man after God's own heart; "When I am in heaviness," saith he, "I will think upon God: when my heart is vexed, I will complain," Ps. lxxvii. 3. So did St. Paul, when, buffeted by the messenger of Satan, he applied himself to God for relief, and besought the Lord them go, and with a strong hand shall he drive them out of his land.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

2 And God spake unto Moses, and said unto him, I am the LORD:

3 And I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, by the name of God Almighty, but by my name JEHOVAH was I not known to them.

4 And I have also established my covenant with them, to give them the land of Canaan, the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers.

5 And I have also heard the groaning of the children of Israel, whom the Egyptians keep in bondage; and I have remembered my covenant.

6 Wherefore say unto the children of Israel, I am the LORD, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptthrice, that it might depart from him; but the answer was, (and he acquiesced in it,) "My grace is sufficient for thee," 2 Cor. xii. 9. Wogan.

Chap. VI. ver. 1. — with a strong hand &c.] I will so terribly scourge him, that he shall not only suffer them to go, but thrust them out of Egypt, and be glad to be rid of them. Bp. Patrick.

2. — I am the Lord:] This is an answer to the question put by Moses, chap. v. 22, "Why is it that Thou hast sent me?" God here tells him in reply, I am Jehovah, and have sent thee to make known this great name, that is, Myself, who am constant to My word, and will faithfully perform all My promises. Bp. Patrick.

3. — I appeared unto Abraham, &c.] He tells him, that He, who had formerly represented Himself to Abraham, and their forefathers, under the name of El-Shaddai, that is, the all-sufficient God, Gen. xvii. 1; and under that of Jehovah, Gen. xii. 7, 8; xxii. 14; would now demonstrate Himself indeed to be what the latter name imported, the unchangeable and faithful God. Pyle. I appeared to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, as that God, who was able and powerful to effect that which I promised: I now appear to thee as ready to make good and execute. Bp. Hall. In many places of Scripture God brings in His great name of Jehovah, as an argument of the immutability of His counsel: That which He saith, shall most certainly come to pass, because He that saith it is the Lord Jehovah. By this we see the true meaning of the passage, "By My name Jehovah was I not known to them;" that is, I never made known Myself, nor confirmed My promise to them, as I now do to thee, by saying I am Jehovah. Bp. Beveridge. When God entered into covenant with Abraham, it was by the name of "God Almighty," Gen. xvii. 1; upon which He promised to his seed the land of Canaan, ver. 8. By this name Isaac blessed Jacob, and bestowed on him the blessing of Abraham, chap. xxviii. 3, 4. By this name again Jacob blessed Joseph, chap. xlviii. 3; xlix. 25. God lets them here know, that He, who had made a promise to their fathers by the name of "God Almighty," would now confirm His covenant to them, and make His promise good by the name of "Jehovah." For this name denotes, not only God's eternal being, but His giving of being to other things, and especially the performing of His promise. Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob had received promises, but enjoyed not the thing promised. The time was now come, in which God would bring to pass what He had promised; and now they should know that He is the LORD. Bp. Kidder.

It means that God having actually given defence and plenty to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, was already known to them by the names of "El," Almighty; and "Shaddai," All-sufficient; but that 1491.

Before
CHRIST

tians, and I will rid you out of their bondage, and I will redeem you with a stretched out arm, and with great judgments:

7 And I will take you to me for a people, and I will be to you a God: and ye shall know that I am the LORD your God, which bringeth you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians.

8 And I will bring you in unto the land, concerning the which I did ^{† Heb. lift up my hand.} swear to give it to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob; and I will give it you for an heritage: I am the LORD.

9 ¶ And Moses spake so unto the children of Israel: but they hearkened not unto Moses for ^{† Heb. shortness, or, straitness.} anguish of spirit, and for cruel bondage.

10 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, having not fulfilled to them His promise of giving to them or their seed the land of Canaan, He was not yet known to them by His name JEHOVAH, which imports a God, constant to His word, and "the same yesterday, and to-day, and for ever," Heb. xiii. 8. Abp. Tenison.

4. — the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers.] So it is often called, when He speaks to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and so it might be called also with respect to their posterity. Bp. Patrick. If we look into the story of those favourites of Heaven, the ancestors of the Israelitish nation, we find them sojourning in a land that was not their dwelling only in tents, soon pitched, and as soon removed again; having no ground of their own to set their foot on, save only a possession of a burying-place, (and that purchased of the inhabitants,) where they might rest from their travels, till they shall pass, at the resurrection of the just, to their durable inheritance in the kingdom of God. Look at the posterity of Jacob, the chosen people of the most High, after they had been delivered from the house of bondage. View them likewise dwelling in tents, sojourning, for forty years, in a vast and howling wilderness, attacked by enemies, stung by serpents, and in danger of perishing for want of provisions; but still supported by the hand of Providence; and at length conducted to the land of promise. When they had taken possession of Canaan, they might be said in some sense to have obtained a settlement. But, in truth and propriety, what settlement can any man be said to have obtained, to whom will soon be brought (and he knows not how soon) the message which was brought to king Hezekiah? "Set thine house in order, for thou shalt die!" This was the case with the Israelites, no less after their settlement in the land of Canaan, than before it. Notwithstanding therefore the rest, which God had then given them, we find David, in the 95th Psalm, speaking of another future and distant rest, still remaining for the people of God, in a better country, that is, an heavenly. And accordingly, though settled in the promised land, we hear him still crying out in the 119th Psalm, "I am a stranger in the earth." Bp. Horne.

7. — I will take you to me for a people,] They who ask a reason, why God should prefer so perverse a people to all others, may recollect, that one reason has been given already: that it was for the sake of their forefathers, and to fulfil the promise made to the Patriarchs. Another may be, that the extraordinary providence, by which they were protected, might become the more visible and illustrious: for, had they been endowed with the shining qualities of more polished nations, the effects of that providence might have been ascribed to their own wisdom: whereas their impotence and inability, when left to themselves, are finely represented by the prophet Ezekiel, under the similitude of the vine tree. See Ezek. xv. 2, 3. Bp. Warburton.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

11 Go in, speak unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, that he let the children of Israel go out of his land.

12 And Moses spake before the Lord, saying, Behold, the children of Israel have not hearkened unto me; how then shall Pharaoh hear me, who am of uncircumcised lips?

13 And the Lord spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, and gave them a charge unto the children of Israel, and unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt.

14 ¶ These be the heads of their fathers' houses: ^a The sons of Reuben the first-born of Israel; Hanoch, and Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi: these be the families of Reuben.

^a Gen. 46.
9.
1 Chron.
5. 3.

^b 1 Chron.
4. 24.

15 ^b And the sons of Simeon; Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad, and Jachin, and Zohar, and Shaul the son of a Canaanitish woman: these are the families of Simeon.

^c Numb.
3. 17.
1 Chron.
6. 1.

1619.

16 ¶ And these are the names of ^c the sons of Levi according to their generations; Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari: and the years of the life of Levi were an hundred thirty and seven years.

17 The sons of Gershon; Libni, and Shimi, according to their families.

^d Numb.
26. 57.
1 Chron.
6. 2.

18 And ^d the sons of Kohath; Amram, and Izhar, and Hebron, and Uzziel: and the years of the life of Kohath were an hundred thirty and three years.

19 And the sons of Merari; Mahali and Mushi: these are the families of Levi according to their generations.

^e Chap.
2. 1.
Numb. 26.
59.

20 And ^e Amram took him Jochebed his father's sister to wife; and she bare him Aaron and Moses: and the years of the life of Amram were an hundred and thirty and seven years.

12. — who am of uncircumcised lips?] An ill speaker and one who wanted eloquence. It was the manner of the Hebrews to call those parts uncircumcised, which were unprepared for the use, for which they were designed. Thus Jeremiah says of the Jews, that their "ear was uncircumcised;" and adds the consequence, "that they cannot hearken," Jer. vi. 10. Again he says, that the house of Israel were "uncircumcised in the heart;" that is, they would not understand and learn their duty, chap. ix. 26. St. Stephen puts both together—"uncircumcised in heart and ears," Acts vii. 51. As circumcision was the first and greatest sacrament among the Jews, so uncircumcision was esteemed by them the greatest scandal and disgrace. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse. See the note on Jer. vi. 10.

14. These be the heads of their fathers' houses:] The principal persons of the several families of Israel. Moses here gives an account of the genealogy of himself and Aaron, that he might leave it on record to posterity, that they were both true Israelites. Accordingly he briefly sets down the heads of the two eldest fa-

21 ¶ And the sons of Izhar; Korah, and Nepheg, and Zithri.

Before
CHRIST
1619.

22 And the sons of Uzziel; Mishaël, and Elzaphan, and Zithri.

23 And Aaron took him Elisheba, daughter of Amminadab, sister of Naashon, to wife; and she bare him Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

24 And the sons of Korah; Assir, and Elkanah, and Abiasaph: these are the families of the Korhites.

25 And Eleazar Aaron's son took him one of the daughters of Putiel to wife; and she bare him Phinehas: these are the heads of the fathers of the Levites according to their families.

^f Numb. 25.
11.

26 These are that Aaron and Moses, to whom the Lord said, Bring out the children of Israel from the land of Egypt according to their armies.

27 These are they which spake to Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring out the children of Israel from Egypt: these are that Moses and Aaron.

1491.

28 ¶ And it came to pass on the day when the Lord spake unto Moses in the land of Egypt, 29 That the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, I am the Lord: speak thou unto Pharaoh king of Egypt all that I say unto thee.

30 And Moses said before the Lord, Behold, I am of uncircumcised lips, and how shall Pharaoh hearken unto me?

CHAP. VII.

1 Moses is encouraged to go to Pharaoh. 7 His age. 8 His rod is turned into a serpent. 11 The sorcerers do the like. 13 Pharaoh's heart is hardened. 14 God's message to Pharaoh. 19 The river is turned into blood.

AND the Lord said unto Moses, See, I have made thee a god to Pharaoh:

milies of Israel, and enlarges on the third, that of Levi, from which he was himself descended. Bp. Patrick.

20. — his father's sister] Jochebed was daughter of Levi, born in Egypt, Numb. xxvi. 59. It is a proof of the truth of Moses as an historian, that he does not scruple to relate the consanguinity of his parents; which in afterages, when the law against such marriages was enacted, might be thought disgraceful to his family; though before perhaps it was approved. Stackhouse.

23. — Naashon,] A prince of the house of Judah, and chief commander of their host when they went from Egypt, Numb. ii. 3. Bp. Patrick.

27. — these are that Moses and Aaron.] He repeats this, that all generations might mark, who were the men employed by God in this great and hazardous work of demanding the liberty of the children of Israel from Pharaoh's servitude. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. VII. ver. 1. — I have made thee a god to Pharaoh:] I have made thee, not only My ambassador to speak in My name,

Before
CHRIST
1491.

and Aaron thy brother shall be thy prophet.

2 Thou shalt speak all that I command thee: and Aaron thy brother shall speak unto Pharaoh, that he send the children of Israel out of his land.

3 And I will harden Pharaoh's heart, and multiply my signs and my wonders in the land of Egypt.

4 But Pharaoh shall not hearken unto you, that I may lay my hand upon Egypt, and bring forth mine armies, and my people the children of Israel, out of the land of Egypt by great judgments.

5 And the Egyptians shall know that I am the LORD, when I stretch forth mine hand upon Egypt, and bring out the children of Israel from among them.

6 And Moses and Aaron did as the LORD commanded them, so did they.

7 And Moses was fourscore years old, and Aaron fourscore and three years old, when they spake unto Pharaoh.

but also My substitute to punish Pharaoh for disobedience to Me. Dr. Wells. I have made thee a terrible instrument, to execute My judgments upon Pharaoh, which he shall take, as wrought by Me, through thy hands. Bp. Hall. It denotes that he was God's ambassadour, to speak to him in His name, with a power ready to execute all that he desired, for humbling Pharaoh, and punishing his disobedience to the Divine message. Bp. Patrick.

— Aaron thy brother shall be thy prophet.] Shall interpret thy mind, as prophets interpret the mind of God. Bp. Patrick.

3. — multiply my signs &c.] The first plagues, that were inflicted on Pharaoh, proving ineffectual, it was necessary to send more and greater, that, if it had been possible, his stubborn heart might have been softened. Bp. Patrick.

7. — Moses was fourscore years old.] This seems to be noticed, to shew that Moses and Aaron were arrived at an age of settled gravity, when God made choice of them for this weighty employment. Bp. Patrick.

12. — they became serpents.] Either they became real serpents, God permitting these sorcerers to work by the assistance of evil spirits; or they became serpents only in appearance, a mist being cast over the eyes of Pharaoh and his courtiers; or the sorcerers brought thither real serpents in the place of their rods which they conveyed away. Bps. Patrick and Kidder, Dr. Wells.

The original phrase, for "they did so," or, "in like manner," may only indicate the attempt, and not the deed; as afterwards in the plague of lice, when "they did so with their enchantments, but could not," chap. viii. 18. And indeed, the original term, rendered "their enchantments," fitly expresses the secret deceptions of legerdemain, or slight of hand, to impose on spectators. And the remark of the magicians, when unable to imitate the production of lice, which was beyond their skill and dexterity, on account of their minuteness, "this is the finger of God," seems to strengthen the supposition; especially as the Egyptians were famous for legerdemain, and for charming serpents; and the magicians having had notice of the miracle, which they were expected to imitate, they might make provision accordingly, and bring live serpents, which they might have substituted for their rods. And though Aaron's serpent swallowed up their serpents, shewing the superiority of the true miracle over the false, 2 Thess. ii. 9, it might only lead the king to conclude, that Moses and Aaron were more expert jugglers than Jannes and Jambres,

Before
CHRIST
1491.

8 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

9 When Pharaoh shall speak unto you, saying, Shew a miracle for you: then thou shalt say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh, and it shall become a serpent.

10 ¶ And Moses and Aaron went in unto Pharaoh, and they did so as the LORD had commanded: and Aaron cast down his rod before Pharaoh, and before his servants, and it became a serpent.

11 Then Pharaoh also called the wise men and the sorcerers: now the magicians of Egypt, they also did in like manner with their enchantments.

12 For they cast down every man his rod, and they became serpents: but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods.

13 And he hardened Pharaoh's heart, that he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, who opposed them, 2 Tim. iii. 8. Dr. Hales. See the note on chap. viii. 18.

The following reasons may be given for God's suffering the magicians to act thus: 1st, It was necessary that the magicians should be suffered to exert the utmost of their power against Moses, in order to clear him from the imputation of magick or sorcery, to which, considering the notions that then prevailed, he might have been exposed, if they had not entered into this competition with him, and been at length overcome. 2dly, In order to confirm the faith of the wavering and desponding Israelites, by making them see the difference between Moses, who acted by the power of God, and the magicians, who acted by some inferior power. 3dly, In order to preserve them afterwards from being seduced, by any false miracle, from the worship of the true God. Universal History.

— but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods.] This shews the superior power by which Moses acted. Bp. Patrick. In relating these miracles of the Egyptian sorcerers, Moses expresses himself throughout, as if they really operated the same effects which he himself did: so that Pharaoh and his whole court were probably persuaded, that the power of their magicians was equal to that of Moses, till the magicians not being able to produce lice, as Moses had done, chap. viii. 18, they were constrained to own that "the finger of God" was concerned in it. Calmet. In order to confirm the wavering faith of the Israelites, and to exhibit to Pharaoh and to the Egyptians the strongest testimony of the Divine mission of Moses, this contest between Moses and the magicians appears to have been permitted, that the disparity of persons, acting, the one by the power of God, and the others by infernal, or merely human power, might be more conspicuous. Hereby the truth of Moses's pretensions was established, and Pharaoh's obstinacy and infidelity rendered inexcusable. Stackhouse.

How easily might the Egyptians have thought, that He, who caused their serpents not to be, could have kept them from being; and that they, who could not keep His serpent from devouring, could not secure them from being consumed! Bp. Hall.

13. And he hardened Pharaoh's heart.] It should be, And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, so that "he hearkened not unto them, as the Lord had said," or foretold. The original is so rendered by all the ancient versions without exception, and by the most judicious modern translations. Our present translators

Before
CHRIST
1491.

Pharaoh's heart is hardened, he refuseth to let the people go.

15 Get thee unto Pharaoh in the morning; lo, he goeth out unto the water; and thou shalt stand by the river's brink against he come; and the rod which was turned to a serpent shalt thou take in thine hand.

16 And thou shalt say unto him, The LORD God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying, Let my people go, that they may serve me in the wilderness: and, behold, hitherto thou wouldest not hear.

17 Thus saith the LORD, In this thou shalt know that I am the LORD: behold, I will smite with the rod that is in mine hand upon the waters which are in the river, and they shall be turned to blood.

18 And the fish that is in the river shall incorrectly render, "And He hardened Pharaoh's heart," inconsistently with their rendering of the same phrase, and of a phrase with the same construction, afterwards, ch. vii. 22; viii. 19; ix. 7; for Pharaoh hardened his heart several times, before God began to harden it. They seem to have been led into this error by the expression, "as the Lord had said," referring to the foregoing, "But I will harden his heart," chap. iv. 21; and, "I will harden Pharaoh's heart," chap. vii. 3. But this did not take place till Pharaoh became obdurate and incorrigible, chap. ix. 12. Dr. Hales. There is not in any of these three verses, the 13th, the 14th, and the 22d, of this chapter, the least mention of any person by whom his heart was hardened. Nor is there any other hardening implied, than what proceeded from his own settled resolution, not to lose the service of the Israelites. Bp. Patrick.

15. — lo, he goeth out unto the water;] God knew beforehand that Pharaoh would go out in the morning of the next day, either to walk for recreation by the bank of the river, or else to worship the river Nile, as was usual with the Egyptians; Bp. Patrick; or to perform his morning purification; the Egyptians esteeming it a part of their religion to wash themselves in the river twice or thrice a day. Shuckford. Moses was perhaps directed to take this opportunity of meeting with him, because it may not have been easy for him to get access to the court. Bp. Kidder.

17. — In this thou shalt know that I am the Lord:] Pharaoh had asked in a contemptuous manner, "Who is the Lord?" God therefore now bids Moses tell him, He would make him know that He is the Almighty Lord of the world. Bp. Patrick. The design of these visitations growing more awful and tremendous in their progress, was to make Pharaoh know and confess that the God of the Hebrews was the SUPREME LORD; to exhibit His power and His justice in the strongest light to "all the nations of the earth," and to execute judgment upon the Egyptians, and "upon all their gods," inanimate and bestial, for their cruelty to the Israelites, and for their groveling polytheism and idolatry, chap. xii. 12. Dr. Hales.

—behold, I will smite &c.] God commands; Moses directs; and Aaron smites; ver. 19, 20. God may therefore be said to do that which was done by His command and by His power. Bp. Kidder.

As the river Nile was to Egypt, instead of heaven, to moisten and fatten the earth; so their confidence was more in it than in heaven. Men are sure to be punished most and soonest in that which they make a rival with God. Bp. Hall. See below, note on ver. 20.

19. — upon the waters of Egypt, upon their streams, &c.] The particularity here employed, in enumerating the various kinds of places for containing water, deserves notice: the streams, or divisions of the river; the river itself; the ponds; the pools of water; and whatever water was already drawn from them, and set apart for drinking, whether kept in vessels of wood, or vessels of die, and the river shall stink; and the Egyptians shall lothe to drink of the water of the river. Before 1491.

CHRIST

19 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and stretch out thine hand upon the waters of Egypt, upon their streams, upon their rivers, and upon their ponds, and upon all their pools of water, that they may become blood; and that there may be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, both in vessels of wood, and in vessels of stone. † Heb.
gathering of their waters.

20 And Moses and Aaron did so, as the Lord commanded; and he lifted up the rod, and smote the waters that were in the river, in the sight of Pharaoh, and in the sight of his servants; and all the waters that were in the river were turned to blood. ^a Chap.
17. 5.
^b Psal. 78.
44.

stone. In Egypt are reservoirs of water higher than the Nile, which fill themselves when the river rises, and in which the water preserves itself a long while, as in a kind of cistern. These reservoirs are of great antiquity, and no doubt as early as the days of the Pharaohs. When the river Nile is rising, the waters turn red, and sometimes green; and in some years they become corrupt; during which time the inhabitants use the water of their cisterns, or reservoirs. But in order to distinguish this miracle from any such natural occurrence, not merely the waters of the river and its canals, but also those more distant, and those already drawn, partook of the general change. Even the reservoirs, which were higher than the level of the Nile, and had no communication with it, became blood. Fragments to Calmet.

— in vessels of wood, and — of stone.] In which water was kept in private houses for their present use. Bp. Patrick. Perhaps these words may mean the filtering vessels, through which they used to purify the waters of the Nile for drinking; and the sense may be, that the water should be so nauseous, that no method whatever of purifying it should succeed. Harmer.

20. — smote the waters that were in the river.] This judgment brought on the Egyptians is very remarkable, and introduced with great propriety, though the scope of it may not at first be obvious. It was a punishment particularly well adapted to that blinded and infatuated people: as it shewed them the baseness of those elements which they revered, and the insufficiency of the gods, in which they trusted. And this knowledge was very salutary to the Israelites; as it warned them not to fall into the same, or any similar, idolatry; when they had seen it thus debased and exposed, and attended with such accumulated evil. The Egyptians honoured the Nile with a religious reverence; and valued themselves much upon the excellence of their river. Nor was this blind regard confined to the Egyptians only, but obtained in many parts of the world: so that it was expedient for the children of Israel to be timely warned against such blindness and infatuation. But no nation carried their reverence to such an extravagant degree of idolatry as the Egyptians. They looked upon their river not only as consecrated to a deity; but, if we may believe some authors, as their chief national god: and worshipped it accordingly. There was therefore a great propriety in this judgment. They must have felt the utmost astonishment and horror, when they beheld their sacred stream changed and polluted; and the divinity whom they worshipped so shamefully foiled and debased. And these appearances must have had a salutary effect upon the Israelites; as they were hence warned not to accede to this species of idolatry, but to have it ever in contempt, as well as abhorrence. Bryant.

The Egyptians still retain a religious veneration for the Nile; they call it holy, blessed, sacred: and on the appearance of the new waters, mothers are seen plunging their infants into the

Before
CHRIST
1491.

21 And the fish that was in the river died; and the river stank, and the Egyptians could not drink of the water of the river; and there was blood throughout all the land of Egypt.

° Wisdom
17. 7.

22° And the magicians of Egypt did so with their enchantments: and Pharaoh's heart was hardened, neither did he hearken unto them; as the LORD had said.

23 And Pharaoh turned and went into his house, neither did he set his heart to this also.

24 And all the Egyptians digged round about the river for water to drink; for they could not drink of the water of the river.

stream, from a belief that it has a Divine virtue, such as the ancients attributed to every river. Volney's Travels.

— and all the waters — were turned to blood.] God might, if it had been the Divine pleasure, have many different ways tainted and polluted the streams of Egypt. But he thought proper to change them to blood. Now the Egyptians, and especially their priests, were particularly nice and delicate in their outward habit, and rites: and there was nothing which they abhorred more than blood. They seldom admitted any bloody sacrifices; and with the least stain of gore they would have thought themselves deeply polluted. Hence this evil brought upon them must have been severely felt; as “there was blood throughout all the land of Egypt,” ver. 21. It is moreover said, that “the fish that were in the river died; and the river stank.” The offensive vapour from the waters must have been a great aggravation of the evil to people of such external purity as the Egyptians, who abhorred all animal corruption. And what the historian mentions concerning the fish is of consequence: for all the natives of the river were in some degree esteemed sacred. In many parts the people did not feed upon them. The priests in particular never tasted fish; and this on account of their reputed sanctity. For they were sometimes looked upon as sacred emblems: at other times worshipped as real deities. These punishments then, brought upon the Egyptians, bore a strict analogy to their crime. They must have been greatly alarmed, when they beheld their sacred stream defiled with blood, their land infected, and themselves almost poisoned with their stinking deities. The evil reached the land of Goshen: for it seemed proper that the Israelites should partake in it; that the impression might be the stronger on their minds. One great reason for this part of the punishment was to give them a thorough disgust to this worship, that they might not afterwards lapse into this popular idolatry. For it is to be observed, as they were to be conducted to the land of Canaan and the confines of Syria, that there were many nations in those parts among whom this worship was common. Bryant.

21. — And the fish that was in the river died;] Diodorus Siculus, in his description of Egypt, informs us, that the river Nile abounded with all manner of fish. The food of many of the Egyptians, who abstained from eating most animals, consisted of the fruits of the earth, and the fish of the river. Stackhouse.

— could not drink of the water] It appears from the reports of travellers, that there are few wells in Egypt, and that their waters are not used by the inhabitants to quench their thirst, being unpleasant and unwholesome: but that the water of the Nile is universally used in that country, being esteemed very wholesome and extremely delicious. Thus, by the effect of this miracle, they were made to “loath” those waters, which they before preferred to all others. Harmer.

22. — the magicians — did so with their enchantments:] That is, they made an appearance of the same change in some of the waters. It may be conjectured, that Moses did not in a moment change all the waters of the country, but only those of the river

25 And seven days were fulfilled, after that the LORD had smitten the river.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Frogs are sent. 8 Pharaoh sueth to Moses, 12 and Moses by prayer removeth them away. 16 The dust is turned into lice, which the magicians could not do. 20 The swarms of flies. 25 Pharaoh inclineth to let the people go, 32 but yet is hardened.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, Go unto Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

2 And if thou refuse to let them go, behold, I will smite all thy borders with frogs:

at first, (see ver. 20,) and afterwards by degrees all the rest, when the magicians had tried their art upon some of them. Bp. Patrick. See notes on ver. 12, and chap. viii. 18.

23. — neither did he set his heart &c.] He did not seriously consider this miracle, and the difference between it and the attempts of the magicians. This shews his wilful neglect; and was the cause of his heart being hardened, as are the hearts of all men, who will think of nothing but the gratification of their own perverse humours. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

24. — digged round about the river for water to drink;] All the waters in the country being spoiled, they were forced to try to procure water for quenching their thirst by the great labour of digging wells. Bp. Patrick. This particular in the conduct of the Egyptians may be illustrated by a circumstance in Plautus's journey over the great desert from Busserah to Aleppo. “We encamped near a standing pool of water, which was so muddy, it was not fit to drink: for which reason three wells were dug by our people, pretty near it, wherein they met with very good water. If this method was practised oftener, especially where the situation of the ground gives hopes of success, I am persuaded the scarcity of water, so much complained of, would be greatly lessened.” Fragments to Calmet.

25. — seven days were fulfilled,] The change made in the waters lasted seven days, before the plague was removed. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. VIII. ver. 1. And the Lord spake &c.] Philo, the Jew, has a fine observation on the plagues of Egypt. “Some perhaps may inquire, why did God punish the country by such minute and contemptible animals, as frogs, lice, flies, rather than by bears, lions, leopards, or other kinds of savage beasts, which prey on human flesh? or if not by these, why not by the Egyptian asp, whose bite is instant death? But let him learn, if he be ignorant, first, that God chose rather to correct than to destroy the inhabitants: for if He desired to annihilate them utterly, He had no need to have made use of animals as His auxiliaries, but of the Divinely inflicted evils of famine and pestilence. Next, let him further learn that lesson, so necessary for every state of life, namely, that men, when they war, seek the most powerful aid to supply their own weakness; but God, the highest and greatest power, who stands in need of nothing, if at any time He chooses to employ instruments, as it were, to inflict chastisement, chooses not the strongest and greatest, disregarding their strength; but rather the mean and the minute, which He endues with irresistible power to chastise offenders.” Dr. Hales.

2. — if thou refuse &c.] God again threatens the plague, before He inflicts it, that Pharaoh might know, it came not by chance, but by His determinate counsel; and that he might prevent it by repentance and submission to the Divine commands. Bp. Patrick.

— I will smite all thy borders with frogs:] This evil, like the former, arose from their sacred river, in which they so much

Before
CHRIST
1491.

Or,
dough.

Wisdom
17. 7.

Or,
Have this honour over me, &c.
Or, against when.

3 And the river shall bring forth frogs abundantly, which shall go up and come into thine house, and into thy bedchamber, and upon thy bed, and into the house of thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thine ovens, and into thy kneading-troughs :

4 And the frogs shall come up both on thee, and upon thy people, and upon all thy servants.

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Stretch forth thine hand with thy rod over the streams, over the rivers, and over the ponds, and cause frogs to come up upon the land of Egypt.

6 And Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt ; and the frogs came up, and covered the land of Egypt.

7 ^a And the magicians did so with their enchantments, and brought up frogs upon the land of Egypt.

8 ¶ Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, Intreat the LORD, that he may take away the frogs from me, and from my people ; and I will let the people go, that they may do sacrifice unto the LORD.

9 And Moses said unto Pharaoh, ¶ Glory over me : ¶ when shall I intreat for thee, and for thy servants, and for thy people,

† to destroy the frogs from thee and thy houses, that they may remain in the river only ?

10 And he said, ¶ To morrow. And he said, Be it according to thy word : that thou mayest know that there is none like unto the LORD our God.

11 And the frogs shall depart from thee, and from thy houses, and from thy servants, and from thy people ; they shall remain in the river only.

12 And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh : and Moses cried unto the LORD because of the frogs which he had brought against Pharaoh.

13 And the LORD did according to the word of Moses ; and the frogs died out of the houses, out of the villages, and out of the fields.

14 And they gathered them together upon heaps : and the land stank.

15 But when Pharaoh saw that there was respite, he hardened his heart, and hearkened not unto them ; as the LORD had said.

16 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Stretch out thy rod, and smite the dust of the land, that it may become lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

Before
CHRIST
1491.
† Heb. to cut off.
Or, Against to morrow.

confided, and of whose sanctity and excellence they were so much persuaded. Its streams by these means became a second time polluted and disgraced, to the utter confusion both of their gods and priests. The land also was equally defiled, and their palaces and temples rendered hateful ; so that every native was infected, and had no way to perform any lustration, and to cleanse himself from the filth, with which he was tainted. Every stream and every lake was in a state of pollution. Whether the frog among the Egyptians was an object of reverence or of abhorrence, is uncertain : but thus much is certain, that it was very consistent with Divine wisdom and justice to punish the Egyptians either by what they abominated, or by what they idly revered. Bryant.

3. — come into thine house, &c.] The frogs were to choke up the river, cover the land, crawl upon their houses, beds, tables, vessels, &c. infest the very persons of all ranks from the prince to the beggar, and nothing should be clear from their loathsomeness and annoyance. Pyle.

The production of a number of frogs, if produced in a perfect state, was a very remarkable instance of a power overruling the ordinary course of nature. The miracle further consisted in giving an impulse to these creatures, and raising in them a desire to quit the cool waters, for the dry land, the plains, the city, &c. so contrary to their natural residence. Script. illust.

7. And the magicians did so &c.] They brought forth frogs out of some parts of the river and ponds, where they stood : God permitting them to do what contributed to the greater punishment of the Egyptians. It is probable, that Pharaoh afterwards ordered them to try their skill and power in removing or destroying the frogs, which Moses had brought up ; and that they were unable to do it : God hereby shewing them that they could do no more, than He thought fit to permit them. Dr. Wells. In these accounts of the wonders wrought by the Egyptian sorcerers, whether they are supposed to have been wrought in reality, or in appearance only ; by sleight of hand, or by the power of evil spirits, through the permission of God, who was willing to make His power known in this grand contest ; the superiority of the God of Israel was manifested, and the contest yielded by the adversaries, who could not protect themselves or their friends from the maladies and plagues inflicted by Omnipotence. Bp. Horne.

8. — Intreat the Lord, &c.] Thus Pharaoh is brought to acknowledge, that the Lord had sent the plague, and that He alone was able to remove it. Bp. Patrick.

9. — Glory over me : when shall I intreat for thee, &c.] Or, as the margin has it, "Have this honour over me, &c." that is, Take the honour of appointing your own day for your deliverance, at what time I shall intreat, &c. intimating that God, as an encouragement to his obedience, would grant him the favour of naming the very time in which he should be delivered. Pyle.

15. But when Pharaoh saw &c.] This heavy visitation was no sooner removed than forgotten. The king's fright was over ; he retracts his promise, and returns to a worse degree of resolute disobedience than before. Pyle.

16. And the Lord said] God seems to have given Pharaoh no warning of this plague, but to have inflicted it immediately on the removal of the frogs ; for his breach of faith deserved a more notable judgment. Bp. Patrick.

— smite the dust of the land, that it may become lice] It has been mentioned, that the Egyptians affected great external purity, and were very nice both in their persons and clothing. Uncommon care was taken, that they might not harbour any vermin. They were particularly solicitous upon this head ; thinking it would be a great profanation of the temple, which they entered, if any animalcule of this sort were concealed in their garments. It would have been well, if their worship had corresponded with their outward appearance ; but on the contrary it seems to have been more foul and base than that of any other nation. Their gods were contemptible and ridiculous, and their rites filthy, and to the last degree bestial and obscene. Yet they were carried on 1491.

Before
CHRIST

17 And they did so ; for Aaron stretched out his hand with his rod, and smote the dust of the earth, and it became lice in man, and in beast ; all the dust of the land became lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

18 And the magicians did so with their enchantments to bring forth lice, but they could not : so there were lice upon man, and upon beast.

19 Then the magicians said unto Pharaoh, This is the finger of God : and Pharaoh's heart was hardened, and he hearkened not unto them ; as the Lord had said.

with an appearance of outward purity, and a scrupulous shew of cleanliness. The judgments therefore inflicted by the hand of Moses were directed against the prejudices of the Egyptians ; and they were made, to suffer for their false delicacy in placing the essence of religion in external cleanliness, to the omission of things of real weight. The present judgment was attended with such propriety in its direction, that the priests and magicians perceived immediately from what hand it came. The two preceding plagues had been antecedently mentioned to Pharaoh ; and notice was given concerning the hand that would inflict them. But of this third plague there was no warning afforded ; yet the application was too plain to be mistaken ; and the magicians said immediately, " This is the finger of God." Some interpreters have understood "gnats" or "flies" to be here meant ; but without sufficient reason ; especially as thus the plague of flies would be unduly anticipated. Bryant.

18. And the magicians did so, — but they could not :] It is probable that the Egyptian magicians imitated the miracles of Aaron, so far as they did imitate them, by juggling tricks. 1. The turning of their rods into serpents may be supposed to be a substitution on their part, rather than a metamorphosis. 2. There is nothing contrary to possibility in supposing, that they might so change the colour and appearance of water by mixture, as to deceive the eyes of spectators ; or might even substitute a red liquor which might pass for blood : not to insist upon this, that they might procure and produce the very blood of animals. 3. The frogs, no doubt, came up from the waters, where they were bred ; and where they had hitherto remained. They imitated then the miracles of Aaron, which referred to those productions, with which the Egyptians were well acquainted, and of whose properties they were perfectly informed. And this they probably did, by their superiour knowledge of nature, and natural powers, united, no doubt, with great dexterity of management in the performance of their tricks. But when they came to attempt those miracles which required a change in the nature, temperature, &c. of the atmosphere, or of which the atmosphere was the vehicle of conveyance, here their sleight of hand was ineffectual, and the superiority of Aaron became more conspicuous. Script. illust.

19. — This is the finger of God :] Acknowledging that the power by which Moses was assisted was superiour to their's. Pyle. The power of God is represented by His hand or finger in the Scripture phrase, Psal. viii. 3 ; Luke xi. 20. Bp. Kidder.

20. — lo, he cometh forth to the water ;] Moses was ordered to accost Pharaoh, and to disclose to him the will of God, at the time when he was taking his morning walk upon the banks of the Nile. It was probably a season of customary adoration ; when the prince of the country shewed his reverence to the stream, which was esteemed so beneficial and sacred. Bryant. See note on chap. vii. 15.

21. — I will send swarms of flies upon thee,] The judgment to be denounced was a plague of flies : which were brought all over the land in vast numbers ; and seem to have been not only formidable for their swarms, but for the painfulness of their stings,

Before
CHRIST
1491.

20 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh ; lo, he cometh forth to the water ; and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

21 Else, if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will send ¶ swarms of flies ¶ Or, a mixture of noisome beasts, &c. upon thee, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thy houses : and the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of swarms of flies, and also the ground whereon they are.

22 And I will sever in that day the land of Goshen, in which my people dwell, that as well as of their bite, which was intolerable. There is reason to think, that the Egyptians had particular deities, whose department was to ward off those natural evils to which their votaries were liable. The province allotted to several deities was particularly to drive away flies. But this is not all : these insects, however incredible it may appear, were in many places worshipped. This reverence seems to have been shewn, sometimes, to prevent their being troublesome ; at other times, because they were esteemed sacred to the deity. Nor did they only shew an idolatrous regard to flies in general ; there was a deity styled Dens Musca, who was particularly worshipped under the characteristic of a fly. This idolatry originated in Egypt, whence it was brought to Palestine, &c. by the Phenicians to Sidon, Tyre, and Byblus ; and so into other regions of the world. Such being the worship of this people, nothing could be more striking and determinate, than the judgment brought upon them. They were punished by the very things which they revered ; and though they boasted of spells and charms, yet they could not ward off the evil. They had gods, who, they thought, could avert all mischief ; but their power was ineffectual ; and both the prince and the people were obliged to acknowledge the inferiority of their own deities, by suing through Moses to the God of Israel. Bryant.

— swarms of flies] Flesh flies, or dog flies, very bold, troublesome, and venomous. Some think the Hebrew word means a mixture of different insects, all manner of flies. Bp. Patrick. Perhaps this is the insect called Zimb in those countries. As soon as this plague appears, and its buzzing is heard, all the cattle forsake their food, and run wildly about the plain, till they die, worn out with fatigue, fright, and hunger. Bruce.

22. — I will sever in that day the land of Goshen, &c.] The three first judgments were experienced by the Israelites, as well as by the Egyptians. They were not so grievous as those which succeeded. Yet they were sufficient to teach the inhabitants of Goshen, that there was no illusion in these mighty operations ; which perhaps they might have suspected, had they not seen, and felt, and borne some share in the evil. On the other hand Pharaoh and his servants, when they saw God's people involved in the same calamities with themselves, might have fancied, that there was nothing particular in the judgments ; and in consequence of it, not so distinctly seen to whom they were directed. Hence the scope of Providence would have been defeated. It therefore pleased God, in the plague of flies, and in those which came after, to separate the land of His own people, and preserve them from these evils. The Israelites, having experienced the former evils, must have been more intimately affected with this immunity, by which they were distinguished. And they must, in consequence of it, have been more ready to follow their great leader ; who was the immediate agent of Providence, both to punish and to preserve.

The land of Goshen was a tongue-like piece of land, where the Nile first divided at a place called Cercasora. Said, or Upper Egypt, lay above ; and Mesre, or Lower Egypt, was in a line

Before
CHRIST
1491.

† Heb. a redemption.
|| Or,
by to morrow.
b Wisd. 16.
9.

|| Or,
destroyed.

no swarms of flies shall be there; to the end thou mayest know that I am the Lord in the midst of the earth.

23 And I will put † a division between my people and thy people: || to morrow shall this sign be.

24 And the Lord did so; and ^b there came a grievous swarm of flies into the house of Pharaoh, and into his servants' houses, and into all the land of Egypt: the land was || corrupted by reason of the swarm of flies.

25 ¶ And Pharaoh called for Moses and for Aaron, and said, Go ye, sacrifice to your God in the land.

26 And Moses said, It is not meet so to do; for we shall sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians to the Lord our God: lo, shall we sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians before their eyes, and will they not stone us?

27 We will go three days' journey into the wilderness, and sacrifice to the Lord our God, as ^c he shall command us.

28 And Pharaoh said, I will let you go, ^c that ye may sacrifice to the Lord your God in the wilderness; only ye shall not go very far away: intreat for me.

29 And Moses said, Behold, I go out from thee, and I will intreat the Lord that the swarms of flies may depart from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people, to morrow: but let not Pharaoh deal deceitfully any more in not letting the people go to sacrifice to the Lord.

30 And Moses went out from Pharaoh, and intreated the Lord.

31 And the Lord did according to the word of Moses; and he removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people; there remained not one.

32 And Pharaoh hardened his heart at this time also, neither would he let the people go.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

Chap. 3.
18.

downward. Nothing but a miracle could have preserved this intermediate land from flies, which swarmed both above and below. Bryant.

We cannot read the history of the plagues which God brought upon Pharaoh by the hands of Moses, without stopping a moment to consider a singularity, a very principal one, which attended this plague of the fly. It was not till this time, and by means of this insect, that God said He would separate His people from the Egyptians. And it would seem, that then a law was given to it, which fixed the limits of its habitation. The land of Goshen was a land of pasture, not tilled or sown, because it was not overflowed by the Nile. But the land overflowed by the Nile was the black earth of the valley of Egypt; and it was here that God confined the flies: for, He says, it shall be a sign of this separation of the people, which He then made, that not one fly should be seen in the sand or pasture ground, the land of Goshen: and this kind of soil has ever since been the refuge of all cattle, emigrating from the black earth to the lower part of Atbara. Bruce.

24. And the Lord did so; &c.] The land of Egypt, being annually overflowed, was pestered with swarms of flies. They were so troublesome, that the people were in many places forced to lie on the tops of their houses, which were flat, where they were obliged to cover themselves with a network. As the country abounded thus with these insects, it might be thought that the judgment was effected in a natural way; if it were not, that it was brought about, as was that also of the frogs, in the coldest and most ungenial season of the year in Egypt. These noxious animals could not have been produced at such a season by natural means. It was contrary to all experience. They used to be produced at a different, and for the most part an opposite, time of the year: and before this season they were either diminished or extinct. So also with respect to the change in the waters of the Nile, which cannot be imputed to a natural cause. The stream of the Nile indeed is sometimes of a red colour; and the same is said of the river Adonis, in Phœnicia: but this is always during violent inundations, when the rivers, by the exuberance of their waters, wash away ochre, and other minerals, from the sides of their banks. This circumstance in Egypt never happens but in summer, when the Nile is rising; at which time its waters are turbid. But in January and February the river is not only reduced to its channel, but is lower than in any of the preceding months, and particularly pure and wholesome. The change therefore was not produced by any natural cause; such as mineral tincture and common pollution: the season of the year shews the contrary. Bryant. Concerning the season, see Dr. Hales's note on chap. ix. 31.

— a grievous swarm of flies] How intolerable a plague flies can prove, may be known from places near lakes and pools, which have been on their account deserted, and rendered desolate. Such was the fate of Myuns in Ionia, and of Atarnæ. The inhabitants were forced to quit these cities, not being able to stand the flies and gnats, with which they were pestered. Trajan was obliged to raise the siege of a city in Arabia, before which he had sat down, being driven away by the swarms of these insects. "The fly of Egypt" seems to have been proverbial. Hence Isaiah says, "The Lord shall hiss for the fly of Egypt," chap. vii. 18. We are told by Moses, that the hornet drove out the Canaanite: by which we may infer, that, before the coming of the Israelites, several cities had been evacuated through the terror of this insect. Bryant.

26. — the abomination of the Egyptians] That is, the oxen, sheep, goats, &c. which they worshipped. Locke. Herodotus expressly tells us, that the Egyptians esteemed it a profanation to sacrifice any kind of cattle, except swine, bulls, clean calves, and geese; and that heifers, rams, and goats were held sacred, either in one province or another: and if he came any thing near the truth, in his account of the early superstition of Egypt, the Israelites, we see, could not avoid sacrificing "the abomination of the Egyptians." And with what deadly hatred and revenge they pursued such imaginary impieties, the same Herodotus elsewhere informs us. Bp. Warburton.

From what is here said about "animal sacrifices," it is probable, that the Israelites were debarred from the exercise of their religious rites during their slavery. Their minds were enslaved still more than their bodies, by the most cruel of all despotisms, to render them incapable of the enjoyment of rational liberty, as moderated by religion, pure and undefiled. Dr. Hales.

28. — ye shall not go very far away:] He was apprehensive of their flight, like his predecessor, who first enslaved the Israelites. Dr. Hales.

32. And Pharaoh hardened his heart &c.] No sooner was the scourge taken away, than his pride and covetousness discovered themselves afresh, and made him as unrelenting and perverse as ever. Pyle. This he did after a new plague, that spoke not only the power, but the peculiar providence of God, in severing between His people and the Egyptians. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

CHAP. IX.

1 The murrain of beasts. 8 The plague of boils and blains. 13 His message about the hail. 22 The plague of hail. 27 Pharaoh saith to Moses, 35 but yet is hardened.

THEN the LORD said unto Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh, and tell him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

2 For if thou refuse to let them go, and wilt hold them still,

3 Behold, the hand of the LORD is upon thy cattle which is in the field, upon the horses, upon the asses, upon the camels, upon the oxen, and upon the sheep: there shall be a very grievous murrain.

4 And the LORD shall sever between the cattle of Israel and the cattle of Egypt: and there shall nothing die of all that is the children's of Israel.

5 And the LORD appointed a set time,

Chap. IX. ver. 3. — the hand of the Lord is upon thy cattle &c.] We may observe a particular scope and meaning in this calamity, if we consider it with regard to the Egyptians, which would not have existed in respect to any other people. It is well known that they held in idolatrous reverence the lion, wolf, dog, cat, ape, and goat. But they had gods which they held in still greater reverence than these; such were the ox or steer; the cow and heifer; and the ram. Among these the Apis and Mnevis are well known; the former, a sacred bull adored at Memphis; and the latter, at Heliopolis. There was also a cow or heifer which had the like honours at Momemphis. To these may be added the goat at Mendes, though perhaps not so celebrated as the others. This judgment, therefore, upon the kine of Egypt, was very significant in its execution and purport. The Egyptians not only suffered a severe loss, but, what was of far greater consequence, they saw the representative of their deities, and their deities themselves, sink before the "God of the Hebrews." There is reason to think, that both the camel and ass were held sacred, which were involved in the same calamity. Hence it is said by the sacred writer, "upon their gods also the Lord executed judgments," Numb. xxxiii. 4. See Exod. xii. 12; also Exod. xviii. 11. These events, we may well imagine, had a happy influence on the minds of the Israelites, to whom the worship of the Egyptians must at this time have appeared in a most contemptible light, and their gods despicable. Their separation too, and exemption during these evils, must have had still greater weight. It rendered them more ready to quit a people, from whom they were in so salutary a manner distinguished, and to embrace a better and more rational religion. Bryant.

6. — all the cattle of Egypt died:] It appears from ver. 19, that some survived; therefore the meaning is, either that all in the field, ver. 3, not those in the houses, died; or else that a great many of all sorts of cattle died, as the word all may be expounded. Bp. Patrick. See note below on ver. 19.

In this act of Divine power, we see, that all the ways of God are mercy, as well as truth. The exact completion of the prediction proved His veracity—the appointing of a set time was an act of mercy. Wogan.

8. And the Lord &c.] The former plague having moved so little the proud and stubborn heart of Pharaoh, the Lord instantly, without any further message to him, commands Moses to bring another judgment upon the Egyptians, more dreadful and noisome than any of the rest had been. Bp. Patrick.

saying, To morrow the LORD shall do this thing in the land.

6 And the LORD did that thing on the morrow, and all the cattle of Egypt died: but of the cattle of the children of Israel died not one.

7 And Pharaoh sent, and, behold, there was not one of the cattle of the Israelites dead. And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not let the people go.

8 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses and unto Aaron, Take to you handfuls of ashes of the furnace, and let Moses sprinkle it toward the heaven in the sight of Pharaoh.

9 And it shall become small dust in all the land of Egypt, and shall be a boil breaking forth with blains upon man, and upon beast, throughout all the land of Egypt.

10 And they took ashes of the furnace, and stood before Pharaoh; and Moses sprinkled it up toward heaven; and it

Before
CHRIST
1491.

— Take to you handfuls of ashes &c.] This plague, like those which preceded, was well calculated to confound the Egyptians, and confirm the faith of the Israelites. The Egyptians had many gods, and those of high rank, who were supposed to preside over pharmacy and medicine; and to these the people looked up with great confidence, in all those pains and maladies to which the human frame is subject. Among these Esculapius was held in particular honour for his skill in this science. The Egyptians believed the art of medicine to have been found out by these gods; and from them to have been transmitted to particular persons in succession, who under their influence carried it on to the advantage of the nation. Hence in this instance, as in the preceding, the Egyptians were not only punished, but were shewn the baseness of their worship, and the vanity of their confidence, where they most trusted. They could dig for water, and in some degree shelter themselves from flies; but there was no resource from this evil, which was brought more home to them. It was a taint of the human frame; a grievous internal malady, under which the priests, as well as the people, smarted, to their astonishment and confusion. Hence it appears, that the prince of the country was deserted of his wise men, as well as of his gods: "the magicians could not stand before Moses, because of the boil: for the boil was upon the magicians, and upon all the Egyptians." Bryant.

9. And it shall become small dust] Instead of the ashes, which they threw into the air, there was to come down a small sleet or dust, that should scald the flesh of man and beast, and raise a blister, "a boil breaking forth with blains," on every part on which it should fall. The Hebrew word properly signifies an inflammation, which first makes a tumour or "boil," as we translate it, and thence turns into a grievous ulcer. Moses speaks of it afterwards as an unusual plague, which he calls "the botch of Egypt," Deut. xxviii. 27. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

10. And they took ashes of the furnace, &c.] There was something very significant in this plague. "The furnace," from which the ashes were taken, aptly represented "the iron furnace" of Egyptian bondage, Deut. iv. 20; and the scattering of the ashes in the air might refer to the usage of the Egyptians in their Typhonian sacrifices of human victims, some of whom probably were Israelites; at the close of which sacrifices the priests gathered together the ashes of the victims, and scattered them upwards in the air. This plague also converted another of the elements and of their gods, the air or ether, into an instrument of their chastisement. Dr. Halcs, Bryant.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

became a boil breaking forth with blains upon man, and upon beast.

11 And the magicians could not stand before Moses because of the boils; for the boil was upon the magicians, and upon all the Egyptians.

* Chap. 4.
21.

12 And the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh, and he hearkened not unto them; ^a as the Lord had spoken unto Moses.

13 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

11. — the magicians could not stand &c.] We read of no attempt made by the magicians, since the plague of lice, which they could not counterfeit, to vie in working miracles with Moses and Aaron. Still they seem to have remained with Pharaoh, and to have endeavoured to fix him in the resolution not to let Israel go. But now the plague seized on them, as well as on the rest of the Egyptians, which perfectly confounded them, so that they could not stand before Moses, or look him in the face. Bp. Patrick. Though, by the Divine permission, the magicians could change their rods into serpents, yet, as a manifest token of superiority, Aaron's rod swallowed all their's; though they could turn water into blood, yet it was above their skill to restore it to its former nature; though they contrived to produce frogs, yet they were utterly unable to remove them from the Egyptian palaces and houses; though they did in short some things, which only added to the calamities of Egypt, yet they could do no one thing to redress them; nor even to relieve themselves from the plague of the boils. So true and so severe withal is the observation of the author of the Book of Wisdom, chap. xvii. 7, 8. Stackhouse.

12. And the Lord &c.] Now "the Lord," for the first time, "hardened the heart of Pharaoh," after he had so repeatedly hardened it himself, "and he hearkened not unto them, as the Lord had foretold unto Moses." Though Pharaoh probably felt the scourge of the "boil," as well as his people, it did not soften nor humble his heart. And when he wilfully and obstinately turned away from the light, and shut his eyes against the luminous evidences vouchsafed to him of the supremacy of the God of the Hebrews, and had twice broken his promise, when he was indulged with a respite, and dealt deceitfully, he became a just object of punishment; and God now began to increase the hardness or obduracy of his heart. And such is the usual and the righteous course of His providence; when nations or individuals despise the warnings of Heaven, abuse their best gifts, and resist the means of grace, "God then delivers them over to a reprobate or undiscerning mind, to work all uncleanness with greediness," Rom. i. 28; Ephes. iv. 19. Dr. Hales. Even now God did not infuse into Pharaoh's heart any bad qualities, or ungodly resolutions; but only He did not vouchsafe to him those convictions which might have softened him; "and He gave him up to his own heart's lust;" and likewise ordered things so to fall out, that he became more and more obdurate. Bp. Patrick.

15. — that I may smite thee &c.] I will smite thy people with that pestilential disease, which shall take off all the firstborn of the Egyptians; and thou thyself shalt be cut off, by being drowned in the Red sea. Dr. Wells.

The following plagues were formally announced to Pharaoh and his people: "I will at this season send all My plagues upon thine heart, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people, that thou mayest know that there is none like Me in all the earth. For now I could stretch out My hand, and smite thee and thy people with pestilence," or destroy thee at once, like thy cattle with the murrain, "and thou shouldest be cut off from the earth; but in truth, for this cause have I sustained thee, that I might manifest in 14 For I will at this time send all my plagues upon thine heart, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people; that thou mayest know that there is none like me in all the earth.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

15 For now I will stretch out my hand, that I may smite thee and thy people with pestilence; and thou shalt be cut off from the earth.

16 And in very deed for ^b this cause have I ^c raised thee up, for to shew in thee my power; and that my name may be declared throughout all the earth.

^b Rom. 9.
^c Heb. made thee stand.

17 As yet exaltest thou thyself against my people, that thou wilt not let them go?

thee My power, and that My name might be declared throughout the whole earth." This rendering of the passage is more conformable to the context, to the Chaldee Paraphrase, and to the foregoing observation of Philo, alluding thereto, than the received translation: "For now I will stretch out My hand, that I may smite thee and thy people with pestilence." For surely Pharaoh and his people were not smitten with pestilence; and "they were preserved," or kept from immediate destruction, according to the Septuagint, "to manifest the Divine power," by the number and variety of their plagues. Dr. Hales.

16. — for this cause have I raised thee up,] In the Hebrew the words are, "I have made thee stand;" that is, I have preserved thee alive, when the pestilence would have cut thee off, as the murrain did thy cattle, that I might destroy thee in a more remarkable manner. "I have raised thee" from the foregoing sickness; that is, spared thee in the midst of the most malignant ulcers. Bp. Patrick. I have made thee to stand, preserving thee, and suspending to punish thee, when I sent all My other plagues, that I might show My power more illustriously in thee. Dean Tucker. The Greek translates the place very justly, "For this cause thou hast been preserved;" and most of the versions express the true meaning of the passage better than our English translation. The reason of the words, and the true meaning of them, is this: Moses had wrought several miracles before Pharaoh, without effect. Hereupon he delivers him a severer message, threatening that God would send all His plagues upon his heart, &c. to smite him with pestilence, and to cut him off from the earth; and "indeed," continues he, speaking still in the name of God, "for this cause have I preserved thee hitherto, to shew in thee My power:" that is, I had cut thee off sooner for thy obstinacy, but that I intended to make My power over thee more conspicuous. So that the words signify, that Pharaoh was hitherto preserved by the forbearance of God, to be a more remarkable example; not that he was born to be brought to ruin. Shuckford.

We see then, that when God says, He raised up Pharaoh for this cause, that He might magnify His Power and Glory in his punishment, He does not mean that He made him either a man or a king with such a view; but that He preserved him from the fatal stroke of former visitations, that he did not expire under them, but his life was prolonged for further trials and exercises of the same kind. And this sort of dealing is very consistent with all the parts of the Divine character. It is agreeable to the Patience and Longsuffering of God, that He should relieve sinners from death, and not presently make a full end of them, but give them repeated calls, and large time and space for repentance. It is agreeable to His Mercy, that correction should be given them, in order to prevent their final perdition; and that others should be warned by their sufferings to take heed that they provoke not God by the like sins. It is agreeable to the Justice of God, sometimes, to make an example of a sinner, that the world may see His hand in the government of it, and that no one may promise himself impunity in the commission of sin. Lastly, it is agreeable to His Holiness, for He hereby declares, that He "is of purer

Before
CHRIST
1491.

18 Behold, to morrow about this time I will cause it to rain a very grievous hail, such as hath not been in Egypt since the foundation thereof even until now.

19 Send therefore now, and gather thy cattle, and all that thou hast in the field; for upon every man and beast which shall be found in the field, and shall not be brought home, the hail shall come down upon them, and they shall die.

20 He that feared the word of the Lord among the servants of Pharaoh made his servants and his cattle flee into the houses:

† Heb. set not his heart unto.

21 And he that † regarded not the word of the Lord left his servants and his cattle in the field.

22 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Stretch forth thine hand toward heaven, that there may be hail in all the land of Egypt, upon man, and upon beast, and upon every herb of the field, throughout the land of Egypt.

eyes than to behold iniquity" without disapprobation and abhorrence. Reading.

18. — I will cause it to rain a very grievous hail, &c.] This judgment was equally significant and proper with the foregoing. It was foretold to Pharaoh by Moses, that on the very next morning there should be a grievous rain, attended with hail and thunder. This must have been a circumstance of all others the most incredible to an Egyptian. For in Egypt there fell no rain: the want of which was supplied by dews, and by the overflowing of the Nile. At least it is certain, that, allowing for occasional showers in some parts, no country upon earth, to which we have access, has so little rain as Egypt; and particularly the upper part of it. The Egyptians therefore must have perceived themselves particularly aimed at in these fearful events, so contrary to all experience. For they were witnesses to not only deluges of rain, but hail mingled with rain; and these attended with thunder and fire, to their great amazement. Now the Egyptians were superstitious above all people upon earth. They were particularly addicted to the observance of portentous appearances. Every uncommon circumstance was esteemed of this class. But as these were imaginary portents, which arose merely from a superstitious dread, it pleased God to punish their blind credulity by bringing upon them some real prodigies; some preternatural evils, to which they had never been witness. Such was the rain, and hail, and fire, which ran on the ground, to their great amazement and ruin. Its coming was determinately foretold; nor could all the deities of Egypt prevent its fearful effects. Those of the people, who took warning, were preserved: but all, who neglected the caution, and who did not shelter themselves, were, with their cattle, destroyed.

There seems, further, a great fitness and propriety in the Egyptians being punished by fire, and by water: as they were guilty of gross idolatry towards these elements, and adored them as deities. Bryant.

Hail in some countries is a very common production of the atmosphere: in Egypt it is rare, because the sultry nature of the climate does not permit its formation. We see then a threefold interference of Providence in this miracle; 1st, That hail should be formed. 2dly, That it should happen to morrow, at a time prefixed: no human power being able to direct the atmosphere to this or any other effect. 3dly, That in a certain district these occurrences did not take place. Script. illust.

— since the foundation thereof] Since it was an inhabited country. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

23 And Moses stretched forth his rod toward heaven: and the Lord sent thunder and hail, and the fire ran along upon the ground; and the Lord rained hail upon the land of Egypt.

24 So there was hail, and fire mingled with the hail, very grievous, such as there was none like it in all the land of Egypt since it became a nation.

25 And the hail smote throughout all the land of Egypt all that was in the field, both man and beast; and the hail smote every herb of the field, and brake every tree of the field.

26 Only in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel were, was there no hail.

27 ¶ And Pharaoh sent, and called for Moses and Aaron, and said unto them, I have sinned this time: the Lord is righteous, and I and my people are wicked.

19. Send therefore now, and gather thy cattle, &c.] In the midst of judgment God remembered mercy; and gave a gracious warning to the Egyptians to avoid, if they chose, the threatened calamity. Dr. Hales. It appears that there were some persons in Pharaoh's court better disposed than himself; and that for their sake God gives this warning of their danger, that they may avoid it. Bp. Patrick.

The cattle of the Egyptians in the field had been destroyed by the foregoing plague of murrain, ver. 6. But they might have recruited their stock from the land of Goshen, where "not one of the cattle of the children of Israel died." This justifies the supposition, that there was some respite or interval between the several plagues, so that the whole may have taken up about a quarter of a year. That the warning in this case was respected by many of the Egyptians, we may infer from the number of chariots and horsemen, that went in pursuit of the Israelites afterwards. Dr. Hales.

22. — every herb of the field,] All of the vegetable kind, comprehending trees. Bp. Patrick.

23. — thunder and hail, and the fire] In this tremendous plague, the united elements of air, water, and fire were employed to terrify and punish the Egyptians, by their principal divinities. Dr. Hales. All jointly demonstrating and proclaiming, that the God of Israel was the God of nature. Stackhouse.

27. And Pharaoh sent, and called &c.] The duration of this miracle is remarkable. Usually hail storms last but a little time: but this storm lasted long enough to terrify Pharaoh, and to induce him to intreat its suppression. In proportion to the infrequency of this kind of storm must have been the terror, which it infused into Pharaoh: and this terror must have been proportionately increased by the continuance of the storm. Script. illust.

— I have sinned this time:] The meaning is not, that he had not sinned before: but he says, "I now acknowledge my offence, and the justice of God in punishing the wickedness of me and of my people:" which confession does not argue any religious tenderness of heart, but was extorted by the excessive alarm which possessed him at the moment. Bp. Patrick.

Good thoughts pass rapidly through carnal hearts; they can never settle there. Who would think it possible, that any soul could be so secure in the midst of such variety and frequency of judgments? These very plagues are not more wonderful than their want of success. To what a height of obduracy will sin lead a man; and, of all sins, incredulity! During all these storms

Before
CHRIST
1491.
† Heb. voices of God.

28 Intreat the LORD (for it is enough) that there be no more †mighty thunders and hail; and I will let you go, and ye shall stay no longer.

29 And Moses said unto him, As soon as I am gone out of the city, I will spread abroad my hands unto the LORD; and the thunder shall cease, neither shall there be any more hail; that thou mayest know how that the 'earth is the LORD's.

Ps. 24. 1. 30 But as for thee and thy servants, I know that ye will not yet fear the LORD God.

31 And the flax and the barley was smitten: for the barley was in the ear, and the flax was bolled.

Pharaoh sleepeth, till the voice of God's mighty thunder, and hail mixed with fire, roused him up a little. Now, as between sleeping and waking, he starts up and says, "God is righteous; I am wicked; Moses, pray for us," and presently lays down his head again. God hath no sooner done thundering, than he hath done fearing. All this while we never find him careful to prevent any one evil, but desirous still to shift it off, when he feels it; he never holds constant to any good motion; never prays for himself, but carelessly wills Moses and Aaron to pray for him; never yields God His whole demand, but endeavours to satisfy Him by the least concession: first, "They shall not go;" then, "Go and sacrifice, but in Egypt;" next, "Go, sacrifice in the wilderness, but not far off;" after, "Go ye that are men;" then, "Go you and your children only;" at last, "Go all, save your sheep and cattle." Wheresoever mere nature is, she is still improvident of future good, sensible of present evil, inconstant in good purposes; unable, through unacquaintance, and unwilling to speak for herself; niggardly in her grants, and uncheerful. Bp. Hall.

29. — I will spread abroad my hands] This was an ancient posture of supplication in all nations. Bp. Patrick.

31. — the flax and the barley was smitten] This is by no means trivial, but of great moment. The Egyptians were doomed to undergo many terrors, and, beside these, to suffer no small losses. Scarcely any thing could have distressed them more than the ruin of the former article. The Egyptians above all nations affected outward purity and cleanliness. On this account the whole nation wore linen garments; and priests never put on any other kind of clothing. This linen was manufactured from that fine flax, for which the country was particularly famous. The flax and linen of Egypt were also in great request in other countries; and though the Egyptians did not themselves trade abroad, yet they suffered other nations to come to them. Hence the demolition of their flax was attended with great inconvenience, and must have proved a heavy loss; so that this judgment particularly affected this people above all other nations; and their priests more particularly suffered.

The ruin of their barley was equally fatal, both in respect to their trade, (for Egypt seems very early to have been the granary of the world,) and to their private advantage. They had few vines in Egypt, but, instead of the juice of the grape, they made a liquor called barley-wine, undoubtedly a kind of beer, which was particularly serviceable during the time that the Nile was turbid, and not so fit to be used. These advantages were lost to them now through the devastation made by the rain, hail, and fire; and their loss could not but have been severely felt. Bryant. Barley is the most ancient aliment of mankind, as Pliny says on the testimony of Menander. Script. illust.

— the barley was in the ear, &c.] The season of the year, and the commencement of the plagues, is no where specified; but both may be collected from the history. The departure of the Israelites, after the tenth and last plague, was about the vernal equinox, or 32 But the wheat and the rie were not smitten: for they were †not grown up.

33 And Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh, and spread abroad his hands unto the LORD: and the thunders and hail ceased, and the rain was not poured upon the earth.

34 And when Pharaoh saw that the rain and the hail and the thunders were ceased, he sinned yet more, and hardened his heart, he and his servants.

35 And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, neither would he let the children of Israel go; as the LORD had spoken †by Moses.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

† Heb.
hidden, or,
dark.

† Heb.
by the hand of Moses.

beginning of April, on the 15th day of the 1st month, Abib, chap. xii. 6; but by the seventh plague of hail, the barley was smitten, but not the wheat and rie of later growth. For according to the report of modern travellers, the barley harvest in Egypt is reaped in March, and the wheat in April; and Le Brun found the whole to be over at Cairo on the 19th of April. This agrees with the account of Moses, that "the barley was in the ear," though not yet fit for reaping; but "the wheat and the rie were not grown up." This judgment therefore must have happened about a month before the departure of the Israelites, or in the beginning of March, before the barley harvest, so early as to leave room for the three succeeding plagues. And if we count backwards two months, by the same analogy, it will bring the first about the beginning of January, or the commencement of the winter season, at which time the river Nile was lowest, and its water clearest. Dr. Hales.

— the flax was bolled.] This word signifies to rise into a stalk or stem, which is of a roundish form. But some think, that the seeds, or grain, of the flax were assuming a roundish form within their husks. Script. illust.

32. — rie] The Hebrew word signifies a hairy plant. It is usually thought to be the Zea, or Spelt, which is a species of corn. Dr. Shaw thinks this word may signify rice. It is probable, that from the intercourse of ancient Egypt with Babylon and with India, this inundated country could not be ignorant of a grain so well suited to its climate. Script. illust.

— they were not grown up.] They were not yet eared; and so being tender and flexible, yielded to the stroke of the hail, and received less harm than the barley and flax, which were in a riper state. Bp. Patrick.

34. And when Pharaoh saw &c.] The effect on Pharaoh was exactly what Moses foretold, ver. 30. Instead of being melted into consideration and gratitude, he forgot his solemn promise, made a jest of his faith and honour, set God at defiance, and refused to let the Israelites go. Pyle.

— he sinned yet more, and hardened his heart,] He stifled the dictates of conscience, and acted against conviction. Bryant. In this instance there is a remarkable suspension of the judicial inflictation. Pharaoh had humbled himself and acknowledged his own and his people's guilt, and the justice of the Divine plague. The Lord therefore forbore this time to harden his heart. But he abused the long sufferance of God, and this additional respite: "he sinned yet more," because he now sinned wilfully, after he had received information of the truth, he relapsed, and hardened his own heart, a seventh time. He became therefore "a vessel of wrath, fitted to destruction," Heb. x. 26; Rom. ix. 22. Dr. Hales.

Moses had performed in the presence of Pharaoh such miraculous works, as would probably have had an effect on any other person. But, because he saw some of the miracles imitated by the magicians; because the plagues came gradually upon him, and by the in-1491.

Before
CHRIST

CHAP. X.

1 God threateneth to send locusts. 7 Pharaoh, moved by his servants, inclineth to let the Israelites go. 12 The plague of the locusts. 16 Pharaoh saith to Moses. 21 The plague of darkness. 24 Pharaoh saith unto Moses, 27 but yet is hardened.

^a Chap. 4.
21.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh: ^afor I have hardened his heart, and the heart of his servants, that I might shew these my signs before him:

2 And that thou mayest tell in the ears of thy son, and of thy son's son, what things I have wrought in Egypt, and my signs which I have done among them; that ye may know how that I am the LORD.

3 And Moses and Aaron came in unto tercession of Moses were constantly removed; he thence took occasion, instead of being softened by this alternative of mercy and judgment, to become more sullen and obdurate. "When Pharaoh saw that the rain, and the hail, and the thunders were ceased, he sinned yet more, and hardened his heart." The mercy of God, which should have led him to repentance, had a contrary effect upon him, and made him more obstinate. For an hardened heart is neither cut by compunction, nor softened by any sense of piety. It is neither moved by intreaties, nor yields to threatenings, nor feels the smart of scourges. It is ungrateful to benefactors, treacherous to counsels, sullen under judgments, fearless in dangers, forgetful of things past, negligent of things present, and improvident for the future. All these bad qualities seem to have concurred in Pharaoh. It was therefore entirely agreeable to the rules of Divine justice, when nothing would reclaim this wicked king, when even that which wrought upon the magicians, the ministers of Satan, made no impression on him, to let his crime become his punishment, and to leave him to eat the bitter fruit of his own ways, and to be filled with his own devices. Stackhouse.

The case of the hard-hearted Pharaoh may be made a ground of admonition to ourselves. We have had more messengers from God, more summonses to do many parts of His will, than were ever sent to this king and his people. We have with them refused to be obedient to the heavenly call, and thereby rendered ourselves obnoxious to the Divine judgments, under several of which we have smarted. Like them too, instead of being awakened to a sense of our disobedience, we have grown harder and more insensate under the rod. We have seen many examples of God's wrath upon sinners, and lightly passed them over, without being led by them to consider our own demerits.

How long shall we see this face of things, and hear the warnings of God to reform our lives, and to prevent the worse effects of His displeasure, and still continue in a state of stupid insensibility, as if we were in no danger? Shall we pass the time of our mortal lives, as if we were not accountable to God for what we are here doing? He hath "raised us up for this very purpose," that we should be for ever happy in our observance, or miserable in our contempt, of His holy word. And either His mercy shall be glorified in our salvation, or His justice in our punishment. Such are God's thoughts and resolutions towards us: if we have no thoughts of our duty to Him, and of the end for which He hath sent us into the world, it is because we are hardened and infatuated by the deceitfulness of sin. Reading.

Chap. X. ver. 1. — for I have hardened &c.] The particle translated "for" admits of the sense "although." Then the meaning becomes clear: "Although I have hardened his heart," yet let not that hinder thy going to him, but still importune him: because I intend to take occasion from his refusing to obey Me, to work greater signs and wonders for your benefit, (ver. 2.) and for his ruin. Bp. Patrick.

VOL. I.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

Pharaoh, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, How long wilt thou refuse to humble thyself before me? let my people go, that they may serve me.

4 Else, if thou refuse to let my people go, behold, to morrow will I bring the ^blocusts into thy coast:

^b Wisdom
16. 9.

5 And they shall cover the [†]face of the earth, that one cannot be able to see the earth: and they shall eat the residue of that which is escaped, which remaineth unto you from the hail, and shall eat every tree which groweth for you out of the field:

[†] Heb. eye.

6 And they shall fill thy houses, and the houses of all thy servants, and the houses

2. — thou mayest tell] He speaks to Moses, as the representative of the whole people of Israel. Bp. Patrick.

4. — to morrow will I bring the locusts &c.] It was not the purpose of God to complete every punishment at once; but to carry on these judgments in a series, and by degrees to cut off all hopes, and every resource, upon which the Egyptians depended. By the hail and thunder, and fire mingled with rain, both the barley and flax were ruined, and their pastures must have been greatly injured. But the wheat and the rice were not yet in ear: and such was the fruitfulness of the soil, that a very short time would have sufficed for the leaves of the trees, and for the grass of the field, to have been recruited. It pleased God therefore to send an host of locusts, to devour every leaf and blade of grass, which had been left in the former devastation, and whatever was beginning to vegetate. It is hard to conceive, how widely the mischief extends, when a cloud of these insects comes upon a country. Though it were a paradise before, it is soon rendered a desert. They devour to the very root and bark: so that it is a long time before vegetation can be renewed. Scarcely any misfortune can so effectually damage a land, but that room will be left for them to add to the mischief. How dreadful their inroads at all times were, may be known from a variety of authors, ancient and modern. They describe them, as being brought on upon a country by one wind, and carried off by another: and speak of their numbers as past all conception. The Egyptians had gods, in whom they trusted to free their country from these terrible invaders. But these powers could not stand before Moses, the servant of the true God. He brought upon them an host of enemies, who laid waste the fruits of their ground, and rendered all their confidence vain.

As Egypt is in great measure bounded to the east and north by seas, and is far removed from those regions in Africa, where locusts particularly generate, it is not much infested with them. However, at the time spoken of, an east wind prevailed "all day and all night;" and the whole country in the morning swarmed with these insects. Hence we know, that they came from Arabia; and that they must have passed the Red sea, which is the barrier to the East. "Before them there were no such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such," ver. 14. Hence Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron in haste; acknowledged his sin; and begged to be delivered "from this death," ver. 17; "and the Lord turned a mighty strong west wind, which took away the locusts, and cast them into the Red sea," ver. 19. The storm, which carried them away, served to bury them in the waters. Bryant.

— locusts] There are in Scripture ten names for locusts. The species mentioned here is called Arbah, which imports multiplicity! a very just description of the locust tribes! Leewenhoeck says, he has seen a female lay more than eighty eggs: if every female is equally prolific, and lays three or four times in a summer, what an immense multitude must issue, and that speedily, from such fertility! Script. illust.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

of all the Egyptians; which neither thy fathers, nor thy fathers' fathers have seen, since the day that they were upon the earth unto this day. And he turned himself, and went out from Pharaoh.

7 And Pharaoh's servants said unto him, How long shall this man be a snare unto us? let the men go, that they may serve the LORD their God: knowest thou not yet that Egypt is destroyed?

8 And Moses and Aaron were brought again unto Pharaoh: and he said unto them, Go, serve the LORD your God: but † who are they that shall go?

† Heb. who and who, &c.

9 And Moses said, We will go with our young and with our old, with our sons and with our daughters, with our flocks and with our herds will we go; for we must hold a feast unto the LORD.

10 And he said unto them, Let the LORD be so with you, as I will let you go, and your little ones: look to it; for evil is before you.

11 Not so: go now ye that are men, and serve the LORD; for that ye did desire. And they were driven out from Pharaoh's presence.

12 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come up upon the land of Egypt, and eat every herb of the land, even all that the hail hath left.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

13 And Moses stretched forth his rod over the land of Egypt, and the LORD brought an east wind upon the land all that day, and all that night; and when it was morning, the east wind brought the locusts.

14 And the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt, and rested in all the coasts of Egypt: very grievous were they; before them there were no such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such.

15 For they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened; and they did eat every herb of the land, and all the fruit of the trees which the hail had left: and there remained not any green thing in the trees, or in the herbs of the field, through all the land of Egypt.

16 ¶ Then Pharaoh † called for Moses and Aaron in haste; and he said, I have sinned against the LORD your God, and against you. † Heb. hastened to call.

17 Now therefore forgive, I pray thee, my sin only this once, and intreat the LORD your God, that he may take away from me this death only.

18 And he went out from Pharaoh, and intreated the LORD.

19 And the LORD turned a mighty strong

6. — which neither thy fathers, &c.] Though locusts are common in Arabia, they are seldom found in Egypt; the Red sea forming a barrier against them, as they are not formed for crossing seas, or for long flights. The winds also blow there six months from the north, and six from the south: so that the strong easterly wind, which enabled them to cross it, has every appearance of being preternatural. Dr. Hales.

7. — be a snare unto us?] Be the occasion of our falling into one calamity after another: involve and entangle us in so much mischief. Bp. Patrick.

— knowest thou not yet &c.] When pride rules in the heart, it necessarily hardens it, because it excludes Divine grace, and shuts the ear, not only to all admonition both of God and of man, but even to the voice of our own interest. "Knowest thou not yet that Egypt is destroyed?" Pharaoh knew this; yet he would not yield. Wogan.

10. — Let the Lord be so with you,] These words are either a form of imprecation, as if he had said, "I wish you may prosper no better than I shall accord to your desire:" or else they are spoken scoffingly, as if he had said, "You trust in the Lord; let Him do all He can to deliver you, as I am resolved to keep you here." Bp. Patrick.

— look to it; for evil is before you.] Look to it; go, if you will, at your own peril. Bp. Hall.

15. — they covered the face of the whole earth,] I had once an opportunity to see large swarms of locusts in the island of Cyprus: and till that time had no adequate idea of their numerous hosts and rapacious depredations. In going in a chaise from Larnica to a garden at a distance of four or five miles, the locusts lay swarming, above a foot deep, in several parts of the high road, and thousands were destroyed by the wheels of the carriage crashing over them. Dr. Russell.

— they did eat every herb &c.] Of the insect tribes, the locust is the most dreadful in its depredations; it sets all the defensive arts of man at defiance, and destroys in a few days the beautiful verdure of vast tracts of cultivated country. Dr. Russell.

Those which I saw in Barbary were much bigger than our common grasshoppers. They appeared first towards the end of March, the wind having been some time southerly: in the middle of April their numbers were so increased, that in the heat of the day they formed themselves into large bodies, appeared like a succession of clouds, and darkened the sun. In June the new broods gradually made their appearance: on being hatched, they immediately collected together, forming compact bodies of several hundred yards square: and marching directly forward, climbed over trees, walls, and houses, eat up every plant in their way, and let nothing escape them. The inhabitants made trenches, and filled them with water; and placed in rows great quantities of combustible matter, and set them on fire. But in vain. The trenches were quickly filled up, and the fires put out, by infinite swarms succeeding one another: the last gnawing off the young branches, and the very bark of such trees, as had escaped before with the loss only of their fruit and foliage. Dr. Shaw.

17. — this death] Death, being the extremity of temporal sufferings, in the Hebrew idiom, which expresses every thing strongly, signifies any very dreadful evil or hazard. Archbishop Secker.

19. — a mighty strong west wind,] Strong winds are the only remedies to free a country from this plague; for if the locusts die in the fields, the air is so corrupted with the stench, that it breeds pestilential diseases. Bp. Patrick. As the direction of the flights of the locusts in Barbary is always to the northward, it is probable they perish in the sea. Dr. Shaw.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

† Heb.
fastened.

west wind, which took away the locusts, and † cast them into the Red sea; there remained not one locust in all the coasts of Egypt.

20 But the LORD hardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go.

21 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, † even darkness which may be felt.

† Heb. that one may feel darkness.

22 And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven; and there was a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days:

23 They saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days: † but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings.

† Wisd. 18.
1.

24 ¶ And Pharaoh called unto Moses,

— there remained not one locust] The power of God appeared no less in sweeping them all away, than in bringing them upon the country: for both were done at the instance of Moses. Bp. Patrick.

21. And the Lord said &c.] He now left off treating with Pharaoh, and only proceeds in the execution of the sentence of utter destruction, which had been decreed against him. Bp. Patrick.

— darkness which may be felt.] Darkness caused by thick and clammy fogs, which might be felt by the bare faces and hands of those who were exposed to them. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. So thick, black, and dreadful a mist fell upon the country, as affected all people in the most sensible manner, and with the most frightful apprehensions. Pyle.

22. — there was a thick darkness] This judgment was very extraordinary: nor had any thing similar been ever experienced by this or any other nation. It bore a strict analogy with the sentiments and idolatry of the people who suffered. The Egyptians were a people of great learning; and seem to have been superiour in science to all other nations. But they prostituted these noble gifts: and, through an affectation of mystery and refinement, they abused the knowledge afforded them: for, by veiling every thing under a type, they at last lost sight of their original intelligence. They at first looked upon light, and fire, and the great fountain of light, the sun, merely as proper emblems of the true Deity, the God of all purity and brightness. But such was the reverence which they paid to them, that in process of time they forgot the hand by which these things were framed; and looked upon the immediate means and support of life, as the primary efficient cause, to the exclusion of the real Creator. What then could be more reasonable and apposite, than for a people, who had thus abused their intelligence, and prostituted their faculties; who raised to themselves a god of day, their Osiris, and instead of that intellectual light, the wisdom of the Almighty, substituted a created and inanimate element, as a just object of worship: what, I say, could be more apposite, than for a people of this cast to be doomed to a judicial and temporary darkness? The judgment bore a strict analogy with the crime: and, as it was a just punishment to them, so it was a proper warning to others, not to give way to the like mystery and illusion.

Nor was this all. As the Egyptians betrayed an undue reverence for the sun, and light; so they shewed a like veneration for night and darkness: regarding them as real, sensible, substantial beings; and giving them a creative power. They were therefore very justly condemned to undergo a palpable and coercive darkness; such as prevented all intercourse for three days. In short, they suffered a preternatural deprivation of light, which their luminary Osiris could not remedy; and they were punished and said, Go ye, serve the LORD; only let your flocks and your herds be stayed: let your little ones also go with you.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

25 And Moses said, Thou must give † us also sacrifices and burnt offerings, that we may sacrifice unto the LORD our God.

† Heb. into our hands.

26 Our cattle also shall go with us; there shall not an hoof be left behind; for thereof must we take to serve the LORD our God; and we know not with what we must serve the LORD, until we come thither.

27 ¶ But the LORD hardened Pharaoh's heart, and he would not let them go.

28 And Pharaoh said unto him, Get thee from me, take heed to thyself, see my face no more; for in that day thou seest my face thou shalt die.

29 And Moses said, Thou hast spoken well, I will see thy face again no more.

with that essential night, which they so foolishly had imagined, and at last found realized. Bryant.

23. They saw not one another.] Some of the Roman writers mention a darkness for a short time so great, that one man could not know another. But of such a darkness as this, which continued to obscure all things for three days, there is no other record in history. It appears to have been caused by God, both to punish the Egyptians, and to relieve the Israelites, who were probably preparing, during these three days, for their departure. Dr. Wells. The same prodigy, but of shorter continuance, attended our Lord's crucifixion, when "there was darkness over all the land from the sixth hour," the time of His crucifixion, "till the ninth hour," when He expired: emblematical likewise of that mental darkness and destruction, which awaited His murderers. Dr. Hales.

23. — neither rose any from his place for three days:] The consternation of the Egyptians is strongly represented by their total inaction: "neither rose any from his place for three days," petrified, as they were, with horror. Dr. Hales.

26. — not an hoof be left behind;] The hoof put for the whole beast: not one animal shall be left. Bp. Patrick.

27. — and he would not let them go.] Thus was this unhappy prince by the obstinacy of his heart carried on, through many great misfortunes to himself and his people, at length to his ruin. He had all along sufficient means of conviction; yet he was resolved not to be convinced. If it be asked, how could a man of common sense and understanding be so wonderfully absurd?—it may be answered, sense and understanding are not the only requisites to make men judge rightly of even the clearest religious truths. The inspired writer most justly advises, to "take heed of an evil heart of unbelief," Heb. iii. 12. "Out of the heart are the issues of life," Prov. iv. 23. Our passions and affections have a very powerful influence over us; and where they are not carefully managed and governed, it is amazing to see, how the slightest occasions will pass for most weighty and conclusive arguments; and how the brightest truths will be thought to be of little moment, even to persons of the greatest sense and sagacity in other matters, where their interest or their humours do not contradict the truths which are offered to them. Pharaoh's fault was in his heart; and that made him unfortunate in the use of his understanding. The Israelites were numerous and serviceable slaves; and it was a terrible shock and diminution to his wealth and grandeur to dismiss them; and not being able to reconcile his inclinations to the thoughts of parting with them, the vague and ill-grounded learning of the times, he lived in, was thought to afford arguments sufficient to take off the force of all the miracles, that were offered to induce him to it. It is no hard

Before
CHRIST
1491.

CHAP. XI.

1 God's message to the Israelites to borrow jewels of their neighbours. 4 Moses threateneth Pharaoh with the death of the firstborn.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Yet will I bring one plague more upon Pharaoh, and upon Egypt; afterwards he will let you go hence: when he shall let you go, he shall surely thrust you out hence altogether.

2 Speak now in the ears of the people, and let every man borrow of his neighbour, and every woman of her neighbour, ^ajewels of silver, and jewels of gold.

^a Chap. 3.
22. & 12.
25.

3 And the LORD gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians. Moreover the man ^bMoses was very great in the land of Egypt, in the sight of Pharaoh's servants, and in the sight of the people.

^b Eccl¹¹
45. 1.

4 And Moses said, Thus saith the LORD, ^cAbout midnight will I go out into the midst of Egypt:

^c Chap. 12.
29.

5 And all the firstborn in the land of matter to judge of truth, if we are sincerely disposed to embrace it; "If any man will do God's will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God," John vii. 17. A common capacity, and an ordinary share of understanding, will afford light enough, if evil passions do not make the light that is in us to become darkness: but, if our heart is not duly disposed to embrace the truth, neither may we be persuaded by the greatest arguments and demonstrations that can be offered for it, even though we have uncommon abilities to judge of, and understand the force of what is represented to us. Shuckford.

Chap. XI. ver. 1. And the Lord said] The Hebrew words should rather be translated, "The Lord had said:" for the interview of Moses with Pharaoh in this chapter must have been antecedent to what occurs at ver. 28, 29, of the preceding chapter. Bp. Patrick.

3. — the man Moses was very great &c.] This seems to be introduced as a reason why the court durst not meddle with Moses, though he had brought so many plagues upon them; and why the people were willing to grant the Israelites what they desired; namely, because they all highly esteemed him, and held him in great reverence, as a person who had extraordinary power from God. Bp. Patrick.

5. — all the firstborn in the land of Egypt shall die,] One manifest purpose of Providence in these signs and judgments was to punish the Egyptians by a series of evils; and this on two accounts. In the first place, because they were blest with noble parts and great knowledge, which they prostituted to a shameful degree. And 2dly, because, after their nation had been preserved by one of the Israelitish family, they had, contrary to all right, and in defiance of original stipulation, enslaved the people, to whom they had been so much indebted. And not contented with this, they had proceeded to murder their offspring, and to render the people's bondage intolerable by a wanton exertion of power. It had been told them, that the family of the Israelites collectively were esteemed as God's firstborn, chap. iv. 22: for from that family Christ was to proceed, "who is the firstborn of every creature." Therefore God said to them, "Let my son go, that he may serve Me: and if thou refuse to let him go, behold, I will slay thy son, even thy firstborn," chap. iv. 23. But they heeded not this admonition. Hence these judgments came upon them;

Egypt shall die, from the firstborn of Pharaoh that sitteth upon his throne, even unto the firstborn of the maidservant that is behind the mill; and all the firstborn of beasts.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

6 And there shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, such as there was none like it, nor shall be like it any more.

7 But against any of the children of Israel shall not a dog move his tongue, against man or beast: that ye may know how that the LORD doth put a difference between the Egyptians and Israel.

8 And all these thy servants shall come down unto me, and bow down themselves unto me, saying, Get thee out, and all the people [†]that follow thee: and after that I will go out. And he went out from Pharaoh in [†]a great anger.

[†] Heb.
that is at thy feet.

9 And the LORD said unto Moses, Pharaoh shall not hearken unto you; that my wonders may be multiplied in the land of Egypt.

[†] Heb. heat of anger.

10 And Moses and Aaron did all these which terminated in the death of the eldest in each family: a just retaliation for their disobedience and cruelty. Bryant.

— the maidservant that is behind the mill;] The people of the East commonly make use of handmills. They are female slaves, that are generally employed about them. It is extremely laborious, and esteemed the lowest employment in the house. Sir J. Chardin. The grinder usually sits on the floor; and placing the mill on her lap, by means of the handle works the upper stone round with her right hand. Hence we read of the maidservant, who is behind the mill. Fragments to Cabnet.

6. — there shall be a great cry &c.] The Egyptians of all nations upon earth were most frantick in their grief. When any person died in a family, all the relations and all the friends of the deceased cooperated in a scene of sorrow. And the process was to quit the house; at which time the women, with their hair loose, and their bosoms bare, ran wild about the streets. The men likewise, with their apparel equally disordered, kept them company; all shrieking, and howling, and beating themselves, as they passed along. This was upon the decease of an individual: but when there was one dead in every family, every house must have been in a great measure vacated, and the streets quite filled with mourning. Hence we may be assured that those violent emotions were general; and at the same time shocking past all imagination. The suddenness of the stroke, and the immediate and universal cries of death at midnight, that particularly awful season, must have filled every soul with horror. It was therefore very truly said by the Prophet of God, "There shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt; such as there was none like it" (before,) "nor shall be like it any more."—"And Pharaoh rose up in the night, he, and all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was a great cry in Egypt," chap. xii. 30. Bryant.

8. — he went out — in a great anger.] It moved even Moses, the meekest man upon earth, to a just indignation, to see Pharaoh remain so stupidly insensible, as not to regard this threatening, which he might well think would be as certainly executed as the preceding. Bp. Patrick.

10. — did all these wonders] The gradual increase of these judgments is remarkable. The four first plagues were loathsome, rather than fatal, to the Egyptians. After that of the flies came the murrain, which chiefly spent its rage upon the cattle. The boils and blains reached both man and beast; though there was

Before
CHRIST
1491.

wonders before Pharaoh: and the LORD hardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go out of his land.

CHAP. XII.

1 The beginning of the year is changed. 3 The passover is instituted. 11 The rite of the passover. 15 Unleavened bread. 29 The firstborn are slain. 31 The Israelites are driven out of the land. 37 They come to Succoth. 43 The ordinance of the passover.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying,

2 This month shall be unto you the beginning of months: it shall be the first month of the year to you.

3 ¶ Speak ye unto all the congregation of Israel, saying, In the tenth day of this still a reserve of life. The hail and locusts extended, in a great measure, even to life itself; the first, by an immediate stroke; and both in their consequences, by destroying the fruits of the earth. That of darkness added consternation to their minds, and lashes to their conscience. And when all this would not reclaim, at length came the decisive blow: first, the cutting off of the first-born; and then the drowning of the incorrigible tyrant, and all his host. Stackhouse.

By the infliction of these plagues we are taught, that punishment, and a continuance of judgments and correction, becomes a necessary discipline, while the heart persists in rebellion. Nevertheless, from the tenour of the whole, it is obvious to observe, that however severe the chastisements of God in this world may seem, they are ever tempered with mercy, and graciously designed to lead us to repentance: but that, if we repent not, mercy must and will give place to justice, and deliver us up to destruction. For, as Divine justice is seasoned with mercy, so mercy itself is ever perfectly just. Wogan.

Chap. XII. ver. 2. This month] Which in process of time was called Abib, because the corn was then in ear; for Abib signifies an ear of corn: and also, in afterages, Nisan. It answers to part of our March and April. It was now made the first month of the year; that is, of the sacred, not of the civil year. For the seventh month, or Tisri, answering to our September and October, was, even after this time, the first month of the year in some respects. Tisri began the civil year, and was reckoned the first month, not only for civil purposes, but for the sabbatical year, and the jubilee. But Abib was the beginning of the sacred or ecclesiastical year, with respect to the holydays and festivals which God appointed. Bp. Patrick. See note on chap. xiii. 4.

— to you.] To you especially, in the sense before explained, and with a particular reference to your redemption out of Egypt. It was at this time also that our Lord Jesus Christ suffered for our redemption: there was always a tradition among the Jews, that as they were redeemed from Egypt on the 15th day of Nisan, so they should on the same day be redeemed by the Messiah. Bp. Kidder.

3. — a lamb] The Hebrew word signifies a kid as well as a lamb, Numb. xv. 11; Deut. xiv. 4. They might take either for this sacrifice, ver. 5; but commonly they made choice of a lamb. Bp. Patrick.

Many of the ceremonial laws of the Hebrews have reference to the idolatrous opinions of the neighbouring nations, and their corresponding rites; for they were given in opposition to them: and therefore they derive light from the knowledge of those rites month they shall take to them every man a lamb, according to the house of their fathers, a lamb for an house:

Before
CHRIST
1491.

Or, kid.

4 And if the household be too little for the lamb, let him and his neighbour next unto his house take it according to the number of the souls; every man according to his eating shall make your count for the lamb.

5 Your lamb shall be without blemish, a male of the first year: ye shall take it out from the sheep, or from the goats:

† Heb. son of a year.

6 And ye shall keep it up until the fourteenth day of the same month: and the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it in the evening.

† Heb. between the two evenings.

7 And they shall take of the blood, and strike it on the two side posts and on the upper door post of the houses, wherein they shall eat it.

and opinions. The passover was a memorial of the deliverance of the Israelites. But many circumstances of it were in opposition to Egyptian superstitions. Among them, "a lamb or kid" was not sacrificed, but venerated: "A male" was worshipped as a symbol of Hammon; female sacrifices were always preferred: "Eat no part raw," as was usual in solemn festivals: "Not carried forth," as was also usual: "No bone broken," as pulled asunder in enthusiasm: "Not sodden," as in solemn and magical rites: "Roasted with fire," not by the heat of the sun: "To be eaten with its purtenance," the intestines, which were reserved for divination: "No part to remain, but the fragments to be burnt," which were usually kept for charms and superstitious purposes. Dean Spencer.

6. — in the evening.] The Hebrew expression is, "Between the two evenings." Among the Jews there was a former and a latter evening. The first began at noon, as soon as the sun began to decline: the second began from sunset. Thus the time "between the two evenings," when the passover was slain, was about three o'clock in the afternoon: and this was the very time of the day, when Christ, the true passover, was sacrificed upon the cross. Bps. Patrick and Kidder, Pyle. There is a strong resemblance between the passover as a sacrifice, and the death of Jesus Christ. In the month Abib, the people of Israel were to take, "every man a lamb, according to the house of their fathers, a lamb for a house." And if the household were too little for the lamb, it was to be shared with the neighbouring family. The lamb was to be without blemish; a male of the first year; to be kept till the 14th day of the month, when the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel were to kill it in the evening. And they were to take of the blood; and strike it on the two side posts, and on the upper door post of the houses; so when the Lord should pass through the land of Egypt, to smite the Egyptians, and should see the blood, He would not suffer the destroyer to smite His people. Moreover the lamb was to be eaten whole, and care was to be taken, "not to break a bone of it." The most superficial observer must instantly see the immediate reference of the Paschal lamb to Him, who is called "the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world," John i. 29. The two sacrifices are strictly analogous. And in the same month, on the same day, and at the same hour, in which the Israelites were ordered to kill the lamb, was Jesus crucified. And, as in all sacrifices it was the blood which made atonement for the soul, Lev. xvii. 11; so it is "the blood of Christ, which cleanseth us from all sin," 1 John i. 7. Christ too was the Lamb, of whom we are told, that "not a bone of Him was broken," John xix. 33, 36. In this grand sacrifice of Christ all other offerings for sin were for ever closed. Polwhale.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

8 And they shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire, and unleavened bread; and with bitter herbs they shall eat it.

9 Eat not of it raw, nor sodden at all with water, but roast with fire; his head with his legs, and with the purtenance thereof.

10 And ye shall let nothing of it remain until the morning; and that which remaineth of it until the morning ye shall burn with fire.

11 ¶ And thus shall ye eat it; with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet, and your staff in your hand; and ye shall eat it in haste: it is the LORD's passover.

12 For I will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will smite all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am the LORD.

13 And the blood shall be to you for a token upon the houses where ye are: and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you †to princes.

¶ Or,

† Heb. for a destruction.

8. — unleavened bread ;] Partly to put them in mind of their hardships in Egypt; for unleavened bread is heavy and unsavoury: and partly to commemorate their deliverance from thence in such haste, that they had not time to leaven it, ver. 39; Deut. xvi. 3. Bp. Patrick.

— with bitter herbs] To put them in mind of their grievous bondage in Egypt, which made "their lives bitter" to them, chap. i. 14. Bp. Patrick. These bitter herbs, according to the Jews, were probably such as lettuce, endive or succory, chervil, and the like. Script. illust.

11. And thus shall ye eat it ;] Like travellers, or persons engaging in some laborious work, as appears from the following particulars. Bp. Patrick.

— with your loins girded ,] It being usual for travellers so to do in the East, where they wear long and loose garments. Bp. Patrick. All persons in the East, that journey on foot, always gather up their vest, by which they walk more commodiously, thus having the leg and knee unembarrassed. Sir J. Chardin.

— your shoes on your feet ,] As necessary for travellers. Either they were without shoes in their state of bondage; or it was their custom to put off their shoes during meals. Bp. Patrick. The latter is still the custom in the East, either to avoid soiling the carpets, on which they sit; or because shoes would be troublesome to persons who sit cross-legged. Sir J. Chardin.

— your staff in your hand ;] Another characteristic of persons travelling. Bp. Patrick.

— ye shall eat it in haste :] After the manner and posture of distressed pilgrims, who were setting out instantly on a long journey, through a dreary wilderness, towards a pleasant land, where their toil and travel was to cease. Dr. Hales. These latter particulars were to be observed only in the first passover celebrated in Egypt, and not in aftertimes. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

12. — against all the gods of Egypt] That is, I will destroy the idols and images of Egypt. Pyle. Or perhaps the beasts are meant, whose firstborn were smitten. Bryant. By "the gods of Egypt" in this place, some interpreters understand, as in the margin, the "princes" and judges, the great men of the kingdom, upon whom the judgment of God was now executed. Bp. Patrick.

destroy you, when I smite the land of Egypt. Before CHRIST 1491.

14 And this day shall be unto you for a memorial; and ye shall keep it a feast to the LORD throughout your generations; ye shall keep it a feast by an ordinance for ever.

15 Seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread; even the first day ye shall put away leaven out of your houses: for whosoever eateth leavened bread from the first day until the seventh day, that soul shall be cut off from Israel.

16 And in the first day there shall be an holy convocation, and in the seventh day there shall be an holy convocation to you; no manner of work shall be done in them, save that which every †man must eat, that only may be done of you. † Heb. soul.

17 And ye shall observe the feast of unleavened bread; for in this selfsame day have I brought your armies out of the land of Egypt: therefore shall ye observe this day in your generations by an ordinance for ever. Lev. 23. 5. Numb. 28. 16.

18 ¶ ^a In the first month, on the four-

13. — I will pass over you ,] My destroying angel shall "pass over you." Here is the reason of its being called the Passover. In Hebrew it is called Pesach, which signifies to pass over. Hence the expression of the Paschal lamb. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

14. — ye shall keep it a feast — for ever .] Not only now, but after their arrival in Canaan, till the time of the Messiah, or final period of the ceremonial law and Jewish polity. Bp. Kidder.

This passover was ordained by God to be observed by every Israelite, at the peril of excommunication, at every return of this day of the year; not only because it was to be a standing proof to all future ages of this their deliverance, but also a standing figure or type of a much greater. Bp. Wilson. As the Israelites were instructed to keep the passover in remembrance of their escape from the Egyptian bondage, so are we required to observe the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, in memory of our deliverance from the yoke of sin. And it is remarkable, that both the Jewish and the Christian rite were enjoined in commemoration of events, which had not yet happened, with the same degree of precision as if they had actually taken place. Polwhele.

15. Seven days &c.] Seven days, following the feast of the Passover, were observed as a distinct festival, and called the feast of unleavened bread. Bp. Kidder.

— ye shall put away leaven] There would be great inconvenience in putting away all leaven from the houses for several days in some countries; but not so in the East, for there they use no other leaven than dough, kept till it is become sour; so that, if there should be no leaven in all the country for some days, fresh leaven would be produced in a few hours. Harmer.

— that soul shall be cut off] Excommunicated; excluded the privileges and blessings of My people; and shall become liable to severe punishment, which I will either inflict Myself, or appoint the magistrates to inflict. Dr. Wells. See the note on Gen. xvii. 14.

16. And in the first day &c.] The first and last days of the feast of unleavened bread were kept holy, (the other five being working days,) because God delivered the people from their bondage on the first, and overthrew Pharaoh in the Red sea on the seventh. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST 1491. tenth day of the month at even, ye shall eat unleavened bread, until the one and twentieth day of the month at even.

19 Seven days shall there be no leaven found in your houses: for whosoever eateth that which is leavened, even that soul shall be cut off from the congregation of Israel, whether he be a stranger, or born in the land.

20 Ye shall eat nothing leavened; in all your habitations shall ye eat unleavened bread.

21 ¶ Then Moses called for all the elders of Israel, and said unto them, Draw out and take you a ¶ lamb according to your families, and kill the passover.

Or, kid.

Hebr. 11. 28.

22 ^b And ye shall take a bunch of hyssop, and dip it in the blood that is in the bason, and strike the lintel and the two side posts with the blood that is in the bason; and none of you shall go out at the door of his house until the morning.

23 For the LORD will pass through to smite the Egyptians; and when he seeth the blood upon the lintel, and on the two side posts, the LORD will pass over the door, and will not suffer the destroyer to come in unto your houses to smite you.

24 And ye shall observe this thing for an ordinance to thee and to thy sons for ever.

25 And it shall come to pass, when ye

Before CHRIST 1491. be come to the land which the LORD will give you, according as he hath promised, that ye shall keep this service.

26 ^c And it shall come to pass, when your children shall say unto you, What mean ye by this service? ^{c Josh. 4. 6.}

27 That ye shall say, It is the sacrifice of the LORD's passover, who passed over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt, when he smote the Egyptians, and delivered our houses. And the people bowed the head and worshipped.

28 And the children of Israel went away, and did as the LORD had commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

29 ¶ ^d And it came to pass, that at midnight the LORD smote all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, ^e from the firstborn of Pharaoh that sat on his throne unto the firstborn of the captive that was in the ^f dungeon; and all the firstborn of cattle. ^{e Chap. 11. 4. f Heb. house of the pit.}

30 And Pharaoh rose up in the night, he, and all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was a great cry in Egypt; for there was not a house where there was not one dead.

31 ¶ And he called for Moses and Aaron by night, and said, Rise up, and get you forth from among my people, both ye and the children of Israel; and go, serve the LORD, as ye have said.

19. — a stranger,] One of another nation, who had embraced the Jewish religion by receiving circumcision. Bp. Patrick.

22. — hyssop,] This herb is a cathartic, and is used as emblematical of purification. Le Clerc. It has its name in the Hebrew from its detersive and purgative qualities. Parkhurst.

23. — and will not suffer the destroyer &c.] In the awful punishments of the Egyptians, we see every element and every class of animated beings subservient to the command of Moses; he gives notice when they shall begin and when they shall cease their operations; he sets them their bounds, beyond which they shall not pass; and while the raging storm and the silent pestilence sweep away thousands on every side, they presume not to touch the chosen race of Israel. The destroying angel selects from each family through the land of Egypt the single victim pointed out; and while with unerring hand he aims at this the shaft of death, he passes over every habitation of Jacob, marked with the sign appointed by the Divine command. Do we not in all this discover the plain operation of that Being, who alone is the God of nature, and the Lord of life; whose will controls every element, and directs every event? Dr. Graves.

26. — when your children shall say unto you, &c.] When children were twelve years old, their parents were bound to bring them to the temple, where, seeing what was done at this festival, they would be apt to inquire into the meaning of it. At every feast also of the Passover the eldest person at the table instructed all the younger persons present in the reason of this institution, rehearsing the very words here prescribed. Bp. Patrick.

29. — the Lord smote &c.] Now God begins to call for the blood they owed Him: in one night every house hath a carcass in it; and, which is more grievous, of their firstborn; and, which is yet more fearful, in an instant. No man could comfort another: every man was too full of his own sorrow, helping rather to make the noise of the lamentation more doleful and astonishing. Bp. Hall.

— the captive — in the dungeon;] The expression in chap. xi. ver. 5. is, “the maidservant that is behind the mill.” Perhaps the meaning here is, “the captive or bondwoman that was kept in the dungeon to turn the mill.” Dr. Wells. The working at the mill was looked upon as the lowest and severest drudgery; and was allotted to the meanest slaves: (Bryant:) and this often in a prison; of which we have an instance in the story of Samson, Judg. xvi. 21. Bp. Patrick.

31. And he called for Moses &c.] Here we see the proud heart of Pharaoh is at last subdued, and compelled to obey the will of God, without reserve or limitation. But as this obedience was extorted, not free; and the effect only of a slavish and servile fear; so it did not long continue. He soon repented of his repentance, as such constrained penitents generally do; and soon after perished in the Red sea. This aptly reminds us of the wise man's saying, which should be a warning to us all, “He that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy,” Prov. xxix. 1. Wogan.

— Rise up, and get you forth from among my people,] We might not long since contemplate Moses, engaged in an attempt to deliver Israel from Egyptian bondage, to all appearance, if we consider human means, utterly desperate. He was resisted and scorned by the Egyptian monarch; deserted and almost execrated by his countrymen, for involving them in new miseries. He stood on one side, without arms, without followers, without resources of any human kind; opposed to a mighty sovereign, who was surrounded by his wise men and priests, his counsellors, his officers, his armies; and invested with despotick power, which he was determined to exercise, in opposition to the authority of that God, whose ambassage the Jewish legislator declared himself, and in contempt of those menaces which he denounced.

A very short period elapses; and what is the event? No human force is exercised, not a single Israelite lifts the sword, or 1491.

Before
CHRIST

32 Also take your flocks and your herds, as ye have said, and be gone; and bless me also.

33 And the Egyptians were urgent upon the people, that they might send them out of the land in haste; for they said, We be all dead men.

¶ Or,
dough.

34 And the people took their dough before it was leavened, their ¶ kneading-troughs being bound up in their clothes upon their shoulders.

† Chap. 3.
22. & 11.
2.

35 And the children of Israel did according to the word of Moses; and they borrowed of the Egyptians [†] jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment:

36 And the LORD gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they lent unto them such things as they required. And they spoiled the Egyptians.

‡ Numb.
33. 3.

37 ¶ And [‡] the children of Israel journeyed from Rameses to Succoth, about six hundred thousand on foot that were men, beside children.

† Heb.
a great mixture.

38 And [†] a mixed multitude went up also with them; and flocks, and herds, even very much cattle.

39 And they baked unleavened cakes of the dough which they brought forth out of Egypt, for it was not leavened; because they were thrust out of Egypt, and could not tarry, neither had they prepared for themselves any victual.

‡ Gen. 15.
13.
Acts 7. 6.
Gal. 3. 17.

40 ¶ Now the sojourning of the children of Israel, who dwelt in Egypt, was [‡] four hundred and thirty years.

bends the bow; but the Egyptian monarch is humbled, his people terrified, they urge the Israelites to hasten their departure. These are now honoured as the masters of their late oppressors: "they demand of the Egyptians silver, and gold, and jewels;" as the remuneration due to their past unrequited labours, conceded by Divine justice, and obtained by Divine power; as the homage due to their present acknowledged superiority, and the purchase of their immediate departure. The Egyptians grant every thing. Dr. Graves.

34. — their kneadingtroughs] The vessels, which the Arabs of that country still use for kneading the unleavened cakes, which they prepare for travellers in this very desert, are only small wooden bowls: nothing could be more convenient than kneading-troughs of this sort, for the Israelites on their journey. Dr. Shaw, Harmer. The Arabs, among their other kitchen furniture, have a round leather coverlid, which they lay on the ground, and which serves them to eat from. It has rings round it, by which it is drawn together with a chain, that has a hook to it to hang it by, either to the side of the camel, or in the house. This draws it together; and sometimes they carry in it their meal made into dough: and in this manner they bring it full of bread; and, when the repast is over, carry it away at once with all that is left. Bp. Pococke. Niebuhr describes a piece of furniture of the same nature as this, mentioning that it is usually slung on the camels in travelling. Which accounts for the remark of Moses, that the people "carried their kneading bags on their shoulders;" bound up, probably, like knapsacks. This may be ascribed to two causes: 1st, They had not camels sufficient to transport the baggage of so numerous a host: 2dly, They were sent away with all speed, and

Before
CHRIST
1491.

41 And it came to pass at the end of the four hundred and thirty years, even the selfsame day it came to pass, that all the hosts of the LORD went out from the land of Egypt.

42 It is [†] a night to be much observed unto the LORD for bringing them out from the land of Egypt: this is that night of the LORD to be observed of all the children of Israel in their generations. ^{† Heb. a night of observations.}

43 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses and Aaron, This is the ordinance of the passover: There shall no stranger eat thereof:

44 But every man's servant that is bought for money, when thou hast circumcised him, then shall he eat thereof.

45 A foreigner and an hired servant shall not eat thereof.

46 In one house shall it be eaten; thou shalt not carry forth ought of the flesh abroad out of the house; [†] neither shall ye break a bone thereof. ^{† Numb. 9. 12. John 19. 36.}

47 All the congregation of Israel shall [†] keep it. ^{† Heb. do it.}

48 And when a stranger shall sojourn with thee, and will keep the passover to the LORD, let all his males be circumcised, and then let him come near and keep it; and he shall be as one that is born in the land: for no uncircumcised person shall eat thereof.

49 One law shall be to him that is home-born, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among you.

50 Thus did all the children of Israel; had no time allowed them to procure travelling animals for their accommodation. They must either carry their food themselves, or relinquish it. Script. illust.

35. — they borrowed &c.] See the notes on chap. iii. 22.

37. — Rameses] See chap. i. 11.

— Succoth] See chap. xiii. 20.

— that were men] Fit for war: twenty years old and upwards. Bp. Patrick.

38. — a mixed multitude] Of others besides Israelites: perhaps proselytes, who had renounced idolatry; or persons with whom the Israelites were connected by intermarriages. Bp. Patrick.

40. — the sojourning of the children of Israel] This includes their fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and their sojourning in the land of Canaan as well as in Egypt. From the time of Abraham's coming from Charran into the land of Canaan, when this sojourning began, till the going of his descendants out of Egypt, was just 430 years. From his arrival in Canaan to the birth of Isaac was twenty-five years; Isaac was sixty years old when he begat Jacob; and Jacob was one hundred and thirty years old when he went down into Egypt: making together two hundred and fifteen years: and from his family's coming into Egypt till their departure was just two hundred and fifteen more. Bp. Patrick.

41. — all the hosts of the Lord] Hosts, or armies; see ver. 51. So called, because they were led forth under the Lord, as their king and captain general. The word implies also, that they went out not confusedly, but in good order. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. This event of the departure of the Israelites from Egypt was so notorious, that the memory of it, as well as of various particulars in the birth, life, and adventures of Moses, was preserved in far

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

1870

JOURNEYINGS & ENCAMPMENTS, OF THE ISRAELITES FROM EGYPT TO CANAAN, through the Desert of
ARABIA PETRAEA,
Shewing also the principal places in EGYPT,
Mentioned in the HOLY SCRIPTURES.

Before CHRIST 1491. as the LORD commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

51 And it came to pass the selfsame day, that the LORD did bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt by their armies.

CHAP. XIII.

1 The firstborn are sanctified to God. 3 The memorial of the passover is commanded. 11 The firstlings of beasts are set apart. 17 The Israelites go out of Egypt, and carry Joseph's bones with them. 20 They come to Etham. 21 God guideth them by a pillar of a cloud, and a pillar of fire.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

* Chap. 22.
29. & 34.
19.
Lev. 27. 26.
Numb. 3.
13. & 8. 16.
Luke 2. 23.

2^a Sanctify unto me all the firstborn, whatsoever openeth the womb among the children of Israel, both of man and of beast: it is mine.

† Heb.
servants.

3 ¶ And Moses said unto the people, Remember this day, in which ye came out from Egypt, out of the house of † bondage; for by strength of hand the LORD brought you out from this place: there shall no leavened bread be eaten.

4 This day came ye out in the month Abib.

5 ¶ And it shall be when the LORD shall bring thee into the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, which he sware unto thy fathers to give thee, a land flowing with milk and honey, that thou shalt keep this service in this month.

6 Seven days thou shalt eat unleavened bread, and in the seventh day shall be a feast to the LORD.

7 Unleavened bread shall be eaten seven days; and there shall no leavened bread be seen with thee, neither shall there be leaven seen with thee in all thy quarters.

8 ¶ And thou shalt shew thy son in that day, saying, This is done because of that which the LORD did unto me when I came forth out of Egypt.

9 And it shall be for a sign unto thee upon thine hand, and for a memorial between thine eyes, that the LORD's law may be in thy mouth: for with a strong hand hath the LORD brought thee out of Egypt.

10 Thou shalt therefore keep this ordinance in his season from year to year.

11 ¶ And it shall be when the LORD shall bring thee into the land of the Canaanites, as he sware unto thee and to thy fathers, and shall give it thee, 12^b That thou shalt † set apart unto the LORD all that openeth the matrix, and every firstling that cometh of a beast which thou hast; the males shall be the LORD's.

13 And every firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a † lamb; and if thou wilt not redeem it, then thou shalt break his neck: and all the firstborn of man among thy children shalt thou redeem.

14 ¶ And it shall be when thy son asketh thee † in time to come, saying, What is this? that thou shalt say unto him, By strength of hand the LORD brought us out from Egypt, from the house of bondage:

15 And it came to pass, when Pharaoh would hardly let us go, that the LORD slew all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both the firstborn of man, and the firstborn of beast: therefore I sacrifice to the LORD all that openeth the matrix, being males; but all the firstborn of my children I redeem.

Before CHRIST 1491.

* Chap. 22.
29. & 34.
19.
Ezek. 44.
50.
† Heb. cause to pass over.
‡ Or, kid.

† Heb.
to morrow.

distant nations, though the story was much corrupted for want of the knowledge of these sacred records. Stackhouse.

Chap. XIII. ver. 2. Sanctify unto me all the firstborn, — it is mine.] It is dedicated or appropriated to Me. God claimed this, not only by right of creation, but more especially to put the Israelites in mind of His miraculous providence, in sparing their firstborn, when those of the Egyptians were all destroyed. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

4. — the month Abib.] The ancient Hebrews had no particular names for their months. They said, the 1st, 2d, 3d, &c. In this place, and in chap. xxiii. 15; xxxiv. 18; Deut. xvi. 1; we have the month Abib, that is, the month of the young ears of corn, or of the new fruits, which is probably the Egyptian name of the month, which the Hebrews called afterwards Nisan, and which was the first of their holy year. Every where else Moses marks out the months by their order of succession. In Joshua, Judges, and Samuel, we see the same method. Under Solomon, we read of certain names, which have been thought to be borrowed from the Phenicians, Chaldeans, or Egyptians. These names however do not occur, either before or after Solomon's time. After the captivity of Babylon, they continued the names of the months, as they had found them among the Chaldeans and Persians. Calmét. See note on chap. xii. 2.

9. — a sign — upon thine hand, &c.] It shall be for a token or memorial of what God did for your forefathers; to make thee as sensible of God's goodness, as of that which thou hast in thy hand, or of a thing which is continually before thine eyes. The Jewish superstition of wearing what were called "phylacteries," took its rise from these words. Phylactery is a word derived from the Greek, and properly signifies a preservative, such as the Pagans carried about them, to preserve them from evils, diseases, or dangers. The Jewish phylacteries were little boxes, or rolls of parchment, in which were written certain words of the law. These they wore on their foreheads, and on the wrist of the left arm. The passages written on them were Exod. xiii. 2—10, 11—16; Deut. vi. 4—9; xi. 13—21. Bp. Patrick, Calmét.

13. — an ass] The ass seems to be here mentioned, rather than the horse or camel, because this animal was most in use among the Israelites. It appears to comprehend other "unclean beasts," that is, creatures not fit for sacrifice. Bp. Kidder.

14. — when thy son asketh thee] It appears from this, and from ver. 8, that great care was taken for the instruction of children in the rites of their religion: (Bp. Patrick;) that by an early edu-

Before
CHRIST
1491.

16 And it shall be for a token upon thine hand, and for frontlets between thine eyes: for by strength of hand the Lord brought us forth out of Egypt.

17 ¶ And it came to pass, when Pharaoh had let the people go, that God led them not through the way of the land of the Philistines, although that was near; for God said, Lest peradventure the people repent when they see war, and they return to Egypt:

18 But God led the people about, through the way of the wilderness of the Red sea: and the children of Israel went up ¶ harnessed out of the land of Egypt.

19 And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him: for he had straitly sworn the children of Israel, saying, God will surely visit you; and ye shall carry up my bones away hence with you.

20 ¶ And they took their journey from

¶ Or, by five in a rank.

c Gen. 50.
25.
Josh. 24.
32.
d Numb.
35. 6.

cation in the important knowledge of the mercies herein commemorated, no one might forget them, and lose the influence which they ought to have on his conduct and behaviour. Pyle.

16. — frontlets] The Hebrew word means memorial, as in ver. 9. Bp. Patrick.

18. But God led the people about, &c.] The regular route was towards Gaza, and the other cities of Palestine, which were a portion of Canaan, and at no great distance from the borders of Lower Egypt. But God would not permit them to take this course, though compendious and easy; for He knew their refractory spirit, and how prone they were to disobey; and the proximity of this country to Egypt would lead them, on the first difficulty, to return. Of this we may be assured from what they did, when, upon some disappointment, they gave vent to their evil wishes, Exod. xvi. 3; Numb. xiv. 2. Bryant.

— the wilderness of the Red sea:] The desert bordering on the Red sea. The Red sea, called also the Arabian gulph, separates Egypt on the west from Arabia on the east. The name in Hebrew signifies “the weedy sea,” or the sea of weeds; so called either from the variety of sea-weeds seen on its shores at low water, (Shaw;) or from the quantity of white coral spread every where over its bottom. Bruce. In the Coptick language it is at this time called the Sea of Weeds. Bruce. We derive the name “Red sea,” from the Greeks. It is a false opinion, that the sea is so called from the red colour of its waters, or of the sand at its bottom; the most probable notion is, that it was called the sea of Edom, from its neighbouring coast; and that, as Edom signifies red in Hebrew, the Greeks, not understanding the meaning of the appellation, translated it, as we have done after them, the Red sea. Dr. Wells, Stackhouse. The part of the sea, where the Israelites crossed, from a comparison of the reports of different travellers, may be estimated at about twelve miles. Dr. Hales.

— harnessed] In the margin, “by five in a rank:” in good order, like soldiers; not confusedly, like runaways. Dr. Wells. It is not likely that the Egyptians suffered them to have arms; yet they did not go away tumultuously like fugitives, but marched like soldiers in good order. Bp. Patrick.

20. — Succoth.] Little more than thirty miles from Rameses. The name signifies an inclosure, consisting of pens and booths for cattle. It was probably built for a receptacle, in which the Egyptians secured and foddered their flocks and herds during the inundation of the Nile. Bryant. Succoth by Jordan, eastward, was so called on a like occasion, Gen. xxxiii. 17. Dr. Wells.

— Etham, in the edge of the wilderness.] This desert was properly a continuation of the wilderness from Egypt. But it

Succoth, and encamped in Etham, in the Before edge of the wilderness. CHRIST 1491.

21 And the Lord went before them c Numb.
by day in a pillar of a cloud, to lead them 14. 14.
the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, Deut. 1. 33.
to give them light; to go by day and Psal. 78. 14.
night: 1 Cor. 10. 1.

22 He took not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by Neh. 9.
night, from before the people. 19.

CHAP. XIV.

1 God instructeth the Israelites in their journey. 5 Pharaoh pursueth after them. 10 The Israelites murmur. 13 Moses comforteth them. 15 God instructeth Moses. 19 The cloud removeth behind the camp. 21 The Israelites pass through the Red sea, 23 which drowneth the Egyptians.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, that commenced under the name of Etham at the northern extremity of the western gulph of the Red sea. According to the estimation of travellers, the distance is about sixty miles from Succoth to this, their second place of encampment. Bryant.

21. And the Lord went before them &c.] By “the Lord” we are here to understand the Shechinah, or Divine glory, which appeared to Moses in the bush, ch. iii. 2, and on other occasions; and now appeared in a glorious cloud to conduct the Israelites, and assure them of God’s care and protection. This cloud was a symbol of His gracious presence with them, and especial providence over them. We must be careful not to understand that God Himself moved from place to place; for He is always every where; but this cloud was moved by Him, from whom it came, as a token that He was present by His special favour, care, and providence, wheresoever it went. Bp. Patrick. From the time that the children of Israel arrived at Succoth, to their passing the Red sea into Midian, it does not appear that Moses led them one step by his own conduct or contrivance. According to his narration of their several movements, it was in no wise left to his judgment, where to lead the people; but their journeying was evidently conducted by the immediate direction of God, with a view to that miraculous deliverance which He designed for them at the Red sea. Shuckford.

And the Lord &c.] He, who in this chapter is called the LORD, is in the next called “the angel of God,” ver. 19: who, as formerly He had gone before the camp for their guidance, so now, the Egyptians pursuing, stood behind it as their defence. It was the opinion of the primitive church, that He, who thus accompanied the Israelites with the pillar of a cloud, was the same who had formerly appeared to the Patriarchs in the figure of man. And indeed, whilst Moses is not contented with the promise of an assistant angel, but expressly petitions for the continuance of God’s presence, he leaves us not in want of a commentator to tell us what kind of Angel was present with him. See Exod. xxxiii. 2, 5, 9—15, compared with xxiii. 20—23. Abp. Tenison.

Chap. XIV. ver. 2. Speak unto the children of Israel, &c.] The Israelites were now secure, being out of all fear of the Egyptians, and just ready to take shelter in a wilderness, where no army, without a miracle, could subsist. The want of water, and every other necessary article, precluded all chance of being overtaken. But at this instant they have an order to change their route; not to march to the left to Canaan, the land flowing with milk and honey, but to retire from it. Bryant.

Instead of proceeding from Etham, round the head of the Red sea, and coasting along its eastern shore, the Lord made them

Before
CHRIST
1491.
Numb.
33. 7.

they turn and encamp before ^a Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, over against Baal-zephon: before it shall ye encamp by the sea.

3 For Pharaoh will say of the children of Israel, They are entangled in the land, the wilderness hath shut them in.

4 And I will harden Pharaoh's heart, that he shall follow after them; and I will be honoured upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host; that the Egyptians may know that I am the LORD. And they did so.

5 ¶ And it was told the king of Egypt that the people fled: and the heart of Pharaoh and of his servants was turned against the people, and they said, Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go from serving us?

6 And he made ready his chariot, and took his people with him:

7 And he took six hundred chosen chariots, and all the chariots of Egypt, and captains over every one of them.

8 And the LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued after the children of Israel: and the children of Israel went out with an high hand.

9 But the ^b Egyptians pursued after them, all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horsemen, and his army, and overtook them encamping by the sea, beside Pi-hahiroth, before Baal-zephon. ^{b Josh. 24. 5. 1 Mac. 4. 3.}

10 ¶ And when Pharaoh drew nigh, the children of Israel lifted up their eyes, and, behold, the Egyptians marched after them; and they were sore afraid: and the children of Israel cried out unto the LORD.

11 And they said unto Moses, Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness?

Before
CHRIST
1491.

"turn" southwards along its western shore; and after a stage of about twenty or thirty miles, (which cannot be exactly ascertained, because the Red sea anciently extended a good way northwards of Suez,) to encamp in the valley of Bedea, where there was an opening in the great chain of mountains, that line the western coast, called Pi-hahiroth, "the mouth of the ridge," between Migdol, ("the castle or garrison," Bryant,) westwards, and the sea eastwards, over against Baal-zephon on the eastern coast, to tempt Pharaoh, whose heart He finally hardened, to pursue them, when they were "entangled in the land," and "shut in by the wilderness," on their rear and flanks, and by the sea in their front. Dr. Hales.

— Pi-hahiroth.] The Arabs call the narrow passes in the mountains Fum, as the Hebrews did Pi, "the mouth." Fum el Beder is the mouth of Beder: Fum el Terfowey, the passage or mouth of Terfowey: Pi or Phi-Hiroth, the mouth of the valley cut through with ravines. Bruce.

— Baal-zephon.] Nothing could tend more to wean the Israelites from their fondness for Egyptian superstitions, than God's showing his superiority over all their deities, and His judgments upon their votaries. Baal-zephon was probably a place of worship, designed for the use of mariners, where stood the statue of some serpentine deity, the supposed guardian of those seas. The children of Israel may have been particularly directed towards this part of the coast, that they might see another proof of the futility of such worship. This must have been the consequence, when in the morning they beheld the dead bodies of the Egyptians, lying upon the beach, almost within the precincts of the idolatrous inclosure, ver. 30. Bryant.

4. — I will harden Pharaoh's heart.] I will in just judgment so beset Pharaoh, that, forgetting his former experience of My power, he shall, in hopes of prevailing, follow after you. Bp. Hall.

5. — and the heart of Pharaoh — was turned.] As good motions are long, ere they can enter into hard hearts, so they seldom continue long. No sooner were the backs of the Israelites turned to depart, than Pharaoh's heart and face are turned after them, to fetch them back again. It vexes him to see so great a command, so much wealth, cast away in one night; which now he resolves to redeem, though with more plagues. The same ambition and covetousness, that made him wear out so many judgments, will not leave him, till it have wrought out his full destruction. Bp. Hall.

7. — chariots.] Scripture speaks of two sorts of chariots; one for princes and generals to ride in, the other to break the enemy's battalions, by rushing in among them, being armed with iron, which made terrible havoc. The most ancient chariots of war we find mentioned are Pharaoh's, which were overthrown in the Red sea. The Canaanites, whom Joshua engaged at the waters of Merom, had cavalry, and a multitude of chariots, Josh. xi. 4. Sisera, general of Jabin, king of Hazor, had 900 chariots of iron, Judg. iv. 3. Judah could not get possession of the lands belonging to their lot, because the ancient inhabitants of the country were strong in chariots of iron, Judg. i. 19. The Philistines, in their war against Saul, had 30,000 chariots, and 6,000 horsemen, 1 Sam. xiii. 5. David having taken 1,000 chariots of war from Hadadezer, king of Syria, hamstringed the horses, and burned 900 chariots, reserving only 100, 2 Sam. viii. 4; 1 Chron. xviii. 4.

It does not appear that the kings of the Hebrews used chariots in war. Solomon had a considerable number, 1 Kings x. 26; but we do not know of any military expedition wherein they were employed. As Judea was a mountainous country, chariots were of no use. In 2 Mac. xiii. 2, there is mention of chariots armed with scythes, which the king of Syria led against Judea. Calmel.

8. — he pursued after the children of Israel.] Of all the infatuated resolutions, that either king or people adventured on, the pursuing of the Israelites with such a mighty army, after they had so intreated and urged them to leave their country, may well seem to every indifferent reader the most stupid that ever was conceived. So the author of the book of Wisdom justly censures it, chap. xix. 3. Possibly the Egyptians might think with the Syrians, that the God of Israel might not be alike powerful in all places, 1 Kings xx. 23: or they might think that Moses's commission did not extend beyond Egypt: or that he might not have power over mighty hosts and armies. They knew at least, that the Israelites had no military skill, no captains of infantry, no cavalry, no weapons or engines of war; of all which the Egyptians had great abundance. On these and the like presumptions they became fool-hardy, and desperately resolved to be avenged on the children of Israel, for all the losses they had sustained by Moses and Aaron. Stackhouse.

— with an high hand.] Visibly by the miraculous and overruling power of God. Dr. Wells.

11. — Because there were no graves in Egypt, &c.] This sarcastical and reproachful language argues the height of their discontent, or rather rage, against their deliverer. Bp. Patrick. Their fear and disposition to submit without resistance to their oppressors, "Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians," justify the wise precaution of Providence, that would not expose them to warfare with the Philistines, when their spirits were depressed and debased by bondage. See chap. xiii. 17. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
1491.
Chap. 6. 9.

Wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us forth out of Egypt?

12 ¶ Is not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt, saying, Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians? For it had been better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness.

¶ Or, for whereas ye have seen the Egyptians to day,
&c.

13 ¶ And Moses said unto the people, Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD, which he will shew to you to day : ¶ for the Egyptians, whom ye have seen to day, ye shall see them again no more for ever.

14 The LORD shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace.

15 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward :

16 But lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it : and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea.

17 And I, behold, I will harden the 13. — ye shall see them again no more] Ye shall not see them alive any more. The spirit of Moses is most admirable. Instead of resenting the reproaches of the Israelites, or being dismayed at the approach of Pharaoh, he meekly and sedately exhorts the people to be of good courage and to trust in God ; who, he assures them, would accomplish what He had begun. Bp. Patrick.

If Moses had, humanly speaking, betrayed unparalleled imprudence in exposing his host to their present danger, by leading them into a defile, with mountains on either side, and the sea in front, the high strain of confidence, which he now speaks in, is equally unparalleled. "Fear ye not," says he to the terrified multitude : does he add, Rouse your courage ; there is no way to avoid slavery or death, but by one manly effort ; turn then on your pursuers, and your God will aid you? No : his language is, "Stand ye still, &c." See verses 13, 14. What would this be in any mere human leader, but the ravings of frenzy? Yet, wonderful to relate, the event accords with it. The Israelites escape "by the way of the sea : " the Egyptians perish in the same sea. Dr. Graves.

14. — ye shall hold your peace.] Ye shall have no occasion to strike a single blow. Bp. Patrick. We may well imagine how great must have been the anxiety of the people, who had not true faith in their leader, and saw no possible means for their escape. Pharaoh was seen approaching in the very article of their encampment. Night now came on, which must have increased their horrors and their murmurs against Moses. At last the word of command was given ; and the Lord spake unto Moses, who seems to have been looking up to Heaven for assistance, "Wherefore criest thou unto Me? &c." Bryant.

19. And the angel of God,] The Lord Himself is said to go before them, chap. xiii. 21. But we must understand, that where the Lord is, He is attended by His angels ; some of which were sent from the Shechinah, which was in the cloud, to conduct the Israelites, and take care of them. Bp. Patrick. The Angel of the Covenant, which was Christ, removed the signs of His presence from before the Israelites behind them. Bp. Hall.

— and the pillar of the cloud &c.] Wonder now justly strove with fear in the Israelites, when they saw the cloud remove behind them, and the sea give way before them. They were not used to such bulwarks. God stood behind them in the cloud : the sea reared them up walls on both sides of them. That,

Before
CHRIST
1491.

hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them : and I will get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

18 And the Egyptians shall know that I am the LORD, when I have gotten me honour upon Pharaoh, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

19 ¶ And the angel of God, which went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them ; and the pillar of the cloud went from before their face, and stood behind them :

20 And it came between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel ; and it was a cloud and darkness to them, but it gave light by night to these : so that the one came not near the other all the night.

21 And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea ; and the LORD caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided.

22 And the children of Israel went into

^a Josh. 4.
23.
Ps. 114. 3.
^c Psal 78.
13.
1 Cor. 10. 1.
Hebr. 11.
29.

which they feared would be their destruction, protected them.—How easily can God make the cruellest of His creatures both our friends and patrons ! Bp. Hall.

21. And Moses &c.] The precise place of this passage has been much contested. Some place it near Suez, at the head of the gulph : others, with more probability, about ten hours' journey lower down, at Clysmia, or the valley of Bedea. The modern names of places in the vicinity tend to confirm the latter supposition. The chain of mountains, which line the western coast of the Red sea, is called "Attaea," deliverance. On the eastern coast opposite, is a head-land, called "Ras Musi," or the Cape of Moses : somewhat lower, "Hamam Faraun," Pharaoh's springs : below Girondel, a reach of the gulph, called "Birket Faraun ;" and the general name of the gulph is "Bahr al Kolsun," the Bay of Submersion. These names indicate that the passage was considerably below Suez, according to the tradition of the natives. Dr. Hales.

22. And the children of Israel went &c.] It has been asked, whether there were not some ridges of rocks, where the water was shallow, so that an army at particular times may pass over? And, whether the Etesian winds, which blow strongly all summer from the northwest, could not blow so violently against the sea, as to keep it back on a heap ; so that the Israelites might have passed without a miracle? Bruce's observations on these queries are excellent. "These doubts do not merit any attention to solve them. This passage is told us by Scripture to be a miraculous one ; and if so, we have nothing to do with natural causes. If we do not believe Moses, we need not believe the transaction at all, seeing that it is from his authority we derive it. If we believe in God, that He 'made' the sea, we must believe He could 'divide' it, when He sees proper reason : and of that He must be the only judge. It is no greater miracle to divide the Red sea than to divide the river Jordan.

"If the Etesian wind, blowing from the northwest in summer, could keep up the sea as a wall on the right, or to the south, of fifty feet high ; still the difficulty would remain of building the wall on the left hand, or to the north. Besides, water standing in that position for a day must have lost the nature of fluid. Whence came that cohesion of particles, which hindered that wall to escape at the sides? This is as great a miracle as that of Moses. If the Etesian winds had done this once, they must have repeated it many a time before and since, from the same causes.

Printed by Nicholas Pussin

THE PASSAGE OF THE RED SEA.

Engraved by H. Moore

Published by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge July 1, 1814.
Exodus ch. 14. vs 27

Before
CHRIST
1491.

the midst of the sea upon the dry ground : and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

23 ¶ And the Egyptians pursued, and went in after them to the midst of the sea, even all Pharaoh's horses, his chariots, and his horsemen.

24 And it came to pass, that in the morning watch the LORD looked unto the host of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and of the cloud, and troubled the host of the Egyptians,

¶ Or,
and made them to go heavily.

25 And took off their chariot wheels, || that they drave them heavily : so that the Egyptians said, Let us flee from the face of Israel ; for the LORD fighteth for them against the Egyptians.

26 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the sea, that the waters may come again upon the Egyptians, upon their chariots, and upon their horsemen.

27 And Moses stretched forth his hand

“ Were all these difficulties surmounted, what could we do with the ‘ pillar of fire ? ’ The answer is, we should not believe it. Why then believe the passage at all ? We have no authority for the one, but what is for the other : it is altogether contrary to the ordinary nature of things : and if not a miracle, it must be a fable.”

Still such queries have their use ; they lead to a stricter investigation of facts, and tend thereby strongly to confirm the truth of the history. Thus it appears, from the accurate observations of Niebuhr and Bruce, that there is no ledge of rocks running across the gulph any where, to afford a shallow passage. And the second query, about the Etesian or northerly wind, is refuted by the express mention of a strong “ easterly ” wind, blowing across, and scooping out a deep passage : not that it was necessary for OMNIPOTENCE to employ it there as an instrument, any more than at Jordan : but it seems to be introduced in the Sacred History by way of anticipation, to exclude the natural agency that might in aftertimes be employed for solving the miracle : and it is remarkable that the monsoon in the Red sea blows the summer half of the year from the north, and the winter half from the south, neither of which could produce the miracle in question. Dr. Hales.

24. — in the morning watch] The Hebrews, as well as the Romans, divided the night into four parts, or watches, of about three hours each ; so called, because at the beginning of each part, the guard of soldiers, who kept watch, was changed. The morning watch was the last of them, immediately before sunrise. Bp. Patrick.

— the Lord looked] Or, frowned upon them. Dr. Hales. The Lord, who had seemed all this while to wink at the enterprises of the Egyptians, began, according to our apprehension, to take notice of this their pursuit, &c. Bp. Hall.

25. — took off their chariot wheels,] It is probable, that, when the Egyptians were thus troubled and disordered, they did not follow the regular way of those whom they pursued, but got among the rocks, and mud, and those other impediments, with which the Red sea particularly abounds. These brake their wheels, and disabled their chariots, so that they made little way. Bryant.

27. — the Egyptians fled against it ;] Against the sea, as it was returning to its strength ; that is, to its former place and situation. Dr. Wells. They turned back ; and like men distracted, ran and met the waters, which rushed upon them with a mighty force, and overwhelmed them. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

over the sea, and the sea returned to his strength when the morning appeared ; and the Egyptians fled against it ; and the LORD † overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea. † Heb. shook off.

28 And the waters returned, and covered the chariots, and the horsemen, and all the host of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them ; there remained not so much as † one of them. † Psal. 106. 11.

29 But the children of Israel walked upon dry land in the midst of the sea ; and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

30 Thus the LORD saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians ; and Israel saw the Egyptians dead upon the sea shore.

31 And Israel saw that great † work † which the LORD did upon the Egyptians : and the people feared the LORD, and believed the LORD, and his servant Moses. † Heb. hand.

Wicked men make equal haste both to sin, and from judgment. But they shall one day find, that it is not more easy to run into sin, than impossible to run away from judgment. Bp. Hall.

28. And the waters returned, &c.] Thus the Egyptians died by the same means, by which they had caused the poor Israelitish infants to die : that law of retaliation, which God will not allow to us, because we are fellow creatures, He justly practiseth in us. God would have us read our sins in our judgments, that we might both repent of our sins, and give glory to His justice. Bp. Hall.

31. — the people feared the Lord,] They considered the powerful hand of God, which appeared in this great work ; and this begat in them for the present high and awful thoughts of Him, and devout affections towards Him. And so they “ believed the Lord ; ” that is, they believed the promises which He had made to them ; and had faith in Moses, as His true prophet and “ servant.” Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

The fame of this deliverance was spread abroad among the heathen, as we read in several places of Holy Scripture, and in other authors. And the application, which St. Paul and the Fathers of our Church have made of it, shows, that they understood it to be a type of our Christian baptism, and consequently of our resurrection and immortal life in the kingdom of God. (See 1 Cor. x. 2, and the first prayer in the Ministration of Baptism.) And this is the reason why the chapter, which contains the narrative of this signal deliverance, is appointed to be read in the churches on the festival of our Lord's Resurrection. It contains in it the mysteries of our resurrection to a state of grace here, and of our passage through the grave to the glorious inheritance of our heavenly Canaan.

This consideration ought to fill our hearts with the praises of God, and a thankful remembrance of all His benefits. Did Israel praise Him for their deliverance out of Egypt, and is He not much more to be magnified and exalted for rescuing us from the slavery of sin and Satan, into the glorious liberty of the children of God ? Were they so sensible of the happiness of their escape from those, who could only kill the body, and shall we not celebrate Him, who hath redeemed us from such enemies, as would ruin us, soul and body, to all eternity ? They escaped the Egyptians and the sea : we are ransomed from death and hell. They were under the ministry of Moses : we are under the conduct and protection of the Son of God. “ Christ our passover is sacrificed for us : therefore let us keep the feast,” 1 Cor. v. 7, 8. It is by 1491.

Before
CHRIST

CHAP. XV.

* Wisdom
10. 20.

1 Moses' song. 22 The people want water. 23 The waters at Marah are bitter. 25 A tree sweeteneth them. 27 At Elim are twelve wells, and seventy palm trees.

THEN sang ^a Moses and the children of Israel this song unto the LORD, and spake, saying, I will sing unto the LORD, for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

2 The LORD is my strength and song, and he is become my salvation: he is my God, and I will prepare him an habitation; my father's God, and I will exalt him.

3 The LORD is a man of war: the LORD is his name.

4 Pharaoh's chariots and his host hath he cast into the sea: his chosen captains also are drowned in the Red sea.

5 The depths have covered them: they sank into the bottom as a stone.

6 Thy right hand, O LORD, is become glorious in power: thy right hand, O LORD, hath dashed in pieces the enemy.

7 And in the greatness of thine excellency thou hast overthrown them that rose up against thee: thou sentest forth thy wrath, which consumed them as stubble.

8 And with the blast of thy nostrils the waters were gathered together, the floods stood upright as an heap, and the depths were congealed in the heart of the sea.

9 The enemy said, I will pursue, I will overtake, I will divide the spoil; my lust shall be satisfied upon them; I will draw my sword, my hand shall || destroy them.

10 Thou didst blow with thy wind, the sea covered them: they sank as lead in the mighty waters.

11 Who is like unto thee, O LORD, among the || gods? who is like thee, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders? || Or, mighty ones.

12 Thou stretchedst out thy right hand, the earth swallowed them.

13 Thou in thy mercy hast led forth the people which thou hast redeemed: thou hast guided them in thy strength unto thy holy habitation.

14 ^b The people shall hear, and be afraid: sorrow shall take hold on the inhabitants of Palestina. ^b Deut. 2. 25. Or, Josh. 2. 9.

15 Then the dukes of Edom shall be amazed; the mighty men of Moab, trembling shall take hold upon them; all the inhabitants of Canaan shall melt away.

16 ^c Fear and dread shall fall upon them; by the greatness of thine arm they shall be as still as a stone; till thy people pass over, O LORD, till the people pass over, which thou hast purchased. ^c Deut. 2. 25. Josh. 2. 9.

17 Thou shalt bring them in, and plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance, in the place, O LORD, which thou hast made for thee to dwell in, in the Sanctuary, O LORD, which thy hands have established.

18 The LORD shall reign for ever and ever.

virtue of the blood of this "Lamb, without blemish and without spot," that we are protected from the sword of the destroying angel. It is He that hath made a way through the sea, and a path through the deep waters of this mortal state, and turned our grave into a door of hope, an entrance to that heavenly kingdom, which He hath opened to all believers. Reading.

Chap. XV. ver. 1. Then sang Moses &c.] On this memorable deliverance Moses composed a thanksgiving, which he and the Israelites sang unto the Lord. It is also a sublime prophecy, foretelling the powerful effect of this tremendous judgment on the neighbouring nations of Edom, Moab, Palestine, and Canaan; the future settlement of the Israelites in the promised land; and the erection of the temple and sanctuary on mount Zion; and the perpetuity of the dominion and worship of God. Dr. Hales.

The most ancient of all poems, now extant, at least of those, the age of which has been ascertained, is this thanksgiving ode of Moses after the passage of the Red sea: it is at the same time most perfect in its kind. It shows the early connection which subsisted between poetry and religion: and is an example of that species of poetical composition, which the Hebrews cultivated more than all other sorts, and in which they particularly excelled; namely, the rendering of publick thanks in songs of triumph to God, for prosperity in their enterprises and for success in war. Bp. Lenth.

2. — I will prepare him an habitation;] I will build Him a tabernacle. Dr. Hales. Meaning, I foresee by that spirit of prophecy, which He has given me, that He shall have a tabernacle reared up for Him by His people. Bp. Hall. Let this mighty

God and Defender be the object of our constant adoration, in attending upon the stated place of His publick worship. Pyle.

3. — a man of war:] A noble warrior. Bp. Hall. He gets great victories. Bp. Patrick.

— the Lord is his name.] Rather, "JEHOVAH is His name." It is hereby meant, that He hath performed that which this name imports; namely, He hath caused that to be, which He promised should come to pass. Locke. See the notes on chap. vi. 3.

6. — right hand,] This word is frequently used to express the height of power, exerted in the preservation of good men, or the destruction of the bad. Bp. Patrick. The right hand being the instrument, by which a man effects what he has in his power, hence it is attributed to God, when His power is celebrated. Bp. Kidder. See the note on Gen. vi. 6.

11. — among the gods?] Among those that are called gods in heaven and in earth, 1 Cor. viii. 5. Dr. Wells. Or, "the mighty ones," as in the margin. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

— fearful in praises,] Who shouldst be praised with fear and reverence: who canst never sufficiently be praised. Bp. Patrick.

13. — unto thy holy habitation.] Towards thy holy settlement. Dr. Hales. The country, where God Himself, speaking after the manner of men, intended to have a settlement. Bp. Patrick.

14. — Palestina.] The whole of the promised land appears to have been called Palestine at this time; probably from "Palisthan," signifying "Shepherd land" in the Sanscrit language, which is a dialect of the ancient Syriack. Dr. Hales.

17. — mountain of thine inheritance,] Mount Moriah, or Sion; where Moses seems to have foreseen, by the spirit of prophecy,

Before
CHRIST
1491.

|| Or,
repossess.

|| Or,
mighty ones.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

19 For the horse of Pharaoh went in with his chariots and with his horsemen into the sea, and the LORD brought again the waters of the sea upon them; but the children of Israel went on dry land in the midst of the sea.

20 ¶ And Miriam the prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took a timbrel in her hand; and all the women went out after her with timbrels and with dances.

21 And Miriam answered them, Sing ye to the LORD, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

that God would fix His habitation. Bp. Patrick. The sanctuary being certainly to be built, when God should command, is spoken of as already completed. Bp. Kidder.

20. — Miriam the prophetess.] So called from having the gift of composing hymns in praise of the Divine Majesty; or from having received some revelation from God for the direction of His people. Dr. Wells, Bp. Patrick.

— took a timbrel in her hand;] So the manner was in after-times, when they prophesied, 1 Sam. x. 5, 6; 2 Kings iii. 15; and when they sang hymns, Psal. xxxiii. 2; lvii. 7, 8; and upon any occasion of great rejoicing, Judg. xi. 34; 1 Sam. xviii. 6. Hence we may learn how ancient musick was in the service of God: this way of praising Him being practised before the institution of the Mosaic Law. Bp. Patrick. The timbrel or tabret was a drum, with bells appended to it, carried in the hand and beat with the fingers. It is still used in Syria; and has of late become popular among ourselves in the tambourine. Fragments to Calmet.

— and with dances.] The Eastern dances are extemporaneous, if I may be indulged in the expression, as well as their songs. The great lady leads the dance, and is followed by a troop of young girls, who imitate her steps, and, if she sings, make up the chorus. The steps are varied according to the pleasure of her who leads, but always in exact time. This may give us a different apprehension, from what we should otherwise form, of the description of Miriam. Harmer.

21. — Miriam answered them,] Miriam and the women answered Moses and the people verse by verse: or after every verse sung by Moses and the men, Miriam and the women interposed and repeated this verse in the way of chorus. Bp. Patrick.

— Sing ye to the Lord,] Or rather, "Let us sing unto the Lord, &c." thus repeating the burden of Moses's thanksgiving, according to the reading of the ancient versions, in the first person plural, "Let us &c." which is most suitable to the occasion. Dr. Hales. If gratitude is due from man to man, how much more from man to his Maker! If gratitude, when exerted towards one another, naturally produces a very pleasing sensation in the mind of a grateful man; it exalts the soul into rapture, when it is employed on this great object of gratitude, on this beneficent Being, who has given us every thing we already possess, and from whom we expect every thing we yet hope for. Most of the works of the pagan poets were either direct hymns to their deities, or tended indirectly to the celebration of their respective attributes and perfections, though with a mixture of much impertinence and absurdity. The Jews, who before the time of Christianity were the only people who had the knowledge of the true God, have set the Christian world an example how they ought to employ this Divine talent of which I am speaking. As that nation produced men of great genius, without considering them as inspired writers, they have transmitted to us many hymns and Divine odes, which excel those that are delivered down to us by the ancient Greeks and Romans in the poetry, as much as in the subject to which it was consecrated. Addison.

22. — wilderness of Shur;] Or of Etham, Numb. xxxiii. 8. Shur was a part of Etham. Bp. Patrick.

The great sandy desert of Shur, which divides Egypt from Pa-

22 So Moses brought Israel from the Red sea, and they went out into the wilderness of Shur; and they went three days in the wilderness, and found no water.

23 ¶ And when they came to Marah, they could not drink of the waters of Marah, for they were bitter: therefore the name of it was called || Marah.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

|| That is,
bitterness.

24 And the people murmured against Moses, saying, What shall we drink?

25 And he cried unto the LORD; and the LORD shewed him a ^d tree, which when he had cast into the waters, the waters

^d Eccl^{sa}
38. 5.

lestine, stretching from the Mediterranean sea to the head of the Red sea, at both sides of the latter assumes the name of "Etham." Thus the third station of the Israelites is called "Etham, in the edge of the wilderness," Exod. xiii. 20. And after passing the Red sea, they entered "the wilderness of Shur," Exod. xv. 22. But near their landing-place on the eastern coast, Niebuhr marks a mountain to the northeast, called "Etti," evidently from "Etham."

This mountain forms the southern termination of the great ridge of mountains, now called "Jebel Te," which runs in a northeasterly direction, stretching along the eastern coast of the Dead sea, or Asphaltick lake, towards the head of the Elanitic, or eastern gulph of the Red sea: forming the western boundary of Arabia Petrea, and called in Scripture indiscriminately mount "Hor," and mount "Seir," because it was conquered from the original inhabitants, "the Horites," Gen. xiv. 6; by Esau and his family, Gen. xxxvi. 20, 21; whose eldest son was "Seir." Dr. Hales.

23. — called Marah.] Afterwards so called from the bitterness or brackishness of its waters. Bp. Patrick. Most travellers attest, that there are several fountains of bitter water not far from the Red sea. Stockhouse. In a space of 315 miles over part of this wilderness, Mr. Irwin found only four springs of water. In another space of 115 miles he found only two springs, at one of which the water was brackish, and at the other unwholesome. Harmer. We may probably fix the Marah of Scripture at Coron-del: there is a small rill of water, which, unless it be diluted by the dews and rains, still continues to be brackish. Dr. Shaw.

24. — the people murmured against Moses,] It is the hard condition of authority, that when the people fare well, they applaud themselves; when ill, they repine against their governors. Who can hope to be free, if Moses escape not? Never any prince so merited of a people. He exposed himself to the assaults of Pharaoh's tyranny: he brought them from a bondage worse than death: his rod divided the sea, and gave life to them, death to their pursuers. Who would not have thought these men so indebted to Moses, that no death could have opened their mouths, or raised their hands against him? Yet now the first occasion of want makes them rebel. No benefit can stop the mouth of impatience: if our present desire be not gratified, former favours are either forgotten or despised. But no marvel if we deal so with men, when God receives the same measure from us. One year of famine, one summer of pestilence, one month of unseasonable weather, makes us overlook all the blessings of God, and murmur more at the sense of our evil, than praise him for our varieties of good. He makes an ill use of God's mercies, who hath not learned to be content with His corrections. Bp. Hall.

25. And he cried unto the Lord;] Moses took that course which the Israelites should have done, and did not. They cried not more frequently to him, than he to God. He knew to whom to look for redress of all complaints: even to Him, who alone can give us comfort in affliction, who alone can make the bitter waters sweet. Bp. Hall.

— and the Lord shewed him a tree,] It is a question, whether these bitter waters were sweetened by the miraculous power

Before
CHRIST
1491.

were made sweet: there he made for them a statute and an ordinance, and there he proved them,

26 And said, If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, I will put none of these diseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians: for I am the LORD that healeth thee.

* Numb.
23. 9.

27 ¶ And they came to Elim, where were twelve wells of water, and threescore and ten palm trees: and they encamped there by the waters.

CHAP. XVI.

1 The Israelites come to Sin. 2 They murmur for want of God, or by the natural property of the tree, to which God directed Moses. Most probably it is to be attributed to the former. Stackhouse. Niebuhr, when upon the spot, where this miracle was performed, inquired after wood capable of producing such an effect; but could gain no information of any. The water of these parts continues so bad to this day, and is so much in want of improvement, that had the discovery of a wood, possessing such a corrective quality, been communicated to Moses, it could hardly have been lost. Calmel's Dictionary. The Arabs call a shrub or tree, not unlike our hawthorn, either in form or flower, by the name of "El-vah." It was with this wood, they say, Moses sweetened the waters of Marah. Bruce.

The hand of faith never knocked at heaven in vain: no sooner hath Moses showed his grievance, than God shows him the remedy: yet an unlikely one, that it might be miraculous. He that made the waters, could have given them any savour: the same hand that created them, might have immediately changed them. But Almighty Power still works by means: and the glory of Omnipotency is manifested by the improbability of the means which He employs. Elisha with salt, Moses with wood, shall sweeten the bitter waters. Let no man despise the means, when he knows the Author. Bp. Hall.

— there he made for them a statute &c.] This seems to signify, that for their better government God now gave them a few rules to be observed for the present, till He should more fully declare His will at mount Sinai; and "proved them," or began to make trial of their obedience, whether they would observe these laws or not. Bp. Patrick.

The passage should rather be translated, "he made for him a statute and an ordinance;" which agrees also with the 26th verse, "If thou wilt diligently hearken &c." We meet in the Scriptures with many instances of God's appointing persons, who applied to Him for favours, to do some act as a proof of their submission and obedience. Jacob was ordered to use peeled rods, Gen. xxx; Naaman to wash in the river Jordan, 2 Kings v. And in Exod. xvi, the Israelites were proved in this manner: they were ordered to gather of the manna a certain rate every day, that God might "prove them, whether they would walk in His law or no." Thus was Moses here proved: he was ordered to put a bough into the water; a thing in its lf insignificant; but by doing it he testified his readiness to observe any injunction, which God should think fit to give him. Shuckford.

27. — they came to Elim.] In remarking the several stations of the Israelites from the Red sea to mount Sinai, we must observe that Moses does not set down every place where they encamped, as in Numb. xxxiii, but only those where something remarkable occurred. Elim, where they now encamped, was esteemed a pleasant and fruitful place, at least in comparison of the desert and barren parts about it. Dr. Wells, Stackhouse. Trees in the of bread. 4 God promiseth them bread from heaven. Before 11 Quails are sent, 14 and manna. 16 The ordering CHRIST of manna. 25 It was not to be found on the sabbath. 1491.

32 An omer of it is preserved.

AND they took their journey from Elim, and all the congregation of the children of Israel came unto the wilderness of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month after their departing out of the land of Egypt.

2 And the whole congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness:

3 And the children of Israel said unto them, Would to God we had died by the hand of the LORD in the land of Egypt, desert are a very extraordinary sight: we met with only five as we passed through it, in seven days and a half; these were situated near wells. Plaisied's Journey to Aleppo.

— twelve wells] I saw no more than nine of the twelve wells that are mentioned by Moses; the other three being filled up by those drifts of sand which are common in Arabia. Yet this loss is amply made up by the great increase of the palm trees; the seventy having propagated themselves into more than two thousand. Under the shade of these trees is the Hummum Mousa, the Bath of Moses, which the inhabitants of Tor have in extraordinary esteem and veneration; acquainting us that it was here that Moses himself and his particular household encamped. Dr. Shaw.

— palm trees:] The palm, says Plutarch, loves water; and Pliny says, it loves to drink through the whole year. The Son of Sirach says, "I was exalted like a palm tree in Engaddi," Eccles. xxiv. 14, which was a very watery spot, and therefore fit for gardens. Script. illust.

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. — on the fifteenth day &c.] Just a month from their first setting out from Ramèses. It seems, therefore, they stayed some time at Elim, where was plenty of water and shade. Bp. Patrick.

2. — whole congregation] Including the elders with the rest; at chap. xv. 24, "the people" only are mentioned. Bp. Patrick. Had we been left ignorant of the corruption of human nature, the conduct of the Israelites, during the long course of their history, would have been inexplicable, if not incredible. Bp. Tomline.

The other meeting was of some few malecontents, perhaps those strangers, who sought their own protection under the wing of Israel; this was of the whole troop. Not that none were free: Caleb, Joshua, Moses, Aaron, Miriam were not yet tainted. Usually God measures the state of any church or country by the most; the greater part carries both the name and the censure. Sins are so much greater, as they are more universal; so far is evil from being extenuated by the multitude of the guilty, that nothing can more aggravate. With men, commonness may plead for favour; with God, it pleads for judgment. The leprosy of the whole body is more loathsome than that of a part. Bp. Hall.

3. — Would to God we had died by the hand of the Lord] And by whose hand would they die, if they perished by famine? God carried them forth; God restrained His creatures from them; and while they are ready to die thus, they cry, "O that we had died by the hand of the Lord!" It is the folly of men, that in immediate judgments they can see God's hand, not in those, whose second causes are sensible; whereas God holds Himself equally interested in all, challenging that there is no evil in the city, but from Him. See Amos iii. 6. It is but one hand, and many instruments,

Before
CHRIST
1491.

when we sat by the flesh pots, and when we did eat bread to the full; for ye have brought us forth into this wilderness, to kill this whole assembly with hunger.

† Heb.
the portion of a day in his day.

4 ¶ Then said the LORD unto Moses, Behold, I will rain bread from heaven for you; and the people shall go out and gather † a certain rate every day, that I may prove them, whether they will walk in my law, or no.

5 And it shall come to pass, that on the sixth day they shall prepare that which they bring in; and it shall be twice as much as they gather daily.

6 And Moses and Aaron said unto all the children of Israel, At even, then ye shall know that the LORD hath brought you out from the land of Egypt:

7 And in the morning, then ye shall see the glory of the LORD; for that he heareth your murmurings against the LORD: and what are we, that ye murmur against us?

8 And Moses said, This shall be, when the LORD shall give you in the evening flesh to eat, and in the morning bread to the full; for that the LORD heareth your murmurings which ye murmur against him: and what are we? your murmurings are not against us, but against the LORD.

9 ¶ And Moses spake unto Aaron, Say unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, Come near before the LORD: for he hath heard your murmurings.

10 And it came to pass, as Aaron spake unto the whole congregation of the children of Israel, that they looked toward the wilderness, and, behold, the glory of the LORD ^a appeared in the cloud.

11 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel: Speak unto them, saying, At even ye shall eat flesh, and in the morning ye shall be filled with bread; and ye shall know that I am the LORD your God.

13 And it came to pass, that at even ^b the quails came up, and covered the camp: and in the morning the dew lay round about the host.

14 And when ^c the dew that lay was

Before
CHRIST
1491.

^a Chap. 15.
21.

^b Numb.
11. 31.

^c Numb.

11. 7.

Psal. 78.

24.

Wisd. 16.

20.

that God strikes us with. It is our want of faith, that in visible means we "see" not "Him that is invisible." Bp. Hall.

— when we sat by the flesh pots, &c.] It is not probable that they had plenty of food and "bread to the full," when they were slaves, and under cruel hardships; but they untruly magnify their former condition, that they might represent the present to be more miserable than it really was. Bp. Patrick.

4. — I will rain bread from heaven &c.] The Scripture gives to manna the name of "angels' food," and "bread from heaven;" whether it would insinuate to us, that the angels sent and prepared this food, or that angels themselves, if they had need of food, could not have any more agreeable than manna, Ps. lxxviii. 25; John vi. 31. At this very day manna falls in several places: in Arabia, in Poland, in Calabria, in mount Libanus, and elsewhere. The most common and the most famous is that of Arabia, which is a kind of condensed honey, found in the summer time on the leaves of trees, on herbs, on the rocks, or the sand of Arabia Petrea. It is of the same figure as Moses describes. Several modern writers think, that the manna of the Israelites was like that now found in Arabia; and that the miracle did not consist in producing a new substance, but in the exact and constant manner, in which it was dispensed by Providence, and in the quantity of it that fell daily, for so long a time. It certainly had miraculous qualities not found in common manna, and which probably subsisted only while the Israelites were fed with it. Calmet.

— a certain rate every day.] This bread was given to them day by day, to signify to them and to us our dependence upon God every day of our life. "Give us this day our daily bread." Bp. Wilson.

He that gave an omer to each, could have given an ephah; as easily could He have rained down enough for a month, or a year, at once, as for a day. God delights to have us live in a continual dependence upon His providence, and each day renew the acts of our faith and thankfulness. Bp. Hall.

— that I may prove them.] Try whether they will be obedient to My commands, when I let them want nothing to support and encourage them in My service. Not as if God was ignorant, but that He might make it appear plainly to themselves and others what they were. Bp. Patrick.

7. — what are we,] We, Moses and Aaron, are merely His instruments and agents; and therefore your murmurings against us are in effect against Him. Dr. Wells.

8. — your murmurings are not against us,] Not only against us, which would have been a smaller offence, but against the Lord. It is the manner of the Scripture phrase to express by a negative that which is of inferior moment and consideration, Matt. ix. 13; xii. 7; 1 Sam. viii. 7; John xii. 44. Bp. Kidder.

Temporal blessings are no certain signs of God's favour. He grants the manna and the quails to the Israelites, in answer, not to their prayers, but to their murmurings. 'Tis true, they stood in need of daily food, but they wanted faith and patience more. This righteousness they neither hungered nor thirsted after. Wherefore though God sent them meat enough for their bodies, yet, as the Psalmist speaks, "He sent leanness withal into their souls:" that is, He withheld His grace, because not asked for, nor desired. Thus worldly-minded men have often their wish granted, but not "for their wealth." What they count their blessing is often their curse, and a real misfortune. But if we "seek first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness," as our Lord advises us to do, Matt. vi. 33, or make wisdom our choice, as Solomon did, all other necessities shall be added unto us. But if we give the preference to worldly things, the things of heaven and real goods shall be taken away. How foolish then is such a choice! how unprofitable the gain! Wogan.

13. — quails] God gave quails to His people twice: once, on this occasion, a short time after they had passed the Red sea; and a second time, at the encampment called Kibroth-hattaavah, or the graves of lust, Numb. xi. 31—34; Ps. cv. 40. Both of these happened in the spring, when the quails pass from Asia into Europe. Then they are found in great quantities on the coasts of the Red sea and the Mediterranean. God by a wind drove them within and about the camp of Israel; and in this the miracle consists, that they were brought so seasonably to the place, and in so great numbers, as to suffice two or three millions of persons longer than a month. Some persons think locusts to have been here intended; but the other sense is that of the Oriental interpreters in general, of the Greek translators, and of Josephus. Calmet. See note on Numb. xi. 32. The quail of the desert, according to

Before
CHRIST
1491.

Or,
What is it? or, It is a portion.
John 6.
1.

1 Cor. 10. 3.

† Heb.
by the poll,
or, head.
† Heb. souls.

2 Cor. 8.
15.

gone up, behold, upon the face of the wilderness there lay a small round thing, as small as the hoar frost on the ground.

15 And when the children of Israel saw it, they said one to another, || It is manna: for they wist not what it was. And Moses said unto them, ^d This is the bread which the LORD hath given you to eat.

16 ¶ This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded, Gather of it every man according to his eating, an omer † for every man, according to the number of your † persons; take ye every man for them which are in his tents.

17 And the children of Israel did so, and gathered, some more, some less.

18 And when they did mete it with an omer, ^e he that gathered much had nothing over, and he that gathered little had no lack; they gathered every man according to his eating.

19 And Moses said, Let no man leave of it till the morning.

20 Notwithstanding they hearkened not unto Moses; but some of them left of it until the morning, and it bred worms, and stank: and Moses was wroth with them.

21 And they gathered it every morning, every man according to his eating: and when the sun waxed hot, it melted.

22 ¶ And it came to pass, that on the sixth day they gathered twice as much bread, two omers for one man: and all the rulers of the congregation came and told Moses.

23 And he said unto them, This is that which the LORD hath said, To morrow is the rest of the holy sabbath unto the LORD: bake that which ye will bake to day, and seethe that ye will seethe; and that which remaineth over lay up for you to be kept until the morning. Before

CHRIST
1491.

24 And they laid it up till the morning, as Moses bade: and it did not stink, neither was there any worm therein.

25 And Moses said, Eat that to day; for to day is a sabbath unto the LORD: to day ye shall not find it in the field.

26 Six days ye shall gather it; but on the seventh day, which is the sabbath, in it there shall be none.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, that there went out some of the people on the seventh day for to gather, and they found none.

28 And the LORD said unto Moses, How long refuse ye to keep my commandments and my laws?

29 See, for that the LORD hath given you the sabbath, therefore he giveth you on the sixth day the bread of two days; abide ye every man in his place, let no man go out of his place on the seventh day.

30 So the people rested on the seventh day.

31 And the house of Israel called the name thereof Manna: and it was like coriander seed, white; and the taste of it was like wafers made with honey.

32 ¶ And Moses said, This is the thing which the LORD commandeth, Fill an omer of it to be kept for your generations; that they may see the bread wherewith I have fed you in the wilderness, when I brought you forth from the land of Egypt.

33 And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a pot, and put an omer full of manna therein, and lay it up before the LORD, to be kept for your generations.

34 As the LORD commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up before the Testimony, to be kept.

Hasselquist, very much resembles the red partridge, but is not larger than the turtledove. The Arabs bring many thousands of them to sell at Jerusalem about Whitsuntide. Dr. Hales.

14. — small as the hoar frost] Like a drop of dew frozen on the ground, very small, and at the same time white in colour. Bp. Patrick.

15. — It is manna:] The meaning of this word is uncertain. A great number of ancient and modern expositors understand the Hebrew word to signify "What is this?" to which the following words, "they wist not what it was," seem to refer the meaning. Others think it may be better expounded, "It is a gift or portion," as being sent from God. Others maintain that the Hebrews well knew what manna was, and said one to another, "This is manna." Bp. Patrick, Calmet.

16. — an omer] Something less than half a peck of our measure.

23. — the rest of the holy sabbath unto the Lord:] To keep up the memory of His being the Creator of the world, and to engage mankind solemnly to acknowledge and worship Him as such, God, having on the seventh day "rested" or ceased from the work of creation, blessed that day and hallowed it. Accordingly "the sabbath" continued to be observed so long as any sense of true religion remained on the earth. But as wickedness increased in the world, and the true worship of God was corrupted by an almost universal idolatry, so the solemn day of His worship was neglected likewise. And though it may have been revived after the flood, and continued in some part of Abraham's family, yet in their Egyptian slavery the observation of it appears to have been interrupted. On the present occasion God renewed the commandment to the Israelites; designing this particular day to be kept by them, in memory of their final deliverance out of Egyptian slavery, and of their being miraculously fed with manna in the wilderness. For which reason He required them to observe a strict "rest" on that day; that they might keep up the memory of their hard labours in Egypt, where they were not suffered to rest on the sabbath day; and be the more engaged to serve God, who had so wonderfully delivered them from that wretched state. Abp. Wake.

34. — before the Testimony.] Before the Lord, in the foregoing verse: for the Divine glory dwelt between the Cherubim, which were over the ark, elsewhere called "the ark of the testimony," chap. xxx. 6, but here simply "the testimony." It is called "the 1491.

Before
CHRIST

^c Josh. 5.

12.

Neh. 9. 15.

35 And the children of Israel did eat manna forty years, ^f until they came to a land inhabited; they did eat manna, until they came unto the borders of the land of Canaan.

36 Now an omer is the tenth part of an ephah.

CHAP. XVII.

1 The people murmur for water at Rephidim. 5 God sendeth him for water to the rock in Horeb. 8 Amalek is overcome by the holding up of Moses' hands. 15 Moses buildeth the altar JEHOVAH-nissi.

AND all the congregation of the children of Israel journeyed from the wilderness of Sin, after their journeys, according to the commandment of the LORD, and pitched in Rephidim: and there was no water for the people to drink.

^a Numb.
20. 4.

2 Wherefore ^a the people did chide with testimony," partly because God there gave them a special token of His dwelling among them; and partly because the two tables of stone, called "the testimony," chap. xxv. 21, were in the ark. Bp. Patrick.

35. — did eat manna forty years,] Within a month, which was wanting to complete forty years. The manna began to fall just thirty days after they left Egypt, and ceased the day after the passover which they kept in the fortieth year, Josh. v. 11, 12. Bp. Patrick. The manna was truly miraculous on the following accounts: 1. It fell but six days in the week. 2. It fell in such a prodigious quantity, that it sustained almost three millions of souls. 3. There fell a double quantity every sixth day, to serve them for the sabbath. 4. What was gathered on the first five days, stunk and bred worms, if kept above one day; but what was gathered on the sixth day, remained sweet for two days. Lastly, it continued falling while the Israelites abode in the wilderness, but ceased as soon as they left it, and could procure corn to eat in the land of Canaan. Stackhouse.

Chap. XVII. ver. 1. — from the wilderness of Sin, &c.] Between "the wilderness of Sin" and Rephidim, they made two short halts, not mentioned here; one at Dophkah, the other at Alush. It may be here hinted once for all, that these and the other names of places, where they made their encampments in the wilderness, are generally names given by them to the places where they stopped; and that the places were not called by any particular names, except by the Israelites on account of their encamping at them. Shuckford. The name of a place does not imply a town or habitations, &c. at that place. Fragments to Calmet.

— there was no water] Before, Israel thirsted and were satisfied; after that, they hungered and were filled; now they thirst again. God constantly withholds something from us, because He would keep us still in exercise. We should forget by whose bounty we live, if we wanted nothing. Still God observes a vicissitude of evil and good; and the same evils, that we have passed, often return upon us in their order.

It was at "the commandment of the Lord" that they pitched in Rephidim, who could as well have conducted them to another Elim, to "palm trees and wells of water." This consideration should have allayed their discontent. There can be no more forcible motive to patience, than the acknowledgment of a Divine hand that strikes us. It is fearful to be in the hand of an adversary; but who would not be confident of a Father? Bp. Hall.

2. — Moses said unto them, &c.] The answer of Moses is like himself, mild and gentle: "Why contend you with me? Why tempt ye the Lord?" In the first expostulation he condemns Moses, and said, Give us water that we may drink. And Moses said unto them, Why chide ye with me? wherefore do ye tempt the LORD?

Before
CHRIST
1491.

3 And the people thirsted there for water; and the people murmured against Moses, and said, Wherefore is this that thou hast brought us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children and our cattle with thirst?

4 And Moses cried unto the LORD, saying, What shall I do unto this people? they be almost ready to stone me.

5 And the LORD said unto Moses, Go on before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel; and thy rod, where-with ^b thou smotest the river, take in thine hand, and go.

^b Chap. 7.

20.

^c Numb.

20. 9.

Psal. 78.

15. & 105.

41.

Wisd. 11. 4.

1 Cor. 10. 4.

6 ^c Behold, I will stand before thee there upon the rock in Horeb; and thou shalt them of injustice, since not he, but the Lord, had afflicted them: in the second, of presumption; that since it was God, who tempted them by want, they should tempt Him by murmuring. — In the one he would have them see their wrong; in the other their danger. As the act came not from him, but from God, so he transfers it to God from himself: "Why tempt ye the Lord?" The opposition which is made to the instruments of God redounds ever to His person. He holds Himself smitten through the sides of His ministers. Bp. Hall.

3. — Wherefore is this that thou hast brought us up &c.] How necessary is it to preserve in our minds the remembrance of God and of His benefits! Had this people done so, they could not have fallen a third time into such discontent, as made them speak reproachfully of their deliverer, and slight the wonderful deliverance, which God had lately vouchsafed them, from a state of cruel and severe bondage. Bp. Patrick.

4. And Moses cried unto the Lord, &c.] There is no expostulating with an unreasonable multitude. Moses has recourse to Him, who was able at once to quench their thirst and to curb their fury. It is the best way to trust God with His own causes. If we be sure we have begun our enterprises from Him, we may securely cast all events on His providence, which knows how to dispose, and how to end them. Bp. Hall.

5. — thy rod, wherewith thou smotest the river,] This circumstance is added to strengthen the faith of Moses, that he might well expect this fresh wonder from the rod, which he had before proved to be miraculous. Nothing more raises up the heart in present affiance, than the recollection of favours or wonders passed. Bp. Hall.

6. — I will stand before thee] The pillar of cloud, the sign of My presence among you, shall stand upon the rock. Bp. Kidder.

— Horeb;] This famous mountain is called indiscriminately in Scripture, Horeb and Sinai. The former seems to be the general name of the whole mountain, signifying "a desert:" the latter appropriated to its highest summit. Thus the rock at Rephidim is called "the rock in Horeb." And the law was given "in Horeb," Deut. v. 2; but from "mount Sinai," Exod. xix. 18, 23. Sinai is derived from Sene, "a bush," Exod. iii. 2; or a bramble bush. Dr. Hales. See the note on chap. xix. 3.

— thou shalt smite the rock,] The Arabs shew a rock of red granite stone on the foot of mount Serich, discoloured, as if by the running of water, and with a sort of openings, or mouths, which appear not to be the work of a tool. They suppose this to be the rock here spoken of; and they call it the stone of Moses. Bp. Pococke. It lies tottering, as it were, and loose in the middle of the valley; and seems formerly to have belonged to mount Sinai,

Before
CHRIST
1491.

smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, that the people may drink. And Moses did so in the sight of the elders of Israel.

|| That is,
Tentation.
|| That is,
Chiding, or,
Strife.

7 And he called the name of the place || Massah, and || Meribah, because of the chiding of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the Lord, saying, Is the Lord among us, or not?

* Deut. 25.
17.
Wisd. 11.3.

8 ¶ Then came Amalek, and fought with Israel in Rephidim.

* Called
Jesus,
Acts 7. 45.

9 And Moses said unto ^c Joshua, Choose us out men, and go out, fight with Amalek: to morrow I will stand on the top of the hill with the rod of God in mine hand.

10 So Joshua did as Moses had said to him, and fought with Amalek: and Moses, Aaron, and Hur went up to the top of the hill.

11 And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand, that Israel prevailed: and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed.

which hangs in a variety of precipices all over this plain. Dr. Shaw.

— there shall come water out of it.] It may throw some light on this book, as well as contribute to our general admiration of Scripture, if we observe that the events recorded to have happened under the old dispensation are often strikingly prefigurative of those which occur under the new: and that the temporal circumstances of the Israelites seem designedly to shadow out the spiritual condition of the Christian Church. The connexion is ever obvious; and points out the consistency of the Divine purpose, and the harmony deliberately contrived to subsist between both dispensations. Thus in the servitude of Israel are described the sufferings of the Church. In the deliverance from Egypt is foreshewn its redemption, Luke i. 68—79; and the journey through the wilderness is a lively representation of a Christian's pilgrimage through life, to his inheritance in everlasting bliss. So also, without too minute a discussion it may be observed, that the manna, of which the Israelites did eat, John vi. 33—38; Rev. ii. 17; and the rock of which they drank, 1 Cor. x. 1—4; as well as the brasen serpent by which they were healed, John iii. 14; were severally typical of correspondent particulars, that were to obtain under the Christian establishment: as under the sacrifices and ceremonial service of the Law, of which the institution is recorded in this book, was described the more spiritual worship of the Gospel. Dr. Gray.

8. Then came Amalek, &c.] In their passage out of Egypt, God would not lead the Israelites the nearest way, by the Philistines' land, lest they should repent at the sight of war: now they both see and feel it. He knows how to make the fittest choice of the times of evil; and withholds that one while, which He sends another, not without a just reason, why He sends and withholds it. And though to us they come, ever, as we think, unseasonably, and at some times more unfitly than others, yet He that sends them knows their opportunities. Bp. Hall.

— Amalek,] The Amalekites were descended from the eldest son of Esau, Gen. xxxvi. 12.

9. — Joshua,] He is first noticed on this occasion. Dr. Hales. And seems to have been an eminent person now on their coming out of Egypt. Bp. Patrick.

— Choose us out men,] Moses does not say to Joshua, "Amalek is come up against us; it matters not, whether thou go against him or not; or if thou go, whether alone or with company; or if 12 But Moses' hands were heavy; and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon; and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun.

13 And Joshua discomfited Amalek and his people with the edge of the sword.

14 And the Lord said unto Moses, Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua: for ^f I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven.

15 And Moses built an altar, and called the name of it || JEHOVAH-nissi:

16 For he said, || Because [†] the Lord hath sworn that the Lord will have war with Amalek from generation to generation.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 Jethro bringeth to Moses his wife and two sons. 7 Moses entertaineth him. 13 Jethro's counsel is accepted. 27 Jethro departeth.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

^f Numb.
24. 20.
¹ Sam. 15.3.
|| That is,
the LORD
my banner.
|| Or,
Because the hand of Amalek is against the throne of the LORD,
therefore,
&c.
[†] Heb.
the hand upon the throne of
the LORD.

accompanied, whether with many or few, strong or weak; or if strong men, whether they fight or not; I will pray on the hill;" but he says, "Choose us out men, and go, fight." Then only can we pray with hope, when we have done our best. And though the means cannot effect that, which we desire; yet God will have us use the likeliest means on our part to effect it. In vain shall Moses be on the hill, if Joshua be not in the valley. Prayer without means is a mockery of God. Bp. Hall.

10. — Hur] Josephus says he was the husband of Miriam. Certainly he was a person of wisdom and piety, or he would not have been joined with Moses and Aaron. Bp. Patrick.

11. — when Moses held up his hand, &c.] Not as a standard-bearer, so much as a suppliant, doth Moses lift up his hand: the gesture of the body should both express and further the piety of the soul. And that the Israelites might see the hand of Moses had more efficacy in the fight than all their's, their success rises and falls with it. Wonderful is the power of "the prayer of faith!" All heavenly favours are derived to us through this channel of grace: to it are we beholden for our peace, preservation, and all the rich mercies of God which we enjoy. Bp. Hall.

14. — rehearse it in the ears of Joshua:] That he, who was to be the leader of God's people after Moses, might never enter into any league with the Amalekites. Bp. Patrick.

16. — Because the Lord hath sworn] In the Hebrew the words are, "the hand upon the throne of the Lord:" which is commonly interpreted, "The Lord hath sworn by his throne;" for laying the hand upon the throne was a form of swearing. The marginal translation is very literal, and makes the sense exceeding plain and clear: "Because the hand (of Amalek) is against the throne of the Lord," namely, against God Himself; "therefore the Lord will have war with Amalek from generation to generation." This is easy and natural, and agrees with the whole history. Bp. Patrick. The reason why God denounced a perpetual war against the Amalekites is to be resolved into this: that, knowing the Israelites were preordained by God to be put in possession of the land of Canaan, they came against them with an armed force, in hopes of frustrating the designs of Providence. Moses assigns this reason, "Because the hand of Amalek &c." as in the margin. The injury done to the Israelites was not so great an offence as the affront offered to the Divine Majesty: therefore God threatens utterly to extirpate the designers of it. Stackhouse.

Engraved by Nicholas Poussin.

THE STRIKING OF THE ROCK.

Published by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge, No. 1, St. 1.
London: at 47, w. d.

Engraved by H. W. S.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

^a Chap. 2.
16.

WHEN ^a Jethro, the priest of Midian, Moses' father in law, heard of all that God had done for Moses, and for Israel his people, and that the LORD had brought Israel out of Egypt;

2 Then Jethro, Moses' father in law, took Zipporah, Moses' wife, after he had sent her back,

^b Chap. 2.
22.
|| That is,
a stranger
there.
|| That is,
my God is an help.

3 And her two sons; of which the ^b name of the one was || Gershom; for he said, I have been an alien in a strange land:

4 And the name of the other was || Eliezer; for the God of my father, said he, was mine help, and delivered me from the sword of Pharaoh:

5 And Jethro, Moses' father in law, came with his sons and his wife unto Moses into the wilderness, where he encamped at the mount of God:

6 And he said unto Moses, I thy father in law Jethro am come unto thee, and thy wife, and her two sons with her.

7 ¶ And Moses went out to meet his father in law, and did obeisance, and kissed him; and they asked each other of their [†] welfare; and they came into the tent.

[†] Heb.
peace.

8 And Moses told his father in law all that the LORD had done unto Pharaoh and to the Egyptians for Israel's sake, and all the travail that had [†] come upon them by the way, and how the LORD delivered them.

[†] Heb.
found them.

9 And Jethro rejoiced for all the goodness which the LORD had done to Israel, whom he had delivered out of the hand of the Egyptians.

10 And Jethro said, Blessed be the LORD, who hath delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of Pharaoh, who hath delivered the people from under the hand of the Egyptians.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

11 Now I know that the LORD is greater than all gods: ^c for in the thing wherein they dealt proudly he was above them.

^c Chap. 1.
10, 16, 22.
& 5. 7. &
14. 18.

12 And Jethro, Moses' father in law, took a burnt offering and sacrifices for God: and Aaron came, and all the elders of Israel, to eat bread with Moses' father in law before God.

13 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses sat to judge the people: and the people stood by Moses from the morning unto the evening.

14 And when Moses' father in law saw all that he did to the people, he said, What is this thing that thou doest to the people? Why sittest thou thyself alone, and all the people stand by thee from morning unto even?

15 And Moses said unto his father in law, Because the people come unto me to enquire of God:

16 When they have a matter, they come unto me; and I judge between [†] one and another, and I do make them know the statutes of God, and his laws.

[†] Heb.
a man and his fellow.

17 And Moses' father in law said unto him, The thing that thou doest is not good.

18 [†] Thou wilt surely wear away, both thou, and this people that is with thee: for this thing is too heavy for thee; ^d thou art not able to perform it thyself alone.

[†] Heb.
Fading thou wilt fade.
^e Deut. 1. 9.

19 Hearken now unto my voice, I will give thee counsel, and God shall be with thee: Be thou for the people to Godward, that thou mayest bring the causes unto God:

20 And thou shalt teach them ordinances

Chap. XVIII. ver. 2. — after he had sent her back,] He had probably done so at her desire, when she saw how difficult his enterprise was likely to prove in Egypt. Bp. Patrick. Or perhaps from the inn mentioned chap. iv. 24. Dr. Wells, Bp. Kidder.

5. — mount of God:] Horeb, where the Israelites were now encamped, was not far from Midian: for Moses led Jethro's flock to this mount, chap. iii. 1. Bp. Patrick.

11. Now I know &c.] He knew the true God before; but was now fully convinced, that He alone was the Most High; greater than all whom the world accounts "gods." Bp. Patrick.

12. — took a burnt offering &c.] He did this, to acknowledge himself a worshipper of the only true God, and to return Him thanks for the mercies which He had vouchsafed to the Israelites. Dr. Wells. Thus was fulfilled the prophetick "sign," which the Lord had given to Moses, when He first appeared to him in the burning bush. See chap. iii. 12. The speedy accomplishment therefore of this sign, at the beginning of their journey, was well calculated to strengthen their faith, or reliance on the Divine Protection throughout. Dr. Hales.

— a burnt offering and sacrifices] The Hebrews had probably three sorts of sacrifice, as will hereafter appear: 1st, The burnt offering, which was wholly consumed on the altar without reserve, Lev. i. 2dly, The sacrifice for sin, or sacrifice of expiation, for the purification of a person, who had fallen under an offence against the law, Lev. iv. 3dly, The peace offering, or sacrifice of thanksgiving, by which devout thanks were returned to God for benefits received, Lev. vii. 30. Cabmet. Jethro "took sacrifices;" that is, other sacrifices besides a burnt offering. For no man might eat of the burnt offering, it being entirely offered up: whereas in peace offerings, the priest and people had their share. Bp. Kidder. It may be thought that these offerings were made by Jethro, after the giving of the law at mount Sinai; but that Moses mentions it here, for the purpose of comprising in one view all that belongs to Jethro's story. Bp. Patrick.

19. — Be thou for the people to Godward,] Do thou propound the doubts and demands of the people to God, as also their suits, in thy prayers; and report God's answers back again to them. Bp. Hall. When the people bring any matter to thee, which is too hard for others to determine, do thou, if need be, carry it to God, that He may resolve thee. Bp. Patrick.

20. — ordinances and laws,] Ordinances are commonly under-

Before
CHRIST
1491.

and laws, and shalt shew them the way wherein they must walk, and the work that they must do.

21 Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness; and place such over them, to be rulers of thousands, and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens:

22 And let them judge the people at all seasons: and it shall be, that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, but every small matter they shall judge: so shall it be easier for thyself, and they shall bear the burden with thee.

23 If thou shalt do this thing, and God command thee so, then thou shalt be able to endure, and all this people shall also go to their place in peace.

24 So Moses hearkened to the voice of his father in law, and did all that he had said.

25 And Moses chose able men out of all Israel, and made them heads over the people, rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens.

26 And they judged the people at all seasons: the hard causes they brought unto Moses, but every small matter they judged themselves.

27 ¶ And Moses let his father in law depart; and he went his way into his own land.

CHAP. XIX.

1 The people come to Sinai. 3 God's message by Moses unto the people out of the mount. 8 The people's answer returned again. 10 The people are prepared stood to concern matters of religion; and laws, civil matters of justice and charity. Dr. Wells.

21. — to be rulers of thousands, &c.] Lord Bacon thinks, in his Essay on English Government, that Alfred the Great took from hence his idea of the old Saxon constitution of sheriffs in counties; hundredors or centgraves, in hundreds; and deciners, in decennaries or tithings; who were a sort of justices of peace in their respective divisions. Dr. Hales.

23. — all this people shall also go to their place in peace.] They shall go home every day from the place of judicature, greatly satisfied with so much quicker despatch. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XIX. ver. 3. — Moses went up unto God.] On mount Sinai, the highest summit of Horeb. Dr. Hales. See note on chap. xvii. 6. Sinai has three tops of a marvellous height: that on the west side, where God appeared to Moses in a bush, fruitful in pasturage; far lower than the middlemost, and shadowed when the sun riseth thereon: which is that whereon God gave the law to Moses, and which is now called the mount of Moses: at the foot of which stands the monastery of St. Catherine's, from which there were steps formerly up to the very top of the mountain, and were computed 14,000 in number. At present some of them are broken; but those that remain are well made, and easy against the third day. 12 The mountain must not be touched. 16 The fearful presence of God upon the mount. Before CHRIST 1491.

IN the third month, when the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt, the same day came they into the wilderness of Sinai.

2 For they were departed from Rephidim, and were come to the desert of Sinai, and had pitched in the wilderness; and there Israel camped before the mount.

3 And ^a Moses went up unto God, and the Lord called unto him out of the mountain, saying, Thus shalt thou say to the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel;

4 ^b Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bare you on eagles' wings, and brought you unto myself.

5 Now ^c therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for ^d all the earth is mine:

6 And ye shall be unto me a ^e kingdom of priests, and an holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel.

7 ¶ And Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and laid before their faces all these words which the Lord commanded him.

8 And ^f all the people answered together, and said, All that the Lord hath spoken we will do. And Moses returned the words of the people unto the Lord.

9 And the Lord said unto Moses, Lo, I come unto thee in a thick cloud, that the people may hear when I speak with thee, to go up and down. There are in several places of the ascent good cisterns; and especially near the top, a fair and good one. The third or most easterly summit is called by the religious in those parts mount Catherine. Sandys. One may judge of the height of St. Catherine's mount, which certainly is not so high as that of Moses by a third part, from this circumstance, that Thevenot found much snow on both when he was there, which was in February. The monastery of St. Catherine is from Cairo some eight days' journey over the deserts, according to Sandys. Dr. Hales.

4. — how I bare you on eagles' wings.] How I carried you, as it were, aloft, above the reach of dangers, like as an eagle carrieth her young ones, supporting and helping them with her wings. Bp. Hall. See the note on Deut. xxxii. 11.

6. — a kingdom of priests.] An honourable or a Divine kingdom; not like worldly kingdoms, which are defended by arms; but a kingdom supported by piety. Bp. Patrick. My peculiar church and people: "a royal priesthood," as in 1 Peter ii. 9; "kings and priests unto God," Rev. i. 6. Pyle.

9. — I come unto thee in a thick cloud.] In a darker cloud than that which had hitherto conducted them; with flashes of lightning gleaming from it in an awful and tremendous manner. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

and believe thee for ever. And Moses told the words of the people unto the LORD.

10 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Go unto the people, and sanctify them to day and to morrow, and let them wash their clothes, 11 And be ready against the third day: for the third day the LORD will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai.

12 And thou shalt set bounds unto the people round about, saying, Take heed to yourselves, that ye go not up into the mount, or touch the border of it: ²who-soever toucheth the mount shall be surely put to death:

² Hebr. 12.
20.

13 There shall not an hand touch it, but he shall surely be stoned, or shot through; whether it be beast or man, it shall not live: when the ¶ trumpet soundeth long, they shall come up to the mount.

¶ Or, cornet.

14 ¶ And Moses went down from the mount unto the people, and sanctified the people; and they washed their clothes.

15 And he said unto the people, Be ready against the third day: come not at your wives.

16 ¶ And it came to pass on the third

Before
CHRIST
1491.

day in the morning, that there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount, and the voice of the trumpet exceeding loud; so that all the people that was in the camp trembled.

17 And Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet with God; and they stood at the nether part of the mount.

18 And ^hmount Sinai was altogether upon a smoke, because the LORD descended upon it in fire: and the smoke thereof ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mount quaked greatly.

^h Deut. 4.
11.

19 And when the voice of the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder, Moses spake, and God answered him by a voice.

20 And the LORD came down upon mount Sinai, on the top of the mount: and the LORD called Moses up to the top of the mount; and Moses went up.

21 And the LORD said unto Moses, Go down, [†]charge the people, lest they break through unto the LORD to gaze, and many of them perish.

[†] Heb.
contest.

22 And let the priests also, which come near to the LORD, sanctify themselves, lest the LORD break forth upon them.

10. — sanctify them] Let them abstain from ordinary employments, and otherwise lawful pleasure, (ver. 15,) and give themselves to fasting and prayer; that their hearts being abstracted from worldly things, they may be more fit to converse with God: and let them “wash their clothes,” and also their bodies, as a token of their inward sanctification. For thus Aaron and his sons were to be consecrated to their office, chap. xxix. 4; xl. 12; and thus the people were now to be made “an holy people to the Lord:” unto whose religion none were admitted, that is, made proselytes, in aftertimes, but by baptism, which was taken from this pattern. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

As sin is always dangerous, so most, when we bring it into God's sight: it evenenometh both our persons and our services, and turns our good into evil. As therefore we must be always holy, so most, when we present ourselves to the holy eyes of our Creator. And if we must be sanctified to receive the Law, how holy must we be to receive the grace promised in the Gospel! Bp. Hall.

11. — the Lord will come down] From heaven “upon mount Sinai.” The Scripture, suiting itself to man's common way of speaking and thinking, assigns to God such things as are only proper to the effects. Thus it is said, that God should “come down” upon the mountain, because He made His presence more visible there by sensible and surprising effects. Stackhouse.

16. — that there were thunders and lightnings, &c.] Such was the splendid and terrifick appearance, in which it pleased God to manifest Himself to the people. The whole was calculated to produce a proper reverence and fear, and make the people more ready to receive the law, and to obey it, when delivered. For the law was of such a nature, and contained such painful rites and ceremonies, and injunctions seemingly so unnecessary and without meaning, that no people would have conformed to it, or even permitted it to take place, if there had not been these terrors and this sanction to enforce it. A meaning certainly there was in every rite and ordinance: yet, as it was a secret to them, there was nothing which could have made them submit, but the immediate hand of Heaven. A shepherd of Midian could never have brought about so great a work, though he had been joined by Aaron his brother, and all the elders of Israel. But Aaron was so far from cooperating, that, even while the law was giving, while the cloud was still upon Sinai, he yielded to the importunities of the people, and made a golden calf, and suffered them to lapse into the idolatry of Egypt. Moses therefore stood single: he had not a person to assist him, except the great God of all, by whose command he acted, and by whom the law was enforced. Bryant.

— the voice of the trumpet exceeding loud;] The angels, the ministers of heaven, and attendants on the Divine Majesty, summoned the people by a voice resembling that of a trumpet, but loud and terrible beyond all human art or expression. Pyle.

19. — Moses spake,] We read at Heb. xii. 21, “So terrible was the sight, that Moses said, I exceedingly fear and quake:” which words are judiciously referred to this place. Bp. Patrick.

22. — the priests] Perhaps the principal and most honourable persons in the several tribes. Bp. Patrick. Or those who ministered in holy things before Aaron and his sons were consecrated. Bp. Kidder. Or possibly Aaron and his sons, who were shortly to be consecrated. Dr. Wells.

If the law were given with such majesty and terror, how shall it be required? If such were the proclamation of God's statutes, what shall the judgment be? I see, and tremble at the resemblance. The trumpet of the angel called unto the one; the voice of an archangel, the trumpet of God, shall summon us to the other. To the one, Moses, that climbed up the hill, and alone saw it, says, “God came with ten thousands of His saints:” in the other, “thousand thousands shall minister to Him, and ten thousand times ten thousand shall stand before Him.” In the one, mount Sinai only was on a flame; all the world shall be so, in the other. In the one, there were fire, smoke, thunder, and lightning; in the other, a fiery stream shall issue from Him, wherewith the heavens shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt away with a noise. O God, how powerful art Thou to inflict vengeance upon 1491.

Before
CHRIST

23 And Moses said unto the LORD, The people cannot come up to mount Sinai: for thou chargedst us, saying, Set bounds about the mount, and sanctify it.

24 And the LORD said unto him, Away, get thee down, and thou shalt come up, thou, and Aaron with thee: but let not the priests and the people break through to come up unto the LORD, lest he break forth upon them.

25 So Moses went down unto the people, and spake unto them.

CHAP. XX.

1 The ten commandments. 18 The people are afraid.

sinners, who didst thus forbid sin! And if thou wert so terrible a Lawgiver, what a Judge shalt Thou appear! Bp. Hall.

Chap. XX. ver. 1. And God spake all these words,] Or precepts, as the Hebrew term sometimes signifies. Bp. Patrick. Though the Ten Commandments which follow, were given to the Jews particularly, yet the things contained in them are such, as all mankind from the beginning were bound to observe. And therefore even under the Mosaic dispensation they, and the tables on which they were engraven, and the ark in which they were put, were distinguished from the rest of God's ordinances by a peculiar regard, as containing the covenant of the Lord. And though the Mosaic dispensation be now at an end, yet concerning these moral precepts of it our Saviour declares, that "one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled," Matt. v. 18. Accordingly we find both Him and His Apostles quoting these Ten Commandments as matter of perpetual obligation to Christians; who are now, as the Jews were formerly, "the Israel of God," Gal. vi. 16.

To comprehend the full extent of these Commandments, it will be requisite to observe the following rules. Where any sin is forbidden in them, the opposite duty is implicitly enjoined; and where any duty is enjoined, the opposite sin is implicitly forbidden. Where the highest degree of any thing evil is prohibited; whatever is faulty in the same kind, though in a lower degree, is by consequence prohibited. And where one instance of virtuous behaviour is commanded, every other, that hath the same nature, and the same reason for it, is understood to be commanded too. What we are expected to abstain from, we are expected to avoid, as far as we can, all temptations to it, and occasions of it: and what we are expected to practise, we are expected to use all fit means, that may better enable us to practise it. All, that we are bound to do ourselves, we are bound, on fitting occasions, to exhort and assist others to do, when it belongs to them; and all, that we are bound not to do, we are to tempt nobody else to do, but keep them back from it, as much as we have opportunity. The Ten Commandments, excepting two that required enlargement, are delivered in few words; which brief manner of speaking hath great majesty in it. But explaining them according to these rules; which are natural and rational in themselves, favoured by ancient Jewish writers, authorised by our blessed Saviour, and certainly designed by the makers of our Church Catechism to be used in expounding it; we shall find, that there is no part of the moral law, but may be fitly ranked under them. Abp. Secker.

2. I am the Lord thy God, &c.] This is a general preface or introduction to the Commandments; and represents the two great grounds or motives on which God required the obedience of the Jews. 1st, That He was "the Lord their God;" and 2dly, That He had "brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage." These reasons extend to us Christians, no less, if not more, than they did to the Jews. For we are the "spiritual Israel, and heirs of the promises." He is the "Lord our God," by a more excellent covenant than He was their's. He has brought 20 Moses comforteth them. 22 Idolatry is forbidden.

24 Of what sort the altar should be.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

AND God spake all these words, saying,

2^a I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of [†]bondage.

^a Deut. 5. 6.
Psalm 81. 10.

[†] Heb.
servants.

3 Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

4^b Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth:

^b Lev. 26. 1.
Psalm 97. 7.

5 Thou shalt not bow down thyself to us out of that slavery, of which the Jews' Egyptian bondage was but a type. And He has prepared for us an inheritance in heaven, in comparison of which their land of Canaan is of no account, Rom. ii. 28, 29; 1 Cor. x. 18; Gal. iii. 23, 26; vi. 16; Phil. iii. 3; Heb. viii. 6, 8; Luke i. 74, 75; Gal. iv. 26; Heb. xii. 22. Abp. Wake.

3. Thou shalt have no other gods before me.] The same reasons, which prove that God is, prove that there is but one God. And what reason teaches in this matter, Scripture every where confirms; forbidding us to worship or believe in any other deity than the one Maker and Ruler of heaven and earth, who hath manifested Himself to all men by the works of His hands; to the Patriarchs and Jews, by the revelations recorded in Moses and the Prophets; and finally, to Christians, by His Son, our Lord, who, in a way and manner to us inconceivable, is one with the Father, and the Holy Spirit with both. Abp. Secker.

The first Commandment, which concerns the acknowledgement of God, forbids these sins. 1. The sin of atheists, who acknowledge no God, Ps. xiv. 1. 2. The sin of such as serve false gods, Gal. iv. 8. 3. The sin of such as serve not the true God only, and aright, 2 Kings xvii. 33, 34. It also enjoins these duties: 1. That we acknowledge but one God, Mark xii. 32. 2. That we have the only true God for our God, 1 Cor. viii. 6; which must appear by our loving, fearing, trusting in, and obeying Him above all others, Mark xii. 30; Ps. ii. 11; Prov. iii. 5; Acts v. 29. Oxford Catechism.

— no other gods] There is not, nor does this Commandment at all suppose that there is any other God besides the Lord. Abp. Wake. But before and long after the law of Moses was given, the generality of the world entertained a belief that there were many gods; a great number of beings, superior to men, that amongst them governed the world, and were fit objects of devotion. To these, as their own fancy, or the folly and fraud of others led them, they ascribed more or less both of power and goodness; attributed to several of them the vilest actions, that could be; supposed them to preside, some over one nation or city, some over another; worshipped a few or a multitude of them, just as they pleased, and that with a strange variety of ceremonies, absurd and impious, immoral and barbarous. Amidst this crowd of imaginary deities, the real God was almost entirely forgot; false religion and irreligion divided the world between them; and wickedness of every kind was authorised by both. The cure for these dreadful evils must plainly be, restoring the old true notion of one only God, ruling the world Himself; which therefore was the first great article of the Jewish faith, as it is of our's. Abp. Secker.

— before me.] Rather "besides Me." As much as if He had said, Thou shalt love nothing as God, before Me; worship nothing as God, before Me; serve nothing as God, before Me. Bp. Beveridge.

4. Thou shalt not make unto thee &c.] In this second Commandment, which concerns the worship of God, are forbidden these sins;

Before
CHRIST
1491.

them, nor serve them: for I the LORD thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me;

6 And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.

1. The appointing of any kind of image for religious worship, Lev. xxvi. 1. 2. The worshipping of such an image or any other creature, Rev. xxii. 8, 9. 3. The neglect of the worship of the true God, Rom. i. 25. 4. The worshipping of Him after a false manner, Matt. xv. 8, 9. Because the Lord is a jealous God, Is. xlii. 8; and a severe punisher of idolaters, Deut. viii. 19. In the same Commandment are enjoined these duties: 1. That God only be religiously worshipped, Matt. iv. 10. 2. That He be worshipped both in body and spirit, Ps. xcv. 6; John iv. 23. And to such worshippers, who thus love and obey the Lord, He hath promised His especial mercy, John ix. 31. Oxford Catechism.

— graven image, or any likeness] The Hebrew word, translated “graven image,” properly signifies a statue made of wood or stone; that translated “likeness,” means a picture drawn on a wall or flat surface. Bp. Patrick.

This Commandment seems to have been framed with a view to the worship of Egypt. To any people, who had not been conversant in that country, it had been sufficient to say, “Thou shalt make no graven image, nor frame any similitude of things.” But the commandment is dilated, and the nature of the objects pointed out, for the sake of the Israelites. They were not to make to themselves an “image or likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth;” nor were they to “bow down to, or worship them,” either real or represented. By this is intimated, that they were not to make a likeness of the sun, or of the moon; of man, or of beast; of fly, or creeping thing; of fish, or of crocodile, “which are in the waters beneath.” How prone the Israelites were to this symbolical worship, and how necessary it was to give them warning, may be seen by the threat, and by the blessings which immediately follow. Bryant. See the note on Deut. iv. 18.

5. — a jealous God,] Jealous of the honour due to Him alone, not bearing any rival or partner in what belongs to Him alone. Dr. Wells. I am a jealous God: I am so affected to you My people, as a loving husband to his wife, whom he cannot endure to set her affections on another. Bp. Hall. Not jealous for Himself, lest He should suffer for the follies of His creatures; that cannot be: but jealous for “His spouse, the church;” lest our notions of His nature and attributes, and consequently of the duties which we owe to Him, being depraved, and our minds darkened with superstitious persuasions and fears and hopes, we should depart from the fidelity, which we have vowed to Him; and fall into those grievous immoralities, which St. Paul describes as the consequences of idolatry, Rom. i. 21—32, and which have been its consequences in all times and places. Abp. Secker.

— visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children] It cannot consist with the justice of God, to punish one person for the sin of another; neither does God threaten any such thing. But God, who is the great Lord of the whole world, may so punish a man for his sins, that the temporal evil of it may reach, not to himself alone, but to his posterity also. As in the case of high treason, the father, by forfeiting his honour and estate, brings the ill consequence of his crime upon his family, as well as upon himself; and the prince, by enacting the penalty of the law, may justly be said to visit the children, for the offence which the father committed. The meaning of this part of the commandment is this: God had, in general, promised to the Jews temporal blessings, to encourage their obedience; and had denounced present evils against them, to keep them from sinning. But to set a particular mark of His indignation on the sin of idolatry, He thought fit to declare, that if they offended in this matter, He would not only severely punish them Himself, but would deliver

Vol. I.

7 “Thou shalt not take the name of the LORD thy God in vain; for the LORD will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

8 Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy.

9 “Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work:

Before
CHRIST
1491.

“ Lev. 19.
12.
Deut. 5. 11.
Matt. 5. 23.
“ Ch. 23. 12.
Ezek. 20.
12.
Luke 13.
14.

them up into the hands of their enemies, who should oppress both them and their children after them; whereas if they continued firm to His worship, though otherwise they should be guilty of many lesser crimes, yet He would not cast them off from His favour, but on the contrary would bless both them and their posterity with plenty and prosperity all their days. This I take to have been the literal meaning of the present denunciation; and how exactly it was made good to them, their history sufficiently declares to us, 1 Kings xi. 31—35; xiv. 22, 23, 25; xv. 29, 30; 2 Kings xxii. 17; xxiv. 3. Compare xxi. 3; Lam. v. 7. Abp. Wake.

6. — unto thousands] That is, to the thousandth generation, as the passage is judiciously rendered by the Syriack version and Chaldee paraphrase; supported by the parallel passages, Deut. vii. 9; 1 Chron. xvi. 15. Dr. Hales. See note on Deut. vii. 9.

— love me, and keep my commandments.] The keeping of God's commandments is the best argument that we love Him. Bp. Kidder.

7. Thou shalt not take the name &c.] In this third Commandment, which concerns the name of God, are forbidden these sins: 1. Irreverent thoughts of God, Job i. 5. 2. Blasphemy, or dishonourable mention of His name, Rev. xiii. 6. 3. False swearing in avouching an untruth, Zech. viii. 17. 4. Perjury, or breaking a lawful oath, Matt. v. 33. 5. Causing the name of God, and our holy profession, to be blasphemed by others, Rom. ii. 24. And such sins God Himself hath especially threatened to punish, 2 Sam. xii. 14. In the same Commandment are enjoined these duties: 1. To think and speak reverently of the names and attributes of God, Ps. ciii. 1, 2. 2. To glorify Him in His holy word and ordinances, that bear His name, Acts xiii. 48. 3. To use His name with reverence in taking religious oaths, Deut. vi. 13. 4. To observe such oaths with religious care and conscience, Heb. vi. 16; Ezek. xvii. 18, 19; Ps. xv. 4. 5. To glorify God by a Christian conversation, 1 Tim. vi. 1. Oxford Catechism.

— the Lord will not hold him guiltless &c.] But will certainly punish him, unless prevented by sincere repentance. Dr. Wells. God declares, that He will severely punish such sinners, as take His name in vain, and will not suffer His name to be profaned by them, without bringing upon them some exemplary vengeance for their presumption. If it be asked, How then comes it to pass, that such persons do often escape without any such exemplary mark of God's vengeance? we answer, We are not to call God to account for His actions. It is enough that He has assured us, that “He will not hold such persons guiltless;” and that therefore every such sinner must either repent, in a very singular manner, of his offence in taking God's name in vain; or he shall assuredly be punished with an extraordinary severity for it, either in this life or in the other. Abp. Wake.

8. Remember the sabbath day,] See the note on chap. xvi. 25. In this Commandment, which concerns the sabbath of the Lord, is enjoined an especial attendance upon God's services on that day, such as, 1. Prayer, Acts xvi. 13. 2. Dispensing and receiving His word, Acts xiii. 44. 3. Partaking in His sacrament, Acts xx. 7. 4. Relieving of His saints, 1 Cor. xvi. 1, 2. And, 5. Meditating upon His works of creation and redemption, Ps. xcii. 1, 2; Deut. v. 15. In the same Commandment are forbidden our worldly undertakings and employments on this holy day, Is. lviii. 13; Neh. xiii. 15; excepting such as concern works of piety, charity, and necessity, Matt. xii. 5; Luke vi. 9; xiv. 5. Oxford Catechism.

— the sabbath day,] The day of rest. The word “sabbath” means rest.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

10 But the seventh day is the sabbath of the LORD thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates:

Gen. 2. 2. 11 For in six days the LORD made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day:

10. — thy stranger] Foreigners, who, by being circumcised, had embraced the Jewish religion. Bp. Patrick.

11. For in six days &c.] This Commandment is as obligatory upon us, as it ever was upon the Jews, though not exactly after the same manner. We worship, as they did, the God, who "in six days created the heaven, and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day;" and in acknowledgment thereof, we stand obliged with them, to keep a seventh day of rest, after six of labour. But then, as they worshipped this God under the peculiar character of "the God, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage," so were they directed to take that particular day, the seventh of the week, for their sabbath, upon which He completed their deliverance; and strictly to abstain from all bodily labour upon it. Now in this respect we differ from them. We worship God, the Creator of the world, under a much higher and more Divine character; as He is our Father and Deliverer by Jesus Christ our Lord: who, on the first day of the week, rose from the dead, and thereby put an end to the Jewish dispensation. And in testimony of this, we keep the first day of the week for our sabbath, according to the practice of the Apostles; and so profess ourselves to be the servants of the true God, through the covenant, which He has been pleased to make with mankind in Christ Jesus our Lord. Abp. Wake.

12. Honour thy father and thy mother:] In this Commandment, which is the commandment of relations, are enjoined the mutual duties of inferiours and superiours. From children to parents is required honour, which implies, 1. Fear, Lev. xix. 3. 2. Reverence, Gen. xxxi. 35. 3. Obedience, Eph. vi. 1, 2. And, 4. Maintenance, 1 Tim. v. 4. And the contrary vices are forbidden, Lev. xx. 9. This Commandment concerns not only natural Parents, but extends also to Magistrates in the state, Rom. xiii. 1, &c. Ministers in the church, Heb. xiii. 17, and Masters in families, 2 Kings v. 13; Eph. vi. 5, 6; who are also called fathers. The reciprocal duties of superiours to inferiours are likewise required in this Commandment; namely, of natural Parents, Eph. vi. 4; Magistrates, Ps. lxxviii. 70, 71; Ministers, 1 Pet. v. 2; and Masters, Col. iv. 1. And the contrary vices are forbidden. And here are also enjoined the mutual duties of husbands and wives, 1 Pet. iii. 1, 7. Oxford Catechism.

— that thy days &c.] That God may give thee a long and happy life in this thy promised land upon earth; and an eternal life, figured by the other, in that true land of rest which is above. Bp. Hall. Were but all the duties enjoined by this Commandment conscientiously observed by all the world, how happy a place would it be! And whoever will faithfully do their own part of them, they shall be happy, whether others will do their part or not: and this Commandment assures them of it; "that thy days may be long upon the land, which the Lord thy God giveth thee." In all probability, if we obey His laws, and that now before us in particular, both longer and more prosperous will our days prove in this land of our pilgrimage, in which God has placed us to sojourn: but, without all question, eternal and infinite shall our felicity be in that land of promise, the heavenly Canaan; which He hath appointed for our inheritance. Abp. Secker.

13. Thou shalt not kill.] In this sixth Commandment, which concerns man's life, are forbidden these sins: 1. Hatred, 1 John iii. 15. 2. Causeless and revengeful anger, Matth. v. 21, 22. 3. Grievous reproaches, Ps. lxxiv. 3. 4. Occasion of bloodshed, wherefore the LORD blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it.

12 ¶ Honour thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

13 Thou shalt not kill.

14 Thou shalt not commit adultery.

15 Thou shalt not steal.

16 Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

Deut. 5.
16.
Matt. 15. 1.
Ephes. 6. 2.
Matt. 5.
21.

Deut. xxii. 8. 5. Contrivance of man's death, 2 Sam. xii. 9. 6. Actual and wilful murder, Exod. xxi. 14. In the same Commandment is enjoined the preservation of man's life: 1. By a seasonable and moderate use of God's creatures ordained for that end, Eccles. x. 17; 1 Tim. v. 23. 2. By a prudent avoiding of dangers, Matt. x. 23. 3. By flying all sins; and particularly murder and uncleanness, Ps. iv. 23, which are noted to be especially destructive to the body and soul of him that commits them, Prov. v. 11; vi. 32. Oxford Catechism. These commands are only short summaries of our moral duty; under one or more principal instances comprehending all other plain particulars of it. Pyle.

— kill.] Killing in some cases is not murder; nor forbidden by God: such as the execution of justice, after a lawful manner, for a suitable offence, and by a lawful magistrate; the killing of an enemy in a just war; the killing of another for the necessary defence of a man's own life: to which under the Law were added some other cases, with which we are not concerned now under the Gospel. Abp. Wake.

14. Thou shalt not commit adultery.] In this seventh Commandment, which concerns man's chastity, are forbidden adulterous or lascivious thoughts, Matt. v. 27, 28; looks, 2 Pet. ii. 14; attire, Prov. vii. 10; words, Eph. iv. 29; v. 3; and acts of adultery and fornication, Gal. v. 19; as also unlawful marriages, Luke xvi. 18. Besides these sins more directly against this Commandment, are herein also forbidden such sins as give occasion to these: idleness; excess in eating and drinking; and the like. In the same Commandment are enjoined chastity and modesty in thoughts, 1 Thess. iv. 4, 5; behaviour, 1 Pet. iii. 2; and apparel, 1 Tim. ii. 9; as also sobriety and vigilance, 1 Pet. v. 8. Oxford Catechism. The sin of adultery under the law was punished with death, Lev. xx. 10; Deut. xxii. 22; and that not only upon a civil account, as being most injurious to society; but also typically, to denote what such persons are to expect from God in the other world, even death eternal. Abp. Wake.

15. Thou shalt not steal.] In this eighth Commandment, which concerns man's goods, are forbidden these sins: 1. Covetous desires, Ps. cxix. 36. 2. Bribery, Is. i. 23. 3. Withholding other men's dues, James v. 4. 4. Defrauding, or deceitful stealth, 1 Thess. iv. 6. 5. Oppression, or violent robbery, Luke iii. 14. 6. Sacrilege, or robbing of God, Mal. iii. 8. In the same Commandment are enjoined these duties: 1. To give to all their dues, Rom. xiii. 7. 2. To live in a lawful calling, Eph. iv. 28. 3. To be diligent in that calling, 2 Thess. iii. 11, 12. 4. To restore that which hath been stolen, Ezek. xxxiii. 15. 5. To give charitably to the poor, Prov. iii. 27, 28. 6. To avoid the company of the breakers of this law, Prov. xxix. 24. Oxford Catechism.

16. Thou shalt not bear false witness &c.] The ninth Commandment is connected with every one of the four which precede it. For neither the duties of superiours and inferiours, nor those among equals, could be tolerably practised; neither the lives of men, nor their happiness in the nearest relation of life, nor their possessions and properties could ever be secure; if they were left exposed to those injuries of a licentious tongue which are here prohibited. This Commandment therefore was intended, partly to strengthen the foregoing ones; and partly also, to make provision for every person's just character on its own account, as well as for the sake of consequences. Abp. Secker.

^c Before CHRIST 1491. 17^b Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbour's.

ⁱ Hebr. 12. 18. 18 ¶ And all the people saw the thunders, and the lightnings, and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking: and when the people saw it, they removed, and stood afar off.

^k Deut. 5. 27. & 18. 16. 19 And they said unto Moses, ^k Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but let not God speak with us, lest we die.

20 And Moses said unto the people, Fear not: for God is come to prove you, and that his fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not.

21 And the people stood afar off, and Moses drew near unto the thick darkness where God was.

In this Commandment, which concerns man's good name, are forbidden these sins: 1. Lies, Eph. iv. 25. 2. Groundless jealousies, 1 Sam. xxii. 13. 3. The raising, taking up, or divulging of false or malicious reports, Exod. xxiii. 1; Ps. xv. 3; Prov. x. 12; Lev. xix. 16. 4. The suborning or encouraging of false witnesses, 1 Kings xxi. 9, 10. In the same Commandment are enjoined these duties, which maintain veracity and charity, Eph. iv. 15. 1. To love and speak the truth, Zech. viii. 19; Eph. iv. 25. 2. To preserve our own reputation, Phil. iv. 8. 3. Seasonably to vindicate ourselves, and our innocent neighbours, Acts xxv. 8; Luke xxiii. 41; 1 Sam. xix. 4, 5. 4. To cover the infirmities of others, Prov. xvii. 9. Oxford Catechism.

17. Thou shalt not covet &c.] In this tenth Commandment, which especially concerns man's desires, are forbidden: 1. In general, sinful lusts, and the first motion of general corruption, Col. iii. 5, 6; Gal. v. 17; Jam. i. 14. 2. In particular, the coveting of our neighbour's house, wife, servants, and other goods belonging to him, Mic. ii. 2; Jer. v. 7, 8; Acts xx. 33. In the same Commandment are enjoined these duties: 1. To regulate our affections, 1 Cor. ix. 25. 2. To restrain sinful desires, Tit. ii. 12. 3. To be content with our present estate, Heb. xiii. 5. Oxford Catechism.

This last Commandment is very important; and is indeed the guard and security of all the preceding ones. For our actions will never be right habitually, till our desires are so. Or, if they could, our Maker demands the whole man, as He surely will may; nor, till that is devoted to Him, are we "meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light." Abp. Secker.

This Commandment stamps the seal of divinity upon the Mosaic code, of which the Decalogue is the summary. No such restriction is to be found in the Ordinances of Lycurgus, or Solon, the Twelve Tables, or the Institutes of Justinian: because the thoughts and desires of the heart are not cognizable by human tribunals. This was a case reserved for Him alone, who both can and will "bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or evil," Eccles. xii. 14; because He is a discoverer "of the thoughts and intents of the heart," 1 Sam. xvi. 7; Heb. iv. 12. The Law therefore "was our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ;" who in His Gospel has so finely commented on the tenth Commandment in particular, Matt. v. 28, 30: and who inculcates obedience to all His laws from an inward principle: requiring us to "show the work of the law written in our hearts," Rom. ii. 15. Dr. Hales.

20. — God is come to prove you,] God intends, by this dreadful appearance, to discover unto yourselves and others, whether you will be such as you have promised. Bp. Patrick.

22 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, ^c Before CHRIST 1491. Thus thou shalt say unto the children of Israel, Ye have seen that I have talked with you from heaven.

23 Ye shall not make with me gods of silver, neither shall ye make unto you gods of gold.

24 ¶ An altar of earth thou shalt make unto me, and shalt sacrifice thereon thy burnt offerings, and thy peace offerings, thy sheep, and thine oxen: in all places where I record my name I will come unto thee, and I will bless thee.

25 And if thou wilt make me an altar ¹ Deut. 27. 5. of stone, thou shalt not [†] build it of hewn stone: for if thou lift up thy tool upon it, [†] Josh. 8. 31. thou hast polluted it. [†] Heb. build them with hewing.

26 Neither shalt thou go up by steps unto mine altar, that thy nakedness be not discovered thereon.

24. An altar of earth] For the better observation of the foregoing command, He orders that the altars built to Him may be as simple as possible: and forbids their being constructed of "hewn stone," for fear of the tools being also employed in making any figure or image. Bp. Patrick.

— in all places where I record my name &c.] That is, whosoever is that place, which I have appointed, or shall appoint, to be the remembrance or memorial of My name and presence, "there will I come unto thee and bless thee." It is here promised, that God will come unto men, and bless them, generally in every place dedicated to His worship and service: but more especially in those tokens or symbols, by which He testifies His covenant and commerce with men, and which are the memorials or monuments of His name. Such were the sacrifices and the altar, under the Jewish dispensation, often called the "Memorial," Lev. ii, v, vi, xxiv, inasmuch as they were rites of remembrance, whereby the name of God was commemorated or recorded, and His covenant with men renewed and testified. Such, under the Christian dispensation, is the holy communion of Christ's body and blood, ordained by Him to be the "memorial" of His name in the New Testament. See Luke xxii. 19. It is true, we are not now confined to one place alone, as those under the law were; and God heareth the faithful prayers of His servants, wheresoever they are made to Him, as also He did then: yet in the place, where is His memorial, there in a special manner does He vouchsafe His presence to the sons of men, and visit them with His blessing. Jos. Mede.

25. And if thou wilt make me an altar &c.] As much as to say, "Whilst you travel in the desert, I will not have a lasting altar, made either of marble or metal, that you may not, after the manner of the heathens, believe Me to be the God of a particular place, or that I am confined to any province." In this and the following verses God orders the matter and form of the altar in opposition to the laws, rules, and customs of the heathens. Locke.

26. Neither shalt thou go up by steps &c.] It was suitable to the state of travellers, to have their altars low. Besides, He would not have them imitate the Gentiles, who sacrificed in "high places," imagining their sacrifices were most acceptable, when nearest heaven. A further reason is assigned at the end of the verse, namely, to prevent unseemliness; and that the priests might not be exposed to ridicule and contempt, by means of the light and loose garments, which were worn in those countries. Bp. Patrick, Pyle. God requires the greatest modesty in His worshippers; whereas the heathen rites were attended with great immodesty. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Laws for menservants. 5 For the servant whose ear is bored. 7 For womenservants. 12 For manslaughter. 16 For stealers of men. 17 For cursers of parents. 18 For smiters. 22 For a hurt by chance. 28 For an ox that goeth. 33 For him that is an occasion of harm.

NOW these are the judgments which thou shalt set before them.

2^a If thou buy an Hebrew servant, six years he shall serve: and in the seventh he shall go out free for nothing.

3 If he came in † by himself, he shall go out by himself: if he were married, then his wife shall go out with him.

^a Lev. 25.
41.
Deut. 15.
12.
Jer. 34. 14.
† Heb. with his body.

Chap. XXI. The laws thus delivered by God Himself, with all these solemn preparations, and in a manner so peculiarly calculated to impress awe, and exercise obedience, were of three sorts; moral, ceremonial, and civil. The moral law, which is comprised in the Ten Commandments, "written with the finger of God," and the law of nature, as it is called, are, in all essential points, the same. The heart of man being much depraved, and his understanding darkened, in consequence of the fall of Adam, God had been pleased to renew the impression of the general law of nature from time to time, by occasional communications of His will; and He now confirmed and explained it by an express Revelation, which He commanded to be recorded in writing for the use of all future ages. This moral law, founded in the relation subsisting between God and man, is of universal and eternal obligation. We are to remember that the change, which sin produced in the nature of man, weakened the faculties with which he was originally created, and obscured the light of reason. We may conceive that perfect reason would direct man to right conclusions concerning the nature of God and of man, and the duties which he owes to God and to his fellow-creatures. Still, while man, as a free agent, had, as necessarily belonging to that character, the power of opposing the suggestions of will to the deductions of reason, his state of happiness must have been insecure. Whether we consider the knowledge of this moral law as derived from perfect human reason, or, which is the same thing under another name, from the original nature of man given him by his Creator, (and in this sense the moral law would be justly termed the law of nature,) or whether we suppose the knowledge of this law communicated by some impression upon the mind, some mode of Divine inspiration, (like that, by which the Prophets were enabled to distinguish clearly and positively the declarations of God from the dictates of their own reason,) or by the audible voice of God Himself, accompanied by some visible mark of the Divine presence, the Divine origin of this law is equally established, and its immutable truth is equally apparent. The ceremonial, or positive law, relates to the priests, the tabernacle, the sacrifices, and other religious rites and services. God commanded that those, who should be employed about the tabernacle, or in the offices of public worship, should be of the posterity of Levi: and hence this law is sometimes called the Levitical Law; but the priesthood itself was to be confined to Aaron and his descendants. The principal objects of the ceremonial law were, to preserve the Jews from idolatry, to which all the neighbouring nations were addicted, and to keep up in their minds the necessity of an atonement for sin. The civil law relates to the civil government of the Israelites, to punishments, marriages, estates, and possessions. The ceremonial and civil laws are intermixed with each other, and being adapted to the particular purpose of separating from the rest of the world one nation, among whom the knowledge of the true God, and the promise of a Redeemer, might be preserved, were designed for the sole use of the Israelites, and were to be binding upon them only till the coming of the Messiah. Bp. Tomline.

4 If his master have given him a wife, and she have born him sons or daughters; the wife and her children shall be her master's, and he shall go out by himself.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

5 And if the servant † shall plainly say, † Heb. saying shall say. I love my master, my wife, and my children; I will not go out free:

6 Then his master shall bring him unto the judges; he shall also bring him to the door, or unto the door post; and his master shall bore his ear through with an aul; and he shall serve him for ever.

7 ¶ And if a man sell his daughter to be a maidservant, she shall not go out as the menservants do.

Ver. 1. Now these are the judgments &c.] The Mosaic Law was infinitely superiour, in point of humanity, to all the institutions of the most celebrated lawgivers of antiquity. It abounds with injunctions of mercy and pity, not only to Jews, but to strangers, to enemies, and even to those, who had most cruelly oppressed and injured them. The dispositions in favour of the poor are truly singular and amiable, Lev. xxv. 35, 36; Exod. xxiii. 9; Lev. xix. 34; Deut. xxiii. 7; Exod. xxiii. 4; Deut. xv. 7, 8; Lev. xix. 9, 10; Deut. xxiv. 19. The provisions made for the security and comfort of that most useful, though too often most wretched, part of the species, slaves and servants, are entirely worthy of a law, that came down from heaven. That absolute and unlimited power over the lives of slaves, indulged to their tyrannical master by almost all heathen lawgivers, a power most scandalously abused to the disgrace of all humanity, was effectually restrained by the Jewish law, which punished the murder of a slave with the utmost rigour, Exod. xxi. 20. The kindness enjoined towards hired servants is most remarkable, Deut. xxiv. 14, 15. The injunctions respecting Hebrew slaves were no less merciful, Lev. xxv. 43; Deut. xv. 12, 13. It should seem also, as if all other bondmen or slaves, even those captured in war or brought from the neighbouring heathen nations, were to be emancipated in the year of the jubilee, that is, every fiftieth year, Lev. xxv. 10. The utmost care, in short, is taken throughout to guard against every species of tyranny and oppression, and to protect the helpless and weak from the wanton insolence of prosperity and power. The tenderness of the Divine Legislator thought no creature below its notice: and extended itself to the minutest articles of social and domestic life, which, though unnoticed by less benevolent lawgivers, do, in fact, constitute a very great and essential part of human happiness and misery.

With such heavenly institutions as these, which we shall in vain look for in any Pagan government, is every page of the Jewish law replete. It is from these we are to form our judgment of the Jews, of their religion, and its Divine Author; and if these had their proper effect on the manners of the people, they must have produced upon the whole a constant and habitual, though, perhaps, from the very nature of their situation, a confined benevolence, much superiour, not only to that of their rude contemporaries, but to the boasted lenity of much later and more polished nations. Bp. Porteus.

— judgments] Those political laws which God thought fit to give for the determination of differences among the people; and for their just and peaceable government. Bp. Patrick.

2. — an Hebrew servant,] Or slave; some Hebrews sold themselves from poverty; and others were sold by the court of judicature, on account of a theft, for which they were unable to make satisfaction. Bp. Patrick.

4. — have given him a wife,] A Gentile bondmaid, who was before in the master's service. Bp. Patrick.

6. — bore his ear through &c.] As a mark of servitude, and in token that he was now as it were fixed to the house. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

† Heb. be evil in the eyes of,
&c.

8 If she † please not her master, who hath betrothed her to himself; then shall he let her be redeemed: to sell her unto a strange nation he shall have no power, seeing he hath dealt deceitfully with her.

9 And if he have betrothed her unto his son, he shall deal with her after the manner of daughters.

10 If he take him another wife; her food, her raiment, and her duty of marriage, shall he not diminish.

11 And if he do not these three unto her, then shall she go out free without money.

• Lev. 24.
17.

12 ¶ ^b He that smiteth a man, so that he die, shall be surely put to death.

• Deut. 19.
3.

13 And if a man lie not in wait, but God deliver him into his hand; then ^c I will appoint thee a place whither he shall flee.

14 But if a man come presumptuously upon his neighbour, to slay him with guile; thou shalt take him from mine altar, that he may die.

15 ¶ And he that smiteth his father, or his mother, shall be surely put to death.

16 ¶ And he that stealeth a man, and selleth him, or if he be found in his hand, he shall surely be put to death.

^d Lev. 20. 9.
Prov. 20.
20.

17 ¶ And ^d he that curseth his father, or his mother, shall surely be put to death.

Matt. 15. 4.
Mark 7. 10.

¶ Or, revileth.
¶ Or,
his neighbour.

18 ¶ And if men strive together, and one smite another with a stone, or with his fist, and he die not, but keepeth his bed:

† Heb.
his ceasing.

19 If he rise again, and walk abroad upon his staff, then shall he that smote him be quit: only he shall pay for † the loss of his time, and shall cause him to be thoroughly healed.

† Heb.
avenged.

20 ¶ And if a man smite his servant, or his maid, with a rod, and he die under his hand; he shall be surely † punished.

The meaning is, he shall not go free at the end of the usual term of seven years, but shall continue with him till his master's death, or till the year of jubilee. Dr. S. Clarke.

8. — a strange nation] Another family or tribe; for it was in no case lawful to sell a Hebrew to any heathen nation. Bp. Patrick.

13. — God deliver him into his hand] If, by God's permission, he kill him unadvisedly. Bp. Patrick.

This expression, respecting a man being killed by accident, without any ill intention on the part of the slayer, is remarkable. It signifies that even those things, which to us seem the most casual and merely accidental, yet in respect of God, are really providential, and could not happen but by His (for wise reasons) permitting them to be done. Dr. S. Clarke.

14. — thou shalt take him from mine altar] That is, the most sacred and inviolable place of refuge, which shall not protect a wilful murderer, 1 Kings ii. 28. Bp. Patrick.

16. — he that stealeth a man, &c.] As liberty is equally valuable

21 Notwithstanding, if he continue a day or two, he shall not be punished: for he is his money.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

22 ¶ If men strive, and hurt a woman with child, so that her fruit depart from her, and yet no mischief follow: he shall be surely punished, according as the woman's husband will lay upon him; and he shall pay as the judges determine.

23 And if any mischief follow, then thou shalt give life for life,

24 ^e Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot,

^e Lev. 24.
20.
Deut. 19.
21.
Math. 5.
38.

25 Burning for burning, wound for wound, stripe for stripe.

26 ¶ And if a man smite the eye of his servant, or the eye of his maid, that it perish; he shall let him go free for his eye's sake.

27 And if he smite out his manservant's tooth, or his maidservant's tooth; he shall let him go free for his tooth's sake.

28 ¶ If an ox gore a man or a woman, that they die: then ^f the ox shall be surely stoned, and his flesh shall not be eaten; but the owner of the ox shall be quit.

^f Gen. 9. 5.

29 But if the ox were wont to push with his horn in time past, and it hath been testified to his owner, and he hath not kept him in, but that he hath killed a man or a woman; the ox shall be stoned, and his owner also shall be put to death.

30 If there be laid on him a sum of money, then he shall give for the ransom of his life whatsoever is laid upon him.

31 Whether he have gored a son, or have gored a daughter, according to this judgment shall it be done unto him.

32 If the ox shall push a manservant or maidservant; he shall give unto their master thirty shekels of silver, and the ox shall be stoned.

33 ¶ And if a man shall open a pit, or with life, the Jewish law with the strictest equity ordained, that if any man were convicted of attempting to reduce any fellow-citizen to slavery, he should be punished with death. Dr. Graves.

21. — for he is his money.] He bought him with his money; therefore not striking him for the purpose of killing him, he shall not be punished, since he is already punished in his loss. Bps. Hall and Patrick.

24. Eye for eye, &c.] Not in kind, but by a fine, proportioned to the damage received. The offender might in these cases, though not in murder, make a pecuniary satisfaction. Bp. Kidder. This mode of expression intimated that the punishment ought to be in proportion to the crime. This retaliation was never executed under the Mosaic law. The Jews misunderstood the law, which was only a direction to the magistrate, as if it authorized private revenge. Our Saviour therefore sets the law in its true light, Bp. Wilson.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

if a man shall dig a pit, and not cover it, and an ox or an ass fall therein;

34 The owner of the pit shall make it good, and give money unto the owner of them; and the dead beast shall be his.

35 ¶ And if one man's ox hurt another's, that he die; then they shall sell the live ox, and divide the money of it; and the dead ox also they shall divide.

36 Or if it be known that the ox hath used to push in time past, and his owner hath not kept him in; he shall surely pay ox for ox; and the dead shall be his own.

CHAP. XXII.

1 Of theft. 5 Of damage. 7 Of trespasses. 14 Of borrowing. 16 Of fornication. 18 Of witchcraft. 19 Of beastiality. 20 Of idolatry. 21 Of strangers, widows, and fatherless. 25 Of usury. 26 Of pledges. 28 Of reverence to magistrates. 29 Of the firstfruits.

¶ Or, goat.

* 2 Sam.
12. 6.

IF a man shall steal an ox, or a *¶*sheep, and kill it, or sell it; he shall restore five oxen for an ox, and *a*four sheep for a sheep.

2 ¶ If a thief be found breaking up, and be smitten that he die, there shall no blood be shed for him.

3 If the sun be risen upon him, there shall be blood shed for him; for he should make full restitution; if he have nothing, then he shall be sold for his theft.

4 If the theft be certainly found in his hand alive, whether it be ox, or ass, or sheep; he shall restore double.

5 ¶ If a man shall cause a field or vineyard to be eaten, and shall put in his beast, and shall feed in another man's field; of the best of his own field, and of the best of his own vineyard, shall he make restitution.

6 ¶ If fire break out, and catch in thorns, so that the stacks of corn, or the standing corn, or the field, be consumed therewith;

36. — if it be known &c.] There is a great difference between what is done casually, and what is done constantly. The former verse speaks of the hurt done by a beast, that was not accustomed to push; and this, of the hurt done by one notoriously mischievous. Accordingly greater damages were given in this latter case than in the former. And by this general rule the Jews regulated all other cases. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXII. ver. 1. — five oxen — four sheep] The reason of the greater punishment for stealing an ox seems to be, that the ox was of greater value, was useful in agriculture, and perhaps was more easily stolen, as feeding separately in the field. Bp. Patrick.

3. If the sun be risen &c.] It is remarkable that the laws of most nations have punished more severely an attack by night than by day. The Jewish law made it justifiable to kill a house-breaker, only in the case of a nocturnal attempt: the Athenian and Roman laws enacted the same: and by the English law, if a he that kindled the fire shall surely make restitution. Before

CHRIST
1491.

7 ¶ If a man shall deliver unto his neighbour money or stuff to keep, and it be stolen out of the man's house; if the thief be found, let him pay double.

8 If the thief be not found, then the master of the house shall be brought unto the judges, to see whether he have put his hand unto his neighbour's goods.

9 For all manner of trespass, whether it be for ox, for ass, for sheep, for raiment, or for any manner of lost thing, which another challengeth to be his, the cause of both parties shall come before the judges; and whom the judges shall condemn, he shall pay double unto his neighbour.

10 If a man deliver unto his neighbour an ass, or an ox, or a sheep, or any beast, to keep; and it die, or be hurt, or driven away, no man seeing it:

11 Then shall an oath of the Lord be between them both, that he hath not put his hand unto his neighbour's goods; and the owner of it shall accept thereof, and he shall not make it good.

12 And *b*if it be stolen from him, he shall make restitution unto the owner thereof. b Gen. 31.
39.

13 If it be torn in pieces, then let him bring it for witness, and he shall not make good that which was torn.

14 ¶ And if a man borrow ought of his neighbour, and it be hurt, or die, the owner thereof being not with it, he shall surely make it good.

15 But if the owner thereof be with it, he shall not make it good: if it be an hired thing, it came for his hire.

16 ¶ And *c*if a man entice a maid that is not betrothed, and lie with her, he shall surely endow her to be his wife. c Deut. 22.
28.

17 If her father utterly refuse to give person attempts to break open a house in the night time, and is killed in the attempt, the slayer is acquitted; not so in the day time, unless the act carries with it an attempt at robbery also. Blackstone.

6. If fire break out, &c.] It is a common custom in the East, to set the dry herbage on fire, before the descent of the autumnal rains; which fires, for want of care, often do great damage: on this account it is expressly provided in the law of Moses, that those who occasion them maliciously, or through great negligence, should be liable to make all damages good. Harmer.

11. — an oath of the Lord] They shall be put to swear by the name of God. Bp. Hall. "An oath of the Lord" is an oath, wherein God is appealed to as the only witness, there being no need of this oath, where there was any other witness. He that had stolen was forced to forswear himself, if he would avoid discovery. Hence it is that theft and perjury are so often mentioned together in Scripture, one very often inferring the other. See Lev. xix. 11, 12; Prov. xxx. 8, 9; Zech. v. 3, 4. Bp. Kidder.

Before CHRIST 1491. her unto him, he shall † pay money according to the dowry of virgins.

† Heb. weigh. 18 ¶ Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live.

19 ¶ Whosoever lieth with a beast shall surely be put to death.

^d Deut. 13. 13, 14, 15. 1 Mac. 2. 24. 20 ¶ ^d He that sacrificeth unto any god, save unto the Lord only, he shall be utterly destroyed.

^e Lev. 19. 33. 21 ¶ ^e Thou shalt neither vex a stranger, nor oppress him: for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

^f Zech. 7. 10. 22 ¶ ^f Ye shall not afflict any widow, or fatherless child.

23 If thou afflict them in any wise, and they cry at all unto me, I will surely hear their cry;

24 And my wrath shall wax hot, and I will kill you with the sword; and your wives shall be widows, and your children fatherless.

^g Lev. 25. 37. Deut. 23. 19. Psal. 15. 5. 25 ¶ ^g If thou lend money to any of my people that is poor by thee, thou shalt not be to him as an usurer, neither shalt thou lay upon him usury.

26 If thou at all take thy neighbour's raiment to pledge, thou shalt deliver it unto him by that the sun goeth down:

27 For that is his covering only, it is his raiment for his skin: wherein shall he crieth unto me, that I will hear; for I am gracious.

^h Acts 23. 5. ¶ Or, judges. 28 ¶ ^h Thou shalt not revile the || gods, nor curse the ruler of thy people.

29 ¶ Thou shalt not delay to offer † the first of thy ripe fruits, and of thy † liquors: † Heb. tear. the firstborn of thy sons shalt thou give unto me.

30 Likewise shalt thou do with thine oxen, and with thy sheep: seven days it shall be with his dam; on the eighth day thou shalt give it me.

18. — a witch] One who practises diabolical arts. Dr. Wells. A woman that pretends to the power of inverting the established order of nature. Bp. Kidder. The Hebrew word refers, in its original sense, to the pretended discovery of things hidden, or future, by magical means. Parkhurst.

27. For that is his covering &c.] To the present time the Arabs use their clothes as a covering both by day and by night. The usual size of their garments is six yards long, and five or six feet broad; serving them for a complete dress in the day; and as they sleep in their raiments, as the Israelites did of old, it serves likewise for a bed and covering at night. Dr. Shaw.

28. — the gods,] The judges or under magistrates. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells, &c.

— the ruler of thy people.] The civil, the judiciary magistrate. He was not to be reviled, especially in the discharge of his office. Calmet.

Chap. XXIII. ver. 2. Thou shalt not follow &c.] If thou art a judge, thou shalt not be influenced, either by the people, "the 31 ¶ And ye shall be holy men unto me: ^k neither shall ye eat any flesh that is torn of beasts in the field; ye shall cast it to the dogs.

Before CHRIST 1491. ^k Lev. 22. 8. Ezek. 44. 31.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 Of slander and false witness. 3, 6 Of justice. 4 Of charitableness. 10 Of the year of rest. 12 Of the sabbath. 13 Of idolatry. 14 Of the three feasts. 18 Of the blood and the fat of the sacrifice. 20 An Angel is promised, with a blessing, if they obey him.

THOU shalt not || raise a false report: || Or, put not thine hand with the wicked receive. to be an unrighteous witness.

2 ¶ Thou shalt not follow a multitude to do evil; neither shalt thou † speak in a cause to decline after many to wrest judgment: † Heb. answer.

3 ¶ Neither shalt thou countenance a poor man in his cause.

4 ¶ If thou meet thine enemy's ox or his ass going astray, thou shalt surely bring it back to him again.

5 ^a If thou see the ass of him that hateth thee lying under his burden, || and wouldest forbear to help him, thou shalt surely help with him. ^a Deut. 22. 4. || Or, wilt thou cease to help him? or, and wouldest cease to leave thy business for him: thou shalt surely leave it to join with him.

6 Thou shalt not wrest the judgment of thy poor in his cause.

7 Keep thee far from a false matter; and the innocent and righteous slay thou not: for I will not justify the wicked.

8 ¶ And ^b thou shalt take no gift: for the gift blindeth † the wise, and perverteth the words of the righteous. ^b Deut. 16. 19. Eccl¹⁹ 20. 29. † Heb. the seeing. † Heb. soul.

9 ¶ Also thou shalt not oppress a stranger: for ye know the † heart of a stranger, seeing ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

10 And ^c six years thou shalt sow thy land, and shalt gather in the fruits thereof: ^c Lev. 25. 3.

11 But the seventh year thou shalt let multitude;" or by the great, who are generally attended by "many" supporters; to pronounce a false or unjust judgment. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

3. Neither shalt thou countenance a poor man &c.] If his cause be bad, let his poverty be what it will, thou mayest not countenance him in it. Bp. Sanderson.

6. Thou shalt not wrest the judgment of thy poor] As they were not to favour a man because he was poor, ver. 3, so much less might they wrong him, or forbear to do him right, because he wanted money to prosecute his cause. Bp. Patrick.

7. — false matter;] False accusation, if the precept is addressed to persons in general: or false judgment, if it is addressed to judges, whom he seems to command not to "slay the innocent;" that is, not to pronounce a sentence of death upon them, or condemn them. Bp. Patrick.

9. — ye know the heart of a stranger,] Ye have felt what a distressed condition that of a stranger is; how friendless and helpless. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

it rest and lie still; that the poor of thy people may eat: and what they leave the beasts of the field shall eat. In like manner thou shalt deal with thy vineyard, and with thy || oliveyard.

|| Or,
olive trees.
* Chap. 20.
8.
Deut. 5, 13.
Luke 13.
14.

12 ^a Six days thou shalt do thy work, and on the seventh day thou shalt rest: that thine ox and thine ass may rest, and the son of thy handmaid, and the stranger, may be refreshed.

13 And in all things that I have said unto you be circumspect: and make no mention of the name of other gods, neither let it be heard out of thy mouth.

* Deut. 16.
16.

14 ¶ ^c Three times thou shalt keep a feast unto me in the year.

† Chap. 13.
3. & 34. 18.

15 ^r Thou shalt keep the feast of unleavened bread: (thou shalt eat unleavened bread seven days, as I commanded thee, in the time appointed of the month Abib; for in it thou camest out from Egypt: ^s and none shall appear before me empty:)

* Deut. 16.
16.
Ecclesiast. 35.
4.

16 And the feast of harvest, the firstfruits of thy labours, which thou hast sown in thy field: and the feast of ingathering, which is in the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the field.

17 Three times in the year all thy males shall appear before the LORD God.

18 Thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leavened bread; neither shall the fat of my || sacrifice remain until the morning.

|| Or, feast.

* Chap. 34.
26.

19 ^b The first of the firstfruits of thy land thou shalt bring into the house of the LORD thy God. ⁱ Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk.

† Deut. 14.
21.

* Chap. 33.
2.

20 ¶ ^k Behold, I send an Angel before thee, to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared.

21 Beware of him, and obey his voice, provoke him not; for he will not pardon your transgressions: for my name is in him. Before CHRIST 1491.

22 But if thou shalt indeed obey his voice, and do all that I speak; then I will be an enemy unto thine enemies, and an || adversary unto thine adversaries.

|| Or,
I will afflict them that afflict thee.
† Chap. 33.
2.
* Josh. 24.
11.

23 ^l For mine Angel shall go before thee, and ^m bring thee in unto the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites: and I will cut them off.

24 Thou shalt not bow down to their gods, nor serve them, nor do after their works: ⁿ but thou shalt utterly overthrow them, and quite break down their images.

* Deut. 7.
25.

25 And ye shall serve the LORD your God, and he shall bless thy bread, and thy water; and I will take sickness away from the midst of thee.

26 ¶ ^o There shall nothing cast their young, nor be barren, in thy land: the number of thy days I will fulfil.

* Deut. 7.
14.

27 I will send my fear before thee, and will destroy all the people to whom thou shalt come, and I will make all thine enemies turn their † backs unto thee.

† Heb. neck.
* Josh. 24.
12.

28 And ^p I will send hornets before thee, which shall drive out the Hivite, the Canaanite, and the Hittite, from before thee.

29 I will not drive them out from before thee in one year; lest the land become desolate, and the beast of the field multiply against thee.

30 By little and little I will drive them out from before thee, until thou be increased, and inherit the land.

31 And I will set thy bounds from the Red sea even unto the sea of the Philistines, and from the desert unto the river: for I will deliver the inhabitants of the land into your hand; and thou shalt drive them out before thee.

32 ^q Thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor with their gods. * Chap. 34. 15. Deut. 7. 2.

13. — make no mention of the name of other gods.] With any reverence, or any approbation, by appealing to them, or vowing by their names. It was not unlawful merely to mention the names of other gods in ordinary conversation. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

19. — Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk.] This precept has respect to an idolatrous custom of the heathens of those days, cruel as well as superstitious, who used to boil a kid in its mother's milk, and sprinkle it on their fields and trees, in order to make them fruitful. Pyle.

20. — an Angel] Called at verse 23, "Mine Angel." See chap. xiv. 19.

21. — my name is in him.] He acts by My authority and power. Bp. Patrick. My power and divinity is in Him. Bp. Hall. John x. 38.

The name of God signifies His essence, Exod. iii. 13, 14. And sometimes His word, says Maimonides; and is applicable to the Messiah in both these senses. Bp. Kidder.

28. — I will send hornets before thee, &c.] See the accomplishment of this promise in Josh. xxiv. 12, 13, with the note upon it.

Eliau gives a history of the Phasaelites, driven from their country by wasps. These people inhabited the mountains of Solyma, and were originally of Phenicia, that is, descendants of the Canaanites; and very probably were some of those very people, who were expelled their country by those wasps or hornets, which were sent to precede the army of Israel. Script. illust.

31. — I will set thy bounds &c.] See Gen. xv. 18, and Numb. xxxiv. "The sea of the Philistines" is the Mediterranean sea, on which the Philistines bordered: "the desert," the desert of Arabia, or Shur, Exod. xv. 22, near Egypt; and "the river," the Euphrates.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

Deut. 7.
16.
Josh. 23. 13.
Judg. 3. 3.

33 They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me: for if thou serve their gods, ^e it will surely be a snare unto thee.

CHAP. XXIV.

¹ Moses is called up into the mountain. ³ The people promise obedience. ⁴ Moses buildeth an altar, and twelve pillars. ⁶ He sprinkleth the blood of the covenant. ⁹ The glory of God appeareth. ¹⁴ Aaron and Hur have the charge of the people. ¹⁵ Moses goeth into the mountain, where he continueth forty days and forty nights.

AND he said unto Moses, Come up unto the LORD, thou, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel; and worship ye afar off.

² And Moses alone shall come near the LORD: but they shall not come nigh; neither shall the people go up with him.

³ ¶ And Moses came and told the people all the words of the LORD, and all the judgments: and all the people answered with one voice, and said, ^a All the words which the LORD hath said will we do.

⁴ And Moses wrote all the words of the LORD, and rose up early in the morning, and builded an altar under the hill, and twelve pillars, according to the twelve tribes of Israel.

⁵ And he sent young men of the children of Israel, which offered burnt offerings, and sacrificed peace offerings of oxen unto the LORD.

⁶ And Moses took half of the blood, and put it in basons; and half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar.

⁷ And he took the book of the covenant, and read in the audience of the people: and they said, ^b All that the LORD hath said will we do, and be obedient.

⁸ And Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people, and said, Behold ^c the blood of the covenant, which the LORD hath made with you concerning all these words.

⁹ ¶ Then went up Moses, and Aaron,

Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel:

¹⁰ And they saw the God of Israel: and there was under his feet as it were a paved work of a sapphire stone, and as it were the body of heaven in his clearness.

¹¹ And upon the nobles of the children of Israel he laid not his hand: also they saw God, and did eat and drink.

¹² ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Come up to me into the mount, and be there: and I will give thee tables of stone, and a law, and commandments which I have written; that thou mayest teach them.

¹³ And Moses rose up, and his minister Joshua: and Moses went up into the mount of God.

¹⁴ And he said unto the elders, Tarry ye here for us, until we come again unto you: and, behold, Aaron and Hur are with you: if any man have any matters to do, let him come unto them.

¹⁵ And Moses went up into the mount, and a cloud covered the mount.

¹⁶ And the glory of the LORD abode upon mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it six days: and the seventh day he called unto Moses out of the midst of the cloud.

¹⁷ And the sight of the glory of the LORD was like devouring fire on the top of the mount in the eyes of the children of Israel.

¹⁸ And Moses went into the midst of the cloud, and gat him up into the mount: and ^d Moses was in the mount forty days and forty nights.

CHAP. XXV.

¹ What the Israelites must offer for the making of the tabernacle. ¹⁰ The form of the ark. ¹⁷ The mercy seat, with the cherubims. ²³ The table, with the furniture thereof. ³¹ The candlestick, with the instruments thereof.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

² Speak unto the children of Israel, that

Chap. XXIV. ver. 4. — an altar — and twelve pillars.] The former to represent God in this covenant, which follows: the latter, to represent the twelve tribes of Israel. Bp. Patrick.

8. — Behold the blood of the covenant,] Behold that blood, by which the covenant made between God and you is signified to be confirmed. Bp. Hall. This was a figure of the blood of Christ, Matt. xxvi. 28. Bp. Kidder.

10. And they saw the God of Israel:] The visible glory of God, the symbols of His Majesty and presence, appearing with more splendour and brightness than ever before. Dr. Wells, Pyle.

— under his feet] Under the lower part of this glorious light. There was no bodily form; for it is expressly said at Deut. iv. 15, that they “saw no manner of similitude.” Thus the Divine Majesty is sometimes said to have a footstool, though it have no human shape. Bp. Patrick.

— a paved work of a sapphire stone,] A pavement very bright and glistening. Bp. Patrick.

— the body of heaven] As clear as the purest and serenest sky, when it is all spangled with stars. Bp. Patrick.

11. — also they saw God, &c.] They saw God in these signs of His manifestation, and yet lived in health and soundness of body. Bp. Hall.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

^d Chap. 34.
28.
Deut. 9. 9.

^{Before} CHRIST 1491. they † bring me an || offering: ^a of every man that giveth it willingly with his heart ye shall take my offering.

† Heb. take for me. 3 And this is the offering which ye shall take of them; gold, and silver, and brass,

|| Or, heave offering. 4 And blue, and purple, and scarlet, and

^a Chap. 35. || fine linen, and goats' hair,

5. || Or, silk. 5 And rams' skins dyed red, and badgers' skins, and shittim wood,

6 Oil for the light, spices for anointing oil, and for sweet incense,

7 Onyx stones, and stones to be set in the ^bephod, and in the ^cbreastplate.

^b Chap. 28. 4. 8 And let them make me a sanctuary; ^c Chap. 28. 15. that I may dwell among them.

9 According to all that I shew thee, after the pattern of the tabernacle, and the pattern of all the instruments thereof, even so shall ye make it.

^a Chap. 37. 1. 10 ¶ ^d And they shall make an ark of shittim wood: two cubits and a half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof.

11 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, within and without shalt thou overlay it, and shalt make upon it a crown of gold round about.

Chap. XXV. ver. 4. — blue, and purple, &c.] These were probably woollen or yarn cloths; not made of silk, which, it is thought, was not discovered in those early times; of fine linen there was a peculiar kind among the Egyptians called Byssus. It is supposed that the Israelites either brought the materials here mentioned with them from Egypt, or else obtained them by trafficking with some neighbouring tribes, and giving in exchange other valuables which they had brought with them. Bp. Patrick.

— goats' hair,] Many ancient and modern writers describe the goats of Asia, Phrygia, and Cilicia: their hair is very long, white, bright, and fine, and hangs to the ground; in beauty it almost equals silk, and it is never sheared, but combed off. The shepherds carefully wash their goats often in the rivers. The women spin the hair, and it is carried to Angora, where it is worked and finely dyed. It affords at this day a great trade at Angora and Aleppo. Calmet.

5. — badgers' skins,] There are doubts respecting the meaning of the Hebrew word, translated badgers' skins. The most ancient interpreters think that it does not signify any skin, but a colour. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

— shittim wood,] The shittim wood, of which very frequent mention is made in Scripture, grew in the neighbourhood of mount Sinai, as well as in other places, being exceedingly durable, smooth, and strong. Bp. Patrick.

St. Jerome says, that the shittim wood resembles the white thorn; that it is of an admirable beauty, solidity, strength and smoothness. It is thought he means the Black Acacia, which, they say, is the only tree found in the deserts of Arabia. Calmet. The Acacia being by far the largest and the most common tree of these deserts, (Arabia Petrea,) we have some reason to conjecture that the shittim wood, of which the utensils, &c. of the tabernacle (Exod. xxv.) were made, was the wood of the Acacia. This tree abounds with flowers of a globular figure and of an excellent smell, which may further induce us to take it for the same with the shittah tree, which, in 1s. xli. 19, is joined with the myrtle and other sweet-smelling plants. Dr. Shaw. The Acacia Vera seems to be the only indigenous tree in Upper Egypt. From it ^{Before} CHRIST 1491. 12 And thou shalt cast four rings of gold for it, and put them in the four corners thereof; and two rings shall be in the one side of it, and two rings in the other side of it.

13 And thou shalt make staves of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold.

14 And thou shalt put the staves into the rings by the sides of the ark, that the ark may be borne with them.

15 The staves shall be in the rings of the ark: they shall not be taken from it.

16 And thou shalt put into the ark the testimony which I shall give thee.

17 And thou shalt make a mercy seat of pure gold: two cubits and a half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof.

18 And thou shalt make two cherubims of gold, of beaten work shalt thou make them, in the two ends of the mercy seat.

19 And make one cherub on the one end, and the other cherub on the other end: even || of the mercy seat shall ye make the cherubims on the two ends thereof. || Or, of the matter of the mercy seat.

20 And the cherubims shall stretch forth their wings on high, covering the mercy seat with their wings, and their faces shall proceeds the gun-Arabick, which chiefly comes from Arabia Petrea, where these trees are most numerous: but it is the most common tree of all the deserts from the northernmost part of Arabia to the extremity of Ethiopia. Bruce.

8. — a sanctuary,] A tabernacle or tent, called a sanctuary or holy place, because it was appropriated to God, and because no uncircumcised or unclean person might enter into it without profanation: there God was to dwell or to manifest His presence in a peculiar manner by a cloud or visible glory. Bp. Patrick.

10. — an ark,] A chest or coffer. Bp. Patrick. A cubit, according to Bp. Cumberland, was about twenty-one inches of our measure. See the tables.

11. — a crown of gold round about,] A mixed border which went round the top of it. Bp. Patrick. A cornice or rim of massy gold. Pyle.

16. — put into the ark the testimony,] The two tables of stone, containing the Ten Commandments, which testified what the will of God was, which the Israelites consented to observe. Hence the ark itself is frequently called the ark of the testimony, chap. xl. 21. Bp. Patrick.

17. — thou shalt make a mercy seat,] The lid or covering of the ark was called the mercy seat, or propitiatory, because God here shewed Himself to be propitious, being appeased by the blood of the sacrifices which was sprinkled on this place. Bp. Patrick.

18. — cherubims,] These were winged figures: and the circumstance of their being placed in the Holy of Holies, (a type of the highest heaven, Hebr. ix. 24,) makes it probable that they represent the angels which stand before God continually, Matt. xviii. 10, ready to do God's will, Hebr. i. 14. Bp. Kidder. It is uncertain of what shape they were. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. The Jewish doctors have always represented the cherubim on the holy ark under the shape of winged boys. Archdeacon Sharp. It was between the cherubim, over the lid of the ark, that the glory of the Lord resided. Hence God is said to dwell between the cherubims, Ps. lxxx. 1, and the ark is called His footstool, Ps. xcix. 5. Here He displayed the token of His immediate presence, and hence He delivered out His orders and commands. Pyle.

TABERNACLE IN THE WILDERNESS,
With the Court of the Tabernacle. EXOD. XXV. XXVII.

Altar of burnt offerings.
 EXOD. XXVII. 1. 8.

the laver of brass belonging to the Tabernacle.
 EXOD. XXV. 18.

TABERNACLE UNCOVERED. EXOD. XXVII
A. The Holy Place. B. The most Holy or Holy of Holies.

taken from Calmet

The Table of Showbread.

EXOD. XXV. 23-30.
LEVIT. XXIV. 5-6.

The Altar of Incense.

EXOD. XXX. 1-5.

The Candlestick

EXOD. XXV. 31-37.

The Censer

The Altar of Brass in Solomon's Temple.

2. CHRON. IV. 1.

The Ark of the Covenant with the mercy seat

EXOD. XXV. 10-21.

taken from Calmet

One of the ten brazen lavers in Solomon's Temple standing on its base or pedestal.

1. KINGS VII. 27-38.

Thomasson sculp.

^{Before CHRIST 1491.} look one to another; toward the mercy seat shall the faces of the cherubims be.

21 And thou shalt put the mercy seat above upon the ark; and in the ark thou shalt put the testimony that I shall give thee.

^{e Numb. 7. 89.} 22 And there I will meet with thee, and I will commune with thee from above the mercy seat, from ^e between the two cherubims which are upon the ark of the testimony, of all things which I will give thee in commandment unto the children of Israel.

^{f Chap. 37. 10.} 23 ¶ ^f Thou shalt also make a table of shittim wood: two cubits shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof.

24 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, and make thereto a crown of gold round about.

25 And thou shalt make unto it a border of an hand breadth round about, and thou shalt make a golden crown to the border thereof round about.

26 And thou shalt make for it four rings of gold, and put the rings in the four corners that are on the four feet thereof.

27 Over against the border shall the rings be for places of the staves to bear the table.

28 And thou shalt make the staves of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold, that the table may be borne with them.

^{|| Or, to pour out withal.} 29 And thou shalt make the dishes thereof, and spoons thereof, and covers thereof, and bowls thereof, || to cover withal: of pure gold shalt thou make them.

30 And thou shalt set upon the table shewbread before me alway.

^{e Chap. 37. 17.} 31 ¶ ^e And thou shalt make a candlestick of pure gold: of beaten work shall the candlestick be made: his shaft, and his branches, his bowls, his knops, and his flowers, shall be of the same.

32 And six branches shall come out of the sides of it; three branches of the candlestick out of the one side, and three branches of the candlestick out of the other side:

29. — the dishes — spoons — covers — bowls] It is thought that in the “dishes” the shewbread was placed. The “spoons,” vials or cups, as some translate, used in conveying the incense. The “covers,” with which the loaves and the incense were covered. The “bowls,” for the wine used in the sacrifices. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. “To cover withal,” the most probable meaning is, that the above-mentioned utensils were to cover or furnish out the table. Bp. Kidder.

30. — shewbread] In Hebrew, the bread of the face or presence, because it was set before the ark of the covenant, where God was present. Bp. Patrick. See it described at Levit. xxiv. 5, 7.

^{Before CHRIST 1491.} 33 Three bowls made like unto almonds, with a knop and a flower in one branch; and three bowls made like almonds in the other branch, with a knop and a flower: so in the six branches that come out of the candlestick.

34 And in the candlestick shall be four bowls made like unto almonds, with their knops and their flowers.

35 And there shall be a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, according to the six branches that proceed out of the candlestick.

36 Their knops and their branches shall be of the same: all of it shall be one beaten work of pure gold.

37 And thou shalt make the seven lamps thereof: and they shall || light the lamps thereof, that they may give light over against [†] it.

38 And the tongs thereof, and the snuffdishes thereof, shall be of pure gold.

39 Of a talent of pure gold shall he make it, with all these vessels.

40 And ^b look that thou make them after their pattern, [†] which was shewed thee in the mount.

^{|| Or, cause to ascend.}
^{† Heb. the face of it.}

^{b Acts 7. 44.}
^{Hebr. 8. 5.}
^{† Heb. which thou wast caused to see.}

CHAP. XXVI.

1 The ten curtains of the tabernacle. 7 The eleven curtains of goats' hair. 14 The covering of rams' skins. 15 The boards of the tabernacle, with their sockets and bars. 31 The vail for the ark. 36 The hanging for the door.

MOREOVER thou shalt make the tabernacle with ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet: with cherubims [†] of cunning work shalt thou make them.

2 The length of one curtain shall be eight and twenty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and every one of the curtains shall have one measure.

3 The five curtains shall be coupled together one to another; and other five curtains shall be coupled one to another.

^{† Heb. the work of a cunning workman, or, embroiderer.}

Chap. XXVI. ver. 1. — the tabernacle] The Hebrew word properly signifies any habitation or place to dwell in; and here denotes a tent, or dwelling which might be moved from place to place.

This tabernacle had four separate coverings, the ten curtains mentioned in this verse, the curtains of goats' hair, ver. 7, and the two coverings mentioned at ver. 14, to preserve and shelter it from the weather. Bp. Patrick.

— with cherubims of cunning work] Meaning that figures of cherubims should be curiously wrought on the curtains. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

4 And thou shalt make loops of blue upon the edge of the one curtain from the selvedge in the coupling; and likewise shalt thou make in the uttermost edge of another curtain, in the coupling of the second.

5 Fifty loops shalt thou make in the one curtain, and fifty loops shalt thou make in the edge of the curtain that is in the coupling of the second; that the loops may take hold one of another.

6 And thou shalt make fifty taches of gold, and couple the curtains together with the taches: and it shall be one tabernacle.

7 ¶ And thou shalt make curtains of goats' hair to be a covering upon the tabernacle: eleven curtains shalt thou make.

8 The length of one curtain shall be thirty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and the eleven curtains shall be all of one measure.

9 And thou shalt couple five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves, and shalt double the sixth curtain in the forefront of the tabernacle.

10 And thou shalt make fifty loops on the edge of the one curtain that is outmost in the coupling, and fifty loops in the edge of the curtain which completh the second.

† Or, covering.

11 And thou shalt make fifty taches of brass, and put the taches into the loops, and couple the tent together, that it may be one.

12 And the remnant that remaineth of the curtains of the tent, the half curtain that remaineth, shall hang over the back-side of the tabernacle.

† Heb.
in the remainder, or, surplusage.

13 And a cubit on the one side, and a cubit on the other side † of that which remaineth in the length of the curtains of the tent, it shall hang over the sides of the tabernacle on this side and on that side, to cover it.

14 And thou shalt make a covering for the tent of rams' skins dyed red, and a covering above of badgers' skins.

15 ¶ And thou shalt make boards for the tabernacle of shittim wood standing up.

16 Ten cubits shall be the length of a board, and a cubit and a half shall be the breadth of one board.

† Heb.
boards.

17 Two † tenons shall there be in one board, set in order one against another: thus shalt thou make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

18 And thou shalt make the boards for the tabernacle, twenty boards on the south side southward.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

19 And thou shalt make forty sockets of silver under the twenty boards; two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and two sockets under another board for his two tenons.

20 And for the second side of the tabernacle on the north side there shall be twenty boards:

21 And their forty sockets of silver; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

22 And for the sides of the tabernacle westward thou shalt make six boards.

23 And two boards shalt thou make for the corners of the tabernacle in the two sides.

24 And they shall be † coupled together beneath, and they shall be coupled together above the head of it unto one ring: thus shall it be for them both; they shall be for the two corners.

† Heb.
twined

25 And they shall be eight boards, and their sockets of silver, sixteen sockets; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

26 ¶ And thou shalt make bars of shittim wood; five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle, 27 And five bars for the boards of the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the side of the tabernacle, for the two sides westward.

28 And the middle bar in the midst of the boards shall reach from end to end.

29 And thou shalt overlay the boards with gold, and make their rings of gold for places for the bars: and thou shalt overlay the bars with gold.

30 And thou shalt rear up the tabernacle according to the fashion thereof which was shewed thee in the mount.

* Chap. 25.
9, 40.
Acts 7. 44.
Hebr. 8. 5.

31 ¶ And thou shalt make a vail of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen of cunning work: with cherubims shall it be made:

32 And thou shalt hang it upon four pillars of shittim wood overlaid with gold: their hooks shall be of gold, upon the four sockets of silver.

33 ¶ And thou shalt hang up the vail under the taches, that thou mayest bring in thither within the vail the ark of the testimony: and the vail shall divide unto you between the holy place and the most holy.

31. — cunning work:] Work ingeniously and curiously wrought: this seems to be more curious work than the "needle-work" mentioned ver. 36. Ep. Patrick.

33. — between the holy place and the most holy.] The Holy place, into which none but the priests could enter; the most Holy, the Sanctuary or Holy of Holies, into which none but the high

Before
CHRIST
1491.

34 And thou shalt put the mercy seat upon the ark of the testimony in the most holy place.

35 And thou shalt set the table without the vail, and the candlestick over against the table on the side of the tabernacle toward the south: and thou shalt put the table on the north side.

36 And thou shalt make an hanging for the door of the tent, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needlework.

37 And thou shalt make for the hanging five pillars of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold, and their hooks shall be of gold: and thou shalt cast five sockets of brass for them.

CHAP. XXVII.

1 The altar of burnt offering, with the vessels thereof. 9 The court of the tabernacle inclosed with hangings and pillars. 18 The measure of the court. 20 The oil for the lamp.

AND thou shalt make an altar of shittim wood, five cubits long, and five cubits broad; the altar shall be foursquare: and the height thereof shall be three cubits.

2 And thou shalt make the horns of it upon the four corners thereof: his horns shall be of the same: and thou shalt overlay it with brass.

3 And thou shalt make his pans to receive his ashes, and his shovels, and his basons, and his fleshhooks, and his fire-pans: all the vessels thereof thou shalt make of brass.

4 And thou shalt make for it a grate of network of brass; and upon the net shalt thou make four brasen rings in the four corners thereof.

5 And thou shalt put it under the compass of the altar beneath, that the net may be even to the midst of the altar.

6 And thou shalt make staves for the altar, staves of shittim wood, and overlay them with brass.

7 And the staves shall be put into the rings, and the staves shall be upon the two sides of the altar, to bear it.

8 Hollow with boards shalt thou make it: ^{† Heb. he shewed.} as it was shewed thee in the mount, so shall they make it.

9 ¶ And thou shalt make the court of the

Before
CHRIST
1491.

tabernacle: for the south side southward there shall be hangings for the court of fine twined linen of an hundred cubits long for one side:

10 And the twenty pillars thereof and their twenty sockets shall be of brass; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets shall be of silver.

11 And likewise for the north side in length there shall be hangings of an hundred cubits long, and his twenty pillars and their twenty sockets of brass; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets of silver.

12 ¶ And for the breadth of the court on the west side shall be hangings of fifty cubits: their pillars ten, and their sockets ten.

13 And the breadth of the court on the east side eastward shall be fifty cubits.

14 The hangings of one side of the gate shall be fifteen cubits: their pillars three, and their sockets three.

15 And on the other side shall be hangings fifteen cubits: their pillars three, and their sockets three.

16 ¶ And for the gate of the court shall be an hanging of twenty cubits, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needlework: and their pillars shall be four, and their sockets four.

17 All the pillars round about the court shall be filleted with silver; their hooks shall be of silver, and their sockets of brass.

18 ¶ The length of the court shall be an hundred cubits, and the breadth ^{† Heb. fifty by fifty.} fifty every where, and the height five cubits of fine twined linen, and their sockets of brass.

19 All the vessels of the tabernacle in all the service thereof, and all the pins thereof, and all the pins of the court, shall be of brass.

20 ¶ And thou shalt command the children of Israel, that they bring thee pure oil olive beaten for the light, to cause the lamp ^{† Heb. to ascend up.} to burn always.

21 In the tabernacle of the congregation without the vail, which is before the testimony, Aaron and his sons shall order it from evening to morning before the Lord:

priest could enter, and he only once a year, on the great day of expiation. Stackhouse.

Chap. XXVII. ver. 1. — thou shalt make an altar] The altar of burnt offerings, as is explained at Exod. chap. xxxviii. ver. 1.

20. — oil olive beaten] That is, oil not squeezed out by a press or mill, but such as ran freely from the olives when bruised. Bp. Patrick.

21. — the vail, which is before the testimony,] The vail which was before the "ark of the testimony," and which separated the Holy place from the Holy of Holies. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

it shall be a statute for ever unto their generations on the behalf of the children of Israel.

CHAP. XXVIII.

1 Aaron and his sons are set apart for the priest's office. 2 Holy garments are appointed. 6 The ephod. 15 The breastplate with twelve precious stones. 30 The Urim and Thummim. 31 The robe of the ephod, with pomegranates and bells. 36 The plate of the mitre. 39 The embroidered coat. 40 The garments for Aaron's sons.

AND take thou unto thee Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him, from among the children of Israel, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office, even Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron's sons.

2 And thou shalt make holy garments for Aaron thy brother for glory and for beauty.

3 And thou shalt speak unto all that are wise hearted, whom I have filled with the spirit of wisdom, that they may make Aaron's garments to consecrate him, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

4 And these are the garments which they shall make; a breastplate, and an ephod, and a robe, and a broidered coat, a mitre, and a girdle: and they shall make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, and his sons, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

5 And they shall take gold, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen.

6 ¶ And they shall make the ephod of gold, of blue, and of purple, of scarlet, and fine twined linen, with cunning work.

7 It shall have the two shoulderpieces thereof joined at the two edges thereof; and so it shall be joined together.

¶ Or, embroidered.

8 And the curious girdle of the ephod, which is upon it, shall be of the same, according to the work thereof; even of gold, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

9 And thou shalt take two onyx stones, and grave on them the names of the children of Israel:

10 Six of their names on one stone, and the other six names of the rest on the other stone, according to their birth.

11 ^a With the work of an engraver in stone, like the engravings of a signet, shalt thou engrave the two stones with the names of the children of Israel: thou shalt make them to be set in ouches of gold.

^a Wisdom
18. 24.

12 And thou shalt put the two stones upon the shoulders of the ephod for stones of memorial unto the children of Israel: and Aaron shall bear their names before the LORD upon his two shoulders for a memorial.

13 ¶ And thou shalt make ouches of gold;

14 And two chains of pure gold at the ends; of wreathen work shalt thou make them, and fasten the wreathen chains to the ouches.

15 ¶ And thou shalt make the breastplate of judgment with cunning work; after the work of the ephod thou shalt make it; of gold, of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine twined linen, shalt thou make it.

16 Foursquare it shall be being doubled; a span shall be the length thereof, and a span shall be the breadth thereof.

17 And thou shalt [†]set in it settings of stones, even four rows of stones: the first row shall be a sardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle: this shall be the first row.

[†] Heb.
fill in it fillings of stone.
¶ Or, ruby.

Chap. XXVIII. ver. 1. And take thou unto thee &c.] Here is the first appointment of a regular priesthood; Aaron and his sons are here selected for that office, and afterwards, chap. xxxii. 29, the whole tribe of Levi are consecrated to the Lord. Bp. Patrick.

2. — holy garments] Called holy because worn by none but priests, and by them only when they ministered: they were intended "for glory and for beauty," that is, to make their office more respected, and to strike beholders with an awful sense of the Divine Majesty, whose ministers they saw appear in such grandeur. Bp. Patrick. Not holy in their own nature, but so called, by reason of their distinction and separation from other things of the like nature to higher and more excellent uses. Bp. Beveridge.

3. — all that are wise hearted,] So the Hebrews call those that are endowed with extraordinary skill in any art: these persons were filled by God with the spirit of wisdom, that is, endowed in an extraordinary manner with skill for these requisite works. Bp. Patrick.

6. — the ephod] This name is derived from a Hebrew word, signifying to tie or gird. The ephod was a kind of girdle, which was brought from behind the back, over the two shoulders; was then put across the stomach, and carried round the waist, so as to form a girdle to the broidered coat, the ends of it hanging down before. The "shoulderpieces," ver. 7, were the parts covering the shoulders, and "the girdle," ver. 8, that part which tied round the body, below the heart. Calmet.

12. — for stones of memorial] For a sign whereby the children of Israel may know that their memory is presented to God, and that they are had in remembrance of God. Bp. Hall. A memorial both with reference to God, ver. 29, and also to the priest, who was thereby put in mind of the concerns of the people. Bp. Kidder.

15. — breastplate of judgment] It was so called, because the high priest wore it, when he went to consult the Divine Majesty about the great concerns of their religion and government: it was to be made of the same materials and workmanship with the ephod: it was also to be "foursquare" when doubled, ver. 16, that is, the whole piece was to be twice as long as it was broad, so that when doubled it was to form a square of a span on every side. The span was half a cubit, or about ten inches. Bp. Patrick.

17. — a sardius, &c.] There is very little certainty as to the particular kinds of stones mentioned in these verses, the true meaning of the Hebrew words being ill understood. Pyle.

THE HIGH PRIEST

In his White Robe, on the Day of Expiation. Leviticus 16.

THE HIGH PRIEST

In his Gold Robe. Exodus 28.

Taken from Cabinet.

Published for the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge by Messrs. Robinson & Co. 15, Mark Lane, London. May 1844.

...the ...
...the ...
...the ...
...the ...
...the ...
...the ...

Before
CHRIST
1491.

18 And the second row shall be an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond.

19 And the third row a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst.

20 And the fourth row a beryl, and an onyx, and a jasper: they shall be set in gold in their †inclosings.

† Heb.
fillings.

21 And the stones shall be with the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names, like the engravings of a signet; every one with his name shall they be according to the twelve tribes.

22 ¶ And thou shalt make upon the breastplate chains at the ends of wreathen work of pure gold.

23 And thou shalt make upon the breastplate two rings of gold, and shalt put the two rings on the two ends of the breastplate.

24 And thou shalt put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings which are on the ends of the breastplate.

25 And the other two ends of the two wreathen chains thou shalt fasten in the two ouches, and put them on the shoulderpieces of the ephod before it.

26 ¶ And thou shalt make two rings of gold, and thou shalt put them upon the two ends of the breastplate in the border thereof, which is in the side of the ephod inward.

27 And two other rings of gold thou shalt make, and shalt put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath, toward the forepart thereof, over against the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the ephod.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

28 And they shall bind the breastplate by the rings thereof unto the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, that it may be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breastplate be not loosed from the ephod.

29 And Aaron shall bear the names of the children of Israel in the breastplate of judgment upon his heart, when he goeth in unto the holy place, for a memorial before the LORD continually.

30 ¶ And thou shalt put in the breastplate of judgment the Urim and the Thummim; and they shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before the LORD: and Aaron shall bear the judgment of the children of Israel upon his heart before the LORD continually.

31 ¶ And thou shalt make the robe of the ephod all of blue.

32 And there shall be an hole in the top of it, in the midst thereof: it shall have a binding of woven work round about the hole of it, as it were the hole of an habergeon, that it be not rent.

33 ¶ And beneath upon the || hem of it thou shalt make pomegranates of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, round about the hem thereof; and bells of gold between them round about: || Or, skirts.

34 A golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe round about.

35 ^b And it shall be upon Aaron to minister: and his sound shall be heard when he goeth in unto the holy place before the LORD, and when he cometh out, that he die not. ^b Eccl¹¹ 45. 9.

30. — the Urim and the Thummim;] The words Urim and Thummim signify light and perfection. There is not the least intimation any where what these were, nor is there any direction given to Moses for the making of them, as there is for the rest of the priestly attire. The opinions respecting their meaning have been very various: some have thought that the words merely referred to the twelve stones, which have been described, ver. 17, on the breastplate of the high priest; others, that they were small oracular figures placed in the doubling of the breastplate, which gave articulate answers; others, that they referred to a plate of gold, inscribed with the sacred name of Jehovah; others again, that they only imply the Divine virtue and power given to the breastplate in its consecration, of obtaining an oracular answer from God; and that the names Urim and Thummim were applied only to denote the clearness and perfection, which those oracular answers always carried with them. Whatever the ornament was, it enabled the high priest to collect divine instruction on occasions of national importance, or even of private concern. It is wholly unknown how the Lord answered by the Urim and Thummim. The Jews generally think it was done by the shining of the stones, on the breastplate, or of some letters inscribed upon it. Others with more reason suppose that the Urim and Thummim only qualified the high priest to present himself in the holy place to receive answers from the mercy seat in the tabernacle. Dr. Gray, Deau Prideaux, Bp. Patrick.

32. — habergeon,] Armour to cover the neck and breast, a neckpiece. Dr. Johnson.

33. — pomegranates] Bells of embroidery, in size and shape like pomegranates. The pomegranate is a sort of apple very common in the East; as the fruit is very beautiful, the Scriptures often make use of similitudes taken from it. Calmet.

— bells] The bell seems to have been a sacred utensil of very ancient use in Asia. The use and intent of these bells in the pontifical robe of the Jewish high priest is evident from the following words: "his sound shall be heard when he goeth in, &c." The sound of the numerous bells that covered the hem of his garment gave notice to the assembled people that the most awful ceremony of their religion had commenced. When arrayed in this garb, he bore into the sanctuary the vessel of incense; it was the signal to prostrate themselves before the Deity, and to commence those fervent ejaculations which were to ascend with the column of that incense to the throne of heaven. The ancient kings of Persia, who, in fact, united in their own persons the regal and sacerdotal office, were accustomed to have the fringes of their robes adorned with pomegranates and golden bells. Calmet.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

86 ¶ And thou shalt make a plate of pure gold, and grave upon it, like the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

87 And thou shalt put it on a blue lace, that it may be upon the mitre; upon the forefront of the mitre it shall be.

88 And it shall be upon Aaron's forehead, that Aaron may bear the iniquity of the holy things, which the children of Israel shall hallow in all their holy gifts; and it shall be always upon his forehead, that they may be accepted before the Lord.

89 ¶ And thou shalt embroider the coat of fine linen, and thou shalt make the mitre of fine linen, and thou shalt make the girdle of needlework.

40 ¶ And for Aaron's sons thou shalt make coats, and thou shalt make for them girdles, and bonnets shalt thou make for them, for glory and for beauty.

41 And thou shalt put them upon Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him; and shalt anoint them, and † consecrate them, and sanctify them, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office.

† Heb.
fill their hand.

42 And thou shalt make them linen breeches to cover † their nakedness; from the loins even unto the thighs they shall † reach:

† Heb.
flesh of their nakedness.
† Heb.
be.

43 And they shall be upon Aaron, and upon his sons, when they come in unto the tabernacle of the congregation, or when they come near unto the altar to minister in the holy place; that they bear not iniquity, and die: it shall be a statute for ever unto him and his seed after him.

CHAP. XXIX.

¹ The sacrifice and ceremonies of consecrating the priests.
38 The continual burnt offering. 45 God's promise to dwell among the children of Israel.

AND this is the thing that thou shalt do unto them to hallow them, to minister ^a Lev. 8. 2. unto me in the priest's office: ^a Take one young bullock, and two rams without blemish,

One indispensable ceremony in the Indian Pooja is the ringing of a small bell by the officiating Brahmin. Maurice.

38. — that Aaron may bear the iniquity &c.] Meaning that, if there should happen to be any defects in the sacrifices or gifts presented to God, these defects might be pardoned by the intercession of the high priest, when he appeared before God with this plate as a crown on his head. Bp. Patrick. In this the high priest was a fit type of Christ, 1 Pet. ii. 26. Bp. Kidder.

39. — the mitre] The form of the high priest's mitre is not well understood, the descriptions which are given of it being very various; nor is it known in what respects it differed from the bonnet (ver. 40) of the other priests, except that it was more

Before
CHRIST
1491.

2 And unleavened bread, and cakes unleavened tempered with oil, and wafers unleavened anointed with oil: of wheaten flour shalt thou make them.

3 And thou shalt put them into one basket, and bring them in the basket, with the bullock and the two rams.

4 And Aaron and his sons thou shalt bring unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and shalt wash them with water.

5 And thou shalt take the garments, and put upon Aaron the coat, and the robe of the ephod, and the ephod, and the breastplate, and gird him with the curious girdle of the ephod:

6 And thou shalt put the mitre upon his head, and put the holy crown upon the mitre.

7 Then shalt thou take the anointing ^b oil, and pour it upon his head, and anoint him. ^b Chap. 30. 25.

8 And thou shalt bring his sons, and put coats upon them.

9 And thou shalt gird them with girdles, Aaron and his sons, and † put the bonnets on them: and the priest's office shall be their's for a perpetual statute: and thou shalt † consecrate Aaron and his sons.

† Heb.
bind.

10 And thou shalt cause a bullock to be brought before the tabernacle of the congregation: and ^c Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the bullock. ^c Heb. fill the hand of. ^c Chap. 28. 41. ^d Lev. 1. 4.

11 And thou shalt kill the bullock before the LORD, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

12 And thou shalt take of the blood of the bullock, and put it upon the horns of the altar with thy finger, and pour all the blood beside the bottom of the altar.

13 And ^e thou shalt take all the fat that covereth the inwards, and || the caul that is above the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and burn them upon the altar. ^e Lev. 3. 3. || It seemeth by Anatomy, and the Hebrew doctors, to be the midriff.

14 But the flesh of the bullock, and his adorned and costly. The Hebrew doctors say that they both consisted of folds of linen, wrapt several times round, like the turbans now worn in the East. Calmet.

43. — that they bear not iniquity, and die:] That God may not punish them with death, for profaneness in neglecting to appear before Him with the sacred garments, which He has appointed. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXIX. ver. 10. — shall put their hands upon the head] This was to shew that they loaded the victim with their iniquities, and confessed that they deserved the death which he was about to suffer. And he that did not repent skin, and his dung, shalt thou burn with fire without the camp: it is a sin offering.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

15 ¶ Thou shalt also take one ram; and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the ram.

16 And thou shalt slay the ram, and thou shalt take his blood, and sprinkle it round about upon the altar.

¶ Or,
upon.

17 And thou shalt cut the ram in pieces, and wash the inwards of him, and his legs, and put them unto his pieces, and ¶ unto his head.

18 And thou shalt burn the whole ram upon the altar: it is a burnt offering unto the LORD: it is a sweet savour, an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

19 ¶ And thou shalt take the other ram; and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the ram.

20 Then shalt thou kill the ram, and take of his blood, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of Aaron, and upon the tip of the right ear of his sons, and upon the thumb of their right hand, and upon the great toe of their right foot, and sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about.

21 And thou shalt take of the blood that is upon the altar, and of the anointing oil, and sprinkle it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon the garments of his sons with him: and he shall be hallowed, and his garments, and his sons, and his sons' garments with him.

22 Also thou shalt take of the ram the fat and the rump, and the fat that covereth the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and the right shoulder; for it is a ram of consecration:

23 And one loaf of bread, and one cake of oiled bread, and one wafer out of the basket of the unleavened bread that is before the LORD:

24 And thou shalt put all in the hands of Aaron, and in the hands of his sons; and shalt ¶ wave them for a wave offering before the LORD.

25 And thou shalt receive them of their hands, and burn them upon the altar for a burnt offering, for a sweet savour before the LORD: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

26 And thou shalt take the breast of the ram of Aaron's consecration, and wave it for a wave offering before the LORD: and it shall be thy part.

27 And thou shalt sanctify the breast of the wave offering, and the shoulder of the heave offering, which is waved, and which is heaved up, of the ram of the consecration, even of that which is for Aaron, and of that which is for his sons:

28 And it shall be Aaron's and his sons' by a statute for ever from the children of Israel: for it is an heave offering: and it shall be an heave offering from the children of Israel of the sacrifice of their peace offerings, even their heave offering unto the LORD.

29 ¶ And the holy garments of Aaron shall be his sons' after him, to be anointed therein, and to be consecrated in them.

30 And † that son that is priest in his stead shall put them on seven days, when he cometh into the tabernacle of the congregation to minister in the holy place.

31 ¶ And thou shalt take the ram of the consecration, and seethe his flesh in the holy place.

32 And Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram, and the † bread that is in the basket, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

33 And they shall eat those things wherewith the atonement was made, to consecrate and to sanctify them: but a stranger shall not eat thereof, because they are holy.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

¶ Or, shake it and fro.

† Heb.
he of his sons.

† Lev. 3.
31.
Matth. 12.
4.

and thus confess his sins, was not cleansed by this sacrifice. Bp. Wilson.

14. — it is a sin offering.] An offering made for the sins of Aaron and his sons, which sins it was necessary should be expiated before they were qualified to make offerings for the sins of others. Bp. Patrick.

20. — the right ear &c.] It is thought that the blood was put upon their right ears, to denote their hearkening to the Divine precepts; and on their thumbs and toes, to denote their strenuous performance of all that was required of them. Bp. Patrick.

22. — take of the ram the fat and the rump.] The tails of the sheep in Eastern countries are extremely large and loaded with fat. The least of them weigh ten or twelve pounds, and according to the reports of travellers, some of them weigh upwards of fifty pounds. Bochart. This broad flattish tail is mostly covered with long wool: it is entirely composed of a substance between marrow and fat, being used instead of butter, and serving as an ingredient in several kinds of food. When the animal is young, it is little inferior to the best marrow. When the animal has been pampered, the tail has been known to weigh seventy and eighty pounds; but usually they weigh from ten to twenty pounds. Dr. Russell.

VOL. I.

26. — it shall be thy part.] Moses being at this time in the stead of the High Priest, ver. 22. Bp. Kidder.

27. — wave offering, — heave offering.] There is no difference between the wave offering and the heave offering, except that the latter was only heaved or lifted up, but the former waved in all manner of directions, to shew that He, to whom it was offered, was Lord of the whole earth, and of all that therein is. Bp. Patrick.

28. — sacrifice of their peace offerings.] The peace offering betokened that they were now in a state of friendship and reconciliation with God. Bp. Patrick.

33. — a stranger.] Meaning here any one not of the family of Aaron.

A a

Before
CHRIST
1491.

34 And if ought of the flesh of the consecrations, or of the bread, remain unto the morning, then thou shalt burn the remainder with fire: it shall not be eaten, because it is holy.

35 And thus shalt thou do unto Aaron, and to his sons, according to all things which I have commanded thee: seven days shalt thou consecrate them.

36 And thou shalt offer every day a bullock for a sin offering for atonement: and thou shalt cleanse the altar, when thou hast made an atonement for it, and thou shalt anoint it, to sanctify it.

37 Seven days thou shalt make an atonement for the altar, and sanctify it; and it shall be an altar most holy: whatsoever toucheth the altar shall be holy.

¶ Numb.
28. 3.

38 ¶ Now this is that which thou shalt offer upon the altar; [¶] two lambs of the first year day by day continually.

39 The one lamb thou shalt offer in the morning; and the other lamb thou shalt offer at even:

40 And with the one lamb a tenth deal of flour mingled with the fourth part of an hin of beaten oil; and the fourth part of an hin of wine for a drink offering.

41 And the other lamb thou shalt offer at even, and shalt do thereto according to the meat offering of the morning, and according to the drink offering thereof, for a sweet savour, an offering made by fire unto the Lord.

42 This shall be a continual burnt offering throughout your generations at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the Lord: where I will meet you, to speak there unto thee.

¶ Or,
Israel.

43 And there I will meet with the children of Israel, and the tabernacle shall be sanctified by my glory.

44 And I will sanctify the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar: I will sanctify also both Aaron and his sons, to minister to me in the priest's office.

45 ¶ And ^h I will dwell among the children of Israel, and will be their God. ^{h Lev. 26. 12. 2 Cor. 6. 16.}

46 And they shall know that I am the Lord their God, that brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, that I may dwell among them: I am the Lord their God.

CHAP. XXX.

1 The altar of incense. 11 The ransom of souls. 17 The brasen laver. 22 The holy anointing oil. 34 The composition of the perfume.

AND thou shalt make an altar to burn incense upon: of shittim wood shalt thou make it.

2 A cubit shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof; four-square shall it be: and two cubits shall be the height thereof: the horns thereof shall be of the same.

3 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, the [†] top thereof, and the [†] sides thereof round about, and the horns thereof; and thou shalt make unto it a crown of gold round about. ^{† Heb. the roof and the walls. † Heb. the walls.}

4 And two golden rings shalt thou make to it under the crown of it, by the two [†] corners thereof, upon the two sides of it shalt thou make it; and they shall be for places for the staves to bear it withal. ^{† Heb. ribs.}

5 And thou shalt make the staves of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold.

6 And thou shalt put it before the vail that is by the ark of the testimony, before the mercy seat that is over the testimony, where I will meet with thee.

7 And Aaron shall burn thereon [†] sweet incense every morning: when he dresseth the lamps, he shall burn incense upon it. ^{† Heb. incense of spices.}

40. — a tenth deal — an hin &c.] See these explained in the tables.

44. — I will sanctify also both Aaron and his sons.] God had no sooner directed a particular place for His service; He had no sooner caused an altar to be erected, where His people should more peculiarly serve and worship Him, and offer their sacrifices to Him; but He set apart a chosen people, who, and who alone, might perform the priests' office in His service. Aaron and his sons, and they who descended from them, might do that office: bold men might not intrude into it; nor unqualified men be imposed upon it by any authority whatsoever. And the next care that God took, after He had adorned the place of His worship with all possible lustre and magnificence, was, to provide such ornaments and habits for the persons of those who served, as might make them remarkable above other men. "And thou shalt make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, for glory and for beauty," chap. xxviii. 2. And God vouchsafed to be as particular and punctual in His directions for the matter and form of those garments, as well for the sons, the inferiour priests, as for Aaron the High Priest himself, as He had been for the ark, the tabernacle, and the altar.

All which, methinks, should be a sufficient argument, or at least a sufficient motive, that particular places should be set aside, and adorned too, for the publick service of God: and for the distinction between the persons dedicated to His particular service, and qualified for that purpose, and the very habits appropriated to them, and the general ranks and classes of other men, who are not under the same obligations. Lord Clarendon.

Chap. XXX. ver. 1. — an altar to burn incense] Thence called the altar of incense; distinct from the altar of burnt offerings, described at chap. xxvii. 1—8.

6. — where I will meet with thee.] It seems from this, that though Aaron and his successors could go into the Holy of Holies only once a year, yet God gave to Moses the privilege of coming there as often as there was occasion to consult the Divine Majesty. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

¶ Or, setteth up.
† Heb. causeth to ascend.
† Heb. between the two evens.

8 And when Aaron ||† lighteth the lamps †at even, he shall burn incense upon it, a perpetual incense before the LORD throughout your generations.

9 Ye shall offer no strange incense thereon, nor burnt sacrifice, nor meat offering; neither shall ye pour drink offering thereon.

10 And Aaron shall make an atonement upon the horns of it once in a year with the blood of the sin offering of atonements: once in the year shall he make atonement upon it throughout your generations: it is most holy unto the LORD.

11 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

^a Numb.
1. 2, 5.
† Heb. them that are to be numbered.

12 ^a When thou takest the sum of the children of Israel after †their number, then shall they give every man a ransom for his soul unto the LORD, when thou numberest them; that there be no plague among them, when thou numberest them.

^b Lev. 27.
25.
Numb. 3.
47.
Ezek. 45.
12.

13 This they shall give, every one that passeth among them that are numbered, half a shekel after the shekel of the sanctuary: (^b a shekel is twenty gerahs:) an half shekel shall be the offering of the LORD.

14 Every one that passeth among them that are numbered, from twenty years old and above, shall give an offering unto the LORD.

† Heb.
multiply.
† Heb.
diminish.

15 The rich shall not †give more, and the poor shall not †give less than half a shekel, when they give an offering unto the LORD, to make an atonement for your souls.

16 And thou shalt take the atonement money of the children of Israel, and shalt appoint it for the service of the tabernacle of the congregation; that it may be a memorial unto the children of Israel before the LORD, to make an atonement for your souls.

17 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

18 Thou shalt also make a laver of brass, and his foot also of brass, to wash withal: and thou shalt put it between the tabernacle of the congregation and the altar, and thou shalt put water therein.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

19 For Aaron and his sons shall wash their hands and their feet thereat:

20 When they go into the tabernacle of the congregation, they shall wash with water, that they die not; or when they come near to the altar to minister, to burn offering made by fire unto the LORD:

21 So they shall wash their hands and their feet, that they die not: and it shall be a statute for ever to them, even to him and to his seed throughout their generations.

22 ¶ Moreover the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Take thou also unto thee principal spices, of pure myrrh five hundred shekels, and of sweet cinnamon half so much, even two hundred and fifty shekels, and of sweet calamus two hundred and fifty shekels,

24 And of cassia five hundred shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary, and of oil olive an ^c hin:

^c Chap. 29.
40.

25 And thou shalt make it an oil of holy ointment, an ointment compound after the art of the ||apothecary: it shall be an holy anointing oil.

¶ Or, perfumer.

26 And thou shalt anoint the tabernacle of the congregation therewith, and the ark of the testimony,

27 And the table and all his vessels, and the candlestick and his vessels, and the altar of incense, 28 And the altar of burnt offering with all his vessels, and the laver and his foot.

29 And thou shalt sanctify them, that they may be most holy: whatsoever toucheth them shall be holy.

30 And thou shalt anoint Aaron and his sons, and consecrate them, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office.

31 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, This shall be an holy anointing oil unto me throughout your generations.

9. — no strange incense] None but that which is prescribed at ver. 34—37 of this chapter.

10. — it is most holy unto the Lord.] Either the altar itself, being consecrated to God's service, is so called, or else the solemn expiation performed once a year, Levit. xvi. 29—34, which was the most holy rite in their religion. Bp. Patrick.

11. And the Lord spake] This is often repeated in this chapter, ver. 17, 22, 34, and the succeeding chapter, to shew that God did not deliver His precepts to Moses without intermission, but that He gave him time to rest, and then spake to him again. Bp. Patrick.

12. — a ransom for his soul] As a homage, whereby they acknowledge that they had been redeemed by God, and also confessed His goodness in having multiplied their nation according to His promise. Dr. Wells.

13. — after the shekel of the sanctuary:] The shekel (nearly half a crown of our money) was called "after the shekel of the sanctuary," because the standard, according to which the money was tried, was kept in the sanctuary. Lewis.

31. — This shall be an holy anointing oil] It was to be set apart to the use of God's ministry, and therefore not to be employed on any other; not to be "poured on man's flesh," that is, not on the flesh of a common man, but only on the priests, and on such as were specially appointed. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

32 Upon man's flesh shall it not be poured, neither shall ye make any other like it, after the composition of it: it is holy, and it shall be holy unto you.

33 Whosoever compoundeth any like it, or whosoever putteth any of it upon a stranger, shall even be cut off from his people.

34 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Take unto thee sweet spices, stacte, and onycha, and galbanum; these sweet spices with pure frankincense: of each shall there be a like weight:

35 And thou shalt make it a perfume, a confection after the art of the apothecary, † tempered together, pure and holy:

† Heb.
salted.

36 And thou shalt beat some of it very small, and put of it before the testimony in the tabernacle of the congregation, where I will meet with thee: it shall be unto you most holy.

37 And as for the perfume which thou shalt make, ye shall not make to yourselves according to the composition thereof: it shall be unto thee holy for the Lord.

38 Whosoever shall make like unto that, to smell thereto, shall even be cut off from his people.

CHAP. XXXI.

1 Bezaleel and Aholiab are called and made meet for the work of the tabernacle. 12 The observation of the sabbath is again commanded. 18 Moses receiveth the two tables.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

* 1 Chron.
2. 20.

2 See, I have called by name Bezaleel the ^ason of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah:

3 And I have filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship,

4 To devise cunning works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass,

5 And in cutting of stones, to set them, and in carving of timber, to work in all manner of workmanship.

33. — upon a stranger.] Upon one who is not a priest or a king. Bp. Kidder. Any other than a priest, or one specially appointed to be anointed with it. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XXXI. ver. 3. — I have filled him with the spirit of God.] It was necessary that he should be supernaturally endowed with skill in these ingenious arts, since the Hebrews, from their long continuance in Egyptian bondage, cannot be supposed to have been trained to them. Bp. Patrick.

13. — my sabbaths ye shall keep:] This is repeated, after having been thrice mentioned before, chap. xvi. 23; xx. 8; xxiii. 12; on this special occasion, in order to shew that a breach of the sab-

6 And I, behold, I have given with him Aholiab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan: and in the hearts of all that are wise hearted I have put wisdom, that they may make all that I have commanded thee;

Before
CHRIST
1491.

7 The tabernacle of the congregation, and the ark of the testimony, and the mercy seat that is thereupon, and all the † furniture of the tabernacle, vessels.

† Heb.

8 And the table and his furniture, and the pure candlestick with all his furniture, and the altar of incense,

9 And the altar of burnt offering with all his furniture, and the laver and his foot,

10 And the cloths of service, and the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons, to minister in the priest's office, 11 And the anointing oil, and sweet incense for the holy place: according to all that I have commanded thee shall they do.

12 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

13 Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you.

14 ^b Ye shall keep the sabbath therefore; for it is holy unto you: every one that defileth it shall surely be put to death: for whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from among his people.

^b Chap. 20.
8.
Deut. 5. 12.
Ezek. 20.
12.

15 Six days may work be done; but in the seventh is the sabbath of rest, † holy to the Lord: whosoever doeth any work in the sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death.

† Heb.
holiness.

16 Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the sabbath, to observe the sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant.

17 It is a sign between me and the chilbath would not be warranted, even by the important work on which they were to be now employed. The sabbath was to be "a sign between God and them," that He was their deliverer from Egyptian slavery, and that He "sanctified" them to be His peculiar people. This command is again given at chap. xxxv. 2. Bp. Patrick.

14. — that soul shall be cut off] If any man worked openly on the sabbath day, so that witnesses could be procured, he was to be stoned, according to Numb. xv. 35: thus the meaning seems here to be, that if any one committed the deed secretly, so as not to be punished by the judges, God would Himself punish him by shortening his days. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491. dren of Israel for ever: for ^c in six days the LORD made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested, and was refreshed.

^c Gen. 1. 51. & 2. 2. 18 ¶ And he gave unto Moses, when he had made an end of communing with him upon mount Sinai, ^d two tables of testimony, tables of stone, written with the finger of God.

^d Deut. 9. 10.

CHAP. XXXII.

¹ The people, in the absence of Moses, cause Aaron to make a calf. 7 God is angered thereby. 11 At the intreaty of Moses he is appeased. 15 Moses cometh down with the tables. 19 He breaketh them. 20 He destroyeth the calf. 22 Aaron's excuse for himself. 25 Moses causeth the idolaters to be slain. 30 He prayeth for the people.

1491.

AND when the people saw that Moses delayed to come down out of the mount, the people gathered themselves together unto Aaron, and said unto him, ^a Up,

^a Acts 7. 40.

18. — written with the finger of God.] That is, framed by the operation of God Himself, without Moses or any other person being employed. As human beings use their hands and fingers in doing these things, the same form of words is used to express that which is wrought by the power of God. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXXII. ver. 1. — make us gods.] Or rather, “make us a god;” for so the Hebrew word is often translated. The meaning is, Make us a sacred symbol or sign, which may represent God to us in a visible manner. They hankered probably after the idolatrous worship which they had learned in Egypt. St. Stephen calls their behaviour on this occasion a turning back of their hearts unto Egypt, Acts vii. 39. Bp. Patrick.

How great was the madness and ingratitude of the Israelites! What if Moses had been gone for ever, must they therefore have gods made? If they had said, “Choose us another governour,” it had been a wicked and ungrateful motion: they were too unworthy of Moses that could so soon forget him: but to say, “Make us gods,” was absurdly impious. Moses was not their god, but their governour: neither was the presence of God limited to Moses: when he was gone, they saw God still in His pillar, and in His manna; and yet they say, “Make us gods.” Bp. Hall.

4. — and fashioned it with a graving tool.] That is, after he had cast it in a mould, he fashioned and polished it with a proper tool. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. The original word probably signifies here, not “a graving tool,” as we render it: it is used in a very different sense, 2 Kings v. 23: it there signifies “a bag” or “little chest;” and by an easy metaphor from this use of it, it may denote a mould made to shut up like a chest, to contain and form the metal to be poured into it. By a slight correction of the text, the verse would run thus: “And he received (it, that is, the gold) at their hands; and they formed it in a mould, and they made a molten calf; and they said, This is thy god, O Israel.” The verse would thus agree to what is suggested in other places, that Aaron indeed received the gold that was brought him; but that the forming of it in the mould, and the making it into a calf, and proclaiming it a god, was not done by Aaron, but by others; by the workmen or artificers, and the people. Notwithstanding this, whatever may hence be offered in mitigation of Aaron's fault, yet certainly all will be too little to prove him innocent; and agreeably to this, we find a great share of the guilt was imputed to him: “The Lord was very angry with him to have destroyed him; but that Moses prayed for him,” Deut. ix. 20. Shuckford.

Aaron shrunk from the importunity, perhaps from the threats, of the people; as if He, that forbade other gods, could not have maintained His own act and agent against men. Sudden fears, make us gods, which shall go before us; for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

2 And Aaron said unto them, Break off the golden earrings, which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me.

3 And all the people brake off the golden earrings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron.

4 ^b And he received them at their hand, and fashioned it with a graving tool, after he had made it a molten calf: and they said, These be thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

^b Psal. 106. 19.
1 Kings 12. 29.

5 And when Aaron saw it, he built an altar before it; and Aaron made proclamation, and said, To morrow is a feast to the LORD.

when they have possessed weak minds, lead them to shameful errors. Importunity or violence may lessen, but they cannot excuse a fault. Wherefore was he a governour, but to repress their disordered motions? Facility of yielding to a sin, or courting it with our voluntary suit, is a higher degree of evil: but even at last to be won by sin, is deserving of condemnation. Bp. Hall.

— a molten calf.] Such as they had seen worshipped by the Egyptians. Servitude was the least evil that Israel received from Egypt: for that made them have recourse continually to the true God: but this idolatrous example led them to a false one. The very sight of evil is dangerous; and it is hard for the heart not to run into those sins, to which the eye and ear are inured: not out of love, but out of custom, we fall into some offences. How many have fallen into a fashion of swearing, scoffing, drinking, out of the usual practice of others; as those that live in a pestilential air are infected with diseases! Bp. Hall.

5. — To morrow is a feast to the Lord.] Not to the golden calf, but to the Creator of the world, whom they worshipped in this image. Notwithstanding which, this was no better than an idol, Acts vii. 41; and they were gross idolaters, Ps. cvi. 19, 20; 1 Cor. x. 7. Bp. Patrick. The words of the second Commandment express very strongly the great care of God to free His people from idolatry; and very clearly forbid not only making and worshipping representations of false gods, but any representation of God at all. And to shew yet more fully, that even those of the true God are prohibited by it, Moses in Deuteronomy, immediately after mentioning the delivery of the Ten Commandments, adds with respect to the second, “Take therefore good heed unto yourselves, for ye saw no manner of similitude on the day that the Lord spake unto you in Horeb out of the midst of the fire: lest ye corrupt yourselves, and make you a graven image, the similitude of any figure,” Deut. iv. 12—16. And when the Israelites made a golden calf in the wilderness, though evidently their design was to represent by it, not a false object of worship, but THE LORD, (in the original it is JEHOVAH,) who brought them out of the land of Egypt; yet they were charged with it, and punished for it, as a breach of their covenant with God: and Moses accordingly broke on that occasion the two tables of the Commandments, which were on their part the conditions of that covenant. Again, in after-times, when the kings of Israel set up the same representation of the true God at Dan and Beth-el; the Scripture constantly speaks of it, as the leading sin, from which all the rest of their idolatries, and at last their utter destruction, proceeded. For from worshipping the true God by an image, they soon came to worship the images of false gods too: and from thence fell into all sorts of superstition, and all sorts of wickedness. Abp. Secker.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

^c 1 Cor. 10.
7.

^d Deut. 9.
12.

^e Deut. 9.
8.

^f Chap. 33.
5.
Deut. 9. 13.

^g Psal. 106.
23.

^h Heb.
the face of
the LORD.

6 And they rose up early on the morrow, and offered burnt offerings, and brought peace offerings; and the ^c people sat down to eat and to drink, and rose up to play.

7 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, ^d Go, get thee down; for thy people, which thou broughtest out of the land of Egypt, have corrupted themselves:

8 ^e They have turned aside quickly out of the way which I commanded them: they have made them a molten calf, and have worshipped it, and have sacrificed thereunto, and said, These be thy gods, O Israel, which have brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

9 And the LORD said unto Moses, ^f I have seen this people, and, behold, it is a stiffnecked people:

10 Now therefore let me alone, that my wrath may wax hot against them, and that I may consume them: and I will make of thee a great nation.

11 ^g And Moses besought ^h the LORD his

God, and said, LORD, why doth thy wrath wax hot against thy people, which thou hast brought forth out of the land of Egypt with great power, and with a mighty hand?

12 ^h Wherefore should the Egyptians speak, and say, For mischief did he bring them out, to slay them in the mountains, and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turn from thy fierce wrath, and repent of this evil against thy people.

13 Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, thy servants, to whom thou swarest by thine own self, and saidst unto them, ⁱ I will multiply your seed as the stars of heaven, and all this land that I have spoken of will I give unto your seed, and they shall inherit it for ever.

14 And the LORD repented of the evil which he thought to do unto his people.

15 ¶ And Moses turned, and went down from the mount, and the two tables of the testimony were in his hand: the tables were

Before
CHRIST
1491.

ⁱ Numb.
14. 13.

ⁱ Gen. 12.
7. & 15. 7.
& 49. 16.

It being the fact, that the idolatry of the Israelites consisted, not in worshipping a false deity, but in making an image to the true and living God; and this fact being expressly condemned as idolatry by the Apostle, 1 Cor. x. 7; the Papists are hence unanswerably charged with idolatry for their image worship, and they can in no wise justify themselves; for what they can offer, if it might be admitted, would vindicate the Israelites as well as them. Shuckford.

6. — and the people sat down to eat and to drink,] Of the peace offerings, of which they had a part, according to God's own directions: and "rose up to play;" to express their joy by music, dancing, and other signs of mirth. Bp. Patrick. This mirth was an attendant upon their idolatrous worship; and is expressed in the Hebrew by a word, that is sometimes applied to other kinds of wantonness: idolatry being frequently compared to such illicit commerce, Gen. xxxix. 17. Bp. Kidder.

7. — thy people,] The Lord, as a jealous God, for their spiritual adultery now disclaims the Israelites as His people. "Go, get thee down; for thy people, which thou broughtest out of the land of Egypt, have corrupted themselves." Dr. Hales.

9. — a stiffnecked people:] Stubborn and unwilling to obey. This expression is frequent in Scripture; and bears allusion to untamed heifers, which draw back their neck and shoulders, when put under the yoke, instead of going quietly forward. Bp. Patrick.

10. Now therefore let me alone,] As yet, Moses had said nothing: before he opens his mouth, God prevents his importunity, as foreseeing that holy violence, which the requests of Moses would offer to Him. Moses stood trembling before the Majesty of his Maker, and yet hears Him say, "Let Me alone." The mercy of our God hath, as it were, submitted His power to the faith of men: the fervent prayers of the faithful hold the hands of the Almighty. As we find it afterwards said of Christ, that "He could do no miracle among his countrymen, because of their unbelief;" so now we hear God, as if He could not do execution upon Israel because of Moses's faith, say, "Let Me alone, that I may consume them." Bp. Hall.

— I will make of thee a great nation.] On this occasion Moses gave a signal proof of his love for his people, by interceding for them with the Lord; and of his own disinterestedness, in refusing the tempting offer of the Almighty, to adopt his family in their room, and make of them "a great nation." He prayed that God would "blot him out of His book," or take away his life, if

He would not forgive "the great sin of his people;" and prevailed with God to alter His determination of withdrawing His presence from them, and sending an inferiour angel to conduct them to the land of promise.

And can we have a stronger proof of his veracity and strict fidelity as an historian, than his recording a fact so disgraceful to his people, whom he loved so tenderly? A fact, which the Jewish historian, Josephus, has passed over in total silence; as he has also that other of the brazen serpent, so expressive of the crucified SAVIOUR OF THE WORLD. Dr. Hales.

11. — Moses besought the Lord] How graciously doth Moses strive with God against his own preferment! If God had threatened, "I will consume thee, and make of them a mighty nation," I doubt whether he could have been more moved. The more a man can leave himself behind him, and aspire to a care of the community, the more spiritual he is. Nothing makes a man so good a patriot as religion. Bp. Hall.

— which thou hast brought forth &c.] Moses here beseeches the Lord upon three several grounds: 1st, He intreats that God would not on a sudden destroy those, whom He had employed so much power to preserve: 2dly, He urges as a reason, lest the Egyptians should be led into misbelief, and say, that He had brought the Israelites out, not from love to them, but from the wish to destroy them: 3dly, He reminds Him, as the chief ground of hope, of the promise formerly made to their forefathers, Gen. xv. 5; xxii. 17, &c. Bp. Patrick.

12. Wherefore should the Egyptians speak,] Moses saw that the eyes and tongues of all the world were intent upon Israel; a people so miraculously fetched from Egypt; whom the sea gave way to, whom heaven fed, whom the rock watered, whom the fire and cloud guarded, which heard the audible voice of God. He knew withal, how ready the world would be to misconstrue, and how the heathens would be ready to cast imputations of levity or impotence upon God; and then he says, "What will the Egyptians say?" Happy is that man, who can make God's glory the scope of all his actions and desires: neither cares for his own welfare, nor fears the miseries of others, but with respect to God in both. Bp. Hall.

14. — the Lord repented] Did not go on to bring that evil on the Israelites, which He had conditionally threatened against them. Bp. Hall.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

* Chap. 31.
18.

written on both their sides ; on the one side and on the other ~~were~~ they written.

16 And the ^k tables ~~were~~ the work of God, and the writing ~~was~~ the writing of God, graven upon the tables.

17 And when Joshua heard the noise of the people as they shouted, he said unto Moses, There is a noise of war in the camp.

18 And he said, It is not the voice of them that shout for mastery, neither is it the voice of them that cry for † being overcome : but the noise of them that sing do I hear.

† Heb.
weakness.

19 ¶ And it came to pass, as soon as he came nigh unto the camp, that he saw the calf, and the dancing : and Moses' anger waxed hot, and he cast the tables out of his hands, and brake them beneath the mount.

¹ Deut. 9.
21.

20 ¹ And he took the calf which they had made, and burnt it in the fire, and ground it to powder, and strawed it upon the water, and made the children of Israel drink of it.

21 And Moses said unto Aaron, What did this people unto thee, that thou hast brought so great a sin upon them ?

22 And Aaron said, Let not the anger of my lord wax hot : thou knowest the people, that they are set on mischief.

23 For they said unto me, Make us gods, which shall go before us : for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

15. — on both their sides ;] Not on their forepart and backpart : but on both of their leaves, which were to be folded up, and shut like a book, when they were laid in the ark. Bp. Patrick.

19. — he cast the tables &c.] He did this, not till he came nigh the camp, so that the people might see with what indignation their wickedness filled him. We never find that he is blamed for breaking the tables : whence it is concluded, that he did it, either by Divine impulse and instruction, or from a proper and virtuous feeling. Bp. Patrick.

20. — ground it to powder,] Probably by means of a file, or by having it beaten out into thin plates. Stackhouse.

For Moses, single and alone, to take their golden calf, and destroy it before their faces, was an example of a noble and undaunted resolution, which ought to animate the acts of all persons in authority, especially in the cause of God. Wogan.

— made the children of Israel drink of it.] He did not constrain them ; but as they had no other water, they could not avoid, when they were thirsty, to drink from the brook with this mixture. Bp. Patrick.

The dust is cast into the water, which they had received not long before out of the rock in that dry and barren place ; thereby to upbraid their unthankfulness, which in the same place, where they had received so great a benefit, forgot God, and fell away from Him. Willet.

24. — then I cast it into the fire, and there came out this calf.] It seems to be the design of Aaron to plead, that he was not 24 And I said unto them, Whosoever hath any gold, let them break it off. So they gave it me : then I cast it into the fire, and there came out this calf.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

25 ¶ And when Moses saw that the people ~~were~~ naked ; (for Aaron had made them naked unto their shame among † their enemies :) † Heb. those that rose up against them.

26 Then Moses stood in the gate of the camp, and said, Who is on the LORD's side? let him come unto me. And all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together unto him.

27 And he said unto them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and slay every man his brother, and every man his companion, and every man his neighbour.

28 And the children of Levi did according to the word of Moses : and there fell of the people that day about three thousand men.

29 ¶ For Moses had said, † Consecrate yourselves to day to the LORD, even every man upon his son, and upon his brother ; that he may bestow upon you a blessing this day.

† Or. And Moses said, Consecrate yourselves to day to the LORD, because every man hath been against his son, and against his brother, &c.
† Heb. Fill your hands.

30 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses said unto the people, Ye have sinned a great sin : and now I will go up unto the LORD ; peradventure I shall make an atonement for your sin.

31 And Moses returned unto the LORD, and said, Oh, this people have sinned a actually the maker of the image ; but that other persons were the founders of it. He represents, that they required him to make them a god ; that hereupon he asked them for materials ; that they brought him their gold ; " then," says he, " I cast it into the fire ;" I delivered it out of my hands to the use it was designed for, into the furnace in which it was to be melted ; " and there came out this calf : " that is, I was no further concerned in what was done ; the next thing I saw was the calf. What was done further, was done by others, not by me : the workmen made the calf, and brought it to me. Shuckford.

25. — that the people were naked ; &c.] Or deprived of the Divine protection : Aaron having laid them open by this sin to the scorn of all their enemies, who should hear of such a shameful revolt from their God. Bp. Patrick. After the unhallowed sacrifice they had risen up to wanton play, singing, and dancing, according to the obscene Egyptian rites, by which Aaron " made them naked to their shame." Dr. Hales. Perhaps also the verse is intended to express, 1. That the people were upon no guard ; in no posture of defence ; under no direction or command of their proper officer ; but were scattered up and down the plain at their games, as their fancy led them ; and so were in no formed body, to be able to make head against an enemy. And, 2. That they were free of their armour, or unarmed, " naked" in this sense ; not clothed to defend themselves against any violence that might be offered to them. This was the condition, in which Moses found them exposed " to their shame," or in a " shameful" manner " amongst their enemies." Shuckford.

Before
CHRIST
1491

great sin, and have made them gods of gold.

32 Yet now, if thou wilt forgive their sin—; and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which thou hast written.

33 And the LORD said unto Moses, Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book.

34 Therefore now go, lead the people unto the place of which I have spoken unto thee: behold, mine Angel shall go before thee: nevertheless in the day when I visit I will visit their sin upon them.

35 And the LORD plagued the people, because they made the calf, which Aaron made.

CHAP. XXXIII.

¹ The LORD refuseth to go as he had promised with the people. ⁴ The people murmur thereat. ⁷ The tabernacle is removed out of the camp. ⁹ The LORD talketh familiarly with Moses. ¹² Moses desireth to see the glory of God.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Depart, and go up hence, thou and the people which thou hast brought up out of the land of Egypt, unto the land which I sware unto Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, saying, ^a Unto thy seed will I give it:

^a Gen. 12.
7.

^b Deut. 7.
2.
Josh. 24.
11.

² And I will send an angel before thee; and I will drive out the Canaanite, the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite:

³ Unto a land flowing with milk and honey: for I will not go up in the midst of thee; for thou art a ^c stiffnecked people: lest I consume thee in the way.

^c Chap. 32.
2.
Deut. 9. 13.

⁴ And when the people heard these

32. — blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book] The expression of "blotting out of the book of life" is of the same import with those phrases so frequently used in the Old Testament, of "blotting out from the face of the earth," and "blotting out one's name from under heaven:" and the desire of Moses signifies, that he was willing to submit to a temporal death, that his nation might be saved from a temporal ruin. Abp. Tillotson.

So in Numb. xi. 15. it is, "Kill me, I pray thee, out of hand." The expression is an allusion to the custom of registering the people, as in Numbers, chap. i. and as more at large in Ezra and Nehemiah afterwards; and blotting out every one's name as fast as they died. Pyle. God hath no need of a book to register and record any of His purposes: but the Scripture uses the language of men, according to the practice of the Jews, who, to this day, retain the same form of speech. Bp. Patrick.

This was the highest possible expression of Moses's great zeal for the glory of God, and of his fear lest any thing should be done, which might reflect upon God's power and goodness. Bp. Beveridge.

Chap. XXXIII. ver. 2. — an angel] By an angel here is meant one of God's ministering servants; and not the Angel mentioned chap. xxiii. 20, as is evident from comparing the text. Bp. Kidder.

3. — lest I consume thee in the way.] Lest, seeing Myself af-evil tidings, they mourned: and no man did put on him his ornaments.

Before
CHRIST
1491

⁵ For the LORD had said unto Moses, Say unto the children of Israel, Ye are a stiffnecked people: I will come up into the midst of thee in a moment, and consume thee: therefore now put off thy ornaments from thee, that I may know what to do unto thee.

⁶ And the children of Israel stripped themselves of their ornaments by the mount Horeb.

⁷ And Moses took the tabernacle, and pitched it without the camp, afar off from the camp, and called it the Tabernacle of the congregation. And it came to pass, that every one which sought the LORD went out unto the tabernacle of the congregation, which was without the camp.

⁸ And it came to pass, when Moses went out unto the tabernacle, that all the people rose up, and stood every man at his tent door, and looked after Moses, until he was gone into the tabernacle.

⁹ And it came to pass, as Moses entered into the tabernacle, the cloudy pillar descended, and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and the LORD talked with Moses.

¹⁰ And all the people saw the cloudy pillar stand at the tabernacle door: and all the people rose up and worshipped, every man in his tent door.

¹¹ And the LORD spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend. And he turned again into the camp: but his servant Joshua, the son of Nun, a young man, departed not out of the tabernacle.

fronted as it were to My face, I punish the people with utter destruction. Bp. Patrick.

5. — that I may know what to do unto thee.] That I may deal with you according as I find you disposed. God had not absolutely resolved to forsake them, but might be moved by their repentance to continue with them. Bp. Patrick. We must not suppose that God did not "know" His own purpose and the event of things. To "know" here signifies to discover or make known to others. Bp. Kidder.

11. — face to face, as a man &c.] That is, the glory of the Lord appeared visibly before the face of Moses, but not in a dreadful and alarming manner, as when He spake to all the people out of the midst of the fire, Deut. v. 4; but with such a mild and comfortable light, as encouraged and cheered him. Bp. Patrick. Speaking by audible voices to him, as one friend imparts his counsel to another. Bp. Hall. This expression merely signifies the clear and familiar manner, in which God was pleased to communicate His will to Moses. Dr. Leland. He spake plainly and familiarly; not in visions, and dreams, and dark speeches. This was a peculiar privilege of Moses, Numb. xii. 6, 8; Deut. xxxiv. 10. Bp. Kidder.

— a young man,] He was at this time near sixty years old; but the Hebrews called all men young till they began to decline. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

12 ¶ And Moses said unto the LORD, See, thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people: and thou hast not let me know whom thou wilt send with me. Yet thou hast said, I know thee by name, and thou hast also found grace in my sight.

13 Now therefore, I pray thee, if I have found grace in thy sight, shew me now thy way, that I may know thee, that I may find grace in thy sight: and consider that this nation is thy people.

14 And he said, My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest.

15 And he said unto him, If thy presence go not with me, carry us not up hence.

16 For wherein shall it be known here that I and thy people have found grace in thy sight? is it not in that thou goest with us? so shall we be separated, I and thy people, from all the people that are upon the face of the earth.

17 And the LORD said unto Moses, I will do this thing also that thou hast spoken: for thou hast found grace in my sight, and I know thee by name.

18 And he said, I beseech thee, shew me thy glory.

19 And he said, I will make all my goodness pass before thee, and I will proclaim the name of the LORD before thee; ^d and will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, and will shew mercy on whom I will shew mercy.

Before
CHRIST
1491.
⁴ Rom. 9.
15.

20 And he said, Thou canst not see my face: for there shall no man see me, and live.

21 And the LORD said, Behold, there is a place by me, and thou shalt stand upon a rock:

22 And it shall come to pass, while my glory passeth by, that I will put thee in a cleft of the rock, and will cover thee with my hand while I pass by:

23 And I will take away mine hand, and thou shalt see my back parts: but my face shall not be seen.

CHAP. XXXIV.

1 The tables are renewed. 5 The name of the LORD proclaimed. 8 Moses intreateth God to go with them. 10 God maketh a covenant with them, repeating certain duties of the first table. 28 Moses after forty days in the mount cometh down with the tables. 29 His face shineth, and he covereth it with a vail.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, ^a Hew ^a Deut. 10. thee two tables of stone like unto the ^{1.} first: and I will write upon these tables the words that were in the first tables, which thou brakest.

12. — I know thee by name.] To know any one by his name expresses a distinction, a friendship, a particular familiarity. The kings of the East had little communication with their subjects, and hardly ever appeared in publick. So that when they knew their servants by name, vouchsafed to speak to them, to call them, and to admit them into their presence, it was a great mark of favour. Calnet. See the note on Jer. i. 5.

13. — shew me now thy way.] Thy gracious and merciful administration. Bp. Kidder. The way, which Thou hast appointed, whereby men may come to a right knowledge of Thee. Bp. Beveridge.

— that I may know thee.] That I may be assured of Thy gracious acceptance. Bp. Patrick.

18. — shew me thy glory.] Thy glorious presence, not veiled in a cloud; but in its full majesty and splendour. Bp. Patrick.

That which Moses begs, is a more plain and familiar knowledge of the Divine Nature and Essence, or such a “seeing of God,” ver. 20, as this mortal state will not admit of. Bp. Kidder.

19. — I will make all my goodness pass &c.] When Moses desires, that God would shew him His glory, he is answered, that God will cause “His goodness to pass before him;” and will “proclaim His name,” or His glorious attributes before him; hereby intimating, that to know God in His glorious attributes or moral perfections was of much greater importance, than to be admitted to the immediate sight of that outward Divine Glory, even though he had been able to behold it in all its unutterable splendour. Dr. Leland.

— and will be gracious &c.] I will always dispense My favours, according to My own pleasure, as I now vouchsafe this favour to thee. Bp. Patrick.

22. — will cover thee with my hand] I will cast a cloud about thee, that thou mayest not be struck dead by the inconceivable brightness of the rays, which come from the Divine Majesty. Bp. Patrick.

23. — I will take away mine hand, &c.] When the full splen-dour of My Majesty is passed, I will remove that cloud which covered thee; and thou shalt see the skirts and hinder portion, or have a shaded and imperfect view, of the symbol of My presence; but thou shalt not see My glory in its fullest lustre. Bp. Patrick. It is manifest, that these passages cannot possibly be designed to signify, that God is of a bodily form, or that His Essence can be seen with the bodily eye. When Moses desired to see “the glory of God,” the natural and most literal sense is, that he desired, as a token of the extraordinary favour, with which God was pleased to honour him, that He would vouchsafe to admit him to a full and immediate view of that Divine brightness and splendour of Majesty, without the cloud or darkness which usually veiled it: and when God let him know, that He could not “see His face and live;” and that “His face should not be seen;” this is designed to signify, that He would grant him such a view of that glory, as he was able to bear, but not in its full lustre and majesty, which would have overpowered his frail nature. The bright side of the glorious light, where it shone with its full unveiled lustre, is called the fore part, or “face:” and the dark side, where there was a lower degree of brightness, is called its “back part.” There is no danger that any one, who reads the Scriptures, should think that the Divine Essence consists of any bodily form or parts; since He is described as “filling the heaven of heavens,” 1 Kings viii. 27; as “a spirit,” John iv. 24, “whom no man hath seen, nor can see,” 1 Tim. vi. 16, &c. Dr. Leland.

Chap. XXXIV. ver. 1. — Hew thee two tables &c.] By this renewal of the Law, God shewed that He was reconciled to Israel. As the Israelites had been wilfully blind, had they not seen God’s anger in the tables broken; so could they not but esteem it a good sign of grace that God gave them His testimonies. There was nothing, wherein Israel surpassed all the rest of the world more than in this privilege; the pledge of His covenant, the Law, written with God’s own hand. What a favour then is it, where God bestows His Gospel upon any nation! That was but “a

Before
CHRIST
1491.

2 And be ready in the morning, and come up in the morning unto mount Sinai, and present thyself there to me in the top of the mount.

^a Chap. 19.
12.

3 And no man shall ^bcome up with thee, neither let any man be seen throughout all the mount; neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that mount.

4 ¶ And he hewed two tables of stone like unto the first; and Moses rose up early in the morning, and went up unto mount Sinai, as the LORD had commanded him, and took in his hand the two tables of stone.

5 And the LORD descended in the cloud, and stood with him there, and proclaimed the name of the LORD.

6 And the LORD passed by before him, and proclaimed, The LORD, The LORD God, merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth,

^c Chap. 20.
5.
Deut. 5. 9.
Jer. 32. 18.

7 Keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, and that will by no means clear the guilty; ^c visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the children's children, unto the third and to the fourth generation.

8 And Moses made haste, and bowed his head toward the earth, and worshipped.

9 And he said, If now I have found grace in thy sight, O LORD, let my Lord, I pray thee, go among us; for it is a stiffnecked people; and pardon our iniquity and our sin, and take us for thine inheritance.

^d Deut. 5. 2.

10 ¶ And he said, Behold, ^dI make a covenant: before all thy people I will do marvels, such as have not been done in all the earth, nor in any nation: and all the people among which thou art shall see the work of the LORD: for it is a terrible thing that I will do with thee.

killing letter," 2 Cor. iii. 6: this is "the power of God unto salvation," Rom. i. 16. Bp. Hall.

5. — proclaimed the name of the Lord.] Here "the name of the Lord" signifies those adorable perfections or attributes, which are, as it were, the proper denomination and character of the Divine Nature. Dr. S. Clarke.

7. — that will by no means clear the guilty;] Without repentance. Dr. Wells. The words have been translated also, "In extirpating He will not extirpate:" and so they still belong to the lovingkindness of God, as all the foregoing do; signifying, that when He doth punish, He will not utterly destroy and make desolate. Bp. Patrick. See the notes on Numb. xiv. 18, and Jer. xxx. 11.

Although there be several other names and properties of God, commonly attributed to Him in His Holy Word, yet they are all included in one or other of those here given. This great essential name, JEHOVAH, The LORD, used singly, signifies what He is in Himself, without respect to His creatures: where it is used with the word God, it seems to denote all those perfections, which He manifests in the creation and government of the world. And so the LORD God is the same, as if He had said, The Lord, the Al-

Before
CHRIST
1491.

11 Observe thou that which I command thee this day: behold, I drive out before thee the Amorite, and the Canaanite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Hivite, and the Jebusite.

12 ^e Take heed to thyself, lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land whither thou goest, lest it be for a snare in the midst of thee:

^e Chap. 23.
32.
Deut. 7. 2.

13 But ye shall destroy their altars, break their ^fimages, and cut down their groves:

^f Heb.
statues.

14 For thou shalt worship no other god: for the LORD, whose name is Jealous, is a ^gjealous God:

^g Chap. 20.
5.

15 Lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land, and they go a whoring after their gods, and do sacrifice unto their gods, and one call thee, and thou eat of his sacrifice;

16 And thou take of ^htheir daughters unto thy sons, and their daughters go a whoring after their gods, and make thy sons go a whoring after their gods.

^h 1 Kings
11. 2.

17 Thou shalt make thee no molten gods.

18 ¶ The feast of ⁱunleavened bread shalt thou keep. Seven days thou shalt eat unleavened bread, as I commanded thee, in the time of the month Abib: for in the ^jmonth Abib thou camest out from Egypt.

ⁱ Chap. 23.
15.

19 ^kAll that openeth the matrix is mine; and every firstling among thy cattle, whether ox or sheep, that is male.

^k Chap. 22.
29.
Ezek. 44.
30.

20 But the firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a ^llamb: and if thou redeem him not, then shalt thou break his neck. All the firstborn of thy sons thou shalt redeem. And none shall appear before me ^mempty.

^l Or, kid.

^m Chap. 23.
15.

mighty, All-wise, All-good Creator, Preserver, and Governour of all things: this He speaks of Himself, with reference to the whole creation. But the rest of the properties here mentioned, as His mercy, His grace, His longsuffering, His abundance in goodness or bounty, and truth, His keeping mercy for thousands, His forgiving iniquities, transgression, and sin, &c. have all respect to mankind in a particular manner. And by the last, namely, His "forgiving," or, as the word signifies, His taking away "iniquity, transgression, and sin," He intimates His special love to them, in sending His Son, "the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world." Bp. Beveridge.

16. — go a whoring after their gods.] The Scriptures frequently speak of idolatrous worship as uncleanness: partly, in compliance with the Jewish idiom, which calls any thing, that is detestable, filthy and unclean; the persons of that people being rendered unholy by corporal pollutions: partly, by reason of the very unchaste actions and rites, by which many of the heathen idols were served: but especially, because it was an alienation of the hearts and bodies of the Jews from the God of Israel, who had, as it were, chosen that Church as His spouse on earth. Abp. Tenison.

Engraved by Raphael D'Urban.

THE DELIVERY OF THE LAW.

Exodus ch. 31 v. 29.

Published by the Society for promulgating Christian Knowledge, May 2, 1841.

Figured by H. W. W.

Before CHRIST 1491. 21 ¶ Six days thou shalt work, but on the seventh day thou shalt rest: in earing time and in harvest thou shalt rest.

12. Deut. 5. 12. 22 ¶ And thou shalt observe the feast of weeks, of the firstfruits of wheat harvest, and the feast of ingathering at the year's end.

14. Chap. 23. 16. † Heb. revolution of the year. 23 ¶ Thrice in the year shall all your men children appear before the LORD God, the God of Israel.

14, 17. Deut. 16. 24 For I will cast out the nations before thee, and enlarge thy borders: neither shall any man desire thy land, when thou shalt go up to appear before the LORD thy God thrice in the year.

18. Chap. 23. 25 Thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leaven; neither shall the sacrifice of the feast of the passover be left unto the morning.

19. Deut. 14. 26 The first of the firstfruits of thy land thou shalt bring unto the house of the LORD thy God. Thou shalt not see the a kid in his mother's milk.

21. Deut. 4. 27 And the LORD said unto Moses, Write thou these words: for after the tenor of these words I have made a covenant with thee and with Israel.

18. Chap. 24. 28 And he was there with the LORD forty days and forty nights; he did neither eat bread, nor drink water. And he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments.

29 ¶ And it came to pass, when Moses came down from mount Sinai with the two tables of testimony in Moses' hand, when he came down from the mount, that Moses wist not that the skin of his face shone while he talked with him.

30 And when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone; and they were afraid to come nigh him.

31 And Moses called unto them; and Aaron and all the rulers of the congregation returned unto him: and Moses talked with them.

32 And afterward all the children of Israel came nigh: and he gave them in commandment all that the LORD had spoken with him in mount Sinai.

33 And till Moses had done speaking with them, he put a vail on his face.

34 But when Moses went in before the LORD to speak with him, he took the vail off, until he came out. And he came out, and spake unto the children of Israel that which he was commanded.

35 And the children of Israel saw the face of Moses, that the skin of Moses' face shone: and Moses put the vail upon his

Before CHRIST 1491.

† Heb. words

2 Cor. 3. 13.

21. Six days thou shalt work, but on the seventh &c.] If labour of any sort could be ordinarily permitted on this day, it must be that of cultivating the earth, and gathering in the fruits of it: the proper seasons for which, especially for the latter, may otherwise be lost. And accordingly allowances of this kind have been formerly granted by law. But they have been found so little needful, and so liable to abuse, that these laws have been repealed, and that of Moses resumed: "Six days thou shalt work, but on the seventh, in earing," that is, in ploughing "time and in harvest, thou shalt rest." Never, I believe, hath any general scarcity, seldom, if ever, hath any great distress in any particular place happened, merely by observing this rule. But were the breach of it indulged, whenever the persons concerned should think it necessary, many of them would plead the necessity every year, and in a little while throughout the year: so their servants and cattle would be kept to incessant toil; and just that part of the world, which most needs instructing and civilizing, that is, the lowest, would have by far the least opportunity for it. Abp. Secker.

24. — neither shall any man desire thy land, &c.] He tells them, that there shall be no danger of their country being invaded by their enemies, when their males are gone to worship God. Bp. Patrick. See the note on Deut. xvi. 16.

29. — the two tables of testimony] The Ten Commandments, being originally written, by the finger of God Himself, on two tables of stone, and consisting of two parts, our duty to our Maker, and to our fellow creatures; which we can never perform as we ought, if we neglect what we owe to ourselves; the four first are usually called the duties of the first table; the six last, of the second. Abp. Secker.

— the skin of his face shone] Shot forth radiant beams of light, as the Hebrew properly expresses it. Parkhurst. The Latin Vulgate renders it "horned;" by confining the sense of the Hebrew word, which signifies in general "rayed." From mistaking that translation, the Italian painters, whom others have ignorantly followed, are wont to represent Moses with horns, instead of rays of glorious light. Pyle.

If the flesh of Moses, in this mortal perishable body, so shined by conversing with God forty days in Sinai, what shall be our glory, when, clothed with incorruptible bodies, we shall converse with Him for ever in the highest heaven! Bp. Hall.

35. — the skin of Moses' face shone:] To reward and strengthen the faith of Moses, God was pleased, at his request, to grant him a fuller view of the Divine glory or presence, than He had hitherto; and, to confirm his authority with the people, on his return after the second conference of forty days, He imparted to him a portion of that glory: for the face of Moses shone so, that Aaron, and all the people, were afraid to come nigh him, until he had put a vail on his face, to hide its brightness. This was an honour, never vouchsafed to mortal before; nor afterwards, till CHRIST, the Prophet like Moses, in His transfiguration also, on mount Tabor: when Moses again beheld the glory of the LORD, ministering thereto in a glorified form himself, Matt. xvii. 1—8. Dr. Hales.

— Moses put the vail upon his face] Finding that the Israelites durst not look upon it. That which should have comforted, affrights them; yea, Aaron himself, that before went up into the mount to see and speak with God, now is afraid to see him that had seen God: such a fear there is in guiltiness, such confidence in innocency! When the soul is once cleared from sin, it shall run to that glory with joy, the least glimpse of which now appals it, and sends it away in terror. How could the Israelites now do otherwise than think, "How shall we abide to look God in the face, since our eyes are dazzled with the face of Moses?" And well may we still argue, "If the image of God, which He hath set in the fleshly forehead of authority, daunt us, how shall we stand before the dread tribunal of Heaven?" Bp. Hall.

Before CHRIST 1491. face again, until he went in to speak with him.

CHAP. XXXV.

¹ The sabbath. ⁴ The free gifts for the tabernacle. ²⁰ The readiness of the people to offer. ³⁰ Bezaleel and Aholiab are called to the work.

AND Moses gathered all the congregation of the children of Israel together, and said unto them, These are the words which the LORD hath commanded, that ye should do them.

^a Chap. 20. ² Six days shall work be done, but on the seventh day there shall be to you [†]an holy day, a sabbath of rest to the LORD: whosoever doeth work therein shall be put to death.

³ Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations upon the sabbath day.

⁴ ¶ And Moses spake unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, saying, This is the thing which the LORD commanded, saying,

⁵ Take ye from among you an offering unto the LORD: ^b whosoever is of a willing heart, let him bring it, an offering of the LORD; gold, and silver, and brass,

⁶ And blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats' hair,

⁷ And rams' skins dyed red, and badgers' skins, and shittim wood,

⁸ And oil for the light, and spices for anointing oil, and for the sweet incense, ⁹ And onyx stones, and stones to be set for the ephod, and for the breastplate.

¹⁰ And every wise hearted among you shall come, and make all that the LORD hath commanded;

^a Chap. 26. ³¹ ¹¹ The tabernacle, his tent, and his covering, his taches, and his boards, his bars, his pillars, and his sockets,

¹² The ark, and the staves thereof, with the mercy seat, and the vail of the covering,

¹³ The table, and his staves, and all his vessels, and the shewbread,

¹⁴ The candlestick also for the light, and his furniture, and his lamps, with the oil for the light,

¹⁵ ^d And the incense altar, and his staves, and the anointing oil, and the sweet incense, and the hanging for the door at the entering in of the tabernacle, ^e Before CHRIST 1491. ^d Chap. 30. ¹

¹⁶ ^c The altar of burnt offering, with his brasen grate, his staves, and all his vessels, the laver and his foot, ^c Chap. 27. ¹

¹⁷ The hangings of the court, his pillars, and their sockets, and the hanging for the door of the court,

¹⁸ The pins of the tabernacle, and the pins of the court, and their cords, ¹⁹ The cloths of service, to do service in the holy place, the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons, to minister in the priest's office.

²⁰ ¶ And all the congregation of the children of Israel departed from the presence of Moses.

²¹ And they came, every one whose heart stirred him up, and every one whom his spirit made willing, and they brought the LORD's offering to the work of the tabernacle of the congregation, and for all his service, and for the holy garments.

²² And they came, both men and women, as many as were willing hearted, and brought bracelets, and earrings, and rings, and tablets, all jewels of gold: and every man that offered offered an offering of gold unto the LORD.

²³ And every man, with whom was found blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats' hair, and red skins of rams, and badgers' skins, brought them.

²⁴ Every one that did offer an offering of silver and brass brought the LORD's offering: and every man, with whom was found shittim wood for any work of the service, brought it.

²⁵ And all the women that were wise hearted did spin with their hands, and brought that which they had spun, both of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine linen.

²⁶ And all the women whose heart stirred them up in wisdom spun goats' hair.

²⁷ And the rulers brought onyx stones, and stones to be set, for the ephod, and for the breastplate;

Chap. XXXV. ver. 5. Take ye from among you an offering &c.] We read that many among the children of Israel, both men and women, brought voluntary "offerings unto the Lord" for the work of the tabernacle. The early Christians imitated their example, as soon as they durst; and, after the superfluous ornaments of the following age were justly disapproved, valuable presents have been made in the reformed Church of England for the greater solemnity and beauty of Divine service. Distinguished honour is due, by reason, Scripture, and the consent of mankind, to sacred things. Indeed, every thing publick, though of a civil nature only, and still more of a religious, ought to exceed, in point of dignity, that which belongs to mere private use; and the neglect of this rule both shews, and will increase, a preference of personal interests to those of the community. Abp. Secker.

6, 7. All that follows is repeated from chapters twenty-five and twenty-six.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

^f Chap. 30.
23.

28 And ^f spice, and oil for the light, and for the anointing oil, and for the sweet incense.

29 The children of Israel brought a willing offering unto the LORD, every man and woman, whose heart made them willing to bring for all manner of work, which the LORD had commanded to be made by the hand of Moses.

^g Chap. 31.
2.

30 ¶ And Moses said unto the children of Israel, See, ^g the LORD hath called by name Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah;

31 And he hath filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship;

32 And to devise curious works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass, 33 And in the cutting of stones, to set them, and in carving of wood, to make any manner of cunning work.

34 And he hath put in his heart that he may teach, both he, and Aholiab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan.

35 Them hath he filled with wisdom of heart, to work all manner of work, of the engraver, and of the cunning workman, and of the embroiderer, in blue, and in purple, in scarlet, and in fine linen, and of the weaver, even of them that do any work, and of those that devise cunning work.

CHAP. XXXVI.

¹ The offerings are delivered to the workmen. ⁵ The liberality of the people is restrained. ⁸ The curtains of cherubims. ¹⁴ The curtains of goats' hair. ¹⁹ The covering of skins. ²⁰ The boards with their sockets. ³¹ The bars. ³⁵ The vail. ³⁷ The hanging for the door.

1491.

THEN wrought Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wise hearted man, in whom the LORD put wisdom and understanding to know how to work all manner of work for the service of the sanctuary, according to all that the LORD had commanded.

2 And Moses called Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wise hearted man, in whose heart the LORD had put wisdom, even every one whose heart stirred him up to come unto the work to do it:

3 And they received of Moses all the offering, which the children of Israel had brought for the work of the service of the sanctuary, to make it withal. And they brought yet unto him free offerings every morning.

4 And all the wise men, that wrought all the work of the sanctuary, came every man from his work which they made;

5 ¶ And they spake unto Moses, saying, The people bring much more than enough for the service of the work, which the LORD commanded to make.

6 And Moses gave commandment, and they caused it to be proclaimed throughout the camp, saying, Let neither man nor woman make any more work for the offering of the sanctuary. So the people were restrained from bringing.

7 For the stuff they had was sufficient for all the work to make it, and too much.

8 ¶ ^a And every wise hearted man among ^a Chap. 26. ¹ them that wrought the work of the tabernacle made ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet: with cherubims of cunning work made he them.

9 The length of one curtain was twenty and eight cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: the curtains were all of one size.

10 And he coupled the five curtains one unto another: and the other five curtains he coupled one unto another.

11 And he made loops of blue on the edge of one curtain from the selvedge in the coupling: likewise he made in the uttermost side of another curtain, in the coupling of the second.

12 ^b Fifty loops made he in one curtain, ^b Chap. 26. ¹⁰ and fifty loops made he in the edge of the curtain which was in the coupling of the second: the loops held one curtain to another.

13 And he made fifty taches of gold, and coupled the curtains one unto another with the taches: so it became one tabernacle.

14 ¶ And he made curtains of goats' hair for the tent over the tabernacle: eleven curtains he made them.

15 The length of one curtain was thirty cubits, and four cubits was the breadth of one curtain: the eleven curtains were of one size.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

35. Them hath he filled with wisdom of heart,] This seems to be so often repeated for the purpose of increasing the confidence of the Israelites in the workmen, and of shewing that Bezaleel and Aholiab were fit to be intrusted with the rich offerings they had made. Bp. Patrick. As also of inculcating upon the minds of the people, that every human accomplishment is the gift of God. Edit.

Chap. XXXVI. ver. 9. All that follows in this and the next chapter is repeated from chapters xxv, xxvi, xxx. See the remarks of Dr. Graves in the Introduction to this book.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

16 And he coupled five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves.

17 And he made fifty loops upon the uttermost edge of the curtain in the coupling, and fifty loops made he upon the edge of the curtain which coupleth the second.

18 And he made fifty taches of brass to couple the tent together, that it might be one.

19 And he made a covering for the tent of rams' skins dyed red, and a covering of badgers' skins above that.

20 ¶ And he made boards for the tabernacle of shittim wood, standing up.

21 The length of a board was ten cubits, and the breadth of a board one cubit and a half.

22 One board had two tenons, equally distant one from another: thus did he make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

23 And he made boards for the tabernacle; twenty boards for the south side southward:

24 And forty sockets of silver he made under the twenty boards; two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and two sockets under another board for his two tenons.

25 And for the other side of the tabernacle, which is toward the north corner, he made twenty boards,

26 And their forty sockets of silver; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

27 And for the sides of the tabernacle westward he made six boards.

28 And two boards made he for the corners of the tabernacle in the two sides.

29 And they were † coupled beneath, and coupled together at the head thereof, to one ring: thus he did to both of them in both the corners.

30 And there were eight boards; and their sockets were sixteen sockets of silver, † under every board two sockets.

31 ¶ And he made bars of shittim wood; five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle,

32 And five bars for the boards of the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the tabernacle for the sides westward.

33 And he made the middle bar to shoot through the boards from the one end to the other.

34 And he overlaid the boards with gold, and made their rings of gold to be places for the bars, and overlaid the bars with gold. Before

CHRIST
1491.

35 ¶ And he made a vail of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen: with cherubims made he it of cunning work.

36 And he made thereunto four pillars of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold: their hooks were of gold; and he cast for them four sockets of silver.

37 ¶ And he made an hanging for the tabernacle door of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, † of needle-work; † Heb.
the work of a needle-worker, or,
embroider-er.

38 And the five pillars of it with their hooks: and he overlaid their chapiters and their fillets with gold: but their five sockets were of brass.

CHAP. XXXVII.

1 The ark. 6 The mercy seat with cherubims. 10 The table with his vessels. 17 The candlestick with his lamps and instruments. 25 The altar of incense. 29 The anointing oil and sweet incense.

AND Bezaleel ^a made the ark of shittim wood: two cubits and a half was the length of it, and a cubit and a half the breadth of it, and a cubit and a half the height of it: ^a Chap. 25.
10.

2 And he overlaid it with pure gold within and without, and made a crown of gold to it round about.

3 And he cast for it four rings of gold, to be set by the four corners of it; even two rings upon the one side of it, and two rings upon the other side of it.

4 And he made staves of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold.

5 And he put the staves into the rings by the sides of the ark, to bear the ark.

6 ¶ And he made the ^b mercy seat of pure gold: two cubits and a half was the length thereof, and one cubit and a half the breadth thereof. ^b Chap. 25.
17.

7 And he made two cherubims of gold, beaten out of one piece made he them, on the two ends of the mercy seat;

8 One cherub || on the end on this side, and another cherub || on the other end on that side: out of the mercy seat made he the cherubims on the two ends thereof. || Or,
out of; &c.
|| Or,
out of; &c.

9 And the cherubims spread out their wings on high, and covered with their wings over the mercy seat, with their faces one to another; even to the mercy seatward were the faces of the cherubims.

10 ¶ And he made the table of shittim wood: two cubits was the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof:

† Heb.
twined.

† Heb.
two sockets,
two sockets
under one board.
^a Chap. 25.
23. & 30. 5.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

11 And he overlaid it with pure gold, and made thereunto a crown of gold round about.

12 Also he made thereunto a border of an hand breadth round about; and made a crown of gold for the border thereof round about.

13 And he cast for it four rings of gold, and put the rings upon the four corners that were in the four feet thereof.

14 Over against the border were the rings, the places for the staves to bear the table.

15 And he made the staves of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold, to bear the table.

^c Chap. 25.
29.
|| Or, to pour out withal.
^d Chap. 25.
31.

16 And he made the vessels which were upon the table, his ^c dishes, and his spoons, and his bowls, and his covers || to cover withal, of pure gold.

17 ¶ And he made the ^d candlestick of pure gold: of beaten work made he the candlestick; his shaft, and his branch, his bowls, his knops, and his flowers, were of the same:

18 And six branches going out of the sides thereof; three branches of the candlestick out of the one side thereof, and three branches of the candlestick out of the other side thereof:

19 Three bowls made after the fashion of almonds in one branch, a knop and a flower; and three bowls made like almonds in another branch, a knop and a flower: so throughout the six branches going out of the candlestick.

20 And in the candlestick were four bowls made like almonds, his knops, and his flowers:

21 And a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, according to the six branches going out of it.

22 Their knops and their branches were of the same: all of it was one beaten work of pure gold.

23 And he made his seven lamps, and his snuffers, and his snuffdishes, of pure gold.

24 Of a talent of pure gold made he it, and all the vessels thereof.

^e Chap. 30.
1.

25 ¶ ^e And he made the incense altar of shittim wood: the length of it was a cubit, and the breadth of it a cubit; it was four-square; and two cubits was the height of it; the horns thereof were of the same. Before 1491.

CHRIST

26 And he overlaid it with pure gold, both the top of it, and the sides thereof round about, and the horns of it: also he made unto it a crown of gold round about.

27 And he made two rings of gold for it under the crown thereof, by the two corners of it, upon the two sides thereof, to be places for the staves to bear it withal.

28 And he made the staves of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold.

29 ¶ And he made ^f the holy anointing oil, and the pure incense of sweet spices, according to the work of the apothecary. ^f Chap. 30.
35.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

1 The altar of burnt offering. 8 The laver of brass. 9 The court. 21 The sum of that the people offered.

AND ^a he made the altar of burnt offering of shittim wood: five cubits was the length thereof, and five cubits the breadth thereof; it was foursquare; and three cubits the height thereof. ^a Chap. 27.
1.

2 And he made the horns thereof on the four corners of it; the horns thereof were of the same: and he overlaid it with brass.

3 And he made all the vessels of the altar, the pots, and the shovels, and the basons, and the fleshhooks, and the firepans: all the vessels thereof made he of brass.

4 And he made for the altar a brasen grate of network under the compass thereof of beneath unto the midst of it.

5 And he cast four rings for the four ends of the grate of brass, to be places for the staves.

6 And he made the staves of shittim wood, and overlaid them with brass.

7 And he put the staves into the rings on the sides of the altar, to bear it withal; he made the altar hollow with boards.

8 ¶ And he made the laver of brass, and the foot of it of brass, of the || looking-glasses of the women [†] assembling, which assembled at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. || Or,
brassen glasses.
[†] Heb. assembling
by troops.

9 ¶ And he made the court: on the south side southward the hangings of the court were of fine twined linen, an hundred cubits:

Chap. XXXVIII. ver. 8. — lookingglasses] Lookingglasses, or, as it should rather be rendered, mirrors, were formerly made of brass, tin, silver, &c. and a mixture of brass and silver. There are some still extant of silver which are much esteemed. The mirrors of the ancients were generally round. Calmet.

9. All that follows to ver. 21, has been explained at ch. xxvii. excepting two or three words.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

10 Their pillars were twenty, and their brasen sockets twenty; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets were of silver.

11 And for the north side the hangings were an hundred cubits, their pillars were twenty, and their sockets of brass twenty; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets of silver.

12 And for the west side were hangings of fifty cubits, their pillars ten, and their sockets ten; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets of silver.

13 And for the east side eastward fifty cubits.

14 The hangings of the one side of the gate were fifteen cubits; their pillars three, and their sockets three.

15 And for the other side of the court gate, on this hand and that hand, were hangings of fifteen cubits; their pillars three, and their sockets three.

16 All the hangings of the court round about were of fine twined linen.

17 And the sockets for the pillars were of brass; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets of silver; and the overlaying of their chapiters of silver; and all the pillars of the court were filleted with silver.

18 And the hanging for the gate of the court was needlework, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen: and twenty cubits was the length, and the height in the breadth was five cubits, answerable to the hangings of the court.

19 And their pillars were four, and their sockets of brass four; their hooks of silver, and the overlaying of their chapiters and their fillets of silver.

^b Chap. 27.
19.

20 And all the ^b pins of the tabernacle, and of the court round about, were of brass.

21 ¶ This is the sum of the tabernacle, even of the tabernacle of testimony, as it was counted, according to the commandment of Moses, for the service of the Levites, by the hand of Ithamar, son to Aaron the priest.

17. — chapiters] Or heads of the pillars.

18. — the height in the breadth] This is an Hebrew way of speaking, signifying the height of the hanging itself; its breadth, when it lay along, was called its height when it was hung up. Bp. Patrick.

21. This is the sum] This, which follows at ver. 24, &c. is the sum of all the materials, gold, silver, brass, &c. which were employed in building the tabernacle. Bp. Patrick.

— for the service of the Levites,] Rather, by the ministry of the Levites, whom Moses appointed to take the account of all the expenses. Bp. Patrick.

24. — twenty and nine talents,] As has been noted before, a 22 And Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, made all that the Lord commanded Moses. Before CHRIST 1491.

23 And with him was Aholiab, son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, an engraver, and a cunning workman, and an embroiderer in blue, and in purple, and in scarlet, and fine linen.

24 All the gold that was occupied for the work in all the work of the holy place, even the gold of the offering, was twenty and nine talents, and seven hundred and thirty shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary.

25 And the silver of them that were numbered of the congregation was an hundred talents, and a thousand seven hundred and threescore and fifteen shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary:

26 A bekah for [†] every man, that is, half a shekel, after the shekel of the sanctuary, for every one that went to be numbered, from twenty years old and upward, for six hundred thousand and three thousand and five hundred and fifty men. ^{† Heb. a poll.}

27 And of the hundred talents of silver were cast the sockets of the sanctuary, and the sockets of the vail; an hundred sockets of the hundred talents, a talent for a socket.

28 And of the thousand seven hundred seventy and five shekels he made hooks for the pillars, and overlaid their chapiters, and filleted them.

29 And the brass of the offering was seventy talents, and two thousand and four hundred shekels.

30 And therewith he made the sockets to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the brasen altar, and the brasen grate for it, and all the vessels of the altar,

31 And the sockets of the court round about, and the sockets of the court gate, and all the pins of the tabernacle, and all the pins of the court round about.

shekel was nearly half a crown of our money; and the talent was 3000 shekels. Thus the amount of the gold here mentioned (twenty-nine talents and 730 shekels) was something more than £147,180 of our money. Bp. Cumberland.

25, 26. It appears that there were 603,550 men, who gave a bekah, or half a shekel apiece; which amounts to 301,775 shekels; and, as this is called (at ver. 25) 100 talents, and 1775 shekels, it is shewn that the talent was equal to 3000 shekels. The whole sum of the silver is reckoned nearly £35,300 of our money. Bp. Cumberland.

28. — of the thousand seven hundred seventy and five shekels] Which remained above the 100 talents; see note at ver. 25.

Before
CHRIST

1491.

CHAP. XXXIX.

1 The cloths of service and holy garments. 2 The ephod.
8 The breastplate. 22 The robe of the ephod. 27
The coats, mitre, and girdle of fine linen. 30 The plate of the holy crown. 32 All is viewed and approved by Moses.

^a Chap. 31.
10. & 35.
19. AND of the blue, and purple, and scarlet, they made cloths of service, to do service in the holy place, and ^amade the holy garments for Aaron; as the LORD commanded Moses.

2 And he made the ephod of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

3 And they did beat the gold into thin plates, and cut it into wires, to work it in the blue, and in the purple, and in the scarlet, and in the fine linen, with cunning work.

4 They made shoulderpieces for it, to couple it together: by the two edges was it coupled together.

5 And the curious girdle of his ephod, that was upon it, was of the same, according to the work thereof; of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen;
as the LORD commanded Moses.

^b Chap. 28.
9. 6 ¶ And they wrought onyx stones inclosed in ouches of gold, graven, as signets are graven, with the names of the children of Israel.

^c Chap. 28.
12. 7 And he put them on the shoulders of the ephod, that they should be stones for a memorial to the children of Israel; as the LORD commanded Moses.

8 ¶ And he made the breastplate of cunning work, like the work of the ephod; of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

9 It was foursquare; they made the breastplate double: a span was the length thereof, and a span the breadth thereof, being doubled.

10 And they set in it four rows of stones: the first row was a ¶ sardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle: this was the first row.

11 And the second row, an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond.

12 And the third row, a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst.

13 And the fourth row, a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper: they were inclosed in ouches of gold in their inclosings.

Chap. XXXIX. ver. 3. And they did beat &c.] The under-workmen beat the gold into very thin plates, and then cut it into wires or small threads of gold. It appears that, in those days, they had not the art, which we now possess, of drawing a
Vol. I.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

14 And the stones were according to the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names, like the engravings of a signet, every one with his name, according to the twelve tribes.

15 And they made upon the breastplate chains at the ends, of wreathen work of pure gold.

16 And they made two ouches of gold, and two gold rings, and put the two rings in the two ends of the breastplate.

17 And they put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings on the ends of the breastplate.

18 And the two ends of the two wreath-en chains they fastened in the two ouches, and put them on the shoulderpieces of the ephod, before it.

19 And they made two rings of gold, and put them on the two ends of the breastplate, upon the border of it, which was on the side of the ephod inward.

20 And they made two other golden rings, and put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath, toward the forepart of it, over against the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the ephod.

21 And they did bind the breastplate by his rings unto the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, that it might be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breastplate might not be loosed from the ephod; as the LORD commanded Moses.

22 ¶ And he made the robe of the ephod of woven work, all of blue.

23 And there was an hole in the midst of the robe, as the hole of an habergeon, with a band round about the hole, that it should not rend.

24 And they made upon the hems of the robe pomegranates of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twined linen.

25 And they made ^d bells of pure gold, and put the bells between the pomegranates upon the hem of the robe, round about between the pomegranates; <sup>d Chap. 28.
33.</sup>

26 A bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate, round about the hem of the robe to minister in; as the LORD commanded Moses.

27 ¶ And they made coats of fine linen of woven work for Aaron, and for his sons, piece of gold into round wires of any length. Bp. Patrick.

— to work it in the blue, &c.] To twist it together with threads of blue, &c. so as to form one thread. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

* Chap. 28.
42.

* Chap. 28.
26.

28 And a mitre of fine linen, and goodly bonnets of fine linen, and linen breeches of fine twined linen,

29 And a girdle of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, of needlework; as the Lord commanded Moses.

30 ¶ And they made the plate of the holy crown of pure gold, and wrote upon it a writing, like to the engravings of a signet, ' HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

31 And they tied unto it a lace of blue, to fasten it on high upon the mitre; as the Lord commanded Moses.

32 ¶ Thus was all the work of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation finished: and the children of Israel did according to all that the Lord commanded Moses, so did they.

33 ¶ And they brought the tabernacle unto Moses, the tent, and all his furniture, his taches, his boards, his bars, and his pillars, and his sockets,

34 And the covering of rams' skins dyed red, and the covering of badgers' skins, and the vail of the covering,

35 The ark of the testimony, and the staves thereof, and the mercy seat,

36 The table, and all the vessels thereof, and the shewbread,

37 The pure candlestick, with the lamps thereof, even with the lamps to be set in order, and all the vessels thereof, and the oil for light,

32. Thus was — finished:] It is reasonably supposed that Moses has been thus exact and particular, in chapters xxxvi, xxxvii, xxxviii, xxxix, in relating how the tabernacle and its particulars were made, in order to shew more clearly and fully, that they were made according to God's directions, in chapters xxv, xxvi, &c. Dr. Wells.

— tabernacle of the tent] The tabernacle, or dwellingplace of God, which was a tent; or, "the tabernacle" may be thought to signify the inward part of the house, as the tent did the outward part which covered the inward. See chap. xl. 17, 19, 29. Bp. Patrick.

43. — as the Lord had commanded,] This is the tenth time that Moses, in this one chapter, says all this was done, "as the Lord had commanded," to shew how scrupulously exact they were in their obedience. Bp. Patrick.

— Moses blessed them.] He gave to the workmen, who had bestowed their labour on it, and to the whole congregation that contributed to it, his commendations, blessings, and prayers. Pyle.

On reviewing the account of the Jewish tabernacle and its utensils, as also of the priesthood and its offices, it is proper to consider for what ends and purposes God was pleased to institute these things. To this purpose, St. Paul informs us, that the Jewish Law was an imperfect dispensation from the first, and "added because of transgressions, till the seed should come," Gal. iii. 19; that in great condescension it was adapted to the weakness of the Jewish people, whom he compares to an heir un-

38 And the golden altar, and the anointing oil, and † the sweet incense, and the hanging for the tabernacle door,

39 The brasen altar, and his grate of brass, his staves, and all his vessels, the laver and his foot,

40 The hangings of the court, his pillars, and his sockets, and the hanging for the court gate, his cords, and his pins, and all the vessels of the service of the tabernacle, for the tent of the congregation, 41 The cloths of service to do service in the holy place, and the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and his sons' garments, to minister in the priest's office.

42 According to all that the Lord commanded Moses, so the children of Israel made all the work.

43 And Moses did look upon all the work, and, behold, they had done it as the Lord had commanded, even so had they done it: and Moses blessed them.

CHAP. XL.

1 The tabernacle is commanded to be reared, 9 and anointed. 13 Aaron and his sons to be sanctified. 16 Moses performeth all things accordingly. 34 A cloud covereth the tabernacle.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 On the first day of the first month shalt thou set up the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation.

3 And thou shalt put therein the ark of

Before
CHRIST
1491.

† Heb.
the incense of sweet spices.

der a tutor or governour, Gal. iv. 1, 2, "the law being our school-master to bring us unto Christ," Gal. iii. 24, and having only "a shadow of good things to come," Heb. x. 1. Thus the Jewish religion was, in its several particular institutions, intended in great measure to typify and prefigure the more perfect dispensation of the Gospel. That the Jewish High Priest was a manifest type of our Lord and Saviour, the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews has frequently declared, Heb. iii. 1; viii. 1; ix. 11. So the tabernacle itself was a type of our Redeemer dwelling in our nature, John i. 14, as was the ark in the Holy of Holies, with its mercy seat, an emblem of Him, from whose mouth we have received the Law, and whose satisfaction to Divine justice is our true propitiatory or mercy seat. In like manner, the several altars appointed in the tabernacle, and the sacrifices appointed to be performed upon them, equally lead us to Christ and His Dispensation. Since therefore the chief end of the several institutions relating to the ceremonial part of the Jewish worship was to prefigure the person and transactions of our Blessed Saviour, so the ceremonies appointed under it could never be of any esteem in the sight of God, except as they tended to promote this end, and to prepare men's minds for the reception of a more perfect institution of religion. Stackhouse.

Chap. XL. ver. 2. On the first day of the first month] This was the second year (as is expressly mentioned ver. 17) after their coming out from Egypt: a complete year within fourteen days after that great deliverance. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

^a Chap. 26.

35.

† Heb.
the order
thereof.

the testimony, and cover the ark with the vail.

4 And ^a thou shalt bring in the table, and set in order † the things that are to be set in order upon it; and thou shalt bring in the candlestick, and light the lamps thereof.

5 And thou shalt set the altar of gold for the incense before the ark of the testimony, and put the hanging of the door to the tabernacle.

6 And thou shalt set the altar of the burnt offering before the door of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation.

7 And thou shalt set the laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and shalt put water therein.

8 And thou shalt set up the court round about, and hang up the hanging at the court gate.

9 And thou shalt take the anointing oil, and anoint the tabernacle, and all that is therein, and shalt hallow it, and all the vessels thereof: and it shall be holy.

10 And thou shalt anoint the altar of the burnt offering, and all his vessels, and sanctify the altar: and it shall be an altar † most holy.

11 And thou shalt anoint the laver and his foot, and sanctify it.

12 And thou shalt bring Aaron and his sons unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and wash them with water.

13 And thou shalt put upon Aaron the holy garments, and anoint him, and sanctify him; that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

14 And thou shalt bring his sons, and clothe them with coats:

15 And thou shalt anoint them, as thou didst anoint their father, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office: for their anointing shall surely be an everlasting priesthood throughout their generations.

16 Thus did Moses: according to all that the LORD commanded him, so did he.

17 ¶ And it came to pass in the first month in the second year, on the first day of the month, that the ^b tabernacle was reared up.

18 And Moses reared up the tabernacle, and fastened his sockets, and set up the boards thereof, and put in the bars thereof, and reared up his pillars. Before CHRIST

1490.

19 And he spread abroad the tent over the tabernacle, and put the covering of the tent above upon it; as the LORD commanded Moses.

20 ¶ And he took and put the testimony into the ark, and set the staves on the ark, and put the mercy seat above upon the ark:

21 And he brought the ark into the tabernacle, and ^c set up the vail of the covering, and covered the ark of the testimony; as the LORD commanded Moses. ^c Chap. 35.
12.

22 ¶ And he put the table in the tent of the congregation, upon the side of the tabernacle northward, without the vail.

23 And he set the bread in order upon it before the LORD; as the LORD had commanded Moses.

24 ¶ And he put the candlestick in the tent of the congregation, over against the table, on the side of the tabernacle southward.

25 And he lighted the lamps before the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

26 ¶ And he put the golden altar in the tent of the congregation before the vail:

27 And he burnt sweet incense thereon; as the LORD commanded Moses.

28 ¶ And he set up the hanging at the door of the tabernacle.

29 And he put the altar of burnt offering by the door of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation, and offered upon it the burnt offering and the meat offering; as the ^d LORD commanded Moses. ^d Chap. 30.
9.

30 ¶ And he set the laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and put water there, to wash withal.

31 And Moses and Aaron and his sons washed their hands and their feet thereat:

32 When they went into the tent of the congregation, and when they came near unto the altar, they washed; as the LORD commanded Moses.

33 And he reared up the court round about the tabernacle and the altar, and set up the hanging of the court gate. So Moses finished the work.

34 ¶ ^e Then a cloud covered the tent of the congregation, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle. ^e Numb. 9.
15.
1 Kings 8.
10.

35 And Moses was not able to enter

3. — cover the ark with the vail.] That is, hang the vail, so as to separate the most holy part of the tabernacle, in which the ark was to stand, from the holy and outer part of the tabernacle. Bp. Patrick.

15. — for — an everlasting priesthood] This anointing shall not only consecrate them for the priesthood in their own persons; but their posterity also, who shall stand in need of no other anointing for the office, in succeeding generations. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

into the tent of the congregation, because the cloud abode thereon, and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle.

† Heb.
journeyed.

36 And when the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the children of Israel † went onward in all their journeys:

38. — fire was on it by night.] That is, the pillar, which in the day time was dark and had the appearance of a cloud, had in the night the appearance of fire. Bp. Patrick.

The following observations on the journeying of the Israelites, from an author, who has contributed largely to the foregoing annotations, may serve as a valuable conclusion to the notes on this book of Exodus.

“Without paying much regard to the opinions of the modern Arabs, and to the names which they assign to places, unless they have the sanction of antiquity, it may be remarked, that, where there are names of long standing, and accounts incidentally introduced by authors, who knew not the original history, and consequently could have no system to maintain, their evidence must necessarily have weight, and demand our attention. Such is the evidence of Diodorus Siculus, who mentions the traditions which prevailed among the people upon the coast, that the Red sea upon a time retired in a wonderful manner, and left the channel dry. The region also will often bear witness for itself. For when travellers arrive at that part of the bay, where the Israelites are supposed after their passage to have been engaged, they find names of places, and other memorials, which greatly illustrate and confirm the sacred history. It is said that they came into the region of Etham, which is still called Etti, the inhabitants of which were the Autæi of Pliny. Here also at this day is the wilderness of Shur and Sin, and the region of Paran. Beyond Corondel (near which place the natives still preserve a tradition, that a numerous army was formerly drowned near Bedea, the same as Clysma) is a hill called Gibel al Marah, and the coast downward seems to have the same name as it had of old, from the bitter waters with which it abounds; the inhabitants of which were probably the Maranæi of Pliny. The names of Elath and Midian also remain, and are mentioned by Abulfeda. Below this region are the palm-trees, and the twelve wells of water in Elim. Diodorus Siculus gives an account of this palm grove, as it was described by Ariston, who was sent by Ptolemy to descry the coast of Arabia upon the Red sea. The place was held in great reverence on account of the palms, which grew there in great number: all the country around was exposed to violent heats, and was destitute of good water: but in this spot, he says, “there are a number of springs and scallings of water, which fall as cool to the taste as snow.” Just above this part of the desert he places the Maranai; in whose name we probably see traces of the ancient Marah. Here likewise is the desert of Paran, the Pharan of Ptolemy; which in its situation agrees precisely with the Paran of the Scriptures. Diodorus further speaks of some rocks or pillars here, engraven with unknown characters. The same history of this palm grove and the fountains is given by Strabo: and they must have been the same mentioned by Moses; for we do not read that there was any other part of the region, which had either such a grove of trees or such water.

Thus it was in the time of the Israelites; and so it was found to be in the time of Strabo and Diodorus: and thus we find it at this day.

37 But if the cloud were not taken up, then they journeyed not till the day that it was taken up. Before
CHRIST
1490.

38 For the cloud of the Lord was upon the tabernacle by day, and fire was on it by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel, throughout all their journeys.

Monconys, in his return through the desert from mount Sinai, took a lower way to the south towards a place now called Tor, where seems to be the district described by Strabo and Diodorus, near Paran. He mentions a valley, which he passed through; and in this valley, towards the end, he saw the rocks with ancient inscriptions; and at last came to a place, which he seems very justly to suppose the Elim of the Scriptures: “where,” he says, “are still the twelve fountains, and a number of fine palm-trees.” Bp. Pococke also visited this district; and says, that in going southward towards Tor, and about a league from it towards the north, “there is a well of good water; and all about it are a great number of date-trees or palms, and several springs of salt water, especially to the southeast, where the monks have a garden. Near it are several springs, and a bath or two, which are called the baths of Moses. The Greeks, as well as some others, are of opinion, that this is Elim.” To the same purpose is the evidence of the traveller Brientbach, as quoted by Niebuhr.

It may perhaps be thought that these names were introduced by Christian travellers, and adopted by the later inhabitants of these parts. But this could not have been the case. Ariston, Diodorus, and Strabo, all lived before the Christian era. The learned Abulfeda was indeed much later; but he could have no regard for the religion of Jesus or of the Jews; nor any prejudice in favour of Moses. The names therefore have remained from the beginning unimpaired, and the situations of the places, which they point out, correspond so precisely with those mentioned in the Scriptures, and are supported by such indisputable authority, that they appear manifestly to be the same as those mentioned by the sacred historian.

The distance of time is so great, and the scene of action so remote and so little frequented, that one would imagine there could be no traces obtained of such early occurrences. It must therefore raise within us a kind of religious reverence for the sacred writer, when we see such evidences still remain to the truth of his wonderful history. We read of expeditions undertaken by Osiris, Sesostri, Bacchus, Semiramus, and the Atlantians, into different parts of the world. But no vestige remains of their operations, no particular history of their appulse, in any region upon earth. We have in like manner accounts of Brennus, as well as of the Teutones, Cimbri, and Ambrones; also of the Goths and Visigoths; and of other swarms from the great hive of the north; all which are better authenticated. Yet we have only a general history of their migrations. The places, from whence they originally came, and the particulars of their journeying, have been effaced for ages. When we look back upon the accounts transmitted concerning the Assyrians, Egyptians, Medes, and Scythians, or those of the early ages of Italy and Greece, we find nothing but a series of incredible and inconsistent events. But concerning the Israelites we have a regular and consistent history: and though they were roving in a desert for forty years, and far removed from the rest of the world, yet manifest tokens remain of their journeying and miraculous preservation.” Bryant.

The following are the Chapters from the Book of Exodus, appointed for Proper Lessons on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. III.	- - -	5th Sunday in Lent,	- - -	Morning.
— V.	- - -	Ditto,	- - -	Evening.
— IX.	- - -	Sunday before Easter,	- - -	Morning.
— X.	- - -	Ditto,	- - -	Evening.
— XII.	- - -	Easter Day,	- - -	Morning.
— XIII.	- - -	Easter Even,	- - -	Evening.

CHAP. XIV.	- - -	Easter Day,	- - -	Evening.
— XVI.	- - -	Easter Monday,	- - -	Morning.
— XVII.	- - -	Ditto,	- - -	Evening.
— XX.	- - -	Easter Tuesday,	- - -	Morning.
— XXXII.	- - -	Ditto,	- - -	Evening.

THE THIRD BOOK OF MOSES,

CALLED

LEVITICUS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Book of Leviticus is so called, because it is chiefly employed in describing the sacrifices and services of the Tabernacle, to be performed by that holy order of men who were of the tribe of Levi, and in detailing the particulars which related to the discharge of the priestly office; the historical parts of this book being extremely few. That Moses was the author of this book is shewn not only by the general arguments which prove him to have written the Pentateuch, but appears also from particular passages in other books of Scripture, in which this is expressly cited as his inspired work. The delivery of these Laws, it is supposed, was included in the space of one month.

The two main designs of the Jewish Law seem to have been, to oppose the idolatry and false worship so universally prevalent in the heathen world, and to prefigure the spiritual religion of Jesus Christ, the promised Saviour. As to the former of these designs, many particular customs and usages are forbidden the Jewish nation, for the prohibition of which we can in no way account, except by taking them under this view of an intended opposition to the several superstitions of the Gentiles. The chief difficulty under which we labour in this matter, is, that we cannot determine what particular idolatrous customs were prevailing in the time of Moses; so vastly distant is the time, and so short the records of ancient nations.

The religious services prescribed in this book are reducible to the following heads:

First, Sacrifices of different kinds. Though these were outward rites of religious service, yet did they carry with them their several meanings, which had relation to spiritual religion and worship, while the whole was a typical scheme, and a fit introduction to that more perfect dispensation of Jesus Christ the Messiah, by whom all mankind were to receive full atonement with God, and be blessed with the more pure revelation of His perfect will and way of worship.

Secondly, Purifications from legal uncleannesses. These were a numerous and burdensome part of the Israelitish religion: but they were not intended to terminate in mere ritual observance: they were most aptly significant of many things tending to inward and substantial religion, such as reverence towards God's house, His worship, and all holy things appropriated to His service: they represented also the necessity of inward purity of heart, life, and principles; the difficulty of rooting out evil habits from the mind, and the danger of sinful affections in such as worship the true God, and are related to Him as His peculiar people. These and other such things were represented by the purifications of the Jewish Law, always with a view to the promised Redeemer, who was in the most perfect manner to cleanse us by His blood, enlighten us by His doctrine, and purify us by His Spirit.

Thirdly, Various solemn festivals. The exact and pompous observance of these was so far from being a needless and trivial institution, that they appear to have been exceedingly proper for preserving the whole nation in the practice of true religion. They were thankful commemorations of the most signal national mercies and deliverances; mercies that formed the foundation of all their blessings, peace, and prosperity, as an united church and people: and, by their constant attendance on these joyful solemnities, at so many stated times of the year, and at the one fixed place of national worship, the people went through those courses of pious service to God, and that intercourse of kindness, generosity, and charity towards each other, which tended to make them adhere to the religion of the true God, and to confirm them in the love of that constitution under which they lived, surrounded with the uncommon blessings of His providence.

If in parts of the Jewish Law we should meet with some directions, the utility of which should not be at first sight apparent to us, let us beware of setting up the conclusions of our own reason against the unbounded wisdom of God. A closer consideration of the subject will teach us humbly to acknowledge that all these institutions answered the purpose of exercising the Israelites in faith and obedience; of preserving them a distinct and separate people, and of training them by a peculiar mode of discipline, wisely suited to their habits, prejudices, and circumstances, for the reception of the new dispensation under the Messiah. It will teach us also, that many of those directions, which rashness and presumption sometimes censure as trifling, and as unworthy of the Divine attention, were specifically calculated to guard the people of Israel, from being betrayed into particular modes of idolatry and wickedness, prevalent in the nations amongst whom they were to dwell.

Besides the laws relating to religion delivered in this book, there are civil and judicial laws, which appear, when rightly considered, to make the surest provision for the honour of the government and magistracy, to lay down most impartially the rights of the people, and to advance those degrees of charity, peaceableness, mutual love, and justice, which form the strongest cement of a happy society.

Pyle, Dr. Gray, Gisborne.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

CHAP. I.

1 The burnt offerings. 3 Of the herd, 10 of the flocks,
13 of the fowls.

AND the LORD called unto Moses, and spake unto him out of the tabernacle of the congregation, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, If any man of you bring an offering unto the LORD, ye shall bring your offering of the cattle, even of the herd, and of the flock.

Chap. I. ver. 1. — the Lord called unto Moses,] The repetition, frequent as it is, of this form of promulgation is truly solemn and majestic, "The Lord called," that is, He declared and published His pleasure distinctly and aloud, as princes on their thrones, and generals in their camps, are wont to do. Yet He did this, as the rabbies observe, with expressions of tenderness and love; for it was not for His own sake that He imposed on them these rites of worship, but for theirs; and that they might continually have in remembrance how much their whole dependence was upon Him. Biblioth. Bibl.

2. — If any man of you bring an offering] It is observable, that in this beginning of the laws respecting sacrifices, God does not command the Israelites to offer these rites; but, appearing to suppose that they would offer them in compliance with the customs in which they had been brought up, and the usages of the world at that time, directs them to Himself as the right object, and limits them to such things as are most agreeable to human nature. They were to offer them, of the herd as bullocks, or of the flock as sheep and goats. Bp. Patrick. One great end of the Levitical sacrifices was the prevention of idolatry. God needed them not: the sacrifice of a pure and humble mind was more agreeable to Him who is an intellectual Spirit. But the Israelites doated on such gross manner of expressing their devotion; and seeing they must needs offer sacrifice, it pleased God to give them a law which might indulge them in their inclinations, and restrain them from sacrificing unto idols. Abp. Tenison. Sacrifices had been appointed from the fall of man, but the design of them had been perverted or forgotten. The sacrifices in the Levitical law are to be considered, first, in a carnal worldly view, as freeing the Jew from all contracted uncleanness, and rendering him worthy to continue a member of that church, and an inheritor of the land of Canaan. 2dly, In a spiritual sense, with regard to the sacrifice of Christ, which was to cleanse them from sin, and fit them for an inheritance in the heavenly Canaan. Bp. Wilson. The institution of animal sacrifice had continued until the giving of the law, no other offering but that of an animal being recorded in Scripture, down to this period, except in the case of Cain, when the offering was rejected. But when we come to the promulgation of the law, we find the connexion between animal sacrifice and atonement or reconciliation with God, clearly and distinctly announced. It is here declared, that sacrifices for sin should, on conforming to certain prescribed modes of offering, be accepted as the means of deliverance from the penal consequences of transgression. Dr. Magee.

It is on the whole most probable that sacrifices were first instituted by God Himself, and enjoined to our first parents, presently after the fall: from whom, and afterwards from Noah, all nations received them by tradition. However, in process of time, these, as well as many other branches of religious faith and worship, were miserably corrupted: instead of brute animals, which God had appointed, human sacrifices grew into use; and it became no uncommon thing, in several countries, for parents to sacrifice their children. Besides this change in the subjects of the sacrifices, the objects of them were likewise altered; the Gentiles sacrificing to "devils, and not to God," 1 Cor. x. 20. When therefore God chose Israel to be His peculiar people and church, among whom He would revive the true religion; He gave them anew

3 If his offering be a burnt sacrifice of the herd, let him offer a male without blemish: he shall offer it of his own voluntary will at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD.

4^a And he shall put his hand upon the head of the burnt offering; and it shall be accepted for him to make atonement for him. ^{* Exod. 29 10.}

5 And he shall kill the bullock before the LORD: and the priests, Aaron's sons, shall bring the blood, and sprinkle the

His law concerning sacrifices, with the addition of such particular rites, as would make them more significant types of good things to come under the Gospel dispensation. Dr. Jennings.

— of the herd, and of the flock.] God limits the kinds, whether animate or inanimate, which His people were to sacrifice or offer unto Him; whereas the Gentiles took their own liberty, and offered a strange variety of species, and almost something of every kind which was valuable or serviceable to themselves; because, in the same proportion, they supposed it would be acceptable to their deities. Dean Spencer.

3. — a burnt sacrifice] Burnt sacrifices were so called, because wholly burnt on the altar. These are the first and most ancient sort of sacrifices. They are mentioned by the Heathens, as well as the Jews; particularly by Xenophon, who speaks of offering burnt sacrifices of oxen to Jupiter, and of horses to the Sun. The Jews accounted these the most excellent of all their sacrifices. Some Christian writers make the burnt offering to be offered to God, as an acknowledgment of His being the Creator, Lord, and Preserver of all, worthy of all honour and worship. Others suppose that they were either to expiate the evil thoughts of the heart, as sin offerings and trespass offerings were to do for evil actions; or to atone for the breach of affirmative precepts, as those did for negative. But doubtless there was a further use and intention in these sacrifices, even to typify, and to direct the faith of the Old Testament believers to that only true atoning sacrifice, which the Son of God was to offer in due time. Hence Christ is said to have "offered up His body once for all," Heb. x. 10; that is, His whole Self, His entire human nature. Dr. Jennings, Lewis.

— at the door of the tabernacle] Here the priest was carefully to inspect and examine the animal brought to be offered, to ascertain whether it was every way such as God required. In saying "the door of the tabernacle," which was in some sense His proper house, and the abode of His divine Majesty, He admonished them to sacrifice to Himself alone, and not to any strange gods; which was the reason of His commanding all sacrifices to be brought to this place. Dr. Outram.

4. — put his hand upon the head] Thereby, as it were, transferring the punishment, which was due to himself, upon the sacrifice that was to be slain and offered up. Abp. Tillotson. This ceremony of putting the hand on the head denoted the entire devotion of things or persons to the special service of God. Dr. Outram. He who brought the victim was commanded to lay his hand upon the head of the animal: which action was esteemed an acknowledgment of his own guilt, and a prayer that it might be punished in the victim upon which his hand was laid. And accordingly we find in the rabbinical writers a set form of prayer, which according to them was always used on this occasion. In this form the delinquent acknowledges his offence, and professes his repentance; and concludes with a petition, that the victim upon which he laid his hand might be his expiation. By which last expression he was, as the Jews inform us, understood to mean, that the victim might be substituted in his room, and that the punishment which himself had merited, might fall on the head of his offering. Feysie. Thus the victim was accepted to make atonement for the offerer, that is, it recommended him to the future favour of God on his sincere prayers accompanying it. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

blood round about upon the altar that is by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

6 And he shall flay the burnt offering, and cut it into his pieces.

7 And the sons of Aaron the priest shall put fire upon the altar, and lay the wood in order upon the fire :

8 And the priests, Aaron's sons, shall lay the parts, the head, and the fat, in order upon the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar :

9 But his inwards and his legs shall he wash in water : and the priest shall burn all on the altar, to be a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

10 ¶ And if his offering be of the flocks, namely, of the sheep, or of the goats, for a burnt sacrifice ; he shall bring it a male without blemish.

11 And he shall kill it on the side of the altar northward before the LORD : and the priests, Aaron's sons, shall sprinkle his blood round about upon the altar.

12 And he shall cut it into his pieces, with his head and his fat : and the priest shall lay them in order on the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar :

13 But he shall wash the inwards and the legs with water : and the priest shall bring it all, and burn it upon the altar : it is a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

7. — shall put fire upon the altar,] Shall prepare the fire, and kindle the coals ; for the original fire, as we read afterwards, came down from heaven. Biblioth. Bibl.

9. — a sweet savour] Acceptable to God as the testimony of the sincere devotion of the offerer. Bp. Kidder. It is a form of speech taken from men, who are delighted with the good scent and taste of meat and drink : none can reasonably imagine that the mere sacrifice was pleasing to God, but the devotion, faith, obedience, and sincerity of their minds who made the oblation. Bp. Patrick. See the note on Gen. viii. 21.

14. — turtledoves, or of young pigeons.] They were not to be birds of prey, or of the coarser kind, but of the more harmless and wholesome nature. Pyle. There was vast plenty of doves and pigeons in the land of Canaan, so that the poorest people could make this oblation without being put to any great charge. Pigeons were most esteemed when young, and on this account young pigeons are to be offered. Bp. Patrick. By means of this provision, the poor as well as the rich had it in their power to perform their religious duty, and make their offerings to God, who receives the services of the poor no less graciously than those of the rich, if they proceed from a sincere and willing mind. Ostervald.

Chap. II. ver. 1. And when any will offer a meat offering] Here again is a merciful provision for those who were too poor to offer the sacrifice mentioned in the last chapter. The term "meat offering" should rather be translated bread offering, as use has now restrained the word meat to signify flesh. Dr. Wells. It was to 1490.

Before
CHRIST

14 ¶ And if the burnt sacrifice for his offering to the LORD be of fowls, then he shall bring his offering of turtledoves, or of young pigeons.

15 And the priest shall bring it unto the altar, and ¶ wring off his head, and burn it on the altar ; and the blood thereof shall be wrung out at the side of the altar :

¶ Or, pinch off the head with the nail.

16 And he shall pluck away his crop with ¶ his feathers, and cast it beside the altar on the east part, by the place of the ashes :

¶ Or, the filth
thereof.

17 And he shall cleave it with the wings thereof, but shall not divide it asunder : and the priest shall burn it upon the altar, upon the wood that is upon the fire : it is a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

CHAP. II.

1 The meat offering of flour with oil and incense, 4 either baked in the oven, 5 or on a plate, 7 or in a fryingpan, 12 or of the firstfruits in the ear. 13 The salt of the meat offering.

AND when any will offer a meat offering unto the LORD, his offering shall be of fine flour ; and he shall pour oil upon it, and put frankincense thereon :

2 And he shall bring it to Aaron's sons the priests : and he shall take thereout his handful of the flour thereof, and of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof ; and the priest shall burn the memorial of

be made of fine wheat flour, mixed with oil to give it a grateful flavour to the priests, ver. 3, and with frankincense, for the purpose, perhaps, of preventing an unpleasant smell in the court of the tabernacle. Bp. Patrick. The Hebrew word here for a meat offering is mincha, which denotes generally an oblation of the nature of a sacrifice, being consumed upon the altar ; although the Mosaick institution in a great degree narrows its application, confining it to what is called the meat offering, or more properly, the bread or flour offering. Dr. Magee.

—oil] Oil was anciently in very high esteem among the Eastern nations on various accounts, and, as they were wont to express almost every matter of importance by actions as well as words, one way of setting any thing apart and appropriating it to an honourable use, was by anointing it with oil. Therefore we find Jotham, in his parable, makes the olive tree speak of its fatness, as that "wherewith they honour God and man," Judg. ix. 9. Accordingly, the tabernacle and temple, and their furniture, were consecrated by anointing them. And almost every sacrifice had oil, mixed with flour, added to it, when it was offered up. Nor was it used only to these things, but to persons also who were distinguished in honour above others : to kings, who were hence frequently styled in Scripture, "the Lord's anointed ;" to priests, concerning whom God commands in the case of Aaron and his sons, "thou shalt anoint them — that they may minister unto Me in the priest's office," Exod. xl. 13 ; and lastly to prophets, as where Elijah is directed to "anoint Elisha in his room," 1 Kings xix. 16. Abp. Secker.

2. — the memorial of it] Meaning that part of the offering, by

Before
CHRIST 1490. a Eccl^{sa}
7 sl.

it upon the altar, to be an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD:

3 And ^athe remnant of the meat offering shall be Aaron's and his sons': it is a thing most holy of the offerings of the LORD made by fire.

4 ¶ And if thou bring an oblation of a meat offering baken in the oven, it shall be unleavened cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, or unleavened wafers anointed with oil.

¶ Or,
on a flat plate, or,
slice.

5 ¶ And if thy oblation be a meat offering baken ¶ in a pan, it shall be of fine flour unleavened, mingled with oil.

6 Thou shalt part it in pieces, and pour oil thereon: it is a meat offering.

7 ¶ And if thy oblation be a meat offering baken in the fryingpan, it shall be made of fine flour with oil.

8 And thou shalt bring the meat offering that is made of these things unto the LORD: and when it is presented unto the priest, he shall bring it unto the altar.

b Verse 2.

c Exod. 29.
18.

9 And the priest shall take from the meat offering ^ba memorial thereof, and shall burn it upon the altar: it is an ^coffering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

10 And that which is left of the meat offering shall be Aaron's and his sons': it is a thing most holy of the offerings of the LORD made by fire.

11 No meat offering, which ye shall bring unto the LORD, shall be made with leaven: for ye shall burn no leaven, nor any honey, in any offering of the LORD made by fire.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

12 ¶ As for the oblation of the firstfruits, ye shall offer them unto the LORD: but they shall not [†]be burnt on the altar for a sweet savour. ^{† Heb. ascend.}

13 And every oblation of thy meat offering ^dshalt thou season with salt; neither shalt thou suffer the salt of the covenant of thy God to be lacking from thy meat offering: with all thine offerings thou shalt offer salt. ^{d Mark 9. 49.}

14 And if thou offer a meat offering of thy firstfruits unto the LORD, thou shalt offer for the meat offering of thy firstfruits green ears of corn dried by the fire, even corn beaten out of full ears.

15 And thou shalt put oil ^eupon it, and lay frankincense thereon: it is a meat offering.

16 And the priest shall burn the memorial of it, part of the beaten corn thereof, and part of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

CHAP. III.

1 The meat offering of the herd, 6 of the flock, 7 either a lamb, 12 or a goat.

AND if his oblation be a sacrifice of a peace offering, if he offer it of the herd; whether it be a male or female, he which, being burnt on the altar, they made grateful acknowledgment of the power and goodness of God, and prayed that He would still remember and be gracious to them. Bp. Patrick.

4. — wafers] It is mentioned by travellers, that the Arabs have in their tents flat stones, or copper plates, made on purpose for baking. Dr. Pococke speaks of iron hearths used for that purpose. The wafers here mentioned were probably prepared in this manner. Harnier.

11. — no leaven,] The prohibition of leaven was laid either to perpetuate the memory of their deliverance from Egypt, or to oppose some idolatrous rites of their heathen neighbours, or else to warn the priests to put away the "leaven of malice and wickedness," 1 Cor. v. 8. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

The principal priest of Jupiter, among the Romans, was absolutely forbidden to touch leaven. Plutarch makes the reason of this to be, that, as leaven itself is a corrupt substance, so it does more or less corrupt that mass with which it is mingled. But the true reason of this prohibition may be much better accounted for, by the Levitical law before us. Biblioth. Bibl.

— nor any honey,] This was anciently offered to many of the Gentile deities. Besides, many have remarked that honey has something in it of the same nature with leaven, that, when it is burnt, it has an unpleasant smell. Under the name of honey, the Jews comprehended all sweet fruits, as figs, dates, &c. none of which were burnt, but only offered before the Lord. Biblioth. Bibl.

13. — salt of the covenant] "The salt of the covenant of God," that is, a symbol of the perpetuity thereof. Dr. Magee. Salt, among the ancients, was deemed a symbol of friendship and fidelity, and was therefore frequently used in sacrifices and covenants. Dr. Wells. The "salt of the covenant" means the salt, which by this law or covenant they were obliged to offer up in every oblation. Salt may also be deemed a sign of the perpetuity and inviolableness of the covenant on God's part. See Numb. xviii. 19; 2 Chron. xiii. 5. Bp. Kidder. It is matter of doubtful discussion whether the use of salt in sacrifices was prior to the Mosaic Law, as derived to the Gentile world from the Patriarchs, or whether it was later, and copied from this ordinance of Moses. That salt was generally used in the later Gentile oblations is well known. Biblioth. Bibl. See note on Numb. xviii. 19.

Chap. III. ver. 1. — a sacrifice of peace offering,] The Hebrew word translated peace signifies prosperity and happiness: thus these oblations were called peace offerings, because they were principally thankful acknowledgments for mercies received from the Divine bounty. The more particular division of these sacrifices is into thank offerings, freewill offerings, and offerings for vows. The first sort were offered for prosperity, or good, already obtained; the second, in the way of devotion, to continue or to procure peace with God; the third, for the attainment of future prosperity or good. The peace offerings of the Israelites were either of the whole congregation, or of particular persons. Lewis.

— whether it be a male or female,] In burnt offerings, the female was never sacrificed, because the burnt offering was a more perfect sacrifice: for burnt offerings principally had respect to the

Before CHRIST 1490. shall offer it without blemish before the LORD.

2 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of his offering, and kill it at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and Aaron's sons the priests shall sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about.

3 And he shall offer of the sacrifice of the peace offering an offering made by fire unto the LORD; ^a the || fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

4 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the || caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

|| Or, midriff over the liver, and over the kidneys.

5 And Aaron's sons shall burn it on the altar upon the burnt sacrifice, which is upon the wood that is on the fire: it is an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

6 ¶ And if his offering for a sacrifice of peace offering unto the LORD be of the flock; male or female, he shall offer it without blemish.

7 If he offer a lamb for his offering, then shall he offer it before the LORD.

8 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of his offering, and kill it before the tabernacle of the congregation: and Aaron's sons shall sprinkle the blood thereof round about upon the altar.

9 And he shall offer of the sacrifice of the peace offering an offering made by fire unto the LORD; the fat thereof, and the whole rump, it shall he take off hard by the backbone; and the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards, Before CHRIST 1490.

10 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

11 And the priest shall burn it upon the altar: it is the food of the offering made by fire unto the LORD.

12 ¶ And if his offering be a goat, then he shall offer it before the LORD.

13 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of it, and kill it before the tabernacle of the congregation: and the sons of Aaron shall sprinkle the blood thereof upon the altar round about.

14 And he shall offer thereof his offering, even an offering made by fire unto the LORD; the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

15 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

16 And the priest shall burn them upon the altar: it is the food of the offering made by fire for a sweet savour: ^b all the fat is the LORD's. ^b Chap. 7. 25.

17 It shall be a perpetual statute for your generations throughout all your dwellings, that ye eat neither fat nor ^c blood. ^c Gen. 9. 4. chap. 7. 26. & 17. 14.

CHAP. IV.

¹ The sin offering of ignorance, ³ for the priest, ¹³ for the congregation, ²² for the ruler, ²⁷ for any of the people.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, honour of God, who justly demands the very best; but peace offerings more peculiarly related to the advantage of the offerers, and therefore they were left herein to their own free choice. Biblioth. Bibl.

2. — shall lay his hand upon the head] See note at chap. i. 4. It is observable, that in all sacrifices of beasts, chap. iii. 8, 13; iv. 4, 15, &c. the owner laid his hands upon their heads: to signify (no doubt) his property in what he offered, the transferring his right in it to God, and the devoting it to death for the purposes specified by the Law. All which, under that figurative state, were a type of Christ's voluntary death: as lively an image, as a priest and sacrifice different could exhibit of One who was priest and sacrifice both; and this lets us into the importance of those phrases, which say, Christ "offered His own body" for a sacrifice, &c. Dean Stanhope.

5. — upon the burnt sacrifice,] Here seems to be meant the daily sacrifice which was burnt every morning: after which this was to be offered, to intimate that the stated sacrifice was to take place of all others. Bp. Patrick.

Of these daily sacrifices there were two, the one about nine o'clock in the morning, the other about three in the afternoon: these were so stated and constant, that they were never intermitted, not even upon festivals when others were added. They were a constant acknowledgment of God's sovereign dominion, and were in the nature of a daily prayer, that He would graciously continue His mercy to Israel. Lewis.

— of a sweet savour unto the Lord.] As the design of these peace offerings was, to render solemn thanks and praise to God for His past favours, and to engage Him to continue His blessings; we should hence learn our indispensable obligation to testify our gratitude to God, when He vouchsafes us any particular favour: and since His kindness and love is the source of all our happiness, it should be our chief care to procure it. Ostervald.

17. — neither fat nor blood.] It is not meant of the fat which is mingled with the flesh of the animal, but of that of the entrails, which, as was before mentioned, was to be burnt at the altar. Bp. Patrick.

The fat was to be the Lord's, by way of suggestion, that our offerings to God ought to be the richest and the choicest in their kind. Among other reasons assigned for the prohibition to eat fat, it is supposed that an opposition was intended to the practices of idolaters, who were wont to feast on the fat of their sacrifices.

— nor blood.] As the blood of the sacrifices was a figure of the blood of the Messiah, so its being forbidden to be eaten implied how sacred and precious a thing it was. Biblioth. Bibl. See note on chap. vii. 26.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. And the Lord spake] The repetition of these

Before
CHRIST
1490.

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a soul shall sin through ignorance against any of the commandments of the Lord concerning things which ought not to be done, and shall do against any of them :

3 If the priest that is anointed do sin according to the sin of the people ; then let him bring for his sin, which he hath sinned, a young bullock without blemish unto the Lord for a sin offering.

4 And he shall bring the bullock unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the Lord ; and shall lay his hand upon the bullock's head, and kill the bullock before the Lord.

5 And the priest that is anointed shall take of the bullock's blood, and bring it to the tabernacle of the congregation :

6 And the priest shall dip his finger in the blood, and sprinkle of the blood seven times before the Lord, before the vail of the sanctuary.

7 And the priest shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar of sweet incense before the Lord, which is in the tabernacle of the congregation ; and shall pour ^a all the blood of the bullock at the bottom of the altar of the burnt offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of ^a the congregation.

Before
CHRIST
1490.
Chap. 5. 9.

8 And he shall take off from it all the fat of the bullock for the sin offering ; the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

9 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away,

10 As it was taken off from the bullock of the sacrifice of peace offerings : and the priest shall burn them upon the altar of the burnt offering.

11 ^b And the skin of the bullock, and all his flesh, with his head, and with his legs, and his inwards, and his dung,

^b Exod. 29. 14.
Numb. 19. 5.

12 Even the whole bullock shall he carry forth [†] without the camp unto a clean place, where the ashes are poured out, and ^c burn him on the wood with fire : [†] where the ashes are poured out shall he be burnt.

[†] Heb. to without the camp.
^c Hebr. 13. 11.
[†] Heb. at the pouring out of the ashes.
^d Chap. 5. 2, 3, 4.

13 ¶ And if the whole congregation of Israel sin through ignorance, ^d and the words seems to imply that the following precepts were delivered at a different time from the preceding. We now proceed to "sin offerings," or offerings to be made by those who had offended God, in expiation of their sins. Bp. Patrick.

2. — If a soul shall sin] Here are three conditions of the description of sin: 1st, It was to be done ignorantly, unadvisedly, through surprise. 2dly, It was to be against negative precepts, or those which forbade something to be done. 3dly, It was not a sin of words or thoughts, but of actions—"shall do against any." Bps. Kidder and Patrick.

The Hebrew word for sin offering includes the sense of cleansing, expiating, and making satisfaction: hence it denotes an offering for sin, whereby pardon is procured, atonement made, and sin expiated. According to the scriptural account, these sacrifices were offered for all sins of ignorance and inadvertence against what are commonly called the negative precepts, or with respect to things forbidden: also on occasions of legal pollution, as at the cleansing of a leper, &c. chap. xiv. In the common sin offering, whether private or publick, the fat only was burnt upon the altar, and part poured out at the foot of it, (see this chapter, ver. 25,) the flesh being due to the priest: there were other sin offerings of a more solemn nature, offered on extraordinary occasions, of which the priest had no part, but which were entirely consumed with fire. Dr. Jennings.

Since God appointed sacrifices to atone even for sins of ignorance, these sins, though much less heinous than wilful and obstinate sins, ought carefully to be avoided; and therefore we ought to be well instructed in our duty, and have a strict guard over our conduct: and when we have ignorantly fallen into sin, and have perceived our error, we should be sincerely grieved even for these sins, and remedy them to the utmost of our power. Ostervald.

3. If the priest — do sin according to the sin of the people ;] If the high priest sin like one of the common people. The high priest being a publick person, might by his sin and evil example involve the whole people in guilt and misery, chap. x. 6; 1 Sam. ii. 17, 24. Bp. Kidder.

The sacredness of his office was an aggravation of his sin, beyond that of others, and his dignity rendered his example in doing evil more hurtful than theirs: for which reason a more solemn sacrifice was appointed to be offered for his sins, even of ignorance, than for those of the common people. Dr. Jennings.

4. — and kill the bullock] Among the Gentiles, the slaying of beasts for sacrifice was not thought to be beneath persons of the very highest character and figure. Biblioth. Bibl.

12. — the whole bullock] It was to be carried, skin and all, without being dissected, out of the camp, and there to be burnt in a fire on the ground. This was to signify that the offerer was in a perfect state of guilt, unfit to communicate with God; and that, like the offering itself, he deserved to be excluded from the society of his people, till he was reconciled by this sacrifice made in his stead: and thus Christ, who was made a sin offering for us, suffered "without the camp," that is, "without the gate" of Jerusalem, of whose expiation for us this offering was a type and figure, Hebr. xiii. 11, 12. Pyle.

— without the camp] The burning of these sacrifices "without the camp" is to be understood as typical not only of Christ's suffering "without the gate" of Jerusalem, but probably also of His suffering for the salvation of the Gentiles, (who were without the camp of Israel,) as well as for the Jews: as the bringing the blood of those sacrifices into the Holy place was a figure of Christ's presenting the merit of His death for us, in His heavenly intercession. Dr. Jennings.

— a clean place,] Set apart in decency, and out of reverence to religion: and implying that the very ashes that were there laid were not to be converted to any human use. Biblioth. Bibl.

13. — if the whole congregation — sin] The Jewish writers are of different opinions concerning the nature of this sin: some by the whole congregation understand the Sanhedrim, and imagine their sin to be, that they had mistaken in judgment, and by that means misled the people. Others interpret it of any general popular defection from the law of God, which through their ignorance of the law was not presently attended to. Thus,

Before
CHRIST
1490.

thing be hid from the eyes of the assembly, and they have done somewhat against any of the commandments of the LORD concerning things which should not be done, and are guilty;

14 When the sin, which they have sinned against it, is known, then the congregation shall offer a young bullock for the sin, and bring him before the tabernacle of the congregation.

15 And the elders of the congregation shall lay their hands upon the head of the bullock before the LORD: and the bullock shall be killed before the LORD.

16 And the priest that is anointed shall bring of the bullock's blood to the tabernacle of the congregation:

17 And the priest shall dip his finger in some of the blood, and sprinkle it seven times before the LORD, even before the vail.

18 And he shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar which is before the LORD, that is in the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall pour out all the blood at the bottom of the altar of the burnt offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

19 And he shall take all his fat from him, and burn it upon the altar.

20 And he shall do with the bullock as he did with the bullock for a sin offering, so shall he do with this: and the priest shall make an atonement for them, and it shall be forgiven them.

21 And he shall carry forth the bullock without the camp, and burn him as he burned the first bullock: it is a sin offering for the congregation.

22 ¶ When a ruler hath sinned, and done somewhat through ignorance against any of the commandments of the LORD his God concerning things which should not be done, and is guilty;

23 Or if his sin, wherein he hath sinned, come to his knowledge; he shall bring his offering, a kid of the goats, a male without blemish:

24 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the goat, and kill it in the place where they kill the burnt offering before the LORD: it is a sin offering.

25 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin offering with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and shall pour out his blood at the bottom of the altar of burnt offering.

26 And he shall burn all his fat upon the altar, as the fat of the sacrifice of peace offerings: and the priest shall make an atonement for him as concerning his sin, and it shall be forgiven him.

27 ¶ And if [†]any one of the [†]common people sin through ignorance, while he doeth somewhat against any of the commandments of the LORD concerning things which ought not to be done, and be guilty;

28 Or if his sin, which he hath sinned, come to his knowledge: then he shall bring his offering, a kid of the goats, a female without blemish, for his sin which he hath sinned.

29 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin offering, and slay the sin offering in the place of the burnt offering.

30 And the priest shall take of the blood thereof with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar.

31 And [°]he shall take away all the fat thereof, as the fat is taken away from off the sacrifice of peace offerings; and the priest shall burn it upon the altar for a [†]sweet savour unto the LORD; and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and it shall be forgiven him.

32 And if he bring a lamb for a sin offering, he shall bring it a female without blemish.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

† Heb.
any soul.
† Heb. people of the law.

° Chap. 3.
14.

° Exod. 29.
18.

when Hezekiah restored the true worship of God after the temple had been shut up, he offered "a sin offering for the kingdom," 2 Chron. xxix. 21. Dr. Jennings.

— and the thing be hid] That is, if they be not sensible of their error at the time of commission, but afterwards discover it, either by themselves or their rulers. Bp. Patrick.

20. — it shall be forgiven them.] It is observable that we find no express promise of pardon to the priest himself, when he should sacrifice for himself, to the end that he might be so much the more cautious of sinning; or, in case he did sin, of relapsing. But forgiveness is here most expressly promised to the people, on the priest's intercession, to the end that the people might repose the stronger confidence in the mercy of God, provided they complied with His appointed ordinances. Biblioth. Bibl.

22. — a ruler] Any person possessing eminence and authority over the people, as the Hebrew name imports. Bishop Kidder.

26. — it shall be forgiven him.] That is, his sin shall not be imputed to him: but then this forgiveness is not the fruit of the sacrifice barely considered, but an effect of God's mercy. As the sacrifice was a token of the offerer's repentance, as well as the institution of God, and a type of our Saviour's death, it was accepted by God, and procured pardon to the offerer who had sinned. Bp. Kidder.

It should be well remembered, that none of these sacrifices had in themselves any value sufficient to clear the sinner, and procure his forgiveness from God: they were only, by the mercy of God, instituted and accepted as a sign of the offender's repentance, and designed as figurative representations of a more full and perfect expiation to be hereafter made by Christ the Messiah, for the sins of mankind. Pyle.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

33 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin offering, and slay it for a sin offering in the place where they kill the burnt offering.

34 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin offering with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar :

35 And he shall take away all the fat thereof, as the fat of the lamb is taken away from the sacrifice of the peace offerings; and the priest shall burn them upon the altar, according to the offerings made by fire unto the Lord: and the priest shall make an atonement for his sin that he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

CHAP. V.

¹ He that sinneth in concealing his knowledge, ² in touching an unclean thing, ⁴ or in making an oath. ⁶ His trespass offering, of the flock, ⁷ of fowls, ¹¹ or of flour. ¹⁴ The trespass offering in sacrilege, ¹⁷ and in sins of ignorance.

AND if a soul sin, and hear the voice of swearing, and is a witness, whether he hath seen or known of it; if he do not utter it, then he shall bear his iniquity.

2 Or if a soul touch any unclean thing, whether it be a carcase of an unclean beast, or a carcase of unclean cattle, or the carcase of unclean creeping things, and if it be hidden from him; he also shall be unclean, and guilty.

3 Or if he touch the uncleanness of man, whatsoever uncleanness it be that a man shall be defiled withal, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it, then he shall be guilty.

4 Or if a soul swear, pronouncing with his lips to do evil, or to do good, whatsoever it be that a man shall pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it, then he shall be guilty in one of these.

5 And it shall be, when he shall be guilty in one of these things, that he shall confess that he hath sinned in that thing :

6 And he shall bring his trespass offering unto the Lord for his sin which he hath sinned, a female from the flock, a lamb or a kid of the goats, for a sin offering; and the priest shall make an atonement for him concerning his sin.

7 And if [†] he be not able to bring a lamb, then he shall bring for his trespass, which he hath committed, two turtledoves, or two young pigeons, unto the Lord; one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering.

8 And he shall bring them unto the priest, who shall offer that which is for the sin offering first, and ^a wring off his head from his neck, but shall not divide it asunder :

9 And he shall sprinkle of the blood of the sin offering upon the side of the altar; and the rest of the blood shall be wrung out at the bottom of the altar: it is a sin offering.

10 And he shall offer the second for a burnt offering, according to the ^{||} manner: ^{||} Or, ordinance. and the priest shall make an atonement for him for his sin which he hath sinned, and it shall be forgiven him.

11 ¶ But if he be not able to bring two turtledoves, or two young pigeons, then he that sinned shall bring for his offering the tenth part of an ephah of fine flour for a sin offering; he shall put no oil upon it,

3. — uncleanness of man,] Which is described in chap. xii, xiii, xv.

4. Or if a soul swear, &c.] That is, if a person swear rashly and inconsiderately in the common affairs of life, that he will or will not do something, whether good or evil, &c. and if "it be hid from him," that is, if he have not rightly considered the thing before, whether it was in his power or not; whether it were lawful or not; or if through forgetfulness he omit to do what he might have done, when he knoweth it, "he shall be guilty, &c." Bp. Patrick. From this and other passages it appears, that God knowing the frailty and corruption of our nature, whereby no man is able always to stand upright, but will sometimes fall into sin, and so be liable to death and misery, He Himself of His infinite mercy to His own people was pleased to provide a remedy for them, whereby they might be freed, in ordinary cases, from the guilt contracted. Bp. Beveridge.

7. — sin offering, — burnt offering.] He was first to make his peace with God by a sin offering; and then his burnt offering or gift would be accepted. Bp. Patrick.

11. — the tenth part of an ephah] It must have been a great satisfaction to the poor, to find that so small and easy an offering

Chap. V. ver. 1. — if a soul sin, &c.] If a person be adjured in the name of God to speak the truth, when he is called to be a witness in any cause, "whether he hath seen or known of it," that is, whether he can speak to the matter either from his own knowledge or from the information of credible witnesses, and do not "utter it," then he shall "bear his iniquity," or be deemed guilty and liable to punishment. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

It was the custom in those times and countries, for judges and magistrates to demand of accused persons, or witnesses in any cause, in the name of God, to speak the truth. And this laid the same obligations on them that the administering of an oath in our country does now. See instances in 1 Kings xxii. 16; 2 Chron. xviii. 15, &c. Pyle.

2. — touch any unclean thing,] The Hebrew doctors explain this of those persons, who, having touched an unclean thing, come into the sanctuary or eat of holy things: otherwise, it was sufficient to wash themselves to get rid of the uncleanness, chap. vi. 25, 40; but still this may apply to those who neglected to wash themselves as prescribed. Bp. Patrick.

— guilty.] Having contracted a legal pollution. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

† Heb. his hand cannot reach to the sufficiency of a lamb.

^a Chap. i.
15.

^{Before}
CHRIST
1490. neither shall he put any frankincense thereon: for it is a sin offering.

^b Chap. 2. 2. ^c Chap. 4. 35. 12 Then shall he bring it to the priest, and the priest shall take his handful of it, even a memorial thereof, and burn it on the altar, ^c according to the offerings made by fire unto the LORD: it is a sin offering.

13 And the priest shall make an atonement for him as touching his sin that he hath sinned in one of these, and it shall be forgiven him: and the remnant shall be the priest's, as a meat offering.

14 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

15 If a soul commit a trespass, and sin through ignorance, in the holy things of the LORD; then he shall bring for his trespass unto the LORD a ram without blemish out of the flocks, with thy estimation by shekels of silver, after the shekel of the sanctuary, for a trespass offering:

16 And he shall make amends for the harm that he hath done in the holy thing, and shall add the fifth part thereto, and give it unto the priest: and the priest shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass offering, and it shall be forgiven him. ^{Before}

CHRIST
1490.

17 ¶ And if a ^d soul sin, and commit any ^d Chap. 4. 2. of these things which are forbidden to be done by the commandments of the LORD; though he wist it not, yet is he guilty, and shall bear his iniquity.

18 And he shall bring a ram without blemish out of the flock, with thy estimation, for a trespass offering, unto the priest: and the priest shall make an atonement for him concerning his ignorance wherein he erred and wist it not, and it shall be forgiven him.

19 It is a trespass offering: he hath certainly trespassed against the LORD.

CHAP. VI.

¹ The trespass offering for sins done wittingly. ⁸ The law of the burnt offering, ¹⁴ and of the meat offering. ¹⁹ The offering at the consecration of a priest. ²⁴ The law of the sin offering.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, would as effectually make their peace with God, as if they had been in a condition to bring oblations of greater value. Besides, this plainly shewed them that the intrinsic value of the offering was nothing, and admonished them of the necessity of a sacrifice infinitely more efficacious. Biblioth. Bibl.

— no oil — neither shall he put any frankincense] The sin offering was to be offered without oil or frankincense, as an intimation that sin is most displeasing to God. Bp. Kidder. As oil and frankincense had delicacy in them, they were by no means suitable to that contrition and that solemnity which should attend an offering for sin. Biblioth. Bibl. In this manner God wisely provided that, even in some cases where errors and miscarriages could hardly be avoided, a sacrifice should be paid and confession made, in order to keep His people under greater awe of transgressing His laws, and to shadow forth to them that more pure and spiritual religion, that was afterwards to be revealed to them and to all the world. Pyle.

13. And the priest shall make an atonement for him] Whoever among the Israelites, on account of any sin or uncleanness, was excluded from the worship of the tabernacle, could only recover the Divine favour through the intercession of the priest, who was said on these occasions to “make atonement;” which he ordinarily did, by appearing before God in the holy place, with the blood of the appointed victim. An offering of blood was not indeed so absolutely required, but that on particular occasions the law in this respect was relaxed: as in the case of extreme poverty, when the substitution of a less expensive offering was allowed. But on all occasions the ministry of the priest was so indispensably necessary, that without it no atonement could be made. See ver. 10, 11; chap. xiv. 20; xvi. 16, 33. Veysie.

15. If a soul — sin through ignorance,] If a person, through error, forgetfulness, or inadvertency, take or detain what is due to the sanctuary or the priests, the oblations or firstfruits, or the like. Biblioth. Bibl.

— with thy estimation by shekels] At least two shekels, as the Jewish doctors observe. Besides his sacrifice, he was to make satisfaction in money, according as the priest should estimate the damage. Bp. Patrick.

— shekel of the sanctuary,] See note on Exod. xxx. 13.
— for a trespass offering:] The difference between the sin offering and the trespass offering is not distinctly ascertained. The principal difference seems to have consisted in this: a sin offering was for a thing done ignorantly against one of the negative precepts, and now known to be certainly done. The trespass offering, on the other hand, was for an act committed, when it was doubtful whether a precept was violated by the action: in this, the person, being uncertain whether he had trespassed or not, was to bring a trespass offering, to secure him against the penalty of “cutting off,” which he otherwise incurred: and, if once he came to know that he had offended against a commandment by the action, then he was to make atonement by a sin offering. Lewis.

Perhaps the trespass offering was for sins of lesser importance, as the omission of some duties, and the neglect of observing the legal washings and purifications; whereas the sin offering was for greater offences, in the commission of things forbidden by God. Dr. Beaumont.

The trespass offering, though, in many things, like the sin offering, yet in other things differed from it. 1. A female was allowed in a sin offering, but a male was required in the trespass offering; compare chap. iv. 28, with chap. vi. 6. 2. The blood of the sin offering was to be put upon the horns of the altar, chap. iv. 34; that of the trespass offering to be sprinkled round about the altar, chap. vii. 2. 3. The sin offering was sometimes offered for the whole congregation, chap. iv. 13; the trespass offering was for a single person. Bp. Kidder.

16. — he shall make amends &c.] By this law those, who had taken or withheld by mistake any thing dedicated to God, were not only to offer a sacrifice, but also to make restitution, and even to add to it a fifth part. Whence we learn our indispensable obligation to restore whatever we are unlawfully possessed of: and since those, who had withheld any sacred thing ignorantly, were bound to make restitution, even above the value of it, the duty of restitution must be still more indispensable, when we have taken and withheld, knowingly and wilfully, what does not belong to us. Ostervald.

Before
CHRIST
1400.

|| Or,
in dealing.
† Heb. putting of the hand.

* Numb.
a. 6.

^b Chap. 5.
16.

|| Or,
in the day of his being found guilt-ty.

† Heb.
in the day of his trespass.

^c Chap. 5.
15.

|| Or,
for the burning.

2 If a soul sin, and commit a trespass against the LORD, and lie unto his neighbour in that which was delivered him to keep, or in fellowship, or in a thing taken away by violence, or hath deceived his neighbour;

3 Or have found that which was lost, and lieth concerning it, and sweareth falsely; in any of all these that a man doeth, sinning therein:

4 Then it shall be, because he hath sinned, and is guilty, that he shall restore that which he took violently away, or the thing which he hath deceitfully gotten, or that which was delivered him to keep, or the lost thing which he found,

5 Or all that about which he hath sworn falsely; he shall even restore it in the principal, and shall add the fifth part more thereto, and give it unto him to whom it appertaineth, in the day of his trespass offering.

6 And he shall bring his trespass offering unto the LORD, a ram without blemish out of the flock, with thy estimation, for a trespass offering, unto the priest:

7 And the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD: and it shall be forgiven him for any thing of all that he hath done in trespassing therein.

8 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

9 Command Aaron and his sons, saying, This is the law of the burnt offering: It is the burnt offering, because of the burning upon the altar all night unto the morning, and the fire of the altar shall be burning in it.

10 And the priest shall put on his linen garment, and his linen breeches shall he put upon his flesh, and take up the ashes which the fire hath consumed with the burnt offering on the altar, and he shall put them beside the altar.

11 And he shall put off his garments, and put on other garments, and carry forth the ashes without the camp unto a clean place.

12 And the fire upon the altar shall be burning in it; it shall not be put out: and the priest shall burn wood on it every morning, and lay the burnt offering in order upon it; and he shall burn thereon the fat of the peace offerings.

13 The fire shall ever be burning upon the altar; it shall never go out.

14 ¶ And this is the law of the meat offering: the sons of Aaron shall offer it before the LORD, before the altar.

15 And he shall take of it his handful, of the flour of the meat offering, and of the oil thereof, and all the frankincense which is upon the meat offering, and shall burn it upon the altar for a sweet savour, even the memorial of it, unto the LORD.

16 And the remainder thereof shall Aaron and his sons eat: with unleavened bread shall it be eaten in the holy place; in the court of the tabernacle of the congregation they shall eat it.

17 It shall not be baked with leaven. I have given it unto them for their portion of my offerings made by fire; it is most holy, as is the sin offering, and as the trespass offering.

18 All the males among the children of Aaron shall eat of it. It shall be a statute for ever in your generations concerning the offerings of the LORD made by fire:

Before
CHRIST
1400.

^d Chap. 2.
1.
Numb. 15.
4.

^e Chap. 2.
9.

Chap. VI. ver. 2. — trespass against the Lord.] False swearing, ver. 3, is a sin directly against God; and any wrong to our neighbour is an indirect offence against God, being a breach of His Commandments. Bp. Kidder. The trespasses specified in this verse are, "lying unto a neighbour in that which was delivered," that is, denying a trust which had been committed to him by a neighbour, or "in fellowship," (in Hebrew "putting of the hand;") alluding either to a contract between two parties, or to partnership in trade—or "in a thing taken away by violence," that is, by robbery or stealth, as the Hebrew word signifies—or "deceiving his neighbour," where the Hebrew expression signifies calumny, false accusation, and extortion. Bp. Patrick.

4. — and is guilty.] In the judgment of his own conscience and by the confession of his lips; for, if the injury was proved upon him without his own confession, the penalty was greater. Biblioth. Bibl.

8. And the Lord &c.] Here the Hebrews begin a new section of their law: as it has been before declared what offerings the people should bring to the Lord, instructions are now given to the priests, how they shall manage the several offerings that are brought.

9. — It is the burnt offering.] He explains that He means chiefly the daily sacrifice, which was burning on the altar from evening till morning, the priests watching all night. Bp. Patrick.

10. — and take up the ashes] So strictly the law consulted and provided for the dignity of the minutest matters in the worship of God. None but those who were dedicated to the sacred ministry were allowed so much as to dispose of the ashes in their proper place. Biblioth. Bibl.

11. — unto a clean place.] See note on chap. iv. 12.

13. The fire shall ever be burning] It can admit of little doubt that the perpetual sacred fires of the Heathens, whether Persians, Greeks, Romans, Indians, &c. were copied from this Divine original amongst the Jews. The antiquity of sacred fires among the Greeks and Romans is well known. Theophrastus informs us, that this rite of burning perpetual fire to the gods had formed a part of their worship from time immemorial, being used as an expressive symbol or figure of their immortality. The sacred fire among the Persians was viewed with such superstitious regard, that, if ever it were extinguished, they would only rekindle it by fire lighted up from the sun. Biblioth. Bibl.

^{Before}
CHRIST
1490. ^f every one that toucheth them shall be holy.

^f Exod. 29. 37. 19 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

20 This is the offering of Aaron and of his sons, which they shall offer unto the LORD in the day when he is anointed; the tenth part of an ^eephah of fine flour for a meat offering perpetual, half of it in the morning, and half thereof at night.

^g Exod. 16. 36.

21 In a pan it shall be made with oil; and when it is baked, thou shalt bring it in: and the baken pieces of the meat offering shalt thou offer for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

22 And the priest of his sons that is anointed in his stead shall offer it: it is a statute for ever unto the LORD; it shall be wholly burnt.

23 For every meat offering for the priest shall be wholly burnt: it shall not be eaten.

24 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

25 Speak unto Aaron and to his sons, saying, This is the law of the sin offering: In the place where the burnt offering is killed shall the sin offering be killed before the LORD: it is most holy.

26 The priest that offereth it for sin shall eat it: in the holy place shall it be eaten, in the court of the tabernacle of the congregation.

27 Whatsoever shall touch the flesh thereof shall be holy: and when there is sprinkled of the blood thereof upon any garment, thou shalt wash that whereon it was sprinkled in the holy place.

^b Chap. 11. 33. 28 But the earthen vessel wherein it is sodden ^h shall be broken: and if it be sodden in a brasen pot, it shall be both scourged, and rinsed in water.

29 All the males among the priests shall eat thereof: it is most holy.

ⁱ Hebr. 13. 11. 30 ⁱ And no sin offering, whereof any of the blood is brought into the tabernacle of the congregation to reconcile withal in the holy place, shall be eaten: it shall be burnt in the fire. ^{Before}

CHRIST
1490.

CHAP. VII.

1 The law of the trespass offering, 11 and of the peace offerings, 12 whether it be for a thanksgiving, 16 or a vow, or a freewill offering. 22 The fat, 26 and the blood, are forbidden. 28 The priests' portion in the peace offerings.

LIKEWISE this is the law of the trespass offering: it is most holy.

2 In the place where they kill the burnt offering shall they kill the trespass offering: and the blood thereof shall he sprinkle round about upon the altar.

3 And he shall offer of it all the fat thereof; the rump, and the fat that covereth the inwards,

4 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the caul that is above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away:

5 And the priest shall burn them upon the altar for an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it is a trespass offering.

6 Every male among the priests shall eat thereof: it shall be eaten in the holy place: it is most holy.

7 As the sin offering is, so is the trespass offering: there is one law for them: the priest that maketh atonement therewith shall have it.

8 And the priest that offereth any man's burnt offering, even the priest shall have to himself the skin of the burnt offering which he hath offered.

9 And all the meat offering that is baken in the oven, and all that is dressed in the fryingpan, and ¶ in the pan, shall be the priest's that offereth it.

10 And every meat offering, mingled with oil, and dry, shall all the sons of Aaron have, one as much as another.

11 And this is the law of the sacrifice of peace offerings, which he shall offer unto the LORD.

¶ Or, on the flat plate, or,
slice.

18. — every one that toucheth them shall be holy.] The sense is, "Every one that toucheth them shall be beforehand sanctified and free from any legal defilement." Bp. Hall.

20. — Aaron and of his sons.] Aaron and "his successors," the high priests which shall succeed him. Bp. Kidder.

25. — This is the law &c.] Here directions for the people's sin offerings are repeated from chap. iv. 27, with some additional circumstances.

27. Whatsoever shall touch &c.] All this particularly inculcated a reverence and veneration for holy things, the duty of approaching them with fear, and of observing a decent distance. Biblioth. Bibl.

Chap. VII. ver. 7. — there is one law for them:] One law for them, as to the particulars just mentioned, respecting the eating of them by the priests. Bp. Patrick.

10. — shall all the sons of Aaron have,] It was said in the preceding verse, that the meat offering should be "the priest's that offereth it." Some reconcile the two, by distinguishing between that which was raw, and that which was dressed; the one belonging to the priest that offered, the other to the priests in common. Others interpret the matter thus: that each priest should have his day or turn of ministration, in which he might claim what was offered, as the other priests did in their turns. Biblioth. Bibl.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

12 If he offer it for a thanksgiving, then he shall offer with the sacrifice of thanksgiving unleavened cakes mingled with oil, and unleavened wafers anointed with oil, and cakes mingled with oil, of fine flour, fried.

13 Beside the cakes, he shall offer for his offering leavened bread with the sacrifice of thanksgiving of his peace offerings.

14 And of it he shall offer one out of the whole oblation for an heave offering unto the LORD, and it shall be the priest's that sprinkleth the blood of the peace offerings.

15 And the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace offerings for thanksgiving shall be eaten the same day that it is offered; he shall not leave any of it until the morning.

16 But if the sacrifice of his offering be a vow, or a voluntary offering, it shall be eaten the same day that he offereth his sacrifice: and on the morrow also the remainder of it shall be eaten:

17 But the remainder of the flesh of the sacrifice on the third day shall be burnt with fire.

18 And if any of the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace offerings be eaten at all on the third day, it shall not be accepted, neither shall it be imputed unto him that offereth it: it shall be an abomination,

13. — leavened bread] The leavened bread was not to be offered on the altar, for that had been absolutely forbidden at chap. ii. 11; but it was to be eaten by the priests and the offerer. Dr. Wells.

15. — shall be eaten the same day] The reasons for this ordinance seem to have been, that the service of the sacrificial feast between God and man should be conducted with special reverence and decency, and that the meat might be taken fresh and untainted; also that none of it should be set by, and hoarded for private use and entertainment, but that it should be free and common to those who stood in need of it. Biblioth. Bibl.

16. — a vow, or a voluntary offering] A "vow" of offering sacrifice to God upon receiving a benefit; as the "voluntary offering" was freely made beforehand, in the hope that God would confer the benefit. Bp. Patrick.

18. — eaten at all on the third day] The prohibition to eat the flesh on the third day might appear unnecessary in so warm a climate; but it should be remembered, that the practice of drying meat is frequent in those hot climates, and that this is sometimes done to flesh killed with a religious intention, which may have been the cause of this prohibition. The Mahometans, who go in pilgrimage to Mecca, are obliged, on a certain day, to sacrifice a sheep, part of which they dry for use at other times. Harmer.

— neither shall it be imputed unto him that offereth] It shall not be looked upon by God as a peace offering made by him. Dr. Wells.

— the soul that eateth of it shall bear his iniquity] That is, shall become guilty of a great sin; (Dr. Wells;) and suffer the punishment for it. Bp. Hall.

20. — that soul shall be cut off] The person shall be excluded and the soul that eateth of it shall bear his iniquity. Before CHRIST

1490.

19 And the flesh that toucheth any unclean thing shall not be eaten; it shall be burnt with fire: and as for the flesh, all that be clean shall eat thereof.

20 But the soul that eateth of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace offerings, that pertain unto the LORD, ^a having his uncleanness upon him, even that soul shall ^{3.} be cut off from his people. ^a Chap. 15.

21 Moreover the soul that shall touch any unclean thing, as the uncleanness of man, or any unclean beast, or any abominable unclean thing, and eat of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace offerings, which pertain unto the LORD, even that soul shall be cut off from his people.

22 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, ^b Ye shall eat no manner of fat, of ox, or of sheep, or of goat. ^b Chap. 3. 17.

24 And the fat of the [†] beast that dieth of itself, and the fat of that which is torn with beasts, may be used in any other use: but ye shall in no wise eat of it. [†] Heb. carcass.

25 For whosoever eateth the fat of the beast, of which men offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD, even the soul that eateth it shall be cut off from his people. ^c Gen. 9. chap. 3. 17.

26 ^c Moreover ye shall eat no manner of & 17. 14.

from all his privileges as an Israelite and member of God's church and people. Pyle.

23. — Ye shall eat no manner of fat] None of those parts of fat and suet, which God had appropriated to the sacrifices on His altar. Pyle. See note on chap. iii. 17. According to some opinions, the prohibition to eat fat is restricted to the three sorts of animals here mentioned. Biblioth. Bibl.

26. — ye shall eat no manner of blood] This command may be thus paraphrased: Forasmuch as the blood of animals is the very life and soul of them, I have separated or selected it to be a ransom for your souls, and for that most sacred use, the expiation of your sins. You are therefore strictly and scrupulously to abstain from blood, out of regard to this separation, and to be cautious not to bring to your tables that which I have consecrated to My altar. On blood depends the gift of My grace, and your life; and therefore you are not to put it to any vulgar use, nor presume to nourish your bodies with that, which is, as it were, the life and preservative of your souls. Dean Spencer.

The custom of eating blood appears to have prevailed in the time of Moses; otherwise why would that have been forbidden, which was never practised? We have the testimony of different travellers, that this same practice still prevails in some countries, particularly in Abyssinia, and in India at the sacrifices of their idols. Fragments to Calmet.

It was the great end of the numerous sacrifices of the Mosaic ritual to impress the Jewish people, for a season the chosen depositaries of revealed truth, with an opinion of the necessity of a sanguinary expiation even for involuntary offences; to train them to the habitual belief of that awful maxim, that "without shedding of blood there is no remission." The end of those earlier sacrifices, which were of use in the patriarchal ages, was un-

^{Before}
CHRIST
1490. blood, whether it be of fowl or of beast, in any of your dwellings.

27 Whatsoever soul it be that eateth any manner of blood, even that soul shall be cut off from his people.

28 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying;

29 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, He that offereth the sacrifice of his peace offerings unto the LORD shall bring his oblation unto the LORD of the sacrifice of his peace offerings.

30 His own hands shall bring the offerings of the LORD made by fire, the fat with the breast, it shall he bring, that ^a the breast may be waved for a wave offering before the LORD.

31 And the priest shall burn the fat upon the altar: but the breast shall be Aaron's and his sons'.

32 And the right shoulder shall ye give unto the priest for an heave offering of the sacrifices of your peace offerings.

33 He among the sons of Aaron, that offereth the blood of the peace offerings, and the fat, shall have the right shoulder for his part.

34 For the wave breast and the heave shoulder have I taken of the children of Israel from off the sacrifices of their peace offerings, and have given them unto Aaron the priest and unto his sons by a statute for ever from among the children of Israel.

35 ¶ This is the portion of the anointing of Aaron, and of the anointing of his sons, out of the offerings of the LORD made by fire, in the day when he presented them to minister unto the LORD in the priest's office;

36 Which the LORD commanded to be given them of the children of Israel, in the day that he anointed them, by a statute for ever throughout their generations.

^{Before}
CHRIST
1490. 37 This is the law of the burnt offering, of the meat offering, and of the sin offering, and of the trespass offering, and of the consecrations, and of the sacrifice of the peace offerings;

38 Which the LORD commanded Moses in mount Sinai, in the day that he commanded the children of Israel to offer their oblations unto the LORD, in the wilderness of Sinai.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Moses consecrateth Aaron and his sons. 14 Their sin offering. 18 Their burnt offering. 22 The ram of consecrations. 31 The place and time of their consecration.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Take Aaron and his sons with him, and ^a the garments, and ^b the anointing oil, ^a Exod. 28. 2, 4. and a bullock for the sin offering, and two ^b Exod. 30. rams, and a basket of unleavened bread; 21.

3 And gather thou all the congregation together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

4 And Moses did as the LORD commanded him; and the assembly was gathered together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

5 And Moses said unto the congregation, ^c This is the thing which the LORD ^c Exod. 29. 4. commanded to be done.

6 And Moses brought Aaron and his sons, and washed them with water.

7 And he put upon him the coat, and girded him with the girdle, and clothed him with the robe, and put the ephod upon him, and he girded him with the curious girdle of the ephod, and bound it unto him therewith.

8 And he put the breastplate upon him: also he ^d put in the breastplate the Urim ^d Exod. 28. 30. and the Thummim.

questionably the same. To inculcate the same important lesson, in the earliest instance of a sacrifice upon record, respect was had to the shepherd's sacrifice of the firstlings of his flock, rather than to the husbandman's offering of the fruit of his ground; and for the same reason, by the prohibition laid upon the sons of Noah, and afterwards enforced in the severest terms in the Mosaic law, blood was sanctified, as it were, as the immediate instrument of atonement. The end of the prohibition was to impress mankind with a high reverence for blood, as a most holy thing, consecrated to the purpose of the general expiation; but this expiatory virtue belonged, not to the blood of bulls and of goats, but to the blood of Christ, of which the other was by God's appointment made a temporary emblem. Bp. Horsley. See the notes on Gen. ix. 4; Levit. xvii. 11.

35. This is the portion of the anointing &c.] That is, this (the wave breast and the heave breast) is the portion assigned to Aaron and his sons in their quality of priests consecrated to the Lord, and which shall contribute to their support. Calmet.

Chap. VIII. ver. 3. — all the congregation] All the elders and principal officers. They seem to have been assembled on this occasion, to satisfy the people that Aaron and his sons did not intrude themselves on the office of the priesthood, but were solemnly consecrated by Moses, the servant of the Lord. Bp. Patrick.

Notwithstanding the Lord had fixed the whole ceremonial of the consecration, and chose the person, yet the congregation is summoned. For the presence of the people is required at the ordination of a priest, that all may know, and be certain, that the person elected is eminent among the people in character, for learning, sanctity, and virtue; and, being themselves their own witnesses of this, they may be precluded all scruples in future. Biblioth. Bibl.

6. — washed them with water.] So Christ, our High Priest, as it were to consecrate that element for our baptism, was Himself baptized in the river Jordan. Biblioth. Bibl.

8. — the Urim and the Thummim.] See the note on Exod. xxviii. E c

Before
CHRIST
1490.

* Exod. 28.
99, &c.

† Eccl.¹¹
15. 15.
† 1st 133.
2.

† Heb.
bound.

* Exod. 29.
1.

* Exod. 29.
14.

9 And he put the mitre upon his head; also upon the mitre, even upon his forefront, did he put the golden plate, the holy crown; as the LORD^{*} commanded Moses.

10 And Moses took the anointing oil, and anointed the tabernacle and all that was therein, and sanctified them.

11 And he sprinkled thereof upon the altar seven times, and anointed the altar and all his vessels, both the laver and his foot, to sanctify them.

12 And he[†] poured of the anointing oil upon Aaron's head, and anointed him, to sanctify him.

13 And Moses brought Aaron's sons, and put coats upon them, and girded them with girdles, and[†] put bonnets upon them; as the LORD commanded Moses.

14[‡] And he brought the bullock for the sin offering: and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the bullock for the sin offering.

15 And he slew it; and Moses took the blood, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about with his finger, and purified the altar, and poured the blood at the bottom of the altar, and sanctified it, to make reconciliation upon it.

16 And he took all the fat that was upon the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat, and Moses burned it upon the altar.

17 But the bullock, and his hide, his flesh, and his dung, he burnt with fire without the camp; as the LORD[‡] commanded Moses.

18 ¶ And he brought the ram for the burnt offering: and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the ram.

19 And he killed it; and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

20 And he cut the ram into pieces; and Moses burnt the head, and the pieces, and the fat. Before
CHRIST
1490.

21 And he washed the inwards and the legs in water; and Moses burnt the whole ram upon the altar: it was a burnt sacrifice for a sweet savour, and an offering made by fire unto the LORD; as the LORD commanded Moses.

22 ¶ And he[‡] brought the other ram, the ram of consecration: and Aaron and his sons[‡] laid their hands upon the head of the ram.

23 And he slew it; and Moses took of the blood of it, and put it upon the tip of Aaron's right ear, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

24 And he brought Aaron's sons, and Moses put of the blood upon the tip of their right ear, and upon the thumbs of their right hands, and upon the great toes of their right feet: and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

25 And he took the fat, and the rump, and all the fat that was upon the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat, and the right shoulder:

26 And out of the basket of unleavened bread, that was before the LORD, he took one unleavened cake, and a cake of oiled bread, and one wafer, and put them on the fat, and upon the right shoulder:

27 And he put all[‡] upon Aaron's hands, and upon his sons' hands, and waved them for a wave offering before the LORD. * Exod. 29.
24, &c.

28 And Moses took them from off their hands, and burnt them on the altar upon the burnt offering: they were consecrations for a sweet savour: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

30. It should be observed, that Moses here says nothing of the precious stones on the breastplate, as in Exod. xxxix. 10—13; but only mentions the Urim and the Thummim; which seems to supply an additional proof that they were the same. Bp. Patrick.

14. — for the sin offering:] The first part of the ceremony was an offering for sin; because, till their sins were expiated, they were not fit to offer any thing to God, much less to offer for the sins of others. Lewis.

15. — and Moses took the blood, &c.] Moses had never been consecrated after the manner of Aaron, but he was made a priest for this peculiar purpose by an extraordinary commission. Lewis.

17. But the bullock, &c.] We do not find that the blood of this sacrifice was carried into the holy place; whence it may be inferred, that no high priest, whether ordinary, or extraordinary, such as Moses now was, might eat of any sin offering, offered for the priests themselves, although the blood of it was not brought into the sanctuary. Hence we may infer, that, although the sins of the people were taken away by the priests, who, by eating of their sin offering, plainly shewed that they bare their iniquity,

(as the phrase is chap. x. 17;) yet the sins of the priests themselves could not be taken away by any sacrifice they could offer for sin, of which they might not eat. But they were to expect a better sacrifice, made by a better High Priest, the Son of God. Biblioth. Bibl.

23. — and Moses took of the blood of it, &c.] This ceremony figured out our Christian privileges and duty. The blood represented that blood by which we are saved; the oil (ver. 12) our holy unction. The right ear is a symbol of our approved obedience, and the hand and foot, of our good actions. Biblioth. Bibl. They put the blood on the tip of their right ears, to signify, as the Jewish doctors discourse, that they should attend to the Divine prescriptions; and then upon their right thumbs and great toes, (in which lies the strength of the hands and feet,) to denote their strenuous and ready performance of their duty. As the right hand, &c. are mentioned, it may well be thought to signify the most exact and perfect obedience; the right hand, &c. being every where represented, as the most excellent, and the strongest to do execution. Lewis.

^{Before}
^{CHRIST}
^{1490.} 29 And Moses took the breast, and waved it for a wave offering before the LORD: for of the ram of consecration it was Moses' 'part; as the LORD commanded Moses.

¹ Exod. 29. 26.

30 And Moses took of the anointing oil, and of the blood which was upon the altar, and sprinkled it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon his sons' garments with him; and sanctified Aaron, and his garments, and his sons, and his sons' garments with him.

31 ¶ And Moses said unto Aaron and to his sons, Boil the flesh at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and there ²eat it with the bread that is in the basket of consecrations, as I commanded, saying, Aaron and his sons shall eat it.

² Exod. 29. 32.

32 And that which remaineth of the flesh and of the bread shall ye burn with fire.

33 And ye shall not go out of the door of the tabernacle of the congregation in seven days, until the days of your consecration be at an end: for ³seven days shall he consecrate you.

³ Exod. 29. 35.

34 As he hath done this day, so the LORD hath commanded to do, to make an atonement for you.

35 Therefore shall ye abide at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation day and night seven days, and keep the charge of the LORD, that ye die not: for so I am commanded.

36 So Aaron and his sons did all things which the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

^{Before} ^{CHRIST}
^{1490.}

CHAP. IX.

1 The first offerings of Aaron, for himself and the people. 8 The sin offering, 12 and the burnt offering for himself. 15 The offerings for the people. 23 Moses and Aaron bless the people. 24 Fire cometh from the Lord, upon the altar.

AND it came to pass on the eighth day, that Moses called Aaron and his sons, and the elders of Israel;

2 And he said unto Aaron, ¹Take thee a young calf for a sin offering, and a ram for a burnt offering, without blemish, and offer them before the LORD.

¹ Exod. 29.

3 And unto the children of Israel thou shalt speak, saying, Take ye a kid of the goats for a sin offering; and a calf and a lamb, both of the first year, without blemish, for a burnt offering;

4 Also a bullock and a ram for peace offerings, to sacrifice before the LORD; and a meat offering mingled with oil: for to day the LORD will appear unto you.

5 ¶ And they brought that which Moses commanded before the tabernacle of the congregation: and all the congregation drew near and stood before the LORD.

6 And Moses said, This is the thing which the LORD commanded that ye should do: and the glory of the LORD shall appear unto you.

7 And Moses said unto Aaron, Go unto the altar, and offer thy sin offering, and thy

33. — ye shall not go out — for seven days] As Aaron is commanded to attend at the tabernacle so many days together, in like manner our Lord Christ did attend the temple five days, one after another; see John xii. 1, 12, &c.; Matth. xxi. 12, &c.; and having purged it, on the first or second of those days, from the profaneness that was exercised in it; and afterwards hallowed it by His doctrine and Divine presence, which appeared in several miraculous cures, He went the sixth day into His heavenly sanctuary, into Paradise itself, to purify and sanctify it with His own blood, as Moses at Aaron's consecration did the material sanctuary and altar with the blood of beasts. And, having rested the seventh day, finished all by His resurrection early the next day in the morning. Dr. Jackson. They were "not to go out of the door of the tabernacle," for these offices and ministrations were to be exercised only within the Church, out of the sight and hearing of the profane, that it might not be in the power of any one to cast contempt upon them, or depreciate their dignity. Biblioth. Bibl.

35. — day and night seven days,] This was to make their consecration more solemn, and to draw the observation of the people. By abiding "seven days," a sabbath, as the Jews observe, passed over their heads, without which, they conceive, the consecration of Aaron and his sons could not have been completed. But the sabbath of the Lord did never so exactly pass over any high priest in his consecration, as it did over the great High Priest of the New Testament. For, however it was in Aaron's consecration, it was to our blessed Saviour a day of rest indeed after six days of labour, watching, praying, and fasting, which concluded in His bloody death and passion. Bp. Patrick.

36. — by the hand of Moses.] In this ordination of the priests, Moses performed the office of the consecrating priest. In after-times, on the death of the high priest, it is probable that the ceremony of consecrating his successor was performed by some of the inferior priests, the most venerable for rank and age. Calmet.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. — on the eighth day,] The eighth day from the beginning of the consecration of the priests. Bp. Patrick.

2. — for a sin offering,] This sin offering was for himself, that is, for his own sins generally, ver. 8, to shew that the high priest was but a frail and sinful man, like others; an imperfect intercessor, and but a type and resemblance of One, more perfect and complete, to come hereafter, Hebr. v. 5; vii. 27. Pyle. We here see the imperfection of the law of Moses: the high priest himself could not offer an acceptable sacrifice, until an atonement was made for him, whereas (to the praise of our Redeemer) we Christians have an High Priest without sin, and who is at God's right hand, continually making intercession for all that come unto God by Him. Bp. Wilson.

— and offer them before the Lord.] It is observable, that no peace offering is ordered for the high priest, as there is afterwards for the people, ver. 4, because the offerer and the priest shared in this case the whole, after the fat was burnt; and it was not fitting that he should have all the sacrifice to himself. Bp. Patrick.

6. — the glory of the Lord shall appear unto you.] That is, a visible sign of the presence and favour of God: which was fulfilled, ver. 24, by His sending fire from heaven to consume the

Before
CHRIST
1490.

burnt offering, and make an atonement for thyself, and for the people: and offer the offering of the people, and make an atonement for them; as the Lord commanded.

8 ¶ Aaron therefore went unto the altar, and slew the calf of the sin offering, which was for himself.

9 And the sons of Aaron brought the blood unto him: and he dipped his finger in the blood, and put it upon the horns of the altar, and poured out the blood at the bottom of the altar:

10 But the fat, and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver of the sin offering, he burnt upon the altar; as the Lord commanded Moses.

11 And the flesh and the hide he burnt with fire without the camp.

12 And he slew the burnt offering; and Aaron's sons presented unto him the blood, which he sprinkled round about upon the altar.

13 And they presented the burnt offering unto him, with the pieces thereof, and the head: and he burnt them upon the altar.

14 And he did wash the inwards and the legs, and burnt them upon the burnt offering on the altar.

15 ¶ And he brought the people's offering, and took the goat, which was the sin offering for the people, and slew it, and offered it for sin, as the first.

16 And he brought the burnt offering, and offered it according to the manner.

¶ Or, ordinance.

† Heb. filled his hand out of it.

Exod. 29.
28.

17 And he brought the meat offering, and took an handful thereof, and burnt it upon the altar, beside the burnt sacrifice of the morning.

18 He slew also the bullock and the ram for a sacrifice of peace offerings, which was for the people: and Aaron's sons presented unto him the blood, which he sprinkled upon the altar round about.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

19 And the fat of the bullock and of the ram, the rump, and that which covereth the inwards, and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver:

20 And they put the fat upon the breasts, and he burnt the fat upon the altar:

21 And the breasts and the right shoulder Aaron waved for a wave offering before the Lord; as Moses commanded.

22 And Aaron lifted up his hand toward the people, and blessed them, and came down from offering of the sin offering, and the burnt offering, and peace offerings.

23 And Moses and Aaron went into the tabernacle of the congregation, and came out, and blessed the people: and the glory of the Lord appeared unto all the people.

24 And there came a fire out from before the Lord, and consumed upon the altar the burnt offering and the fat: which when all the people saw, they shouted, and fell on their faces.

c Gen. 4. 4.
1 Kings 18.
38.
2 Chron. 7.
1.
2 Mac. 2.
10, 11.

CHAP. X.

1 Nadab and Abihu, for offering of strange fire, are burnt by fire. 6 Aaron and his sons are forbidden to mourn for them. 8 The priests are forbidden wine when they are to go into the tabernacle. 12 The law of eating the holy things. 16 Aaron's excuse for transgressing thereof.

AND ^a Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, took either of them his censor, and put fire therein, and put incense thereon, and offered strange fire before the Lord, which he commanded them not.

2 And there went out fire from the Lord, and devoured them, and they died before the Lord.

^a Numb. 2.
4. & 26. 61.
1 Chron.
24. 2.

sacrifice. Any such token of God's favour and more especial presence may be called "the glory of the Lord." Compare 2 Peter i. 17, with Matt. xvii. 5; and Rom. ix. 4, with 1 Sam. iv. 22. Bp. Kidder.

15. And he brought the people's offering, &c.] The priest, having offered all that was necessary for himself, now became fit to make supplication for the people. Bp. Patrick.

22. — and blessed them,] This was the peculiar office of the priest. The form of this blessing is afterwards prescribed at Numb. vi. 24, &c. Bp. Kidder. The people, when they were convened to the tabernacle, might not depart, until the priest dismissed them with his benediction. Lamy.

24. — there came a fire out from before the Lord,] From that glory of the Lord which appeared unto all the people. Biblioth. Bibl.

— the burnt offering and the fat:] It seems most natural and easy to take this burnt offering and fat for the evening sacrifice: which concluding the work of this day, God gave a special token of His acceptance of all the other sacrifices, by consuming it; and likewise publicly testified His approbation of all the above-mentioned rites of the ministry of Aaron, whose authority was hereby established in a miraculous manner. Bp. Patrick.

— they shouted,] They shouted with joy, and fell on their faces, with humble adorations, and thanksgiving to God, for thus graciously testifying His acceptance of all that had been done on that day. Dr. Wells.

Chap. X. ver. 1. — offered strange fire before the Lord,] The crime of Nadab and Abihu consisted in venturing to burn incense in the sanctuary at all, without any order from God, and, still further, in using for the purpose common fire taken from some other place, and not that which God had peculiarly sent for the service of His sanctuary. Bp. Patrick.

2. — there went out fire from the Lord,] There came a flash of fire from the Divine Presence; (Pyle;) it was sent either from the

Before
CHRIST
1490.

3 Then Moses said unto Aaron, This is it that the LORD spake, saying, I will be sanctified in them that come nigh me, and before all the people I will be glorified. And Aaron held his peace.

4 And Moses called Mishael and Elzaphan, the sons of Uzziel the uncle of Aaron, and said unto them, Come near, carry your brethren from before the sanctuary out of the camp.

5 So they went near, and carried them in their coats out of the camp; as Moses had said.

6 And Moses said unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar, his sons, Uncover not your heads, neither rend your clothes; lest ye die, and lest wrath come altar or from above, (Bp. Kidder), and "devoured them," that is, scorched their inward and vital parts, without consuming the outer parts. This severity of immediate punishment was necessary towards the first transgressors of the Divine Law, to deter others from the same offence, and to increase the reverential awe of the Divine Majesty. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

Nadab and Abihu, having been admitted to the high dignity of the priesthood, were particularly obliged to the observance of God's commands. The higher their station was, and the more distinguishing the favours they had received, the more heinous was their offence, in attempting to adulterate an ordinance of God's institution. They thought that common fire might serve the purpose of burning incense, as well as that which was held more sacred; at least, in the gaiety, or rather naughtiness of their hearts, they were minded to make the experiment, in direct opposition to the Divine command. And therefore, it was just and requisite in God (especially in the beginning of the priesthood, and when one alteration of a Divine precept might, in process of time, be productive of many more) to inflict an exemplary punishment, that others might fear, and not commit the like abomination. Stackhouse. If this crime had been committed some ages after, when the memory of the original of this heavenly fire had been worn out, it might have been excused on the plea of ignorance; but now, when God had newly sent His fire from above, and newly commanded the continuance of it; either to let it go out, or while it still flamed, to fetch profane coals to God's altar, could savour of nothing less than presumption and sacrilege. Bp. Hall.

It would seem also that Nadab and Abihu were betrayed into this act of presumption by intemperance at the feast upon the peace offerings: for immediately after, and in consequence of their fate, Moses delivers the injunctions against the priests' drinking wine and strong drink when they approached the sanctuary. Perhaps also, their presumption may have been increased by the high honour, which they alone, of Aaron's sons, had enjoyed, when they, with Moses and Aaron and seventy of the elders of Israel, were called up to mount Sinai, to behold the glory of the God of Israel. This distinguished honour may have puffed them up with the imagination, that they were not to be controlled by the restraints, to which the other priests were subject: but that they might approach the altar without observing the strict regulations of the Divine command: a presumption, which, if suffered to pass with impunity, amongst a people so prone to disobedience as the Jews, and just after the observance of the ritual law had commenced with a public miracle to attest its Divine original, might have introduced a contempt of the system, and apostasy from God. Dr. Graves.

This piece of history is a caution to us that we quench not the Spirit, but that we stir up the grace which we have received. And further, that we add nothing foreign to the Holy Scriptures, upon all the people: but let your brethren, the whole house of Israel, bewail the burning which the LORD hath kindled.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

7 And ye shall not go out from the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: for the anointing oil of the LORD is upon you. And they did according to the word of Moses.

8 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Aaron, saying,

9 Do not drink wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations:

10 And that ye may put difference be-but satisfy ourselves with the doctrine of the Spirit: and abominate heresies, whether they be such as join fables and falsities to the Divine oracles, or such as prefer profane and impious interpretations to the genuine sense of the text. Biblioth. Bibl.

3. — before all the people I will be glorified.] Meaning either, I will be revered by My priests in a special manner before the people; or else, I will glorify Myself by vindicating My honour, in punishing those priests who shall offend thus signally and openly before all the people. Dr. Wells.

I expect to be worshipped augustly, with a decorum and rites bearing some resemblance to My separate and eminent nature. Locke.

— And Aaron held his peace.] Aaron holds his peace, not out of amazement or sullenness, but out of patient and humble submission: seeing God's displeasure and his sons' deserts, he is content to forget that he had sons. He might have had a silent tongue and a clamorous heart, but his silence was no less inward; he quietly submitted to the will of God, and held his peace because the Lord had done it. There is no greater proof of grace than to smart patiently, and humbly and contentedly to rest the heart in the justice and wisdom of God's proceeding. Bp. Hall.

5. — and carried them in their coats out of the camp;] They carried them in their coats, or the linen garments in which they ministered, because these having touched their dead bodies, were no longer fit for the Divine service. — "Out of the camp." It was the ancient custom, not to bury in cities, but in the fields adjacent, Gen. xxiii. 9, 17; and so in succeeding times, Matt. xxvii. 7. Bp. Patrick.

6. — Uncover not your heads, neither rend your clothes;] The uncovering of the head, whether by putting off the ornament usually worn on it, or by shaving off the hair, was a customary sign of sorrow, Ezek. xxiv. 17, 23; Levit. xiii. 45; Numb. vi. 5, 9. Pyle. Perhaps, by uncovering the head was meant no more than the taking off what covering was over it, in order to throw dust upon it, in token of great grief and sorrow. Lamy.

The priests were forbidden to go into a course of mourning on this occasion, probably to shew that God's service is not to be interrupted by human accidents. Pyle. They were also to testify by this means that they were more concerned for the honour of God than for their own interest, and that they acquiesced in the just judgments of God. Ostervald.

7. — the anointing oil of the Lord is upon you.] You are devoted and consecrated by a solemn unction to the service of God, which must not be omitted out of respect to any person whatsoever. Bp. Patrick.

The anointing oil of the Lord, which was upon the priests, was the oil of joy and gladness; compare Ps. xlv. 7; typical of the Spirit of Christ. Biblioth. Bibl.

10. — that ye may put difference &c.] "That your faculties may be clear and in right order, to distinguish sacred things and

Before
CHRIST
1490.

tween holy and unholy, and between unclean and clean;

11 And that ye may teach the children of Israel all the statutes which the Lord hath spoken unto them by the hand of Moses.

12 ¶ And Moses spake unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar, his sons that were left, Take the meat offering that remaineth of the offerings of the Lord made by fire, and eat it without leaven beside the altar: for it is most holy:

13 And ye shall eat it in the holy place, because it is thy due, and thy sons' due, of the sacrifices of the Lord made by fire: for so I am commanded.

Exod. 29.
24.

14 And ^bthe wave breast and heave shoulder shall ye eat in a clean place; thou, and thy sons, and thy daughters with thee: for they be thy due, and thy sons' due, which are given out of the sacrifices of peace offerings of the children of Israel.

15 The heave shoulder and the wave breast shall they bring with the offerings made by fire of the fat, to wave it for a wave offering before the Lord; and it shall be thine, and thy sons' with thee, by a statute for ever; as the Lord hath commanded.

16 ¶ And Moses diligently sought the goat of the sin offering, and, behold, it was burnt: and he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar, the sons of Aaron which were left alive, saying, persons: that the former be used and handled with exact decency and reverence, and that no unclean person enter My sanctuary and pollute it." Had the liberty here forbidden been allowed, excess and licentiousness might have in time prevailed; and, when the priests were intoxicated with wine, they might have confounded sacred and profane together; and so, by exposing themselves, and abusing and profaning the holy vessels, they might have brought contempt on the tabernacle, and on all that belonged to it. Dean Spencer.

12. — Take the meat offering that remaineth] He seems to have been afraid that Aaron's grief for the loss of his sons might have so disturbed his mind as to make him careless of this part of his duty; or that Eleazar and Ithamar, through mistake or forgetfulness, might have offended against some of the laws lately delivered about sacrifice, which therefore he here repeats, that they might be exactly observed. Bp. Patrick.

17. — to bear the iniquity of the congregation,] This was done by their eating the sin offering. And thus our great High Priest is said to bear our iniquities, Is. liii. 11. The priest, by eating of the sin offering, receiving the guilt upon himself, may well be thought to prefigure One, who should be both priest and sacrifice for sin, which was accomplished in Christ. Biblioth. Bibl.

19. — should it have been accepted] Would God have been pleased with me, if I had eaten of the sacrifice in my present sorrow and sadness? Bp. Patrick.

20. — when Moses heard that, he was content.] Because the fault was not done designedly, but through human frailty, they 17 Wherefore have ye not eaten the sin offering in the holy place, seeing it is most holy, and God hath given it you to bear the iniquity of the congregation, to make atonement for them before the Lord?

Before
CHRIST
1490.

18 Behold, the blood of it was not brought in within the holy place: ye should indeed have eaten it in the holy place, ^cas I commanded. * Chap. 6. 26.

19 And Aaron said unto Moses, Behold, this day have they offered their sin offering and their burnt offering before the Lord; and such things have befallen me: and if I had eaten the sin offering to day, should it have been accepted in the sight of the Lord?

20 And when Moses heard that, he was content.

CHAP. XI.

1 What beasts may, 4 and what may not be eaten. 9 What fishes. 13 What fowls. 29 The creeping things which are unclean.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses and to Aaron, saying unto them,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, ^aThese are the beasts which ye shall eat among all the beasts that are on the earth. ^a Deut. 14. 4. Acts 10. 14.

3 Whatsoever parteth the hoof, and is clovenfooted, and cheweth the cud, among the beasts, that shall ye eat.

4 Nevertheless these shall ye not eat of them that chew the cud, or of them that being perplexed with grief. The letter of the law gives place to great necessity. S. Clarke.

Chap. XI. ver. 2. — the beasts which ye shall eat] Rather, that ye may eat. The laws distinguishing between clean and unclean beasts were peculiar to the Israelites: their main drift and scope was, to preserve them distinct from other nations, and so to prevent their learning foreign idolatrous customs. Bp. Patrick.

A strict and religious distinction was appointed with respect to meats, for several good reasons, peculiar to the Jewish dispensation: the chief of these was, that by setting a mark of restraint and impurity on such creatures as were generally eaten, or held in sacred and superstitious esteem by the neighbouring heathen nations, and confining the Israelites to a diet peculiar to themselves, God might keep them a separate people, free from heathen intercourse, and from allurements to idolatry and superstitious practices. Pyle. God was pleased to make a difference between certain creatures, as for divers other reasons, so for moral significations, to teach them, 1. To abhor that filthiness and those other ill qualities, for which some of these creatures are noted. 2. To observe the special purity which God required of them above other nations, ver. 44. 3. To prevent their conversing too familiarly with the heathen, Acts x. 11—15; xi. 6, 7, &c. S. Clarke.

3. Whatsoever parteth the hoof,] The Hebrew text means, emphatically, "divideth the division of the hoofs," implying an entire and total separation of the hoof into two parts; and meaning also neither more nor fewer parts than two. Hence the camel,

Before
CHRIST
1490.

divide the hoof: as the camel, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

5 And the coney, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

6 And the hare, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

b 2 Mac. 6.
18.

7 And ^b the swine, though he divide the hoof, and be clovenfooted, yet he cheweth not the cud; he is unclean to you.

8 Of their flesh shall ye not eat, and their carcase shall ye not touch; they are unclean to you.

9 ¶ These shall ye eat of all that are in the waters: whatsoever hath fins and scales in the waters, in the seas, and in the rivers, them shall ye eat.

10 And all that have not fins and scales in the seas, and in the rivers, of all that move in the waters, and of any living thing whose hoof is partly divided, is unclean to the Jews, though it is eaten by the Arabs; and the hare, having more than two divisions, though described as ruminating or chewing the cud, yet was forbidden. Script. illust.

5. — the coney,] The Hebrew word (saphan) seems improperly rendered a rabbit. Bochart understands it to mean the jerboa, or jumping mouse; but Dr. Shaw and Bruce conceive it to signify the damian Israel, or Israel's lamb; described by Dr. Shaw as a harmless creature, of the same size and quality as the rabbit, and with the like incurvating posture, and disposition of the fore teeth. Parkhurst.

7. — the swine,] Maimonides fancies that this animal was prohibited on account of its filthy feeding and wallowing in the mire: others give the reason, because it feeds on flesh; and some, because it breeds the leprosy in hot climates. But, whatever might be the grounds of this prohibition, that prohibition could not be the only reason, why the whole nation of the Jews abhorred this more than any other of the unclean animals which were equally forbidden, insomuch that they called it a strange thing. It was certainly owing to some other cause, that in process of time this became to them the most abominable of all creatures; and that cause was, it is supposed, because the Gentiles used it in their sacrifices and mysteries of religion, and because nothing was accounted a more delicious food among many great nations; who (if a strong abhorrence of this creature had not been infused into the Jews) might have invited them to their tables, and bred such familiarity with them as would have concluded in idolatry. The Jews were not allowed so much as to open these beasts to take out the fat, and apply it to any use. In this they are now so scrupulous, that they say they may not touch them alive with one of their fingers, for fear of the leprosy. Lewis. The swine is held in utter abomination by some at least of the Mahometans: the old Persians also religiously abstained from eating its flesh. Biblioth. Bibl.

8. — they are unclean to you.] Whoever touched their carcases was under a legal uncleanness, so that it was unlawful for him to approach the tabernacle, or partake of the oblation, or converse with those who did so. Bp. Kidder.

9. These shall ye eat of all that are in the waters:] The species of fish are not here enumerated, because the clean and unclean are better distinguished by their general character here given than by names. Moses allows to the Hebrews all fish which had fins and scales, contrary to the custom of the Egyptians, who, it is thought, abstained from them. The Egyptian which is in the waters, they shall be an abomination unto you:

Before
CHRIST
1490.

11 They shall be even an abomination unto you; ye shall not eat of their flesh, but ye shall have their carcases in abomination.

12 Whatsoever hath no fins nor scales in the waters, that shall be an abomination unto you.

13 ¶ And these are they which ye shall have in abomination among the fowls; they shall not be eaten, they are an abomination: the eagle, and the ossifrage, and the ospray,

14 And the vulture, and the kite after his kind;

15 Every raven after his kind;

16 And the owl, and the night hawk, and the cuckow, and the hawk after his kind,

17 And the little owl, and the cormorant, and the great owl, priests, from motives of superstition, refrained from all fish. Calmet.

10. — all that have not fins and scales &c.] Among the Romans, it was not permitted to use fish, that had no scales, in sacrifices to their gods. Pliny cites a law of Numa: "Let not fish which are without scales be dressed for sacrificial feasts or banquets." Calmet.

13. — the eagle,] The eagle has its flesh hard, and is ravenous in its nature; and therefore, on a natural and moral account, some authors fancy it was prohibited; but Origen has given a better reason, viz. that those creatures generally are forbidden to the Jews, which were looked upon as prophetic by the Egyptians and other nations; among which he expressly mentions the eagle and the hawk. Diodorus Siculus relates, that the people of Thebes worshipped the eagle, looking upon it as a royal bird, worthy of Jupiter. Lewis.

— the ossifrage,] A species of eagle, by some called the sea eagle. This bird is understood to have received its name from its flying up, after it has eaten the flesh of its prey, to a proper height, and thence letting fall the bones upon a rock, or hard stone, so as to break them with greater ease, and thus get at the delicacy of the marrow. Biblioth. Bibl.

16. And the owl,] The Hebrew word signifies literally "the daughter of vociferation." Parkhurst. By some it is understood to mean the ostrich. It is certain, that it was the constant persuasion of the Jews, that God did not permit them to eat the flesh of the ostrich, which is no where forbidden, if not here. Lewis.

In regard to the names of birds in some of these verses, translators have differed; and, from our imperfect knowledge of the Hebrew names used in natural history, we cannot be in all instances certain that those in our translation correspond exactly with the animals designed: but our English version appears on the whole to be as accurate in regard to these names as any other. Pyle.

— the hawk after his kind,] This bird was held in so much veneration by the Egyptians, that, as Herodotus tells us, they made it death, if a man killed one of them undesignedly. It was sacred to the sun on account of its swiftness. Biblioth. Bibl.

17. — the great owl,] Instead of this, the Greek and Vulgate translations have the ibis, a ravenous bird, well known to have been sacred among the Egyptians. Biblioth. Bibl. St. Jerome takes the word to signify a stork, and others a bustard. Lewis.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

18 And the swan, and the pelican, and the gier eagle, 19 And the stork, the heron after her kind, and the lapwing, and the bat.

20 All fowls that creep, going upon all four, shall be an abomination unto you.

21 Yet these may ye eat of every flying creeping thing that goeth upon all four, which have legs above their feet, to leap withal upon the earth;

22 Even these of them ye may eat; the locust after his kind, and the bald locust after his kind, and the beetle after his kind, and the grasshopper after his kind.

23 But all other flying creeping things, which have four feet, shall be an abomination unto you.

24 And for these ye shall be unclean: whosoever toucheth the carcase of them shall be unclean until the even.

25 And whosoever beareth ought of the carcase of them shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even.

26 The carcases of every beast which divideth the hoof, and is not clovenfooted, nor cheweth the cud, are unclean unto you: every one that toucheth them shall be unclean.

27 And whatsoever goeth upon his paws, among all manner of beasts that go on all four, those are unclean unto you: whoso toucheth their carcase shall be unclean until the even.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

28 And he that beareth the carcase of them shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: they are unclean unto you.

29 ¶ These also shall be unclean unto you among the creeping things that creep upon the earth; the weasel, and the mouse, and the tortoise after his kind,

30 And the ferret, and the chameleon, and the lizard, and the snail, and the mole.

31 These are unclean to you among all that creep: whosoever doth touch them, when they be dead, shall be unclean until the even.

32 And upon whatsoever any of them, when they are dead, doth fall, it shall be unclean; whether it be any vessel of wood, or raiment, or skin, or sack, whatsoever vessel it be, wherein any work is done, it must be put into water, and it shall be unclean until the even; so it shall be cleansed.

33 And every earthen vessel, whereinto any of them falleth, whatsoever is in it shall be unclean; and ye shall break it.

c Chap. 6.
28.

34 Of all meat which may be eaten, that on which such water cometh shall be unclean: and all drink that may be drunk in every such vessel shall be unclean.

35 And every thing whereupon any part of their carcase falleth shall be unclean; whether it be oven, or ranges for pots, they shall be broken down: for they are unclean, and shall be unclean unto you.

19. — the stork;] This bird was also held in veneration by the Egyptians and other people, on account of its great use in destroying serpents. It was esteemed most valuable by the people of Thessaly, which country abounded so much in serpents, that, if the storks had not killed them, the people must have deserted the country. Bochart.

— the bat.] Moses, beginning the catalogue with the noblest of birds, the eagle, ends with the vilest, which is the bat. The name in Hebrew, as also in Greek, signifies it to be a bird of night, or darkness. It is observable, generally, that the birds forbidden are either rapacious, and live on flesh, or are nightbirds, or haunt marshes and lakes, or are heavy and not easily raised from the ground, or live on dung and coarse diet. On the contrary, the birds allowed by the law of Moses, are those that live upon a cleaner food. Lewis.

20. All fowls that creep, going upon all four;] All “flying insects,” which also creep upon the earth, as flies, wasps, bees, &c. If it be said that these have six legs, it is answered, that their two fore feet are not properly feet, but rather serve them for hands. Biblioth. Bibl.

21. — to leap withal upon the earth;] In this verse is an exception of those flying insects which, besides their four legs with which they go, have two legs or thighs, which give them power to leap upon the earth, as well as to go. Such are those locusts mentioned in the next verse. As to the various sorts of locusts, it is observed that there are nine kinds mentioned in Scripture, four only of which are permitted to be eaten. By what marks the locusts, which are permitted, are distinguished, is so little agreed among the Hebrews, that it plainly shews they have no certain knowledge about the matter. Lewis.

22. — the beetle after his kind;] The beetle and the grasshopper seem to be a wrong translation; for they were not human food, as were the locusts. Bp. Patrick. It should be observed that the phrase, “after his kind,” so often repeated in the laws concerning fowls and flying things, does not necessarily imply that there are different kinds of every flying thing to which it is applied, but only imports “every one of that kind:” it is an expression denoting that the whole species is prohibited. Lewis.

27. — whosoever goeth upon his paws;] In the original “upon his hands:” as lions, apes, bears, dogs, cats, &c. Lewis.

29. — creeping things that creep upon the earth;] That is, which seem to move with their bellies close to the ground, owing to the shortness of their legs. Biblioth. Bibl.

— the tortoise] The Vulgate translation makes this the crocodile; the Greek, a land crocodile, a sort of lizard about a cubit long. Much critical controversy has taken place respecting the several species here mentioned. Biblioth. Bibl.

32. — vessel of wood, — or skin, or sack;] Wooden bowls are still used by the Arabs in this same country: also trunks or baskets covered with skins; and sacks of hair cloth for the purpose of conveying their goods from place to place. Harmer.

35. — ranges for pots;] The following account is given by Rauwolf of the management of the Eastern people for saving fuel: “They make in their tents or houses a hole about a foot and a half deep, wherein they put their earthen pots, with the meat in them closed up: three fourth parts thereof they lay about with stones, and the fourth part is left open, through which they fling in their dried dung, twigs, and straw, which burn immediately, and give so great heat, that the pot grows very hot: thus they boil their meat with a little fire, quicker than we do ours with a

Before
CHRIST
1490.

† Heb.
a gathering together of waters.

36 Nevertheless a fountain or pit, [†]wherein there is plenty of water, shall be clean :
but that which toucheth their carcase shall be unclean.

37 And if any part of their carcase fall upon any sowing seed which is to be sown, it shall be clean.

38 But if any water be put upon the seed, and any part of their carcase fall thereon, it shall be unclean unto you.

39 And if any beast, of which ye may eat, die ; he that toucheth the carcase thereof shall be unclean until the even.

40 And he that eateth of the carcase of it shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even : he also that beareth the carcase of it shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even.

41 And every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth shall be an abomination ;
it shall not be eaten.

† Heb.
doth multiply feet.

42 Whatsoever goeth upon the belly, and whatsoever goeth upon all four, or whatsoever [†]hath more feet among all creeping things that creep upon the earth, them ye shall not eat ; for they are an abomination.

† Heb.
souls.

43 Ye shall not make your [†]selves abominable with any creeping thing that creepeth, neither shall ye make yourselves unclean with them, that ye should be defiled thereby.

Chap. 19.
2. & 20. 7.
1 Pet. 1. 15.

44 For I am the LORD your God : ye shall therefore sanctify yourselves, and ye ^d shall be holy ; for I am holy : neither shall

Before
CHRIST
1490.

ye defile yourselves with any manner of creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

45 For I am the LORD that bringeth you up out of the land of Egypt, to be your God : ye shall therefore be holy, for I am holy.

46 This is the law of the beasts, and of the fowl, and of every living creature that moveth in the waters, and of every creature that creepeth upon the earth :

47 To make a difference between the unclean and the clean, and between the beast that may be eaten and the beast that may not be eaten.

CHAP. XII.

1 The purification of women after childbirth. 6 Her offerings for her purifying.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a ^awoman have conceived seed, ^a Chap. 15.
and born a man child : then she shall be ^{19.}
unclean seven days ; according to the days of the separation for her infirmity shall she be unclean.

3 And in the ^beighth day the flesh of ^b Luke 2. his foreskin shall be circumcised. ^{24.}
John 7. 22.

4 And she shall then continue in the blood of her purifying three and thirty days ; she shall touch no hallowed thing, nor come into the sanctuary, until the days of her purifying be fulfilled.

great one on our hearths." This quotation may explain perhaps in the best manner what is meant by "ranges for pots" in this passage. Harmer.

36. — a fountain or pit,] Pit or cistern. Those hot Eastern countries did not much abound with water, which made this exception the more necessary ; and water itself also was the means of purifying uncleanness, being the proper element for separating the unclean particles from the persons or things defiled. Thus, without this exception, it would have been difficult for those who were unclean, ever to cleanse themselves. Biblioth. Bibl.

37. — upon any sowing seed] Sowing seed being of great importance to the uses and necessities of life. For the inconvenience would have been very great, if the husbandman must have deferred sowing as often as he happened to find a dead animal in the corn designed for the furrows. Biblioth. Bibl.

38. But if any water be put upon the seed, &c.] The reason of this difference was, that the seed to be sown went through many alterations, before it became food, which took away the pollution.
Wet seed might be supposed to have received some tincture from the carcase, which dry did not ; and, not being so fit to be sown till it was dry, was in that time to be cleansed. Lewis.

41. — every creeping thing] Except those allowed at ver. 21,
22. The following verse, "whatsoever goeth upon the belly, &c."
seems to be an explanation of this. Bp. Patrick.

44. For I am the Lord your God:] I am God of Myself, and not like one of the Gentile gods ; being infinitely superiour, both in My attributes and My works, particularly in that work of bringing you out of the land of Egypt. It is therefore My pleasure that there should be a special peculiarity in your diet, to be one mark of distinguishing you as a nation separated, and consecrated to Me alone. Dean Spencer.
Vol. I.

45. — ye shall therefore be holy, for I am holy.] Implying that, as God is in Himself a being infinite in perfections peculiar to His own transcendent nature, incomparably surpassing the false gods of other nations ; so it is His most wise and reasonable pleasure that His own peculiar people should be so distinguished from all others in their manner of living, as to be preserved from intercourse with them, and from enticements to their corrupt and idolatrous worship. Pyle.

Chap. XII. ver. 2. — days of the separation] For which see chap. xv. 19, 20.

3. — in the eighth day] Till the eighth day the infant was not well able to undergo the pain. Willet.

4. — three and thirty days ;] Thus all the days of her purification were forty ; during the last thirty-three she was not prevented from conversing with her neighbours, but was debarred from touching any of the holy things. It is affirmed that the ancient idolaters in Eastern countries had a great number of tedious and tiresome customs respecting the purification of their child-bed women ; from all which God freed His people, leaving them at liberty to attend to all manner of offices in their families, and only restraining them from partaking of the holy things.
Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

5 But if she bear a maid child, then she shall be unclean two weeks, as in her separation: and she shall continue in the blood of her purifying threescore and six days.

† Heb.
a son of his year.

6 And when the days of her purifying are fulfilled, for a son, or for a daughter, she shall bring a lamb † of the first year for a burnt offering, and a young pigeon, or a turtledove, for a sin offering, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, unto the priest:

7 Who shall offer it before the LORD, and make an atonement for her; and she shall be cleansed from the issue of her blood. This is the law for her that hath born a male or a female.

° Luke 2.
21.
† Heb. her hand find not sufficiency
of.

8 ° And if † she be not able to bring a lamb, then she shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons; the one for a burnt offering, and the other for a sin offering: and the priest shall make an atonement for her, and she shall be clean.

CHAP. XIII.

1 The laws and tokens whereby the priest is to be guided in discerning the leprosy.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, saying,

|| Or,
swelling.

2 When a man shall have in the skin of his flesh a || rising, a scab, or bright spot, and it be in the skin of his flesh like the plague of leprosy; then he shall be brought unto Aaron the priest, or unto one of his sons the priests:

3 And the priest shall look on the plague in the skin of the flesh: and when the hair in the plague is turned white, and the plague in sight be deeper than the skin of his flesh, it is a plague of leprosy: and the priest shall look on him, and pronounce him unclean.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

4 If the bright spot be white in the skin of his flesh, and in sight be not deeper than the skin, and the hair thereof be not turned white; then the priest shall shut up him that hath the plague seven days:

5 And the priest shall look on him the seventh day: and, behold, if the plague in his sight be at a stay, and the plague spread not in the skin; then the priest shall shut him up seven days more:

6 And the priest shall look on him again the seventh day: and, behold, if the plague be somewhat dark, and the plague spread not in the skin, the priest shall pronounce him clean: it is but a scab: and he shall wash his clothes, and be clean.

7 But if the scab spread much abroad in the skin, after that he hath been seen of the priest for his cleansing, he shall be seen of the priest again:

8 And if the priest see that, behold, the scab spreadeth in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a leprosy.

9 ¶ When the plague of leprosy is in a man, then he shall be brought unto the priest;

10 And the priest shall see him: and, behold, if the rising be white in the skin, and it have turned the hair white, and there be † quick raw flesh in the rising;

† Heb.
the quickening of living flesh.

11 It is an old leprosy in the skin of his flesh, and the priest shall pronounce him unclean, and shall not shut him up: for he is unclean.

5. — she shall be unclean two weeks.] Thus the time is doubled in case she bare a female; perhaps to remind them of the sin of Eve, who “was (first) in the transgression,” 1 Tim. ii. 14. Bp. Kidder.

6. — for a burnt offering.] In gratitude to God for giving her a safe deliverance, and bestowing on her a child, and raising her up in her former strength, and bringing her again to His sanctuary; where, by this offering, she commended herself and her child to His continued care and blessing, and implored His divine guidance and assistance in its education. Bp. Patrick.

— for a sin offering.] By sin, in this place, we must understand not a moral turpitude, but only a legal uncleanness. Biblioth. Bibl. Not that childbearing itself was a sin, or that this sin offering was required for the sin of the mother; but because, say the Jews, the pain of childbearing was a punishment of sin, and “the mother of all living” was the first who brought sin and sorrow into the world; and therefore God appointed this offering for the expiation of that primary offence. Lewis.

Chap. XIII. ver. 2. — plague of leprosy;] Whether this disease were the natural effect of any thing peculiar to the air and soil of these countries, or, as is more probable, the special stroke of a Divine hand (see chap. xiv. 34; 2 Kings v. 7, 27, and xv. 5.) for the sins of men; God was pleased to declare that whatsoever person or thing was infected by it, should be in a state of uncleanness; meaning by this treatment, on account of this bodily distemper, to caution them the more earnestly against all vicious habits and distempers of the mind and heart. Pyle. The leprosy in all its stages, and under all its appearances, is one of the most calamitous of diseases. We, in Britain, have long been for the most part happily freed from it by a variety of causes; and therefore we are not able to form just conceptions of its various distinctions, and their appearances, in the hotter parts of the globe. Script. illust.

The leprosy, it is supposed, was a disease, at first peculiar to the Egyptians, and which from them spread into Syria. But the leprosy provided against by the law of Moses was not so much a common disease, or a legal pollution, as a Divine infliction for the punishment of some grievous sin in the leprous person; for it is difficult to conceive how such a pestilent disease, as not only infected men's bodies, but the very walls of their houses, and their garments, should proceed merely from natural causes; and therefore it was always understood that the miraculous hand of God was in some measure concerned in it. Lewis.

11. — shall not shut him up:] Shall not shut him up for temporary separation, because there could be no need of further proof, nor any doubt whether it was the leprosy or not. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

12 And if a leprosy break out abroad in the skin, and the leprosy cover all the skin of him that hath the plague from his head even to his foot, wheresoever the priest looketh;

13 Then the priest shall consider: and, behold, if the leprosy have covered all his flesh, he shall pronounce him clean that hath the plague: it is all turned white: he is clean.

14 But when raw flesh appeareth in him, he shall be unclean.

15 And the priest shall see the raw flesh, and pronounce him to be unclean: for the raw flesh is unclean: it is a leprosy.

16 Or if the raw flesh turn again, and be changed unto white, he shall come unto the priest;

17 And the priest shall see him: and, behold, if the plague be turned into white; then the priest shall pronounce him clean that hath the plague: he is clean.

18 ¶ The flesh also, in which, even in the skin thereof, was a boil, and is healed,

19 And in the place of the boil there be a white rising, or a bright spot, white, and somewhat reddish, and it be shewed to the priest;

20 And if, when the priest seeth it, behold, it be in sight lower than the skin, and the hair thereof be turned white; the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a plague of leprosy broken out of the boil.

21 But if the priest look on it, and, behold, there be no white hairs therein, and if it be not lower than the skin, but be somewhat dark; then the priest shall shut him up seven days:

22 And if it spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a plague.

23 But if the bright spot stay in his place, and spread not, it is a burning boil; and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

24 ¶ Or if there be any flesh, in the skin whereof there is † a hot burning, and the quick flesh that burneth have a white bright spot, somewhat reddish, or white;

25 Then the priest shall look upon it:

and, behold, if the hair in the bright spot be turned white, and it be in sight deeper than the skin; it is a leprosy broken out of the burning: wherefore the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the plague of leprosy.

26 But if the priest look on it, and, behold, there be no white hair in the bright spot, and it be no lower than the other skin, but be somewhat dark; then the priest shall shut him up seven days:

27 And the priest shall look upon him the seventh day: and if it be spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the plague of leprosy.

28 And if the bright spot stay in his place, and spread not in the skin, but it be somewhat dark; it is a rising of the burning, and the priest shall pronounce him clean: for it is an inflammation of the burning.

29 ¶ If a man or woman have a plague upon the head or the beard;

30 Then the priest shall see the plague: and, behold, if it be in sight deeper than the skin; and there be in it a yellow thin hair; then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a dry scall, even a leprosy upon the head or beard.

31 And if the priest look on the plague of the scall, and, behold, it be not in sight deeper than the skin, and that there is no black hair in it; then the priest shall shut up him that hath the plague of the scall seven days:

32 And in the seventh day the priest shall look on the plague: and, behold, if the scall spread not, and there be in it no yellow hair, and the scall be not in sight deeper than the skin;

33 He shall be shaven, but the scall shall he not shave; and the priest shall shut up him that hath the scall seven days more:

34 And in the seventh day the priest shall look on the scall: and, behold, if the scall be not spread in the skin, nor be in sight deeper than the skin; then the priest shall pronounce him clean: and he shall wash his clothes, and be clean.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

† Heb.
a burning of fire.

13. — he shall pronounce him clean] This circumstance shall be considered as a proof that the blood is perfectly purged, the inward corruption being all driven out. Pyle.

15. — the raw flesh is unclean:] This being so undoubted a mark of leprosy that there needed no more. Bishop Patrick.

29. — have a plague upon the head or the beard;] Maimonides tells us that, in this sort of leprosy, the hair on the head or beard fell off by the roots, and the place of the hair remained bare. This seems to have been that kind of disease which, Pliny says, came into Italy in the middle of the reign of Tiberius Cesar, and was called Mentagra, because it commonly began in the chin; and which was so filthy that any death was preferable to it. Bp. Patrick.

31. — black hair] A favourable symptom, opposed to the yellow hair in the foregoing verse.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

35 But if the scall spread much in the skin after his cleansing;

36 Then the priest shall look on him: and, behold, if the scall be spread in the skin, the priest shall not seek for yellow hair; he is unclean.

37 But if the scall be in his sight at a stay, and that there is black hair grown up therein; the scall is healed, he is clean: and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

38 ¶ If a man also or a woman have in the skin of their flesh bright spots, even white bright spots;

39 Then the priest shall look: and, behold, if the bright spots in the skin of their flesh be darkish white; it is a freckled spot that groweth in the skin; he is clean.

† Heb. head is pill-ed. 40 And the man whose † hair is fallen off his head, he is bald; yet is he clean.

41 And he that hath his hair fallen off from the part of his head toward his face, he is forehead bald: yet is he clean.

42 And if there be in the bald head, or bald forehead, a white reddish sore; it is a leprosy sprung up in his bald head, or his bald forehead.

43 Then the priest shall look upon it: and, behold, if the rising of the sore be white reddish in his bald head, or in his bald forehead, as the leprosy appeareth in the skin of the flesh;

44 He is a leprous man, he is unclean:

the priest shall pronounce him utterly unclean; his plague is in his head.

45 And the leper in whom the plague is, his clothes shall be rent, and his head bare, and he shall put a covering upon his upper lip, and shall cry, Unclean, unclean.

46 All the days wherein the plague shall be in him he shall be defiled; he is unclean: he shall dwell alone; ^a without the camp shall his habitation be.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

^a Numb. 5.
2.
2 Kings 15.
5.

47 ¶ The garment also that the plague of leprosy is in, whether it be a woollen garment, or a linen garment;

48 Whether it be in the warp, or woof; of linen, or of woollen; whether in a skin, or in any † thing made of skin;

† Heb.
work of.

49 And if the plague be greenish or reddish in the garment, or in the skin, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any † thing of skin; it is a plague of leprosy, and shall be shewed unto the priest:

† Heb. vessel, or,
instrument.

50 And the priest shall look upon the plague, and shut up it that hath the plague seven days:

51 And he shall look on the plague on the seventh day: if the plague be spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in a skin, or in any work that is made of skin; the plague is a fretting leprosy; it is unclean.

52 He shall therefore burn that garment, whether warp or woof, in woollen or in

45. — his clothes shall be rent, &c.] This was designed to distinguish him from others who were sound and in good health, and also to make him appear in the garb and habit of a mourner. His head was to be bare for similar reasons, and a covering was to be put on his upper lip, to prevent more or less the spreading of any disagreeable smell or infection by his breath. He was also to cry, "Unclean, unclean;" as much as to say, Keep at a distance from me, for I am both legally impure and physically infectious: this proclamation, some of the Hebrews say, was made by a public officer. Biblioth. Bibl.

46. — he shall dwell alone;] Lepers might be conversant with lepers, and the same of persons afflicted with other disorders; but those that were under different defilements might not converse promiscuously. It is probable there were certain places, where those who were diseased with the leprosy were secluded; for it were an inhuman thing to cast the leprous out of the city or camp, without any provision for his dwelling. Dr. Light-foot.

His living out of the camp was for his own good, as well as that of the public; because free and fresh air would contribute not a little towards his relief and recovery. The Persians, as we find from Herodotus, followed this discipline: if any inhabitant of a city happened to have a leprosy or leprous scurf, he was debarred entrance, and was not allowed to approach any of his countrymen. Biblioth. Bibl.

47. The garment also that the plague of leprosy is in,] The account here given of the leprosy in garments is long, distinct, and particular, but very obscure. It may be understood in two senses, 1st, That the garments worn by leprous persons, receiving infection from their wearers, became thereby unclean, that is, contagious. That this disorder may be communicated by such means, is evident from the relations of travellers in the East. This kind of infection gradually corrodes even the texture of the garments, and is much dreaded in all countries subject to the plague, and by all persons exposed to it by attendance on purulent disorders. 2d, That there was a natural disease in the garments, appertaining to themselves. This appears to be the true sense of the expressions here; but we have no account from travellers, of such a disease, any where subsisting in the present days. Script. illust.

The leprosy of garments mentioned by Moses is much more difficult of explanation, than that of human bodies; and the learned are much divided in opinion respecting it. The prevailing opinion has been, that this leprosy of garments was entirely miraculous, and no where to be found, but in the land of Canaan: that God thus treated the rebellious Jews in withdrawing Himself from them, and pouring down this sort of curse on their apparel. Others have believed that the leprosy of the body was communicated to the clothes through the pores of the skin. And hence the red and green spots on the garments of lepers are to be accounted for. It is certain that the leprosy of garments can no otherwise be called a leprosy than by analogy, and as it carries with it some near resemblance to the leprosy of the body. Another opinion has been, that this sort of leprosy was occasioned by little worms, which bred in linen, stuffs, and skins, corroding them in different parts, and thereby causing spots of different colours. Cabnet.

51. — a fretting leprosy;] A leprosy which eateth into the garment till it be consumed. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

linen, or any thing of skin, wherein the plague is: for it is a fretting leprosy; it shall be burnt in the fire.

53 And if the priest shall look, and, behold, the plague be not spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin;

54 Then the priest shall command that they wash the thing wherein the plague is, and he shall shut it up seven days more:

55 And the priest shall look on the plague, after that it is washed: and, behold, if the plague have not changed his colour, and the plague be not spread; it is unclean; thou shalt burn it in the fire; it is fret inward, † whether it be bare within or without.

56 And if the priest look, and, behold, the plague be somewhat dark after the washing of it; then he shall rend it out of the garment, or out of the skin, or out of the warp, or out of the woof:

57 And if it appear still in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin; it is a spreading plague: thou shalt burn that wherein the plague is with fire.

58 And the garment, either warp, or woof, or whatsoever thing of skin it be, which thou shalt wash, if the plague be departed from them, then it shall be washed the second time, and shall be clean.

59 This is the law of the plague of leprosy in a garment of woollen or linen, either in the warp, or woof, or any thing of skins, to pronounce it clean, or to pronounce it unclean.

CHAP. XIV.

1 The rites and sacrifices in cleansing of the leper. 33

Chap. XIV. ver. 2. — He shall be brought unto the priest:] See Matt. viii. 4; Mark i. 44; Luke v. 14. As the leper was shut out of the camp while the Israelites remained in the wilderness, and out of the city after they possessed the promised land; he was to be brought, in order to be pronounced clean, to a certain place in or near the city, to the end that the priest might consider his case. Bp. Kidder.

The ceremony of the cleansing of the leper, ver. 2—7, seems to be typical of the purification of our sins, by the sprinkling of the blood of Christ, Is. lii. 15; 1 Pet. i. 2; the dismissal of the living bird, ver. 7, resembles that of the scapegoat into the wilderness, with the sins of the lepers upon him. It is observable that our Lord expressly commanded the lepers whom He healed to conform to this law, Matt. viii. 4. Dr. Hales.

4. — two birds] The solemn rite or ceremony here prescribed was perhaps ordained to signify that the leprous person owned the God of Israel to be the Lord both of heaven and earth; in opposition to the polytheism of the Gentiles; particularly to their distinction of the gods of the superiour regions, and gods of the inferiour, both of which were worshipped by the oblation of birds, the former by letting them fly up into the air, the latter by killing them. Dean Spencer.

The signs of leprosy in a house. 43 The cleansing of that house.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 This shall be the law of the leper in the day of his cleansing: He shall be brought unto the priest:

• Matt. 8. 2.
Mark 1. 40.
Luke 5. 12.

3 And the priest shall go forth out of the camp; and the priest shall look, and, behold, if the plague of leprosy be healed in the leper;

4 Then shall the priest command to take for him that is to be cleansed two || birds alive and clean, and cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop:

|| Or,
sparrows.

5 And the priest shall command that one of the birds be killed in an earthen vessel over running water:

6 As for the living bird, he shall take it, and the cedar wood, and the scarlet, and the hyssop, and shall dip them and the living bird in the blood of the bird that was killed over the running water:

7 And he shall sprinkle upon him that is to be cleansed from the leprosy seven times, and shall pronounce him clean, and shall let the living bird loose † into the open field.

† Heb.
upon the face of the field.

8 And he that is to be cleansed shall wash his clothes, and shave off all his hair, and wash himself in water, that he may be clean: and after that he shall come into the camp, and shall tarry abroad out of his tent seven days.

9 But it shall be on the seventh day, that he shall shave all his hair off his head and his beard and his eyebrows, even all his hair he shall shave off: and he shall wash his clothes, also he

5. — in an earthen vessel over running water:] The sense seems to be, “over an earthen vessel that hath running or spring water in it.” Bp. Patrick.

The bird was to be killed, not by way of sacrifice, but merely as a rite or ceremony. Biblioth. Bibl.

7. — loose into the open field.] As a token that the leper was restored to a free conversation with all his neighbours, as the bird was let loose to join the rest of its tribe. Bp. Patrick. There was an analogy between this bird and the scapegoat, chap. xvi. 21, both being considered, with good reason, types of our Saviour's resurrection, as the bird slain, and the goat sacrificed, were types of His death. Bochart.

8. — and shave off all his hair,] The shaving of the hair gave the power of washing and inspecting the whole person: also the infection of the leprosy was supposed to be peculiarly attached to the hair.

— shall tarry abroad out of his tent] He was to do this, for fear there might be some undiscerned remainder of the disease, by which his wife and children might be endangered. It is said, “out of his tent” instead of “out of his house,” because, when this law was given, the Israelites were dwelling in tents. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

shall wash his flesh in water, and he shall be clean.

† Heb.
the daughter of her year.

10 And on the eighth day he shall take two he lambs without blemish, and one ewe lamb † of the first year without blemish, and three tenth deals of fine flour for a meat offering, mingled with oil, and one log of oil.

11 And the priest that maketh him clean shall present the man that is to be made clean, and those things, before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation:

• Exod. 29.
24.

12 And the priest shall take one he lamb, and offer him for a trespass offering, and the log of oil, and ^b wave them for a wave offering before the LORD:

• Chap. 7. 7.

13 And he shall slay the lamb in the place where he shall kill the sin offering and the burnt offering, in the holy place: for ^c as the sin offering is the priest's, so is the trespass offering: it is most holy:

14 And the priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass offering, and the priest shall put it upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot:

15 And the priest shall take some of the log of oil, and pour it into the palm of his own left hand:

16 And the priest shall dip his right finger in the oil that is in his left hand, and shall sprinkle of the oil with his finger seven times before the LORD:

17 And of the rest of the oil that is in his hand shall the priest put upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the blood of the trespass offering:

18 And the remnant of the oil that is in the priest's hand he shall pour upon the head of him that is to be cleansed: and the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD. Before

CHRIST
1490.

19 And the priest shall offer the sin offering, and make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed from his uncleanness; and afterward he shall kill the burnt offering:

20 And the priest shall offer the burnt offering and the meat offering upon the altar: and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and he shall be clean.

21 And if he be poor, and † cannot get so much; then he shall take one lamb for a trespass offering † to be waved, to make an atonement for him, and one tenth deal of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering, and a log of oil; † Heb.
his hand
reach not.
† Heb.
for a waving.
ing.

22 And two turtledoves, or two young pigeons, such as he is able to get; and the one shall be a sin offering, and the other a burnt offering.

23 And he shall bring them on the eighth day for his cleansing unto the priest, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, before the LORD.

24 And the priest shall take the lamb of the trespass offering, and the log of oil, and the priest shall wave them for a wave offering before the LORD:

25 And he shall kill the lamb of the trespass offering, and the priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass offering, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot:

26 And the priest shall pour of the oil into the palm of his own left hand:

27 And the priest shall sprinkle with his right finger some of the oil that is in his left hand seven times before the LORD:

28 And the priest shall put of the oil

10. — he shall take two he lambs &c.] There were many peculiar rites different from the common usage, belonging to the cleansing of the leper; for the purpose of making him sensible how great a mercy he had received from God, who alone could cure this disease which His hand had inflicted: the most minute circumstances were to be all punctually observed, although there was no natural efficacy in them, and every thing depended entirely on the will and pleasure of God. Lewis.

18. — shall make an atonement for him] This seems to suppose that the leprosy was inflicted for some sin, which, by this sacrifice, was to be taken away: but the expression to "make atonement" does not always signify, "to take away sin," but sometimes merely to make a thing or person fit for holy uses. Thus Moses is said to make atonement for the altar, Exod. xxix. 36, 37. Bp. Patrick.

19. — afterward he shall kill the burnt offering:] This being an offering to God Himself, was not accepted till the man was purified by the other offerings for trespass and sin. This very long process, through so many different rites, and for so many days, before men could be purified from a legal defilement in their bodies, was a plain instruction to all persons of good sense, how much more difficult it would prove to cleanse their souls from those moral impurities which they contracted by long habits of sin; and what great pains must be taken, both by the sinners themselves, and by God's ministers, to root them out: and with what repeated prayers the mercy of God towards them was to be implored, of which they ought not hastily to presume. Bp. Patrick.

21. And if he be poor, &c.] It was the peculiar goodness of God, to make a merciful provision that the poor should not be charged with too costly sacrifices, and yet should partake of their benefit as much as the rich. This was peculiarly apparent in the case of cleansing the leper, where special provision is made for less costly offerings, whenever the person was unable to bear a heavy charge. Lewis.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

that is in his hand upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the place of the blood of the trespass offering :

29 And the rest of the oil that is in the priest's hand he shall put upon the head of him that is to be cleansed, to make an atonement for him before the LORD.

30 And he shall offer the one of the turtledoves, or of the young pigeons, such as he can get ;

31 Even such as he is able to get, the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering, with the meat offering : and the priest shall make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed before the LORD.

32 This is the law of him in whom is the plague of leprosy, whose hand is not able to get that which pertaineth to his cleansing.

33 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

34 When ye be come into the land of Canaan, which I give to you for a possession, and I put the plague of leprosy in a house of the land of your possession ;

35 And he that owneth the house shall come and tell the priest, saying, It seemeth to me there is as it were a plague in the house :

¶ Or, prepare.

36 Then the priest shall command that they empty the house, before the priest go into it to see the plague, that all that is in the house be not made unclean : and afterward the priest shall go in to see the house :

37 And he shall look on the plague, and, behold, if the plague be in the walls of the house with hollow strakes, greenish or

Before
CHRIST
1490.

reddish, which in sight are lower than the wall ;

38 Then the priest shall go out of the house to the door of the house, and shut up the house seven days :

39 And the priest shall come again the seventh day, and shall look : and, behold, if the plague be spread in the walls of the house ;

40 Then the priest shall command that they take away the stones in which the plague is, and they shall cast them into an unclean place without the city :

41 And he shall cause the house to be scraped within round about, and they shall pour out the dust that they scrape off without the city into an unclean place :

42 And they shall take other stones, and put them in the place of those stones ; and he shall take other mortar, and shall plaster the house.

43 And if the plague come again, and break out in the house, after that he hath taken away the stones, and after he hath scraped the house, and after it is plastered ;

44 Then the priest shall come and look, and, behold, if the plague be spread in the house, it is a fretting leprosy in the house : it is unclean.

45 And he shall break down the house, the stones of it, and the timber thereof, and all the mortar of the house ; and he shall carry them forth out of the city into an unclean place.

46 Moreover he that goeth into the house all the while that it is shut up shall be unclean until the even.

47 And he that lieth in the house shall wash his clothes ; and he that eateth in the house shall wash his clothes.

34. — I put the plague of leprosy in a house] These words seem manifestly to imply that this plague was not a common evil, but supernatural, and sent as a Divine judgment on the Jews for their sins in the land of Canaan, by which the inhabitants of that land were awakened to repentance. Bp. Kidder.

This subject, like that of the leprosy in clothes, is one on which we have very little information. The description given by Moses is precise, but there is nothing in any modern accounts corresponding to it. The circumstance that approaches nearest to it is that, according to the reports given of the plague of London, the walls of the rooms, where the sick lay, were discoloured green, red, &c. by the pestilential effluvia : and Dr. Mead says, that the houses themselves were infected by the plague. All the accounts which we have of the manner, in which pestilential contagion is retained for a long time in clothes, walls, &c. shew the absolute necessity of burning, or otherwise totally destroying the seeds of infection, whether in clothes, or in houses, as the Mosaic appointments strongly enjoin. Script. illust.

Respecting the leprosy in houses, it has been supposed by some that it was a wasting of the walls caused by small insects, called stone worms, which live upon the stone and eat it gradually away. These worms commonly stick to those parts of buildings which are most moist, and easily penetrated ; hence those parts are apt to be discoloured with green or reddish hues. Calmet. That this leprosy in particular was a Divine infliction is highly probable. The rabbies observe, that this sore disease was inflicted first upon the houses and garments as a punishment for lesser sins ; and, if men continued in a course of wickedness, then it invaded their bodies ; so that it began in their houses, which were not infected by the inhabitants, but the inhabitants by them. The signs, by which a leprosy was discovered in a house, were much the same as appeared in a human body. Lewis.

— of the land of your possession ;] This seems to express emphatically that this leprosy was to be a Divine stroke in this country, and no where else ; because it was a holy land, bestowed upon the Israelites by God, who dwelt there Himself, and punished great offences against His Divine Majesty with this sore disease ; by which He banished them from His presence till they amended. Bp. Parick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

† Heb.
in coming in shall come in, &c.

48 And if the priest † shall come in, and look upon it, and, behold, the plague hath not spread in the house, after the house was plaistered: then the priest shall pronounce the house clean, because the plague is healed.

49 And he shall take to cleanse the house two birds, and cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop:

50 And he shall kill the one of the birds in an earthen vessel over running water:

51 And he shall take the cedar wood, and the hyssop, and the scarlet, and the living bird, and dip them in the blood of the slain bird, and in the running water, and sprinkle the house seven times:

52 And he shall cleanse the house with the blood of the bird, and with the running water, and with the living bird, and with the cedar wood, and with the hyssop, and with the scarlet:

53 But he shall let go the living bird out of the city into the open fields, and make an atonement for the house: and it shall be clean.

54 This is the law for all manner of plague of leprosy, and ^d scall,
* Chap. 13. 30.

55 And for the leprosy of a garment, and of a house,

56 And for a rising, and for a seab, and for a bright spot:

† Heb.
in the day
of the unclean, and in the day of the clean.

57 To teach † when it is unclean, and when it is clean: this is the law of leprosy.

CHAP. XV.

1 The uncleanness of men in their issues. 13 The cleansing of them. 19 The uncleanness of women in their issues. 28 Their cleansing.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses and to Aaron, saying,

|| Or, running of the reins.

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When any man hath a ||running issue out of his flesh, because of his issue he is unclean. Before CHRIST

1490.

3 And this shall be his uncleanness in his issue: whether his flesh run with his issue, or his flesh be stopped from his issue, it is his uncleanness.

4 Every bed, whereon he lieth that hath the issue, is unclean: and every † thing, whereon he sitteth, shall be unclean. † Heb. vessel.

5 And whosoever toucheth his bed shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

6 And he that sitteth on any thing whereon he sat that hath the issue shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

7 And he that toucheth the flesh of him that hath the issue shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

8 And if he that hath the issue spit upon him that is clean; then he shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

9 And what saddle soever he rideth upon that hath the issue shall be unclean.

10 And whosoever toucheth any thing that was under him shall be unclean until the even: and he that beareth any of those things shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

11 And whomsoever he toucheth that hath the issue, and hath not rinsed his hands in water, he shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

12 And the ^a vessel of earth, that he ^a toucheth which hath the issue, shall be broken: and every vessel of wood shall be rinsed in water. * Chap. 6. 28.

13 And when he that hath an issue is

57. — this is the law of leprosy.] Here is a conclusion of what relates to this matter. Profane minds, who love to disparage the Holy Scripture, may deride these minute precepts respecting leprosy, as unworthy to be made a part of a Divine law; but men better disposed may discern therein the great goodness of God to His chosen people, in taking care to give them precepts about all manner of things which were profitable, both for regulating their manners and preserving their health; and for accustoming them to an exact obedience to Himself in every respect. And who does not see that, by these external rites and ceremonies, He admonishes us to keep pure consciences, "void of offence toward God, and toward men," in a strict observance of all the rules of our most holy religion? Bp. Patrick.

All this God hath wisely appointed, in order to denote and figure out to us, in a more sensible manner, the danger of moral evil and vicious habits of mind, and to lead to the expectation of the great Sacrifice to be afterwards offered up by Jesus Christ the Messiah, as a more full and perfect atonement for all the sins and defilements of mankind. Pylc.

Chap. XV. ver. 5. And whosoever toucheth his bed &c.] It appears from this and the following verses, that this disease made a man unclean to the highest degree; inasmuch that not only all he touched became unclean, but whoever touched such things was also made unclean. Bp. Patrick.

All this mystically teaches us to beware of courting or choosing the conversation of those that have received any tincture of vice, and not to contract acquaintance with any persons who, we have reason to believe, are not on good terms with God. There is such a venomous contagion in vice and immorality, that familiarity with sinners does, of itself, make a man an associate in their practices: so saith the Son of Sirach, Ecclus. xiii. 1; and thus the Apostle commands, 1 Tim. v. 22. Biblioth. Bibl.

12. — every vessel of wood] Vessels of wood were not to be broken, but only washed, because they were not so easily made as vessels of earth, and were of greater value. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

cleansed of his issue; then he shall number to himself seven days for his cleansing, and wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in running water, and shall be clean.

14 And on the eighth day he shall take to him two turtledoves, or two young pigeons, and come before the LORD unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and give them unto the priest:

15 And the priest shall offer them, the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering; and the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD for his issue.

16 And if any man's seed of copulation go out from him, then he shall wash all his flesh in water, and be unclean until the even.

17 And every garment, and every skin, whereon is the seed of copulation, shall be washed with water, and be unclean until the even.

18 The woman also with whom man shall lie with seed of copulation, they shall both bathe themselves in water, and be unclean until the even.

19 ¶ And if a woman have an issue, and her issue in her flesh be blood, she shall be † put apart seven days: and whosoever toucheth her shall be unclean until the even.

† Heb.
in her separation.

20 And every thing that she lieth upon in her separation shall be unclean: every thing also that she sitteth upon shall be unclean.

21 And whosoever toucheth her bed shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

22 And whosoever toucheth any thing that she sat upon shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

23 And if it be on her bed, or on any thing whereon she sitteth, when he toucheth it, he shall be unclean until the even.

24 And if any man lie with her at all, and her flowers be upon him, he shall be

Before
CHRIST
1490.

unclean seven days; and all the bed whereon he lieth shall be unclean.

25 And if a woman have an issue of her blood many days out of the time of her separation, or if it run beyond the time of her separation; all the days of the issue of her uncleanness shall be as the days of her separation: she shall be unclean.

26 Every bed whereon she lieth all the days of her issue shall be unto her as the bed of her separation: and whatsoever she sitteth upon shall be unclean, as the uncleanness of her separation.

27 And whosoever toucheth those things shall be unclean, and shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

28 But if she be cleansed of her issue, then she shall number to herself seven days, and after that she shall be clean.

29 And on the eighth day she shall take unto her two turtles, or two young pigeons, and bring them unto the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

30 And the priest shall offer the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering; and the priest shall make an atonement for her before the LORD for the issue of her uncleanness.

31 Thus shall ye separate the children of Israel from their uncleanness; that they die not in their uncleanness, when they defile my tabernacle that is among them.

32 This is the law of him that hath an issue, and of him whose seed goeth from him, and is defiled therewith;

33 And of her that is sick of her flowers, and of him that hath an issue, of the man, and of the woman, and of him that lieth with her that is unclean.

CHAP. XVI.

1 How the high priest must enter into the holy place. 11 The sin offering for himself. 15 The sin offering for the people. 20 The scapegoat. 29 The yearly feast of the expiations.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses after ^a the death of the two sons of Aaron, ²

^a Chap. 10.

13. — and shall be clean.] So that he might keep company with his neighbours, but he was not to have communion with God in the sanctuary till the following sacrifices were offered. Bp. Patrick.

31. — when they defile my tabernacle] This great variety of legal pollutions, which detained men from the sanctuary for a time, had a singular and natural tendency and efficacy towards quickening their zeal and devotion. It made them look with greater reverence to the seat of the Divine Presence. Too easy and familiar an access is apt to cheapen the best and greatest of things and persons. Biblioth. Bibl.

All the before-mentioned laws concerning uncleanness and the rites of purification were designed by God to represent, that persons ought at all times to worship and serve Him, and also to converse with one another, with inward cleanness and purity of mind. They were also intended further to prevent the Israelites from being drawn into idolatry, by establishing a difference of customs and habits between them and the heathens. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. — after the death of the two sons of Aaron,] This seems to be mentioned again, in order to make the priests

Before
CHRIST
1490.

when they offered before the LORD, and died;

* Exod. 30.
10
Hebr. 9. 7.

2 And the LORD said unto Moses, Speak unto Aaron thy brother, that he ^bcome not at all times into the holy place within the vail before the mercy seat, which is upon the ark; that he die not: for I will appear in the cloud upon the mercy seat.

3 Thus shall Aaron come into the holy place: with a young bullock for a sin offering, and a ram for a burnt offering.

4 He shall put on the holy linen coat, and he shall have the linen breeches upon his flesh, and shall be girded with a linen girdle, and with the linen mitre shall he be attired: these are holy garments; therefore shall he wash his flesh in water, and so put them on.

5 And he shall take of the congregation of the children of Israel two kids of the goats for a sin offering, and one ram for a burnt offering.

* Hebr. 9. 7.

6 And Aaron shall offer his bullock of the sin offering, which is for himself, and ^cmake an atonement for himself, and for his house.

7 And he shall take the two goats, and present them before the LORD at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

8 And Aaron shall cast lots upon the two goats; one lot for the LORD, and the other lot for the [†]scapegoat.

† Heb.
Azazel.

† Heb.
went up.

9 And Aaron shall bring the goat upon which the LORD's lot [†]fell, and offer him for a sin offering.

10 But the goat, on which the lot fell to be the scapegoat, shall be presented alive before the LORD, to make an atonement with him, and to let him go for a scapegoat into the wilderness.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

11 And Aaron shall bring the bullock of the sin offering, which is for himself, and shall make an atonement for himself, and for his house, and shall kill the bullock of the sin offering which is for himself:

12 And he shall take a censer full of burning coals of fire from off the altar before the LORD, and his hands full of sweet incense beaten small, and bring it within the vail:

13 And he shall put the incense upon the fire before the LORD, that the cloud of the incense may cover the mercy seat that is upon the testimony, that he die not:

14 And ^dhe shall take of the blood of the bullock, and ^esprinkle it with his finger upon the mercy seat eastward; and before the mercy seat shall he sprinkle of the blood with his finger seven times.

^d Hebr. 9.
13. & 10. 4.
^e Chap. 4. 6.

15 ¶ Then shall he kill the goat of the sin offering, that is for the people, and bring his blood within the vail, and do with that blood as he did with the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it upon the mercy seat, and before the mercy seat:

16 And he shall make an atonement for the holy place, because of the uncleanness of the children of Israel, and because of their transgressions in all their sins: and so shall he do for the tabernacle of the congregation, that [†]remaineth among them in the midst of their uncleanness.

† Heb.
dwelleth.

17 ^fAnd there shall be no man in the tabernacle of the congregation when he

^f Luke 1.
10.

careful, not only to sacrifice to the Lord alone, but after such a manner as He ordered. Bp. Patrick.

4. — the holy linen coat,] The service peculiar to this day was to be performed by the high priest in his linen vestments, not in his more costly attire, the ephod, breastplate, &c. this meaner garb being judged more agreeable to that sorrow and repentance, which the service of the day required. Bp. Kidder.

6. — for himself, — and for his house.] For himself and all the tribe of Levi, as it should seem by comparing with Numb. i. 47, &c. Maimonides mentions three confessions made on this day by the high priest: one for himself; the second for the other priests, upon the bullock; and the third, for all Israel, on the scapegoat. Biblioth. Bibl.

8. — the two goats;] These two goats were two parts of one and the same sin offering: the one to be slain, and its fat offered on the altar; the other to be only presented alive to God, and afterwards driven into the wilderness. Pyle. The Hebrew name for the latter, or the scapegoat, is azazel, which signifies "a goat sent away." Bp. Patrick.

11. — the sin offering, which is for himself;] It was very proper, or rather absolutely necessary, that Aaron, notwithstanding the eminence and sublimity of his character, should offer sacrifice for his own errors and miscarriages: for, as he was but a man, he must be more or less a delinquent also. On the other hand, Christ, our true High Priest, being God Himself, had not in Him the least blot or tincture of sin; thus, in Him and by Him, His saints are cleansed and purified from sin. Biblioth. Bibl.

13. — that he die not:] That the brightness of the glory might be so far clouded and intercepted as not to be insupportable to his gaze. Lamy.

15. — and bring his blood within the vail, &c.] The Jews did all believe that the tabernacle signified this world; and the Holy of Holies the highest heavens: wherefore, as the high priest did slay the sacrifice, and with the blood thereof did pass through the rest of the tabernacle, and with that blood enter into the Holy of Holies; so was the Messiah to offer Himself up, and, being slain, to pass through all the courts of this world below, and with His blood to enter into the highest heavens, the most glorious seat of the Majesty of God. Bp. Pearson.

16. — he shall make an atonement for the holy place,] He shall purify the Holy place, which, on account of the legal pollutions and transgressions of the people, was so defiled as to be unfit for the abode of the Divine Glory, without this yearly atonement. Dr. Wells.

17. — there shall be no man in the tabernacle] This was commanded out of reverence to the Divine Majesty, then manifesting itself in a most especial manner. Lamy.

^{Before}
CHRIST
1490. goeth in to make an atonement in the holy place, until he come out, and have made an atonement for himself, and for his household, and for all the congregation of Israel.

18 And he shall go out unto the altar that is before the LORD, and make an atonement for it; and shall take of the blood of the bullock, and of the blood of the goat, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about.

19 And he shall sprinkle of the blood upon it with his finger seven times, and cleanse it, and hallow it from the uncleanness of the children of Israel.

20 ¶ And when he hath made an end of reconciling the holy place, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar, he shall bring the live goat:

21 And Aaron shall lay both his hands upon the head of the live goat, and confess over him all the iniquities of the children of Israel, and all their transgressions in all their sins, putting them upon the head of the goat, and shall send him away by the hand of † a fit man into the wilderness:

† Heb.
a man of opportunity.

18. — he shall go out unto the altar] “He shall go out” of the tabernacle “unto the altar” of burnt offerings, which was in the court of the tabernacle, and for which it was as necessary to make atonement, as for the altar of incense. Dr. Wells.

21. — putting them upon the head of the goat,] By the high priest putting his hands upon the head of the goat, and confessing the sins of the people over it, (with prayer to God to remit them,) those sins were all charged upon the goat, and the punishment of them transferred from the Israelites to it. This scapegoat was a most illustrious figure of the sacrifice of Christ, who suffered, not merely for our benefit, but in our stead; on whom “the Lord laid the iniquity of us all,” Isai. liii. 6, who was “made sin for us,” 2 Cor. v. 21, and who “bare our sins in His own body,” 1 Pet. ii. 24. Bp. Patrick.

The sins of the people being thus transferred to the animal, it is afterwards represented to be so polluted, as even to pollute the person who carried it away, ver. 26. It is to be remarked, that this is the only passage in all Scripture, in which the meaning of the ceremony of laying hands on the head of the victim is directly explained. Dr. Magee.

— by the hand of a fit man] According to the Jews, the appointment of the person rested with the high priest, who generally did not appoint an Israelite. Dr. Wells.

— into the wilderness:] The goat was sent into the most desert places of the wilderness, in token that the sins of the Israelites were quite carried away, to be found no more. Bp. Patrick.

It is not certainly known into what wilderness they used to send the goat, when they were settled in Canaan. The Hebrews call it the wilderness of Tzuk, which, they say, was ten miles from Jerusalem; they add that, at the end of each mile there was a booth erected, where men stood ready with meat and drink, which they offered to him that went with the goat, lest he should faint by the way; when they came to the end of the distance, the goat was led to the top of a rock, and then let loose, to carry the sins of the people out of sight. Lewis.

22. And the goat shall bear — all their iniquities] As the slain goat shall represent Christ dying for sin, so the escaping goat shall represent Him, freed from death, for our full justifica-

22 And the goat shall bear upon him all their iniquities unto a land † not inhabited: and he shall let go the goat in the wilderness.

^{Before} CHRIST
1490.
† Heb. of separation.

23 And Aaron shall come into the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall put off the linen garments, which he put on when he went into the holy place, and shall leave them there:

24 And he shall wash his flesh with water in the holy place, and put on his garments, and come forth, and offer his burnt offering, and the burnt offering of the people, and make an atonement for himself, and for the people.

25 And the fat of the sin offering shall he burn upon the altar.

26 And he that let go the goat for the scapegoat shall wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward come into the camp.

27 And the bullock for the sin offering, and the goat for the sin offering, whose blood was brought in to make atonement in the holy place, shall one carry forth ^{Chap. 6.} without the camp; and they shall burn ^{Hebr. 13.} it.

tion, and taking away the sins of mankind, so that they shall not appear in the sight of God to their condemnation. Bp. Hall.

The transfer of the iniquities of the people upon the head of the scapegoat, and the bearing them away to the wilderness, manifestly imply that the atonement effected by the sacrifice of the sin offering consisted in the transfer and consequent removal of those iniquities. What then are we taught to infer from this ceremony? That, as the atonement under the law, or the expiation of the legal transgressions, was represented as a translation of those transgressions in the act of the sacrifice in which the animal was slain, and the people thereby cleansed from legal impurities, and released from penalties incurred; so the great atonement for the sins of mankind was to be effected by the sacrifice of Christ, undergoing, for the restoration of men to the favour of God, that death which had been denounced against sin, and which He suffered in like manner as if the sins of men had been actually transferred to Him, as those of the congregation had been symbolically transferred to the sin offering of the people. Dr. Magee.

24. And he shall wash his flesh] To purify himself, as it should seem, after he had touched the goat, which bare all their iniquities; though others understand that it was in token he had now finished the expiation. Bp. Patrick.

27. — shall one carry forth without the camp;] To be a type and figure of the more perfect sacrifice of Christ the Messiah, who was to suffer “without the gate,” Hebr. xiii. 11, 12. Pyle.

It is observable, that the bodies of those beasts, which were offered in the most solemn manner on these occasions, were burnt “without the camp” during the service of the tabernacle, and “without the gate” of Jerusalem after the building of the temple; and that every person who touched them, contracted a legal uncleanness, and was not suffered to mingle with his brethren, till the prescribed rites of purification had passed upon him. The reason of which ordinances is, that those sacrifices were charged with the sins of the people, from the instant that the people were discharged of them; and consequently the same blemish rested on the body of the beast now, which was upon the persons before the oblation was made. Dean Stanhope.

The holy of holies on earth represented the residence of the ^{Before CHRIST 1490.} in the fire their skins, and their flesh, and their dung.

28 And he that burneth them shall wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp.

29 ¶ And this shall be a statute for ever unto you: that in the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month, ye shall afflict your souls, and do no work at all, whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger that sojourneth among you:

30 For on that day shall the priest make an atonement for you, to cleanse you, that ye may be clean from all your sins before the LORD.

31 It shall be a sabbath of rest unto you, and ye shall afflict your souls, by a statute for ever.

32 And the priest, whom he shall anoint, and whom he shall † consecrate to minister in the priest's office in his father's stead, shall make the atonement, and shall put on the linen clothes, even the holy garments:

† Heb. fill his hand.

Deity in heaven. The service that was performed in it consequently represented the service that was to be performed in heaven. The high priest under the Law, therefore, represented the person of our great High Priest and Intercessor on this occasion; and the blood which he sprinkled before the cherubim on the mercy seat, was the type of that blood, the merits of which our great High Priest, when "entered within the vail," Heb. vi. 19, 20, was afterwards to plead before His heavenly Father. "Christ (says the Apostle) is not entered into the holy places made with hands, (that is, into the holy of holies in the temple,) which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, (the natural residence of the Deity,) now to appear in the presence of God for us," Heb. ix. 24. And, as the high priest on earth was not permitted to enter into the holy of holies on the great day of atonement, "without blood of others;" so his great Antitype, Jesus Christ, "being come an High Priest of good things to come," qualified His human nature for an entrance into the holy place in heaven, by the offering of His own blood. Each high priest acted under a publick character, each sustaining the persons of those whom he represented. The high priest under the Law "offered for himself and for the errors of the people." Our great High Priest under the Gospel "appeared in the presence of God for us:" whilst the burning the sin offering "without the camp," answers to Christ's suffering "without the gate" of Jerusalem. On this great and solemn day of general humiliation, both priests and people were required, by an everlasting statute, to plead virtually guilty to the sentence that had been denounced against sin: the particular service of this day being expressly calculated to leave a stronger impression on the human mind, respecting the nature of sin and the manner in which its effect was, by Divine appointment, to be done away, than if such ideas had been conveyed only by words. For on that day, the appointed atonement, by sprinkling before the mercy seat the blood of the sin offering which had been slain, was accepted both for priests and people; "to cleanse them, that they might be clean from all their sins before the Lord." Whilst, for the more complete satisfaction of the Jewish worshippers on this occasion, the high priest proceeded to confess over the head of one of the two goats, which had been brought by the congregation of the children of Israel, for the business of this day's solemnity, all the iniquities of the children of Israel and all their 33 And he shall make an atonement for the holy sanctuary, and he shall make an atonement for the tabernacle of the congregation, and for the altar, and he shall make an atonement for the priests, and for all the people of the congregation.

34 And this shall be an everlasting statute unto you, to make an atonement for the children of Israel for all their sins ^{once a year.} And he did as the LORD ^{Exod. 30. 10. Hebr. 9. 7.} commanded Moses.

CHAP. XVII.

¹ The blood of all slain beasts must be offered to the Lord at the door of the tabernacle. ⁷ They must not offer to devils. ¹⁰ All eating of blood is forbidden, ¹⁵ and all that dieth alone, or is torn.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron, and unto his sons, and unto all the children of Israel, and say unto them; This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded, saying,

3 What man soever there be of the house of Israel, that killeth an ox, or lamb, or transgressions in all their sins; and putting them on the head of the live goat, sent him away as the scapegoat for the children of Israel into an uninhabited land. A ceremony which carries with it so obvious an interpretation, as to render all comment on it unnecessary. Archdeacon Daubeny.

29. — in the seventh month, on the tenth day] Maimonides, to account for God's choosing this day for a day of extraordinary stated penance and devotion, observes, that it was that, on which Moses came down from the mount with the second tables, and notified to the people the remission of their great sin. Biblioth. Bibl.

— ye shall afflict your souls,] By fasting and abstinence, not only from all meat and drink, but from all other pleasure whatsoever. Bp. Patrick.

They observed this solemnity so strictly, that on it they were not permitted to wash their faces, much less to anoint their heads, or to wear their shoes, or even (if their doctors say true) to read any portion of their Law, which gave them delight. They abstained, likewise, not only from pleasure, but from labour, nothing being to be done on this day, but confession of sins, and repentance. This was the only fast appointed by the law of Moses, although, in succeeding times, many others were appointed by the authority of the state. Lewis.

They were to afflict their souls on this day, because, as follows in the next verse, their sins were then expiated. Expiated, how? By "the blood of bulls and of goats?" That is impossible, as the Apostle teaches, Heb. x. 4; but they were expiated by the blood of Christ, then represented to them under types and shadows. Bp. Beveridge.

30. — that ye may be clean from all your sins] Not from sins committed against the eternal laws of God, but from sins against the ritual laws contained in this book, when committed through ignorance or error. In respect to these, they were to be esteemed clean before God, on atonement being thus made for them, and on their performing the duties required on this day. Dr. Wells.

31. — a sabbath of rest] In the Hebrew, A sabbath of sabbaths; meaning a perfect and peculiar sabbath. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XVII. ver. 3. — that killeth an ox, or lamb, &c.] Not for his own private use or occasion, but for publick sacrifice. The

^a Before CHRIST 1490. goat in the camp, or that killeth it out of the camp,

4 And bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, to offer an offering unto the LORD before the tabernacle of the LORD; blood shall be imputed unto that man; he hath shed blood; and that man shall be cut off from among his people:

5 To the end that the children of Israel may bring their sacrifices, which they offer in the open field, even that they may bring them unto the LORD, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, unto the priest, and offer them for peace offerings unto the LORD.

6 And the priest shall sprinkle the blood upon the altar of the LORD at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and burn the fat for a ^a sweet savour unto the LORD.

^a Exod. 29. 18. chap. 3. 41.

design of this prohibition was, to keep private persons from presuming to be their own priests, and to teach them that it did not belong to them to sacrifice at home or in conventicles, but to bring their oblations to the priest, by him to be offered unto God. And this was one mean of preserving them from idolatry. If however no sacrifices were to be offered except in the tabernacle, and afterwards in the temple, it may be asked, what we are to say of such a sacrifice as that of Elijah, who obtained fire from heaven, 1 Kings xviii. 36, and other parallel instances? The answer is, that Elijah and the other great Prophets seem to have had the same plea as the great patriarch Abraham, when he was going to sacrifice his son. When the legislator commands that to be done which he had antecedently forbidden, that command has as much the force of a law, by virtue of that authority, as the prohibition had before. Biblioth. Bibl.

The reason of this law was, that whereas amongst the neighbouring nations, every one was wont to perform sacrifices in his own family, when and where he pleased; by which liberty they had run into many superstitious errors and idolatrous practices: God now restrained His own people to one stated place and method of regular and uniform public worship: and particularly, as sacrifices were a rite of communion between the offerer and the Being to whom they were presented, God in great wisdom confined the Israelites to His own tabernacle, thereby to make them communicate with Himself alone, the sole true object of Divine adoration; not suffering them to perform this part of worship in distant places, where they might be seduced by their idolatrous neighbourhood. Pyle.

4. And bringeth it not unto the door.] God knew the naughtiness of their hearts, how much they were disposed to sacrifice unto devils, and how certainly they would do so. He therefore requires that, whosoever killeth an ox, &c. should bring it to the door of the tabernacle, pour out the blood, and take the flesh to eat at home. Which if he did not, "blood would be imputed to him," that is, the very guilt of murder would be upon him, and he would "be cut off from the people," that is, would be excluded from the Israelite people and nation, as if he were a person found to be uncircumcised, and not of the seed of Abraham. That this was the meaning and scope of this law, appears from ver. 6, 7. Biblioth. Bibl.

5. — in the open field,] That is, "without the camp," where they were most prone to transgress this law, being most remote from the observation of others. Bp. Kidder. Neither in the tops of mountains nor in the retirement of groves, which better suited

7 And they shall no more offer their sacrifices unto devils, after whom they have gone a whoring. This shall be a statute for ever unto them throughout their generations.

^a Before CHRIST 1490.

8 ¶ And thou shalt say unto them, Whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers which sojourn among you, that offereth a burnt offering or sacrifice,

9 And bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, to offer it unto the LORD; even that man shall be cut off from among his people.

10 ¶ And whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, that eateth any manner of blood; I will even set my face against that soul that eateth blood, and will cut him off from among his people.

11 For the life of the flesh is in the the scandalous rites of Pagan worship, as being more out of sight. Biblioth. Bibl.

7. — unto devils,] Literally, in the original, "unto the hairy ones;" meaning those brute animals, covered with hair, especially goats, which they worshipped in Egypt, either alive or in figure. The people of Mendes in Egypt worshipped Pan under the form of a live goat; and it is related, that monstrous obscenities were practised at this worship. These devils or goats are joined with Jeroboam's calves at 2 Chron. xi. 15. Biblioth. Bibl.

8. — of the strangers which sojourn among you,] Proselytes to the Jewish religion. Bp. Patrick.

11. For the life of the flesh is in the blood: &c.] All this is as much as to say, The life of the animal lying in the blood, I have ordained it to expiate your sins, that, by its death in your stead, your life may be preserved: and therefore I require you not to eat that which is appointed for so holy an end. Bp. Patrick.

This is a very remarkable declaration as to the peculiar efficacy of animal sacrifice; and, in reference to it, St. Paul formally pronounces, that "without shedding of blood there is no remission," Hebr. ix. 22. Now, in what conceivable light can we view this institution of sacrifice, but in relation to that great Sacrifice which was to make atonement for sins: to that "blood of sprinkling" which was to speak "better things than that of Abel," Heb. xii. 24, or that of the Law? The Law itself is said to have respect solely unto Him. To what else can the principal institution of the Law refer? an institution too, which, unless so referred, appears utterly unmeaning. The offering up of an animal cannot be imagined to have had any intrinsic efficacy in procuring pardon for the transgression of the offerer. The blood of bulls and of goats could have possessed no virtue, whereby to cleanse him from his offences. Still less intelligible is the application of the blood of the victim, to the purifying of the parts of the tabernacle, and the apparatus of ceremonial worship. All this can, clearly, have had no other than an instituted meaning; and can be understood, only in reference to some bloodshedding, which, in an eminent degree, possessed the power of purifying from pollution. In short, admit the sacrifice of Christ to be held in view, in the institutions of the Law, and every part is plain and intelligible; reject that notion, and every theory devised by the ingenuity of man, to explain the nature of the ceremonial worship, becomes trifling and inconsistent. Dr. Magee.

The eating of blood was strictly forbidden to the Hebrews, under the terrible penalty of cutting off: even if it were not the blood of a sacrifice offered at the altar, but of beasts or fowls blood: and I have given it to you upon the altar to make an atonement for your souls: for it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

12 Therefore I said unto the children of Israel, No soul of you shall eat blood, neither shall any stranger that sojourneth among you eat blood.

[Heb. that hunteth any hunting.

13 And whatsoever man there be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, †which hunteth and catcheth any beast or fowl that may be eaten; he shall even pour out the blood thereof, and cover it with dust.

• Gen. 9. 4.

14 ^bFor it is the life of all flesh; the blood of it is for the life thereof: therefore I said unto the children of Israel, Ye shall eat the blood of no manner of flesh: for the life of all flesh is the blood thereof: whosoever eateth it shall be cut off.

† Heb.
a carcase.

15 And every soul that eateth † that which died of itself, or that which was torn with beasts, whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger, he shall both wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even: then shall he be clean.

taken in hunting, and killed for their own use, yet they might not eat of it: they were to bury it in the ground, lest, as the Jews say, any beast should lick it up. But the rabbies distinguish between the blood of the soul or the life, as they speak, and the blood of a limb: the former, which ran out freely when the beast was killed, and in which was the life of the beast, is absolutely forbidden; the other, which remained in the several parts of the beast, they considered as belonging to the flesh, and which therefore they might eat with it. Lewis.

On this acknowledged principle, that blood made atonement for the soul, the whole Levitical service proceeded. The design of that service being to remind the parties concerned, that the life of the beast slain on the altar was accepted in exchange for the life of the offender, which, according to the original covenant between God and man, had been forfeited by sin. Archdeacon Daubeny.

12. Therefore I said] Therefore, that is, because the blood is appointed to make atonement, and is consequently a type of the blood of the Messiah, Rom. iii. 25; Eph. i. 7; Col. i. 14; Hebr. ix. 12. Bp. Kidder.

13. — and cover it with dust.] Lest any beast should lick it up, (as is commonly interpreted,) or lest any persons should meet for idolatrous purposes, and feast upon it. Bp. Patrick. This covering of blood was to be so strictly observed, that, if a man saw his neighbour kill a beast, and neglect to cover its blood with dust, he was bound to go and do it himself, because God here speaks unto the children of Israel generally. The ancient heathens used to take some of the blood, when they slew a beast in sacrifice, and put it in or on the ground, either in a vessel, or in a little hole dug; and, sitting in a circle round the blood, they eat the flesh; imagining that, at the time they were doing so, the demons feasted on the blood as their proper and beloved food, and that this common repast between them made the demons still more and more their friends. Biblioth. Bibl.

16. — he shall bear his iniquity.] Death shall be his punishment, either from the hand of man or from the hand of God. Lamy. Chap. XVIII. ver. 2. — I am the Lord your God.] I who 16 But if he wash them not, nor bathe his flesh; then he shall bear his iniquity. Before

CHRIST
1490.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 Unlawful marriages. 19 Unlawful lusts.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, I am the Lord your God.

3 After the doings of the land of Egypt, wherein ye dwelt, shall ye not do: and after the doings of the land of Canaan, whither I bring you, shall ye not do: neither shall ye walk in their ordinances.

4 Ye shall do my judgments, and keep mine ordinances, to walk therein: I am the Lord your God.

5 Ye shall therefore keep my statutes, and my judgments: ^a which if a man do, he shall live in them: I am the Lord. ^a Ezek. 20. 11.
Rom. 10. 5.
Gal. 3. 12.

6 ¶ None of you shall approach to any that is † near of kin to him, to uncover their nakedness: I am the Lord. † Heb.
remainder of his flesh.

7 The nakedness of thy father, or the nakedness of thy mother, shalt thou not uncover: she is thy mother; thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

am your sovereign Lord, and, by redeeming you from Egyptian bondage, am become in an especial manner your God, have a right to give you laws, to which all human customs must yield, however long practised and extensively spread. This title to the obedience of the people is repeated six times in this chapter, and oftener in the next. Bp. Patrick.

3. After the doings of the land of Egypt, — of Canaan,] The wilderness, in which they now were, was a very fit place for enjoining these laws upon the Israelites, as they were now removed from the snares and temptations of Egypt, and were not yet mingled with the people of Canaan. Bp. Kidder.

The expressions here used sufficiently shew that the foul practices here forbidden reigned among the Egyptians and Canaanites, and that they were such as the Divine Purity absolutely condemned. That the dictates of nature may thus be overruled in fact, we learn from the manners of the Persians, who, at this very time, marry not only their sisters, but their own mothers and daughters; not to mention other instances of similar enormities. Biblioth. Bibl.

5. — he shall live in them:] He shall live happily and long in the enjoyment of all the blessings, which God promised in His covenant with the Israelites. Bp. Patrick.

6. None of you shall approach &c.] The Jews give two reasons for the prohibitions relating to marriage in this chapter; the one, a natural incongruity and immodesty in the thing itself; the other, that if courtships of this kind had been allowed, they might have proved the occasion of very scandalous and lewd practices among relations, from the circumstance of their constant intercourse. These laws are not branched out into remoter relations, because the inconveniences, obviated in the prohibitions actually given, were to be prudentially guarded against in all resembling cases. Biblioth. Bibl.

7. The nakedness of thy father, &c.] It is related by historians, that the Magi, or wise men, among the Persians, were always persons born in this detestable incest. There were many nations among whom such marriages were altogether in fashion, as Indians, Arabs, Persians, &c. Biblioth. Bibl.

Before
CHRIST
1490. 8 ^b The nakedness of thy father's wife shalt thou not uncover: it is thy father's nakedness.

^c Chap. 20. 11. 9 The nakedness of thy sister, the daughter of thy father, or daughter of thy mother, whether she be born at home, or born abroad, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover.

10 The nakedness of thy son's daughter, or of thy daughter's daughter, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover: for their's is thine own nakedness.

11 The nakedness of thy father's wife's daughter, begotten of thy father, she is thy sister, thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

^e Chap. 20. 19. 12 ^c Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's sister: she is thy father's near kinswoman.

13 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister: for she is thy mother's near kinswoman.

^d Chap. 20. 20. 14 ^d Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's brother, thou shalt not approach to his wife: she is thine aunt.

^e Chap. 20. 12. 15 ^e Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy daughter in law: she is thy son's wife; thou shalt not uncover her nakedness. Before

CHRIST
1490.

16 ^f Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy brother's wife: it is thy brother's nakedness. ^f Chap. 20. 21.

17 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of a woman and her daughter, neither shalt thou take her son's daughter, or her daughter's daughter, to uncover her nakedness; for they are her near kinswomen: it is wickedness.

18 Neither shalt thou take || a wife to her sister, to vex her, to uncover her nakedness, beside the other in her life time. || Or, one wife to another.

19 ^g Also thou shalt not approach unto a woman to uncover her nakedness, as long as she is put apart for her uncleanness. ^g Chap. 20. 18.

20 Moreover thou shalt not lie carnally with thy neighbour's wife, to defile thyself with her.

21 And thou shalt not let any of thy seed ^h pass through the fire to ⁱ Molech, neither shalt thou profane the name of thy God: I am the LORD. ^h Chap. 20. 2. 2 Kings 23. 10. ⁱ Called, Acts 7. 42, Molech.

8. — thy father's wife] Thy stepmother; being as near to a person in the estimation of the law, though not in the account of nature; therefore, though marriage with a stepmother be a crime of less turpitude, yet it is equally forbidden, and is against the law of nature, not directly, but by interpretation. Bp. Jer. Taylor. The Jews say on this occasion, that it was unlawful for the son to marry her, though she had been only espoused by his father; or, if he had divorced her, it was not lawful for the son to have her, even after he was dead. Lewis.

9. — of thy sister,] Diodorus Siculus tells us, that the Egyptians encouraged marriages between brothers and sisters, as well pleasing to their deity Isis. Pyle. This law includes a half sister, "whether born at home or abroad," that is, legitimately born in wedlock or illegitimately out of it. Such a marriage is next to an unnatural mixture, it has something of confusion in it, and blending the very first partings of nature, which makes it intolerably scandalous, and universally forbidden; for if it were not, the mischief would be horrible and infinite. Bp. Jeremy Taylor.

10. — thy son's daughter,] No mention is made of a man's own daughter, because, say the Jews, as marriage with grandchildren was forbidden, that with children was necessarily included. Lewis.

16. — thy brother's wife:] If this prohibition be understood in the case of the brother's death, it may seem to clash with the command of Deut. xxv. 5. But both are easily reconciled under this limitation, that the brother was not to take the brother's wife, if the deceased left children; or further, if the brother's wife had been divorced. Biblioth. Bibl.

As it is here forbidden that two brothers should marry the same woman, so, by parity of reasoning, it must be understood to be forbidden that two sisters should marry the same man; and these prohibitions form part of the moral law, binding on all mankind. Dr. Berriman.

18. Neither shalt thou take a wife to her sister,] The marginal reading is, "one wife to another;" but the meaning of the precept is, that no man should marry his wife's sister while that wife is living. It does not expressly forbid the taking more wives than one, which practice had generally obtained, and passes without reproof among the Israelites. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

Many eminent writers, following our marginal translation, conceive that plurality of wives is expressly forbidden by this law; and so the Karaites interpret this place, that a man, having a wife, should not take another while she lived; which, if it were true, would assist us to resolve many difficulties: but there are such strong reasons against this interpretation, that I cannot think this to be the meaning; for, as more wives than one were permitted before the law, so they were afterwards. And Moses himself supposes as much, when he provides (Deut. xxi. 17) that a man should not prefer a child he had by a beloved wife, to one by her whom he hated, if he were the eldest son. We find expressly that the Hebrew kings might have many wives, though not a multitude; and the best of their princes, (David,) who read the Divine law day and night, and could not but understand it, took many wives without any reproof; so far from that, God gave him more wives than he had before, by delivering to him his master's wives, 2 Sam. xii. 8. The meaning therefore is, that though two wives at a time, or more, were permitted in those days, yet no man was to take two sisters (as Jacob had formerly done) begotten of the same father, or born of the same mother, whether legitimately or illegitimately; which, though it may seem to have been prohibited before by consequence and analogy, (because the marriage of a brother's wife is forbidden,) yet in this place it is more expressly prohibited, as other marriages are. Lewis.

— to vex her,] The taking, in general, of one wife or consort to another is not here forbidden, but the marrying of two sisters to live in the conjugal state together: as Jacob did, either because there was then no law to the contrary; or, because the first of them having been fraudulently imposed upon him, though the latter was his proper choice and favourite, he would not dismiss the former, lest he should prove the occasion of her taking to evil courses. Biblioth. Bibl.

21. — thy seed pass through the fire to Molech,] Thy seed, or offspring, Deut. xviii. 10. Molech was the name of an idol worshipped by the Ammonites, 1 Kings xi. 7, otherwise called Mil-

Before
CHRIST
1490.
Chap. 20.
15.

22 Thou shalt not lie with mankind, as with womankind: it is abomination.

23 Neither shalt thou lie with any beast to defile thyself therewith: neither shall any woman stand before a beast to lie down thereto: it is confusion.

24 Defile not ye yourselves in any of these things: for in all these the nations are defiled which I cast out before you:

25 And the land is defiled: therefore I do visit the iniquity thereof upon it, and the land itself vomiteth out her inhabitants.

26 Ye shall therefore keep my statutes and my judgments, and shall not commit any of these abominations; neither any of your own nation, nor any stranger that sojourneth among you:

27 (For all these abominations have the men of the land done, which were before you, and the land is defiled;)

28 That the land spue not you out also, when ye defile it, as it spued out the nations that were before you.

29 For whosoever shall commit any of these abominations, even the souls that commit them shall be cut off from among their people.

30 Therefore shall ye keep mine ordinance, that ye commit not any one of these abominable customs, which were committed before you, and that ye defile not yourselves therein: I am the LORD your God.

CHAP. XIX.

A repetition of sundry laws.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto all the congregation of the com, 2 Kings xxiii. 13. This was a principal idol among all the heathens. The Hebrew word is of nearly the same import as that of Baal, implying dominion and kingly superiority. The passing of the children through the fire, here forbidden, seems to have been practised for the purpose of purification, and as a means of dedicating them to the service of the false god. The heathens also offered their children in sacrifice to Molech, which is forbidden under severest penalties, at chap. xx. 3. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

Few things are more shocking to the ears of humanity, than the frequent mention, in the sacred Scriptures, of the custom of causing children, &c. to pass through fire, in honour of Molech: a custom, the antiquity of which appears from its being repeatedly forbidden by Moses; as Lev. xviii. 21, and afterwards in chap. xx, where the expression is very strong of "giving his seed to Molech." The rabbies have histories of the manner of passing through the fires, or between the fires, or into caves of fire. And there is an account of an image, which received children into its arms, and let them drop into a fire beneath; and of the shouts of the multitude, the noise of drums, &c, to drown the shrieks of the agonizing infant, and the horrors of the parents' mind. Waving all allusion to these at present, the following extract may give us a good idea, in what manner the passing through or over fire was anciently performed: "A still more astonishing instance of the superstition of the ancient Indians, in respect to their venerated fire, remains, at this day, in the grand annual festival, holden in honour of Darma Rajah, and called the FEAST OF FIRE: in which, as in the ancient rites of Molech, the devotees walk barefoot over a glowing fire, extending forty feet. It is called the feast of fire, because they then walk on that element. It lasts eighteen days, during which, those, who make a vow to keep it, must fast, lie on the bare ground, and walk on a brisk fire. The eighteenth day they assemble, with the sound of instruments, their heads crowned with flowers, the body bedaubed with saffron; and follow in cadence the figures of Darma Rajah, and of Drobode his wife who are carried there in procession; when they come to the fire, they stir it, to animate its activity, and take a little of the ashes, with which they rub their foreheads: and when the gods have been three times round it, they walk either fast or slow, according to their zeal, over a very hot fire, extended to about forty feet in length. Some carry their children in their arms; and others lances, sabres, and standards." Sonnerat's Travels. This extract accounts for several expressions used in Scripture: such as, causing children (very young perhaps) to pass through fire, as we see they are carried over the fire, by which means they were not destroyed or injured, except by being profaned. Nevertheless it might, and probably did, happen, that some of those, who thus passed, were hurt or maimed in the passing; or, if not immediately slain by the fire, might actually be burned in this superstitious pilgrimage, so as to contract fatal diseases. Fragments, Appendix to Calmet. See 2 Kings, chap. xvi. ver. 3.

25. — the land itself vomiteth out] A most eloquent figure, expressing the excessive loathsomeness of their wickedness, which made their own country nauseate them, and throw them out as the stomach does food that offends it. Bp. Patrick. How strong and descriptive is this language! the vices are declared so abominable that the very land was sick of them, and forced to vomit them forth; as the stomach disgorges a deadly poison. Bp. Watson.

29. — whosoever shall commit any of these abominations, &c.] Next to "idolatry" the Jewish law seems to have condemned with peculiar emphasis, and punished with peculiar severity, "all kinds of impurity:" every species of incestuous connexion and unnatural crime was punished with death. Besides, not only was forcible violation capital, as by our law, but the violation of the marriage vow. The adulterer and adulteress were condemned to suffer a publick and ignominious execution. The same punishment was the consequence, where the female, though not married, was betrothed in marriage. In a word, we perceive the most anxious care to cut off every greater degree of licentiousness, and stigmatize even the least with infamy: yet never did this care degenerate into an extravagant reverence for unnatural austerity and monastick celibacy. In every rank, from the high priest to the lowest peasant, marriage was encouraged and esteemed honourable: our blessed Lord indeed has declared, that some permissions, relating to marriage, granted to the Jews for the hardness of their hearts, were inconsistent with the more pure and refined morality of the Gospel; yet, notwithstanding this, we perceive in the Jewish law so strong an opposition to the usual licentiousness of Eastern manners, and so decided a superiority in this respect above the legislators and philosophers of the heathen world, and still more above their religious institutions, as tend strongly to prove, that a system so favourable to the interests of virtue, and restraining so powerfully, and yet so judiciously, the excesses of passion; a system, introduced at that early period, in an Eastern climate, and amongst a people accustomed to be irresistibly led by objects of sense, had higher origin than mere human wisdom; and that, to secure submission to its restraint, required an interference more powerful than mere human authority. Dr. Graves.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

^a Chap. 11.
44. & 20, 7.
1 Pet. 1. 16.

children of Israel, and say unto them, ^a Ye shall be holy: for I the LORD your God am holy.

3 ¶ Ye shall fear every man his mother, and his father, and keep my sabbaths: I am the LORD your God.

4 ¶ Turn ye not unto idols, nor make to yourselves molten gods: I am the LORD your God.

5 ¶ And if ye offer a sacrifice of peace offerings unto the LORD, ye shall offer it at your own will.

6 It shall be eaten the same day ye offer it, and on the morrow: and if ought remain until the third day, it shall be burnt in the fire.

7 And if it be eaten at all on the third day, it is abominable; it shall not be accepted.

8 Therefore every one that eateth it shall bear his iniquity, because he hath profaned the hallowed thing of the LORD: and that soul shall be cut off from among his people.

^a Chap. 23.
22.

9 ¶ And ^b when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not wholly reap the corners of thy field, neither shalt thou gather the gleanings of thy harvest.

10 And thou shalt not glean thy vineyard, neither shalt thou gather every grape of thy vineyard; thou shalt leave them for the poor and stranger: I am the LORD your God.

11 ¶ Ye shall not steal, neither deal falsely, neither lie one to another.

12 ¶ And ye shall not ^c swear by my name falsely, neither shalt thou profane the name of thy God: I am the LORD.

13 ¶ ^d Thou shalt not defraud thy neighbour, neither rob him: ^e the wages of him that is hired shall not abide with thee all night until the morning.

14 ¶ Thou shalt not curse the deaf, ^f nor put a stumblingblock before the blind, but shalt fear thy God: I am the LORD.

15 ¶ Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment: thou shalt not ^g respect the person of the poor, nor honour the person of the mighty: but in righteousness shalt thou judge thy neighbour.

16 ¶ Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer among thy people: neither shalt thou stand against the blood of thy neighbour: I am the LORD.

17 ¶ ^h Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart: thou shalt in any wise rebuke thy neighbour, ⁱ and not suffer sin upon him.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

^c Exod. 20.
7.

Deut. 5. 11.

Matt. 5. 34.

James 5. 12.

^d Ecclesiastes 10.

6.

^e Deut. 24.

14.

Tobit 4. 14.

^f Deut. 27.

18.

^g Exod. 23.

3.

Deut. 1. 17.

& 16. 19.

Prov. 24.

23.

James 2. 9.

^h 1 John 2.

11.

Matt. 18.

15.

Ecclesiastes 19.

13.

¶ Or,

that thou bear not sin

for him.

Chap. XIX. ver. 2. — Ye shall be holy: &c.] These words were before used, chap. xi. 44, with respect to forbidden meats, and are now repeated with a peculiar reference to the abominations forbidden in the last chapter; it being a general reason, why they should strictly observe the peculiar laws, by which they were separated from other people, that they were the worshippers of Him, whose most excellent nature surpasses all other beings, in purity and every other perfection. Bp. Patrick.

3. Ye shall fear &c.] Ye shall reverence and respect. Pyle. It was enacted by a law of Solon, that whoever did not make provision for his parents should be treated with infamy and detestation. Marsham observes, that the mother is here put before the father, as, in Exodus, the father was before the mother, to signify that obedience and reverence in general are due alike to both parents. Biblioth. Bibl.

5. — ye shall offer it at your own will.] Freely and of your own choice. Dr. Wells. Or the words may be translated, as in the Greek and Latin versions, “ye shall offer it that it may be acceptable to the Lord,” that is, according to the rules prescribed in the seventh chapter. Bp. Patrick.

8. Therefore every one that eateth it &c.] As Moses specified to the people the laws which he gave them, with several repetitions, the deeper to imprint it on their memory; so especially he did with those laws, in which they were required to be most punctual, as this of eating of the sacrifice of peace offerings on the third day; on account of the frequency of offering them, and the danger of “cutting off” in all who disobeyed. Biblioth. Bibl.

9. — thou shalt not wholly reap] By this command, not only that which dropt accidentally, but even a part of the crop in the corners of the ground was to be left to the poor: thereby, proprietors of land were stirred to acts of good neighbourhood and generosity. Biblioth. Bibl.

12. — neither shalt thou profane &c.] By vain, or common, or needless swearing. Dr. Wells. Either by swearing to what is false, or by rash swearing in common conversation, or by scoffing and speaking reproachfully of religion, or by too frequent, familiar, and irreverent mention of God in ordinary discourse. Dr. S. Clarke.

13. — shall not abide with thee] That is, if demanded or wanted. Abp. Secker.

14. Thou shalt not curse the deaf, &c.] Thou shalt not curse thy neighbour, especially the deaf who cannot hear thee, and complain of thee for so doing; nor “put a stumblingblock in the way of the blind,” who cannot see to avoid it. Dr. Wells.

The base action of reviling or cursing a deaf person is here condemned: but this is not all; the general meaning is, Thou shalt not take the sordid advantage of a man's incapacity to defend himself, and hurt him either in his body, fortunes, or reputation. To abuse an absent person, to calumniate in secret, to attack another's reputation in the dark, and in disguise, to defame those who are dead, to hurt in any manner those who are unable to help and redress themselves, all this may be called, “to curse the deaf.” Dr. Jortin. We are to understand this precept as forbidding us on any occasion to give wrong counsel to a simple, or to a careless person. Lord Clarendon.

16. — as a talebearer] As an informer. The word literally signifies, a merchant or pedlar: it here means a person who drives a trade by carrying about tales and accusations, which disturb the peace, and sometimes endanger the lives, of men. Bp. Kidder.

— neither shalt thou stand against the blood] Neither shalt thou be a false witness against thy neighbour, so as to endanger his life. Bp. Patrick.

17. — thou shalt — rebuke thy neighbour.] Thou shalt rebuke thy neighbour for his fault, and endeavour to convince him of it; and “not suffer sin upon him,” that is, not suffer him to go on in his sin for want of telling him of it. In the margin, the latter words are translated, “that thou bear not sin for him;” meaning, that, by forbearing to reprove thy neighbour, thou mayest not bring his guilt upon thyself. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

1 Matt. 5.
43. & 22.
39.
Rom. 13. 9.
Gal. 5. 14.
James 2. 8.

|| Or, abused by any.
† Heb. reproached
by, or, for man.
|| Or, they.
† Heb.
there shall be a scourg-
ing.

18 ¶ Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people, but thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: I am the LORD.

19 ¶ Ye shall keep my statutes. Thou shalt not let thy cattle gender with a diverse kind: thou shalt not sow thy field with mingled seed: neither shall a garment mingled of linen and woollen come upon thee.

20 ¶ And whosoever lieth carnally with a woman, that is a bondmaid, || † betrothed to an husband, and not at all redeemed, nor freedom given her; || † she shall be scourged; they shall not be put to death, because she was not free.

21 And he shall bring his trespass offering unto the LORD, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, even a ram for a trespass offering.

22 And the priest shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass offering before the LORD for his sin which he hath done: and the sin which he hath done shall be forgiven him.

23 ¶ And when ye shall come into the land, and shall have planted all manner of trees for food, then ye shall count the fruit thereof as uncircumcised: three years shall it be as uncircumcised unto you: it shall not be eaten of.

24 But in the fourth year all the fruit thereof shall be † holy to praise the LORD withal.

25 And in the fifth year shall ye eat of the fruit thereof, that it may yield unto you the increase thereof: I am the LORD your God.

26 ¶ Ye shall not eat any thing with the blood: neither shall ye use enchantment, nor observe times.

27^k Ye shall not round the corners of^k Chap. 21.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

† Heb.
holiness of praises to
the LORD.

In many cases direct remonstrances to the faulty are necessary, which, therefore, such, as with propriety can, are bound to make; and whatever reluctance they may find in so painful a work, must "in any wise rebuke their neighbour, and not suffer sin upon him," for the omission of it is interpreted to be "hating him in their heart." Timely admonition may stop him short just at the entrance upon a wrong course. Even those, who are farther gone, may yet be recalled by a lively representation of their guilt and danger. But then we must be very careful, that we never bring a charge, unless we have incontestable proof of its truth; that a genuine friendly concern be evidently the principle of all we say; that we express more sorrow than anger, where circumstances will allow it; that we use tender expostulations by choice, and harsh expressions only when nothing else will prevent ruin; and then also with such attention as may reconcile the person concerned, if possible, to the liberties taken with him by the conviction that they are taken unwillingly. Abp. Secker.

18. — thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: I am the Lord. In the Mosaic Law, the love of God is made the ruling principle of the love of our neighbour, or of benevolence to mankind. In this passage, the emphatic conclusion, "I am the Lord," intimates that they should obey the precept of loving their neighbour, for the Lord's sake. Dr. Hales.

19. — Thou shalt not let thy cattle &c. These mixtures seem to have been forbidden chiefly with a reference to some idolatrous practices prevailing in those times; also to cause a greater abhorrence of those immoral and filthy mixtures, mentioned in the foregoing chapter, especially those of verses 22, 23. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

Since the things which are here prohibited are not morally evil, there might be a further meaning in these laws, namely, that the Jews should abstain from all impurities, and that they should have no intercourse, and contract no marriages with idolatrous neighbours. Dr. Jortin.

— thou shalt not sow thy field with mingled seed: This law was possibly given in opposition to the Zabians and Amorites, who designed honour to their gods by planting their vines and sowing their seeds together, hoping, on this account, to obtain a more plentiful vintage and crop. Dean Spencer.

— a garment mingled of linen and woollen These garments of mixed substances were ordinarily worn by the Zabians, in token of gratitude and honour to their deities, whom, according to the several provinces which they assigned them, as presiding over the affairs of men, they looked upon as the distributors and donors of these and the like conveniences. Dean Spencer.

20. — she shall be scourged; Rather, as in the margin, "there shall be a scourging;" that is, the cause of scourging to both. Biblioth. Bibl.

23. — as uncircumcised: As profane and refuse. This precept seems to have been enjoined, to draw them off from the practices of idolaters, whose custom it was, to offer up to their idols part of the firstfruits of their trees, and to eat the other part in the idol's temple; conceiving that, if this were not done, their trees would be blasted, and the fruit fall off. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

25. — in the fifth year So long their faith and dependence on God were to be tried; and they had the promise of their reward annexed, if they failed not in it, namely, "that it may yield unto you the increase thereof." Biblioth. Bibl.

26. — with the blood: At or over the blood: this was in opposition to the magical rites of the ancient idolaters, when they would convene demons or departed souls, whom they supposed to be delighted with a festival of blood: while the votaries fed upon the flesh, in order to inform themselves about uncertainties and futurities. Dean Spencer.

— neither shall ye use enchantment, Neither shall ye make any superstitious observation of events or omens, by which men pretend to divine future events; nor "observe times," vainly imagining some to be lucky, others unlucky. Dr. Wells.

27. Ye shall not round the corners of your heads, &c. The prohibitions given in this verse are made in opposition to some idolatrous and superstitious practices of the heathens. "Ye shall not round the corners," that is, round the ends of the hair of your heads, as was done by the heathen, either as a part of superstitious funeral ceremonies, or in honour of particular idols,—nor "make cuttings in your flesh;" supposed by some to have been a method of pacifying infernal spirits, so as to make them propitious to the dead,—nor "print any marks upon you," as did the Gentiles, to shew what false god they worshipped. Pyle, Dr. Wells.

The Hebrew word translated corners signifies also the extremities of any thing; and the meaning is, they were not to cut their hair equal behind or before, as the worshippers of the stars and planets, particularly the Arabians, did. There are those however, who think it refers to a superstitious custom among the Gentiles, in their mourning for the dead. They cut off their hair round about, and threw it into the sepulchre with the bodies of their relations and friends, and sometimes laid it upon the face or breast of the dead, as an offering to the infernal gods, whereby they thought to appease them and make them kind to the deceased. Burder.

Before
CHRIST
1490. your heads, neither shalt thou mar the corners of thy beard.

¹ Deut. 14. 28 Ye shall not ¹ make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor print any marks upon you: I am the LORD.

[†] Heb. ^{profane.} 29 ¶ Do not [†] prostitute thy daughter, to cause her to be a whore; lest the land fall to whoredom, and the land become full of wickedness.

30 ¶ Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary: I am the LORD.

31 ¶ Regard not them that have familiar spirits, neither seek after wizards, to be defiled by them: I am the LORD your God.

32 ¶ Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honour the face of the old man, and fear thy God: I am the LORD.

^m Exod. 22. 33 ¶ And ^m if a stranger sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not ^{||} vex him.

^{||} Or, oppress. 34 ⁿ But the stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born among you, and thou shalt love him as thyself; for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

28. — not make any cuttings — for the dead.] It was a fashion in some countries of the Gentiles, to express their grief for the loss of their friends by these incisions. Biblioth. Bibl.

One reason why God was pleased to forbid these extravagant and violent expressions of grief so solemnly practised among the Gentiles was, the more effectually to fix them in a belief of His good providence, and a future state. Dean Spencer.

The demonstration of love, by cuttings made in the flesh, is a practice still prevalent in the East. "The most ridiculous and senseless method of their expressing affection is, their singing certain amorous and whining songs, composed on purpose for such mad occasions: between every line of which they cut and slash their naked arms with daggers; each endeavouring in their emulative madness to exceed the other by the depth and number of the wounds he gives himself. Some Turks I have observed, when old, and past the follies of their youth, to show their arms all gashed and scarred from wrist to elbow; and express a great concern, but greater wonder, at their past simplicity." Aaron Hill's Travels. This custom of cutting themselves is taken, in several places of Scripture, for a mark of affection. See Jer. xlviii. 37; xvi. 6; xli. 5; xlvii. 5. All these places include the idea of painful absence of the party beloved. Cuttings for the dead had the same radical idea of deprivation. The law says in the text, and in Deut. xiv. 1, "Ye are the children of the Lord your God: ye shall not cut yourselves, nor make any baldness between your eyes for the dead:" that is, restrain such excessive tokens of grief. Sorrow not as those without hope, if for a dead friend: but, if for a dead idol, then it prohibits this idolatrous custom, of which it also manifests the antiquity. Fragments to Calmel. See note on 1 Kings xviii. 28; also on Zech. xiii. 6.

— nor print any marks] This imprinting of marks or signatures was understood to be fixing a badge or characteristic of the person's being devoted to some false deity. Bp. Patrick.

29. Do not prostitute thy daughter.] This horrible practice had prevailed with some heathens, even in the service of their idols. Dr. Wells.

31. Regard not them that have familiar spirits, &c.] Go not to consult them, nor follow their directions. It is uncertain what is exactly meant by the word "familiar spirits" in this place: it is supposed by some to allude to those who imposed on mankind, 35 ¶ Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment, in meteyard, in weight, or in measure.

36 ° Just balances, just † weights, a just ° Prov. 11. 1. & 16. 11. & 20. 10. the LORD your God, which brought you † Heb. stones. out of the land of Egypt.

37 Therefore shall ye observe all my statutes, and all my judgments, and do them: I am the LORD.

CHAP. XX.

¹ Of him that giveth of his seed to Molech. ⁴ Of him that favoureth such an one. ⁶ Of going to wizards. ⁷ Of sanctification. ⁹ Of him that curseth his parents. ¹⁰ Of adultery. ^{11, 14, 17, 19} Of incest. ¹³ Of sodomy. ¹⁵ Of bestiality. ¹⁸ Of uncleanness. ²² Obedience is required with holiness. ²⁷ Wizards must be put to death.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

² Again, thou shalt say to the children ^a Chap. 18. 21. of Israel, Whosoever he be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn in Israel, that giveth any of his seed unto Molech; he shall surely be put to death:

by pretending to have a spirit or demon speaking from within their bodies. Bp. Patrick.

— wizards.] Cunning or wise men, who pretended to tell what was not to be known by natural causes or ordinary means. Bp. Kidder. Fortunetellers, whose practices tended to create a distrust of Providence. Pyle. See the note on chap. xx. 27.

32. — rise up before the hoary head.] Most civilized people have shewn this mark of respect to age: the Lacedemonians in particular enacted that the same reverence should be paid to aged persons, as to fathers. Bp. Patrick. With remarkable solicitude the Law of Moses impresses reverence for the authority, and attention to the wants, of the aged, delivering as the direct command of Jehovah, "Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honour the face of the old man, and fear thy God: I am the Lord." How much praise have the Spartan institutions justly obtained for cherishing this principle! yet how much more energetic and authoritative is the language of the Jewish Lawgiver. Dr. Graves.

In this precept, the laws of nature and of nations conspire, as is very well known. This form of rising up to shew respect and reverence seems to have generally and at all times obtained. Of all the laws that should regulate men's deportment, in point of esteem and civility, to one another, that of Lyeurgus, in my opinion, says Ælian, is the most valuable and weighty, that young people should rise from their seats, and break the way, at the approach of the old. The giving place to the aged, and standing up before them, Plato mentions among other duties of young men; and Herodotus, Xenophon, &c. speak of this, as a decorum and duty constantly practised. Biblioth. Bibl.

36. — a just ephah, and a just hin.] Here put for all sorts of liquid and dry measures. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XX. ver. 2. — he shall surely be put to death.] One species of idolatry is marked with peculiar abhorrence in the Jewish Law, that of giving their seed unto Molech, or burning their sons and their daughters in the fire to their gods. This the Deity directs to be punished with death: if the punishment is neglected, He denounces that He will Himself execute vengeance, as well on the offender as on those who designedly suffered him to escape with impunity: thus marking with peculiar abhorrence

Before
CHRIST
1490.

the people of the land shall stone him with stones.

3 And I will set my face against that man, and will cut him off from among his people; because he hath given of his seed unto Molech, to defile my sanctuary, and to profane my holy name.

4 And if the people of the land do any ways hide their eyes from the man, when he giveth of his seed unto Molech, and kill him not:

5 Then I will set my face against that man, and against his family, and will cut him off, and all that go a whoring after him, to commit whoredom with Molech, from among their people.

6 ¶ And the soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits, and after wizards, to go a whoring after them, I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people.

^b Chap. 11.
44. & 19. 2.
1 Pet. 1. 16.

7 ¶ ^b Sanctify yourselves therefore, and be ye holy: for I am the LORD your God.

8 And ye shall keep my statutes, and do them: I am the LORD which sanctify you.

the execrable custom of human sacrifices, which to the disgrace of reason and humanity so long polluted the earth, even in nations and at periods, which we are accustomed to honour with the epithets of enlightened and civilized. Dr. Graves.

— shall stone him with stones.] The stoning with stones was the peculiar punishment denounced in this and some other cases, particularly adultery and blasphemy, chap. xxiv. 14. Bp. Patrick.

To be stoned to death, was a most grievous and terrible infliction. When the offender came within four cubits of the place of execution, he was stript, and his hands bound. The first executioners of the sentence were the witnesses, who generally pulled off their clothes for the purpose. In their turns, they each threw a large stone at his breast; and, if he was not despatched by these, all the people, that stood by, threw stones at him till he died. Lewis.

3. And I will set my face &c.] There are two cases, in which the offender here described might escape punishment; either the crime could not be legally proved, or the magistrate might be remiss in punishing. The Divine Lawgiver here obviates both, and declares that, in such cases, the offender shall suffer death by God's own hand, in an extraordinary manner. He supplies the first defect in these words, "I will set My face against &c." and the second at ver. 4, 5. Bp. Warburton.

— to defile my sanctuary.] It was a defilement of the sanctuary of God, and a profanation of His holy name, to prefer another place of sacrifice, and to pay divine honours to such abominable idols. Dr. Wells.

4. — if the people — hide their eyes from the man,] If they connive at what he does, and dissemble their knowledge of it. Bp. Patrick.

9. — every one that curseth his father or his mother] Every one that revileth or speaketh reproachfully of father or mother. Bp. Hall. See note on Deut. xxvii. 16.

One of the crimes which the Jewish law punished with peculiar severity, was disobedience to parents. "Every one that curseth his father or his mother shall be surely put to death." And again, "If a man have a stubborn and rebellious son, &c." See Deut. xxi. 18—21. Undoubtedly in thus enforcing filial obedi-

9 ¶ ^c For every one that curseth his father or his mother shall be surely put to death: he hath cursed his father or his mother; his blood shall be upon him.

10 ¶ And ^d the man that committeth adultery with another man's wife, even he that committeth adultery with his neighbour's wife, the adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death.

11 ^e And the man that lieth with his father's wife hath uncovered his father's nakedness: both of them shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

12 And if a man lie with his daughter in law, both of them shall surely be put to death: they have wrought confusion; their blood shall be upon them.

13 ^f If a man also lie with mankind, as ^g he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

14 And if a man take a wife and her mother, it is wickedness: they shall be

Before
CHRIST
1490.

^c Exod. 21.

17.

^d Prov. 20. 20.

Matt. 15. 4.

^e Deut. 22.

22.

John 8. 1.

^f Chap. 18.

8.

^g Chap. 18.

22.

ence, the Jewish law laid the foundation of every virtue. He who despises parental instruction, tramples on parental authority, and feels no gratitude for parental affection in his earlier years, will probably as his passions strengthen, and his depraved habits grow inveterate, trample on the authority of laws both human and divine, and requite with ingratitude all the benefits which man can confer, and all the blessings which the Divinity bestows. But in establishing this important principle, we see nothing harsh or overstrained: the parents have no such arbitrary authority as under the Roman law, which armed the father with the absolute right of life and death over his children, and even allowed him to sell them three times over: a power which lasted during their whole lives, or ended only with the third sale. Nor was such extreme parental power deemed unreasonable in Greece; where it was maintained, that the power of a father of a family over his slaves and children was absolute. On the contrary, in the Jewish law, all is just and moderate. The offence of cursing father or mother implies such hardened impiety, as well as such extreme contempt and malignity towards the authors of our existence, as strikes the heart with horror, and indicates the greatest moral depravity. Equally worthy of reprobation and punishment is persevering and obstinate stubbornness and rebellion, against that exercise of parental authority which would restrain drunkenness and debauchery: and when such disobedience was investigated by a solemn and public trial, and established by a judicial conviction, it surely merited infamy and death; so that "all Israel might hear and fear, and put away evil from among them." Dr. Graves. See note on Deut. xxi. 18.

— his blood shall be upon him.] He shall be guilty of his own death. Bp. Kidder. The peculiar meaning of this phrase is, he shall perish by his own fault, and therefore his blood, that is, his death, shall not be vindicated; the blood of an innocent man, who was slain, was said to be on the murderer, that is, was to be avenged. Bp. Patrick.

Our Saviour cites this law, in opposition to an evil practice of the Jews, at Matt. xv. 4; Mark vii. 10.

12. — they have wrought confusion;] They have perverted the order of nature which God hath appointed. Bp. Patrick.

^{Before}
CHRIST
1490. burnt with fire, both he and they; that there be no wickedness among you.

^{Chap. 18.}
^{23.} 15 ^g And if a man lie with a beast, he shall surely be put to death: and ye shall slay the beast.

16 And if a woman approach unto any beast, and lie down thereto, thou shalt kill the woman, and the beast: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

17 And if a man shall take his sister, his father's daughter, or his mother's daughter, and see her nakedness, and she see his nakedness; it is a wicked thing; and they shall be cut off in the sight of their people: he hath uncovered his sister's nakedness; he shall bear his iniquity.

^{Chap. 18.}
^{19.} 18 ^h And if a man shall lie with a woman having her sickness, and shall uncover her nakedness; he hath [†]discovered her fountain, and she hath uncovered the fountain of her blood: and both of them shall be cut off from among their people.

[†] Heb. made naked.

19 And thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister, nor of thy father's sister: for he uncovereth his near kin: they shall bear their iniquity.

20 And if a man shall lie with his uncle's wife, he hath uncovered his uncle's nakedness: they shall bear their sin; they shall die childless.

21 And if a man shall take his brother's wife, it is [†]an unclean thing: he hath uncovered his brother's nakedness; they shall be childless.

[†] Heb.
a separation.

^{Chap. 18.}
^{26.} 22 ¶ Ye shall therefore keep all my ⁱstatutes, and all my judgments, and do them:

18. And if a man &c.] This is to be understood of wilful and presumptuous acts: he that did the same unawares was not liable to the same severity, chap. xv. 24. Bp. Kidder.

20. — they shall die childless.] Some interpret this to mean that they shall not be suffered to live till they have children. It seems better to understand in the literal sense, that they shall not have any children, which are declared blessings by the Author of nature. Biblioth. Bibl.

25. Ye shall therefore put difference] We observe in every part of the law a wise provision for keeping the Israelites a separate people, by forbidding them to conform to the rites and customs of other people, and enjoining such a distinction of meats and sacrifices, as must prevent all intimacy between them, and in some instances create in the heathens an abhorrence of them; for they were commanded to abstain from meats which others ate, and to sacrifice and eat what others worshipped. This was the reason given for that command of clean or unclean creatures, by God Himself: and it is probable that for this very reason the law condescends to such little things, as the fashion of their dress, their beards, &c. that God might in every respect distinguish and make them known from all other people, and so prevent all mixture and confusion. Dr. T. Burnett.

27. A man also or woman that hath a familiar spirit, &c.] On the principle which pervades the whole Jewish law, of preserving the allegiance due to the Supreme Jehovah; resorting or pre-that the land, whither I bring you to dwell therein, ^kspue you not out.

^{Before} CHRIST
1490.

23 And ye shall not walk in the manners of the nation, which I cast out before you: for they committed all these things, and ^ltherefore I abhorred them.

^{Chap. 18.}
^{25.}

24 But I have said unto you, Ye shall inherit their land, and I will give it unto you to possess it, a land that floweth with milk and honey: I am the LORD your God, which have separated you from other people.

^{Deut. 9.}
^{5.}

25 ^mYe shall therefore put difference between clean beasts and unclean, and between unclean fowls and clean: and ye shall not make your souls abominable by beast, or by fowl, or by any manner of living thing that ⁿcreepeth on the ground, which I have separated from you as unclean.

^{Chap. 11.}
^{2.}
^{Deut. 14. 4.}

26 And ye shall be holy unto me: ⁿfor I the LORD am holy, and have severed you from other people, that ye should be mine.

^{Chap. 19.}
^{2. & 20. 7.}
^{1 Pet. 1. 16.}

27 ¶ ^oA man also or woman that hath a familiar spirit, or that is a wizard, shall surely be put to death: they shall stone them with stones: their blood shall be upon them.

^{Deut. 18.}
^{11.}
^{1 Sam. 28.}
^{7.}

CHAP. XXI.

1 Of the priests' mourning. 6 Of their holiness. 8 Of their estimation. 7, 13 Of their marriages. 17 The priests that have blemishes must not minister in the sanctuary.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Speak unto the priests the sons of Aaron, and say unto them, There shall none be defiled for the dead among his people:

2 But for his kin, that is near unto him, tending to resort to supernatural agency, in order to discover or control future events, as it implied a dependence on inferior spirits, was a violation of allegiance to the true and only God, who declared Himself the peculiar guardian of this people; ever ready to assist them in any distress, and communicate to them any necessary information as to futurity, when piously and humbly consulted according to the regulations of His law, Numb. vii. 89; and xxvii. 21, compared with Josh. ix. 14; Judg. i. 1; and 2 Sam. v. 23. Hence those, who had, as they asserted or supposed, "familiar spirits," those who practised "enchantments" or witchcraft, were to be punished with death. Dr. Graves.

Women have been generally more addicted to these arts and practices than men, and men are generally tender of the other sex, and willing to shew them mercy; on which account, women are distinctly mentioned in the wording of this law. Biblioth. Bibl.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. — There shall none be defiled for the dead] The priests, being specially dedicated to the service of God, were not to do any thing in administering about a dead body, which would make them legally unclean and polluted. An exception to the general rule is made (ver. 2) in the case of near relations. Bp. Patrick. On this point, both the Greeks and Romans copied from the Mosaic law. The Flamen Dialis, particularly, among the Romans, was never permitted to touch a corpse, or to come where the ashes of the dead were deposited: the 1490.

Before
CHRIST

that is, for his mother, and for his father, and for his son, and for his daughter, and for his brother,

3 And for his sister a virgin, that is nigh unto him, which hath had no husband; for her may he be defiled.

¶ Or, being an husband among his people, he shall not defile himself for his wife, &c.
* Chap. 19.
27.

4 But he shall not defile himself, || being a chief man among his people, to profane himself.

5 ^a They shall not make baldness upon their head, neither shall they shave off the corner of their beard, nor make any cuttings in their flesh.

6 They shall be holy unto their God, and not profane the name of their God: for the offerings of the Lord made by fire, and the bread of their God, they do offer: therefore they shall be holy.

7 They shall not take a wife that is a whore, or profane; neither shall they take a woman put away from her husband: for he is holy unto his God.

8 Thou shalt sanctify him therefore; for he offereth the bread of thy God: he shall be holy unto thee: for I the Lord, which sanctify you, am holy.

9 ¶ And the daughter of any priest, if Pontifex Maximus was not allowed so much as to look on a dead body. Biblioth. Bibl. The Jewish priests were forbidden (as the Hebrews say) to come within four cubits of a dead body, or to enter into the house where it lay. Lewis.

3. — which hath had no husband;] To take care of her funeral. Bp. Patrick.

4. — being a chief man among his people,] The Hebrew words admit of being translated “for a chief man among his people:” so the Vulgate, Syriack, and Arabick render it; and this sense seems preferable. Biblioth. Bibl.

5. They shall not make baldness &c.] After this manner the Egyptians annually worshipped Osiris. They shaved their heads, meaning to express their sorrow for the sad fate of their king, in despoiling their own heads of the ornament of their hair. They beat their breasts, tore the flesh off their arms, and ripped open the scars of wounds which they had given themselves the year before. Thus all the customs here forbidden obtained among the Egyptians and other nations, and were of an idolatrous nature, as practised by them in their mournings for the dead. Biblioth. Bibl.

— neither — shave off the corner of their beard,] After the manner of the idolatrous priests, who were used to shave their beards, and smite their cheeks, at the funeral of their friends. Nor was the high priest to “make cuttings in his flesh” with his nails or with a knife, or other sharp instruments, in imitation of the heathen, who by these rites thought to pacify the anger of the enraged deities. Lewis.

6. — the bread of their God,] The sacrifices are so called, as the altar was the table of God, whereon His provision, as their King, was laid, and consumed in the palace of His tabernacle. Bp. Patrick.

7. — a wife that is a whore, &c.] The priests were forbidden to marry a prostitute, or even a person of suspected chastity; also “a profane woman,” that is, one descended from persons of bad character, or born of such an union as is here forbidden to the priest; also a woman who had been divorced, because she was of suspected fame. Lewis.

8. Thou shalt sanctify him therefore;] Some suppose this pre-she profane herself by playing the whore, she profaneth her father: she shall be burnt with fire. Before

CHRIST
1490.

10 And he that is the high priest among his brethren, upon whose head the anointing oil was poured, and that is consecrated to put on the garments, shall not uncover his head, nor rend his clothes;

11 Neither shall he go in to any dead body, nor defile himself for his father, or for his mother;

12 Neither shall he go out of the sanctuary, nor profane the sanctuary of his God; for the crown of the anointing oil of his God is upon him: I am the Lord.

13 And he shall take a wife in her virginity.

14 A widow, or a divorced woman, or profane, or an harlot, these shall he not take: but he shall take a virgin of his own people to wife.

15 Neither shall he profane his seed among his people: for I the Lord do sanctify him.

16 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

17 Speak unto Aaron, saying, Whosocept directed to Moses and his successors in the supreme authority; others to the people, that, within their proper bounds, they should do all that in them lay to prevent such profanations as these, and keep any priests, who had thus actually disqualified themselves, from continuing to exercise their function till they had divorced such wives. Biblioth. Bibl.

9. — the daughter of any priest,] The particular severity of punishment on the priest's daughter might be enjoined, not only out of general regard to the dignity of the priesthood, but also to deter from the wicked usages of heathen priests, who were wont to prostitute their wives and daughters, even in their religious rites. Pyle.

10. — not uncover his head, nor rend his clothes;] The high priest especially was not to omit the duties of his office, by shewing signs of mourning, even on the occasion of the death of his nearest relations. By “uncovering his head,” is either meant the laying aside of his mitre, which is one of the holy garments, without which it was unlawful for him to officiate; or else the shaving of his head, which was a customary mode of expressing grief. Dr. Jennings.

— rend his clothes;] The Jews say, that they whose garments were torn by accident were as incapable of officiating as those who rent them by design. Lewis. The high priest, because he was a more eminent type of Christ, was to have an especial care of his sanctity. S. Clarke.

12. Neither shall he go out of the sanctuary,] The priest's constant observance of this law, not to leave the sanctuary at any time, till he had duly finished the service of it, did not a little tend to render both his office and his person more venerable. For when, in obedience and honour to God, he had such a command of himself as to let nothing interrupt him in the exercise of his office, and take him from it, neither ordinary business, nor extraordinary events of any kind; this discovered how serious and profound a reverence he bore to the sanctuary of his God. Dean Spencer.

15. Neither shall he profane his seed] That is, neither shall he vitiate or corrupt his posterity by foreign and forbidden mixtures in marriage. Bp. Kidder.

^{Before} CHRIST
1490.
¶ Or, food. ever he be of thy seed in their generations that hath any blemish, let him not approach to offer the || bread of his God.

^{b Chap. 22.}
^{23.} 18 For whatsoever man he be that hath a blemish, he shall not approach: a blind man, or a lame, or he that hath a flat nose, or any thing ^bsuperfluous,

19 Or a man that is brokenfooted, or brokenhanded,

|| Or, ^{too slender.} 20 Or crookbackt, or || a dwarf, or that hath a blemish in his eye, or be scurvy, or scabbed, or hath his stones broken;

21 No man that hath a blemish of the seed of Aaron the priest shall come nigh to offer the offerings of the LORD made by fire: he hath a blemish; he shall not come nigh to offer the bread of his God.

22 He shall eat the bread of his God, both of the most holy, and of the holy.

23 Only he shall not go in unto the vail, nor come nigh unto the altar, because he hath a blemish; that he profane not my sanctuaries: for I the LORD do sanctify them.

24 And Moses told it unto Aaron, and to his sons, and unto all the children of Israel.

CHAP. XXII.

¹ The priests in their uncleanness must abstain from the holy things. ⁶ How they shall be cleansed. ¹⁰ Who of the priest's house may eat of the holy things. ¹⁷ The sacrifices must be without blemish. ²⁶ The age of the sacrifice. ²⁹ The law of eating the sacrifice of thanksgiving.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron and to his sons, that they separate themselves from the holy things of the children of Israel, and

17. — that hath any blemish, &c.] The priests were required to be free from any blemish or defect of body, as well as possessed of a religious frame and habit of mind, which did but faintly represent the unexampled purity and perfections of our great High Priest, “who is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners,” having no such infirmity as the high priests of the law, which should make Him need to offer up sacrifice for any sins of His own, or daily ones for other people; but having made a full reconciliation by the sacrifice of Himself, and remaining perfect, and “consecrated for evermore.” Dr. Berriman.

Those who were deformed and ill favoured were excluded from the ministry, because the vulgar do not judge according to men's true worth and beauty, (which lie in the soul,) but according to their outward appearance, in the comeliness of their bodies, and the richness of their garments; and therefore the end of these precepts was, that the house of God might be had in due reverence and honour. Lewis.

22. He shall eat the bread of his God,] Though such a priest might not offer any sacrifice, yet he might eat with his brethren of that part of the sacrifices which was given to them for their portion; both, of “the most holy,” as meat offerings and sin that they profane not my holy name in those things which they hallow unto me: I ^{Before}

CHRIST
1490.
am the LORD.

3 Say unto them, Whosoever he be of all your seed among your generations, that goeth unto the holy things, which the children of Israel hallow unto the LORD, having his uncleanness upon him, that soul shall be cut off from my presence: I am the LORD.

4 What man soever of the seed of Aaron is a leper, or hath a †running issue; he shall not eat of the holy things, until he be clean. And ²whoso toucheth any thing that is unclean by the dead, or a man whose seed goeth from him;

5 Or whosoever toucheth any creeping thing, whereby he may be made unclean, or a man of whom he may take uncleanness, whatsoever uncleanness he hath;

6 The soul which hath touched any such shall be unclean until even, and shall not eat of the holy things, unless he wash his flesh with water.

7 And when the sun is down, he shall be clean, and shall afterward eat of the holy things; because it is his food.

8 ^b That which dieth of itself, or is torn ^bExod. 22.
with beasts, he shall not eat to defile himself therewith: I am the LORD. ^{31.}
^{Ezek. 44.}
^{31.}

9 They shall therefore keep mine ordinance, lest they bear sin for it, and die therefore, if they profane it: I the LORD do sanctify them.

10 There shall no stranger eat of the holy thing: a sojourner of the priest, or an hired servant, shall not eat of the holy thing.

11 But if the priest buy any soul †with his money, he shall eat of it, and he that

† Heb.
with the purchase of his money.

offerings; and “of the holy,” as the firstfruits, tithes, &c. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

Chap. XXII. ver. 2. — that they separate themselves from the holy things] That they do not presume to eat of them in the circumstances now to be mentioned. Biblioth. Bibl.

3. — having his uncleanness upon him,] The circumstance of the priests' being disqualified from ministering in, or even entering the sanctuary, by these impurities, which in themselves were merely legal and ritual, was one effectual means to preserve and cultivate, in the minds of men, worthy sentiments of the majesty of God, and all that preparation of the heart, with which it became them to approach His worship. Dean Spencer.

7. — because it is his food.] God was so gracious, as not to keep a priest any longer in a state, wherein he should want his necessary or comfortable sustenance. Bp. Patrick.

10. — no stranger] By “stranger” is here meant, one not of the priest's family; as also at ver. 12. By “a sojourner of the priest,” one who dwells in his house, but is not part of his family. Bp. Kidder.

11. — if the priest buy any soul] If he buy any person, either

Before CHRIST 1490. is born in his house: they shall eat of his meat.

† Heb. a man a stranger.

12 If the priest's daughter also be married unto † a stranger, she may not eat of an offering of the holy things.

Chap. 10. 14.

13 But if the priest's daughter be a widow, or divorced, and have no child, and is returned unto her father's house, as in her youth, she shall eat of her father's meat: but there shall no stranger eat thereof.

14 ¶ And if a man eat of the holy thing unwittingly, then he shall put the fifth part thereof unto it, and shall give it unto the priest with the holy thing.

15 And they shall not profane the holy things of the children of Israel, which they offer unto the LORD;

¶ Or, hide themselves with the iniquity of trespass in their eating.

16 Or || suffer them to bear the iniquity of trespass, when they eat their holy things: for I the LORD do sanctify them.

17 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

18 Speak unto Aaron, and to his sons, and unto all the children of Israel, and say unto them, Whatsoever he be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers in Israel, that will offer his oblation for all his vows, and for all his freewill offerings, which they will offer unto the LORD for a burnt offering;

19 Ye shall offer at your own will a male without blemish, of the beeves, of the sheep, or of the goats.

20 But whatsoever hath a blemish, that shall ye not offer: for it shall not be acceptable for you.

4 Deut. 15. 21. & 17. 1.

21 ^d And whosoever offereth a sacrifice of peace offerings unto the LORD to accomplish his vow, or a freewill offering in beeves or || sheep, it shall be perfect to be accepted; there shall be no blemish therein.

¶ Or, goats.

22 Blind, or broken, or maimed, or having a wen, or scurvy, or scabbed, ye shall not offer these unto the LORD, nor make an offering by fire of them upon the altar unto the LORD.

¶ Or, kid.

23 Either a bullock or a || lamb that hath any thing ^e superfluous or lacking in his parts, that mayest thou offer for a freewill offering; but for a vow it shall not be accepted. Before CHRIST 1490. Chap. 21. 18.

24 Ye shall not offer unto the LORD that which is bruised, or crushed, or broken, or cut; neither shall ye make any offering thereof in your land.

25 Neither from a stranger's hand shall ye offer the bread of your God of any of these; because their corruption is in them, and blemishes be in them: they shall not be accepted for you.

26 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

27 When a bullock, or a sheep, or a goat, is brought forth, then it shall be seven days under the dam; and from the eighth day and thenceforth it shall be accepted for an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

28 And whether it be cow or || ewe, ye shall not kill it ^f and her young both in one day. ¶ Or, she goat. Deut. 22. 6.

29 And when ye will offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving unto the LORD, offer it at your own will.

30 On the same day it shall be eaten up; ye shall leave ^g none of it until the morrow: I am the LORD. Chap. 7. 15.

31 Therefore shall ye keep my commandments, and do them: I am the LORD.

32 Neither shall ye profane my holy name; but ^h I will be hallowed among the children of Israel: I am the LORD which ³ hallow you, Chap. 10.

33 That brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am the LORD.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 The feasts of the Lord. 3 The sabbath. 4 The pass-over. 9 The sheaf of firstfruits. 15 The feast of Pentecost. 22 Gleanings to be left for the poor. 23 The feast of trumpets. 26 The day of atonement. 33 The feast of tabernacles.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, Concerning the feasts of the of another nation, or of their own nation, who was compelled by poverty to sell himself. Bp. Patrick.

16. — to bear the iniquity of trespass, &c.] That is, to fall under the punishment which God will inflict for their trespass, in eating things which do not appertain to them. Bp. Patrick.

23. — but for a vow &c.] Freewill offerings were different from vows, there being no obligation upon them to offer the former, as there was to offer the latter: and a less perfect animal would be accepted in the one case, though not in the other. Biblioth. Bibl.

28. — not kill it and her young both in one day.] In this and other instances of the Mosaic Law, the things mentioned, slight as they may appear, are condemned, because they carry an air of cruelty: and, if cruelty, and the appearance of it, or a tendency to it, was to be condemned even towards brutes, much more was compassion and pity due to men. Dr. Jortin.

Chap. XXIII. ver. 2. — Concerning the feasts] The Hebrew word should rather be translated "solemn assemblies:" for, under the name is comprehended the day of atonement, ver. 27, which 1490.

Before
CHRIST

^a Exod. 20.
⁹.
Deut. 5. 13.
Luka 13.
14.

^b Exod. 12.
18.
Numb. 28.
17.

|| Or,
handful.
† Heb.
an emer.

LORD, which ye shall proclaim to be holy convocations, even these are my feasts.

3 ^a Six days shall work be done: but the seventh day is the sabbath of rest, an holy convocation; ye shall do no work therein: it is the sabbath of the LORD in all your dwellings.

4 ¶ These are the feasts of the LORD, even holy convocations, which ye shall proclaim in their seasons.

5 ^b In the fourteenth day of the first month at even is the LORD's passover.

6 And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of unleavened bread unto the LORD: seven days ye must eat unleavened bread.

7 In the first day ye shall have an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

8 But ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD seven days: in the seventh day is an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

9 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye be come into the land which I give unto you, and shall reap the harvest thereof, then ye shall bring a || † sheaf of the firstfruits of your harvest unto the priest:

11 And he shall wave the sheaf before the LORD, to be accepted for you: on the morrow after the sabbath the priest shall wave it.

12 And ye shall offer that day when ye wave the sheaf an he lamb without blemish of the first year for a burnt offering unto the LORD.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

13 And the meat offering thereof shall be two tenth deals of fine flour mingled with oil, an offering made by fire unto the LORD for a sweet savour: and the drink offering thereof shall be of wine, the fourth part of an hin.

14 And ye shall eat neither bread, nor parched corn, nor green ears, until the selfsame day that ye have brought an offering unto your God: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

15 ¶ And ^c ye shall count unto you from the morrow after the sabbath, from the day that ye brought the sheaf of the wave offering; seven sabbaths shall be complete: ⁹ ^c Deut. 16.

16 Even unto the morrow after the seventh sabbath shall ye number fifty days; and ye shall offer a new meat offering unto the LORD.

17 Ye shall bring out of your habitations two wave loaves of two tenth deals: they shall be of fine flour; they shall be baked with leaven; they are the firstfruits unto the LORD.

18 And ye shall offer with the bread seven lambs without blemish of the first year, and one young bullock, and two rams: they shall be for a burnt offering unto the LORD, with their meat offering, and their drink offerings, even an offering made by fire, of sweet savour unto the LORD.

19 Then ye shall sacrifice one kid of the goats for a sin offering, and two lambs of was no feast, but a fast.—All that are mentioned in this chapter had been appointed in general before; the sabbath, Exod. xx; the passover, Exod. xii; the feast of weeks, and the feast of tabernacles, Exod. xxiii. 16; xxxiv. 22; and the day of atonement, Levit. xvi: the directions are here repeated with such additions as had not before been given. Pyle.

3. — do no work therein:] It is observable that, on the weekly sabbath, and on the day of expiation, they are commanded to do no work, verses 28, 30: on their other festivals they were to do "no servile work," that is, no laborious work, to which slaves are usually put. Bp. Kidder.

5. In the fourteenth day &c.] See notes at Exod. xii.

10. — ye shall bring a sheaf &c.] By this they were reminded of the bounty of God in His plentiful gifts of the fruits of the earth, and of their duty to offer up their prayers for His blessing on the next crop: they were also reminded of their dependence on Providence for the proper seasons of sowing, reaping, and ordering their land; since none of the product of that year was to be used, till the offering was made. From this homage and testimony of gratitude very probably did the Gentiles afterwards borrow their forms and rites of sacrificing to the deities, whom they supposed to preside over the fruits of their grounds, as Ceres, Pan, Bacchus, &c. Biblioth. Bibl.

11. — on the morrow after the sabbath] Not on the morrow after the ordinary sabbath of the week, but after the first day of the passover week, which was a sabbatick day. Bp. Patrick.

15. — seven sabbaths] Or seven whole weeks.

16. — shall ye number fifty days;] Hence this feast is styled in the New Testament, the feast of Pentecost, the word Pentecost signifying fiftieth in Greek. It is called "the feast of weeks," Exod. xxxiv. 22, because celebrated seven weeks, or a week of weeks, after the passover; "the feast of harvest," Exod. xxiii. 16, because the barley harvest, which began at the passover, ended at this time; "the day of the firstfruits," Numb. xxviii. 26, because, on that day, they were to offer "a new meat offering unto the Lord." See this chap. ver. 16, 17. The rabbies also call it, "the day of the giving of the law;" for it is the constant opinion of the Jews, that on this day, namely, on the fiftieth day of their departure from Egypt, the law was given on mount Sinai. This they collect from Exod. xix. 1. The more immediate design of this institution seems to have been, that they might thankfully acknowledge the goodness of God in giving them the fruits of the earth, and implore His further blessing, by offering to Him the firstfruits of their harvest; and it doubtless had a typical reference to the firstfruits of the Holy Spirit, and of converts to Christ, after the erection of the Gospel kingdom, by means of St. Peter's preaching on the day of Pentecost. Dr. Jennings.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

the first year for a sacrifice of peace offerings.

20 And the priest shall wave them with the bread of the firstfruits for a wave offering before the LORD, with the two lambs: they shall be holy to the LORD for the priest.

21 And ye shall proclaim on the selfsame day, that it may be an holy convocation unto you: ye shall do no servile work therein: it shall be a statute for ever in all your dwellings throughout your generations.

Chap. 19.
2.

22 ¶ And ^a when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not make clean riddance of the corners of thy field when thou reapest, ^c neither shalt thou gather any gleanings of thy harvest: thou shalt leave them unto the poor, and to the stranger: I am the LORD your God.

Deut. 24.
19.

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

Numb.
29. 1.

24 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, In the ^c seventh month, in the first day of the month, shall ye have a sabbath, a memorial of blowing of trumpets, an holy convocation.

25 Ye shall do no servile work therein: but ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

Chap. 16.
20.
Numb. 29.
7.

26 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

27 ^s Also on the tenth day of this seventh month there shall be a day of atonement: it shall be an holy convocation unto you; and ye shall afflict your souls, and offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

28 And ye shall do no work in that same day: for it is a day of atonement, to make an atonement for you before the LORD your God.

29 For whatsoever soul it be that shall not be afflicted in that same day, he shall be cut off from among his people.

30 And whatsoever soul it be that doeth any work in that same day, the same soul will I destroy from among his people.

31 Ye shall do no manner of work: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

32 It shall be unto you a sabbath of rest, and ye shall afflict your souls: in the ninth day of the month at even, from even unto even, shall ye [†] celebrate your sabbath.

† Heb. rest.

33 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

34 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, ^b The fifteenth day of this seventh month shall be the feast of tabernacles for seven days unto the LORD.

^b Numb.
29. 12.
John 7. 37.

35 On the first day shall be an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

36 Seven days ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD: on the eighth

21. — ye shall do no servile work therein:] Perhaps one day only was appointed at this feast, to be free from all servile work, because of the important business of wheat harvest, which was then coming on, and could not permit to them so much leisure, as when the fruits were all gathered. Bp. Patrick.

24. — a memorial of blowing of trumpets.] This festival was called the feast of trumpets; and, as Scripture no where assigns the reason of this festival and of the blowing of trumpets upon it, the learned are very much divided about it. Maimonides thinks it was instituted to awaken the people to repentance, against the annual fast, or great day of expiation, which followed nine days after. Other Jews make the blowing of the trumpet a memorial of Isaac's deliverance by means of the ram, which was substituted for sacrifice in his stead, on which account, they say, the trumpets now sounded were made of rams' horns. Some Christian fathers make the sounding of the trumpets on this day, to be a memorial of the giving of the Law at mount Sinai, which was attended with the sound of the trumpet. But the opinion more generally embraced is, that it was a memorial of the creation of the world, which is supposed, not without reason, to have taken place at this season of the year. Accordingly, this seventh month was not only anciently, but is still, reckoned by the Jews the first month of the year. Thus the feast of trumpets was indeed the new year's day, on which the people were solemnly called upon to rejoice in a grateful remembrance of all God's benefits to them, through the last year, as well as to implore His blessing upon them for the ensuing year, which was partly the intention of the sacrifices on this day offered. Dr. Jennings.

32. — in the ninth day — at even.] The tenth day was the day of atonement, ver. 27, but they were to begin to observe it before sunset on the ninth. Bp. Patrick. Respecting this day, see notes on chap. xvi.

34. — the feast of tabernacles.] This feast was so called from their being commanded to dwell in tabernacles or booths, during the celebration of it, ver. 42; also called "the feast of ingathering," Exod. xxiii. 16, because, at this season, the whole harvest, not only of the corn, but also of the vintage and other fruits, for which they were to express their thankfulness to God at this feast, was completed. It is expressly stated that the seven days, ver. 42, 43, were in commemoration of their dwelling in tents in the wilderness for forty years: the eighth day was not so properly a part of the feast of tabernacles, as another distinct feast which followed immediately after, according to the account in Nehem. viii. 18: this eighth day therefore was properly the feast of ingathering, on which they were to give thanks for their whole harvest, Deut. xvi. 13—16. It has been variously conjectured, why the commemoration of their dwelling in tents was fixed for this season of the year. Some have supposed that the season was selected, because the people could dwell in tents with least inconvenience: others, that this was the time when Moses came down a second time from the mount, after the sin of the golden calf. The learned Jos. Mede's opinion seems to be the most probable, as well as the most ingenious, namely, that this feast was affixed to the time of year when Christ was to be born, and the dwelling in tabernacles was intended as a type of His incarnation, as St. John intimates, John i. 14, "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt," or tabernacled, "among us." Dr. Jennings.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

† Heb. day of restraint.

day shall be an holy convocation unto you; and ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it is a † solemn assembly; and ye shall do no servile work therein.

37 These are the feasts of the LORD, which ye shall proclaim to be holy convocations, to offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD, a burnt offering, and a meat offering, a sacrifice, and drink offerings, every thing upon his day:

38 Beside the sabbaths of the LORD, and beside your gifts, and beside all your vows, and beside all your freewill offerings, which ye give unto the LORD.

39 Also in the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when ye have gathered in the fruit of the land, ye shall keep a feast unto the LORD seven days: on the first day shall be a sabbath, and on the eighth day shall be a sabbath.

† Heb.
fruit.

40 And ye shall take you on the first day the † boughs of goodly trees, branches of palm trees, and the boughs of thick trees, and willows of the brook; and ye shall rejoice before the LORD your God seven days.

41 And ye shall keep it a feast unto the LORD seven days in the year. It shall be a statute for ever in your generations: ye shall celebrate it in the seventh month.

42 Ye shall dwell in booths seven days; all that are Israelites born shall dwell in booths:

43 That your generations may know that I made the children of Israel to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God. Before CHRIST

1490.

44 And Moses declared unto the children of Israel the feasts of the LORD.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 The oil for the lamps. 5 The shewbread. 10 Shelomith's son blasphemeth. 13 The law of blasphemy. 17 Of murder. 18 Of damage. 23 The blasphemer is stoned.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Command the children of Israel, that they bring unto thee pure oil olive beaten for the light, † to cause the lamps to burn continually. † Heb. to cause to ascend.

3 Without the vail of the testimony, in the tabernacle of the congregation, shall Aaron order it from the evening unto the morning before the LORD continually: it shall be a statute for ever in your generations.

4 He shall order the lamps upon ^a the pure candlestick before the LORD continually. ^a Exod. 31. 8.

5 ¶ And thou shalt take fine flour, and bake twelve ^b cakes thereof: two tenth deals shall be in one cake. ^b Exod. 25. 30.

6 And thou shalt set them in two rows, six on a row, upon the pure table before the LORD.

7 And thou shalt put pure frankincense upon each row, that it may be on the bread for a memorial, even an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

40. — boughs of goodly trees,] It is evident from Nehem. viii. 15, that they cut these branches to make booths or tents, and not to carry in their hands, though it is probable that, in aftertimes, the carrying branches in their hands might be thought a fit expression of rejoicing. The Hebrew word for "boughs" signifies also "fruit," as is noted in the margin: whence some interpret "boughs of fruitbearing trees," or boughs with their fruit. They were also to be boughs of "thick trees," that is, of thick leaved trees; trees whose boughs and leaves grew thick together. Bp. Patrick.

— and ye shall rejoice &c.] It was not intended that we should pass our religious festivals in sullen retirement, shunning human converse, or affecting each other with melancholy. The Jews were bidden to "rejoice" in their feasts "before the Lord their God," Deut. xii. 12, 18; xvi. 11; xxvii. 7. Christians are bidden to "rejoice in the Lord alway," Phil. iv. 4. And a very ancient father, Tertullian, informs us, that on a Sunday, for so he calls it, they gave way peculiarly to religious joy; as well they might, since He who "died for our sins, then rose for our justification." Indeed, would we but practise Christianity as we ought, we should find its promises of pardon and strength, its beneficial precepts, and glorious prospects, the assurance of God's love to us, and the exertion of our own love to Him and our fellow-creatures, matter of the highest joy, both within ourselves, and amongst each other. Abp. Secker.

Chap. XXIV. ver. 2. Command the children of Israel,] As the daily service of the tabernacle was to be provided for at the cost of all the Israelites, the command is here addressed to them all generally. They are now reminded of what had been before enjoined at Exod. xxvii. 20, &c.

5. — twelve cakes] Called the bread of the presence, which we translate shewbread, at Exod. xxv. 30. It was intended for "a memorial," ver. 7, that is, for an acknowledgment of the goodness and sovereignty of God; "being taken from the children of Israel by an everlasting covenant," ver. 8, that is, being provided at the charge of the children of Israel, by virtue of a command (which they had all agreed to observe) requiring the shewbread to be always set before the Lord. Bp. Patrick. These loaves of shewbread were about the size of peck loaves. They were taken off by the priests, and eaten, at the end of every week, and new ones set in their places. It is probable that, in the wilderness, they made them of flour from the manna which fell. Dr. Wall.

— two tenth deals] That is, two omers: being the quantity which each Israelite gathered of manna for every sabbath, whilst they sojourned in the wilderness; whence learned men have observed, that both the measure and the time were designed to put the Israelites in mind of their sustenance there. Biblioth. Bibl.

7. — an offering made by fire] Since the frankincense set upon the bread, as a part of what was offered to God on this table,

Before
CHRIST
1490.

8 Every sabbath he shall set it in order before the LORD continually, being taken from the children of Israel by an everlasting covenant.

^c Exod. 29.
33.
chap. 8. 31.
Matt. 12.
1, 5.

9 And 'it shall be Aaron's and his sons'; and they shall eat it in the holy place: for it is most holy unto him of the offerings of the LORD made by fire by a perpetual statute.

10 ¶ And the son of an Israelitish woman, whose father was an Egyptian, went out among the children of Israel: and this son of the Israelitish woman and a man of Israel strove together in the camp;

11 And the Israelitish woman's son blasphemed the name of the LORD, and cursed. And they brought him unto Moses: (and his mother's name was Shelomith, the daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan:)

⁴ Numb.
15. 34.
† Heb.

to expound unto them according to the mouth of the LORD.

12 And they ^d put him in ward, [†] that the mind of the LORD might be shewed them.

13 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

^c Deut. 13.
9. & 17. 7.

14 Bring forth him that hath cursed without the camp; and let all that heard him ^e lay their hands upon his head, and let all the congregation stone him.

15 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, Whosoever curseth his God shall bear his sin.

16 And he that blasphemeth the name of the LORD, he shall surely be put to death, and all the congregation shall certainly stone him: as well the stranger, as he that is born in the land, when he blasphemeth the name of the LORD, shall be put to death.

17 ¶ ^f And he that [†] killeth any man shall surely be put to death.

18 And he that killeth a beast shall make it good; [†] beast for beast.

19 And if a man cause a blemish in his neighbour; as ^g he hath done, so shall it be done to him;

20 Breach for breach, eye for eye, tooth for tooth: as he hath caused a blemish in a man, so shall it be done to him again.

21 And he that killeth a beast, he shall restore it: and he that killeth a man, he shall be put to death.

22 Ye shall have ^h one manner of law, as well for the stranger, as for one of your own country: for I am the LORD your God.

23 ¶ And Moses spake to the children of Israel, that they should bring forth him that had cursed out of the camp, and stone him with stones. And the children of Israel did as the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAP. XXV.

1 The sabbath of the seventh year. 8 The jubile in the fiftieth year. 14 Of oppression. 18 A blessing of obedience. 23 The redemption of land. 29 Of houses. 35 Compassion of the poor. 39 The usage of bondmen. 47 The redemption of servants.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in mount Sinai, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the which was really an altar, was burnt; it might be called "an offering made by fire." Biblioth. Bibl.

10. — whose father was an Egyptian.] The father was probably one who came out from Egypt with the Israelites, and had become a proselyte to their religion. Dr. Wells.

12. — that the mind of the Lord might be shewed them.] The words in the Hebrew are, as the margin states, "to expound unto them (namely, by Moses) according to the mouth of the Lord," that is, as the Lord should declare unto them. Bp. Patrick.

14. — let all that heard him &c.] The persons who heard him were to lay their hands on him, as an open testimony to the truth of their evidence, and the justice of his condemnation. Pyle. The punishment here recorded of these sins of blasphemy and cursing is very remarkable, and ought to inspire us with a great horror for such sins, of which the punishment will ever be most severe. Bp. Wilson.

16. And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lord, &c.] On the principle of preserving the allegiance due to the Supreme Jehovah, the blasphemer, and the deliberate presumptuous "sabbath-breaker," and the "false prophet," as they openly shook off all reverence for the Lord, were to suffer death, Numb. xv. 32; Deut. xvii. 12; xviii. 20. Dr. Graves.

— as well the stranger, &c.] As God was, in a strict and political sense, the proper God and sovereign Prince of Israel, strangers and aliens were, in all reason, to be as much obliged to observe this law, and under the same penalties, as the Israelites themselves. Biblioth. Bibl.

19. — as he hath done, so shall it be done to him;] The offences punished capitally by the Jewish law were idolatry, and various crimes connected with it, impurity, presumptuous disobedience to parents and chief magistrates, and murder: perhaps to these we ought to add that of bearing false witness in a case, where the life of the accused was at stake; for in all instances the punishment to be inflicted on the false witness was the same as the mischief that would have followed, had his testimony been received as true. In all the other penal laws of the Mosaic code there prevails a constant spirit of mildness and equity, I believe, unequalled in any other system of jurisprudence, ancient or modern. Personal violence and assault were punished by damages, or by retaliating on the offender a punishment similar to the injury his violence had inflicted, as the judges should determine. I cannot but notice here, how strangely the Jews perverted this principle of retaliation, recognised by their law: and how obstinately some moderns choose to misunderstand it; as if it authorized the retaliation of injury by the arm of individuals, and made each man a judge and an avenger in his own cause: a principle altogether foreign to the meaning of the legislator. In every instance where this principle is applied, a legal tribunal was to ascertain, and the public executive power to inflict, the punishment. Dr. Graves.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

^f Exod. 21.
12.
Deut. 19.

21.
† Heb. smiteth the life of a man.

† Heb. life for life.

^g Exod. 21.
24.

Deut. 19.
21.

Matt. 5. 38.

^h Exod. 17.
49.

1491.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

† Heb. rest.
Exod. 23.
10.

land which I give you, then shall the land keep ^a a sabbath unto the LORD.

3 Six years thou shalt sow thy field, and six years thou shalt prune thy vineyard, and gather in the fruit thereof;

4 But in the seventh year shall be a sabbath of rest unto the land, a sabbath for the LORD: thou shalt neither sow thy field, nor prune thy vineyard.

† Heb.
of thy separations.

5 That which groweth of its own accord of thy harvest thou shalt not reap, neither gather the grapes [†] of thy vine undressed: for it is a year of rest unto the land.

6 And the sabbath of the land shall be meat for you; for thee, and for thy servant, and for thy maid, and for thy hired servant, and for thy stranger that sojourneth with thee,

7 And for thy cattle, and for the beast that are in thy land, shall all the increase thereof be meat.

8 ¶ And thou shalt number seven sabbaths of years unto thee, seven times seven years; and the space of the seven sabbaths of years shall be unto thee forty and nine years.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

9 Then shalt thou cause the trumpet [†] of the jubile to sound on the tenth day of the seventh month, in the day of atonement shall ye make the trumpet sound throughout all your land.

† Heb.
loud of sound.

10 And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof: it shall be a jubile unto you; and ye shall return every man unto his possession, and ye shall return every man unto his family.

11 A jubile shall that fiftieth year be unto you: ye shall not sow, neither reap that which groweth of itself in it, nor gather the grapes in it of thy vine undressed.

12 For it is the jubile; it shall be holy unto you: ye shall eat the increase thereof out of the field.

Chap. XXV. ver. 2. — then shall the land keep a sabbath] The land in this seventh year was to have rest from being tilled or sown. They were to subsist on that “which groweth of its own accord,” ver. 5, namely, that which sprang from seed accidentally sown, or from roots left in the ground; and this they were not to “reap” for the purpose of laying up in store, but were to gather for their daily use, the owner of the land sharing in common with others, and none laying up separate stores for themselves. Bp. Patrick, Pyle. It is remarkable that this law, though given to the Israelites, with the rest of the Mosaic precepts, forty years before their entrance into Canaan, was not to take place till they had actual possession of the land of promise; “When ye come into the land &c.” Dr. Berriman.

The peculiar observances of this sabbatical year were a total cessation from all manner of agriculture; the leaving all the spontaneous product of the ground to be used and enjoyed in common, so that no person was to claim any peculiar property; the remission of all debts from one Israelite to another, and the public reading of the law at the feast of tabernacles. As to the general reason, on which the law concerning the sabbatical year was grounded, it was no doubt partly political and civil, to prevent the land from being worn out by continual tilling; partly religious, to afford the poor and labouring people more leisure, one year in seven, to attend to devotional exercises; and partly mystical, typifying that spiritual rest, which Christ will give to all who come unto Him. Dr. Jennings.

4. — in the seventh year shall be a sabbath &c.] There are some particulars commanded in the law of Moses which it is evident that Moses, at the time when he enjoined them, knew might be fatal to the welfare of the people, if God did not interpose, and by an especial Providence preserve them from the evils, which obedience to those commands might bring upon them. Among these, is the command not to sow or till their lands every seventh year. This must, ordinarily speaking, have brought upon them many inconveniences, as it required them to lose at once a whole year's produce of their country. But, to prevent these inconveniences, a most extraordinary produce was promised all over the land, ver. 21, on the year before they were to begin their neglect of harvest and tillage. How can any one imagine that Moses would ever have thought of obliging the Israelites by such a law as this, if God had not really given a particular command respecting it? or that the Israelites would have been so weak as to obey such pernicious instructions, if they had not sufficient evidence that the command came from God? Or, if they had been so romantick as to obey such an institution, without an especial Providence to protect and preserve them from the consequences which would naturally arise from it; would not a few years' trial have given them a dear-bought experience of so great folly? If any proof can be wanting of the Divine origin of the laws given by Moses, that proof is abundantly supplied by these reflections on this, and some other, of the Mosaic appointments. Shuckford.

— thou shalt neither sow thy field,] The sabbath day was a rest from the labours, laid upon man for sin. The sabbath year was a rest for the ground, which for man's sin God had cursed. Biblioth. Bibl.

6. — the sabbath of the land shall be meat for you;] By sabbath is here meant the produce that grew of itself in the sabbatical year. Bp. Patrick.

10. — it shall be a jubile unto you;] The word “jubilee” is derived from a Hebrew word, which signifies the blast of a trumpet; the year of jubilee being proclaimed by a trumpet, ver. 9. Parkhurst. The proclamation took place on the day of atonement, ver. 9; a fit time of shewing mercy to others, when they received pardon from God. Bp. Kidder. On this occasion, liberty was proclaimed to “all the inhabitants.” Every man, who from poverty had sold his house or field, “returned unto his possession,” and every man, who had become a servant or slave, returned in freedom to his family. Bp. Patrick.

The design of the law respecting the jubilee was partly political, and partly typical. It was political, inasmuch as it tended to prevent the too great oppression of the poor, as well as to save them from perpetual slavery: also to prevent the too great accumulation of land among the rich, and to preserve the distinction of tribes, in respect both to their families and possessions. The typical use of the jubilee is pointed out by the Prophet Isaiah at chap. lxi. 1, 2; in which passage “the acceptable year of the Lord,” when “liberty was proclaimed to the captives,” and “the opening of the prison to them that are bound,” evidently refers to the jubilee; but, in the prophetic sense, means the Gospel state and dispensation, which proclaims spiritual liberty from the bondage of sin and Satan, and the liberty of returning to our own possession, even the heavenly inheritance, to which, having incurred a forfeiture by sin, we had lost all right and claim. Dr. Jennings.

When Isaiah describes the office of the promised Messiah, he does it by an allusion to the year of jubilee, which by express command was celebrated on the periodical return of every fiftieth year; in which, according to the provision of the law, liberty was proclaimed throughout the land of Judea unto all the inhabitants;

Before
CHRIST
1491.

13 In the year of this jubile ye shall return every man unto his possession.

14 And if thou sell ought unto thy neighbour, or buyest ought of thy neighbour's hand, ye shall not oppress one another :

15 According to the number of years after the jubile thou shalt buy of thy neighbour, and according unto the number of years of the fruits he shall sell unto thee :

16 According to the multitude of years thou shalt increase the price thereof, and according to the fewness of years thou shalt diminish the price of it : for according to the number of the years of the fruits doth he sell unto thee.

17 Ye shall not therefore oppress one another ; but thou shalt fear thy God : for I am the Lord your God.

18 ¶ Wherefore ye shall do my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them ; and ye shall dwell in the land in safety.

19 And the land shall yield her fruit, and ye shall eat your fill, and dwell therein in safety.

20 And if ye shall say, What shall we eat the seventh year ? behold, we shall not sow, nor gather in our increase :

21 Then I will command my blessing upon you in the sixth year, and it shall bring forth fruit for three years.

22 And ye shall sow the eighth year, and eat yet of old fruit until the ninth year ; until her fruits come in ye shall eat of the old store.

23 ¶ The land shall not be sold ||† for ever ; for the land is mine ; for ye are strangers and sojourners with me.

24 And in all the land of your possession ye shall grant a redemption for the land.

25 ¶ If thy brother be waxen poor, and hath sold away some of his possession, and if any of his kin come to redeem it, then shall he redeem that which his brother sold.

26 And if the man have none to redeem it, and †himself be able to redeem it ;

27 Then let him count the years of the sale thereof, and restore the overplus unto the man to whom he sold it ; that he may return unto his possession.

28 But if he be not able to restore it to him, then that which is sold shall remain in the hand of him that hath bought it until the year of jubile : and in the jubile it shall go out, and he shall return unto his possession.

29 And if a man sell a dwelling house in a walled city, then he may redeem it within a whole year after it is sold ; within a full year may he redeem it.

30 And if it be not redeemed within the space of a full year, then the house that is in the walled city shall be established for ever to him that bought it throughout his generations : it shall not go out in the jubile.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

|| Or, to be quite cut off.
† Heb.
for cutting off.

† Heb.
his hand hath attained and found sufficiency.

and every man returned into his own possession, and into his own family ; and a general redemption of property took place. And that the reference which this temporal redemption on every year of jubilee had to that spiritual redemption which was in the fulness of time to be effected by our great Redeemer, might not escape observation ; it was commanded, that the trumpet which was to give notice of the returning celebration of this joyful year, should be sounded on the great day of atonement ; on that day, when the high priest under the law was engaged in sprinkling before the mercy seat in the Holy of Holies, the type of that precious blood, which was in the fulness of time to be offered up by our great High Priest under the Gospel, for the redemption of the world. Archdeacon Daubeny.

13. — ye shall return every man unto his possession.] By appointing that, on the year of jubilee, the owner of estates which had been sold, should return to his possession, and that every Israelitish slave should be at perfect liberty to return to his family, God wisely provided for the suppression of luxury, cruelty, and ambition, for the preservation of a perfect distinction of tribes, families, and genealogies, and chiefly for ascertaining the descent of the future Messiah, whose more eminent deliverance wrought for all mankind, was shadowed out by the privileges bestowed upon the Israelites in the year of jubilee. Pyle. The uses of this provision were, 1st, to prevent the confusion of the tribes by the alienation of their lands : 2dly, to prevent the rich from swallowing the inheritance of their poor brethren : 3dly, to make them still look upon themselves as sojourners, and their land to be God's. Dr. S. Clarke. By this law of jubilee, which prescribed that every one, who could justify his pedigree, should be reinstated in the possessions of his ancestors every fifty years, God obliged the people of Israel to keep up a distinct knowledge of the first division of land made under Joshua, much more effectually than if He had made a law for that very purpose ; also to preserve regular genealogies of their tribes and families. Dean Allix.

17. — but thou shalt fear thy God :] This sentence plainly implies that it is from the want of "the fear of God," that men oppress one another. Bp. Sanderson.

23. — shall not be sold for ever :] The Hebrew expression means literally, "shall not be sold so as to be quite cut off," that is, from the original possessors. For, (says God,) "the land is mine, &c." I am to be deemed proprietor and lord in chief, and ye are tenants, to hold the land as I think fit. Dr. Wells.

24. — ye shall grant a redemption] Ye shall allow to the first owner, or to his kinsman, the power of redeeming the land before the year of jubilee, if he be rich enough to effect the redemption. Bp. Patrick.

30. — it shall not go out] The reason of this exception seems to be, either that cities might be better filled with inhabitants, who were invited thither when they had hopes of a settlement, or that proselytes, who were not of the Hebrew nation, and could have no fields or vineyards, might yet have something of their own, stable and certain, and not be forced always to want a perpetual possession. Lewis.

One part of the regulation, respecting the release in the year of jubilee, deserves our notice : it did not extend to houses in cities ; these, if not redeemed within one year after they were sold, were alienated for ever. This circumstance must have given property in the country a decided preference over property in cities ; and induced every Jew to reside on and improve his land, and employ his time in the care of flocks and agriculture : which, as they had 1491.

Before
CHRIST

† Heb. redemption
belongeth unto it.

|| Or, one of the Levites redeem them.

† Heb. his hand
faileth.
† Heb.
strengthen.

^b Exod. 22.
25.
Deut. 23.
19.
Prov. 28. 8.
Ezek. 18. 8.
& 22. 12.

^c Exod. 21.
2.
Deut. 15.
12.
Jer. 34. 14.
† Heb. serve thyself
with him with the service, &c.

31 But the houses of the villages which have no wall round about them shall be counted as the fields of the country: † they may be redeemed, and they shall go out in the jubile.

32 Notwithstanding the cities of the Levites, and the houses of the cities of their possession, may the Levites redeem at any time.

33 And if || a man purchase of the Levites, then the house that was sold, and the city of his possession, shall go out in the year of jubile: for the houses of the cities of the Levites are their possession among the children of Israel.

34 But the field of the suburbs of their cities may not be sold; for it is their perpetual possession.

35 ¶ And if thy brother be waxen poor, and † fallen in decay with thee; then thou shalt † relieve him: yea, though he be a stranger, or a sojourner; that he may live with thee.

36 ^b Take thou no usury of him, or increase: but fear thy God; that thy brother may live with thee.

37 Thou shalt not give him thy money upon usury, nor lend him thy victuals for increase.

38 I am the LORD your God, which brought you forth out of the land of Egypt, to give you the land of Canaan, and to be your God.

39 ¶ And ^c if thy brother that dwelleth by thee be waxen poor, and be sold unto thee; thou shalt not † compel him to serve as a bondservant:

40 But as an hired servant, and as a sojourner, he shall be with thee, and shall serve thee unto the year of jubile:

41 And then shall he depart from thee, both he and his children with him, and shall return unto his own family, and unto the possession of his fathers shall he return.

42 For they are my servants, which I brought forth out of the land of Egypt: they shall not be sold † as bondmen.

43 ^d Thou shalt not rule over him with rigour; but shalt fear thy God.

44 Both thy bondmen, and thy bondmaids, which thou shalt have, shall be of the heathen that are round about you; of them shall ye buy bondmen and bondmaids.

45 Moreover of the children of the strangers that do sojourn among you, of them shall ye buy, and of their families that are with you, which they begat in your land: and they shall be your possession.

46 And ye shall take them as an inheritance for your children after you, to inherit them for a possession; † they shall be your bondmen for ever: but over your brethren the children of Israel, ye shall not rule one over another with rigour.

47 ¶ And if a sojourner or stranger † wax rich by thee, and thy brother that dwelleth by him wax poor, and sell himself unto the stranger or sojourner by thee, or to the stock of the stranger's family:

48 After that he is sold he may be redeemed again; one of his brethren may redeem him:

49 Either his uncle, or his uncle's son, may redeem him, or any that is nigh of kin unto him of his family may redeem him; or if he be able, he may redeem himself.

50 And he shall reckon with him that bought him from the year that he was sold to him unto the year of jubile: and the price of his sale shall be according unto the number of years, according to the time of an hired servant shall it be with him.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

† Heb. with the sale of a bondman.
^e Ephes. 6.
9.
Col. 4. 1.

† Heb.
ye shall serve yourselves with them.

† Heb.
his hand obtain, &c.

been the occupation of those revered Patriarchs, from whom the Jews descended, were with them the most honourable of all employments. Dr. Graves.

34. — the field of the suburbs — may not be sold;] The houses which belonged to the particular Levites might be alienated for a time, and they not suffer much by it: but, as the fields of the suburbs were common to the whole body of the Levites, they would have been undone, if they had wanted pasture for their flocks, on which their whole subsistence depended. Bp. Patrick.

36. Take thou no usury of him, or increase:] Usury is understood to mean that which is taken for money lent; and increase, that which is received for the use of corn, fruits, or goods: both these oppressions are forbidden by the Law, which is so strictly interpreted by some Jews, that all Israelites are required to have no hand in letting out money to usury, either by writing the bonds, or being a witness to them, or by being bound with others for the interest of their money. The foundation of this precept was, to impress upon them the great virtue of kindness and clemency, whereby poor people, being assisted by this gratuitous method of lending them money, might raise themselves into a better condition under the blessing of Divine Providence. Lewis.

— that thy brother may live with thee.] It is palpable wickedness to demand exorbitant interest for lending to ignorant or thoughtless persons; or to extravagant ones, for carrying on their extravagance; or to necessitous ones, whose necessities it must continually increase, and make their ruin, after a while, more certain, more difficult to retrieve, and more hurtful to all with whom they are concerned. The Scripture hath particularly forbidden it in the last case, and enjoined a very different sort of behaviour. Abp. Secker.

39. — as a bondservant:] That is, as a slave bought from other nations; over whom the dominion of the Israelites was as complete as over their cattle. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

51 If there be yet many years behind, according unto them he shall give again the price of his redemption out of the money that he was bought for.

52 And if there remain but few years unto the year of jubile, then he shall count with him, and according unto his years shall he give him again the price of his redemption.

53 And as a yearly hired servant shall he be with him: and the other shall not rule with rigour over him in thy sight.

|| Or,
by these means.

54 And if he be not redeemed || in these years, then he shall go out in the year of jubile, both he, and his children with him.

55 For unto me the children of Israel are servants; they are my servants whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt: I am the Lord your God.

CHAP. XXVI.

1 Of idolatry. 2 Religiousness. 3 A blessing to them that keep the commandments. 4 A curse to those that break them. 40 God promiseth to remember them that repent.

* Exod. 20.
4.
Deut. 5. 8.
& 16. 22.
Psalm. 97. 7.
|| Or,
pillar.
|| Or, figured stone.
† Heb.
a stone of picture.
|| Chap. 19.
30. c Deut. 28.
1.

YE shall make you ^a no idols nor graven image, neither rear you up a || standing image, neither shall ye set up any || † image of stone in your land, to bow down unto it: for I am the LORD your God.

2 ¶ ^b Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary: I am the LORD.

3 ¶ ^c If ye walk in my statutes, and keep my commandments, and do them;

4 Then I will give you rain in due season, and the land shall yield her increase, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruit.

54. — if he be not redeemed in these years,] Or, “by these means,” as in the margin; that is, if he be not redeemed by his own money, or by that of his kinsman. Bp. Kidder.

— he shall go out in the year of jubile,] For it would have been an unequal proceeding, if the Hebrews, sold to proselytes, had been discharged from their service so soon, when the children of proselytes, sold to Hebrews, were to be their inheritance for ever. It was more reasonable that the Hebrews sold to proselytes should not be free till the year of jubilee, unless redeemed: by which law also they were made more careful not to sell themselves to strangers. Selden.

Chap. XXVI. ver. 1. — no idols &c.] The Hebrew means literally, “things of nought”—mere empty vanities. By “standing image” seems meant properly “a pillar” for religious worship; and by “image of stone,” carved or figured stone; “a stone of picture” according to the literal Hebrew. Bp. Patrick.

4. Then will I give you rain &c.] Rain was particularly a blessing and favour of the great Governour of the world, in those hot and dry countries, where, as St. Jerome tells us, he never saw it rain in the end of the month of June, and in the month of July. Hence it is that, in various parts of Scripture, we find it so em-

5 And your threshing shall reach unto the vintage, and the vintage shall reach unto the sowing time: and ye shall eat your bread to the full, and ^d dwell in your land safely. Before
CHRIST
1491.
^d Job 11.
19.

6 And I will give peace in the land, and ye shall lie down, and none shall make you afraid: and I will † rid evil beasts out of the land, ^e neither shall the sword go through your land. † Heb.
cause to cause.
^e Job 11.
19.

7 And ye shall chase your enemies, and they shall fall before you by the sword.

8 And ^f five of you shall chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten thousand to flight: and your enemies shall fall before you by the sword. ^f Josh. 23.
10.

9 For I will have respect unto you, and make you fruitful, and multiply you, and establish my covenant with you.

10 And ye shall eat old store, and bring forth the old because of the new.

11 ^g And I will set my tabernacle among you: and my soul shall not abhor you. ^g Ezck. 37.
26.

12 ^h And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people. ^h 2 Cor. 6.
16.

13 I am the LORD your God, which brought you forth out of the land of Egypt, that ye should not be their bondmen; and I have broken the bands of your yoke, and made you go upright.

44 ¶ ⁱ But if ye will not hearken unto me, and will not do all these commandments; ⁱ Deut. 28.
15.
Lam. 2. 17.
Mal. 2. 2.

15 And if ye shall despise my statutes, or if your soul abhor my judgments, so that ye will not do all my commandments, but that ye break my covenant:

16 I also will do this unto you; I will even appoint † over you terror, consump- † Heb.
upon you.

phatically ascribed to the good providence of God. See Job v. 10; Is. xxx. 23, &c. Biblioth. Bibl.

5. And your threshing &c.] This is a truly elegant and poetical description of a very great and constant plenty. Biblioth. Bibl.

8. — five of you shall chase an hundred, &c.] See Josh. xxiii. 10; Judg. iii. 31; vii. 22; xv. 15; 2 Sam. xxiii. 8. With a view to the several blessings and curses in this chapter, see particularly Deut. xxviii. and the notes upon it.

11. — my soul shall not abhor you.] I will not cast you off because of your offences, for which I have appointed an expiation. Bp. Patrick.

12. — I will walk among you,] Jonathan paraphrases thus: “I will cause the glory of My Divine Presence to dwell among you.” I will take that care of you, which a vigilant general does of an army. I will be, as it were, carefully moving among you to keep things safe and quiet, and prevent any surprise from an enemy; even when ye shall be sleeping in your tents. Biblioth. Bibl.

13. — made you go upright.] Have made you go, no longer bowed down by burdens, and hanging your heads in heaviness. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

tion, and the burning ague, that shall consume the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart: and ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it.

^k Prov. 28.
1.

17 And I will set my face against you, and ye shall be slain before your enemies: they that hate you shall reign over you; and ^kye shall flee when none pursueth you.

18 And if ye will not yet for all this hearken unto me, then I will punish you seven times more for your sins.

19 And I will break the pride of your power; and I will make your heaven as iron, and your earth as brass:

20 And your strength shall be spent in vain: for your land shall not yield her increase, neither shall the trees of the land yield their fruits.

|| Or,
at all adventures with me,
and so ver.
24.

21 ¶ And if ye walk || contrary unto me, and will not hearken unto me; I will bring seven times more plagues upon you according to your sins.

22 I will also send wild beasts among you, which shall rob you of your children, and destroy your cattle, and make you few in number; and your high ways shall be desolate.

23 And if ye will not be reformed by me by these things, but will walk contrary unto me;

¹ 2 Sam. 22.
27.
Psal. 18.
26.

24 ¹ Then will I also walk contrary unto you, and will punish you yet seven times for your sins.

18. — I will punish you seven times more] The number “seven” put for any indefinite number. Bp. Patrick.

It is a great aggravation of sin, after great judgments have been upon us, to return to an evil course; because this is an argument of great obstinacy in evil. The longer Pharaoh resisted the judgments of God, the more was his wicked heart hardened, till at last he arrived at a monstrous degree of hardness, having been, as the Scripture tells us, hardened under ten plagues. And we find that after God had threatened the people of Israel with several judgments, He tells them that, if they will not be reformed by all these things, He “will punish them seven times more for their sins.” And if the just God will in such a case punish seven times more, we may conclude that the sin is seven times greater. Abp. Tillotson.

19. — I will make your heaven as iron,] “I will make your heaven as iron,” hard and dry, affording no rain; “your earth as brass,” fruitless and unproductive. Bp. Patrick.

22. I will also send wild beasts among you,] Of God’s extraordinary manner of punishing by wild beasts many examples might be brought; as of the Samaritans that were slain by them, 2 Kings xvii. 25, 26, the children that mocked Elisha, ibid. ii. 23, 24, the disobedient prophet, 1 Kings xiii. 24, and another prophet’s disobedient neighbour, ibid. xx. 36. Biblioth. Bibl.

24. Then will I also walk contrary unto you,] I will make your plagues more grievous, as your stubbornness grows more confirmed. Bp. Patrick.

These passages, ver. 23—39, are remarkably descriptive of the captivities of the ten tribes carried away by the Assyrians, and transplanted into the remotest parts of the empire, and of the two

Before
CHRIST
1491.

25 And I will bring a sword upon you, that shall avenge the quarrel of my covenant: and when ye are gathered together within your cities, I will send the pestilence among you; and ye shall be delivered into the hand of the enemy.

26 And when I have broken the staff of your bread, ten women shall bake your bread in one oven, and they shall deliver you your bread again by weight: and ye shall eat, and not be satisfied.

27 And if ye will not for all this hearken unto me, but walk contrary unto me;

28 Then I will walk contrary unto you also in fury; and I, even I, will chastise you seven times for your sins.

29 ^m And ye shall eat the flesh of your sons, and the flesh of your daughters shall ye eat. ^m Deut. 28.
53.

30 And I will destroy your high places, and ⁿ cut down your images, and cast your carcasses upon the carcasses of your idols, and my soul shall abhor you. ⁿ 2 Chron.
34. 7.

31 And I will make your cities waste, and bring your sanctuaries unto desolation, and I will not smell the savour of your sweet odours.

32 And I will bring the land into desolation: and your enemies which dwell therein shall be astonished at it.

33 And I will scatter you among the heathen, and will draw out a sword after you: and your land shall be desolate, and your cities waste.

remaining tribes of Judah and Benjamin, by the Babylonians. Their true meaning is determined by the prophet Jeremiah, at Jer. v. 15—17. The same events are predicted again at Deut. xxviii. 32. Dr. Hales.

26. And when I have broken the staff of your bread,] When I have brought upon you a scarcity of bread, which is the staff and main support of life. Dr. Wells. “Ten women shall bake your bread in one oven,” that is, the scarcity shall be so great, that one oven shall be sufficient to bake bread for ten families; and “they shall deliver you your bread — by weight,” that is, they shall deliver a certain quantity to every one in the family, not sufficient to satisfy hunger, but only to preserve life. Bp. Patrick. It will serve to explain the phrase of ten women baking in one oven, that it was usual in Eastern countries to have small ovens, which were designed to serve only one family, and were just sufficient to bake for them the bread of a single day. Ovens of the same description are still in use in the same countries. Harmer.

28. — in fury;] As your obstinacy and rebellion grow more provoking and outrageous, so My just wrath and vengeance shall appear in still more and more remarkable instances of My severity. Biblioth. Bibl.

29. — eat the flesh of your sons,] This is the utmost calamity that can befall a people: it happened to the Israelites in the siege of Samaria, 2 Kings vi. 29; in the siege of Jerusalem before the captivity, Lament. iv. 10; and again in the siege under Titus, as Josephus relates. Bp. Patrick.

31. — your sanctuaries] That is, even the several parts of My sanctuary which is among you. Dr. Wells. Or else we must

Before
CHRIST
1491.

34 Then shall the land enjoy her sabbaths, as long as it lieth desolate, and ye be in your enemies' land; even then shall the land rest, and enjoy her sabbaths.

35 As long as it lieth desolate it shall rest; because it did not rest in your sabbaths, when ye dwelt upon it.

† Heb. driven.

36 And upon them that are left alive of you I will send a faintness into their hearts in the lands of their enemies; and the sound of a †shaken leaf shall chase them; and they shall flee, as fleeing from a sword; and they shall fall when none pursueth.

37 And they shall fall one upon another, as it were before a sword, when none pursueth: and ye shall have no power to stand before your enemies.

38 And ye shall perish among the heathen, and the land of your enemies shall eat you up.

39 And they that are left of you shall pine away in their iniquity in your enemies' lands; and also in the iniquities of their fathers shall they pine away with them.

40 If they shall confess their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, with their trespass which they trespassed against me, and that also they have walked contrary unto me;

41 And that I also have walked contrary unto them, and have brought them into the land of their enemies; if then their uncircumcised hearts be humbled, and they then accept of the punishment of their iniquity:

42 Then will I remember my covenant with Jacob, and also my covenant with Isaac, and also my covenant with Abraham will I remember; and I will remember the land.

43 The land also shall be left of them, and shall enjoy her sabbaths, while she lieth desolate without them: and they shall accept of the punishment of their iniquity: because, even because they despised my judgments, and because their soul abhorred my statutes.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

44 And yet for all that, when they be in the land of their enemies, ° I will not cast them away, neither will I abhor them, to destroy them utterly, and to break my covenant with them: for I am the LORD their God.

° Deut. 4.
31.
Rom. 11.
26.

45 But I will for their sakes remember the covenant of their ancestors, whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt in the sight of the heathen, that I might be their God: I am the LORD.

46 These are the statutes and judgments and laws, which the LORD made between him and the children of Israel in mount Sinai by the hand of Moses.

CHAP. XXVII.

- 1 He that maketh a singular vow must be the Lord's.
2 The estimation of the person. 9 Of a beast given by vow. 14 Of a house. 16 Of a field, and the redemption thereof. 28 No devoted thing may be redeemed. 32 The tithe may not be changed.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When a man shall make a singular vow, the persons shall be for the LORD by thy estimation.

3 And thy estimation shall be of the male from twenty years old even unto sixty years old, even thy estimation shall be fifty shekels of silver, after the shekel of the sanctuary.

4 And if it be a female, then thy estimation shall be thirty shekels.

5 And if it be from five years old even understand the plural to be put for the singular. Biblioth. Bibl.

34. — enjoy her sabbaths,] Or her sabbatical years. This is a most bitter reproach to them for their ingratitude and disobedience, in not keeping the sabbatical year according to the command given in the last chapter. Bp. Patrick.

41. And that I also have walked contrary unto them,] If they be sensible that all the miseries they have endured come not by chance; but were the just punishments sent upon them for their sins. Bp. Patrick.

— uncircumcised] Hardened, impenitent.

Circumcision betokens the mortifying and casting off of vicious appetites and affections. See Deut. x. 16; xxx. 6; Jer. iv. 4. Whence it is usual, both in the Law and Prophets, for those, whose vicious appetites and affections are not thus subdued and mortified, to be described under the character of uncircumcised in heart or ear, Jer. vi. 10; ix. 26; Ezek. xlv. 7, 9. Dr. Berriman.

— they then accept of the punishment] If they humbly acknowledge that they deserved all the punishment inflicted on them. Biblioth. Bibl.

44. — I will not cast them away,] Here the restoration of the Jews to their own country is predicted, at the destined end of their captivity; which prediction is more fully expressed at Deut. xxx. 1. Dr. Hales. See the note on Deut. xxx. 1.

45. — I am the Lord,] Who desire that all should be saved; and, among these, the remnant of Jews that shall be left, when "the fulness of the Gentiles shall be come in," Rom. xi. 25. Biblioth. Bibl.

Chap. XXVII. ver. 2. — When a man shall make a singular vow, &c.] When a person shall bind himself by a vow, as for instance, to devote himself, his children, &c. wholly to the service of God in the sanctuary: "the persons" so devoted "shall be for the Lord according to thy estimation," that is, a value in money shall be set upon them, and that money be applied to holy uses, instead of the persons themselves being actually taken. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

unto twenty years old, then thy estimation shall be of the male twenty shekels, and for the female ten shekels.

6 And if it be from a month old even unto five years old, then thy estimation shall be of the male five shekels of silver, and for the female thy estimation shall be three shekels of silver.

7 And if it be from sixty years old and above; if it be a male, then thy estimation shall be fifteen shekels, and for the female ten shekels.

8 But if he be poorer than thy estimation, then he shall present himself before the priest, and the priest shall value him; according to his ability that vowed shall the priest value him.

9 And if it be a beast, whereof men bring an offering unto the LORD, all that any man giveth of such unto the LORD shall be holy.

10 He shall not alter it, nor change it, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good: and if he shall at all change beast for beast, then it and the exchange thereof shall be holy.

11 And if it be any unclean beast, of which they do not offer a sacrifice unto the LORD, then he shall present the beast before the priest:

12 And the priest shall value it, whether it be good or bad: *†*as thou valuest it, who art the priest, so shall it be.

† Heb.
according to thy estimation, O priest, &c.

13 But if he will at all redeem it, then he shall add a fifth part thereof unto thy estimation.

14 ¶ And when a man shall sanctify his house to be holy unto the LORD, then the priest shall estimate it, whether it be good or bad: as the priest shall estimate it, so shall it stand.

15 And if he that sanctified it will redeem his house, then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be his.

Before
CHRIST
1491.

16 And if a man shall sanctify unto the LORD some part of a field of his possession, then thy estimation shall be according to the seed thereof: *¶*an homer of barley seed shall be valued at fifty shekels of silver.

¶ Or, the land of an homer,
&c.

17 If he sanctify his field from the year of jubile, according to thy estimation it shall stand.

18 But if he sanctify his field after the jubile, then the priest shall reckon unto him the money according to the years that remain, even unto the year of the jubile, and it shall be abated from thy estimation.

19 And if he that sanctified the field will in any wise redeem it, then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be assured to him.

20 And if he will not redeem the field, or if he have sold the field to another man, it shall not be redeemed any more.

21 But the field, when it goeth out in the jubile, shall be holy unto the LORD, as a field devoted; the possession thereof shall be the priest's.

22 And if a man sanctify unto the LORD a field which he hath bought, which is not of the fields of his possession;

23 Then the priest shall reckon unto him the worth of thy estimation, even unto the year of the jubile: and he shall give thine estimation in that day, as a holy thing unto the LORD.

24 In the year of the jubile the field shall return unto him of whom it was bought, even to him to whom the possession of the land did belong.

25 And all thy estimations shall be according to the shekel of the sanctuary: ^atwenty gerahs shall be the shekel.

^a Exod. 38.
19.
Numb. 3.
47.
Ezek 45.
12.
† Heb.
firstborn,
&c.

26 ¶ Only the *†*firstling of the beasts, which should be the LORD's firstling, no man shall sanctify it; whether it be ox, or sheep: it is the LORD's.

8. — if he be poorer than thy estimation.] If he, who made the vow, be unable to pay the rate assigned. Bp. Kidder. Or, if, after his vow, he become impoverished, and not able to pay the price set, according to the rules here given. S. Clarke.

9. — shall be holy.] Shall be set apart for God's service, according to the nature of the vow: to be offered at the altar, if it was so expressed, or to be given to the priests and Levites, if that was his desire; or to be sold for the service of the tabernacle, if the matter be left at large. Bp. Patrick.

16. — according to the seed thereof.] Either, as some understand, according to the quantity of seed required to sow it: or, as others, according to the quantity and measure of the produce of it. Biblioth. Bibl.

— an homer of barley seed] That is, so much land as an homer of barley seed would sow, shall be rated at fifty shekels. Bp. Patrick.

20. — or if he have sold the field &c.] The meaning is, if the field was sold to any other man except the person who vowed it, he could never redeem it again. The reason of the law was, 1st, that the owners of land might hereby be obliged to redeem their own lands, lest the estate should pass away from tribes and families: 2dly, that God might hereby make a provision for the priests, who would receive more if the owner redeemed it, than if another person. This is to be understood of a field that was promised to God by a simple vow, because, if it was devoted, or consecrated, it could not be redeemed. Biblioth. Bibl.

26. — no man shall sanctify it;] And yet it is said at Deut. xv. 19, "All the firstling males — thou shalt sanctify unto the Lord." The reason of the command in this place is, that, as every firstling was of course sacred to the Lord, any other consecration of it was unnecessary. The meaning of the command in Deuteronomy is, that the firstling, already sacred as 1491.

Before
CHRIST

27 And if it be of an unclean beast, then he shall redeem it according to thine estimation, and shall add a fifth part of it thereto: or if it be not redeemed, then it shall be sold according to thy estimation.

^b Josh. 6.
19.

28 ^b Notwithstanding no devoted thing, that a man shall devote unto the LORD of all that he hath, both of man and beast, and of the field of his possession, shall be sold or redeemed: every devoted thing is most holy unto the LORD.

29 None devoted, which shall be devoted of men, shall be redeemed; but shall surely be put to death.

30 And all the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or of the fruit of such, should be put to none but a holy use. The one precept made it unnecessary to sanctify what was antecedently sacred to God; the other made it necessary not to use or treat that as common which was antecedently sacred. Jos. Mede, Biblioth. Bibl.

28. — no devoted thing, &c.] The Hebrew word cherem, here translated “devoted,” signifies devoted by a peculiar sort of vow, with a curse annexed to it. The meaning is, nothing devoted by this sort of vow shall be sold or redeemed: for it was the peculiar nature of this vow, that the thing should remain unalterably and irreversibly for the use to which it was devoted. Bp. Patrick.

29. — which shall be devoted of men,] Persons might be devoted, not only by God, as when He devoted the city and inhabitants of Jericho, Josh. vi. 17, and the Amalekites, Deut. xxv. 19, but by men, as in special vows, Numb. xxi. 2, 3, or when they were adjudged to death for sin, Exod. xxii. 20. S. Clarke.

The 28th verse speaks of things or persons devoted to sacred uses, by that sort of vow which was called cherem; a consecration under pain of a curse. Things or persons, so devoted or consecrated, were for ever to be set apart to sacred uses, and could never be redeemed. The 29th verse is to be understood of persons devoted by the cherem also, but devoted to perdition (as were the people of Jericho) in a hostile or vindictive way, and not in the way of sacrifice. Persons so devoted were to be utterly destroyed. Dr. Waterland.

— shall surely be put to death.] It has been asserted by some, that this law of Moses concerning devoted things to be put to death, authorized human sacrifices: and Jephthah's sacrificing his daughter, Judges xi. 34, &c; Samuel's hewing Agag in pieces before the Lord, 1 Sam. xv. 33; and David's delivering seven of Saul's posterity to the Gibeonites to be put to death by them, 2 Sam. xxi. 2, &c; have been represented as instances of human sacrifices, conformably to that law. But, as there are express laws which forbid the sacrificing of their chil-

the tree, is the LORD's: it is holy unto the LORD. Before
CHRIST
1491.

31 And if a man will at all redeem ought of his tithes, he shall add thereto the fifth part thereof.

32 And concerning the tithe of the herd, or of the flock, even of whatsoever passeth under the rod, the tenth shall be holy unto the LORD.

33 He shall not search whether it be good or bad, neither shall he change it: and if he change it at all, then both it and the change thereof shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed.

34 These are the commandments, which the LORD commanded Moses for the children of Israel in mount Sinai.

dren, Deut. xii. 30, 31; Ps. cvi. 37, 38; Jer. vii. 31; Ezek. xvi. 20, 21; so there not only is no direction to sacrifice any other human creature, nor any rites appointed for such sacrifice; moreover such a sacrifice would have rendered the priest unclean by touching a dead body. Dr. Gerard.

30. And all the tithe of the land, &c.] This is the first mention of tithes in the Law of Moses. As the priests and Levites had no share in the division of the land, except a number of cities, with their suburbs, they were supported by the tithe or tenth part of the produce of all the lands: this tenth was paid to the Levites, who again paid a tenth of all which they received to the priests. This method of maintaining the persons employed upon the Divine service seems to have been adopted, that they might have greater leisure for their sacred offices, and that their thoughts might not be diverted by the business of tillage and other such employments. It is impossible to assign any direct reason why a tenth part of the produce, and not more or less, was assigned to the ministers of religion. The Jews have invented many fanciful reasons; but it is quite sufficient to refer this custom, as well as their other civil and religious usages, entirely to the Divine command. It should be observed however, that the tenth part was anciently paid to kings, as well as to God. It appears from 1 Sam. viii. 15, that this was a part of the royal right among the people of the East. Aristotle mentions it as an ancient law in Babylon: the same law obtained also in Athens, which was a republick, and among the Romans.

Besides the first tithe thus paid, there was also a second tithe, paid from the nine remaining parts, which the owner was obliged either to pay in kind, and carry to Jerusalem, or to the place where the sanctuary was, there to feast before the Lord with the Levites and the poor; or, if the place was too remote, he might turn it into money, Deut. xiv. 23, 24. Lewis. See note on Gen. xiv. 20.

32. — passeth under the rod,] The tithing rod, used in numbering the tenth out of the herd; or the shepherd's crook, under which the flock passed as he numbered them daily. Bp. Patrick.

THE FOURTH BOOK OF MOSES,

CALLED

NUMBERS.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS Book is called the Book of Numbers, because it contains an account of the numbering or mustering of the people ; or rather, indeed, of two numberings : the first in the beginning of the second year after their departure from Egypt ; the second in the plains of Moab, towards the conclusion of their journey in the wilderness. It is certain that Moses was the inspired author of the book, and that he delivers in it nothing but what is consistent with truth, and agreeable to the Divine will, since it constitutes part of the Pentateuch, which in all ages has been universally ascribed to Moses, and it is cited as his inspired work in various parts of Scripture.

The book comprehends a period of about thirty-eight years, reckoning from the first day of the second month after the deliverance from Egypt, during which time the Israelites continued to wander in the wilderness. Most of the transactions, however, described in this book, happened in the first and last of these years. The date of those events which are recorded in the middle of the book cannot be precisely ascertained.

The history presents us with an account of the consecration of the tabernacle, and of the offering of the princes at its dedication. It describes the journeys and encampments of Israel under the miraculous guidance of the cloud ; the punishment at Taberah ; and the signal vengeance with which, on several occasions, God resented the distrustful murmurs of the people, and that rebellious spirit which so often broke out in sedition against His appointed ministers, particularly in the affair of Korah, which is described with great animation. The promptitude and severity with which God enforced a respect for His laws, even to the exemplary condemnation of the man who profaned the sabbath, were necessary, when even a sense of the immediate presence of the Almighty, and a consideration of the miracles daily performed, failed to produce obedience. Amidst the terrors, however, of the Divine judgments which the book unfolds, we perceive likewise the continuance of God's mercies in providing assistance for Moses by the appointment of the seventy elders ; in drawing water from the rock ; and in the setting up of the brasen serpent. The benevolent zeal of Moses to intercede on all occasions for the people, even when punished for ungrateful insurrection against himself, deserves likewise to be considered. The history is enlivened with much variety of event ; and, besides the particulars above alluded to, it contains the account of the resignation and death of Aaron ; of the conquest of Sihon and Og ; of the conduct of Balaam towards Balak ; of the merited fate of Balaam ; of the insidious project to seduce the Israelites, its success and effects ; and of the appointment of Joshua. The book contains likewise a repetition of many principal laws given for the direction of the Israelites, with the addition of several precepts civil and religious. It describes some regulations established for the ordering of the tribes, and for the division of the land which the Israelites were about to possess. It furnishes us also with a list of the tribes ; and with that of Levi in particular, which is reserved for a distinct roll, because that tribe was in possession of an order in the priesthood.

The most signal prophecies, which are contained in this book, and bear testimony to its inspiration, are those blessings which Balaam was constrained to utter concerning the future prosperity of the Israelites, and the destruction of their several enemies ; especially in that distinct and extatic description of the "Star which should come out of Jacob, and of the sceptre that should rise out of Israel." The denunciation likewise against Moses and Aaron for their disbelief, as well as the threats against the people for their murmurs, and the declaration, that none but Caleb and Joshua should enter the land, were strikingly fulfilled ; and it may be added, that the rites of the Passover, of which the observance is again enjoined in this book, were figurative representations of a predictive character. Dr. Gray.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

CHAP. I.

1 God commandeth Moses to number the people. 5 The princes of the tribes. 17 The number of every tribe. 47 The Levites are exempted for the service of the Lord.

Exod. 50.
12.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the tabernacle of the congregation, on the first day of the second month, in the second year after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying,

2 "Take ye the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel, after their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of their names, every male by their polls;

3 From twenty years old and upward, all that are able to go forth to war in Israel: thou and Aaron shall number them by their armies.

4 And with you there shall be a man of every tribe; every one head of the house of his fathers.

5 ¶ And these are the names of the men that shall stand with you: of the tribe of Reuben; Elizur the son of Shedeur.

6 Of Simeon; Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

7 Of Judah; Nahshon the son of Aminadab.

8 Of Issachar; Nethaneel the son of Zuar.

9 Of Zebulun; Eliab the son of Helon.

10 Of the children of Joseph: of Ephraim; Elishama the son of Ammihud: of Manasseh; Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

11 Of Benjamin; Abidan the son of Gideoni.

12 Of Dan; Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

13 Of Asher; Pagiel the son of Ocran.

14 Of Gad; Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

15 Of Naphtali; Ahira the son of E-nan.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

16 These were the renowned of the congregation, princes of the tribes of their fathers, heads of thousands in Israel.

17 ¶ And Moses and Aaron took these men which are expressed by their names:

18 And they assembled all the congregation together on the first day of the second month, and they declared their pedigrees after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, by their polls.

19 As the LORD commanded Moses, so he numbered them in the wilderness of Sinai.

20 And the children of Reuben, Israel's eldest son, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, by their polls, every male from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

21 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Reuben, were forty and six thousand and five hundred.

22 ¶ Of the children of Simeon, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, those that were numbered of them, according to the number of the names, by their polls, every male from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

23 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Simeon, were fifty and nine thousand and three hundred.

24 ¶ Of the children of Gad, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

Chap. I. ver. 1. — on the first day of the second month, &c.] The transactions related in the foregoing book seem to have passed in the first month of the second year after they left Egypt: in the beginning of which the tabernacle was set up, and in the middle of it the passover was kept. Bp. Patrick.

2. Take ye the sum &c.] There had been a muster of the people before the tabernacle was erected, Exod. xxx. 12, in order to a contribution, which every one was to make towards that holy work, Exod. xxxviii. 26. This was for the better arrangement of their camps about the tabernacle, and for their more regular march on their removal from mount Sinai. Bp. Patrick.

— of all the congregation] Except the tribe of Levi, who were appointed to the service of the tabernacle. Staekhouse.

— after their families,] A careful distinction was to be made of tribes, families, and households; that every one might know, and deliver to his posterity, the tribe and family to which he belonged. God hereby further provided for the certain genealogy of the Messiah, hereafter to be born of this nation. Pyle.

5. — of the tribe of Reuben;] The tribes are here mentioned not according to the order of the birth of the Twelve Patriarchs, from whom they sprang, but according to the order of their mothers: first the sons of Leah; then those of Rachel; then of Zilpah; then of Bilhah. The sons of Jacob's two wives are mentioned in the order of their birth: but the sons of the handmaids are not. This was probably on account of some pre-eminence, which the younger may have gained over the elder; as Ephraim, the younger son of Joseph, is named before Manasseh, because Jacob had given him the precedence. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

20. — by their generations,] The word "generations" is a comprehensive term, including all the families of the tribe; as families include every household; and households, every individual.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

25 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Gad, were forty and five thousand six hundred and fifty.

26 ¶ Of the children of Judah, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

27 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Judah, were threescore and fourteen thousand and six hundred.

28 ¶ Of the children of Issachar, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

29 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Issachar, were fifty and four thousand and four hundred.

30 ¶ Of the children of Zebulun, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

31 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Zebulun, were fifty and seven thousand and four hundred.

32 ¶ Of the children of Joseph, namely, of the children of Ephraim, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

33 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Ephraim, were forty thousand and five hundred.

34 ¶ Of the children of Manasseh, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

35 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Manasseh, were thirty and two thousand and two hundred.

36 ¶ Of the children of Benjamin, by their generations, after their families, by

Before
CHRIST
1490.

the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

37 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Benjamin, were thirty and five thousand and four hundred.

38 ¶ Of the children of Dan, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

39 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Dan, were threescore and two thousand and seven hundred.

40 ¶ Of the children of Asher, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

41 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Asher, were forty and one thousand and five hundred.

42 ¶ Of the children of Naphtali, throughout their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

43 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Naphtali, were fifty and three thousand and four hundred.

44 These are those that were numbered, which Moses and Aaron numbered, and the princes of Israel, being twelve men : each one was for the house of his fathers.

45 So were all those that were numbered of the children of Israel, by the house of their fathers, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war in Israel ;

46 Even all they that were numbered were six hundred thousand and three thousand and five hundred and fifty.

47 ¶ But the Levites after the tribe of their fathers were not numbered among them.

48 For the LORD had spoken unto Moses, saying,

The meaning is, all that were descended from Reuben, according to their several families, and houses in those families, and persons in those houses. Bp. Patrick.

27. — the tribe of Judah.] It appears that Jacob's prophecy concerning the power and strength of this tribe, Gen. xlix. 8, &c. began already to be fulfilled ; they being far more numerous than any other : agreeably to the same prophecy, the tribe of Ephraim was already more fruitful than that of Manasseh. Bp. Patrick.

48. For the Lord had spoken unto Moses, &c.] It was by the special commandment of God, that Moses did not number the Levites at this time ; because they were intended for another service, and were therefore to be numbered by themselves. In the same manner all nations have exempted their ministers of religion

Before
CHRIST
1490.

49 Only thou shalt not number the tribe of Levi, neither take the sum of them among the children of Israel :

50 But thou shalt appoint the Levites over the tabernacle of testimony, and over all the vessels thereof, and over all things that belong to it : they shall bear the tabernacle, and all the vessels thereof ; and they shall minister unto it, and shall encamp round about the tabernacle.

51 And when the tabernacle setteth forward, the Levites shall take it down : and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, the Levites shall set it up : and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

52 And the children of Israel shall pitch their tents, every man by his own camp, and every man by his own standard, throughout their hosts.

53 But the Levites shall pitch round about the tabernacle of testimony, that there be no wrath upon the congregation of the children of Israel : and the Levites shall keep the charge of the tabernacle of testimony.

54 And the children of Israel did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did they.

CHAP. II.

The order of the tribes in their tents.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

2 Every man of the children of Israel shall pitch by his own standard, with the from other services, particularly from war. Strabo notes this custom to have been as old as Homer's time ; and Cesar observes that the ancient Druids were exempt from war and tribute. Bp. Patrick.

50. — over the tabernacle — and over all the vessels thereof,] Not to officiate in the tabernacle, or use any of its vessels in any sacred ministry, for this belonged to the priests alone ; but to carry it, chap. iv, and to minister unto it, see chap. iii, and to encamp round it as a special guard. For this reason they did not march under the standard of any other tribe, because they formed a camp by themselves ; nor did they go to the wars with the others, because they were to attend on the tabernacle of God. Dr. Wells, Bp. Patrick.

51. — and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.] Any Israelite whatsoever, being not of the tribe of Levi, if he offer to meddle with the ark, shall surely die ; either by the immediate hand of God, or by the hand of human justice and authority. Bp. Hall. As a presumptuous intruder into sacred offices. Pyle.

Chap. II. ver. 1. And the Lord spake unto Moses] The tribes being mustered, registered, and formed into companies, the next orders given were about the form of their encampments and of their marches. Their general camp was to be in the form of a square ; of which the four sides were to be placed towards the four quarters of the compass. Each side was to consist of three ensign of their father's house : † far off about the tabernacle of the congregation shall they pitch.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

† Heb. over against.

3 And on the east side toward the rising of the sun shall they of the standard of the camp of Judah pitch throughout their armies : and Nahshon the son of Amminadab shall be captain of the children of Judah.

4 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were threescore and fourteen thousand and six hundred.

5 And those that do pitch next unto him shall be the tribe of Issachar : and Nathaneel the son of Zuar shall be captain of the children of Issachar.

6 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, were fifty and four thousand and four hundred.

7 Then the tribe of Zebulun : and Eliab the son of Helon shall be captain of the children of Zebulun.

8 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, were fifty and seven thousand and four hundred.

9 All that were numbered in the camp of Judah were an hundred thousand and fourscore thousand and six thousand and four hundred, throughout their armies. These shall first set forth.

10 ¶ On the south side shall be the standard of the camp of Reuben according to their armies : and the captain of the children of Reuben shall be Elizur the son of Shedeur.

11 And his host, and those that were tribes, nearest related to each other : and they were to pitch at such a distance from the tabernacle, which was in the midst of all, as might show their reverence for it, at the same time that the whole camp might serve for its protection. Pyle.

2. — by his own standard,] By the standard or banner of that tribe to which he shall be attached by the following order. Bp. Patrick.

— with the ensign of their father's house :] All the twelve tribes were distinguished by particular standards ; and each standard is supposed by some to have been of the colour of that stone in Aaron's breastplate, on which the name of the particular tribe was written. Stackhouse. The Jews have a tradition that the ensign, carried in the standard of Judah, was a lion ; in that of Reuben, a man ; in that of Ephraim, an ox ; and in that of Dan, an eagle. St. John seems to allude to this in Rev. iv. 7. Dr. Wells. Probably the name of Judah was embroidered in great letters on his standard ; of Reuben, on his ; and so on. Or they were distinguished by their colours only, as our regiments now are. Bp. Patrick.

3. — throughout their armies :] That is, all the several companies, regiments, and brigades, into which the men of the tribe were distributed. Dr. Wells.

9. — These shall first set forth.] Or march in the front, whenever a movement was made, as the van-guard. Pyle, Dr. Wells. They were the greatest of the four bodies ; and were placed before the oracle, as the strongest guard. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

numbered thereof, were forty and six thousand and five hundred.

12 And those which pitch by him shall be the tribe of Simeon: and the captain of the children of Simeon shall be Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

13 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were fifty and nine thousand and three hundred.

14 Then the tribe of Gad: and the captain of the sons of Gad shall be Eliasaph the son of Reuel.

15 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were forty and five thousand and six hundred and fifty.

16 All that were numbered in the camp of Reuben were an hundred thousand and fifty and one thousand and four hundred and fifty, throughout their armies. And they shall set forth in the second rank.

17 ¶ Then the tabernacle of the congregation shall set forward with the camp of the Levites in the midst of the camp: as they encamp, so shall they set forward, every man in his place by their standards.

18 ¶ On the west side shall be the standard of the camp of Ephraim according to their armies: and the captain of the sons of Ephraim shall be Elishama the son of Aminihud.

19 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were forty thousand and five hundred.

20 And by him shall be the tribe of Manasseh: and the captain of the children of Manasseh shall be Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

21 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were thirty and two thousand and two hundred.

22 Then the tribe of Benjamin: and the captain of the sons of Benjamin shall be Abidan the son of Gideon.

23 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were thirty and five thousand and four hundred.

24 All that were numbered of the camp of Ephraim were an hundred thousand and eight thousand and an hundred, throughout their armies. And they shall go forward in the third rank.

17. Then the tabernacle of the congregation &c.] The tabernacle, not entirely, but the sanctuary rather, was to follow, in the midst of the army; see chap. x. 17; having the camps of Judah and Reuben before it, and the camps of Ephraim and Dan behind, for the greater security of so holy a thing. So that they did not march, as they encamped: in the latter case, there was a

VOL. I.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

25 ¶ The standard of the camp of Dan shall be on the north side by their armies: and the captain of the children of Dan shall be Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

26 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were threescore and two thousand and seven hundred.

27 And those that encamp by him shall be the tribe of Asher: and the captain of the children of Asher shall be Pagiel the son of Ocran.

28 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were forty and one thousand and five hundred.

29 ¶ Then the tribe of Naphtali: and the captain of the children of Naphtali shall be Ahira the son of Enan.

30 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were fifty and three thousand and four hundred.

31 All they that were numbered in the camp of Dan were an hundred thousand and fifty and seven thousand and six hundred. They shall go hindmost with their standards.

32 ¶ These are those which were numbered of the children of Israel by the house of their fathers: all those that were numbered of the camps throughout their hosts were six hundred thousand and three thousand and five hundred and fifty.

33 But the Levites were not numbered among the children of Israel; as the LORD commanded Moses.

34 And the children of Israel did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses: so they pitched by their standards, and so they set forward, every one after their families, according to the house of their fathers.

CHAP. III.

1 The sons of Aaron. 5 The Levites are given to the priests for the service of the tabernacle, 11 instead of the firstborn. 14 The Levites are numbered by their families. 21 The families, number, and charge of the Gershonites, 27 of the Kohathites, 33 of the Merarites. 38 The place and charge of Moses and Aaron. 40 The firstborn are freed by the Levites. 44 The overplus are redeemed.

camp on each side of the tabernacle; but when they marched, there were two before, and two behind. Pyle, Bp. Patrick.

31. — They shall go hindmost] They were the most numerous body after that under the standard of Judah: and were therefore appointed to bring up the rear, as the former led the van, for the greater security of the sanctuary. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

L 1

Before
CHRIST
1491.

THESE also are the generations of Aaron and Moses in the day that the Lord spake with Moses in mount Sinai.

2 And these are the names of the sons of Aaron; Nadab the ^a firstborn, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

^a Exod. 6.
23.

3 These are the names of the sons of Aaron, the priests which were anointed, † whom he consecrated to minister in the priest's office.

† Heb. whose hand
he filled.

4 ^b And Nadab and Abihu died before the Lord, when they offered strange fire before the Lord, in the wilderness of Sinai, and they had no children: and Eleazar and Ithamar ministered in the priest's office in the sight of Aaron their father.

1490.
^b Lev. 10. 1.
ch. 26. 61.
1 Chron.
21. 2.

5 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

6 Bring the tribe of Levi near, and present them before Aaron the priest, that they may minister unto him.

7 And they shall keep his charge, and the charge of the whole congregation before the tabernacle of the congregation, to do the service of the tabernacle.

8 And they shall keep all the instruments of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the charge of the children of Israel, to do the service of the tabernacle.

9 And thou shalt give the Levites unto Chap. III. ver. 1. These also are the generations of Aaron and Moses &c.] This that follows is an account of the genealogy of Aaron, and Moses, and the other Levites. Dr. Wells. He puts Aaron first, because he was the elder brother, and his posterity were advanced to the dignity of priests; whereas the descendants of Moses were only ministers to the priests, as were the other Levites. The posterity of Moses are reckoned among the Kohathites, ver. 27. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

6. Bring the tribe of Levi near,] They had consecrated themselves to God by a noble act, mentioned Exod. xxxii. 29, which procured them this blessing of being presented to God, and solemnly consecrated to His service. Bp. Patrick.

— that they may minister unto him.] The work and office of the Levites were as follows: 1. To minister to the priests, as appears from this verse, and from 1 Chron. xxiii. 28. 2. To serve at the tabernacle; expressed by keeping the charge of the whole congregation, ver. 7. And herein they served the people; see 2 Chron. xxxv. 3. We have an account in this chapter of the particular charge of the Gershonites, ver. 25, 26; of the Kohathites, ver. 31; of the Merarites, ver. 36; and of their burdens and the carrying of the ark, chap. iv, and Deut. x. 8. From these duties they were excused, when the temple was built, 1 Chron. xxiii. 26. But then they were appointed (3.) to be singers, 1 Chron. xxiii. 30, and chap. xxv; (4.) and porters to the several gates of the temple, 1 Chron. xxvi. 13. 5. They had the charge of the treasure, 1 Chron. xxvi. 20, of the house of God, and of the dedicated things. And lastly, some of them were made officers and judges in business of the Lord, and service of the king. See 1 Chron. xxvi. 29, 30. Bp. Kidder.

7. — they shall keep his charge,] They shall do that service, which Aaron, as from the Lord, shall appoint to them. Bp. Hall.
— before the tabernacle of the congregation,] Not officiating in it, for that belonged to the priests; but assisting the priests in

Aaron and to his sons: they are wholly given unto him out of the children of Israel. Before
CHRIST
1490.

10 And thou shalt appoint Aaron and his sons, and they shall wait on their priest's office: and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

11 And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

12 And I, behold, I have taken the Levites from among the children of Israel instead of all the firstborn that openeth the matrix among the children of Israel: therefore the Levites shall be mine;

13 Because all the firstborn are mine; ^c for on the day that I smote all the firstborn in the land of Egypt I hallowed unto me all the firstborn in Israel, both man and beast: mine shall they be: I am the Lord.

^c Exod. 13.
1.
Lev. 27. 26.
ch. 8. 16.
Luke 2. 23.

14 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, saying, 15 Number the children of Levi after the house of their fathers, by their families: every male from a month old and upward shalt thou number them.

16 And ^d Moses numbered them according to the † word of the Lord, as he was commanded.

^d Gen. 46.
11.
Exod. 6. 16.
ch. 26. 57.
1 Chron.
6. 1.

17 And these were the sons of Levi by their names; Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari.

† Heb.
mouth.

their service before it, or about the external part of it. Bp. Patrick.

10. — priest's office:] It was the proper and peculiar office of the priests to bless the people in the name of the Lord; to offer incense; and to minister at the altar, Numb. xviii. 7; Deut. xxi. 5; 1 Chron. xxiii. 13. Bp. Kidder.

— the stranger] Any one, though a Levite, that was not of the sons of Aaron. God Himself sent out fire to consume Korah and his company, who presumed to offer incense, being only Levites, and not priests, chap. xvi. Bp. Patrick.

12. — I have taken the Levites — instead of all the firstborn &c.] Whereas before, the firstborn of the family was ordained to execute the office of priesthood, and to offer sacrifices for the rest, now I have confined this office to one tribe alone; so that only those of Levi, instead of the firstborn, shall be set apart for this work. Bp. Hall.

13. — I am the Lord.] Who, as such, may take whom I please to be employed in My service, and therefore much more make such an exchange. Dr. Wells.

14. — the Lord spake unto Moses] And not to Aaron also. The number of the Israelites was to be taken by them both, chap. i. 3, as was that of the Kohathites, chap. iv. 2. And the Gershonites and Merarites were numbered by Aaron as well as by Moses, chap. iv. 41, 45. But the precept to number the Levites here is directed to Moses only, and by him was executed, ver. 16, whatever assistance or approbation Aaron might give, ver. 39. And again we find that Moses alone was concerned in numbering the firstborn of Israel, ver. 40—42, in which no mention at all is made of Aaron. For since the money, with which the firstborn of Israel, that exceeded the number of the Levites, were to be redeemed, was to be paid to Aaron and his sons, ver. 48, he, whose advantage it was that the number of the firstborn should exceed, was not authorized to take the number. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

18 And these are the names of the sons of Gershon by their families; Libni, and Shimei.

19 And the sons of Kohath by their families; Amram, and Izechar, Hebron, and Uzziel.

20 And the sons of Merari by their families; Mahli, and Mushi. These are the families of the Levites according to the house of their fathers.

21 Of Gershon was the family of the Libnites, and the family of the Shimites: these are the families of the Gershonites.

22 Those that were numbered of them, according to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, even those that were numbered of them were seven thousand and five hundred.

23 The families of the Gershonites shall pitch behind the tabernacle westward.

24 And the chief of the house of the father of the Gershonites shall be Eliasaph the son of Lael.

25 And the charge of the sons of Gershon in the tabernacle of the congregation shall be the tabernacle, and the tent, the covering thereof, and the hanging for the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, 26 And the hangings of the court, and the curtain for the door of the court, which is by the tabernacle, and by the altar round about, and the cords of it for all the service thereof.

27 ¶ And of Kohath was the family of the Amramites, and the family of the Izecharites, and the family of the Hebronites, and the family of the Uzzielites: these are the families of the Kohathites.

28 In the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, were eight thousand and six hundred, keeping the charge of the sanctuary.

29 The families of the sons of Kohath shall pitch on the side of the tabernacle southward.

30 And the chief of the house of the father of the families of the Kohathites shall be Elizaphan the son of Uzziel.

32. And Eleazar the son of Aaron &c.] There was one officer in chief set over each of these great families, ver. 24, 30, 35; and over all these officers there was one supreme chief, namely, Eleazar, who was more than a Levite, being the eldest son of Aaron the high priest. Bp. Patrick.

39. — twenty and two thousand.] The foregoing sums amount to 22,300; a greater number than that of the firstborn of the Israelites, which was 22,273. Yet we find the number to be redeemed was 273, ver. 46. So that 300 are omitted here, where the several sums are collected; and a price is paid for 273, which were indeed over and above the number here mentioned, but

Before
CHRIST
1490.

31 And their charge shall be the ark, and the table, and the candlestick, and the altars, and the vessels of the sanctuary wherewith they minister, and the hanging, and all the service thereof.

32 And Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest shall be chief over the chief of the Levites, and have the oversight of them that keep the charge of the sanctuary.

33 ¶ Of Merari was the family of the Mahlites, and the family of the Mushites: these are the families of Merari.

34 And those that were numbered of them, according to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, were six thousand and two hundred.

35 And the chief of the house of the father of the families of Merari was Zuriel the son of Abihail: these shall pitch on the side of the tabernacle northward.

36 And † under the custody and charge of the sons of Merari shall be the boards of the tabernacle, and the bars thereof, and the pillars thereof, and the sockets thereof, and all the vessels thereof, and all that serveth thereto, 37 And the pillars of the court round about, and their sockets, and their pins, and their cords.

38 ¶ But those that encamp before the tabernacle toward the east, even before the tabernacle of the congregation eastward, shall be Moses, and Aaron and his sons, keeping the charge of the sanctuary for the charge of the children of Israel; and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

39 All that were numbered of the Levites, which Moses and Aaron numbered at the commandment of the LORD, throughout their families, all the males from a month old and upward, were twenty and two thousand.

40 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Number all the firstborn of the males of the children of Israel from a month old and upward, and take the number of their names.

twenty-seven short of the real number of the Levites. It is probable therefore, that the 300, not reckoned here, were the firstborn of the Levites; which, being due to God before from the tribe of Levi, as well as from the other tribes, were not to be reckoned among those Levites, who were to be taken instead of the firstborn of Israel. Bp. Kidder, Dr. Wall.

It is singular that the tribe of Levi should be much less numerous than any of the others. Their number of males from a month old amounts only to 22,300; whereas, of the other tribes, Judah was 74,600, chap. i. 27, and the rest, one with another, about 40,000, none so few as 30,000. Dr. Wall.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

41 And thou shalt take the Levites for me (I am the LORD) instead of all the firstborn among the children of Israel; and the cattle of the Levites instead of all the firstlings among the cattle of the children of Israel.

42 And Moses numbered, as the LORD commanded him, all the firstborn among the children of Israel.

43 And all the firstborn males by the number of names, from a month old and upward, of those that were numbered of them, were twenty and two thousand two hundred and threescore and thirteen.

44 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

45 Take the Levites instead of all the firstborn among the children of Israel, and the cattle of the Levites instead of their cattle; and the Levites shall be mine: I am the LORD.

46 And for those that are to be redeemed of the two hundred and threescore and thirteen of the firstborn of the children of Israel, which are more than the Levites;

47 Thou shalt even take five shekels apiece by the poll, after the shekel of the sanctuary shalt thou take them: (* the shekel is twenty gerahs:)

48 And thou shalt give the money, wherewith the odd number of them is to be redeemed, unto Aaron and to his sons.

49 And Moses took the redemption money of them that were over and above them that were redeemed by the Levites:

50 Of the firstborn of the children of Israel took he the money; a thousand three hundred and threescore and five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary:

51 And Moses gave the money of them that were redeemed unto Aaron and to his sons, according to the word of the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

CHAP. IV.

1 The age and time of the Levites' service. 4 The carriage of the Kohathites, when the priests have taken down the tabernacle. 16 The charge of Eleazar. 17 The office of the priests. 21 The carriage of the Gershonites. 29 The carriage of the Merarites. 34 The number of the Kohathites, 38 of the Gershonites, 42 and of the Merarites.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

2 Take the sum of the sons of Kohath from among the sons of Levi, after their families, by the house of their fathers,

3 From thirty years old and upward even until fifty years old, all that enter into the host, to do the work in the tabernacle of the congregation.

4 This shall be the service of the sons of Kohath in the tabernacle of the congregation, about the most holy things:

5 ¶ And when the camp setteth forward, Aaron shall come, and his sons, and they shall take down the covering vail, and cover the ark of testimony with it:

6 And shall put thereon the covering of badgers' skins, and shall spread over it a cloth wholly of blue, and shall put in the staves thereof.

7 And upon the * table of shewbread they shall spread a cloth of blue, and put thereon the dishes, and the spoons, and the bowls, and covers to || cover withal: and the continual bread shall be thereon:

8 And they shall spread upon them a cloth of scarlet, and cover the same with a covering of badgers' skins, and shall put in the staves thereof.

9 And they shall take a cloth of blue, and cover the ^b candlestick of the light, ^{31.}

* Exod. 20.
13.
Lev. 27. 25.
ch. 18. 16.
Ezek. 45.
12.

^a Exod. 25.
30.

|| Or, pour out withal.

^b Exod. 25.
31.

41. — the cattle of the Levites] In the gross. Dr. Wells. Not to be sacrificed, or taken from the Levites; but to continue in their possession, by God's allowance, for their encouragement in His service. Bp. Patrick.

47. Thou shalt — take five shekels apiece,] This was the price of redemption ever after, chap. xviii. 16. It had been lately constituted the value of a man-child, from a month to five years old, Lev. xxvii. 6. Which of the firstborn was to be redeemed by money, and which to be exchanged for a Levite, was probably determined by lot: unless the congregation redeemed the 273 firstborn out of a common stock. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. IV. ver. 3. From thirty years old and upward] In the work, to which they are here appointed, they were not employed till they reached thirty years of age: but they were admitted to attend at the tabernacle, and do other service at twenty-five years: see chap. viii. 24. The work, here alluded to, was that of carrying the ark, and the most holy things, which were always borne on men's shoulders. It is spoken of by the word "burden" in ver. 15, 19, 24, 31, 47. Bp. Patrick. Probably, at twenty-five years of age they went in as learners; and at thirty began to do the hard services. Dr. Wall.

— all that enter into the host,] All that are fit to enter upon this ministry, being of just age, and sufficient strength, and not legally excluded, chap. v. 2; i. 3. This service was a spiritual warfare; and he that entered into it, is said to enter into the host. See ver. 23, and 1 Tim. i. 18; 2 Tim. ii. 3. Bp. Kidder. Their watching continually about the tabernacle made them a sort of guard. Bp. Patrick.

6. — put in the staves thereof,] Not into the rings, for they were never to be taken out, Exod. xxv. 15. The Hebrew words signify put the staves thereof, that is, upon their shoulders: or, fit and dispose them, under the covering, that they might be laid on their shoulders. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

7. — the continual bread] The shewbread, which stood continually in the presence of God, being renewed every sabbath. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

^c Exod. 25.
39.

and his lamps, and his tongs, and his snuffdishes, and all the oil vessels thereof, wherewith they minister unto it :

10 And they shall put it and all the vessels thereof within a covering of badgers' skins, and shall put it upon a bar.

11 And upon the golden altar they shall spread a cloth of blue, and cover it with a covering of badgers' skins, and shall put to the staves thereof :

12 And they shall take all the instruments of ministry, wherewith they minister in the sanctuary, and put them in a cloth of blue, and cover them with a covering of badgers' skins, and shall put them on a bar :

13 And they shall take away the ashes from the altar, and spread a purple cloth thereon :

14 And they shall put upon it all the vessels thereof, wherewith they minister about it, even the censers, the fleshhooks, and the shovels, and the ||basons, all the vessels of the altar ; and they shall spread upon it a covering of badgers' skins, and put to the staves of it.

|| Or,
bowls.

15 And when Aaron and his sons have made an end of covering the sanctuary, and all the vessels of the sanctuary, as the camp is to set forward ; after that, the sons of Kohath shall come to bear it : but they shall not touch any holy thing, lest they die. These things are the burden of the sons of Kohath in the tabernacle of the congregation.

^d Exod. 30.
34.
^c Exod. 30.
23.

16 ¶ And to the office of Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest pertaineth the oil for the light, and the ^dsweet incense, and the daily meat offering, and the ^aanointing oil, and the oversight of all the tabernacle, and of all that therein is, in the sanctuary, and in the vessels thereof.

17 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

18 Cut ye not off the tribe of the families of the Kohathites from among the Levites :

19 But thus do unto them, that they may live, and not die, when they approach unto the most holy things : Aaron and his sons shall go in, and appoint them every one to his service and to his burden :

Before
CHRIST
1490.

20 But they shall not go in to see when the holy things are covered, lest they die.

21 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

22 Take also the sum of the sons of Gershon, throughout the houses of their fathers, by their families ;

23 From thirty years old and upward until fifty years old shalt thou number them ; all that enter in † to perform the service, to do the work in the tabernacle of the congregation.

† Heb. to war the warfare.

24 This is the service of the families of the Gershonites, to serve, and for ||burdens :

|| Or,
carriage.

25 And they shall bear the curtains of the tabernacle, and the tabernacle of the congregation, his covering, and the covering of the badgers' skins that is above upon it, and the hanging for the door of the tabernacle of the congregation,

26 And the hangings of the court, and the hanging for the door of the gate of the court, which is by the tabernacle and by the altar round about, and their cords, and all the instruments of their service, and all that is made for them : so shall they serve.

27 At the † appointment of Aaron and his sons shall be all the service of the sons of the Gershonites, in all their burdens, and in all their service : and ye shall appoint unto them in charge all their burdens.

† Heb.
mouth.

28 This is the service of the families of the sons of Gershon in the tabernacle of the congregation : and their charge shall be under the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

29 ¶ As for the sons of Merari, thou shalt number them after their families, by the house of their fathers ;

30 From thirty years old and upward even unto fifty years old shalt thou number them, every one that entereth into the † service, to do the work of the tabernacle of the congregation.

† Heb.
warfare.

10. — put it upon a bar.] Rather, a bier ; or a thing broad, and fit to carry the vessels, &c. just mentioned. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

15. — they shall not touch any holy thing.] They were to touch the staves, but not the ark, which is here meant principally by the holy thing, the word any not being in the Hebrew. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

16. And to the office of Eleazar &c. Though the Levites of this class had a particular governour of their own, chap. iii. 30, yet both he and they, in all their important trusts, were to be under the inspection of the high priest's eldest son, as their supervisor, chap. iii. 32. Pyle.

18. Cut ye not off &c.] Do not ye, by your neglect, suffer or cause to be cut off the considerable part of the tribe of Levi, namely, the families of the Kohathites, from among the Levites, by giving them opportunity to touch any of the holy things, or not sufficiently warning them, again and again, to the contrary. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1490.
'Exod. 26.
15.

31 And this is the charge of their burden, according to all their service in the tabernacle of the congregation; 'the boards of the tabernacle, and the bars thereof, and the pillars thereof, and sockets thereof;

32 And the pillars of the court round about, and their sockets, and their pins, and their cords, with all their instruments, and with all their service: and by name ye shall reckon the instruments of the charge of their burden.

33 This is the service of the families of the sons of Merari, according to all their service, in the tabernacle of the congregation, under the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

34 ¶ And Moses and Aaron and the chief of the congregation numbered the sons of the Kohathites after their families, and after the house of their fathers,

35 From thirty years old and upward even unto fifty years old, every one that entereth into the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation:

36 And those that were numbered of them by their families were two thousand seven hundred and fifty.

37 These were they that were numbered of the families of the Kohathites, all that might do service in the tabernacle of the congregation, which Moses and Aaron did number according to the commandment of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

38 And those that were numbered of the sons of Gershon, throughout their families, and by the house of their fathers,

39 From thirty years old and upward even unto fifty years old, every one that entereth into the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation,

40 Even those that were numbered of them, throughout their families, by the house of their fathers, were two thousand and six hundred and thirty.

41 These are they that were numbered of the families of the sons of Gershon, of all that might do service in the tabernacle of the congregation, whom Moses and Aaron did number according to the commandment of the LORD.

42 ¶ And those that were numbered of the families of the sons of Merari, throughout their families, by the house of their fathers, Before CHRIST

1490.

43 From thirty years old and upward even unto fifty years old, every one that entereth into the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation,

44 Even those that were numbered of them after their families, were three thousand and two hundred.

45 These be those that were numbered of the families of the sons of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron numbered according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

46 All those that were numbered of the Levites, whom Moses and Aaron and the chief of Israel numbered, after their families, and after the house of their fathers,

47 From thirty years old and upward even unto fifty years old, every one that came to do the service of the ministry, and the service of the burden in the tabernacle of the congregation,

48 Even those that were numbered of them, were eight thousand and five hundred and fourscore.

49 According to the commandment of the LORD they were numbered by the hand of Moses, every one according to his service, and according to his burden: thus were they numbered of him, as the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAP. V.

¹ The unclean are removed out of the camp. ⁵ Restitution is to be made in trespasses. ¹¹ The trial of jealousy.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

² Command the children of Israel, that they put out of the camp every ^aleper, and every one that hath an ^bissue, and whosoever is defiled by the ^cdead:

^a Lev. 13. 3.

^b Lev. 15. 2.

^c Lev. 21. 1.

³ Both male and female shall ye put out, without the camp shall ye put them; that they defile not their camps, in the midst whereof I dwell.

⁴ And the children of Israel did so, and put them out without the camp: as the LORD spake unto Moses, so did the children of Israel.

Chap. V. ver. 2. — put out of the camp &c.] There were three camps, as may be learned from what has gone before, and as the Jewish writers have observed. 1. The camp of the Shechinah, or of the Lord; namely, the sanctuary, with its courts, where God was said to dwell, and which are called the tents of the Lord, 2 Chron. xxxi. 2. 2. The camp of the Levites, who, with Aaron and his sons, encamped round about the sanctuary, ch. iii. 3. The camp of Israel, chap. ii, which encompassed them all. Lepers were not admitted into any of these three camps: he, that had an issue, was excluded from the two first; but might be in the camp of Israel: and he that was defiled by the dead was excluded, only from the sanctuary, and not from the other two. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

Lev. 6. 3.

6 Speak unto the children of Israel, When a man or woman shall commit any sin that men commit, to do a trespass against the LORD, and that person be guilty;

Lev. 6. 5.

7 Then they shall confess their sin which they have done: and he shall recompense his trespass with the principal thereof, and add unto it the fifth part thereof, and give it unto him against whom he hath trespassed.

8 But if the man have no kinsman to recompense the trespass unto, let the trespass be recompensed unto the LORD, even to the priest; beside the ram of the atonement, whereby an atonement shall be made for him.

¶ Or,
heave offering.

9 And every ¶ offering of all the holy things of the children of Israel, which they bring unto the priest, shall be his.

Lev. 10.
12.

10 And every man's hallowed things shall be his: whatsoever any man giveth the priest, it shall be his.

11 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, If any man's wife go aside, and commit a trespass against him,

13 And a man lie with her carnally, and it be hid from the eyes of her husband, and be kept close, and she be defiled, and there be no witness against her, neither she be taken with the manner;

14 And the spirit of jealousy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and she

Before
CHRIST
1490.

be defiled: or if the spirit of jealousy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and she be not defiled:

15 Then shall the man bring his wife unto the priest, and he shall bring her offering for her, the tenth part of an ephah of barley meal; he shall pour no oil upon it, nor put frankincense thereon; for it is an offering of jealousy, an offering of memorial, bringing iniquity to remembrance.

16 And the priest shall bring her near, and set her before the LORD:

17 And the priest shall take holy water in an earthen vessel; and of the dust that is in the floor of the tabernacle the priest shall take, and put it into the water:

18 And the priest shall set the woman before the LORD, and uncover the woman's head, and put the offering of memorial in her hands, which is the jealousy offering: and the priest shall have in his hand the bitter water that causeth the curse:

19 And the priest shall charge her by an oath, and say unto the woman, If no man have lain with thee, and if thou hast not gone aside to uncleanness ¶ with another instead of thy husband, be thou free from this bitter water that causeth the curse:

¶ Or, being in the power of thy husband.
† Heb. under thy husband.

20 But if thou hast gone aside to another instead of thy husband, and if thou be defiled, and some man have lain with thee beside thine husband:

21 Then the priest shall charge the woman with an oath of cursing, and the priest shall say unto the woman, The LORD make thee a curse and an oath among thy people,

6. — commit any sin that men commit,] That is, which they are ordinarily obnoxious to, or overtaken with. Bp. Kidder. Any sin of frailty or infirmity, which is commonly incident to every man. Bp. Hall. In the Hebrew the words are, shall commit any sin of man; that is, any sin against his neighbour: as in Joel iii. 19; "violence of the children of Judah" is truly translated, "violence against the children of Judah." It is plain from ver. 7, 8, that Moses here speaks of offences against their neighbours. Bp. Patrick.

— to do a trespass against the Lord,] Such offences against their neighbours, as were also offences against God; such as frauds and cheats put on men by a false oath. Bp. Patrick. The context manifestly implies, that a sin against our neighbour is an offence against God. Pyle.

— that person be guilty;] Or rather, be sensible of his guilt. See Lev. vi. 4. Bp. Patrick.

7. — and he shall recompense his trespass with the principal thereof, &c.] Under the Levitical law, reconciliation could be obtained only by repentance, and no repentance was accepted, which did not prove its sincerity by practical reformation. For every transgression the Law prescribed a trespass offering. Where the transgression was of a mere ritual precept, and committed without deliberation or design; when discovered, the trespass offering was sufficient alone: for this shewed, that the offender acknowledged the authority of the Law, which he had unintentionally violated. But where the transgression included any encroachment on the rights of another, the trespass offering could not be received, unless it was accompanied by a public acknowledgment of the offence, a resignation of the usurped property, and a restitution to the person injured, if he or his heir could be found; if not, the usurped property was to be consecrated to pious uses, as the offender could not procure pardon, while he retained it. No regulation could point out more clearly the inefficacy of sacrifice, where guilt was not unfeignedly repented of, and all the advantages, which had tempted to its perpetration, renounced and resigned; and where full restitution to the injured individual did not accompany humiliation before God. Dr. Graves.

18. — the bitter water] The water which shall prove bitterly afflictive and deadly to her, if she be guilty. See ver. 27. Bp. Hall.

21. — The Lord make thee a curse] So that when men would imprecate evil on another, they should say, Let that befall thee, which befell such a woman. Bp. Kidder.

The water of jealousy, drunk by an Israelitish woman, suspected of infidelity to her husband, but denying that crime, has been a subject of great difficulty. It appears to have contained the essence of an oath, varied for the purpose of peculiar solemnity: so that a woman would naturally hesitate to take such an oath, understood to be an appeal to Heaven of the most solemn kind: understood also to be accompanied, in case of perjury, by most painful and fatal effects. The drinking appears to have been a symbolical action: when "the priest wrote the curses in a book,"

Before
CHRIST
1490.

† Heb.
full.

when the LORD doth make thy thigh to rot, and thy belly to swell;

22 And this water that causeth the curse shall go into thy bowels, to make thy belly to swell, and thy thigh to rot. And the woman shall say, Amen, amen.

23 And the priest shall write these curses in a book, and he shall blot them out with the bitter water:

24 And he shall cause the woman to drink the bitter water that causeth the curse: and the water that causeth the curse shall enter into her, and become bitter.

25 Then the priest shall take the jealousy offering out of the woman's hand, and shall wave the offering before the LORD, and offer it upon the altar:

26 And the priest shall take an handful of the offering, even the memorial thereof, and burn it upon the altar, and afterward shall cause the woman to drink the water.

27 And when he hath made her to drink the water, then it shall come to pass, that, if she be defiled, and have done trespass against her husband, that the water that causeth the curse shall enter into her, and become bitter, and her belly shall swell, and her thigh shall rot: and the woman shall be a curse among her people.

28 And if the woman be not defiled, but be clean; then she shall be free, and shall conceive seed.

29 This is the law of jealousies, when a and washed those curses into the water which was to be drunk, the water was understood to be impregnated, as it were, to be tintured with the curse, the acrimony of which it received; so that now it was metaphorically bitter, containing the curse in it. The drinking of this curse, though conditionally effective or non-effective, could not but have a great effect on the woman's mind; and an answerable effect on the husband's jealousy, which it was designed to cure and to dissipate. Script. illust. Expos. Ind.

29. This is the law of jealousies.] By which God declared Himself to be privy to the most secret sins; and to be both the preserver of conjugal faith and chastity, and the protector of innocence: and at the same time prevented all other hard and cruel usage of the wife, in the case of the husband's jealousy. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

It has been well remarked, that this species of ordeal could not injure the innocent at all, or punish the guilty, except by a miracle: whereas, in the ordeals by fire, &c. in the dark ages, the innocent could scarcely escape, but by a miracle. Dr. Graves.

31. Then shall the man be guiltless.] Nor shall the husband incur any reproach in thus prosecuting the wife, that gives him occasion of jealousy, whether she prove really guilty or not. If she appear innocent, she still pays for her indiscretion: and if guilty, she has the just punishment of her crime. Pyle.

From this declaration of God, that He would chastise the offender, and from this mention of the particular chastisement, in a case, for which no human punishment could be inflicted, appears the unreasonableness of supposing that Moses was indeed a virtuous and wise man, but that the Law, which he drew up for the wife goeth aside to another instead of her husband, and is defiled;

30 Or when the spirit of jealousy cometh upon him, and he be jealous over his wife, and shall set the woman before the LORD, and the priest shall execute upon her all this law.

31 Then shall the man be guiltless from iniquity, and this woman shall bear her iniquity.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

CHAP. VI.

1 The law of the Nazarites. 22 The form of blessing the people.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When either man or woman shall || separate themselves to vow a vow of a Nazarite, to separate themselves unto the LORD:

|| Or, make themselves Na-zarites.

3 He shall separate himself from wine and strong drink, and shall drink no vinegar of wine, or vinegar of strong drink, neither shall he drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat moist grapes, or dried.

4 All the days of his || separation shall he eat nothing that is made of the † vine tree, from the kernels even to the husk.

|| Or,
Nazarite-ship.
† Heb.
vine of the wine.
5. Judg. 13.
1 Sam. 1.
11.

5 All the days of the vow of his separation there shall no ^a razor come upon his head: until the days be fulfilled, in the which he separateth himself unto the LORD,

Israelites, was of his own contrivance, and that he called it a Divine revelation, to make the people reverence it, and imposed upon them for their good. As he was a virtuous man, he would not have done evil that good might come of it; and as he was a wise man, he would never have made such laws as this and others like it, and have promised what he was not able to perform. It follows that, as he was a virtuous and wise man, his Law was indeed a Divine revelation. See Lev. xx. 20, 21; xvii. 10. Dr. Jortin.

Chap. VI. ver. 2. — to vow a vow of a Nazarite.] That is, a vow of separation or abstinence; for the Hebrew word, from which Nazarite comes, signifies “to separate or abstain.” Bp. Kidder. “Nazarite” denotes one separated from others by a profession of some extraordinary and special acts of religion. Bp. Patrick.

3. He shall separate himself from wine.] That by abstaining from every intoxicating liquor he might the better attend to the study of the law and other exercises of religion. Bp. Patrick.

— and strong drink.] Chiefly such drink was here meant, as was made of dates, figs, or other fruits; or of honey, as metheglin or mead. Malt liquor was very little, if at all, used in those countries and times. Dr. Wells.

— liquor of grapes.] That which is made of grapes bruised in water, after the juice had been pressed out to make wine. Bp. Patrick.

4. All the days of his separation.] Or “Nazariteship,” as in the margin. This might be for a whole life, as in the cases of Samson, and John the Baptist: or for a set time; even as little as a week. See Acts xxi. 26, 27. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

he shall be holy, and shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow.

6 All the days that he separateth himself unto the LORD he shall come at no dead body.

† Heb.
separation.

7 He shall not make himself unclean for his father, or for his mother, for his brother, or for his sister, when they die: because the † consecration of his God is upon his head.

8 All the days of his separation he is holy unto the LORD.

9 And if any man die very suddenly by him, and he hath defiled the head of his consecration; then he shall shave his head in the day of his cleansing, on the seventh day shall he shave it.

10 And on the eighth day he shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons, to the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation:

11 And the priest shall offer the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering, and make an atonement for him, for that he sinned by the dead, and shall hallow his head that same day.

† Heb. fall.

12 And he shall consecrate unto the LORD the days of his separation, and shall bring a lamb of the first year for a trespass offering: but the days that were before shall † be lost, because his separation was defiled.

13 ¶ And this is the law of the Nazarite, when the days of his separation are fulfilled: he shall be brought unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation:

14 And he shall offer his offering unto the LORD, one he lamb of the first year without blemish for a burnt offering, and one ewe lamb of the first year without blemish for a sin offering, and one ram without blemish for peace offerings,

15 And a basket of unleavened bread,

7. He shall not make himself unclean for his father, &c.] By attending on any funeral solemnity; looking on himself as one so entirely consecrated to God, as to be obliged to abstain in these cases, more than the ordinary priests, and as much as the high priest himself. Pyle.

9. — he hath defiled the head of his consecration;] Meaning, the consecration of his head; that is, his hair, which, having been consecrated to God, was defiled by being accidentally near a dead body. His Nazariteship was interrupted by this defilement, so that it could not proceed further: but, after the usual purifications, was to be begun anew, by shaving off the polluted hair, and letting new hair grow instead of it. Moses here speaks only of such as made this vow for a limited time. Perpetual Nazarites were never shaven, whatever defilement they might contract. Bp. Patrick.

11. — he sinned by the dead,] Contracted a legal defilement by means of the dead. Bp. Patrick.

VOL. I.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, and wafers of unleavened bread anointed with oil, and their meat offering, and their drink offerings.

16 And the priest shall bring them before the LORD, and shall offer his sin offering, and his burnt offering:

17 And he shall offer the ram for a sacrifice of peace offerings unto the LORD, with the basket of unleavened bread: the priest shall offer also his meat offering, and his drink offering.

18 ^b And the Nazarite shall shave the head of his separation at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall take the hair of the head of his separation, and put it in the fire which is under the sacrifice of the peace offerings. ^{b Acts 21. 24.}

19 And the priest shall take the sodden shoulder of the ram, and one unleavened cake out of the basket, and one unleavened wafer, and shall put them upon the hands of the Nazarite, after the hair of his separation is shaven:

20 And the priest shall wave them ^c for a wave offering before the LORD: this is holy for the priest, with the wave breast and heave shoulder: and after that the Nazarite may drink wine. ^{c Exod. 29. 27.}

21 This is the law of the Nazarite who hath vowed, and of his offering unto the LORD for his separation, beside that that his hand shall get: according to the vow which he vowed, so he must do after the law of his separation.

22 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Speak unto Aaron and unto his sons, saying, On this wise ye shall bless the children of Israel, saying unto them,

24 The LORD bless thee, and keep thee:

25 The LORD make his face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee:

14. — he shall offer his offering &c.] Here are all sorts of offerings: a burnt offering, as an acknowledgment of God's sovereign dominion; a sin offering, imploring pardon for any omission, of which he might have been guilty during this vow; and a peace offering, in thankfulness to God, who had given him grace to make, keep, and fulfil this vow. Bp. Patrick.

19. — shall put them upon the hands of the Nazarite,] That he might present them to the priest in token of gratitude. Bp. Patrick.

23. Speak unto Aaron and unto his sons,] Whose proper office it was to bless the people; as it was to offer sacrifices, and burn incense, Deut. xxi. 5. Bp. Patrick.

24. The Lord bless thee, and keep thee;] Give thee all good things, and preserve thee from evil. Bp. Patrick.

25. The Lord make his face shine upon thee,] Make thee to perceive that He looks on thee with a pleasing and favourable countenance: "and be gracious unto thee," especially in the pardon of thy sins. Dr. Wells.

M m

Before
CHRIST
1490.

26 The LORD lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace.

27 And they shall put my name upon the children of Israel; and I will bless them.

CHAP. VII.

1 The offering of the princes at the dedication of the tabernacle. 10 Their several offerings at the dedication of the altar. 89 God speaketh to Moses from the mercy seat.

* Exod. 40
15.

AND it came to pass on the day that Moses had fully ^a set up the tabernacle, and had anointed it, and sanctified it, and all the instruments thereof, both the altar and all the vessels thereof, and had anointed them, and sanctified them;

2 That the princes of Israel, heads of

26. The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee,] As a man is wont to lift up his countenance upon one, for whom he has a favour; and therefore loves to look upon as much as he can. Dr. Wells. The "lifting up of the countenance" upon any person denotes favour and good-will towards him. Dr. Blayney.

— and give thee peace.] Outward and inward. Dr. Wells. As a proof of His care and special protection, may He give thee all the tokens of His kindness, the greatest of His benefits and favours. Bp. Kidder.

The repetition of the name JEHOVAH three times in these three verses, and that with a different accent in each of them, hath made the Jews themselves think that there is some mystery in it. It may well be looked upon, as having respect to the three Persons in the blessed Trinity: who are one God, from whom all blessings flow unto us, 2 Cor. xiii. 14. This mystery, as Luther wisely expresses it, is here secretly insinuated, though not plainly revealed. And it is not hard to shew, if this were the place for it, how properly God the Father may be said to bless and keep us; and God the Son, to be gracious unto us; and God the Holy Ghost, to give us peace. Bp. Patrick.

After this form the high priest was commanded to bless the children of Israel. The name of the LORD, in Hebrew JEHOVAH, is here repeated three times. And parallel to this is the form of Christian baptism, wherein the three personal terms of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, are not represented as so many different names, but as one name: the one Divine nature of God being no more divided by these three, than by the single name Jehovah thrice repeated. If the three articles of this benediction be attentively considered, their contents will be found to agree respectively to the three Persons taken in the usual order of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. The Father is the Author of blessing and preservation. Grace and illumination are from the Son, by whom we have "the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ," 2 Cor. iv. 6. Peace is the gift of the Spirit, whose name is the Comforter, and whose first and best fruit is the work of peace. Jones of Nayland.

27. And they shall put my name &c.] Laying their hands upon the children of Israel, they shall call upon My name for a blessing, and it shall be given by Me, according to their prayers. Bp. Hall. The Jews from hence observe, that God's blessing in some sort depends upon the blessing of the priest. And this they thought so necessary, that such priests, as were admitted to no other service, might perform this, for fear the people should at any time want it. Bp. Patrick.

When the priest pronounced this blessing to the people, as we still do in the Visitation of the Sick, God promised that He Himself would accordingly bless them. And when men faithfully and devoutly receive it as they ought, there is no question but the house of their fathers, who were the princes of the tribes, † and were over them that were numbered, offered:

Before
CHRIST
1490.

† Heb.
who stood.

3 And they brought their offering before the LORD, six covered wagons, and twelve oxen; a wagon for two of the princes, and for each one an ox: and they brought them before the tabernacle.

4 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

5 Take it of them, that they may be to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation; and thou shalt give them unto the Levites, to every man according to his service.

6 And Moses took the wagons and the oxen, and gave them unto the Levites.

7 Two wagons and four oxen he gave that God continues to bless them now: or when the priest pronounces in His name the same blessing, according to the Apostolical form of words, "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the Love of God, and the Communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all. Amen." 2 Cor. xiii. 14. Bp. Beveridge.

— and I will bless them.] Lest any should despise this blessing, because pronounced by a poor mortal like themselves, it is added, "I will bless them." The blessing dependeth, not on the priest, but on God's ordinance. Bp. Wilson. To promote a due regard in His people to their teachers and rulers, the sacred writings ascribe a peculiar efficacy to their praying over those committed to their charge. Even under the Jewish dispensation, the family of Aaron were told, that "them the Lord had separated to minister unto Him, and to bless in the name of the Lord: and they shall put My name," saith God, "upon the children of Israel, and I will bless them." No wonder then, if under the Christian dispensation we read, that the Apostles, when they were come down to Samaria, prayed for the new-baptized converts, that they might receive the Holy Ghost; and that, on their laying their hands upon them, they did receive Him accordingly, Acts viii. 15, 17. Abp. Secker.

Chap. VII. ver. 1. — on the day] An Hebraism, signifying not only a precise and stated day, but often used to signify in, or about, or after such a time. Pyle. "On the day that;" in English, when.

2. — the princes — offered:] They testified, by their several gifts, their joyful celebration of the dedication of the tabernacle and the altar. Bp. Hall. They agreed together, whether at their own proper expense, or in conjunction with others of the richer and abler sort, to make a liberal present or offering for the use of this house of God, each as the representative of his own tribe. Pyle.

5. — thou shalt give them unto the Levites, to every man according to his service.] Agreeably to this, Moses distributed them to two families of the Levites, for the third were to carry the part assigned to them, the furniture of the Holy of Holies, upon their shoulders: of these two families, to one were assigned two wagons, to the other, four. The reason of this inequality is not specified: but on turning back to the fourth chapter we find, that the family, to which the four wagons are assigned, had been appointed to carry the solid, and therefore heavy, part of the tabernacle, its boards, and bars, and pillars; while that family, to which the two wagons are assigned, was appointed to carry the lighter parts; its curtains and coverings, its hangings and cords. Such minute and apparently unimportant coincidences as these could not have arisen from any thing but reality, and supply very decisive proofs of the truth and authenticity of the history. Dr. Graves.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

unto the sons of Gershon, according to their service :

8 And four wagons and eight oxen he gave unto the sons of Merari, according unto their service, under the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

9 But unto the sons of Kohath he gave none : because the service of the sanctuary belonging unto them was that they should bear upon their shoulders.

10 ¶ And the princes offered for dedicating of the altar in the day that it was anointed, even the princes offered their offering before the altar.

11 And the LORD said unto Moses, They shall offer their offering, each prince on his day, for the dedicating of the altar.

12 ¶ And he that offered his offering the first day was Nahshon the son of Amminadab, of the tribe of Judah :

13 And his offering was one silver charger, the weight thereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary ; both of them were full of fine flour mingled with oil for a ^b meat offering :

^b Lev. 2. 1.

14 One spoon of ten shekels of gold, full of incense :

15 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering :

^c Lev. 4. 23.

16 One kid of the goats for a ^c sin offering :

17 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year : this was the offering of Nahshon the son of Amminadab.

18 ¶ On the second day Nethaneel the son of Zuar, prince of Issachar, did offer :

19 He offered for his offering one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary ; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering :

Before
CHRIST
1490.

20 One spoon of gold of ten shekels, full of incense :

21 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering :

22 One kid of the goats for a sin offering :

23 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year : this was the offering of Nethaneel the son of Zuar.

24 ¶ On the third day Eliab the son of Helon, prince of the children of Zebulun, did offer :

25 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary ; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering :

26 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense :

27 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering :

28 One kid of the goats for a sin offering :

29 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year : this was the offering of Eliab the son of Helon.

30 ¶ On the fourth day Elizur the son of Shedeur, prince of the children of Reuben, did offer :

31 His offering was one silver charger of the weight of an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary ; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering :

32 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense :

33 One young bullock, one ram, one

10. — dedicating] The “dedicating” of a thing, here, and in several other places, signifies the first application of it to sacred uses, or to the Divine service, to which it had been designed and consecrated. The altar had been “dedicated,” in the sense of setting it apart and sanctifying it for the service of God, Exod. xxix. 27 ; Lev. viii. 11. It now began to be used, after it had been so sanctified. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

11. — each prince on his day,] To render the dedication more solemn ; to avoid all confusion ; and that every tribe, by its representative, might distinctly express its devotion to God, and receive a gracious entertainment from Him. Pyle.

12. And he that offered his offering &c.] The offerings of all the princes were the same in kind, number, and value : to prevent all vanity and emulation among the tribes ; and to shew that they were all equally interested in the altar, and acceptable to the Divine Majesty. The offering of each consisted of one silver bason, for receiving the parts of the several sacrifices, weighing 130 shekels, or about sixty-five ounces : one silver bowl, to hold the blood, wine, or flour, of seventy shekels, or about thirty-five ounces weight ; both of these being full of flour and oil : one gold spoon, to take up the incense with, full of incense, weighing ten shekels, or about five ounces : a burnt offering, consisting of a bullock, a ram, and a lamb : a sin offering, of a goat : and an eucharistical, or peace offering, consisting of two oxen, five rams, five he goats, and five lambs, with meat offerings of bread, and cakes, annexed to them : the priests, princes, and as many of the people as were invited, being to feast on their share of the last named sacrifice. Pyle.

— Nahshon the son of Amminadab,] This Nahshon was an ancestor of our Saviour according to the flesh. The value of each of these presents was about eighty or ninety pounds : of the twelve, about £1000. Dr. Wall.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering :

34 One kid of the goats for a sin offering :

35 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year : this was the offering of Elizur the son of Shedeur.

36 ¶ On the fifth day Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai, prince of the children of Simeon, did offer :

37 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary ; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering :

38 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense :

39 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering :

40 One kid of the goats for a sin offering :

41 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year : this was the offering of Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

42 ¶ On the sixth day Eliasaph the son of Deuel, prince of the children of Gad, offered :

43 His offering was one silver charger of the weight of an hundred and thirty shekels, a silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary ; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering :

44 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense :

45 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering :

46 One kid of the goats for a sin offering :

47 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year : this was the offering of Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

48 ¶ On the seventh day Elishama the son of Ammihud, prince of the children of Ephraim, offered :

49 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary ; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering :

50 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense :

51 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering :

52 One kid of the goats for a sin offering :

Before
CHRIST
1490.

53 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year : this was the offering of Elishama the son of Ammihud.

54 ¶ On the eighth day offered Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur, prince of the children of Manasseh :

55 His offering was one silver charger of the weight of an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary ; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering :

56 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense :

57 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering :

58 One kid of the goats for a sin offering :

59 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year : this was the offering of Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

60 ¶ On the ninth day Abidan the son of Gideoni, prince of the children of Benjamin, offered :

61 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary ; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering :

62 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense :

63 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering :

64 One kid of the goats for a sin offering :

65 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year : this was the offering of Abidan the son of Gideoni.

66 ¶ On the tenth day Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai, prince of the children of Dan, offered :

67 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary ; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering :

68 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense :

69 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering :

70 One kid of the goats for a sin offering :

71 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings,

Before
CHRIST
1490.

two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

72 ¶ On the eleventh day Pagiel the son of Ocran, prince of the children of Asher, offered:

73 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering:

74 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

75 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering:

76 One kid of the goats for a sin offering:

77 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Pagiel the son of Ocran.

78 ¶ On the twelfth day Ahira the son of Enan, prince of the children of Naphtali, offered:

79 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering:

80 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

81 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering:

82 One kid of the goats for a sin offering:

83 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Ahira the son of Enan.

84 This was the dedication of the altar, in the day when it was anointed, by the princes of Israel: twelve chargers of silver, twelve silver bowls, twelve spoons of gold:

85 Each charger of silver weighing an hundred and thirty shekels, each bowl seventy: all the silver vessels weighed two thousand and four hundred shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary:

86 The golden spoons were twelve, full of incense, weighing ten shekels apiece, after the shekel of the sanctuary: all the gold of the spoons was an hundred and twenty shekels.

87 All the oxen for the burnt offering were twelve bullocks, the rams twelve, the lambs of the first year twelve, with their meat offering: and the kids of the goats for sin offering twelve.

88 And all the oxen for the sacrifice of the peace offerings were twenty and four bullocks, the rams sixty, the he goats sixty, the lambs of the first year sixty. This was the dedication of the altar, after that it was anointed.

89 And when Moses was gone into the tabernacle of the congregation to speak with ¶ him, then he heard the voice of one speaking unto him from off the mercy seat that was upon the ark of testimony, from between the two cherubims: and he spake unto him. ¶ That is, God.

CHAP. VIII.

1 How the lamps are to be lighted. 5 The consecration of the Levites. 23 The age and time of their service.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron, and say unto him, When thou ^a lightest the lamps, the seven ^b Exod. 25. lamps shall give light over against the candlestick. ^{37. & 40. 25.}

3 And Aaron did so; he lighted the lamps thereof over against the candlestick, as the LORD commanded Moses.

4 ^b And this work of the candlestick was ^c Exod. 25. of beaten gold, unto the shaft thereof, unto the flowers thereof, was ^c beaten work: according unto the pattern which the LORD had shewed Moses, so he made the candlestick. ^{31. 13.}

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

6 Take the Levites from among the children of Israel, and cleanse them.

7 And thus shalt thou do unto them, to cleanse them: Sprinkle water of purifying upon them, and † let them shave all their flesh, and let them wash their clothes, and so make themselves clean. † Heb. let them cause a razor to pass over, &c.

84. This was the dedication of the altar,] It seems plain, that both the altars were now dedicated: because the great quantity of incense, here presented, was to be offered on the golden altar, as the flesh of the beasts was on the great brasen altar: though the latter alone is mentioned as principal, agreeably to the common use of the sacred writings. Thus magnificently did the tribes of Israel, in a religious festival of twelve days' continuance, declare their piety and reverence towards God, and an exemplary liberality in providing for His ministry and worship. Pyle.

Chap. VIII. ver. 2. — over against the candlestick.] Every way before the candlestick; that is, all over the tabernacle. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

8 Then let them take a young bullock with his meat offering, even fine flour mingled with oil, and another young bullock shalt thou take for a sin offering.

9 And thou shalt bring the Levites before the tabernacle of the congregation: and thou shalt gather the whole assembly of the children of Israel together:

10 And thou shalt bring the Levites before the LORD: and the children of Israel shall put their hands upon the Levites:

† Heb.
wave.
† Heb. wave offering.
† Heb.
they may be to execute,
&c.

11 And Aaron shall † offer the Levites before the LORD for an † offering of the children of Israel, that † they may execute the service of the LORD.

12 And the Levites shall lay their hands upon the heads of the bullocks: and thou shalt offer the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering, unto the LORD, to make an atonement for the Levites.

13 And thou shalt set the Levites before Aaron, and before his sons, and offer them for an offering unto the LORD.

^d Chap. 3.
45.

14 Thus shalt thou separate the Levites from among the children of Israel: and the Levites shall be ^d mine.

15 And after that shall the Levites go in to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation: and thou shalt cleanse them, and offer them for an offering.

16 For they are wholly given unto me from among the children of Israel; instead of such as open every womb, even instead of the firstborn of all the children of Israel, have I taken them unto me.

^c Exod. 13.
2.
chap. 3. 13.
Luke 2. 23.

17 ^c For all the firstborn of the children of Israel are mine, both man and beast: on the day that I smote every firstborn in the land of Egypt I sanctified them for myself.

10. — shall put their hands upon the Levites:— As the offerer was wont to do upon his sacrifice, thereby signifying the devoting of it to God. By the sanctification of the firstborn to God, Exod. xiii. 1, the whole family was sanctified, and their sin after a manner expiated. The offering of the Levites to God in this way, instead of the firstborn, was to have the same effect; namely, the sanctification and atonement of the children of Israel. Bp. Patrick.

12. — to make an atonement for the Levites. The end proposed by the legal atonements was to recommend and make acceptable to God the things intended for His service, which on account of some unfitness, either natural or acquired, were objects of displeasure rather than of favour. Accordingly atonement implies a double effect; one referring to the thing, the other to God. With respect to the thing, it implies the removal of the uncleanness, which made it an object of displeasure: with respect to God, it implies a removal of the displeasure, which the uncleanness had occasioned. The atonement was made for the thing, which being in itself unclean and unholy, was in consequence cleansed and sanctified: but it was made to God, that He might be reconciled to, and take pleasure in, those things, which in their natural state were unworthy and unfit for His service. Hence an atonement

Before
CHRIST
1490.

18 And I have taken the Levites for all the firstborn of the children of Israel.

19 And I have given the Levites as † a † Heb. given. gift to Aaron and to his sons from among the children of Israel, to do the service of the children of Israel in the tabernacle of the congregation, and to make an atonement for the children of Israel: that there be no plague among the children of Israel, when the children of Israel come nigh unto the sanctuary.

20 And Moses, and Aaron, and all the congregation of the children of Israel, did to the Levites according unto all that the LORD commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did the children of Israel unto them.

21 And the Levites were purified, and they washed their clothes; and Aaron offered them as an offering before the LORD; and Aaron made an atonement for them to cleanse them.

22 And after that went the Levites in to do their service in the tabernacle of the congregation before Aaron, and before his sons: as the LORD had commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did they unto them.

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 This is it that belongeth unto the Levites: from twenty and five years old and upward they shall go in † to wait upon the service of the tabernacle of the congregation:

† Heb. to war the warfare of,
&c.

25 And from the age of fifty years they shall † cease waiting upon the service there- of, and shall serve no more:

† Heb. return from the warfare of the service.

26 But shall minister with their brethren was made for the altar, when it was originally consecrated, Exod. xxix. 36, 37, and for the Levites, when they were dedicated to their office and ministry, in order that, being cleansed from that pollution, which necessarily cleaves to all terrestrial things, they might become acceptable to God, and fit for His service. In like manner, and for the same reason, atonements were appointed in cases, where the uncleanness was contracted: for a house, after having been infected with leprosy, Lev. xiv. 53; at the purification of a leper, Lev. xiv. 18; after involuntary uncleanness, Lev. xv. 15, 30; and sins of ignorance, Lev. iv. 20, 26, 35; v. 18; as well as in some cases of wilful transgression, upon repentance and restitution, Lev. vi. 5—7. Veysie.

19. — and to make an atonement Not by offering sacrifice, which was the work of the priests alone; but by being offered themselves in the nature of an expiatory sacrifice. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. By ministering to the priests, who made the atonement, and by worshipping God according to His own direction in the room and stead of the people. Bp. Kidder.

— that there be no plague &c.— Thus they kept the people from intermeddling in sacred things and services, and prevented those Divine judgments that are due to such profanation. Pyle.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

in the tabernacle of the congregation, to keep the charge, and shall do no service. Thus shalt thou do unto the Levites touching their charge.

CHAP. IX.

¹ The passover is commanded again. ⁶ A second passover allowed for them that were unclean or absent. ¹⁵ The cloud guideth the removings and encampings of the Israelites.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first month of the second year after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying,

² Let the children of Israel also keep ^a the passover at his appointed season.

^a Exod. 12. 1, &c.
Lev. 23. 5.
chap. 28. 16.
Deut. 16. 2.
† Heb. between the two evenings.

³ In the fourteenth day of this month, [†] at even, ye shall keep it in his appointed season: according to all the rites of it, and according to all the ceremonies thereof, shall ye keep it.

⁴ And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, that they should keep the passover.

⁵ And they kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the first month at even in the wilderness of Sinai: according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did the children of Israel.

⁶ ¶ And there were certain men, who were defiled by the dead body of a man, that they could not keep the passover on that day: and they came before Moses and before Aaron on that day:

⁷ And those men said unto him, We are defiled by the dead body of a man: wherefore are we kept back, that we may not offer an offering of the LORD in his appointed season among the children of Israel?

⁸ And Moses said unto them, Stand still, and I will hear what the LORD will command concerning you.

⁹ ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

¹⁰ Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If any man of you or of your posterity shall be unclean by reason of a dead body, or be in a journey afar off, yet he shall keep the passover unto the LORD.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

¹¹ The fourteenth day of the second month at even they shall keep it, and eat it with unleavened bread and bitter herbs.

¹² They shall leave none of it unto the morning, ^b nor break any bone of it: according to all the ordinances of the passover they shall keep it.

^b Exod. 12. 46.
John 19. 36.

¹³ But the man that is clean, and is not in a journey, and forbeareth to keep the passover, even the same soul shall be cut off from among his people: because he brought not the offering of the LORD in his appointed season, that man shall bear his sin.

¹⁴ And if a stranger shall sojourn among you, and will keep the passover unto the LORD; according to the ordinance of the passover, and according to the manner thereof, so shall he do: ^c ye shall have one ordinance, both for the stranger, and for him that was born in the land.

^c Exod. 12. 49.

¹⁵ ¶ And ^d on the day that the tabernacle was reared up the cloud covered the tabernacle, namely, the tent of the testimony: and at even there was upon the tabernacle as it were the appearance of fire, until the morning.

^d Exod. 40. 34.

¹⁶ So it was alway: the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night.

¹⁷ And when the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle, then after that the children of Israel journeyed: and in the place where the cloud abode, there the children of Israel pitched their tents.

¹⁸ At the commandment of the LORD the children of Israel journeyed, and at the commandment of the LORD they pitched: ^e as long as the cloud abode upon the tabernacle they rested in their tents.

^e 1 Cor. 10. 1.

¹⁹ And when the cloud [†] tarried long upon the tabernacle many days, then the

[†] Heb.
prolonge f.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. — the Lord spake — in the first month] Here the history returns to speak of the passover in the first month; for all that has hitherto been said in this book relates to the second month, chap. i. 1. It should rather be here translated, “the Lord had spoken,” namely, in the first month. Dr. Wall.

². Let the children of Israel also keep the passover] This is a special command to the Israelites on the present occasion: for the passover was annexed to the land of Canaan in its first institution, Exod. xii. 25. Nor do we find that it was at any time, besides this, kept in the wilderness; or that they were any farther obliged to it in the wilderness, where they might not be provided with lambs, and where they continued in their uncircumcision, Exod. xii. 48; Josh. v. 5. Bp. Kidder.

13. — the man that is clean, &c.] While provision was made to enable those who were defiled to keep the passover, strict charge was at the same time given, that no Israelite or Proselyte should omit the passover through negligence or forgetfulness; but that every member of their religion, by circumcision, should attend upon it in every annual return, upon pain of being cut off by the sentence of the judges, or by the hand of God. Pyle. Christians should observe and remember, what God has threatened to such as wilfully turned their backs upon the passover of the Jews, which was a representation of the Christian passover, or Sacrament of the Lord's Supper: “That soul shall be cut off from his people.” The least of that punishment was excommunication. If unclean by reason of sin, they should remember not

Before
CHRIST
1490.

children of Israel kept the charge of the Lord, and journeyed not.

20 And so it was, when the cloud was a few days upon the tabernacle; according to the commandment of the Lord they abode in their tents, and according to the commandment of the Lord they journeyed.

† Heb. was.

21 And so it was, when the cloud † abode from even unto the morning, and that the cloud was taken up in the morning, then they journeyed: whether it was by day or by night that the cloud was taken up, they journeyed.

† Exod. 40.
36, 37.

22 Or whether it were two days, or a month, or a year, that the cloud tarried upon the tabernacle, remaining thereon, the children of Israel † abode in their tents, and journeyed not: but when it was taken up, they journeyed.

23 At the commandment of the Lord they rested in the tents, and at the commandment of the Lord they journeyed: they kept the charge of the Lord, at the commandment of the Lord by the hand of Moses.

CHAP. X.

1 The use of the silver trumpets. 11 The Israelites remove from Sinai to Paran. 14 The order of their march. 29 Hobab is intreated by Moses not to leave them. 33 The blessing of Moses at the removing and resting of the ark.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Make thee two trumpets of silver; of a whole piece shalt thou make them: that thou mayest use them for the calling of the assembly, and for the journeying of the camps. Before CHRIST

1490.

3 And when they shall blow with them, all the assembly shall assemble themselves to thee at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

4 And if they blow but with one trumpet, then the princes, which are heads of the thousands of Israel, shall gather themselves unto thee.

5 When ye blow an alarm, then the camps that lie on the east parts shall go forward.

6 When ye blow an alarm the second time, then the camps that lie on the south side shall take their journey: they shall blow an alarm for their journeys.

7 But when the congregation is to be gathered together, ye shall blow, but ye shall not sound an alarm.

8 And the sons of Aaron, the priests, shall blow with the trumpets; and they shall be to you for an ordinance for ever throughout your generations.

9 And if ye go to war in your land against the enemy that oppresseth you, then ye shall blow an alarm with the trumpets; and ye shall be remembered before the Lord your God, and ye shall be saved from your enemies.

10 Also in the day of your gladness, and in your solemn days, and in the beginnings of your months, ye shall blow with the trumpets over your burnt offerings, and over the sacrifices of your peace offerings; that they may be to you for a memorial before your God: I am the Lord your God.

to continue in that state at their peril; but to repent, and take the first opportunity of obeying the command of God, lest they be cut off. Bp. Wilson.

21. — whether it was by day or by night &c.] Pitts, describing the journey of a caravan through the desert, between Grand Cairo and Mecca, says, “They have lights by night, which is the chief time of travelling because of the exceeding heat of the sun by day; these lights are carried on the tops of high poles, to direct the pilgrims in their march.” Thevenot however travelled here in the day time, passing through these deserts in January; and even found the mornings cold before the sun was up: and it seems that Egmont and Heyman, who travelled to mount Sinai in July, travelled a good deal in the day time, and found very refreshing breezes. Moses in like manner relates that the cloud, which regulated the marches of the Israelites, was sometimes taken up by day, and sometimes by night; doubtless according to the season, or the temperature of the air, which a merciful God regarded in giving that signal. Harmer.

23. — at the commandment of the Lord by the hand of Moses.] That is, by the ministry of Moses, who was their lawgiver and director under God. Bp. Kidder. All these circumstances are recited thus particularly by Moses, to show, that the Israelites did not wander so long in the wilderness from being bewildered and unable to find their way out; but that all their motions were directed by the special appointment of God. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. X. ver. 2. Make thee two trumpets &c.] Trumpets were used in the Jewish worship in the wilderness. Two were made of silver, as appears from this place; which, Josephus says, were near a cubit in length, curved at the end like a bell; and at the mouth just of width sufficient to admit the breath. The purpose of these instruments was for conducting the journeyings and restings of the camp. There are two Hebrew names for trumpets, which imply a difference, either of form or of material. The trumpets of Moses and Solomon are called Chatsotseroth; and this word seems to denote metal trumpets, Numb. x. 2; xxxi. 6; 2 Kings xi. 14; xii. 13; 1 Chron. xiii. 8; and elsewhere. The jubilee trumpets are called Shopheroth: with these the priests encompassed the walls of Jericho. These were employed by Gideon; and the name is applied metaphorically to the thunder of Sinai, Exod. xix. 16; Is. lviii. 1. Where both words occur together, the latter is rendered cornets by our translation of the Psalms in the Bible; and shawms by that in the Common Prayer Book, Psal. xcviii. 6. Fragments to Calmet.

3. — blow with them,] With an equal and continued sound: to “blow an alarm,” is to blow with an interrupted, or broken and quavering sound. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

11 ¶ And it came to pass on the twentieth day of the second month, in the second year, that the cloud was taken up from off the tabernacle of the testimony.

12 And the children of Israel took their journeys out of the wilderness of Sinai; and the cloud rested in the wilderness of Paran.

13 And they first took their journey according to the commandment of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

* Chap. 2. 3.

14 ¶ ^a In the first place went the standard of the camp of the children of Judah according to their armies: and over his host was ^b Nahshon the son of Amminadab.

* Chap. 1. 7.

15 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Issachar was Nethaneel the son of Zuar.

16 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Zebulun was Eliab the son of Helon.

17 And the tabernacle was taken down; and the sons of Gershon and the sons of Merari set forward, bearing the tabernacle.

18 ¶ And the standard of the camp of Reuben set forward according to their armies: and over his host was Elizur the son of Shedeur.

19 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Simeon was Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

20 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Gad was Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

* Chap. 4. 4.

¶ That is, the Gershonites, and the Merarites: See ver. 17.

21 And the Kohathites set forward, bearing the ^c sanctuary: and ¶ the other did set up the tabernacle against they came.

22 ¶ And the standard of the camp of

Before
CHRIST
1490.

the children of Ephraim set forward according to their armies: and over his host was Elishama the son of Ammihud.

23 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Manasseh was Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

24 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Benjamin was Abidan the son of Gideon.

25 ¶ And the standard of the camp of the children of Dan set forward, which was the rereward of all the camps throughout their hosts: and over his host was Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

26 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Asher was Pagiel the son of Ocran.

27 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Naphtali was Ahira the son of Enan.

28 † Thus were the journeyings of the children of Israel according to their armies, when they set forward. † Heb. These.

29 ¶ And Moses said unto Hobab, the son of Raguel the Midianite, Moses' father in law, We are journeying unto the place of which the LORD said, I will give it you: come thou with us, and we will do thee good: for the LORD hath spoken good concerning Israel.

30 And he said unto him, I will not go; but I will depart to mine own land, and to my kindred.

31 And he said, Leave us not, I pray thee; forasmuch as thou knowest how we are to encamp in the wilderness, and thou mayest be to us instead of eyes.

32 And it shall be, if thou go with us,

17. — the sons of Gershon &c. — set forward, bearing the tabernacle.] This was after the first, and before the second, camp: which seems to be a contradiction to the order of the march fixed in chap. ii. 17, that the tabernacle, with the camp of the Levites, should set forward between the second and third camps. But this apparent contradiction is reconciled a few verses below, where we find, that, though the less sacred parts of the tabernacle, the outside tent and its apparatus, set out between the first and second camp; yet the sanctuary, or Holy of Holies, with its furniture, the ark and the altar, did not set out till after the second camp, as the direction required. And the reason of the separation is assigned, ver. 21, that those, who bore the outside tabernacle, might set it up, and thus prepare for the reception of the sanctuary. No forger or compiler, who lived when these marches had wholly ceased, and the Israelites were fixed in the land of their inheritance, would have thought of such a circumstance as this. Dr. Graves.

25. — the rereward] All the rest of the people, who were not a part of the four camps, before mentioned; all under twenty years of age, who were not able to go forth to war; all the mixed multitude, that came with them out of Egypt; and all the unclean persons, who were shut out of the camp; came after this hindmost standard of the children of Dan. Bp. Patrick.

29. — Moses' father in law,] This word may refer either to Raguel, who is supposed to be Jethro, and then it is rightly translated "father in law;" or it may refer to Hobab, and be translated "brother in law." Jethro being returned to his country, Hobab, his son, stayed with his sister, Zipporah, whilst Moses continued near Sinai, which was not far from Midian. He now proposed to return home, on the Israelites being about to quit that neighbourhood: but Moses was desirous that he should accompany them to the promised land. Bp. Patrick.

31. — forasmuch as thou knowest how we are to encamp &c.] He being a borderer on this wilderness knew every part of it: and could advise them how to secure their camp, (for the cloud only directed them where it was to be pitched,) how to defend themselves from the neighbouring people, and to provide themselves with such things as they wanted. Bp. Patrick.

Hobab may have been of great use to the Israelites, with respect both to guiding their parties to wells and springs in the desert, and to giving them notice where they might find fuel. But besides this, the sacred history expressly mentions several journeys undertaken by detachments of the Israelites, while the main body remained still: so in chap. xiii, we read of a party sent out to reconnoitre the land of Canaan; in chap. xx, of the messengers sent from Kadesh to the king of Edom; in chap. xxxi, of an expedition against the idolatrous Midianites; of some little expeditions in the close of chap. xxxii: and more journeys of the like kind were Before CHRIST 1490. yea, it shall be, that what goodness the LORD shall do unto us, the same will we do unto thee.

33 ¶ And they departed from the mount of the LORD three days' journey: and the ark of the covenant of the LORD went before them in the three days' journey, to search out a resting place for them.

34 And the cloud of the LORD was upon them by day, when they went out of the camp.

35 And it came to pass, when the ark set forward, that Moses said, ^d Rise up, LORD, and let thine enemies be scattered; and let them that hate thee flee before thee.

36 And when it rested, he said, Return, O LORD, unto the [†] many thousands of Israel.

CHAP. XI.

1 The burning at Taberah quenched by Moses' prayer.
4 The people lust for flesh, and loathe manna. 10 without doubt undertaken, though they are not particularly recounted. Moses, foreseeing this, might well beg Hobab to accompany him, not as a single Arab, but as the prince of a clan, to supply conductors for these detached parties, while the body of the people, and the cloud of the LORD, continued stationary. Harmer.

— thou mayest be to us instead of eyes.] By reason of thy knowledge and experience, thou mayest be a good direction for us. Bp. Hall.

We are informed that guides are now necessary for travellers in these deserts. A Hybeer is a guide, from the Arabick word hubbar, to inform, instruct, or direct, because the Hybeers are used to do this office to the caravan, travelling through the desert in all its directions. They are men of great consideration; knowing perfectly the situation and properties of all kinds of water, to be met with on the route; the distances of wells; whether occupied by enemies or not, and if occupied, the way to avoid them with the least inconvenience. It is also necessary to them to know the places occupied by the Simoom, and the seasons of their blowing in those parts of the desert: likewise those places occupied by moving sands. The Hybeer generally belongs to some powerful tribe of Arabs inhabiting these deserts, whose protection he makes use of, to assist his caravans, or protect them in time of danger. Bruce.

32. — the same will we do unto thee.] We will give thee some part of the possession, which God shall bestow upon us. Accordingly Hobab accompanied Moses; and he and his posterity were settled among the Israelites in Canaan, Judg. i. 16; iv. 11. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

33. — and the ark of the covenant of the LORD went before them] Leading them, as a general is said to lead his army, though he be not in the front, but in the midst, whence he issues his orders. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XI. ver. 1. — the fire of the LORD] That is, a fire which the LORD sent among them. Bp. Kidder. This fire came either immediately from heaven like lightning; or from the pillar of the cloud, which went before the tabernacle. Or it might be an hot burning wind, in these desert places not unusual, and often very pestilential: and on this occasion preternaturally raised in the rear of the army, to punish the stragglers, and such as loitered behind out of pretence of weariness. Stackhouse. There were not mentioned the death of 20,000 men, who perished in one night by one of these burning winds. Script. illust. Sir J. Chardin describes this wind as making a great hissing noise: he says that it appears red and fiery, and kills those, that it strikes, by stifling them.

Moses complaineth of his charge. 16 God divideth his burden unto seventy elders. 31 Quails are given in wrath at Kibroth-hattaavah. Before CHRIST 1490.

AND when the people ^{||} complained, [†] it displeased the LORD: and the LORD heard it; and his anger was kindled; and the fire of the LORD burnt ^a among them, and consumed them that were in the uttermost parts of the camp.

2 And the people cried unto Moses; and when Moses prayed unto the LORD, the fire [†] was quenched.

3 And he called the name of the place ^{||} Taberah: because the fire of the LORD burnt among them.

4 ¶ And the ^b mixt multitude that was among them [†] fell a lusting: and the children of Israel also [†] wept again, and said, ^c Who shall give us flesh to eat?

5 We remember the fish, which we did eat in Egypt freely; the cucumbers, and

|| Or, were as it were complainers. [†] Heb. it was evil in the ears of, &c. ^a Psal. 78. 21.

[†] Heb. sunk.

|| That is, a burning. ^b As Exod. 12. 38.

[†] Heb. lusted a lust.

[†] Heb. returned and wept. ^c 1 Cor. 10. 6.

Maillet mentions its being felt in the desert between Egypt and Mecca, in part of which Israel wandered forty years. Harmer.

4. — Who shall give us flesh to eat?] These words explain the expression that preceded, they “fell a lusting,” namely, for “flesh to eat.” Bp. Patrick. This sin was distinct from that mentioned in the first verse, and more severely punished. It was aggravated on the following accounts: 1. Their discontent was increased to an open complaint. 2. They declared their distrust of God's power and providence, of which they had had great experience; compare ver. 4, and 18, with Ps. lxxviii. 22. 3. They unthankfully despised God and His former mercies, ver. 6, 7, 20. 4. They covetously desired flesh, when they had much cattle of their own; compare Exod. xii. 32, 38, with Numb. xxxii. 4. 5. And this they did, after God had plentifully provided for their natural necessities, Exod. xvi. 2. Bp. Kidder.

5. We remember the fish, &c.] It appears from the accounts of modern travellers, that fish are very plentiful in Egypt, in the lakes and ponds; on the coasts of Lower Egypt; and in the Red sea; and probably in the Nile also. Harmer.

— the cucumbers, and the melons,] These names probably include all of their kinds. These vegetables are still esteemed delicacies in Egypt, and still form a great part of the food of the lower class of people, especially during the summer months. The melon in particular, meaning the water melon, serves the Egyptians for meat, drink, and physick: the common people scarcely eat any thing else during the season, the drink they derive from its juice being particularly grateful. It is cultivated on the rich clayey earth, which is left by the inundation of the Nile. Hasselquist's Travels.

Whether the following word, rendered “leeks,” have that signification, may be doubted. Some think it was the lotus, which is a water plant, a kind of water-lily; which the Egyptians were used to eat during the heats of summer. As to the “onion” and “garlick,” these two plants were certainly highly esteemed in Egypt, which was admirably adapted to their culture. From these recollections we perceive, the people longed for moistening cooling diet; for vegetables calculated to correct the heats of the atmosphere: these are greater indulgences beneath a sultry sky, than the inhabitants of Britain can conceive. Script. illust. Or rather, the complaint of the Israelites proceeded from a wayward and perverse kind of luxuriousness, and for that reason drew down such a severe animadversion from Heaven. So we are told, some of the more delicate Egyptians pined to death, when Damietta was besieged, in 1218, though they had a sufficiency of corn, for

Before CHRIST 1490. the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlick :

6 But now our soul is dried away: there is nothing at all, beside this manna, before our eyes.

^a Exod. 16. 7 And ^a the manna was as coriander seed, and the [†] colour thereof as the colour of bdellium.

[†] Heb. eye of it as the eye of.

8 And the people went about, and gathered it, and ground it in mills, or beat it in a mortar, and baked it in pans, and made cakes of it: and the taste of it was as the taste of fresh oil.

9 And when the dew fell upon the camp in the night, the manna fell upon it.

10 ¶ Then Moses heard the people weep throughout their families, every man in the door of his tent: and the anger of the LORD was kindled greatly; Moses also was displeased.

11 And Moses said unto the LORD, Wherefore hast thou afflicted thy servant? and wherefore have I not found favour in thy sight, that thou layest the burden of all this people upon me?

12 Have I conceived all this people? have I begotten them, that thou shouldest say unto me, Carry them in thy bosom, as a nursing father beareth the sucking child, unto the land which thou swarest unto their fathers?

13 Whence should I have flesh to give unto all this people? for they weep unto me, saying, Give us flesh, that we may eat.

14 I am not able to bear all this people alone, because it is too heavy for me.

15 And if thou deal thus with me, kill me, I pray thee, out of hand, if I have found favour in thy sight; and let me not see my wretchedness.

Before CHRIST 1490.

16 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Gather unto me seventy men of the elders of Israel, whom thou knowest to be the elders of the people, and officers over them; and bring them unto the tabernacle of the congregation, that they may stand there with thee.

17 And I will come down and talk with thee there: and I will take of the spirit which is upon thee, and will put it upon them; and they shall bear the burden of the people with thee, that thou bear it not thyself alone.

18 And say thou unto the people, Sanctify yourselves against to morrow, and ye shall eat flesh: for ye have wept in the ears of the LORD, saying, Who shall give us flesh to eat? for it was well with us in Egypt: therefore the LORD will give you flesh, and ye shall eat.

19 Ye shall not eat one day, nor two days, nor five days, neither ten days, nor twenty days;

20 But even a [†] whole month, until it come out at your nostrils, and it be loathsome unto you: because that ye have despised the LORD which is among you, and have wept before him, saying, Why came we forth out of Egypt?

[†] Heb. month of days.

21 And Moses said, The people, among whom I am, are six hundred thousand footmen; and thou hast said, I will give them flesh, that they may eat a whole month.

want of the food they were used to; pompions, garlick, onions, fish, birds, fruit, herbs, &c. Harmer.

— the leeks, and the onions, and the garlick:] The word here rendered “leeks” probably signifies a plant of the lotus kind, which grew in the low lands of Egypt, and was of a very delicate taste, and held in great estimation. According to the accounts of the best travellers, the “onions” and “garlick” are far better, and of a much sweeter taste in the East, than in our parts of the world. The Jews, and the Orientals in general, are to the present time very fond of them. Both the lotus and the garlick were in high request among the ancients, and are described by Homer as making parts of entertainments. Scheuchzer, Calmet.

6. — our soul is dried away:] Like the earth that is parched and rendered barren for want of moisture. Bp. Kidder. They speak, as if they were starved; and, as we speak, had neither life nor soul left in them. Such is the vile nature of discontented ingratitude, which makes men despise their present enjoyments, and praise a different state. Bp. Patrick.

— was as coriander seed.] Not in colour, but in shape and form, Exod. xvi. 14. Bp. Patrick.

— and the colour thereof &c.] Of a pure white colour, and bright like pearl. Grateful to the eye, as well as pleasant to the taste. Bp. Patrick.

15. — let me not see my wretchedness.] Let me not live to be a most miserable creature. To see death, is to die, Ps. lxxxix. 48.

To see salvation, is to be saved, Ps. xci. 16. And so, to see labour and sorrow, is to suffer or to be miserable, Jer. xx. 18. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

16. — seventy — elders] It is generally believed, that this was the origin and foundation of the great national council of the Jews, called in afterages the Sanhedrim. Bp. Tomline.

17. — and I will take of the spirit &c.] Confer upon them some of the same gifts which I have bestowed upon thee; but not take away or diminish thine. Bp. Patrick. It is probable that the persons appointed by Jethro's advice, Exod. xviii, were to hear and judge only in smaller causes; all weighty and difficult points, as well as last appeals in smaller matters, being still left to Moses: and that it was to ease him of this burden, that these seventy were chosen, as men of superiour capacity and understanding, and who were to be assisted by the Spirit of God in their judgments and determinations. Stackhouse.

18. — Sanctify yourselves] Here the word “sanctify” seems to signify no more than that they should prepare and make themselves ready to receive what they desired. Bp. Patrick.

20. — until it come out at your nostrils.] Till you be glutted and cloyed with it. Bp. Patrick.

21. And Moses said, The people, &c.] In answer to the Divine declaration, Moses here proposes a difficulty in accomplishing this promise, in the natural course of things: not as imagining that it could not be done by a miracle; for he could not but know, that

Before
CHRIST
1490.

22 Shall the flocks and the herds be slain for them, to suffice them? or shall all the fish of the sea be gathered together for them, to suffice them?

1. 50. 2.
4 59. 1.

23 And the Lord said unto Moses, 'Is the Lord's hand waxed short? thou shalt see now whether my word shall come to pass unto thee or not.

24 ¶ And Moses went out, and told the people the words of the Lord, and gathered the seventy men of the elders of the people, and set them round about the tabernacle.

25 And the Lord came down in a cloud, and spake unto him, and took of the spirit that was upon him, and gave it unto the seventy elders: and it came to pass, that, when the spirit rested upon them, they prophesied, and did not cease.

26 But there remained two of the men in the camp, the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of the other Medad:

He, who rained down manna, could by a miracle gorge them with flesh; but he was at a loss to conceive, how it could be effected in the common course of things, or in the natural, though more unusual, operation of Providence. Some flocks and herds they had with them: but could these, with what might be procured from the tribes on the skirts of the desert, suffice the people for a whole month? Fish might be obtained from the Red sea, from which, it seems, they were not very distant: but could it be expected that they would come to the shore in such numbers, as to satisfy the craving of their appetites, day by day, for a whole month? Harmer.

With the ensuing miracle, we may parallel our Lord's signal miracle of feeding the 5000 men, beside women and children, in the wilderness, with a few barley loaves and fishes, recorded by all the Evangelists; which convinced the multitude, that Jesus was indeed "the Prophet like unto Moses," insomuch that they wanted to take Him by force, and make Him "King" or "Messiah," John vi. 15. Dr. Hales.

— six hundred thousand footmen;] Able to bear arms; besides women, children, slaves, and the mixt multitude; perhaps in the whole thirty hundred thousand. Bp. Patrick.

23. — Is the Lord's hand waxed short?] Or, Does the Lord want power? Bp. Kidder.

25. — they prophesied,] To "prophesy" is a word of extensive signification. Besides, First, the foretelling of future events, which is the ordinary notion of it; it signifies, Secondly, To work miracles, Ecclus. xlviii. 13, compared with 2 Kings xiii. 21. Thirdly, To declare the will of God to any, by revelation or mission from Him; in which sense, as Christ's prophetick office consisted in revealing the will of God to the world, so all, who have in any degree done the like, by teaching men their duties towards God and each other, are styled Prophets. See Exod. vii. 1, compared with iv. 16. Fourthly, It signifies to expound or interpret Scripture; as in 1 Cor. xiv. 1, &c. Fifthly, it is sometimes used to signify wild and extravagant behaviour, or such speaking as was usual with enthusiasts among the heathen; see 1 Sam. xviii. 10. Sixthly, It signifies singing and praising God; forming divine hymns, and singing them to God. See 1 Sam. x. 5; and 1 Chron. xxv. 1. This most probably is the meaning of the word here. Dr. Hammond.

— and did not cease.] That is, they did not cease all that day, while they stood about the tabernacle. The gift of prophecy, which God gave them for the present, was only to procure them reverence from the people, as an evident sign that they were

Before
CHRIST
1490.

and the spirit rested upon them; and they were of them that were written, but went not out unto the tabernacle: and they prophesied in the camp.

27 And there ran a young man, and told Moses, and said, Eldad and Medad do prophesy in the camp.

28 And Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of Moses, one of his young men, answered and said, My lord Moses, forbid them.

29 And Moses said unto him, Enviest thou for my sake? would God that all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put his spirit upon them!

30 And Moses gat him into the camp, he and the elders of Israel.

31 ¶ And there went forth a 'wind from the Lord, and brought quails from the sea, and let them fall by the camp, as it were a day's journey on this side, and as it were a day's journey on the other side, round

' Exod. 16.
13.
Ps. 78. 26.
† Heb.
as it were the way of a day.

chosen by God to be coadjutors to Moses. Bp. Patrick. A like instance on a like occasion we read of Saul, 1 Sam. x. 10. Dr. Wells.

26. But there remained two of the men] Perhaps, because they were not in the way when the command was given; or out of modesty they declined the dignity; or they were unwilling to engage in the management of so unruly a people; or they might be under some legal defilement, which hindered their approach to the tabernacle; or under some other restraint, or impediment. See 1 Sam. xx. 26; Jer. xxxvi. 5. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

— they were of them that were written,] Whose names Moses put into the summons to attend. Bp. Patrick.

29. — Enviest thou for my sake? &c.] Joshua thought it would lessen the authority of Moses, if these two men, who, by their not coming up to the tabernacle, might appear to have no commission from him, should be allowed to use this privilege. But Moses, having no aim to his own glory, remonstrated, that he wished "all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put His Spirit upon them." If God would have thus immediately revealed His will to every Israelite, the people, from the highest to the lowest, would all have known what they were to do, as well as Moses himself; and he, not seeking his own honour, nor having at heart his private interest, but sincerely desiring to be "faithful to Him that appointed him," would have heartily rejoiced to see the Divine purpose and design thus effectually taking place among his people. Shuckford.

31. — quails] It is a disputed point among the learned, whether the creature, here mentioned, was the quail, as our translation renders it, or the locust.

— as it were a day's journey &c.] Bp. Patrick supposes a day's journey to be sixteen or twenty miles, and thence draws his circle with a radius of that length: but Dr. Shaw, on another occasion, makes a day's journey but ten miles, which would make a circle but of twenty miles in diameter: and as the text evidently designs to express it, very indeterminately, "as it were a day's journey," it might be much less. This softens the objection to their being quails, founded on their immense quantity. Harmer.

— round about the camp,] It is not necessary to suppose that these creatures covered a circular piece of ground: but only that they appeared on both sides of the camp of Israel, about "a day's journey." The same word is used in Exod. vii. 24; where "round about" can mean only on each side of the Nile. Harmer.

Before CHRIST 1490. about the camp, and as it were two cubits high upon the face of the earth.

32 And the people stood up all that day, and all that night, and all the next day, and they gathered the quails: he that gathered least gathered ten homers: and they spread them all abroad for themselves round about the camp.

* Psal. 78. 31. 33 And while the ^s flesh was yet between their teeth, ere it was chewed, the wrath of the LORD was kindled against the people, and the LORD smote the people with a very great plague.

34 And he called the name of that place || Kibroth-hattaavah: because there they buried the people that lusted.

|| That is, the graves of lust.

— as it were two cubits high upon the face of the earth.] By this expression Josephus thought it was intended to be intimated, that the quails flew within three or four feet of the ground; so low, on account of the fatigue of their passage, as to be within reach of the Israelites. Harmer. Our English version represents the quails to have lain round about the camp as it were two cubits, or a yard, high: but there is no word in the Hebrew text for the number two: the Hebrew signifies, as it were cubits high, expressing no determinate increase, but in general a considerable height. In like manner we say, “he that gathered least, gathered ten homers,” ver. 32. A surprising quantity, if an homer be, as is by some computed, five English bushels and an half. Perhaps the word, here rendered “homer,” was rather meant to signify heaps in general, without defining the quantity of each heap. It is so rendered in Exod. viii. 14. And we may well imagine each man to have gathered ten heaps, but five and fifty bushels a man seems a very unlikely quantity. Shuckford.

32. — and they spread them all abroad &c.] The people took, and dried, and salted them for their eating; which management of quails, in order to preserve them, was usual among the heathens. Shuckford. Maillet speaks of some islanders near Egypt stripping the feathers from certain birds of passage, probably quails among the number, and burying them in the burning sands for about half a quarter of an hour. This explains the design of spreading the quails round about the camp: it was to dry them in the burning sands, in order to preserve them. So Maillet tells us of their drying fish in the sun in Egypt: and other authors speak of the Arabs drying camels’ flesh in the sun and wind; which, though not at all salted, will, if kept dry, remain good a long while, and may be eaten without dressing. Harmer.

33. — the wrath of the Lord was kindled] He had formerly pardoned the murmurings, for which He now punished them. The same sin repeated is death, whose first act found remission: relapses are desperate, where the sickness itself is not. It is a mortal thing to abuse the lenity of God: it is presumptuous madness to hope that God will quietly suffer us to provoke Him how we will. It is more mercy than we are entitled to, if He forbear us once: it is His justice to punish us the second time: it is our own fault, if we will not profit by former warnings. Bp. Hall.

Chap. XII. ver. 1. — Miriam and Aaron] Miriam probably was the beginner of the sedition, and is therefore mentioned first. Bp. Patrick.

Miriam and Aaron are in mutiny against Moses. Who is so holy that sins not? What sin is so unnatural, that the best can avoid without God? but whatever weakness may plead for Miriam, who can but grieve to see Aaron engaged in so many sins? Of late we saw him carving the molten image, and consecrating an altar to a false god: now we see him seconding an unkind mutiny against his brother: in both sins he is an accessory; in neither a principal. It was not in the power of the legal 35 And the people journeyed from Kibroth-hattaavah unto Hazeroth; and [†] abode at Hazeroth.

Before CHRIST 1490. [†] Heb. they were in, &c.

CHAP. XII.

1 God rebuketh the sedition of Miriam and Aaron. 10
Miriam’s leprosy is healed at the prayer of Moses. 14
God commandeth her to be shut out of the host.

AND Miriam and Aaron spake against Moses because of the || Ethiopian woman whom he had married: for he had [†] married an Ethiopian woman.

|| Or, Cushite.

[†] Heb. taken.

2 And they said, Hath the LORD indeed spoken only by Moses? hath he not spoken also by us? And the LORD heard it.

3 (Now the man Moses was ^a very meek, ^a Eccl. 45. 4.

priesthood to perform or promise innocency to her ministers: it was necessary we should have another High Priest, which could not be tainted. That “King of Righteousness” was of another order: He being without sin hath fully satisfied for the sins of men. Whom can it now offend, to see the blemishes of the evangelical priesthood, when God’s first high priest thus miscarried? Bp. Hall.

— the Ethiopian woman] In Hebrew, a Cushite woman. Here Cush plainly signifies that part of Arabia Deserta which was then called Midian. Dr. Wall. Or rather Arabian woman. Ziporah, the wife of Moses, was daughter of the priest or prince of Midian, which lay in Arabia, near mount Sinai. Dr. Wells.

Cush, or Ethiopia, usually rendered Ethiopia in our English Bible, has a very extensive signification. It comprehends all the southern and eastern borders of Egypt. In Ezek. xxix. 10; xxx. 5, 6; Is. xviii. 1; xx. 3; and in many other passages, it denotes African Ethiopia, or Nubia and Abyssinia. In others it must signify Asiatick Ethiopia, or Arabia, as in the description of the garden of Eden, Gen. ii. 13. The wife of Moses was contemptuously styled a “Cushite,” or Ethiopian of Arabia. And where “Persia, Ethiopia, and Libya,” are recited in order, the second must denote Arabia, Ezek. xxxviii. 5. Dr. Hales.

2. — hath he not spoken also by us?] Miriam probably was jealous of the respect paid to the wife of Moses, which she before had enjoyed without a rival; when, as a “prophetess,” she joined with Moses in his triumphant hymn, on the destruction of the Egyptians in the Red sea, and led the women with timbrels and dances, Exod. xv. 20. And Aaron was the prophet of Moses, by the Lord’s appointment, Exod. vii. 1, 2. That Miriam, however, was the principal offender, we may conclude from Aaron’s not being involved in her punishment; and from her being cured of her leprosy on his humble intercession to Moses, and confession of their joint offence. Dr. Hales.

Pride is the ground of all sedition. Which of their faces shone like that of Moses? Which of them had fasted forty days? Which of them ascended up to the top of Sinai, and was hid with smoke and fire? Which of them received the law twice, in two several tables, from God’s own hand? And yet they dare say, “Hath not God spoken by us?” They do not deny Moses’s honour, but they challenge a part with him: and as they were the elder in nature, so they would be equal in dignity, equal in administration. Bp. Hall.

3. (Now the man Moses was very meek,) This is added as the reason, why he passed by the affront they put upon him; and why God avenged it. It is also a confutation of their charge against him; showing that he was so far from the pride they imputed to him, that he did not resent their undutiful behaviour towards him: so that it is not so much a commendation, as a necessary account, of himself. To such vindications of themselves the humblest souls may be constrained by the calumnies of wicked men: as we see, not only in St. Paul, but in our blessed Saviour also, when assailed by the malignity of their enemies, John x. 36; 2 Cor. xi. 10, 23. And this is the more allowable,

Before
CHRIST
1490.

above all the men which were upon the face of the earth.)

4 And the LORD spake suddenly unto Moses, and unto Aaron, and unto Miriam, Come out ye three unto the tabernacle of the congregation. And they three came out.

5 And the LORD came down in the pillar of the cloud, and stood in the door of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Miriam: and they both came forth.

6 And he said, Hear now my words: If there be a prophet among you, I the LORD will make myself known unto him in a vision, and will speak unto him in a dream.

* Hebr. 3. 2.

7 My servant Moses is not so,^b who is faithful in all mine house.

* Exod. 33. 11.

8 With him will I speak^c mouth to mouth, even apparently, and not in dark speeches; and the similitude of the LORD shall he behold: wherefore then were ye not afraid to speak against my servant Moses?

Before
CHRIST
1490.

9 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against them; and he departed.

10 And the cloud departed from off the tabernacle; and, behold, Miriam became leprous, white as snow: and Aaron looked upon Miriam, and, behold, she was leprous.

11 And Aaron said unto Moses, Alas, my lord, I beseech thee, lay not the sin upon us, wherein we have done foolishly, and wherein we have sinned.

12 Let her not be as one dead, of whom the flesh is half consumed when he cometh out of his mother's womb.

13 And Moses cried unto the LORD, saying, Heal her now, O God, I beseech thee.

when men know, not only that they write the truth, but that it is notorious to all that are acquainted with them. The holy writers also are not to be confined to our rules; being moved by the Holy Ghost to set down things, which of themselves perhaps they would not have mentioned. And men, who have a due reverence for the Holy Scriptures, will look on this, rather as the Holy Ghost's testimony concerning Moses, than as Moses's testimony concerning himself. Bp. Patrick.

— Moses was very meek.] Who can look for love and prosperity at once, when the holy and meek Moses finds enmity in his own flesh and blood? Rather than we shall want, "a man's enemies shall be those of his own house," Micah vii. 6. Authority cannot fail of opposition, if it be never so mildly swayed.

No man could have given more proofs of his courage than Moses. He slew the Egyptian: he confronted Pharaoh in his own court: he beat the Midianite shepherds: he feared not the troops of Egypt: he durst behold the face of God amidst all the terrors of Sinai: and yet that Spirit, which made and knew his heart, says, "He was very meek above all men upon earth." Mildness and fortitude may well lodge together in one breast: to correct the misconceptions of those men, who think none valiant, but those that are fierce and cruel. Bp. Hall.

4. And the Lord spake suddenly &c.] As the Israelites lived then under the immediate government of God, God Himself undertook to decide the controversy depending between these His chief ministers, who were not accountable to any other judge. Stackhouse. Because Moses was meek, therefore he complained not. Because he was meek and complained not, therefore God asserted His cause the more. The less a man strives to avenge himself, the more is God his champion. Bp. Hall.

6. — in a vision.] Or enigmatical representation of something thereby signified: as of "the wheels," and "dry bones," in Ezekiel; of the "ram" in Daniel, &c. Hence a prophecy is called a vision, Is. i. 1. A "dream" was generally in the night, and always when the senses were suspended. In this case the representation was frequently obscure, and not easily understood. Such was that of "Jacob's ladder," "Pharaoh's kine," &c. Bp. Kidder.

7. My servant Moses is not so.] That is, he is a Prophet favoured with clearer revelations. Bp. Patrick.

— who is faithful in all mine house.] Because he was entrusted with God's whole family; and faithfully discharged the trust reposed in him. Bp. Patrick.

Moses was zealously careful for God's glory, and now God is zealous for his. The remunerations of the Almighty are infinitely gracious. He cannot want honour and patronage that seeks the honour of his Maker. The ready way to true glory is goodness. Bp. Hall.

8. With him will I speak mouth to mouth.] In a most familiar manner, as one friend discourses with another. According to the Jews, Moses differed from other Prophets in these four particulars: 1st, God spake to others by a mediator; but to Moses by Himself. 2dly, When they prophesied, their senses were bound up either in visions or in dreams: whereas Moses was perfectly awake, as we are when we discourse with each other. 3dly, After the vision, they were often so weak and feeble, as to be scarce able to stand on their feet: but Moses spake with the Divine Majesty without consternation or alarm. 4thly, God did not communicate Himself to other Prophets, whenever they pleased: but Moses might at any time have recourse to God, to inquire of Him, and receive an answer. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

— even apparently.] Plainly, clearly, and distinctly: thus He proclaimed His name to Moses, Exod. xxxiv. 6, 7. Bp. Patrick.

— and not in dark speeches.] Or in parables and enigmatical representations: such as, the "ladder," which Jacob saw in a dream; the "seething pot," which was shewn to Jeremiah; the "wall by a plumbline," and the "basket of summer fruit," which Amos saw; the "beasts," which were represented to Daniel; the "lamps," and the "mountains, horses and chariots," to Zechariah; and "the roll of the book," which Ezekiel was to eat. Bp. Kidder.

— the similitude of the Lord shall he behold.] No man hath seen God, or can see Him. The meaning is, that as Moses had the will of God more plainly revealed to him, so he was admitted to a greater sight of His glory than any other. Bp. Kidder. It relates to that wonderful apparition of God to him in the bush, Exod. iii. 6; but especially to that revelation which God made of Himself, when He told him that he could not see His face, but should behold His back parts, Exod. xxxiii. 20, 23. This privilege was granted to none but him. Bp. Patrick. Whereas God spake with Moses face to face, this appearance to Moses is supposed by St. Augustine to be the appearance of the Son of God, John i. 18. Dr. Woodward.

11. And Aaron said &c.] Miriam was stricken; Aaron escaped: yet both had sinned. His priesthood could not rescue him; the greatness of his dignity did but add to the heinousness of his sin: his repentance freed him: "Alas, my lord, I beseech thee, lay not the sin upon us, wherein we have done foolishly." No wonder that we behold Aaron free, while we behold him penitent: this very confession saved him before from bleeding; for idolatry, which now preserves him from leprosy for his envious repining. The universal antidote for all the judgments of God is our humble repentance. Bp. Hall.

12. Let her not be as one dead.] The leper was separated from the living, and defiled as the dead. Bp. Kidder.

13. And Moses cried unto the Lord.] Admirable was the meekness of Moses. His people, the Jews, rebelled against him; God

Before
CHRIST
1490.

^d Lev. 13.
46.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, If her father had but spit in her face, should she not be ashamed seven days? let her be shut out from the camp seven days, and after that let her be received in again.

15 And Miriam was shut out from the camp seven days: and the people journeyed not till Miriam was brought in again.

16 And afterward the people removed from Hazeroth, and pitched in the wilderness of Paran.

CHAP. XIII.

¹ The names of the men who were sent to search the land. 17 Their instructions. 21 Their acts. 26 Their relation.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Send thou men, that they may search the land of Canaan, which I give unto the children of Israel: of every tribe of their fathers shall ye send a man, every one a ruler among them.

3 And Moses by the commandment of the LORD sent them from the wilderness of Paran: all those men were heads of the children of Israel.

4 And these were their names: of the tribe of Reuben, Shammua the son of Zaccur.

proffers revenge; he would rather die than they should perish: his sister rebels against him; God works his revenge; he will not give God peace, till she be cured. Behold a worthy and noble pattern for us to follow! How far are they from this disposition, who are not only content God should revenge, but are ready to anticipate God's revenge with their own! Bp. Hall.

14. — If her father had but spit in her face,] As a mark of anger and contempt. Bp. Patrick.

Spitting before any one, or spitting upon the ground in speaking of any one's actions, is through the East an expression of extreme detestation. Sir J. Chardin. An Arab would by no means suffer that any one should spit in his face, or, as they phrase it, upon his beard, especially if he thinks himself equal in power to the aggressor. I remember to have seen in a caravan, that some one, spitting sideways, defiled a little the beard of a Mahometan, who was cruelly offended by it. The offender instantly asked pardon, and kissed his beard; by which submission the former was appeased. Niebuhr. Perhaps the passage in the text may be explained by saying, "had there been a quarrel and anger between a father and his daughter, so that he had spit at her, that is, towards her, such an affront, such a misunderstanding, could not be instantly made up, and forgotten; it must have some time to cool in: during some few days, there would be a reluctance in the parties, to their former cordiality and freedom: on a like principle let Miriam be excluded from the camp during seven days." Fragments to Calmet.

15. — and the people journeyed not &c.] For the cloud was gone, which should have directed them in their motions. Besides, this respect perhaps was shewn to her, as a prophetess; and she had hereby time to humble herself before God, and to beg His pardon for her sin. Bp. Patrick. God's love to Moses suffers him not to obtain presently his suit for Miriam. His kindness to his sister made him pray against himself. If the judgment had been at once inflicted and removed, there had been no example of

5 Of the tribe of Simeon, Shaphat the son of Hori. Before
CHRIST
1490.

6 Of the tribe of Judah, Caleb the son of Jephunneh.

7 Of the tribe of Issachar, Igal the son of Joseph.

8 Of the tribe of Ephraim, Oshea the son of Nun.

9 Of the tribe of Benjamin, Palti the son of Raphu.

10 Of the tribe of Zebulun, Gaddiel the son of Sodi.

11 Of the tribe of Joseph, namely, of the tribe of Manasseh, Gaddi the son of Susi.

12 Of the tribe of Dan, Ammiel the son of Gemalli.

13 Of the tribe of Asher, Sethur the son of Michael.

14 Of the tribe of Naphtali, Nahbi the son of Vophsi.

15 Of the tribe of Gad, Geuel the son of Machi.

16 These are the names of the men which Moses sent to spy out the land. And Moses called Oshea the son of Nun Jehoshua.

17 ¶ And Moses sent them to spy out the land of Canaan, and said unto them, Get you up this way southward, and go up into the mountain:

terror for others. God either denies or defers the grant of our requests, for our good: it would be hurtful to us, if our suits should always be heard. It was fit for all parties, that Miriam should continue some time leprous. If the judgments of God should be only as passengers, and not sojourners at least, they would be not at all regarded. Bp. Hall.

Chap. XIII. ver. 1. And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,] As they were now come to the borders of Canaan, the Lord ordered Moses to exhort them to go up and take possession of it; and "fear not, neither be discouraged," as we read in Deut. i. 21. But the people, distrusting God's power, Deut. ix. 23, desired they might first send some to search out the land, before they attempted its conquest, Deut. i. 22. Bp. Patrick.

11. Of the tribe of Joseph,] That is, of the other branch of Joseph's family, namely, of the tribe of Manasseh. Bp. Patrick.

16. — Jehoshua.] In short, Joshua; or as the Seventy, and Josephus, and the New Testament, in Acts vii. 45, and Hebrews iv. 8, call him, Jesus; that is, a saviour; he being appointed to save the people, and bring them into possession of the promised land; in which he was a type of our blessed Saviour. Bp. Kidder. He was called by this name soon after they came out of Egypt, when he fought with and conquered Amalek, Exod. xvii. 9, 10. Moses considered this as a proof that he should save and deliver the people of Israel, and then called him by this name. Bp. Patrick. This name was unquestioned by God's providence, or by Moses, by Divine instinct, first produced with relation to the Messiah. For of all the ancient types, Joshua did most exactly, in office and performance, represent and prefigure the Messiah; and his actions wonderfully agree with those, which we attribute to Jesus, the Son of God. Dr. Isaac Barrow.

17. — into the mountain:] Or mountainous tract, which lies next to the wilderness of Zin. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

18 And see the land, what it is; and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak, few or many;

19 And what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad; and what cities they be that they dwell in, whether in tents, or in strong holds;

20 And what the land is, whether it be fat or lean, whether there be wood therein, or not. And be ye of good courage, and bring of the fruit of the land. Now the time was the time of the firstripe grapes.

21 ¶ So they went up, and searched the land from the wilderness of Zin unto Rehob, as men come to Hamath.

22 And they ascended by the south, and came unto Hebron; where Ahiman, She-shai, and Talmi, the children of Anak, were. (Now Hebron was built seven years before Zoan in Egypt.)

^a Deut. 1.
24.
¶ Or,
valley.

23 ^a And they came unto the || brook of Eshcol, and cut down from thence a branch with one cluster of grapes, and they bare it between two upon a staff; and they brought of the pomegranates, and of the figs.

¶ Or, valley.
¶ That is, a cluster of grapes.

24 The place was called the || brook || Eshcol, because of the cluster of grapes which the children of Israel cut down from thence.

25 And they returned from searching of the land after forty days.

26 ¶ And they went and came to Moses,

19. — whether in tents, or in strong holds;] Whether they lived in tents, as the Arabians did, and the Israelites at this time; or in houses; and whether they were fortified. Or rather, whether in open villages, or in walled cities. Bp. Patrick.

21. — from — Zin unto Rehob,] From the south to the most northern part of the land, where Rehob was situated, something toward the west. Bp. Kidder.

— Hamath,] In the north toward the west.

22. And they ascended by the south,] In their return from searching the country. Bp. Patrick.

— Hebron;] A city, in the south part of the country, which fell to the tribe of Judah. Bp. Kidder.

— Anak,] He was the son of Arba, who gave name to Kirjath-arba, or the city of Arba, afterwards called Hebron. Compare Gen. xxiii. 2, with Josh. xv. 13. Bp. Kidder.

— Zoan] A principal city of the Egyptians, who vaunted of their great antiquity, Is. xix. 11.

23. — and they bare it between two] On account of its great size, and to preserve the grapes from being bruised. The vines and grapes are prodigiously large in those eastern and southern parts of the world. Strabo says, that in Margiana, and other places, the vines were so big, that two men could scarce compass them; and that they produced bunches of grapes two cubits long. Olearius tells us, that not far from Astracan, in Persia, he saw vines, that a man could hardly grasp with both arms. And Huclius affirms, that in Crete, Chios, and other islands of the Archipelago, there are bunches of grapes from ten to forty pounds in weight. Stackhouse.

Dandini, though an Italian, seems to have been surprised at the extraordinary size of the grapes of mount Libanus, which he and to Aaron, and to all the congregation of the children of Israel, unto the wilderness of Paran, to Kadesh; and brought back word unto them, and unto all the congregation, and shewed them the fruit of the land.

27 And they told him, and said, We came unto the land whither thou sentest us, and surely it floweth with ^b milk and honey; and this is the fruit of it.

^b Exod. 32.
3.

28 Nevertheless the people be strong that dwell in the land, and the cities are walled, and very great: and moreover we saw the children of Anak there.

29 The Amalekites dwell in the land of the south: and the Hittites, and the Jebusites, and the Amorites, dwell in the mountains: and the Canaanites dwell by the sea, and by the coast of Jordan.

30 And Caleb stilled the people before Moses, and said, Let us go up at once, and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.

31 But the men that went up with him said, We be not able to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we.

32 And they brought up an evil report of the land which they had searched unto the children of Israel, saying, The land, through which we have gone to search it, is a land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof; and all the people that we saw in it are [†]men of a great stature.

[†] Heb. men of statures.

describes as equal to a prune. It is no wonder the Israelites were struck with them; because, according to Norden, the grapes of Egypt, though excellent, are very small. Harmer.

24. The place was called the brook Eshcol,] That is, when the Israelites got possession of the land, they called this brook, or valley, “Eshcol,” in memory of this bunch of grapes; for so Eshcol signifies. Bp. Patrick.

26. And they went] Up the mountain from Eshcol, and came down on the other side to Moses, &c. Dr. Wells.

29. — by the sea,] Meaning either the Mediterranean sea, westward; emphatically called “the sea,” as being the greatest near Canaan. Dr. Wells. Or possibly, from its connexion here with the river Jordan, it may mean the Dead sea. Bp. Patrick.

31. — We be not able to go up] Forty days they spent in this search; and their cowardly unbelief in the search shall cost them forty years’ delay of the fruition. Who can bear to see the rulers of Israel so basely timorous? They commend the land; the fruit commends itself; and yet they plead difficulty: “We be not able to go up.” It is an unworthy thing to plead hardness in the achievement, where the benefit will more than requite the endeavour. Our land of promise is above: we know the fruit thereof is sweet and glorious, the passage difficult. The giantlike sons of Anak, “the powers of darkness,” stand in our way; if we sit down and complain, we shall hereafter be convinced, that “without shall be the fearful and unbelieving.” See Rev. xxi. 8; xxii. 15. Bp. Hall.

32. — The land, — is a land that eateth up the inhabitants] Either the air is unwholesome, and wastes the inhabitants with disease; or the soil is so stubborn and harsh to work upon, that it consumes their bodies with the difficulty of their labours. Bp. Hall. In the heat of their opposition, these men now disparage the country

Before
CHRIST
1490.

33 And there we saw the giants, the sons of Anak, which come of the giants: and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so we were in their sight.

CHAP. XIV.

1 The people murmur at the news. 6 Joshua and Caleb labour to still them. 11 God threateneth them. 13 Moses persuadeth God, and obtaineth pardon. 26 The murmurers are deprived of entering into the land. 36 The men who raised the evil report die by a plague. 40 The people that would invade the land against the will of God are smitten.

AND all the congregation lifted up their voice, and cried; and the people wept that night.

2 And all the children of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron: and the whole congregation said unto them, Would God that we had died in the land of Egypt! or would God we had died in this wilderness!

3 And wherefore hath the LORD brought us unto this land, to fall by the sword, that our wives and our children should be a prey? were it not better for us to return into Egypt?

4 And they said one to another, Let us make a captain, and let us return into Egypt.

which they had before praised; and also stretch their report of the inhabitants beyond the truth. Bp. Patrick.

33. And there we saw the giants.] Although we read of giants before Noah's flood, Gen. vi. 4, and more plainly afterwards in Numbers, yet there is great reason to think the ordinary size of man was always the same from the creation. For as to the "Nephilim," or "giants," in Gen. vi, the ancients vary about them; some taking them for great atheists, and monsters of impiety, rapine, tyranny, and all wickedness, as well as of monstrous stature, as indeed the Hebrew signification allows. And as for the "Nephilim" in Numbers, which were evidently men of a gigantick stature, it must be considered, that it is very probable the fears and discontent of the spies may have added something to their height. But be the matter as it will, it is very manifest, that in both these places giants are spoken of as rarities and wonders of the age, not as of common stature. But as for the ordinary size of mankind, it was always, in all probability, the same, as may appear from the monuments, mummies, armour, vessels, and other utensils to be seen at this day. Dr. Derham.

— we were in our own sight as grasshoppers.] For stature and strength there seemed to be no less difference betwixt them and us, than betwixt grasshoppers and men. Bp. Hall. They had no confidence in the promise and power of God, on which Caleb and Joshua relied; but measured all things by human strength. Bp. Patrick. When we measure our spiritual success by our own power, we are vanquished before we fight. He, that would overcome, must neither look upon his own arm, nor the arm of his enemy, but the mouth and hand of Him that hath promised and can perform. Bp. Hall.

Chap. XIV. ver. 2. — would God we had died in this wilderness!] This which they foolishly wish for, happened to them, ver. 28, 29. Bp. Kidder.

3. — wherefore hath the Lord brought us &c.] Having vented
VOL. I.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

5 Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces before all the assembly of the congregation of the children of Israel.

6 ¶ And Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of them that searched the land, rent their clothes:

7 And they spake unto all the company of the children of Israel, saying, The land, which we passed through to search it, is an exceeding good land.

8 If the LORD delight in us, then he will bring us into this land, and give it us; a land which floweth with milk and honey.

9 Only rebel not ye against the LORD, neither fear ye the people of the land; for they are bread for us: their † defence is departed from them, and the LORD is with us: fear them not. † Heb. shadow.

10 But all the congregation bade stone them with stones. And the glory of the LORD appeared in the tabernacle of the congregation before all the children of Israel.

11 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, How long will this people provoke me? and how long will it be ere they believe me, for all the signs which I have shewed among them?

their passion against God's ministers, they most undutifully accuse Him, as if He had dealt deceitfully with them. Bp. Patrick.

4. — Let us make a captain, and let us return into Egypt.] Though they might in their rage speak of returning into Egypt, it is amazing that they should continue in this madness, and deliberate about it, and actually appoint them a captain, as Nehemiah saith they did, chap. ix. 17. For how could they get thither without food? which they could not expect God would send them from heaven, when they had forsaken Him. Or how could they hope to find their way, when His cloud, that directed them, was withdrawn? Or hope to resist such nations, as might oppose their progress, if they happened to take the right way? And after all, if they came into Egypt, what reception could they expect from a people, whose king, princes, and firstborn had lately perished on their account? Nothing can be said in answer to these things, but that outrageous discontent will not suffer men to consider any thing, but that which grieves them; and that foul ingratitude and forgetfulness of God's benefits throws them into such discontent. Bp. Patrick.

9. — they are bread for us.] We shall consume them with great ease, and feed upon their rich provisions. Bp. Hall.

— fear them not.] Caleb does not say, "Who am I, to strive with a multitude? What can Joshua and I do against ten rulers?" but he resolves to struggle against opposition, and will either draw friends to the truth, or enemies upon himself. True Christian fortitude teaches us, not to regard the number or quality of the opponents, but the equity of the cause; and fears not to stand alone, and challenge all comers; and if it could be opposed by as many worlds as men, it may be overcome, but it cannot be daunted. Whereas popularity carries weak minds, and teaches them the safety of erring with a multitude. Bp. Hall.

10. — all the congregation bade stone them with stones.] Though Moses and Aaron entreat upon their faces, and Joshua and Caleb

Before
CHRIST
1490.

12 I will smite them with the pestilence, and disinherit them, and will make of thee a greater nation and mightier than they.

^a Exod. 32.
12.

13 ¶ And ^a Moses said unto the LORD, Then the Egyptians shall hear it, (for thou broughtest up this people in thy might from among them;)

^b Exod. 13.
21.

14 And they will tell it to the inhabitants of this land: for they have heard that thou LORD art among this people, that thou LORD art seen face to face, and that ^b thy cloud standeth over them, and that thou goest before them, by day time in a pillar of a cloud, and in a pillar of fire by night.

^c Deut. 9.
28.

15 ¶ Now if thou shalt kill all this people as one man, then the nations which have heard the fame of thee will speak, saying,

16 Because the LORD was not ^c able to bring this people into the land which he swore unto them, therefore he hath slain them in the wilderness.

17 And now, I beseech thee, let the power of my Lord be great, according as ^{Before} thou hast spoken, saying, ^{CHRIST} 1490.

18 The LORD is ^d longsuffering, and of ^d great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression, and by no means clearing ^{6.} the ^{Ps. 103. 8.} guilty, ^e visiting the iniquity of the fathers ^e upon the children unto the third and fourth ^e generation. ^{Exod. 20. 5. & 34. 7.}

19 Pardon, I beseech thee, the iniquity of this people according unto the greatness of thy mercy, and as thou hast forgiven this people, from Egypt even [¶] until now. ^{¶ Or, hitherto.}

20 And the LORD said, I have pardoned according to thy word:

21 But as truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the LORD.

22 Because all those men which have seen my glory, and my miracles, which I did in Egypt and in the wilderness, have tempted me now these ten times, and have not hearkened to my voice;

23 † Surely they shall not see the land ^{† Heb. If they see the land.} which I swore unto their fathers, neither shall any of them that provoked me see it:

persuade and rend their garments, yet they prevail nothing. The obstinate multitude, grown more violent by opposition, is ready to return them stones for their prayers. Such have been ever the thanks of fidelity and truth: interrupted wickedness proves desperate, and, instead of yielding, seeks for revenge. Nothing is so hateful to a resolute sinner as good counsel: we are become enemies to the world, because we tell them the truth. Bp. Hall.

17. — let the power of my Lord be great.] Let the greatness of Thy power appear in pardoning and forbearing this people. Bp. Kidder.

18. The Lord is longsuffering, &c.] In these words, though more largely, God proclaimed His name to Moses, when He shewed him His glory, Exod. xxxiv. 6, 7, adding, among other things, “by no means clearing the guilty.” These words, as interpreted in the note on Exodus, are a plain argument to move the Divine Goodness to pardon their sin. But the next words, “visiting the iniquity &c.” seem to be contrary to the intention of the petition: till it be considered, that they had not now committed idolatry, against which sin God, in these words, particularly declares His severity, and that Moses did not now plead for an absolute pardon, without any punishment; but that God would not utterly disinherit and destroy the whole nation. This threatening he hoped that God’s gracious nature would incline Him to revoke; notwithstanding which, He might “visit the sin of the fathers upon the children;” that is, punish them and their posterity a long time. So this latter part of the verse is to be interpreted, “in making desolate He will not make quite desolate, though He visit the iniquity of the fathers upon the children.” Bp. Patrick. See the notes on Exod. xxxiv. 7; and Jer. xxx. 11.

20. — I have pardoned according to thy word.] God granted his desire, not to destroy them utterly; though He did not wholly forgive their sin. Bp. Patrick.

21. — all the earth shall be filled &c.] The whole earth shall take notice of My righteous judgments, which I will execute upon this people; and give Me the praise and glory of My justice. Bp. Hall. Although this people be not brought into the promised land, yet shall I be justified in My proceedings against them; and, by My mighty and righteous works, sufficiently provide for the honour of My name, among all the inhabitants of the earth which shall hear of these things. Bp. Kidder.

22. Because all those men &c.] The destruction of the Israelites will not redound to the dishonour of God, because, 1st, They had been disobedient to Him, had tempted Him, and provoked Him. 2d, They were guilty of rebellion against God after the greatest mercies and proofs of God’s patience and providence; they had “seen His glory and His miracles.” 3d, God did not punish them for their first fault, but they had often tempted Him, which is here expressed by “ten times.” See Gen. xxxi. 7. 4th, None of them are devoted to destruction, but those who provoked God, ver. 23, 24, 30. Nor are they destroyed suddenly. Bp. Kidder.

— have tempted me] To “tempt” God, in Scripture language, is to provoke Him by some presumptuous act to anger; as it were to try, whether He will punish or not; or in fewer words, to dare God. Jos. Mede.

There is frequent mention in Scripture of men’s tempting God; that is, trying Him, as it were, whether He will do any thing for their sakes that is misbecoming His goodness, and wisdom, and faithfulness, or any other of His perfections. Thus the Israelites are said to have “tempted God” in the wilderness forty years together, and in that space more remarkably “ten times.” The meaning of which expressions is, that when God had promised Abraham to bring his seed into the land of Canaan, that people, by their great and repeated provocations of God, did often provoke Him to have destroyed them, and consequently to have failed of the promise, which He made to the fathers. Abp. Tillotson.

23. — neither shall any of them &c.] Rather, Even all that provoked Me, they shall not see it. Bp. Patrick.

It is a fearful aggravation of sin, after great judgments and great deliverances, to return to sin, and especially to the same sins, again; because this can hardly be without our sinning against knowledge, and after we are convinced how evil and bitter the sin is, which we were guilty of, and have been so severely punished for before. This is an argument of a very perverse and incorrigible temper, and that which made the sin of the people of Israel so above measure sinful, that after so many signal deliverances, and so many terrible judgments, they fell into the 1490.

Before
CHRIST

Josh. 14.
6.

24 But my servant ^f Caleb, because he had another spirit with him, and hath followed me fully, him will I bring into the land whereinto he went; and his seed shall possess it.

25 (Now the Amalekites and the Canaanites dwelt in the valley.) To morrow turn you, and get you into the wilderness by the way of the Red sea.

26 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

27 How long shall I bear with this evil congregation, which murmur against me? I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel, which they murmur against me.

* Chap. 26.
65. & 32.
10.

28 Say unto them, ^g As truly as I live, saith the LORD, as ye have spoken in mine ears, so will I do to you :

same sin of murmuring ten times : murmuring against God the Author, and against Moses the glorious instrument, of their deliverance out of Egypt, which was one of the two great types of the Old Testament, both of temporal and spiritual oppression and tyranny. Abp. Tillotson.

24. But my servant Caleb, because he had another spirit with him,] A spirit of courage and truth, which ten of the spies wanted. Bp. Kidder. Because he trusted in the power and promise of God, and was not at all afraid of the strength of the enemies. Bp. Patrick. Whilst ten of the spies vehemently dissuaded the Israelites from attempting to enter the country of Canaan, and averred that its inhabitants were far too mighty to be attacked by them with any hope of success; Caleb, together with Joshua, had no apprehensions: he looked not around for objections; he raised up no difficulties. And why? Because "he followed the Lord fully." He placed entire confidence in God. He knew that whatever God promised, He was able to perform. The strong people, that dwelt in the land; the cities walled and very great; the sons of Anak, who were giants; he regarded as nothing. He beheld with the eye of faith the Lord of hosts going before him to battle, and casting down all enemies under his feet. His heart was with his God. He delighted to obey the Divine commands. "Only rebel not ye against the Lord;" this was his main desire, both for his countrymen and for himself. To the protection of the God whom he loved, he committed himself. Consequences he left to Omnipotence. His own concern was his duty; and therefore, at the same time that God destroyed the ten spies, who had impelled the Israelites to transgress, and pronounced sentence on the rebellious congregation, that they should wander until they died in the wilderness, and should never set their foot on the promised land, to His servants Caleb and Joshua, who had fully followed Him in steadfast obedience, He repeated His gracious assurance, that they should enter into the land and possess it. Let us remember the example of the rebellious Israelites, who listened to the ten unfaithful spies; and that of the two steadfast followers of God. Gisborne.

25. (Now the Amalekites and the Canaanites dwell in the valley.)] Or, dwell in the valley; and the words should be read without a parenthesis; the meaning is, they at present lie in wait for you, at the bottom of the other side of the mountain. Bp. Patrick. God, having consented not to destroy the people suddenly, here gives them notice of their danger from the neighbouring people, who lay in wait to give them battle. Bp. Kidder.

— To morrow turn you, &c.] Therefore do not go forward, as I formerly commanded you; lest you fall into their ambushes; but return whence you came. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

Deut. 1.
35.

29 Your carcases shall fall in this wilderness; and all that were ^h numbered of you, according to your whole number, from twenty years old and upward, which have murmured against me,

30 Doubtless ye shall not come into the land, concerning which I ⁱsware to make you dwell therein, save Caleb the son of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun.

† Heb. lifted up my hand.

31 But your little ones, which ye said should be a prey, them will I bring in, and they shall know the land which ye have despised.

32 But as for you, your carcases, they shall fall in this wilderness.

33 And your children shall wander in ^j the wilderness forty years, and bear your whoredoms, until your carcases be wasted in the wilderness. Or, freed.

— To morrow] That is, hereafter; at your next removal. See the marginal reading at Exod. xiii. 14. Bp. Patrick.

— by the way of the Red sea.] By the way which leads to the Red sea, and so to Egypt, whither they desired to return. This command was so grievous, that it appears to have caused those fresh murmurings, which occasioned what follows. Bp. Patrick.

29. Your carcases shall fall in this wilderness;] God would not suffer the land of promise to be occupied by a stubborn and rebellious people, whom neither benefits nor judgments could reclaim: a people, who could never be brought to place any confidence in Him, though He had shewn them that He was superiour to all gods, and had saved them by wonderful deliverances. The Apostle, speaking of these judgments, says, "Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples: and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come," 1 Cor. x. 11. The great crime of the Israelites was a desire to return to the land of bondage; and in consequence of it giving up all hopes and all wishes in respect to the land of promise. Hence their carcases fell by the way; and they never arrived at the place of rest. Bryant.

30. — concerning which I swear to make you dwell therein,] Not to make these particular men, but the seed of Abraham, inhabit it, as Grotius rightly observes. The land had been promised by oath, not to persons, but to the people; namely, to the posterity of those, unto whom God swore to give it, ver. 23. Now such a promise, as he observes, may be performed at any time; because it is not tied to certain persons. Bp. Patrick.

It is a very usual and a very intelligible way of speaking, common in all languages, to speak of nations in their national capacity; and to say, "we," or "you," not meaning it of the individuals now living, but of their ancestors or posterity. Dr. Waterland.

33. — your children shall wander] In the Hebrew, shall feed or graze, as sheep in the deserts. Or rather, like the Arabian shepherds, who removed their tents from place to place, that they might find pasture for their flocks. Bp. Patrick.

— forty years,] Reckoning from their first coming out of Egypt. They came out of Egypt on the 15th day of the first month, and pitched their tents in Gilgal on the 10th day of the first month, of the 41st year after their departure from Egypt: so that their wanderings were just forty years, all but five days. Stackhouse.

— and bear your whoredoms,] That is, the punishment of them. Whilst God visits their present rebellion, He punishes them also for the rest of their iniquities, Deut. ix. 18, 24, especially for the greatest of them all, their idolatries, which He 1490.

Before
CHRIST

¹ Psal. 95.
10
Ezek. 4. 6.
|| Or, altering of my purpose.

34 After the number of the days in which ye searched the land, even ¹forty days, each day for a year, shall ye bear your iniquities, even forty years, and ye shall know || my breach of promise.

35 I the Lord have said, I will surely do it unto all this evil congregation, that are gathered together against me: in this wilderness they shall be consumed, and there they shall die.

36 And the men, which Moses sent to search the land, who returned, and made all the congregation to murmur against him, by bringing up a slander upon the land, 37 Even those men that did bring up the evil report upon the land, ^kdied by the plague before the Lord.

^k 1 Cor. 10.
10.
Hebr. 3. 17.
Jude 5.

38 But Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of the men that went to search the land, lived still.

39 And Moses told these sayings unto all the children of Israel: and the people mourned greatly.

40 ¶ And they rose up early in the morning, and gat them up into the top of the mountain, saying, Lo, we ¹be here, and will go up unto the place which the Lord hath promised: for we have sinned.

¹ Deut. 1.
41.

41 And Moses said, Wherefore now do ye transgress the commandment of the Lord? but it shall not prosper. Before CHRIST

1490.

42 Go not up, for the Lord is not among you; that ye be not smitten before your enemies.

43 For the Amalekites and the Canaanites are there before you, and ye shall fall by the sword: because ye are turned away from the Lord, therefore the Lord will not be with you.

44 But they presumed to go up unto the hill top: nevertheless the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and Moses, departed not out of the camp.

45 Then the Amalekites came down, and the Canaanites which dwelt in that hill, and smote them, and ^mdiscomfited them, even unto Hormah. ^m Deut. 1.
44.

CHAP. XV.

¹ The law of the meat offering and the drink offering. 13, 29 The stranger is under the same law. ¹⁷ The law of the first of the dough for an heave offering. 22 The sacrifice for sin of ignorance. ³⁰ The punishment of presumption. 32 He that violated the sabbath is stoned. 37 The law of fringes.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 ^aSpeak unto the children of Israel, ^aLev. 22. and say unto them, When ye be come into the land of your habitations, which I give unto you, ¹⁰.

declared He would not forget to punish upon any new occasion, Exod. xxxii. 34. Bp. Patrick.

34. — ye shall know my breach of promise.] In the Hebrew, the words are, “ye shall know My breach.” The ancients understood them to mean God’s breaking in upon the Israelites, to take vengeance for their sins. Or, we may understand them of God’s breaking off from the people; that is, His departure from them, who had so shamefully departed from Him. Or, according to our translation, it signifies a revocation of the blessings promised to them. Bp. Patrick. Since you have thus shamefully broken your covenant with Me, ye shall know and feel that those promises, which I made to you upon your obedience, shall now be reversed. Bp. Hall.

It is not certain that the Hebrew word really signifies “breach.” It occurs but once more in the Bible, Job xxxiii. 10, in the plural number, and is rendered occasions, as much by conjecture, as in this place. According to the Greek version it may be translated, ye shall know My anger, or the fury of My wrath; agreeable to which is the version in two early translations of the Bible, ye shall feel My vengeance, and ye shall know My displeasure. This is as good a rendering, and as probable as any. Dr. Waterland.

35. — I will surely do it unto all this evil congregation, &c.] During this critical transaction, how different was the conduct of the Jewish leader from what human prudence would have dictated! According to such dictates, his course could have been no other than to sooth the multitude, till their extreme panic had time to subside; then gradually to revive their confidence by recalling to their view the miseries of that servitude from which they had escaped, the extraordinary success which had hitherto attended their efforts, and the consequent probability of their overcoming the difficulties by which they were now dispirited: and so leading them from one assault, where circumstances were most likely to ensure victory, to another, till their courage was reanimated, and the great object of their enterprise might be again attempted with probability of success. But how strange and unparalleled is the conduct of Moses! He denounces against this whole rebellious multitude the extreme wrath of God: instead of animating them to resume their enterprise, he commands them never to resume it: instead of encouraging them to hope for success, he assures them they never shall succeed: he suffers them not to return to Egypt, yet he will not permit them to invade Canaan. He denounces to them that they shall continue under his command; that he would march and countermarch them for forty years in the wilderness, until every one of the rebellious multitude, then able to bear arms, should perish there; and that then, and not till then, should their children resume the invasion of Canaan, and infallibly succeed in it. See ver. 28—35. Surely such a denunciation as this could never have been uttered by any human being, not distracted with the wildest frenzy, if it had not been dictated by the clearest Divine authority: nor, if uttered, could it have been received by an entire nation with any other sensation than that of scorn and contempt, if the manifestation of the Divine Power, from which it proceeded, and by which alone it could be executed, had not been most certain and conspicuous. Dr. Graves.

Chap. XV. ver. 1. And the Lord spake unto Moses,] It is uncertain at what time. Probably the transactions, recorded in this and the four following chapters, took place in Kadesh, where the foregoing murmuring was, and where “they abode many days,” Deut. i. last verse. Dr. Wells, Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

^b Lev. 22.

21.

[†] Heb.

separating.

^c Exod. 29.

18.

^d Lev. 2. 1.

3 And will make an offering by fire unto the LORD, a burnt offering, or a sacrifice ^b in [†] performing a vow, or in a freewill offering, or in your solemn feasts, to make a ^c sweet savour unto the LORD, of the herd, or of the flock:

4 Then ^d shall he that offereth his offering unto the LORD bring a meat offering of a tenth deal of flour mingled with the fourth part of an hin of oil.

5 And the fourth part of an hin of wine for a drink offering shalt thou prepare with the burnt offering or sacrifice, for one lamb.

6 Or for a ram, thou shalt prepare for a meat offering two tenth deals of flour mingled with the third part of an hin of oil.

7 And for a drink offering thou shalt offer the third part of an hin of wine, for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

8 And when thou preparest a bullock for a burnt offering, or for a sacrifice in performing a vow, or peace offerings unto the LORD:

9 Then shall he bring with a bullock a meat offering of three tenth deals of flour mingled with half an hin of oil.

10 And thou shalt bring for a drink offering half an hin of wine, for an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

11 Thus shall it be done for one bullock, or for one ram, or for a lamb, or a kid.

12 According to the number that ye shall prepare, so shall ye do to every one according to their number.

13 All that are born of the country shall do these things after this manner, in offering an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

14 And if a stranger sojourn with you, or whosoever be among you in your generations, and will offer an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD; as ye do, so he shall do.

• Exod. 12.
49.
chap. 9. 14.

15 ^e One ordinance shall be both for you of the congregation, and also for the stranger that sojourneth with you, an ordinance for ever in your generations: as ye are, so shall the stranger be before the LORD.

16 One law and one manner shall be for you, and for the stranger that sojourneth with you.

14. — a stranger] There were two sorts of strangers among the Israelites: some that entirely embraced and professed the Jewish religion, into which they were admitted by circumci-

17 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

Before
CHRIST
1490.

18 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land whither I bring you, 19 Then it shall be, that, when ye eat of the bread of the land, ye shall offer up an heave offering unto the LORD.

20 Ye shall offer up a cake of the first of your dough for an heave offering: as ye do the heave offering of the threshingfloor, so shall ye heave it.

21 Of the first of your dough ye shall give unto the LORD an heave offering in your generations.

22 ¶ And if ye have erred, and not observed all these commandments, which the LORD hath spoken unto Moses,

23 Even all that the LORD hath commanded you by the hand of Moses, from the day that the LORD commanded Moses, and henceforward among your generations;

24 Then it shall be, if ought be committed by ignorance [†] without the knowledge of the congregation, that all the congregation shall offer one young bullock for a burnt offering, for a sweet savour unto the LORD, with his meat offering, and his drink offering, according to the ^{||} manner, and one kid of the goats for a sin offering.

[†] Heb. from the eyes

^{||} Or,
ordinance.

25 And the priest shall make an atonement for all the congregation of the children of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them; for it is ignorance: and they shall bring their offering, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD, and their sin offering before the LORD, for their ignorance:

26 And it shall be forgiven all the congregation of the children of Israel, and the stranger that sojourneth among them; seeing all the people were in ignorance.

27 ¶ And ^e if any soul sin through ignorance, [†] Lev. 4. 27. then he shall bring a she goat of the first year for a sin offering.

28 And the priest shall make an atonement for the soul that sinneth ignorantly, when he sinneth by ignorance before the LORD, to make an atonement for him; and it shall be forgiven him.

29 Ye shall have one law for him that [†] sinneth through ignorance, both for him that is born among the children of Israel, and for the stranger that sojourneth among them.

[†] Heb.
doeth.

sion, &c.; others, that lived among them by permission, having renounced all idolatry, but did not submit to their whole religion. The former sort are understood to be meant here. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

† Heb. with an high hand.

30 ¶ But the soul that doeth ought † presumptuously, whether he be born in the land, or a stranger, the same reproacheth the LORD; and that soul shall be cut off from among his people.

31 Because he hath despised the word of the LORD, and hath broken his commandment, that soul shall utterly be cut off; his iniquity shall be upon him.

32 ¶ And while the children of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man that gathered sticks upon the sabbath day.

33 And they that found him gathering sticks brought him unto Moses and Aaron, and unto all the congregation.

† Lev. 24.
12.

34 And they put him [†] in ward, because it was not declared what should be done to him.

35 And the LORD said unto Moses, The man shall be surely put to death: all the congregation shall stone him with stones without the camp.

36 And all the congregation brought him without the camp, and stoned him with stones, and he died; as the LORD commanded Moses.

37 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

† Deut. 22.
12.
Matt. 23. 5.

38 Speak unto the children of Israel, and bid ^h them that they make them fringes in the borders of their garments throughout their generations, and that they put upon the fringe of the borders a ribband of blue:

Before
CHRIST
1490.

39 And it shall be unto you for a fringe, that ye may look upon it, and remember all the commandments of the LORD, and do them; and that ye seek not after your own heart and your own eyes, after which ye use to go a whoring:

40 That ye may remember, and do all my commandments, and be holy unto your God.

41 I am the LORD your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am the LORD your God.

CHAP. XVI.

1 The rebellion of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. 23 Moses separateth the people from the rebels' tents. 31 The earth swalloweth up Korah, and a fire consumeth others. 36 The censers are reserved to holy use. 41 Fourteen thousand and seven hundred are slain by a plague for murmuring against Moses and Aaron. 46 Aaron by incense stayeth the plague.

NOW ^a Korah, the son of Izhar, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi, and Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, and On, the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben, took men:

about 1471.
^a Chap. 27.
3.
Ecclesiastes 45.
21.
Jude 11.

2 And they rose up before Moses, with

35. — The man shall be surely put to death:] The sabbath being intended as a sign, that the Israelites were the special people of that God, who is the Creator of the world, and who brought them out of Egypt; the breach of it was to be regarded in effect as a renouncing of their religion; and was therefore to be punished, not only with death, but with a more than ordinary death. Dr. Wells.

— all the congregation shall stone him &c.] This was a punishment inflicted for very enormous crimes, Lev. xx. 2; xxiv. 12—14: and this man was condemned to suffer it, because he was the first breaker of this sacred law. Besides, by doing it presumptuously, as is supposed from the connexion of this story with the 30th and 31st verses, in contempt of the law; and by not desisting from his impiety, when he was admonished to forbear, as is probable, he highly aggravated his guilt; which was no less than a reproaching of the Lord, and a despising of His word. The Jews have a saying, He that denies the sabbath, is like to him that denies the whole law. Bp. Patrick.

39. And it shall be unto you for a fringe,] Or rather, It, that is, the ribband, shall be unto you upon the fringe; that being of a different colour from the fringe it may be the more noted. Bp. Patrick.

— that ye seek not after your own heart] God here forbids this ignorant nation, who were used to the customs of the Gentiles, to take the measures of His worship, rather from the suggestions of their own vitiated fancies, than from the dictates of His law: and He commands them not to think every thing pleasing to God, which might appear handsome to them, bred up as they were amongst the pompous ceremonies of the Gentiles. God therefore admonishes them, that they should not too much indulge their senses or inclinations in the affair of religion; but that they should hearken to, and rest in, what He Himself delivered to them, concerning Himself and His worship. Locke.

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. Now &c.] At what time this rebellion happened, the history does not inform us. Probably it was soon after the advancement of Aaron and his family to the office of high priest, it being the general opinion that that advancement was the cause of the mutiny. And so Josephus represents it. Stackhouse.

— Korah,] He was cousin-german to Moses and Aaron, Exod. vi. 18, and thought himself fit to be their equal. Again—Elizaphan, the son of Uzziel, who was younger brother to Izhar, was appointed chief of the house of the father of the families of the Kohathites, Numb. iii. 30, which might occasion some discontent to Korah. Bp. Kidder.

— Reuben,] He was the firstborn of Israel, but for his sin was deprived of his birthright, Gen. xlix. 3, 4, and the privileges of it, 1 Chron. v. 1, 2; which his posterity seditiously would usurp. They and Korah confederated together. Bp. Kidder.

The narrative no where notices the circumstances, which led these men in particular to unite in this rebellion; but when minutely examined, we discover from it, that they had such pretensions from their rank, as may have encouraged them to resist the authority of Moses and Aaron. Korah was one of the chiefs of the family of Kohath, which appears to have been specially employed to carry the ark and the Holy of Holies, though not permitted to look into them, Numb. iii. 31. They were therefore, amongst the Levites, the next in sacredness of function to Aaron and his sons, and may therefore the more readily have formed a scheme to contest with Aaron his exclusive right to the high priesthood. Dathan, Abiram, and On, were chiefs of the tribe of Reuben, the firstborn of the sons of Jacob; and may therefore have conceived themselves better entitled than Moses to preeminence in temporal power. Dr. Graves.

— took men:] That is, accomplices or associates in his rebellion; namely, the 250, mentioned in the next verse: or, the

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

Chap. 26.
9.

† Heb.
It is much for you.

certain of the children of Israel, two hundred and fifty princes of the assembly, famous in the congregation, men of renown:

3 And they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron, and said unto them, † Ye take too much upon you, seeing all the congregation are holy, every one of them, and the LORD is among them: wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the LORD?

4 And when Moses heard it, he fell upon his face:

5 And he spake unto Korah and unto all his company, saying, Even to morrow the LORD will shew who are his, and who is holy; and will cause him to come near unto him: even him whom he hath chosen will he cause to come near unto him.

6 This do; Take you censers, Korah, and all his company;

7 And put fire therein, and put incense in them before the LORD to morrow: and it shall be that the man whom the LORD doth choose, he shall be holy: ye take too much upon you, ye sons of Levi.

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

8 And Moses said unto Korah, Hear, I pray you, ye sons of Levi:

9 Seemeth it but a small thing unto you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself to do the service of the tabernacle of the LORD, and to stand before the congregation to minister unto them?

10 And he hath brought thee near to him, and all thy brethren the sons of Levi with thee: and seek ye the priesthood also?

11 For which cause both thou and all thy company are gathered together against the LORD: and what is Aaron, that ye murmur against him?

12 ¶ And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab: which said, We will not come up:

word "men" being not in the Hebrew, the verse may be thus translated, Korah the son of Izhar, &c. took both Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab, and On the son of Peleth, &c. Bp. Patrick.

Korah was certainly at the head of the rebellion. Also, the verb, which is singular, and begins the verse, signifies to "take" or "take in," in the sense of alluring, winning, or gaining by persuasion. The verse therefore should run thus; "Now Korah won over both Dathan and Abiram, &c." Eliab being a Reubenite, Deut. xi. 6, as well as Peleth, the word "sons" refers to these two. Dr. Kennicott.

2. — two hundred and fifty princes &c.] What wonder is it, that the ten rulers prevailed so much with the multitude, to dissuade them from Canaan, when three traitors prevailed thus with two hundred and fifty rulers, "famous in the congregation, men of renown?" One man may kindle such a fire, as all the world cannot quench. One plague-sore may infect a whole kingdom. The infection of evil is much worse than the act. Bp. Hall.

3. — Ye take too much upon you,] Ye take too much state and greatness upon you; as if you only might or ought to engross the Lord to yourselves: since there is none of the congregation, who is not capable and fit to do those holy actions, which ye have appropriated to yourselves; and the Lord would be as ready to testify His acceptance of them. Bp. Hall.

— the congregation are holy, &c.] As if they had said, Every man is qualified to be his own priest, to instruct and to save himself; and who is Aaron, that he should set himself up, and lord it over God's heritage? Bp. Horne.

Nothing can be more pleasing to the vulgar, than to hear their governors censured, and themselves flattered. Every word of this speech was a falsehood. Instead of "lifting himself up," Moses humbled himself, "Who am I?" It was God who lifted him up over Israel. And Israel was as "holy," as Moses was ambitious. What holiness was there in so much infidelity, fear, idolatry, mutiny, disobedience? What could make them unclean, if this were holiness? They were still fresh from their last obstinacy; and yet these flatterers say, "All Israel is holy." Bp. Hall.

4. — he fell upon his face:] In a deep sorrow for this presumptuous sin of these princes, and in an humble invocation of God, who only could right these proud challenges. Bp. Hall.

5. — who are his,] Who are chosen by Him to govern and minister in holy things. Bp. Kidder. To morrow the Lord will give a visible proof, whether He hath set us apart to these His highest services; and is well pleased, that ye should, without any special calling thereunto, approach unto His presence to offer sacrifices to Him. Bp. Hall.

— and will cause him to come near unto him:] He will make it appear, that they are the persons, who ought to burn incense, and to offer sacrifices. Bp. Patrick.

— him whom he hath chosen will he cause &c.] They shall discharge the office of priesthood, whom God Himself hath chosen to it; and no person else. Bp. Patrick.

6. — Take you censers,] Perform the office of priests, to which you pretend that you have a right. Moses, no doubt, by God's direction, orders Korah and his company to execute the office to which they aspired. Bp. Patrick.

7. — ye take too much upon you, ye sons of Levi.] Thou, O Korah, being one of the tribe of Levi, rather takest too much upon thee and thine, thus to encroach upon the priest's office. Bp. Hall.

9. — to bring you near to himself] Though not so near as the priests, yet nearer than all other men; being the sole attendants on the priests. Bp. Patrick.

As there was a difference betwixt the people and Levites, so was there betwixt the Levites and priests. The God of order loves to have our degrees kept. While the Levites would be looking up to the priests, Moses directs their eyes down to the people. The way not to repine at those above us, is to look at those below us. There is no better remedy for ambition, than to reckon up our former blessings, and to set them against our deservings, and to compare our own estate with that of our inferiours. So shall we find cause to be thankful that we are above any, rather than to be envious because any are above us. Bp. Hall.

12. — which said, We will not come up:] At the same time that a schism was forming in the church, by Korah, a discontented factious Levite, charging Aaron with priestcraft, a rebellion was likewise fomented in the state. For Dathan and Abiram, who were laymen, and princes of the congregation, accused Moses of tyranny and a design to establish arbitrary power; which they affirmed to be so clear a case, that unless he "put out the eyes" of the people, they must see he intended to enslave, and "to make himself altogether a prince over them." Bp. Horne.

Moses was the prince of Israel, Aaron the priest; Moses was mild, Aaron popular; yet both were conspired against: their

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

13 Is it a small thing that thou hast brought us up out of a land that floweth with milk and honey, to kill us in the wilderness, except thou make thyself altogether a prince over us?

† Heb.
bore out.

14 Moreover thou hast not brought us into a land that floweth with milk and honey, or given us inheritance of fields and vineyards: wilt thou † put out the eyes of these men? we will not come up.

Gen. 4. 4.

15 And Moses was very wroth, and said unto the LORD, ^cRespect not thou their offering: I have not taken one ass from them, neither have I hurt one of them.

16 And Moses said unto Korah, Be thou and all thy company before the LORD, thou, and they, and Aaron, to morrow:

17 And take every man his censer, and put incense in them, and bring ye before the LORD every man his censer, two hundred and fifty censers; thou also, and Aaron, each of you his censer.

18 And they took every man his censer, and put fire in them, and laid incense thereon, and stood in the door of the tabernacle of the congregation with Moses and Aaron.

19 And Korah gathered all the congregation against them unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and the glory of the LORD appeared unto all the congregation.

20 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

21 Separate yourselves from among this congregation, that I may consume them in a moment.

22 And they fell upon their faces, and

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

said, O God, the God of the spirits of all flesh, shall one man sin, and wilt thou be wroth with all the congregation?

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 Speak unto the congregation, saying, Get you up from about the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.

25 And Moses rose up and went unto Dathan and Abiram; and the elders of Israel followed him.

26 And he spake unto the congregation, saying, Depart, I pray you, from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of their's, lest ye be consumed in all their sins.

27 So they gat up from the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, on every side: and Dathan and Abiram came out, and stood in the door of their tents, and their wives, and their sons, and their little children.

28 And Moses said, Hereby ye shall know that the LORD hath sent me to do all these works; for I have not done them of mine own mind.

29 If these men die † the common death of all men, or if they be visited after the visitation of all men; then the LORD hath not sent me. † Heb. as every man dieth.

30 But if the LORD † make a new thing, and the earth open her mouth, and swallow them up, with all that appertain unto them, and they go down quick into the pit; then ye shall understand that these men have provoked the LORD. † Heb. create a creature.

31 ¶ And it came to pass, as he had made an end of speaking all these words, ^dCh. 27. 3. Deut. 11. 6. Ps. 106. 17.

places were no less nearly related than their persons, yet both were opposed at once. He that is a traitor to the Church is a traitor to the King. Bp. Hall.

13. — out of a land that floweth with milk and honey,] Nothing could be more insolent and ungrateful, than to describe Egypt in the very same language, in which God had often spoken of the land of promise; particularly since He sent Moses to tell them, He would bring them up out of the affliction of Egypt, Exod. iii. 16, 17. Bp. Patrick.

15. — I have not taken one ass from them,] The innocence of Moses called for vengeance on his adversaries. If he had wronged them in his government, in vain would he have looked to God's hand for protection. Our sins exclude us from God's favour; whereas uprightness challenges and receives His patronage. Bp. Hall.

22. — the God of the spirits of all flesh,] Thou who hast created the souls of all mankind, and who therefore knowest their most secret thoughts and inclinations. Bp. Patrick. God is called "the God of the spirits of all flesh," as he is called "the Father of spirits," Heb. xii. 9, that is, the Creator of the souls of men. Abp. Tillotson.

26. — Depart, I pray you, from the tents &c.] God's vengeance, when it is hottest, distinguishes betwixt men. In the universal judgment of all the earth, the Judge Himself will separate: in these particular judgments we must separate ourselves. The society of wicked men, especially in their sins, is mortally dangerous: while we will not be parted, how can we complain, if we be included in their condemnation? Bp. Hall.

28. — to do all these works;] That is, to take upon me the government; and to put Aaron and his family into the priesthood; and to make the Levites only their ministers, &c. Bp. Patrick.

29. — the common death of all men,] A natural death. "After the visitation of all men," means such judgments of God as are common in the world; namely, pestilence, sword, or famine. To "go down quick into the pit," in the next verse, signifies, "to be buried alive, in perfect health." Bp. Patrick.

31. And it came to pass, &c.] The history of the punishment of Korah is among the most striking instances of the Divine Power, exerted to vindicate His appointments, and to destroy profligate offenders. Let the earth swallow men and their dwellings, when it opens its abysses; there is nothing in that beyond the powers of nature. When the earth trembles, those places which are the seat of this disturbance must crumble into dust by the shock. Sicily and Italy furnish innumerable instances in support of these assertions; yet even in these instances, though not miraculous, it is

Before CHRIST about 1471. that the ground clave asunder that was under them :

32 And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their houses, and all the men that appertained unto Korah, and all their goods.

33 They, and all that appertained to them, went down alive into the pit, and the earth closed upon them : and they perished from among the congregation.

34 And all Israel that were round athe Divine power that produces such commotions. All the works of nature are works of God. But here, while the earth is composed and tranquil, the man of God foretells the time, the place, the persons concerned, and the manner in which this prodigy should happen : and this, not in Sicily, not in Italy, not in a country undermined by subterranean fires ; but in the sandy deserts of Arabia, where rocks probably form the general under strata, and sand the upper ; where earthquakes are little known, except by report ; and where little expectation of this threat's fulfilment could arise in the minds of the hearers, from general appearances, or from supposable natural causes. Yet here, at the time appointed, the earth opens her mouth, and swallows down into her profound abysses the whole company of rebels ; leaving no trace of them remaining, but by the void where they had been.

As to the fire from the Lord, mentioned in ver. 35, the probability is that it was lightning ; but nothing forbids its being an exhalation of a different kind ; perhaps from the earth itself.

It is good to remark here, in passing, that the greater part of the miracles wrought to establish the Jewish religion were of a terrific nature, and often involved the ruin of a multitude of transgressors ; witness this destruction of Korah and his accomplices. On the contrary, the miracles wrought in establishing the truth of the Gospel were salutary and benevolent, as well to the enemies as to the friends of religion. Script. illust. Expos. Ind.

32. And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up,] It appears from chap. xxvi. 11, that " the children of Korah died not " in this destruction, which involved the entire families of Dathan and Abiram. The difference may be thus accounted for. Dathan and Abiram shewed their rebellion in resisting the authority of Moses, as temporal judge, refusing to come, when called on, to attend his summons, ver. 12. Korah's rebellion consisted in his laying claim to the high priesthood : and in consequence of a direction given for bringing his claim to a test, ver. 16, 17, he " gathered all the congregation against Moses and Aaron unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation," ver. 19. Here then a separation took place between these different parties. When indeed the Divine command was given, that the congregation should separate themselves from all three, speaking of them all collectively, because involved in one common cause, it is said, " Get you up from about the tabernacle " (that is, the assembly or company, according to the Greek version, Dr. Hales,) " of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram." Yet in delivering this direction, we find the separation continued : for Moses, at the time he received it, was standing at the door of the tabernacle with Korah and his company ; and he " rose up and went unto Dathan and Abiram, undoubtedly leaving Korah's company at the door of the tabernacle. Soon after, it is said, " Dathan and Abiram came out, and stood in the door of their tents, and their wives, and their sons, and their little children." On this circumstance turns the explanation, which seems to account for the final difference of the event. Thus Dathan and Abiram collected their families round them, as their abettors in this rebellion, and as determined to abide all its consequences with themselves : but this is not said of the family of Korah, and the nature of the case shews the reason : Korah did not remain in his tent, but was at a considerable distance from it, the tabernacle being in the centre of the bout them fled at the cry of them : for they said, Lest the earth swallow us up Before CHRIST about 1471. also.

35 And there came out a fire from the LORD, and consumed the two hundred and fifty men that offered incense.

36 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

37 Speak unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, that he take up the censers out of the burning, and scatter thou the fire yonder ; for they are hallowed.

camp ; the tents of the Levites surrounding it on every side ; and outside them the tents of the other tribes. He had therefore no opportunity of collecting his children about him : and it is not said, nor is it a natural supposition, that his wife and children should in his absence assemble of themselves, and stand at the door of their tent, in the same manner as Dathan and Abiram caused their families to do : hence they escaped from being so openly and contumaciously involved in the guilt of his rebellion, and hence they escaped its punishment.

When it is stated that " the earth swallowed them up, and their houses, and all the men that appertained unto Korah, and all their goods," it only means Dathan and Abiram, to whose tents only Moses is said to have gone, and against whom only he denounced this species of punishment. The phrase " appertaining unto Korah " meaning only that they belonged to his party, and supported his cause : for in the third verse after it is said, that the two hundred and fifty men, who offered incense, perished by a fire from the Lord, amongst whom probably were the men of Korah's family. Dr. Graves.

35. — consumed the two hundred and fifty men that offered incense.] Which was a plain declaration, that they usurped the office of priests ; and therefore were thus punished by God Himself for their presumption. Bp. Patrick. There were two sorts of traitors : the earth swallowed up the one, the fire consumed the other. All the elements agree to serve the vengeance of their Maker. Nadab and Abihu brought fit persons, but unfit fire to God : these Levites bring the right fire, but unwarranted persons before Him : fire from God consumes both. It is a dangerous thing to usurp sacred functions. Bp. Hall.

37. — unto Eleazar] These evil men attempted to deprive Aaron's posterity of the priesthood. Therefore Eleazar his son is commanded to make the censers into a standing memorial of their fault, and of the priesthood's being settled in the family of Aaron. Bp. Kidder.

— yonder ;] Farther from the sanctuary. Probably into some unclean place, as a token of God's abhorrence of their offering. Dr. Wells.

— hallowed.] That is, separated from common use, having been offered before the Lord, and that by God's command : and therefore God would not have them serve hereafter for any other use. Bp. Patrick.

— for they are hallowed.] Whatever is once dedicated to God, cannot afterwards be applied to any secular or profane use : but it may, by lawful authority, be diverted to other use than that, to which at first it was piously designed. There were many institutions with reference to religion, originally founded in piety and devotion, which in process of time degenerated into superstition and idolatry : and, as these profane customs ought to be suppressed, so, whatever was conferred for the maintenance and support of that service in the integrity of it, ought not to be diverted to any arbitrary purpose, because the first end is determined ; but it ought still to be applied to somewhat that is sacred, and to comply with the original designation, as far as can be, lawfully and usefully. And for this, methinks, God's own determination seems to be some warrant in the insurrection of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram ; where the two hundred and fifty censers, in which

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

38 The censers of these sinners against their own souls, let them make them broad plates for a covering of the altar: for they offered them before the Lord, therefore they are hallowed: and they shall be a sign unto the children of Israel.

39 And Eleazar the priest took the brasen censers, wherewith they that were burnt had offered; and they were made broad plates for a covering of the altar:

40 To be a memorial unto the children of Israel, that no stranger, which is not of the seed of Aaron, come near to offer incense before the Lord; that he be not as Korah, and as his company: as the Lord said to him by the hand of Moses.

41 ¶ But on the morrow all the congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron, saying, Ye have killed the people of the Lord.

42 And it came to pass, when the congregation was gathered against Moses and against Aaron, that they looked toward the tabernacle of the congregation: and, behold, the cloud covered it, and the glory of the Lord appeared.

incense had been offered, were taken out of the fire. "The censers of these sinners &c." see ver. 38. There must be no more incense offered in them; they had been too much profaned. "And Eleazar the priest took &c." ver. 39. There was no need of any "covering for the altar:" God had provided every thing that was necessary for it before; there was no defect: but He would rather make a new addition to what was perfect enough before, than suffer what had been once hallowed to be turned to any use which had no reference to His service. Lord Clarendon.

38. — sinners against their own souls,] Who have brought destruction on themselves by their presumption. Bp. Patrick.

— they shall be a sign unto the children of Israel.] Or, "a memorial," ver. 40, that God accepts no sacrifice, which is not presented by the hands of the sons of Aaron. This was to be remembered by the Levites in their attendance upon the priest, when they saw their plates laid upon the altar of burnt offering every day. Bp. Patrick.

40. — that no stranger,] Though he were an Israelite, nay, a Levite, if he were not of the seed of Aaron, he was reputed a "stranger" to this office. Bp. Patrick.

41. But on the morrow &c.] They who have not studied human nature, who have not seen or heard much of mankind, will perhaps imagine that such a decision as that just recorded must needs have silenced every objection, and put an end to the murmurings of discontent. And so far indeed it is true, that the people fled at the cry of those who suffered, "for they said, Lest the earth swallow us up also." But as soon as the danger was over, they discovered the real sentiments of their corrupted hearts. After a single night's rest, the spirit of rebellion again took possession of them; and, all reverence laid aside, they go in a tumultuous and insolent manner to their leaders, requiring at their hands, truly, the blood of Korah and his followers. Thus, by standing up for these offenders, they shewed a secret approbation of their offence; and, being partakers of their crime, they justly became partakers also of their punishment. Bp. Horne.

42. — they looked toward the tabernacle of the congregation:]

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

43 And Moses and Aaron came before the tabernacle of the congregation.

44 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

45 Get you up from among this congregation, that I may consume them as in a moment. And they fell upon their faces.

46 ¶ And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a censer, and put fire therein from off the altar, and put on incense, and go quickly unto the congregation, and make an atonement for them: for there is wrath gone out from the Lord; the plague is begun.

47 And Aaron took as Moses commanded, and ran into the midst of the congregation; and, behold, the plague was begun among the people: and he put on incense, and made an atonement for the people.

48 And he stood between the dead and the living; and the plague was stayed.

49 Now they that died in the plague were fourteen thousand and seven hundred, beside them that died about the matter of Korah.

50 And Aaron returned unto Moses unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and the plague was stayed.

Moses and Aaron implored help of God, which is implied in their looking toward His dwelling place. Bp. Patrick.

46. And Moses said unto Aaron, &c.] Moses, though he were great with God, yet takes not upon himself this reconciliation: he may advise Aaron what to do, himself undertakes not to do it: it is the work of the priesthood to make an atonement for the people. And shall there be less use, or less regard, of the evangelical ministry, than of the legal? Bp. Hall.

— Take a censer, &c.] By what Aaron did and effected, God farther asserted his just title to the priesthood. Bp. Kidder. For He not only preserved him, when he offered incense together with Korah's company, but He now makes him an instrument of preserving others from destruction. Bp. Patrick.

47. And Aaron took — and made an atonement for the people.] He interceded with God for them, and obtained what he desired. But was it for Aaron's sake that God spared the remnant of His people? Had Aaron any merit of his own, any superfluous righteousness, which might be imputed to them? Far from it. He, and "every high priest taken from among men," were necessarily heirs of the universal corruption of the children of Adam: they had their infirmities, as the Apostle argues, and were obliged to offer up sacrifices for their own sins, as well as for those of the people. But, as the same Apostle teaches us, Aaron, in the office of high priest and mediator, represented the world's Redeemer; and the atonement, which he made for Israel, showed forth that great Atonement, to be one day made by Jesus Christ for the Church universal of all ages and nations. God had respect unto that great Atonement; and for His sake, who was to make it, pardoned those for whom it was to be made. In the person of Aaron He beheld His beloved Son, "in whom He is well pleased," interceding for the transgressors: Israel was spared for the sake of Aaron; but Aaron himself was accepted for the sake of Christ. Bp. Horne.

50. — and the plague was stayed.] Upon Aaron's offering incense a stop is put to the destruction; whereas when they, who were not called of God, as Aaron, attempted to offer it, they were overtaken by the judgment of God. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

CHAP. XVII.

1 Aaron's rod among all the rods of the tribes only flourisheth. 10 It is left for a monument against the rebels.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and take of every one of them a rod according to the house of their fathers, of all their princes according to the house of their fathers twelve rods : write thou every man's name upon his rod.

3 And thou shalt write Aaron's name upon the rod of Levi : for one rod shall be for the head of the house of their fathers.

^a Exod. 25.
^{22.}

4 And thou shalt lay them up in the tabernacle of the congregation before the testimony, ^a where I will meet with you.

5 And it shall come to pass, that the man's rod, whom I shall choose, shall blossom : and I will make to cease from me the murmurings of the children of Israel, whereby they murmur against you.

† Heb.
a rod for one prince,
a rod for one prince.

6 ¶ And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, and every one of their princes gave him † a rod apiece, for each prince one, according to their fathers' houses, even twelve rods : and the rod of Aaron was among their rods. Before

CHRIST
about 1471.

7 And Moses laid up the rods before the LORD in the tabernacle of witness.

8 And it came to pass, that on the morrow Moses went into the tabernacle of witness ; and, behold, the rod of Aaron for the house of Levi was budded, and brought forth buds, and bloomed blossoms, and yielded almonds.

9 And Moses brought out all the rods from before the LORD unto all the children of Israel : and they looked, and took every man his rod.

10 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Bring ^b Aaron's rod again before the testimony, to be kept for a token against the [†] rebels ; and thou shalt quite take away their murmurings from me, that they die not. ^b Hebr. 9. 4.
[†] Heb.
children of rebellion.

11 And Moses did so : as the LORD commanded him, so did he.

12 And the children of Israel spake unto Moses, saying, Behold, we die, we perish, we all perish.

Under this most affecting image of rebellious Israel, smitten with a pestilence, and saved by the intercession of Aaron, are described the miserable state of man after the fall ; the terrible execution of God's judgment on the one hand, and the gracious interposition of our Redeemer on the other.—Were the men of Israel sinners and rebels against their God? So we are all. All have sinned ; all have broken their allegiance to their Creator and Sovereign, and gone over to His and their enemy.—Did Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, with all their company, go down into the pit? Did a fire come forth from the Lord, and consume the two hundred and fifty men that offered incense? And did a raging pestilence sweep off the murmurers by thousands? What are we taught by all this, but the same interesting lesson, which the Apostle teaches us in words, that “ the wages of sin is death ; ” and that “ death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned ? ” But what? Must we then indeed perish? Must we all perish? Is the plague begun among the people, and is there no person who can stay it? O, not so ; blessed be our gracious God ; there is yet hope of comfort, health, and salvation. Behold the Intercessor making atonement, and saving the remnant of His people. He puts on, for incense, the merits of His own sufferings. He runs into the midst of God's people, as a Mediator, interposing Himself between the parties at variance, in order to reconcile them. He meets the burning wrath, and turns it aside from all believers. He stands between the dead and the living ; between those, who, by opposing His method of salvation, will die in their sins, and those, who, living and believing in Him, shall never die eternally. He is at the right hand of God, ever making intercession for us. And so “ the plague is stayed.” A stop is put to the progress of everlasting destruction. The fiery sword of offended justice cannot reach, nor shall the second death have any power over such as accept the atonement which He hath made for them, and thankfully receive the benefits of His all-prevailing intercession. “ There is now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus,” Rom. viii. 1. Bp. Horne.

Chap. XVII. ver. 2. — of every one of them] That is, of every tribe.

— a rod] It has been the custom in all ages for elderly men, and for those in authority, to carry, as a mark of dignity, a rod or cane, or walking-staff ; which at length became the sceptre peculiar to princes. The priests too, among the Greeks and Romans, had their recurved rods ; and bishops, in later ages, have their croziers. All these are ensigns of dignity and office.

The rod of Aaron should seem to have been of the almond tree : the Fathers thought it was of some other kind of wood ; but there is no need to augment a miracle, which is sufficient in itself.

The Jews, to commemorate this miracle, have struck the blossoming rod on several of their coins. Script. illust. Expos. Ind.

4. — where I will meet with you.] There He promised “ to meet ” with Moses, Exod. xxv. 22, by whom He communicated His mind to the people. For this reason the tabernacle of the Lord is called The Tabernacle of Meeting ; not of men's meeting there, as is commonly supposed by our translating it, “ The tabernacle of the Congregation ; ” but of God's meeting there with men. See Exod. xxix. 32 ; xxx. 36. Bp. Patrick.

7. — in the tabernacle of witness.] In that part of the tabernacle where the ark was, which had in it the “ witness ” or testimony given by God to Moses, Exod. xxv. 21. Bp. Patrick.

8. — was budded,] Probably in some places of the rod there was an appearance of buds coming forth ; in others the buds were fully thrust out ; and in others they were opened and shot forth into blossoms ; and those blossoms in other parts were knotted and grown into almonds. Bp. Patrick.

10. — for a token against the rebels ;] That it might be produced as a sufficient conviction of their impiety, if any should presume hereafter to rebel against Aaron's authority. Or rather that it might prevent all insurrections against his authority for the future. It remained in the most holy place for some time, as appears from Heb. ix. 4. Bp. Patrick.

12. — we die, &c.] We all see how deadly a thing it is for us to offer to meddle with any of the sacred affairs of the tabernacle. But, O Lord, what shall become of us? Some of us are swallowed up of the earth ; others of us are consumed by fire ; others, by the sudden stroke of Thy hand. O God, wilt not

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

13 Whosoever cometh any thing near unto the tabernacle of the LORD shall die: shall we be consumed with dying?

CHAP. XVIII.

1 The charge of the priests and Levites. 9 The priests' portion. 21 The Levites' portion. 25 The heave offering to the priests out of the Levites' portion.

AND the LORD said unto Aaron, Thou and thy sons and thy father's house with thee shall bear the iniquity of the sanctuary: and thou and thy sons with thee shall bear the iniquity of your priesthood.

2 And thy brethren also of the tribe of Levi, the tribe of thy father, bring thou with thee, that they may be joined unto thee, and minister unto thee: but thou and thy sons with thee shall minister before the tabernacle of witness.

3 And they shall keep thy charge, and the charge of all the tabernacle: only they shall not come nigh the vessels of the sanctuary and the altar, that neither they, nor ye also, die.

4 And they shall be joined unto thee, and keep the charge of the tabernacle of the congregation, for all the service of the tabernacle: and a stranger shall not come nigh unto you.

5 And ye shall keep the charge of the sanctuary, and the charge of the altar: that there be no wrath any more upon the children of Israel.

* Chap. 3.
45.

6 And I, behold, I have ^a taken your brethren the Levites from among the children of Israel: to you they are given as a gift for the LORD, to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation.

7 Therefore thou and thy sons with thee shall keep your priest's office for every thing of the altar, and within the vail; and ye shall serve: I have given your priest's office unto you as a service of gift: and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

Thou, be entreated to take off Thy revenging hand from us, till we be all utterly consumed? Bp. Hall. By this miracle they are convinced of their danger, if they should at any time invade the office of the priesthood, or press beyond their allowed limits. Bp. Kidder.

Chap. XVIII. ver. 1. And the Lord said unto Aaron, &c.] Having wrought several miracles to establish Aaron in the priesthood, God now instructs him, that the honour conferred upon him was an office of great weight and burden; in which he must conduct himself with especial care and circumspection. Bp. Patrick.

— shall bear the iniquity of the sanctuary:] Shall be liable to punishment for the profanation of the sanctuary, of which you have the charge. Bp. Patrick.

8 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Aaron, Behold, I also have given thee the charge of mine heave offerings of all the hallowed things of the children of Israel; unto thee have I given them by reason of the anointing, and to thy sons, by an ordinance for ever.

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

9 This shall be thine of the most holy things, reserved from the fire: every oblation of their's, every meat offering of their's, and every sin offering of their's, and every trespass offering of their's, which they shall render unto me, shall be most holy for thee and for thy sons.

10 In the most holy place shalt thou eat it; every male shall eat it: it shall be holy unto thee.

11 And this is thine; the heave offering of their gift, with all the wave offerings of the children of Israel: I have given them unto ^b thee, and to thy sons and to thy daughters with thee, by a statute for ever: every one that is clean in thy house shall eat of it. ^c Lev. 10. 14.

12 All the ^d best of the oil, and all the best of the wine, and of the wheat, the first-fruits of them which they shall offer unto the LORD, them have I given thee. ^e Heb. ful.

13 And whatsoever is first ripe in the land, which they shall bring unto the LORD, shall be thine; every one that is clean in thine house shall eat of it.

14 ^f Every thing devoted in Israel shall be thine. ^g Lev. 27. 28.

15 Every thing that openeth the ^h matrix in all flesh, which they bring unto the LORD, whether it be of men or beasts, shall be thine: nevertheless the firstborn of man shalt thou surely redeem, and the firstling of unclean beasts shalt thou redeem. ⁱ Exod. 13. 2. & 22. 29. Lev. 27. 26. chap. 3. 13.

16 And those that are to be redeemed from a month old shalt thou redeem, according to thine estimation, for the money of five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary, ^j which is twenty gerahs. ^k Exod. 30. 13. Lev. 27. 25. chap. 3. 47. Ezek. 45. 12.

— shall bear the iniquity of your priesthood.] Shall suffer punishment, if you permit any person, not of the line of Aaron, to offer incense, or perform any part of the priest's office; or if you do not faithfully discharge your office. This was some comfort to the people, who were afraid they should die for every error committed in their approaches to the sanctuary; whereas God assures them He would punish the priests and Levites: and it also served to remove the people's envy towards the priests, whose dignity they saw accompanied with such danger. Bp. Patrick.

7. — as a service of gift:] That which is at once a favour and privilege; and also imports duty and service. Bp. Patrick.

16. — according to thine estimation,] According to the estimation prescribed for thee to take of all sorts, poor as well as rich. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

17 But the firstling of a cow, or the firstling of a sheep, or the firstling of a goat, thou shalt not redeem; they are holy: thou shalt sprinkle their blood upon the altar, and shalt burn their fat for an offering made by fire, for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

Exod. 29.
26.

18 And the flesh of them shall be thine, as the [†] wave breast and as the right shoulder are thine.

19 All the heave offerings of the holy things, which the children of Israel offer unto the LORD, have I given thee, and thy sons and thy daughters with thee, by a statute for ever: it is a covenant of salt for ever before the LORD unto thee and to thy seed with thee.

Deut. 10.
9. & 18. 2.
Josh. 13.
14, 33.
Ezek. 44.
28.

20 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Aaron, Thou shalt have no inheritance in their land, neither shalt thou have any part among them: [‡] I am thy part and thine inheritance among the children of Israel.

21 And, behold, I have given the children of Levi all the tenth in Israel for an inheritance, for their service which they serve, even the service of the tabernacle of the congregation.

† Heb.
to die.

22 Neither must the children of Israel henceforth come nigh the tabernacle of the congregation, lest they bear sin, [†] and die.

23 But the Levites shall do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation, and they shall bear their iniquity: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations, that among the children of Israel they have no inheritance.

24 But the tithes of the children of Israel, which they offer as an heave offering unto the LORD, I have given to the Levites to inherit: therefore I have said unto them, Among the children of Israel they shall have no inheritance. Before

CHRIST
about 1471.

25 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

26 Thus speak unto the Levites, and say unto them, When ye take of the children of Israel the tithes which I have given you from them for your inheritance, then ye shall offer up an heave offering of it for the LORD, even a tenth part of the tithe.

27 And this your heave offering shall be reckoned unto you, as though it were the corn of the threshingfloor, and as the fulness of the winepress.

28 Thus ye also shall offer an heave offering unto the LORD of all your tithes, which ye receive of the children of Israel; and ye shall give thereof the LORD's heave offering to Aaron the priest.

29 Out of all your gifts ye shall offer every heave offering of the LORD, of all the [†] best thereof, even the hallowed part ^{† Heb. fut.} thereof out of it.

30 Therefore thou shalt say unto them, When ye have heaved the best thereof from it, then it shall be counted unto the Levites as the increase of the threshing-floor, and as the increase of the winepress.

31 And ye shall eat it in every place, ye and your households: for it is your reward for your service in the tabernacle of the congregation.

32 And ye shall bear no sin by reason of it, when ye have heaved from it the best of it: neither shall ye pollute the holy things of the children of Israel, lest ye die.

19. — a covenant of salt] An incorruptible and everlasting covenant, not to be revoked. Bp. Patrick.

Salt preserves from decay and putrefaction, and may therefore properly be an emblem of duration and perpetuity. But the "covenant of salt" seems to refer to the making of an agreement, wherein salt was used as a token of confirmation. Among the Turks, according to Baron du Tott, the eating of bread and salt with a person is esteemed a very significant confirmation of an agreement, and a token of inviolable friendship. Fragments to Calmet.

Between the Mohammedans of Aleppo the relation of host and guest is held sacred, and always mentioned with reverence. A league of mutual amity, founded on former acquaintance, on living together in the same house, but especially on an interchange of hospitable offices, is expressed by "having eaten bread and salt together." Dr. Russell. See the note on Lev. ii. 13.

32. — neither shall ye pollute the holy things &c.] There shall be no danger of your polluting the holy things which God hath reserved to Himself, by turning them to a common use; as there would have been, if they had eaten the tithes or other gifts, before the tenth part, which was God's, was taken from them. Bp. Patrick.

— lest ye die.] In the Hebrew, "nor shall ye die:" as those did, who meddled with the holy things, which God reserved for His ministers alone. Bp. Patrick.

Four and twenty gifts were given to the priests, and they are all expressed in the law. Eight of these gifts the priests were to eat no where but in the sanctuary, within the wall of the court yard; and five gifts they did not eat but in Jerusalem, within the walls of the city; five gifts were not due unto them by the law, but in the land of Israel only; and five gifts were due unto them both within the land, and without the land; one gift was due unto them from the sanctuary.

The eight gifts, which they did not eat but within the sanctuary, were these,

1. The flesh of the sin offering, whether fowl or beast, Lev. vi. 25, 26.
2. The flesh of the trespass offering, Lev. vii. 1, 6.
3. The peace offering of the congregation, Lev. xxiii. 19, 20.
4. The remainder of the omer or sheaf, Lev. xxiii. 10.
5. The remnant of the meat offering of the Israelites, Lev. vi. 16.

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

CHAP. XIX.

1 The water of separation made of the ashes of a red heifer. 11 The law for the use of it in purification of the unclean.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

2 This is the ordinance of the law which the LORD hath commanded, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, that they bring thee a red heifer without spot, wherein is no blemish, and upon which never came yoke:

3 And ye shall give her unto Eleazar the priest, that he may bring her ^a forth without the camp, and one shall slay her before his face:

4 And Eleazar the priest shall take of her blood with his finger, and ^b sprinkle of her blood directly before the tabernacle of the congregation seven times:

5 And one shall burn the heifer in his sight; ^c her skin, and her flesh, and her blood, with her dung, shall he burn:

6 And the priest shall take cedar wood, and hyssop, and scarlet, and cast it into the midst of the burning of the heifer.

7 Then the priest shall wash his clothes, and he shall bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp, and the priest shall be unclean until the even.

6. The two loaves, Lev. xxiii. 17.

7. The shewbread, Lev. xxiv. 9.

8. The leper's log of oil, Lev. xiv. 10.

The five which they might not eat but in Jerusalem, (and before that within the camp of Israel, to which Jerusalem afterward was answerable,) were these,

1. The breast and shoulder of the peace offerings, Lev. vii. 31, 34.

2. The heave offering of the sacrifice of confession, Lev. vii. 12, 14.

3. The heave offering of the Nazarite's ram, Numb. vi. 17, 20.

4. The firstling of the clean beast, Numb. xviii. 17, 18; Deut. xv. 19, 20.

5. The firstfruits, Numb. xviii. 13.

The five things due from the land of Israel only, were,

1. The heave offering or firstfruits, Numb. xviii. 12.

2. The heave offering of the tithe, Numb. xviii. 28.

3. The cake, Numb. xv. 20.

These three were holy.

4. The first of the fleece, Deut. xviii. 4.

5. The field of possession, Lev. xxvii. 22, 23.

Both of these were common.

The five things due to the priest, in every place, were these,

1. The gifts of the beasts slain, Deut. xviii. 3—5.

2. The redemption of the firstborn son, Numb. xviii. 15.

3. The firstling of the ass, Exod. xxxiv. 20; Numb. xviii. 15.

8 And he that burneth her shall wash his clothes in water, and bathe his flesh in water, and shall be unclean until the even.

9 And a man that is clean shall gather up the ashes of the heifer, and lay them up without the camp in a clean place, and it shall be kept for the congregation of the children of Israel for a water of separation: it is a purification for sin.

10 And he that gathereth the ashes of the heifer shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: and it shall be unto the children of Israel, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among them, for a statute for ever.

11 ¶ He that toucheth the dead body of any [†] man shall be unclean seven days.

12 He shall purify himself with it on the third day, and on the seventh day he shall be clean: but if he purify not himself the third day, then the seventh day he shall not be clean.

13 Whosoever toucheth the dead body of any man that is dead, and purifieth not himself, defileth the tabernacle of the LORD; and that soul shall be cut off from Israel: because the water of separation was not sprinkled upon him, he shall be unclean; his uncleanness is yet upon him.

14 This is the law, when a man dieth in

4. The restitution of that which is taken by rapine from a stranger.

5. The devoted things, Numb. xviii. 14.

These five were common things in all respects.

The gift due unto them from the sanctuary was, The skin of the burnt offerings, Lev. vii. 8.

The gifts which the females had part in, as well as the males, were five,

1. The heave offering and firstfruits.

2. The heave offering of the tithe.

3. The cake.

4. The gifts of the beast.

5. The first of the fleece. Maimonides.

Chap. XIX. ver. 2. — a red heifer without spot,] The words, "without spot," mean that the animal should be perfectly red, without one spot of any other colour. Dean Spencer. See Heb. ix. 13, 14.

— upon which never came yoke:] That is, which had never been employed in ploughing the ground or in any other work: for, according to the common sense of all mankind, those creatures, which had been made to serve other uses, became unfit to be offered to the Deity. We find this sentiment in Homer, and in other heathen writers. Bp. Patrick.

9. — for a water of separation:] To be put into spring water, which was always accounted more pure than other, by which those persons were to be cleansed, who were separated, on account of their pollutions, from the congregation: and those things also, which had been defiled, were restored to their common use. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1471.

† Heb.
soul.

Before CHRIST about 1471. a tent: all that come into the tent, and all that is in the tent, shall be unclean seven days.

15 And every open vessel, which hath no covering bound upon it, is unclean.

16 And whosoever toucheth one that is slain with a sword in the open fields, or a dead body, or a bone of a man, or a grave, shall be unclean seven days.

† Heb. dust. † Heb. living waters shall be given. 17 And for an unclean person they shall take of the † ashes of the burnt heifer of purification for sin, and † running water shall be put thereto in a vessel:

18 And a clean person shall take hyssop, and dip it in the water, and sprinkle it upon the tent, and upon all the vessels, and upon the persons that were there, and upon him that touched a bone, or one slain, or one dead, or a grave:

19 And the clean person shall sprinkle upon the unclean on the third day, and on the seventh day: and on the seventh day he shall purify himself, and wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and shall be clean at even.

20 But the man that shall be unclean, and shall not purify himself, that soul shall be cut off from among the congregation, because he hath defiled the sanctuary of the LORD: the water of separation hath not been sprinkled upon him; he is unclean.

Before CHRIST about 1471.

21 And it shall be a perpetual statute unto them, that he that sprinkleth the water of separation shall wash his clothes; and he that toucheth the water of separation shall be unclean until even.

22 And whatsoever the unclean person toucheth shall be unclean; and the soul that toucheth it shall be unclean until even.

CHAP. XX.

1 The children of Israel come to Zin, where Miriam dieth. 2 They murmur for want of water. 7 Moses smiting the rock bringeth forth water at Meribah. 14 Moses at Kadesh desireth passage through Edom, which is denied him. 22 At mount Hor Aaron resigneth his place to Eleazar, and dieth.

THEN came the children of Israel, even 1453. the whole congregation, into the desert of Zin in the first month: and the people abode in Kadesh; and Miriam died there, and was buried there.

2 And there was no water for the congregation: and they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron.

3 And the people chode with Moses, and spake, saying, Would God that we had died: when our brethren died before the LORD. ² Chap. 11. 33.

17. — purification for sin,] The terms iniquity and sin do not, in the language of the Old Testament, necessarily imply a deviation from moral rectitude, or a transgression of the moral law; but are frequently used, when nothing more can be understood than a privation of that bodily purity which the ceremonial law required. See Numb. xviii. 1; Exod. xxviii. 38; Lev. xiv. 19. Veysic.

18. — hyssop,] A cleansing herb, easily procured.

22. — shall be unclean until even.] By the nice care here taken about the smallest bodily defilements, God undoubtedly intended to make the people sensible, how necessary it was to preserve inward purity; without which they could not be acceptable to God, though they approached His sanctuary. For these laws, extending to what was done at home as well as abroad, were a plain instruction, both that it was not sufficient to be pure in the eyes of men, and that nothing could be concealed from the Divine Majesty, who sees what passeth in secret. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XX. ver. 1. — the desert of Zin] The southern district of Arabia Petrea was called in general “the wilderness of Zin,” which name is still given by the inhabitants of Tor to the desert in their neighbourhood. The northern and western districts were also called “Paran” and “Kadesh.” Thus the disastrous station of Kadesh, named Barnea, “Son of wandering,” to which the Israelites returned again after thirty-eight years, is said to be in the wilderness of Zin, Numb. xiii. 21; and again on their return, Numb. xx. 1; Deut. xxxii. 51; but in the wilderness of Paran, Numb. xii. 16. While in the itinerary, or journeys of the Israelites, Numb. xxxiii. 18, it is simply called Rithmah, signifying “the wilderness,” from Rethem, which signifies “a desert place;” and properly denotes a plant, which flourishes in sandy deserts, called “Juniper,” Job xxx. 3, 4; 1 Kings xix. 4, 5; whence it is transferred to signify “a desert,” like our English word “heath,” from the plant of that name. Dr. Hales.

— in the first month:] That is, of the fortieth year after they left Egypt. Moses passes in silence the transactions of the thirty-seven years, during which the Israelites wandered in the wilderness; and gives us only the first and last years of their journeyings: for, since he writes not so much in the quality of an historian as of a legislator, whose purpose it was to deliver down to posterity all the laws which he received from God, and that system of laws being completed in the two first years after they left Egypt, and no new law being delivered during the subsequent years, it did not fall in with his design to insert the history of these years in the Pentateuch. Le Clerc.

— Miriam died there,] Four months before Aaron, and eleven months before Moses: being older than either of them. At the birth of Moses she was probably about twelve years of age, as may be collected from Exod. ii. 4, 7; and at her death about 130. Josephus tells us, she was buried with great solemnity; and Eusebius relates, that her sepulchre was extant in his time at Kadesh, not far from the city Petra, the metropolis of Arabia Petrea. Stackhouse.

2. — there was no water] We have had no mention of the Israelites from the time of the rebellion of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, until they came into this difficulty. There had passed six or seven and thirty years in this interval; during which time Moses had led them up and down from place to place, as God had directed their journeyings by the cloud. During this space it is probable the people had been very obedient: for we hear of no discontents among them. Now they began to be refractory again, but Moses now could not so well bear it. Shuckford.

3. — Would God that we had died &c.] By a sudden death, rather than linger away with thirst. They allude to the judgments of God upon their brethren, which should rather have deterred them from such discontented language. But nothing will alter those, who will not lay to heart and preserve in mind God's mercies and judgments. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1453.
Exod. 17.
2.

4 And ^b why have ye brought up the congregation of the LORD into this wilderness, that we and our cattle should die there?

5 And wherefore have ye made us to come up out of Egypt, to bring us in unto this evil place? it is no place of seed, or of figs, or of vines, or of pomegranates; neither is there any water to drink.

6 And Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and they fell upon their faces: and the glory of the LORD appeared unto them.

7 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

8 Take the rod, and gather thou the assembly together, thou, and Aaron thy brother, and speak ye unto the rock before their eyes; and it shall give forth his water, and thou shalt bring forth to them water out of the rock: so thou shalt

8. Take the rod.] With which Moses wrought his miracles in Egypt, called in ver. 11, "his rod." It was probably lodged in the sanctuary; for he is said, in the next verse, to have taken it "from before the Lord." Bp. Patrick.

10. — Hear now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?] Hear now, ye rebels; is it likely that we shall fetch water out of this hard rock, to satisfy your thirst? This we are required to do; but is this a thing possible to be done? Bp. Hall.

11. — the rock] In one of the roads from the convent of Sinai to Suez there is exactly such another stone as the rock of Massah, with the same sort of openings all down, and the signs where the water run. See the note on Exod. xvii. 2. The Arabs say, that it is likewise called "the stone of Moses;" and that this must be the rock "Meribah-Kadesh," Deut. xxxii. 51, which Moses smote twice, and the waters came out abundantly, after they had returned into these parts from Ezion-gaber. Bp. Pococke.

12. — Because ye believed me not, to sanctify me in the eyes of the children of Israel,] Because ye doubted of the performance of My word; and, in a weak distrust, struck the rock twice, as not being confident of the issue, whereas ye were only bidden to speak unto the rock, to yield forth these waters. Bp. Hall. It may be inquired, wherein consisted the sin of Moses, with which Aaron also is charged, as consenting to it. In answer it is to be considered, I. That the very letter of God's command was broken, 1st, in that Moses "smote" the rock with his rod, and smote it "twice," whereas he had received no such command from God, but was commanded to "speak" to it, that the people might see how easily God could supply their want of water: 2dly, in "speaking to the people," which Moses had no commission to do; and in not speaking to the rock, which was expressly commanded. II. That this open breach of God's commandment was committed in the face and sight of the assembly; hence are Moses and Aaron charged for "not sanctifying the Lord in the eyes of the children of Israel." III. Moses was also guilty of some degree of unbelief and distrust of God's power and veracity, as appears from ver. 12, compared with ver. 10; "Must we" (or can we, as in the Latin Vulgate) "fetch water &c." which seems to intimate a doubting; see Gen. xviii. 13; and too much anger and commotion of mind: "they provoked his spirit, so that he spake unadvisedly with his lips," Psal. cvi. 33. And as the degrees of these sins were known to God only, so it is certain, upon the whole, they were guilty of that which is elsewhere called "rebellion" and "trespass," Numb. xxvii. 14; Deut. xxxii. 51. Bp. Kidder.

give the congregation and their beasts drink. Before CHRIST
about 1453.

9 And Moses took the rod from before the LORD, as he commanded him.

10 And Moses and Aaron gathered the congregation together before the rock, and he said unto them, Hear now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?

11 And Moses lifted up his hand, and with his rod he smote the rock twice: and the water came out abundantly, and the congregation drank, and their beasts also.

12 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, Because ye believed me not, to sanctify me in the eyes of the children of Israel, therefore ye shall not bring this congregation into the land which I have given them.

13 ° This is the water of || Meribah; because the children of Israel strove with the LORD, and he was sanctified in them. • Ps. 106.
32, &c.
|| That is,
strife.

— to sanctify me] That is, by your ready and absolute obedience to My command, to own My sovereignty as well as veracity in the presence of the children of Israel. Bp. Patrick.

— ye shall not bring this congregation into the land &c.] They brought them into the land of Sihon and Og; but not into Canaan, the promised land. Bp. Patrick.

This prohibition, while it was in a peculiar manner mortifying to them as leaders of the people, afforded an exemplary lesson to all Israel of the necessity of implicit obedience, of constant faith, and perfect humility, to secure the favour of God. Bp. Tomline.

How severely Moses felt this deprivation appears from his humble, and, it should seem, repeated supplications to the Lord, to reverse the sentence. See Deut. iii. 23, 27. The Apostle Paul, with equal impartiality, has recorded the refusal of the Lord, after he had besought Him thrice, to remove "a thorn in the flesh," or some infirmity, under which he laboured, 2 Cor. xii. 7. It was reserved for a greater than Moses, that perfect model of "patience in tribulation," to teach His disciples how to pray on such an occasion: "O My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from Me: nevertheless not as I will, but as Thou wilt," Matt. xxvi. 39. Dr. Hales.

13. — Meribah;] That is, strife: called Meribah-Kadesh, Deut. xxxii. 51, to distinguish it from the Meribah mentioned Exod. xvii. 7, where the Israelites were guilty of the same crime. Bp. Patrick.

This offence, so frequently alluded to in the Pentateuch, and the punishment of which Moses is represented as repeatedly deprecating, intreating to be permitted to enter the promised land, though in vain, is totally omitted by Josephus; while, in the original narrative, nothing can be more affecting than the manner in which it is alluded to. It is expressed as if the heart was weighed down by sorrow for the disappointment of its fondest hope; and, as if occasions of venting this sorrow were industriously sought, even a remote allusion or reference is enough. Yet it concerned only the historian himself; it was not to his credit, but it was that which he felt most deeply, and which he only could feel so truly. Thus we clearly perceive the difference between the genuine narration of Moses himself, and the cautious compilation of a remote historian, (although admitted to be of general veracity and integrity,) when describing the character of a legislator, whom he looked up to with reverence. Dr. Graves.

— he was sanctified in them.] Either in the waters, by the honour which He procured in bringing them again out of a rock; or in

Before
CHRIST
1453.

† Heb.
found us.

14 ¶ And Moses sent messengers from Kadesh unto the king of Edom, Thus saith thy brother Israel, Thou knowest all the travel that hath † befallen us:

15 How our fathers went down into Egypt, and we have dwelt in Egypt a long time; and the Egyptians vexed us, and our fathers:

16 And when we cried unto the LORD, he heard our voice, and sent an angel, and hath brought us forth out of Egypt: and, behold, we are in Kadesh, a city in the uttermost of thy border:

17 Let us pass, I pray thee, through thy country: we will not pass through the fields; or through the vineyards, neither will we drink of the water of the wells: we will go by the king's high way, we will not turn to the right hand nor to the left, until we have passed thy borders.

18 And Edom said unto him, Thou shalt not pass by me, lest I come out against thee with the sword.

19 And the children of Israel said unto him, We will go by the high way: and if I and my cattle drink of thy water, then I will pay for it: I will only, without doing any thing else, go through on my feet.

20 And he said, Thou shalt not go through. And Edom came out against him with much people, and with a strong hand.

21 Thus Edom refused to give Israel passage through his border: wherefore Israel turned away from him.

22 ¶ And the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, journeyed from Kadesh, and came unto mount Hor.

23 And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron in mount Hor, by the coast of the land of Edom, saying, 24 Aaron shall be gathered unto his people: for he shall not enter into the land which I have given unto the children of Israel, because ye rebelled against my † word at the water of Meribah.

25 Take Aaron and Eleazar his son, and bring them up unto mount Hor:

26 And strip Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son: and Aaron shall be gathered unto his people, and shall die there.

27 And Moses did as the LORD commanded: and they went up into mount Hor in the sight of all the congregation.

28 And Moses stripped Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son; and Aaron died there in the top of the mount: and Moses and Eleazar came down from the mount.

29 And when all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, they mourned for Aaron thirty days, even all the house of Israel.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Israel with some loss destroy the Canaanites at Hor-mah. 4 The people murmuring are plagued with fiery serpents. 7 They repenting are healed by a brazen serpent. 10 Sundry journeys of the Israelites. 21 Sihon is overcome, 33 and Og.

AND when a king Arad the Canaanite, which dwelt in the south, heard tell that Israel came by the way of the spies; then he fought against Israel, and took some of them prisoners.

2 And Israel vowed a vow unto the LORD, and said, If thou wilt indeed deliver this people into my hand, then I will utterly destroy their cities.

3 And the LORD hearkened to the voice of Israel, and delivered up the Canaanites; and they utterly destroyed them and their

Before
CHRIST
1453.

† Heb.
mouth.
Chap. 33.
38.
Deut. 32.
50.

1452.
Deut. 10.
6. & 32. 50.

Chap. 33.
40.

Moses and Aaron, by giving proof of His holiness and justice in the punishment of their disobedience; or in the Israelites, before whose face God's power, goodness, and faithfulness appeared. Bp. Patrick.

14. — thy brother Israel,] The Israelites were descended from Israel or Jacob, the twin brother of Edom or Esau. Bp. Patrick.

19. — if I and my cattle drink of thy water, then I will pay for it:] It appears from the accounts of travellers, that this is no unusual practice on the coasts of the Red sea, in Egypt, and in Turkey. And Niebuhr mentions it as a circumstance worthy of notice, that at Cairo and Constantinople are several elegant houses where fresh water is distributed gratis to passengers. Fragments to Calmet.

22. — mount Hor.] On the edge of Edom, but more to the northeast than Kadesh, in the wilderness of Zin, whence they came. Bp. Patrick. See the note on Exod. xv. 22.

26. — strip Aaron of his garments,] Of his priestly robes. This implied the divesting him of his office; as the putting them upon Eleazar his son implied the succeeding of Eleazar to his father's office and dignity. Moses herein acted as the minister of God, who now transferred the priesthood to another. Bp. Patrick.

VOL. I.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. — in the south,] Of the land of Canaan, towards the eastern angle, near the Dead sea.

— by the way of the spies;] Who had been sent by Arad to bring him intelligence, which way the Israelites marched. Bp. Patrick.

2. — I will utterly destroy their cities.] The Israelites implored the Divine assistance by this solemn vow: pledging themselves to reserve none of this idolatrous nation to their own use, but to devote it all to destruction. Bp. Patrick.

3. — delivered up the Canaanites;] The Canaanites by their wickedness had grievously offended the Lord of the whole earth; and He here appoints the Israelites to execute His just wrath and vengeance upon them. Dr. Waterland. This was effected in the days of Joshua, Josh. xii. 14, or a little after his death, Judges i. 17. Shuckford.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

¶ That is, utter destruction.

¶ Or, grieved.
† Heb.
shortened.

¶ Chap. 11.
6.

¶ Wisdom
16. 1. 5.
1 Cor. 10.
9.

cities: and he called the name of the place || Hormah.

4 ¶ And they journeyed from mount Hor by the way of the Red sea, to compass the land of Edom: and the soul of the people was much || † discouraged because of the way.

5 And the people spake against God, and against Moses, Wherefore have ye brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness? for there is no bread, neither is there any water; and ^b our soul loatheth this light bread.

6 And ^c the LORD sent fiery serpents among the people, and they bit the people; and much people of Israel died.

7 ¶ Therefore the people came to Moses, and said, We have sinned, for we have spoken against the LORD, and against thee; pray unto the LORD, that he take away the serpents from us. And Moses prayed for the people.

8 And the LORD said unto Moses, Make thee a fiery serpent, and set it upon a pole: and it shall come to pass, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live.

9 And ^d Moses made a serpent of brass, and put it upon a pole, and it came to pass, that if a serpent had bitten any man, when he beheld the serpent of brass, he lived.

10 ¶ And the children of Israel set forward, and ^e pitched in Obobth.

11 And they journeyed from Obobth, and pitched at || Ije-abarim, in the wilderness which is before Moab, toward the sunrising.

12 ¶ From thence they removed, and pitched in the valley of Zared.

13 From thence they removed, and pitched on the other side of Arnon, which is in the wilderness that cometh out of the coasts of the Amorites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, between Moab and the Amorites.

14 Wherefore it is said in the book of || Or, ^f What he did in the wars of the LORD, || What he did in

Before
CHRIST
1452.

^d 2 Kings
18. 4.
John 3. 14.

^e Chap. 33.
48.

¶ Or, heaps of Abarim.

¶ Or,
What he suppl.

5. — the people spake against God, and against Moses.] Aaron and Miriam were now passed the reach of their mutinies: they therefore join God with Moses in their murmurings, fearless of the danger of rendering their Maker their enemy. Impatience is akin to frenzy: it causes men to care not whom they assault, so they may give vent to their fury. How often do we hear men, that are displeased with others, disparage and dishonour their Creator? But if to strive with a mighty man is unwise and unsafe, what must it be to strive with the mighty God? Bp. Hall. Compare Ps. lxxviii. 56; 1 Cor. x. 9.

6. — fiery serpents.] The seraph is a flying serpent, the only one that has wings. The word properly signifies to burn; and this name was probably given it, either because of its colour, or because of the heat and thirst which its bite occasions. Its wings are not feathers, like the wings of birds; but rather like those of bats. When the Arabians go to gather the aromatick reed, or cassia, of which these serpents are very fond, they cover all their heads, except their eyes, with skins, to secure themselves from the bite of the serpent, which is very dangerous. Calmet, Stackhouse.

— and they bit the people;] The divers casualties, which befell the Israelites in the wilderness, happened unto them for types or ensamples, “and are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come,” 1 Cor. x. 6, 11; that end of all the Divine counsels towards man, which relate to his recovery by the promised Redeemer. Thus their murmurings were punished by the biting of fiery serpents, to remind them of the deceit of the old serpent, which brought sin into the world. And when the malady was healed by looking up to that brasen serpent, which was erected on a pole, this fitly represented our looking by faith to that Redeemer, who was lifted up upon the cross, to draw all men unto Him. Dr. Berriman.

— much people of Israel died.] As Moses represents these serpents to have caused a great mortality, so the heathen writers concur in testifying, that the deserts, wherein the Israelites journeyed, produced serpents of so venomous a kind, that their biting was deadly, beyond the power of any art then known to cure it. The ancients observed in general, that the most barren and sandy deserts had the greatest number and most venomous of serpents: Diodorus remarks this more particularly of the sands in Africa; but it was equally true of the wilderness, in which the Israelites journeyed. Serpents and scorpions were here, according to Moses, as natural as drought and want of water, Deut. viii. 15.

Strabo's observation agrees with Moses: and both Strabo and Diodorus concur, that the serpents, which were so numerous here, were of the most deadly kind, and that there was no cure for their biting. Hence we see reason to consider both the calamity inflicted on the Israelites, and the miraculous cure of it, in the proper light. The Israelites were unmindful of the obedience they owed God, unwilling to march where God directed them. Hereupon they were punished to bring them to a better mind; and their punishment was in a little time removed in a miraculous manner. They were commanded to come and look up to a brasen serpent, a thing evidently of itself of no importance, but by God's power and good pleasure made so effectual to their recovery, as abundantly to remind them, that whatever God should think fit to command them, was importantly necessary for them to perform. Shuckford.

7. Therefore the people — said, We have sinned.] All the persuasions of Moses could not have done that, which the serpents did for him. It were pity men should be without affliction, since it sends them to their prayers and confessions. Bp. Hall.

8. — Make thee a fiery serpent.] That is, a serpent like the kind mentioned ver. 6; and so Moses made it of brass, ver. 9. That it might be conspicuous, it was to be raised on high; “upon a pole,” or, as the word may be rendered, it was to be set up as a sign. And indeed it was a very illustrious type of Christ, and particularly of His death upon the cross: by whom we are redeemed from the sting of death, and the power of the devil, that old serpent, John iii. 14; and whom God sent “in the likeness of sinful flesh,” and did by this way condemn “sin in the flesh,” Rom. viii. 3. Bp. Kidder.

9. — when he beheld the serpent of brass, he lived.] The author of the book of Wisdom, speaking to God of the Israelites, imputes the virtue of the serpent to its right cause: “He that turned himself toward it was not saved by the thing that he saw, but by Thee, that art the Saviour of all:” and therefore he calls it, “a sign” or symbol “of salvation, to put them in remembrance of the commandment of the law,” chap. xvi. 6, 7. Stackhouse. We see in this a lively figure of the Christian Sacraments; and how God has shewn, and can shew His power; and can sanctify water to the washing away of sin, and make bread and wine instruments of our salvation. Bp. Wilson.

14. — in the book of the wars of the Lord.] Some ancient record of those countries, to which Moses refers: or, more probably,

Painted by Le Brun.

THE BRAZEN SERPENT.
Numbers 21, v. 8.

London: Published by the Society, corresponding to the same French title, April 1, 1810.

Engraved by G. Cooke.

Before CHRIST 1452. the Red sea, and in the brooks of Arnon, † Heb. leameth. 15 And at the stream of the brooks that goeth down to the dwelling of Ar, and † lieth upon the border of Moab.

† Heb. Ascend. 16 And from thence they went to Beer : that is the well whereof the Lord spake unto Moses, Gather the people together, and I will give them water.

† Heb. Or, answer. 17 ¶ Then Israel sang this song, † Spring up, O well ; || sing ye unto it :

18 The princes digged the well, the nobles of the people digged it, by the direction of the lawgiver, with their staves. And from the wilderness they went to Mattanah :

19 And from Mattanah to Nahaliel : and from Nahaliel to Bamoth :

† Heb. field. 20 And from Bamoth in the valley, that is in the † country of Moab, to the top of || Pisgah, which looketh toward || Jeshimon.

† Heb. the wilderness. 21 ¶ And Israel sent messengers unto Sihon king of the Amorites, saying, † Deut. 2. 27. Judges 11. 19. 22 † Let me pass through thy land : we will not turn into the fields, or into the vineyards ; we will not drink of the waters of the well : but we will go along by the king's high way, until we be past thy borders.

† Deut. 29. 7. 23 † And Sihon would not suffer Israel to pass through his border : but Sihon gathered all his people together, and went out against Israel into the wilderness : and he came to Jahaz, and fought against Israel.

† Josh. 12. 2. Psal. 135. 11. Amos 2. 9. 24 And † Israel smote him with the edge of the sword, and possessed his land from Arnon unto Jabbok, even unto the children of Ammon : for the border of the children of Ammon was strong.

† Heb. daughters. 25 And Israel took all these cities : and Israel dwelt in all the cities of the Amorites, in Heshbon, and in all the † villages thereof.

the following account of the wars of the Israelites, given in the sacred history, by Moses, and other inspired writers. Pyle, Dr. Wells.

18. — with their staves.] With no more labour but that of thrusting their staves into the ground, and turning up the earth. Bp. Patrick.

23. — and fought against Israel.] Who had orders from God, not to decline the battle, as they did with the Edomites and Moabites. These Amorites were among the seven nations condemned by God to destruction. Bp. Patrick.

24. — for the border of the children of Ammon was strong.] This is not given as a reason, why the Israelites carried their victory no farther ; for the country of Ammon was no part of the land promised to them ; nay, they were forbidden to invade it, Deut.

Before CHRIST 1452. 26 For Heshbon was the city of Sihon the king of the Amorites, who had fought against the former king of Moab, and taken all his land out of his hand, even unto Arnon.

27 Wherefore they that speak in proverbs say, Come into Heshbon, let the city of Sihon be built and prepared :

28 For there is a fire gone out of Heshbon, a flame from the city of Sihon : it hath consumed Ar of Moab, and the lords of the high places of Arnon.

29 Woe to thee, Moab ! thou art undone, O people of ¹Chemosh : he hath given ¹ 1 Kings 11. 7, 33. his sons that escaped, and his daughters, into captivity unto Sihon king of the Amorites.

30 We have shot at them ; Heshbon is perished even unto Dibon, and we have laid them waste even unto Nophah, which reacheth unto Medeba.

31 ¶ Thus Israel dwelt in the land of the Amorites.

32 And Moses sent to spy out Jaazer, and they took the villages thereof, and drove out the Amorites that were there.

33 ¶ ^k And they turned and went up by ^k Deut. 3. 1. & 29. 7. the way of Bashan : and Og the king of Bashan went out against them, he, and all his people, to the battle at Edrei.

34 And the LORD said unto Moses, Fear him not : for I have delivered him into thy hand, and all his people, and his land ; and ¹ thou shalt do to him as thou ¹ Psal. 135. 11. didst unto Sihon king of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon.

35 So they smote him, and his sons, and all his people, until there was none left him alive : and they possessed his land.

CHAP. XXII.

1 Balak's first message for Balaam is refused. 15 His second message obtaineth him. 22 An angel would have slain him, if his ass had not saved him. 36 Balak entertaineth him.

ii. 19 ; but as the reason, why Sihon had not gained upon the country of the children of Ammon, as he had upon that of the Moabites. Bp. Kidder.

27. Wherefore they that speak in proverbs say, &c.] The following words appear to have been a song of victory composed by the Amorites, upon the victory gained by Sihon over the Moabites. Bp. Kidder.

29. — O people of Chemosh :] Or people, that servest Chemosh. Chemosh was the idol of the Moabites, Jer. xlviii. 46. Bp. Kidder. Servants are known by the name of their lord. As the Israelites were called by the name of the true God, 2 Chron. vii. 14, so the Moabites were called by the name of their god, the “people of Chemosh ;” and the other idolatrous nations in like manner. See Mic. iv. 5. Abp. Secker.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

AND the children of Israel set forward, and pitched in the plains of Moab on this side Jordan by Jericho.

2 ¶ And Balak the son of Zippor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites.

3 And Moab was sore afraid of the people, because they were many: and Moab was distressed because of the children of Israel.

4 And Moab said unto the elders of Midian, Now shall this company lick up all that are round about us, as the ox licketh up the grass of the field. And Balak the son of Zippor was king of the Moabites at that time.

* Josh. 24.
9.

5 ^a He sent messengers therefore unto Balaam the son of Beor to Pethor, which is by the river of the land of the children of his people, to call him, saying, Behold, there is a people come out from Egypt:

Chap. XXII. ver. 1. — on this side Jordan by Jericho.] That is, over against Jericho, Jordan being between it and the camp of Israel. Bp. Patrick.

3. And Moab was sore afraid.] The Israelites had entirely routed and ruined Sihon, king of the Amorites, and Og, king of Bashan, taking possession of their lands: and they had done it with such despatch, and in so surprising a manner, that the neighbouring nations had reason to suspect there was something supernatural in it. It seems to have been owing to some such apprehension as this, that none of them durst oppose the Hebrews, without endeavouring first to engage heaven on their side, which they hoped to do by the help of enchantments. The Midianites and Moabites were both of them full of this persuasion, as we learn from this chapter: and we find from other places of Scripture, that the Ammonites joined with them in the design of sending to Balaam, Deut. xxiii. 3, 4. Dr. Waterland.

4. — Midian.] It is manifest from Scripture, that there were two regions called Midian. The inhabitants of the one were at first of the Cuthite race, and their situation was upon the Red sea, towards the most southern parts of Edom and Amalek: they were the people, to whom Moses betook himself when he fled from Egypt, and married a Cuthite woman, and among whom he resided forty years, Exod. ii. 21. The other Midian was to the north, on the river Arnon, and in the vicinity of Moab. The natives were of the family of Abraham, by Keturah, and bordered on the upper part of Edom; being allied to the Edomites, as well as to the children of Moab, by the ties of consanguinity. Their situation may be known from the correspondence which they kept up with the Israelites, when the latter were encamped in the plains of Moab, near the rivers Jordan and Arnon. Bryant.

5. — Balaam.] Though Balaam was a heathen, and an immoral man, he appears to have been a true Prophet. He was a worshipper of the true God, as appears by his applying to God, ver. 8, and by his calling the Lord his God, ver. 18; though his worship was debased by superstition, chap. xxiii. 1, 2; xxiv. 1. He seems also to have had some pious thoughts and resolutions, ver. 18; chap. xxiii. 10; but his heart was unsound, mercenary, and corrupt: he “loved the wages of unrighteousness,” 2 Pet. ii. 15, and “ran greedily after reward,” Jude 11. To account for this singularity of character, it may be observed, 1st, That before the giving of the law, and the conquest of the promised land, there were, besides the descendants of Abraham, other worshippers of the true God in the world, such as, perhaps, Job and his friends in Arabia; Jethro and his family in Midian; and in Mesopotamia, where Balaam lived, the abode of Abraham might have left behind him some proselytes to the true religion. 2dly, That this behold, they cover the † face of the earth, and they abide over against me:

Before
CHRIST
1452.

6 Come now therefore, I pray thee, curse me this people; for they are too mighty for me: peradventure I shall prevail, that we may smite them, and that I may drive them out of the land: for I wot that he whom thou blessest is blessed, and he whom thou cursest is cursed.

† Heb. eye.

7 And the elders of Moab and the elders of Midian departed with the rewards of divination in their hand; and they came unto Balaam, and spake unto him the words of Balak.

8 And he said unto them, Lodge here this night, and I will bring you word again, as the Lord shall speak unto me: and the princes of Moab abode with Balaam.

9 And God came unto Balaam, and said, What men are these with thee?

worship of God was frequently mixed with superstition and idolatry, as in the case of Laban's teraphim. 3dly, That this odious mixture did not hinder God from revealing Himself to those who practised such a monstrous religion, as in the instances of Abimelech and Nebuchadnezzar, Gen. xxvi. Dan. ii. 4thly, That supernatural gifts, especially those of prophecy, though they enlightened the minds of the Prophets, yet frequently did not sanctify their hearts and affections; see Mic. iii. 11. And 5thly, That the greatest weakness or wickedness of Prophets never went so far, as to make them pronounce oracles contrary to what was dictated to them by the Spirit of God, ver. 18 of this chapter. Bp. Newton, Stackhouse.

Though God had probably rejected Balaam as an apostate Prophet, He deigned to employ him on this signal occasion as the herald of the Divine oracles, to illustrate the impotency of the heathen arts, and to demonstrate the power and foreknowledge of the Divine Spirit. Dr. Gray.

— Pethor.] A city in Aram, or Mesopotamia. The name was afterwards changed by the Syrians to Bosor. See 2 Pet. ii. 15. Bp. Patrick.

— the river.] The Euphrates.

6. — curse me this people.] It was a superstitious ceremony in use among the heathens, to devote their enemies to destruction at the beginning of their wars; as if the gods would enter into their passions, and were as unjust and partial as themselves. The Romans had publick officers to perform the ceremony. Now Balaam being a Prophet of great note and eminence, it was believed that he was more intimate than others with the heavenly powers, and consequently that his imprecations would be more effectual. Bp. Newton.

7. — the rewards of divination.] It was the custom among God's people, when they consulted a Prophet, to bring with them a present, 1 Sam. ix. 7, 8. And indeed from ancient time, men were not used to approach a great person without one. See Gen. xliii. 11, 25, 26. Bp. Patrick. What the rewards of divination were, we know not. It is probable, however, they were only an ordinary recompense: such as Balaam had often received from other people; and what had not the force of a temptation in his eye. So that he appears at first not to show any great eagerness to attend the call of Balak. Gilpin.

9. — What men are these with thee?] God heard all the consultation of these Moabites: these messengers could not have moved their foot or their tongue but in Him: and yet He, who asked Adam where he was, asks Balaam, “What men are these?” God loves to take occasion of proceeding with us from ourselves, rather than from His own immediate prescience. Hence it is,

Before
CHRIST
1452.

10 And Balaam said unto God, Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, hath sent unto me, saying, 11 Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, which covereth the face of the earth: come now, curse me them; peradventure † I shall be able to overcome them, and drive them out.

† Heb.
I shall prevail in fighting against him.

12 And God said unto Balaam, Thou shalt not go with them; thou shalt not curse the people: for they are blessed.

13 And Balaam rose up in the morning, and said unto the princes of Balak, Get you into your land: for the LORD refuseth to give me leave to go with you.

14 And the princes of Moab rose up, and they went unto Balak, and said, Balaam refuseth to come with us.

15 ¶ And Balak sent yet again princes, more, and more honourable than they.

16 And they came to Balaam, and said to him, Thus saith Balak the son of Zippor, † Let nothing, I pray thee, hinder thee from coming unto me:

† Heb.
Be not thou letted from
&c.

that we lay open our wants, and confess our sins, to Him that knows both better than our own hearts, because He will deal with us from our own mouths. Bp. Hall.

12. — Thou shalt not go with them;] The reward of divination had easily procured the journey and curse of the covetous Prophet, if God had not stayed him. How often are wicked men curbed by a Divine hand, even in those sins which their heart desires. Bp. Hall.

— thou shalt not curse the people: for they are blessed.] This Divine command to Balaam, which he afterwards pleads in opposition to Balak's wishes, chap. xxiii. 7, 8, refers to the blessing of Abraham, Gen. xii. 3, renewed to Jacob, Gen. xxvii. 29. The prophecies of Balaam, which follow, are most curious and important, and were evidently dictated by the same Spirit as those of Jacob, of which they furnish the continuation and development. Dr. Hales.

17. — I will promote thee unto very great honour,] He probably imagined, that Balaam thought the rewards of divination not sufficient encouragement; and therefore promises to advance him to some high preferment in his court. Bp. Patrick. Here was a temptation of a more splendid nature. This might have shaken a firmer soul than Balaam's: of his it seems to have taken entire possession. From the moment this message rang in his ears, he seems to have given himself totally up to views of ambition. What had he to do to consult God a second time about going? Had he not had his answer already? "Thou shalt not go with them; thou shalt not curse the people: for they are blessed." God however (who often suffers wicked men to be hurried on by their own obstinate perverseness, and out of that perverseness works His own righteous purposes,) at length permitted him to go; that is, He gave him such permission, as our blessed Saviour once gave Iscariot, "That thou doest, do quickly," John xiii. 27. Gilpin.

20. — rise up, and go with them;] Since thou hast such a mind to go, follow thy inclinations. Bp. Patrick. Compare 2 Kings ii. 17, 18.

When God sees men leaning too far to ambitious or covetous desires, and not wise enough to profit by gentle hints, He then leaves them to pursue their own heart's lust, and lets them follow their own imaginations. After the first prohibition, a wise man would have absolutely refused to treat with any ambassadours on the same errand. But Balaam had set his heart upon the bribes.

17 For I will promote thee unto very great honour, and I will do whatsoever thou sayest unto me: come therefore, I pray thee, curse me this people.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

18 And Balaam answered and said unto the servants of Balak, ^b If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the word of the LORD my God, to do less or more.

Chap. 24.
13.

19 Now therefore, I pray you, tarry ye also here this night, that I may know what the LORD will say unto me more.

20 And God came unto Balaam at night, and said unto him, If the men come to call thee, rise up, and go with them; but yet the word which I shall say unto thee, that shalt thou do.

21 And Balaam rose up in the morning, and saddled his ass, and went with the princes of Moab.

22 ¶ And God's anger was kindled because he went: and the angel of the LORD stood in the way for an adversary against

So God permitted the foolish man to follow his inclination, and to run his utmost length of folly and madness. Since he would not retreat in time, though God had given him sufficient intimations, he was at length permitted to proceed in his own way, and to his own destruction. Dr. Waterland. As when the Israelitish nation afterwards rejected God from reigning over them, "He gave them a king in His anger," Hos. xiii. 11; in the same way, as appears from other parts of the narrative, He gave Balaam the permission which he desired. Bp. Butler.

— that shalt thou do.] God permits him to follow his evil and covetous desires, but restrains him from doing the evil that he wished. Bp. Wilson.

21. — and saddled his ass,] The common breed of asses in the East is larger than that usually seen in Britain; and another, still larger, is preserved for the saddle: for the ordinary people, and many of the middle class, commonly ride asses. Asses are often preferred to horses by the Sheihs, or religious men; and though most of the opulent merchants keep horses, they are not ashamed, especially when old, to appear mounted on asses. Those intended for the saddle, of the best sort, bear a high price; they are tall, delicately limbed, go swiftly in an easy pace or gallop, and are very sure footed. They are fed and dressed with the same care as horses. The bridle is ornamented with fringe and cowries, or small shells; and the saddle, which is broad and easy, is covered with a fine carpet. Dr. Russell.

22. — God's anger was kindled because he went:] God, who seeth the heart, and knew the sinister affections and intentions wherewith Balaam went, was sore displeased at his going. Bp. Hall. It may seem strange, that God should be angry with him for going, when He had bidden him "rise up and go." In answer, it may be observed, 1st, That God did expressly forbid his going at first; God had said to him, "Thou shalt not go with them." 2dly, That God did after this only permit, but not command, nor yet approve of, his going. God having declared Himself positively, Balaam ought not to have made further inquiry; yet this he did out of covetousness, on the arrival of more honourable messengers. 3dly, His going was attended with an evil design. The angel says, "Thy way is perverse before me," ver. 32. And he seemed to go with a purpose of cursing Israel, which the king of Moab expressly desired, and God had as expressly forbidden. "Nevertheless the Lord thy God would not hearken unto Balaam; but the Lord thy God turned the curse

Before CHRIST 1452. him. Now he was riding upon his ass, and his two servants were with him.

23 And the ass saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and the ass turned aside out of the way, and went into the field: and Balaam smote the ass, to turn her into the way.

24 But the angel of the LORD stood in a path of the vineyards, a wall being on this side, and a wall on that side.

25 And when the ass saw the angel of the LORD, she thrust herself unto the wall, and crushed Balaam's foot against the wall: and he smote her again.

26 And the angel of the LORD went further, and stood in a narrow place, where Before CHRIST 1452. was no way to turn either to the right hand or to the left.

27 And when the ass saw the angel of the LORD, she fell down under Balaam: and Balaam's anger was kindled, and he smote the ass with a staff.

28 And the LORD opened the mouth of the ass, and she said unto Balaam, What have I done unto thee, that thou hast smitten me these three times?

29 And Balaam said unto the ass, Because thou hast mocked me: I would there were a sword in mine hand, for now would I kill thee.

30 And the ass said unto Balaam, Am not I thine ass, † upon which thou hast ridden || ever since I was thine unto this into a blessing unto thee, because the Lord thy God loved thee," Deut. xxiii. 5. Bp. Kidder. Balaam probably now expected, that having gained one point, he might gain another; and that, as he had been suffered to go to Balak, he might also be permitted to curse his enemies. This supposition is supported by a passage in Deuteronomy, which says, "God would not hearken unto Balaam." Why "hearken?" It does not appear from the face of the story, that Balaam had been pleading openly with God on this subject; it must relate then to some secret pleading. And it is not unlikely, that in the midst of a train of ambitious thoughts, in which the apostate Prophet might be indulging his corrupt heart, the angel of God withstood him. Gilpin.

† Heb. who hast ridden upon me. || Or, ever since thou wast, &c.

— because he went: That is, with a wrong disposition. In the Arabick version there is a word, expressing this very disposition: "God was angry with him, because he went covetously," or, with a covetous inclination. Dr. Kennicott. Our inward disposition is the life of our actions: according to that doth "the God of spirits" judge us, while men censure according to our external motions. Bp. Hall.

23. — the ass saw 2 Pet. ii. 16; Jude 11. Which was more than Balaam or his servants did; God thinking fit to restrain their sight. Bp. Kidder.

27. — and he smote the ass with a staff: If Balaam had done justly, he would have spared the ass, and have corrected himself; but the false Prophet commits the fault, and the poor beast must bear both the blame and the punishment. When we suffer, we are apt to curse, or at least to blame, the creatures of God: this weather, that flood, such a storm, has blasted our fruits, deluged our grounds, shipwrecked our merchandise, and undone us: whereas these have no power to hurt us, but such as we ourselves occasion by our sins. Every sense of evil therefore in or from the creatures of God should work in us a sense of our disobedience to the Creator; should increase in us a detestation of the sins we have committed against Him; should teach us, by condemning ourselves, to acquit them; which, as they are good in themselves, would continue always good unto us, if we continued true to ourselves, and faithful servants unto God. Bp. Sanderson.

28. — the Lord opened the mouth of the ass, &c. God caused the ass miraculously to speak with the voice of man, to reprove the foolishness of the Prophet. Bp. Hall. A voice, proceeding from a dumb creature, was made, upon this occasion, to teach a lesson similar to that deduced, upon another, from the example of the same creature, "The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib: but Israel doth not know, My people doth not consider." See Is. i. 3. Bp. Horne. The learned Bochart hath collected several instances from the gravest heathen writers, who frequently affirm that animals have spoken. The proper use of citing such authorities is, not to prove that those instances and that of Balaam are upon an equal footing, and equally true; but only to prove that the Gentiles believed such things to be true, and to lie within the power of their gods, and consequently could not object to the truth of Scripture History on this account. The ass was enabled to utter such and such sounds, probably as parrots do, without understanding them: and say what you will of the construction of the ass's mouth, of the formation of the tongue and jaws being unfit for speaking, yet an adequate cause is assigned for this wonderful effect, for it is said expressly, that "the Lord opened the mouth of the ass;" and no one, who believes a God, can doubt of His having power to do this, and much more. The miracle was by no means needless or superfluous: it was very proper to convince Balaam, that the mouth and tongue were under God's direction; and that the same Divine power, which caused the dumb ass to speak contrary to its nature, could make him in like manner utter blessings contrary to his inclination. Bp. Newton.

The fact is as consonant to reason, as any other extraordinary operation: for all miracles are alike, and equally demand our assent, if properly attested. The giving of articulation to a brute is no more to the Deity, than the making the blind see, or the deaf hear. And as to the reputed baseness of the instrument, of which God was pleased to make use; it amounts merely to this, as the Apostle observes on another occasion, "God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise," 1 Cor. i. 27. There was therefore a fitness in the instrument used: for the more vile the means, the fitter to confound the unrighteous Prophet. Bryant.

29. And Balaam said unto the ass, It is thought strange that Balaam should express no surprise on this extraordinary occasion. But perhaps he had been accustomed to prodigies in his enchantments: or perhaps, believing the Eastern doctrine of the transmigration of human souls into the bodies of brutes, he might think such a humanized brute not incapable of speaking: or perhaps he might not regard, or attend to the wonder, through excess of rage and "madness," as the word is in St. Peter: or perhaps, which is the most probable of all, he might be greatly disturbed and astonished, as Josephus affirms he was, and yet Moses in his short history might omit this circumstance. Bp. Newton.

Objections to miracles, drawn from their difficulty, are preposterous, when applied to an Omnipotent Being; and that Moses should not stop to describe the surprise of Balaam, was as consistent with the gravity, as with the conciseness, of his history. Dr. Gray.

— Because thou hast mocked me: Exposed me to scorn and laughter. Bp. Patrick.

30. And the ass said unto Balaam, Am not I &c. This does not imply that the ass understood what Balaam said, and thereupon returned this pertinent answer: but that the same power, which made the ass speak at first, continued to form such an answer, as might convince Balaam of his error. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

day? was I ever wont to do so unto thee? And he said, Nay.

31 Then the LORD opened the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and he bowed down his head, and || fell flat on his face.

|| Or,
bowed himself.

32 And the angel of the LORD said unto him, Wherefore hast thou smitten thine ass these three times? behold, I went out † to withstand thee, because thy way is perverse before me:

† Heb. to be an adversary unto thee.

33 And the ass saw me, and turned from me these three times: unless she had turned from me, surely now also I had slain thee, and saved her alive.

34 And Balaam said unto the angel of the LORD, I have sinned; for I knew not that thou stoodest in the way against me: now therefore, if it † displease thee, I will get me back again.

† Heb. be evil in thine eyes.

35 And the angel of the LORD said unto Balaam, Go with the men: but only the word that I shall speak unto thee, that thou shalt speak. So Balaam went with the princes of Balak.

36 ¶ And when Balak heard that Balaam was come, he went out to meet him unto a city of Moab, which is in the border of Arnon, which is in the utmost coast.

37 And Balak said unto Balaam, Did I not earnestly send unto thee to call thee?

31. Then the Lord opened the eyes of Balaam.] He was not blind before: but his eyes were held, as the eyes of the men of Sodom were, who could not see Lot's door, though they found their way to their own homes. Bp. Patrick.

32. — Wherefore hast thou smitten thine ass these three times?] The angel of God takes notice of the cruelty of Balaam to his beast: his first words to the unmerciful Prophet are an expostulation for this wrong. We little think it, but God shall call us to an account for the unkind and cruel usage of His poor mute creatures. He hath made us lords, not tyrants; owners, not tormentors: He that hath given us leave to kill them for our use, hath not given us leave to abuse them at our pleasure. Bp. Hall.

— thy way is perverse before me:] Thy intentions and purposes are not sincere and honest before me; for thou designest to serve Balak, and so to gain thy covetous and ambitious ends, rather than to serve me. Dr. Wells.

34. — I have sinned;] I have done ill in smiting my beast causelessly. Bp. Hall. He makes no confession of his covetousness, which was the faulty principle that set him forward. Bp. Kidder.

40. — sent to Balaam,] To feast upon the oxen and sheep which he had slain. Bp. Patrick.

41. — the high places of Baal,] The high places set apart for the worship of their idol or false god, Baal. Thither Balak brings Balaam, as to a place most advantageous for his purpose, both as it was a place dedicated to Baal, and for its height, giving him a prospect of the camp of Israel. Bp. Kidder. The word Baal signifies Lord, and was the name of several gods, both male and female. The god of the Moabites was Chemosh; but here very probably is called by the common name of Baal. And as all nations worshipped their gods upon high places, so this god of Moab, wherefore camest thou not unto me? am I not able indeed to promote thee to honour?

Before
CHRIST
1452.

38 And Balaam said unto Balak, Lo, I am come unto thee: have I now any power at all to say any thing? the word that God putteth in my mouth, that shall I speak.

